LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

SUPPLEMENT A

ECONOMIC DISCIPLINE OF THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

I. Present Philosophy of the Economic Discipline

A. Basic Assumptions

1. The observation that few men and women are able to make a long term commitment to the inner city and its ministry. Far too often, the churches resort to young men just out of seminary or to retired preachers in order to carry on some limited witness in the inner city. Many dedicated younger men, through the pressures of limited pay and growing needs of their families, are forced to accept better paying opportunities.

   Therefore, we have sought to pay adequate salaries, geared to the size of a man's family, and to provide the kind of economic stability and security which permits a family to remain in the inner city.

2. The assumption that we need here the full time and energy of the staff.

   Therefore, our staff should be paid a sufficient salary to maintain them without having to resort to any kind of income supplement. As a result, all money earned by the staff through speaking engagements, writing, and the like is turned in to the Parish. This often amounts to a substantial sum.

3. Involvement of the wife in the life of the Parish. It is clear that families of the Parish staff must live in the community and find meaning in their life here. The families are often happiest when the wife comes to feel genuinely at home in the community and takes a substantial part in the life of the Parish.

   Therefore, wives may be asked to accept responsibilities in the work of the Parish, beyond the ordinary involvement of laity. For this, they will be given household and baby sitting help commensurate with their time commitment to the Parish.

Wives are permitted to accept regular employment in the Parish or elsewhere. In this case, adjustments in size of Parish salary payments for children are made (since the present amounts are relatively high to preclude the necessity of the wife's working).

4. The assumption that in the church, it is right and necessary to find patterns of economic life that reflect our unity in Christ, and our equal value before God.

   Therefore, we have tried the experiment within the group ministry, of finding a common standard of living for the members, irrespective of education, training, longevity, etc. This means that single people receive a relatively low cash salary, while men with families receive a substantial increment for children, based on the actual cost of children in relation to their age.

5. The problem of education for children. One of the real worries for parents is the education of their children. It does not seem fair to penalize our children when this becomes in fact the case. So far, all staff children have begun in the public schools, but in several cases, it has seemed essential to place them later on in private schools and to give the parents help in making this possible. At the same time, we are personally troubled by this problem, for it may seem to separate us from the community.

   Therefore, we have developed our Schools and Colleges Committee, with its concern to offer special assistance to the children of our Parish, both staff and lay, who need and can profit by private schooling.

B. Basic Present Pattern

In the light of the purposes of the economic pattern of the Parish, a rather complicated system of remuneration has been devised. The basic features are as follows:

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2023 with funding from Kahle/Austin Foundation

https://archive.org/details/pacificchurchman3234vari

1. Salary Scale:

	1st 2 Yrs.*	3 - 10 Yrs.*	11 Yrs. Onward*
Single	3,200	3,500	4,000
Married	3,800	4,000	4,500
Allowance for Children:
0 - 4[a]	300
5 - 9	500
10 - 13	600
14 thru College	750

* Salary that applies at the beginning of a budget year will apply to the full budget year. Thus longevity increment will begin with budget year following the time when one becomes eligible for it.

[a] Full allowance for the year paid for a child born within the budget year. Also, children's allowance determined by age at end of budget year.

2. Additional Benefits provided by the Parish Salary Scale:

Housing.
Utilities.
Phone (exclusive of personal long distance calls).
Use of car (at 3¢ mile for private use outside NYC).
Blue Cross and GHI.
Pension at rate of: Single 500 year
Married 750 year
Eligible to apply for Schools and Colleges funds.
One month vacation yearly (except two weeks for those only remaining for 1 year).

3. Employed Wives

Families under the economic discipline may chose one of the two following alternatives (with freedom to switch from one plan to the other upon proper notification before the Parish budget year begins).

a. Present salary scale. Wife not permitted to earn income. However, when the wife accepts responsibilities either with the Parish or outside, she may accept sufficient funds to cover the cost of baby sitting and necessary household help. Such a plan should be reported to the Personnel Committee.

b. Wife chooses to work, either full or part time, for the sake of income. In this case, following requirements take effect:
   1) Husband continues under present obligation to turn all outside earned income over to the Parish.
   2) Wife may keep for the family all of her income.
   3) Allowances for children are changed to $300 per child, regardless of age (since the present amounts are relatively high to preclude necessity of wife's working).
   4) Family is normally not eligible for Schools and Colleges aid.

C. Additional Considerations, re taxable income

1. Rent: now considered not taxable income.
   All Group Ministry members have their rent paid for them, in most cases by check directly to the landlord. In the instance of clergy, this is clearly under law not taxable income. For the non-ordained staff members we have not considered it taxable, on the grounds that under our discipline they are required by their employer to live in the community. Most of those in this category are single women, and clearly this is a hardship imposed on them by the Parish.

2. Utilities: now considered not taxable income.
   On the same grounds as rent, the Parish reimburses all utilities bills paid by the individuals.

3. Phone: now considered not taxable income.
   A phone is provided in each apartment, since these are used extensively for business. Personal long distance calls are paid for by the staff.

4. Annuity Payments: considered not taxable income.
   The Parish now pays to the appropriate annuity fund of each staff member the amount of $750 for married staff and $500 for single. In many cases, the staff member makes additional payments on his own. These payments are made directly to the fund involved.

5. Staff Education: now considered not taxable income.
   When staff take additional schooling in order to perform their present jobs more satisfactorily, this is paid for by the Parish. They must apply for this assistance on a special form and agree to complete the course.

6. Baby Sitting: now considered not taxable income.
   Staff wives who are presently reimbursed for money paid out directly in baby sitting fees in order to undertake responsibilities in the Parish are requested on the reimbursement requisition to indicate the person to whom the money was paid and wherever possible, to get their signature.

7. Education of Staff Children: now considered not taxable income.
   The Parish has set up a Schools and Colleges Committee to assist all children of the churches we serve in getting the best possible education. A reading clinic and lending library has been started, visits are made to schools, and in many ways encouragement is given to the children. As part of this Committee's work, special money is raised each year for tuition payments for children in private schools and colleges. A regular application form must be filed by the parents. These funds, now amounting to as much as $8,000 a year, are then distributed to those who need and can profit by special schooling. Staff children apply for these same funds, and while it is clear that they have some priority, they go through the same screening process. This year, for example, we are aiding three boys in higher education and five in prep schools, of whom only two are staff children. In every case, the parents must pay some part, however small, of the total fee. The payments for tuition are made directly to the schools involved and not to the parents.

8. Use of Cars: no income involved.
   Each staff member shares the use of a Parish vehicle. The cars are all owned and operated by the Parish. When staff members use the cars for personal business outside of the city limits, they pay the Parish 3% per mile, less the cost of gas and oil.

9. Thefts.
   Since staff under the disciplines, living in tenement apartments, face considerable risk from theft and are not able to secure any form of insurance, the Parish guarantees to replace loss from burglary at the approximate actual value of the lost articles at the time of the theft if, at the time, the apartment had really been burglarproofed as adequately as possible.

SUPPLEMENT B

CHRISTIAN ACTION DISCIPLINE OF THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

I. BASIC PATTERNS

The Christian Action Discipline requires that each member of the Group Ministry shall take an active part in one or more community activities or organizations working for the improvement of the East Harlem community. After the Steering Committee has selected the areas of community involvement for the Parish and the statement of our aims and goals in each of these areas has been prepared, each member will submit to the Group Ministry chairman a list of his commitments in Christian Action. The Group Ministry recognizes partisan politics as part of its members' responsibility in Christian Action. No staff member should enter into partisan politics without discussing his involvement with his local employing group.

II. GROUND RULES FOR INDIVIDUAL INVOLVEMENT

A. INDIVIDUAL STANDS ON CONTROVERSIAL MATTERS

Individual members of the Group Ministry, as individuals, have the right to speak out on political or controversial matters. They shall be under the obligation to make every effort to disassociate their opinions from those of the Parish or the Group Ministry. In the case of written documents, the individual should identify himself with the East Harlem Protestant Parish, but then go on to state that such individual or individuals are "speaking (or writing) only for himself as an individual(s) and not as a representative of the East Harlem Protestant Parish or the Group Ministry.

B. PICKETING

In the case of picketing, individuals will routinely confer with the Administrative Committee. If a matter seems relatively uncontroversial, he may use his own discretion.

C. CAMPAIGNING

In the case of campaigning for a political party or candidate, it is understood that an individual will not wear clerical garb. He will use all his ingenuity and all his integrity to disassociate himself from the Parish. Because of the difficulties inherent in campaigning, the individuals must be responsible for himself, but he is urged to take as quiet, and behind-the-scenes role as possible

D. POLITICAL CLUBS

Individuals, as individuals, are permitted to join political clubs after consultation with the local employing group. While it is preferable that he should not wear his clerical garb in a political club, practicality means that he will often have to appear in his clerical collar.

E. APPEARANCES ON POLITICAL OCCASIONS

There are real difficulties here, but any person appearing as an invited guest on political occasions shall make it clear in writing beforehand that he is coming as an individual and ask that he NOT be introduced or mentioned in connection with the East Harlem Protestant Parish.

F. CHRISTIAN ACTION CO-ORDINATOR

The Christian Action Co-ordinator has the same privileges and rights as any member of the Group Ministry, but is requested to be even more circumspect and to use even greater discretion in his involvement in the political arena.

SUPPLEMENT C

PERSONNEL PROCEDURES FOR THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

The authority to employ or release from employment on the staff of the East Harlem Protestant Parish is vested jointly in the Steering Committee and the local church group with which the person will be working, with approval also necessary by the Board of Driectors. Such employment, however, implies agreement on the part of the staff person to enter fully into the Vocational-Religious disciplines of the Group Ministry. Where this is not the case, this is to be clearly stated in writing. (There are some office staff and maintenance personnel, referred to as "straight-time staff," who do not come under the disciplines.)

A. INITIAL PERIOD IN THE GROUP MINISTRY

1. All those who work in the Parish, with the exception of straight-time staff, begin in the Group Ministry with a one year commitment.

2. They are called by agreement of the Steering Committee and the local group with which they will be working on recommendation of the Personnel Committee, and with the approval of the Board of Directors.

3. The terms of their call and the specific responsibilities are placed in writing with a copy to each of the parties involved.

4. They will live under all the disciplines in order to learn if this type of disciplined life in a group is helpful and desirable as part of their Christian vocation. Exceptions will be made only by mutual agreement.

5. They are full members of the Group Ministry and are expected to recognize their position as those who are learning and to take seriously the use of the advisor system for exploring their needs and concerns.

6. At the end of one year, the Steering Committee will call for an evaluation by the person's advisor and local employing group. His work will be evaluated in terms of:
   a. His ability to do the job for which he was hired.
   b. His relation to the people with whom he works, both staff and laity.
   c. Conviction of call to this particular job.
   d. Goals and aims in his Christian vocation, especially in relation to East Harlem and a multiple staff situation.

e. Involvement in the disciplines of the Group Ministry.

7. If in the evaluation all parties agree that it would be advisable for the person to continue this period of training and exploration, it may be extended, normally for one additional year.

8. At the completion of this initial period, after either one or two years, there are three alternatives:
   a. Continue their call as a worker in the East Harlem Protestant Parish as a member of the Group Ministry.
   b. Seek another call.
   c. Change his relationship to that of straight-time staff.

B. RESIGNATION FROM THE GROUP MINISTRY

If a person is considering changing his job, he will discuss this possibility with his advisor and bring it to the Group Ministry for their prayerful consideration. If, after such a discussion, he decides that resignation is a possibility, he may discuss this with his local church or other group and with the Steering Committee. A resignation should be submitted in writing, but under the disciplines, a person should not expect his resignation to be effective until a satisfactory replacement is available.

C. SPECIAL CATEGORIES

1. Interns. From time to time, the Parish may employ interns. While the pay scale in this category will be somewhat different than the present economic discipline, interns will be expected to share fully in the life of the Group Ministry.

2. Straight-Time Staff. On occasion, staff may be hired on a straight salary basis, other than the economic discipline, and yet wish to be part of the Group Ministry. With the agreement of all parties concerned, this may be permitted.

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

DISCIPLINES

of

THE EAST HARLEM GROUP MINISTRY

When men seek to respond to the gift of God's love in Jesus Christ, certain patterns of discipline or habits of the Christian life become essential if they are to grow in obedience to their new lord and become his true disciples. The particular disciplines of the Group Ministry, here set forth, reflect in large part a pattern of discipline for any Christian. At the same time, these disciplines take into account the common vocational commitment in this particular situation in which we are called to serve as clergy, staff, and wives in the common task of the ministry of God's church in East Harlem. The East Harlem Protestant Parish has sought over the years to discover the style of life which is appropriate for the church in its situation. Today the Group Ministry includes not only staff members of the East Harlem Protestant Parish, but is open to clergy and staff members of other East Harlem churches. Thus the recent name, EAST HARLEM GROUP MINISTRY. Members commit themselves to adhere to all the following disciplines:

I. LIFE IN THE CONGREGATION

A. Participation.

The local congregation in which we worship is the basic locus for our personal religious community.

1. We participate faithfully and fully in its corporate life.
2. We normally are involved in one small group each week.

B. Responsibility.

We discuss and evaluate our specific work with the church body to which we are responsible. This is usually, but not always, the governing body of the local church.

II. LIFE AS INDIVIDUALS

A. Ordered Day.

We agree to plan our day as an offering to God. This "Ordered Day" is subject to individual variations, but it implies a genuine effort, in light of the Holy Spirit, to impose a pattern upon the events and demands of the day as well as to discipline the use of our time.

B. Habits of Daily Devotion.

1. Devotional reading and study of the Bible, presumably using the Lectionary.

DISCIPLINES

of

THE EAST HARLEM GROUP MINISTRY

When men seek to respond to the gift of God's love in Jesus Christ, certain patterns of discipline or habits of the Christian life become essential if they are to grow in obedience to their new lord and become his true disciples. The particular disciplines of the Group Ministry, here set forth, reflect in large part a pattern of discipline for any Christian. At the same time, these disciplines take into account the common vocational commitment in this particular situation in which we are called to serve as clergy, staff, and wives in the common task of the ministry of God's church in East Harlem. The East Harlem Protestant Parish has sought over the years to discover the style of life which is appropriate for the church in its situation. Today the Group Ministry includes not only staff members of the East Harlem Protestant Parish, but is open to clergy and staff members of other East Harlem churches. Thus the recent name, EAST HARLEM GROUP MINISTRY. Members commit themselves to adhere to all the following disciplines:

I. LIFE IN THE CONGREGATION

A. Participation.

The local congregation in which we worship is the basic locus for our personal religious community.

1. We participate faithfully and fully in its corporate life.
2. We normally are involved in one small group each week.

B. Responsibility.

We discuss and evaluate our specific work with the church body to which we are responsible. This is usually, but not always, the governing body of the local church.

II. LIFE AS INDIVIDUALS

A. Ordered Day.

We agree to plan our day as an offering to God. This "Ordered Day" is subject to individual variations, but it implies a genuine effort, in light of the Holy Spirit, to impose a pattern upon the events and demands of the day as well as to discipline the use of our time.

B. Habits of Daily Devotion.

1. Devotional reading and study of the Bible, presumably using the Lectionary.

2. Meditation.
3. Prayer with special emphasis upon intercession.

C. Worship Center in the Home.
Each person will maintain a worship center in his home, with Bible and cross, as a focus for the worship life of the family.

III. LIFE IN THE WORLD

A. Commitment to Live in the Community.
Families of the Group Ministry live in the community and share in its common life.

B. Commitment to Act in the Community.
We are committed to participate in at least one community organization working for brotherhood or justice in our neighborhood.

IV. LIFE IN THE GROUP MINISTRY

A. Religious.
1. Bible study each week with preparation.
2. Monthly day of retreat.

B. Vocational.
We pledge ourselves annually to set forth our goals and objectives for our ministry and to state the length and nature of our vocational commitment in East Harlem. Once a month we discuss our life under the disciplines with our advisor. Major vocational decisions will be submitted to the consideration of the advisor and Group Ministry.

C. Economic.
The Group Ministry is committed to the principle of seeking a salary scale for its members insuring an income adequate to permit them to concentrate their energy in their ministry, without need to earn additional income, or to seek employment elsewhere as family size and responsibilities increase. /For details of the East Harlem Protestant Parish Economic Discipline, see Supplement A/

D. Christian Action.
We are committed to take a responsible role in Christian Action in East Harlem. /For details of the East Harlem Protestant Parish Christian Action Discipline, see Supplement B/

NEWSLETTER

S.F.T.S. LIBRARY

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH, 2050 Second Avenue, New York 29, New York

EASTER AND EAST HARLEM.....

"...but we preach Christ crucified, a stumblingblock to Jews and folly to Gentiles, but to those who are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God." 1st Corinthians 1:23-24

During the days of Lent, with their climax in Holy Week, we have been taking seriously the necessity of facing the scandal of the cross and the foolishness of the Gospel. By seeking in our common life as a Parish to live as though we were actually present in the events that led to the cross, we have tried to recapture the eternal contemporaneousness of Christ. Only as we share again in the pathetic, farcical scene on Palm Sunday when a king comes on a donkey, chase after him with the fickle mob, join in the Last Supper on Thursday, an experience of wonder and awe, touched with foreboding, stand with Peter as he denies our Lord, then march the long path to Golgotha and in despair watch the anguish of death on a cross--only then will the joy and power and glory of Easter break anew into our lives. In this way alone we may be driven by God's grace to recognize our own sinfulness and thus, through this path alone, be enabled to throw aside the wisdom of men and live by the foolishness of God's grace.

* * * * * * * * * *

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS:

This News Letter will be the last in the present format. We hope within a few weeks to publish the first edition of a small paper designed to keep our friends up-to-date about the ministry of the Parish and yet be a witness to the community of East Harlem. The author of the main article in this Letter is the chairman of the Group Ministry of the Parish. As a seminary student, he spent a summer in the Parish and upon ordination, returned to East Harlem as a minister at Church of the Son of Man. For the past two years he has been minister of the Elmendorf Reformed Church just off 3rd Avenue at 121st Street.

* * * * * * *

WE NEED:

1. Rummage: Every two weeks one of the Parish churches holds a rummage sale for the benefit of the Parish community. All kinds of used clothing is most welcome.

2. Children's Books: There is one branch library serving the whole of East Harlem—over 200,000 people. We have been driven to open a library and within days it has been overrun with children. We can't begin to meet the demand for books for all ages. Already we have expanded the program to include remedial reading classes and a general cultural enrichment emphasis.

3. Money: for the regular budget and summer program.

* * * * * * * *

Personnel: Florence Borgmann, after two and a half years away, mostly spent in an exciting new ministry in Glasgow, Scotland, has returned to the Parish and is working with the Narcotics Program and the 100th Street Church....Wendell Elmendorf, minister of the 100th Street Church and Mary Rosado, former staff member, were married in January....Dorothy Crist has taken a leave from the Parish for graduate work at Teacher's College....Melvin Schoonover, former Parish Administrator, is now the pastor of the Baptist Church on 123rd Street in the upper end of East Harlem...

Narcotics Program: This ministry has expanded tremendously under the impact of the fantastic need for help on the part of addicts. Since January 1st, over 12 new addicts a week have come seeking help. The Narcotics Committee has been supporting several urgent bills now before the Legislature, aimed at some help for the addict.

There is in our denomination an amazing inconsistency. On the one hand we hold to the efficacious Word wherever it is preached in the purity of the Biblical faith. We claim complete dependence on the Spirit of God to transform the hearts of men as the Gospel is faithfully proclaimed through the channel of the church. Yet, it appears to me at times that we are so busy defining our position and defending our beliefs, that we miss many of our chances to put our spiritual heritage and understanding into practice.

The point of inconsistency becomes quite clear as folks ask us about our work in East Harlem. It impresses me that most of the questions are really outside the Reformed understanding of God, man, and the Way of Salvation. "How do you work in East Harlem?", or "How do you work with people of different racial background?". Do you see any place for questions like these in our understanding of man and God?

Somewhere in our Christian thinking we have been carried out in the tide of culture and social structure. As Christians we are committed to a view of man as he represents the total life of the race....either the essential nature of self-centeredness in the Adam-like man apart from God, or the essential new nature of God-centeredness in the New Head of the Race, Christ Jesus. We have used the word "essential", since here I think is the key to our understanding or misunderstanding. When we talk in terms of race, culture, social conditions in a community, or economic situations, we are not talking about that which is essentially different, but rather, that which differs only in circumstances involving a multitude of variations. And these variations do not alter the basic categories of "Man in Adam" and "Man in Christ". Therefore, these circumstantial differences do not determine what we mean by ministry....or do they? Is the ministry of our denomination being frustrated by an attitude which makes variation among men (whether in Adam or in Christ) of greater consequence than that which is really true? It is my opinion that the answer is "yes".

To substantiate this, take a glance at the frustration of a church caught in a changing community. The church totters uneasily for a few years and then goes to the highest bidder. And as these "Christian Arabs" silently "steal away", one can catch the refrain from the last stanza of "Lead On, O King Eternal". How have we fallen prey to the evil of thinking the words to the hymn, "In Christ There Is No East or West", are to be used only to create a "mission-like atmosphere" in our Ladies' Aid gatherings? How have we been dupped into the folly of thinking that only the Dutch heart can be warmed by the answer to the question, "What is thine only comfort in life and death?"? Or, are there some peculiar qualities granted to the soul of a Caucasian suburbanite that makes a ministry to him of a different nature than the ministry to any other?

The answer must be "yes", at least in minds of many. I have heard people say of those bleak masses in our big cities, "They would rather have their 'own kind' as a minister" (and what an abominable sophistication to speak in terms of "different kinds"!). Or, "They would not like the Reformed Church and our type of ministry". Yes, we stand with the Bible in one hand and our Reformed Standards in the other, a vision of the Glory of the Savior before our eyes, and at the same time doubting in our hearts that the message we proclaim and the service we render can make any impact on the lives of people who don't look exactly like ourselves! It is a ridiculous picture, but it is necessary at times to see ourselves as ridiculous in order to achieve some self-understanding.

How long will it take us to realize that a church does not minister to Negroes, Mexicans, Indians, or Puerto Ricans, but that we minister to men. And it takes no Ph.D. in psychology to know that there is a common cluster of experiences and needs shared by all men, just because they are men. And we claim to know who and what man is! For, we know who God is through His self-revelation in Christ.

The time I have spent in the inner city has not been lengthy. However, it has been time enough for me to discover something startling. And, I do not mean to be facetious, but what I have discovered is that everything the Reformed Church believes by way of her Standards, her emphasis on the all-sufficiency of Jesus Christ, her insistence on the proclamation of Scriptural teachings and use of the Sacraments, and the sure realization of the good promises of God when these tenets of faith are adhered to....what I have discovered is that it is really true! Realistically true right here! (A shock for most of us, the insipid doubter as well as the vigorous defender.)

At the beginning of our ministry here, a very direct question was posed. A man asked, "What are you trying to prove?". As if there was to be expected some quite extraordinary manifestations in our church due to the area or the people of East Harlem! And I confess, there may have been times when in my own mind I entertained such ludicrous ideas also. We must never forget that the church, wherever it may be located, is committed to proving only one thing; that She is the living reality of God's redeeming love working in the hearts of God's people and out into the world about Her. (The world which we often neglect to see as loved, wanted, and already claimed by God). There are no new discoveries! There is only the possibility of rediscovering and applying those truths already affirmed in our Faith. Would to God that all of our churches could just see the simplicity, yet revolutionary quality, of their real participation in Christ and mission to the world.

Many expect that in our situation we set us as our goals such things as proving "integration in the church", "transformation of society", "uniqueness of a city ministry", "the church's responsibility toward social welfare" or "there are neglected people in our society". As good as these goals may be in themselves, were they to be our primary goals, we would leave this place tomorrow. (And not out of disgust for the area or the people, but out of confusion as to the meaning of Church). For some this may be rather disappointing, for others it will be reassuring, but in all honesty the only thing we are trying to do is to be a faithful church of Jesus Christ. And this is our only right for being here as a church.

Why do we make our mission sophisticated? We cannot assume we are actually building integrated relationships between various groups, since these benefits are granted to a faithful ministry. It is our mission to proclaim and apply the Good News to this community. Of course, this will of necessity result in a fellowship which reflects the constituency of the community, else it would not be a faithful ministry. However, those very natural results of a faithful ministry must not be viewed as taking precedence over the primary task of the ministry.

So, there is no need to hesitate. To think that there is any essential difference between the ministry of a church in a small town and a large metropolitan area is utter nonsense. If what we stand for in our Reformed faith is really true, is it not as applicable in any situation? If the salvation which we enjoy is not looked upon as having the same meaning for every man, then what we have is less than a true understanding of salvation. The only thing that will limit our usefulness for the Glory of God is our unwillingness to put our resources to work. We should not be embarrassed by denominational littleness or cultural provincialism. If we are a part of the Universal Church, as we most certainly hold to be true, then we are engaged in something that is beyond ourselves, and in being beyond us, we thereby embrace all men, even "that guy over there", for he is Man.

Tonight, before you nestle off to sleep in the warm security of your evening devotions, recall for a moment the blessing you receive through the ministry of your church. Then ask God to help you understand His Free Grace as it is really quite apart from any qualities of merit in your own achievement, physical features, or social heritage. You are now ready to have God show you that this faith you enjoy is really the faith needed by everyman. If all of us could be convinced of this, the Reformed Church would enter a new era of mission and expansion. I for one refuse to believe that finances are the big barrier. Not if God will open our eyes to see that what we believe is true....I mean, it is r e a l l y t r u e!

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

247 East 104th Street, New York 29, New York February, 1957

O P E R A T I O N F A C E L I F T . . . .

East Harlem is due for a facelifting. Already 70 of the 207 city blocks that make up East Harlem have been rebuilt, are under construction, or have been definitely scheduled for housing projects in the near future. In addition, the city has said that there are an additional 108 which are "suitable for redevelopment"; it's just a matter of time before these blocks are rebuilt. This means that there are only 31 blocks (including 9 blocks of city park) which will remain as they now are during the next 10 or 15 years. This is facelifting on a gigantic scale. It means a revolution in the appearance, population, and character of a community of 215,000.

There is a newness and freshness about the projects which give life new possibilities. A new home means a new start in life. Clean, fresh surroundings provide incentive to keep things neat and comfortable. New schools mean a new opportunity for children to learn as pleasant, well-equipped surroundings for study are made available.

But there will still be families and individuals with deep personal and social needs. There will continue to be children and young people looking for friendship and a fresh vision of the future. With all the planning for new homes and new schools in a new East Harlem, there can be a terrible emptiness at the center of life. It is this old emptiness and purposelessness of life in a new city which is the challenge to the churches of East Harlem.

The Parish began as a storefront church on the corner of Third Avenue and 102nd Street. Much of its expansion since 1948 has been into other storefronts on other blocks. It has been the idea of storefront churches ministering to local city blocks which has caught the imagination of many of you who are our friends and supporters.

But the central thing in the Parish's ministry is the community of committed Christians who are alert and open to the needs of their immediate neighborhood. The storefront is an important means of building this kind of committed Christian community on a tenement block. It is also an important symbol of the openness of the Parish churches to the needs of the community--both group and individual needs.

With the changing scene in East Harlem reminding us each day, however, of new opportunities and responsibilities, we have to ask ourselves if a storefront church is an adequate base for ministering to a new housing project with 1500 apartments and 5700 residents. Do people who are living in new homes want to go to a storefront church on a tenement block? The challenge of the new East Harlem to the Protestant Church demands the investment of money and careful planning, the construction of new churches to fit in with the new apartment buildings, helping old congregations adjust to their new responsibilities.

THE PARISH IN THE NEW EAST HARLEM

Ascension Church has from the beginning of its association with the Parish seen its main ministry to be in East River Houses. Ascension will also be in an ideal position directly across the street from the soon-to-be-built Benjamin Franklin Houses for middle income families.

Church of the Son of Man lost a large proportion of its members from active participation in the church when demolition began for George Washington Houses. With the opening of the first new project buildings in February, 1955, this church began directing an increasing amount of its energy to calling and evangelism in the project. This summer, a full scale survey of the first half of the project was completed.

When the second half of George Washington Houses opens this spring, several church families who formerly lived on the project site will move back into the new homes on their old blocks. At least one of these families, that of Carlos Rodriguez, Parish deacon, will be moving back so that he can give more time to evangelistic work in the project. Bill Webber, who left Union Seminary February 1st to become a full-time minister of the Parish, will also be moving into George Washington Houses with his family.

Church of Our Redeemer and 100th Street Church are both on a designated housing site and will be demolished sooner or later. This will leave a big gap in the Protestant ministry in southeastern East Harlem. Discussions are now progressing with the Congregational Christian Church and the Reformed Church in America for the construction of a new church building someplace in the general area of these two churches.

As new houses and new churches are built in East Harlem, there will continue to be pockets of tenement housing in the area for another 10 or 15 years. The Parish feels a special responsibility for the Protestant ministry on these blocks and will continue to reach out on new blocks as our old churches are replaced.

PROTESTANT FACELIFTING

But the challenge of the new East Harlem goes far beyond the area and the resources of the Parish. Recognizing this fact, Norm Eddy, Bill Webber, and John Crist of the Group Ministry began meeting more than a year ago with some of the other ministers in East Harlem and representatives of the Protestant Council and New York City Mission Society to try and develop a common Protestant strategy for ministering to East Harlem.

It soon became apparent that along with problems of overall strategy, there were questions of program and personnel which needed to be met on an area-wide basis. Realizing this, the group constituted itself as the Committee for the Protestant Cooperative Center. The Committee has continued to meet at two week intervals.

Church of the Good Neighbor offered space for the offices and meetings of the Committee. Plans are nearing completion for the employment of a full-time social worker to aid all the ministers of East Harlem with individual problems and referrals. A youth leadership training program--"Study to Serve"--for all the churches has been developed this winter in cooperation with the New York City Mission Society. A Baptist and a Reformed Church have pooled money and volunteer personnel to conduct a religious survey of a new housing project near to them.

At the same time, there has been a continuing concern to develop a united strategy for churching the new East Harlem and to help individual churches with their problems of relocation and building. Because the challenge is so great and the resources so few, it seems tremendously urgent that we work closely together in order that the Gospel may be presented to all people in the "new East Harlem."

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
247 EAST 104TH STREET
NEW YORK 29, NEW YORK

RETURN POSTAGE GUARANTEED

NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION

U. S. POSTAGE
1¢ PAID
NEW YORK, N. Y.
PERMIT NO. 10,119

Dr. Francis L. Bouquet
Librarian
San Francisco Theological Seminary
San Anselmo, California

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

247 East 104th Street, New York 29, New York

April, 1957

... LENT IN THE PARISH

Lent, for the Christian Church, is that time when we prepare for Easter by confession of our sins, penitence for them, and serious thought about the deep things of our faith.

Lent began for the Parish, this year, on the night John Crist, one of the Group Ministry, was killed in an automobile accident. It was the Monday night before Ash Wednesday. The day had been spent in meeting, worship, and a rethinking of our work with men. The morning was given to a prayerful preparation for Lent by a number of ministers and laymen all over East Harlem, members of the Cooperative Protestant Center, a movement close to John's heart. During the afternoon and early evening the staff and a group of laymen questioned Canon Wickham, an industrial chaplain in Sheffield, England, about his methods and techniques, and found him challenging and stimulating. Finally the Group Ministry met to vote Don and Jackie DeYoung as full members of the group.

The news of John's death was a stunning blow. Tuesday evening, instead of our traditional Shrove Tuesday pancake festival, we were gathered as by the hand of God, overflowing the 100th Street Church to celebrate the Spirit of Christ we knew through John, to give thanks for his life among us, and to hold together in our sorrow and terrible sense of loss.

Wednesday morning and evening we slipped quietly into the churches newly penitent about our own lives in the newly seen measure of John's life and death in Christ. Each now faced alone, as he bore the ash of penitence on his brow, his deepest questions about the mysteries of life and death. John's going ahead revealed to us our own poverty in spirit and made us long for the grace to live that our death might be, like him, a triumphant reunion with Christ

We came to the funeral service heavy with the loss of our brother as we had known him; yet his spirit, released and at peace, illumined and glorified the hearts of all of us calling us to a new unity in Christ.

During all of these days, in our thoughts and prayers and the small services we could do, we sought to comfort and sustain Dottie, John's wife. Yet we found that, then and now, we who go to comfort are instead comforted and inspired with new courage by her. "Her smiling face in the face of this calamity," said Jennie Clarke, a fellow minister in East Harlem, "is proof to us all 'that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor things present, nor things to come, nor powers, nor height, nor depth, nor anything else in all creation, will be able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord'." To which we all say, Amen.

So John's death has been used by God, in his mysterious way, to keep the ultimate questions of life and death before us this Lent. And not only the members of the Parish. Hardly a day goes by when we are not drawn into discussion with someone in the neighborhood who knew John or was set thinking by this event.

As we come to Holy Week, we set our hearts to follow our Master down his last lonely road to betrayal, the cross, and the open grave. This year, as we of the Parish take the Lord's Supper around the table, feel the darkness descend as the candles are snuffed during Christ's betrayal, watch together before the blackened altar during His agony, troop gladly forth at dawn to find Him risen and the stone rolled away on Easter morning, we shall feel very close to John. We have no doubt that he is close to us. For

"was adding insult to injury." Fortunately, the father was speaking in good humor, but the point here is that the 15 college students will this summer volunteer their time for nine weeks and in addition pay for their own board and room. This helps emphasize a very important fact about their role in East Harlem. These students are coming here not to do good for the poor people of East Harlem or even to make some significant contribution to the ongoing life of the Parish, but first of all to share in the life of this community. They will live in apartments rented in the tenements on the streets where they will be working. Secondly, they will be asked to share fully in the life and work of one of the four Parish churches. They come as inquirers, as fellow Christians, and as partners with our laymen in the work of the Parish. We pray that they will gain as much as they give. This attitude is important to our members, for they are asked to teach the students, work with and train them. In years past too often we have seemed to depend on students for the ongoing work of the Parish. Now they come to join us in a relationship that we hope is far more mutual in its rewards.

The college group this year comes from 12 different colleges and includes two students from Puerto Rico and one young Spanish Protestant who is studying at Illinois. An additional 12 students come from theological seminaries. We have been eager to have a wide range of denominations and seminaries represented. This summer we have students from Yale Divinity, Drew, Chicago, Andover-Newton, and a large group from Union. Three of the group have just completed their seminary training and are having a try in the inner-city before deciding on their future place of service. These students carry somewhat heavier responsibilities than the college group, but again, we are first concerned that they share fully in the life of the Parish and its community and only secondly in the role they can fulfill in our ministry. They receive board and room, expenses, and 100.00 to take back to seminary in the Fall. We still need to find about $2,000.00 to provide for these workers. Would you care to provide all or part of the services of one of these "Summer Missionaries" at about $300.00 per student? They are not overpaid.....and we need them!!!

MISCELLANY

Elmendorf Church: Don DeYoung is now the official pastor of this Reformed Church on 121st. Street, near Third Ave. He remains a full member of the Group Ministry of the Parish and will continue to be related to our work, while the Church continues as a member of the Reformed Classis. He will be joined in July by Dave Hondorp who will come for 14 months before returning to his final seminary year. Dave worked in the Parish last summer and is a Group Ministry Potential.

100th. Street Church: On June 5, Wendell Elmendorf (no relation to the Church) began his full time work as one of the two ministers of this church, filling the spot left vacant since the death of John Crist. Wendell has worked at this church for almost three years while preparing for the ministry at Union. He is a Methodist and comes under Conference appointment. This is a source of great rejoicing, for the Methodists are the only supporting denomination that has not before been represented on our staff. Dorothy Crist is remaining on 100th. Street, and although her plans are not definite, we hope very much that by September it will seem best to her to continue in her work in the Parish.

Schoonovers: Melvin Schoonover, our Parish Administrator and half-time pastor on 100th. Street, was married to Diana Sturgis on May 24th. They are hoping to move into Washington Houses.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
247 EAST 104TH STREET
NEW YORK 29, NEW YORK

RETURN POSTAGE GUARANTEED

JUN 27 1957

NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION

U. S. POSTAGE
1¢ PAID
NEW YORK, N. Y.
PERMIT NO. 10,119

Dr. Francis L. Bouquet
San Francisco Theol. Seminary
San Anselmo, Calif.

N E W S L E T T E R

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
247 East 104th Street
New York 29, New York
October, 1957

If you really believe in the Church...

IT WILL TAKE YOU TO YOUR COMMUNITY'S FRONTIERS

George Williams Webber

In the Moffatt translation of Paul's letter to the Philippians there appears the phrase: "You are a colony of heaven." For me, this has become a fruitful definition of the church, with crucial relevance to our present situation.

A colony gains its initial substance and derives its basic pattern from the homeland. So it is with the church which clearly is God's. Yet a colony (and also a church) is at the same time a closely knit community in which each member finds himself dependent on the well-being, cooperation and support of his fellow colonists. The sickness of one is a threat to all. The birth of a child is a joy shared by all. In its deepest and most meaningful moments every church as a "colony of heaven" finds its uniqueness to lie in the quality of life, of fellowship, of koinonia that God grants it.

One enters church to glorify God and finds there (potentially at least) a rare experience of unity, love and acceptance. But this experience is not to be enjoyed for its own sake alone. Our Pilgrim ancestors were worshipful men--before them they had the task of bringing a wilderness under control, of penetrating the new world to which they had come with the vital influence they brought with them.

Applied to the field of churchmanship this simply means that being a church is to be engaged in a continual encounter of one sort or another with the world outside. The ultimate mission of the Christian as a Christian does not lie within the fellowship of a congregation.

Inescapable Involvement

Christian work is not in the last analysis to serve as a church officer or teach in the church school or go out as a visitor on the Every Member Canvass. It involves us finally and inescapably in our role as spiritual colonists ready to cope with all circumstances and to overcome all conditions. Just as the church is itself a mission, so a churchman is a missionary--or if one prefers, a colonist.

If the metaphorical conception of the church as a "colony of heaven" has any meaning at all in this connection, it can serve as a rather severe standard for judging our present church life. It would not be hard to prove that every church on earth has a missionary status and function, since the world always finds real faith either foolish or an obstacle to its pursuits.

Wherever the church has stepped out of its missionary role and has ceased to perform its missionary function, it has placed itself in an ambiguously self-defeating situation so far as Christian faith is concerned.

We have been thinksing so far in general terms. It may be useful to bring the discussion down at this point to a concrete instance--that of the church in East Harlem, New York City.

The problem there has been from the start to establish some sort of vital communication with the community. There existed in East Harlem a deep and seemingly impossible gulf between the people who live there and the church, with its eager sense of mission. Suspicion, sometimes antagonism, but more often apathy were the rule. A spiritual colonist had here so to live, so to share the community's life and thought, its daily cries and its small joys, as to learn at first hand the native language and the indigenous customs in order to begin talking in terms the people could understand.

The key word and principle in East Harlem has been participation. We who came from comfortable middle-class America, well-educated and on the whole quite self-assured, had to train ourselves for responsive listening to the voice and heart of those who until now had been strangers to us and from us had been estranged.

Community Estrangement

A contrasting picture can be drawn, if you please, between our East Harlem parish and the typical church in suburbia. In both cases the spiritual colonist is in danger of estrangement from real community relations, yet for quite opposite reasons. Communication in the well-heeled suburb seems delusively easy just as in East Harlem it appeared delusively hard. What is not delusive stands out, however, as a fact: namely that we have either forgotten or else never learned to participate in the life of any community--whether suburbia or city slum--in such a way as to encourage people, whatever their plight may be, to ask the ultimate questions about life and death, about life's meaning and the truth of things--the questions to which the gospel speaks with power.

The colonist, let us remind ourselves, while participating fully in the community's common life, may not surrender his ultimate loyalty to the colony itself and that for which it stands and which it represents. His goal as a Christian colonist is to communicate the gospel, to confront the outside community with Jesus Christ. And the method may be more often one of listening than of speaking, of waiting and watching for the opportunity that cannot be forced than of trying to press in too eagerly.

Waiting brings about, as a matter of fact, the colonist's second main opportunity. Wherever he is, whatever he does with mind or hand in his vocation and outside of it, he may always witness to the love of Christ for all. This is the soundest basis for that kind of creative social service that present conditions everywhere on earth cry out for.

Modern man has gotten into incredible and terrifying complications. The parable of the Good Samaritan literally applied is no longer relevant. A young minister in East Harlem was walking down a street when he saw an old man struck down by a coal truck trying to beat the lights. The minister's first impulse was to pick up the bleeding man, put him in his car and take him to the nearest hospital. That would have made him literally a Good Samaritan.

But the laws of our society make such action illegal. One cannot touch an injured person. The only thing for the minister to do, then, was to call an ambulance--meantime making the victim as comfortable as possible and holding back the crowd. It took an hour and thirty-seven minutes for the ambulance to arrive. The man died on the way to the hospital. And the young colonist, wanting to be a Good Samaritan felt utterly helpless.

Helpless Samaritan

In this situation, the obvious way to express Christian concern would be to help get better ambulance service for the slums of the great metropolis. This would require a specialized knowledge of political structures, a good deal of sustained effort and participation by a substantial number of concerned and at least somewhat influential citizens.

The answer, in other words, would have to lie in politics, in putting the kind of pressure on City Hall that would result in genuine relief for East Harlem. Only so can the innumerable wounds of our society be bound up, even as a beginning. Only so may any kind of social progress be made.

It has been the church, again and again, that was most ready to give voice to the needs of society's victims. The church has served very often indeed as a channel through which social concern could be made effective. For us who are young, the methods involved seem frustrating. Progress is unbelievably slow, political involvements are always ambiguous and frequently we find ourselves striving against insuperable odds.

One minister in the East Harlem Protestant Parish has been assigned to work half-time with teen-age drug addicts. After eight months he cannot report with certainty a single cure. Yet he carries on in defiance of all difficulties, for this seems to be the task to which he has been called for now.

Success in such affairs is not the final word. To carry on obediently and faithfully is all that can be rightly asked for, Succeeding or failing, our job rating lies with God in the last analysis.

Wider Concern

Our modern parallel to the New Testament parable carries us one step farther. Not only does a spiritual colonist attempt to transmit Christ's lowe, but he needs to do so without sentimentality and without being existentially irrelevant.

Our concern quite often goes no farther than binding up a victim's wounds and offering to take him to an inn. The church when it is on the scene provides ambulance service though not infrequently too late. But we have some obligation to the next poor traveler on the symbolic Jericho Road. We have to do something about adequate police protection to clean out the gangsters. We have come to feel in East Harlem that is is almost blasphemous to pray for the health of Mary who has caught tuberculosis in a rotting tenement, while doing nothing about the same rotting tenement where other little Marys will still catch the disease.

We have made it a condition of church membership in the East Harlem Protestant Parish that each person participates actively in at least one community organization that is working for social progress. What a great day that will be when the rank and file laity in all churches commence really to penetrate the world with a concern derived from their faith--helping to carry on and sustain the dreary and frustrating work of the NAACP, the ACLU, the League of Women Voters, the Urban League, PTA, the local political organization and all the other movements toward true democracy--with the simple certainty that in doing these things they are doing the Lord's work.

Obedient Search

When one seeks to live thus obediently throughout the whole of life, neither trying to avoid the dilemmas of having to exist in two worlds nor expecting to find answers in black and white to the questions of right and wrong, one is amazed to discover how quickly and often new channels open for confronting our fellow men with the gospel's fullness. They start the conversation, they ask the questions, they want to talk about what matters most in life. And we then have our chance to explain as best we know how what God has done in Christ for all of us--to present them with his claim to lordship and to offer them the unique opportunity of joining the spiritual colony.

When a congregation is living on the frontier, facing the world's threat and its great challenge, one is amazed to discover how vital is its life within. Men come to church with eager expectancy, knowing that the Holy Spirit will guide them in the struggles of the world.

Strength they know will come to them for meeting whatever dangers that may lie ahead. They will be fed unfailingly at the Lord's Table with the bread of life. For people in the colony look up to God as the source of their vision and vitality. They gaze out at the same time upon a world that waits with longing to be assured and reassured that its redeemer actually lives.

Bill Webber is Minister of Parishwide Services in the Parish, and is an ordained Congregational Christian minister.

This article appeared in ADVANCE, October 4, 1957. This is published by the Board of Home Missions of the Congregational Christian Churches, 289 Fourth Avenue, New York 10, New York. Permission to reprint the article was granted by the editors of ADVANCE.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

2050 Second Avenue, New York 29, New York

February, 1958

OF MANY THINGS...

From time to time we need to send you a general Newsletter to bring you up to date about recent happenings in the Parish. This seems to be one of those times, for several noteworthy events have recently occurred.

Credit Union Anniversary

Sixty-five people crowded into the front office of the Parish's headquarters recently for the annual meeting of the EHPP Federal Credit Union. This was a dramatic sign of the vitality of this young organization and the importance it already has in the life of our Parish. The statistical reports were exciting--more than a hundred new members during the past year, total deposits of nearly $2400, total loans of more than $3600, with few delays in collections. A 2% divident was declared on shares.

The Credit Union grew out of a small group of young adults in the Parish who met for more than two years to discuss mutual problems and how cooperative solutions might be reached. Countless hours of service have been given by these people, who have been elected by the shareholders to the board of directors and the credit, supervisory, and education committees. Ray Rodriguez has been an especially devoted and reliable treasurer.

Young people have visions, and these are looking forward to the day, in a few years' time, when the assets of the Credit Union will be large enough for small business loans and other types of financing which can help the people of our community realize some of their ambitions and dreams. The first full year of the Credit Union has shown that these visions are not unrealistic.

The Conservatives...

Another anniversary comes up this month when the Conservatives social club have a dance to celebrate their first year of existence. Early last year a group of young people in one of the most feared gangs of East Harlem decided to go "social" and organize a club where more creative pastimes could be pursued. They sought out Norm Eddy and a 100th St. layman, Ramon Diaz, for guidance and help. The aid of the Kipps Bay Boys' Club was volunteered, a storefront on First Avenue rented as club house, and Ramon hired as adult leader.

The Conservatives have become a significant stabilizing force in our community among youth. The prestige associated with membership is considerable and there is a waiting list of prospective members. While not formally associated with the Parish, this club renders much service to the Church in many ways has our full support.

Such a neighborhood club for youth seems to give some pattern for a fruitful way of attacking the delinquency problem. But all of this is still in the dream stage, for such a program would involve large sums of money and skilled personnel.

...Youth Canteen...

But unfortunately this is not the pattern for life among many youth in East Harlem. Much of the Parish's work with youth has been mass outreach. For a number of years, for example, the 100th Street Church has conducted a Friday night Youth Canteen with a large turnout of teen-age members of the Church and other youth from the neighborhood. There is dancing to the raucous strains of Rock'n'Roll, cha cha cha, etc., refreshments, and general milling around for conversation.

At various times in the history of the Youth Canteen, gang disputes have erupted. Every adult assigned to Canteen has been told that this might happen again and given some clues as to how to break up fights. No Canteen has been held unless there has been adequate staff for supervision.

On Friday, January 24, gang violence again broke out. All week reports of tension between two gangs in the northern part of East Harlem had been spreading. Youth Board workers assured us the situation was "cool." Normally not many of these boys visited Canteen, and this time there were assurances that one of the groups would not appear at all if Canteen were held. But about 10:30 P.M., a group from this gang suddenly appeared and a fight broke out almost immediately. It lasted only a few minutes, but at the end two boys had been shot and two more stabbed. All but one have since left the hospital. Police and Youth Board workers are still trying to alleviate the tension between these two fighting clubs.

Once again we have been confronted forcibly with the great pressures on youth in East Harlem. One heartening sign has been that none of the youth members of our churches or those in the Conservatives has been involved in these latest gang incidents. But this outbreak of violence points up the tensions under which even these youth live. We feel we have something to say to youth and that some have listened. It is a slow, uphill struggle, however, with as many disappointments as successes.

Conversations among the lay people in the past few weeks have never included even a suggestion that canteens be stopped but only that we must tighten up on our supervision and redouble our efforts to reach the aimless young people of our community.

...and Narcotics.

As long as the Parish has been in existence, it has been concerned about the problem of narcotics addition, especially among youth. Great pressure was exerted by a few lay people on Norm Eddy to do something about the situation, and about a year ago he was released from some of his other duties in order to devote a substantial amount of time to a more systematic attack on the problem. The services of these and other lay people were enlisted in the task of detection of cases, and efforts made to assure addicts of our desire to be of help in working through their problems.

About a dozen new persons come to our attention each month and the numbers are slowly increasing. People come from all over the city for assistance in getting into the Public Health Service hospital at Lexington, Kentucky, and into New York City's own Riverside Hospital for juvenile addicts. Emergency relief help has been given, counseling by a psychologist families of addicts, help in finding jobs or housing. All this, to be sure, on a small scale. The results are unclear; this is a problem were "cures" are few at best, and where the evidence is conclusive only when collected over a period of time.

Now the Committee, consisting almost entirely of lay people from the community, feels we must expand our efforts, with this year's experience behind us. It is felt we need a center somewhere in East Harlem where addicts can come not only for help but also for relaxation and recreation. Additional medical services are needed in East Harlem as well as elsewhere. A simple, practical social casework program needs to be set up both to collect information and to provide service. An expanded program of legal aid is seen as a need, since many addicts are forced into breaking the law in order to get narcotics. (About 25% of applicants from our area for Lexington were arrested before their applications were processed!) Additional psychological services are needed, with perhaps some emphasis on group therapy. All this is within the framework of the Christian community which by its concern and acceptance seeks to perform the healing ministry of Christ.

This, too, requires money and personnel. Appeals are being made to foundations for enough funds to carry on this expanded program for several years. Only sometime in the future will we be able to see how addicts have been, by the grace of God, helped to overcome this destructive habit.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

pril, 195[illegible]

A VISITOR'S IMPRESSIONS OF EAST HARLEM

In early January, 1958, Dr. Elliott Dunlop Smith, Provost of Carnegie Institute of Technology, Pittsburgh, asked to spend some time in East Harlem in order to get some real feel of this ministry. For two days in lived in the Parish and shared in our life around the clock, attending meetings, calling with a minister, joining in Bible study, and throughout asking questions that challenged and stimulated the staff and laity. Following his visit we asked him to send us his impressions with the result that he took the time to prepare the following statement which we have finally decided to send to the friends of the Parish, so many of whom have not had an opportunity to visit East Harlem. Dr. Smith is a lawyer and economist by profession; before his present post at Carnegie Tech., he was for many years on the faculty at Yale University. His interest in the Parish comes from his long involvement in the redevelopment of the Harvard Divinity School as Chairman of its Board of Visitors.

# # # # # # #

East Harlem is a microcosm in which the almost unparalleled crowding of a quarter of a million persons into a few blocks, the sordidness of life, and the segregation of races bring out into the open the tendencies of modern efficiency and mass action which cause people to be treated collectively, and impair the spiritual elements which give dignity and responsibility to individual life.

In order to explore and oppose these tendencies, a few ministers and their families have immersed themselves in this outcast and downtrodden area. Each family lives separately as an integral part of the life of East Harlem, in the thought that only in this way can they fully understand its problems or be fully accepted by its residents. They recognize that to restore faith in God they must restore to the people in the area, whether or not they have joined the Parish churches, a sense of individual worth. Hence, the Parish has entered into problems of housing, of the education of children, of race discrimination, of injustice, of violence, of drug addiction, and of the cold impersonality of public services, by sharing in these problems and by taking action to meet them.

The Parish is now nearing the end of its first decade - a tiny "grain of mustard seed" in a degraded area of over two hundred and fifty thousand people. Its members have developed a common discipline to sustain them. They have sought to learn as well as to serve; and their intimate contact with the community has strengthened them as well as helped them to come close to its problems. They have neither been blind to, nor overpowered by, the desperate realities which oppose them. One cannot be long with

The Problem

In East Harlem, amid the crowdedness and the absence of opportunity for self-expression which result from great crowding and great poverty, race discrimination does not merely mean that it is hard to find a decent place to live or hard to find a job worthy of one's mettle. It means especially that it is hard to continue to feel that one is accepted in this American world as an individual, the dignity of whose individuality creates responsibility. In large measure people in East Harlem are treated as mere units of a racial group - a Negro or a Puerto Rican first, to whom are attributed the undesirable qualities which the popular mind ascribes to his race; and an individual second, if at all.

The city housing projects which have been built into this area, while they have served to provide more floor space per person and cleaner living quarters than before, have incorporated in monumental brick and mortar the former density of population. Thus they have cleansed and altered but not reduced the problems of overcrowding and segregation.

In this swarming area there are few vigorous outlets for the spirit of youth except fighting, dope, and sex; and fighting, dope, and sex play an excessive and degrading part in the lives of Harlem's youths. As a result, as one of the Parish reports states. "If they ever had any, almost all sense of purpose and aim in their lives they have lost. Most are deeply alienated from their families by the irritations and frustrations of crowded, impoverished tenement living, joined with the inevitable conflicts of old cultural patterns in a big city. Limitations of education, accummulated frustrations of tenement block living, consciousness of race and language differences have cut the nerve of their effort to find a place in American life."

Against the evils of poverty and disease in East Harlem are opposed the specialized forces of social work and medicine. But, these benign forces also tend toward impersonality. The numbers to be dealt with are so great and the demands of expertness are so high, that in general, social and medical workers alike, have tended to become hurried teams of experts, each member of which deals with his special problem in detachment - rather than dealing with people as individuals.

The excessive use of television in this community is a sympton of the emptiness of East Harlem lives. Wherever I visited, a television set was in operation. Its hypnotic eye and voice were aimed at each individual viewer but caused each individual to respond as a mere element in a collective mass. Yet its overdrawn sounds and sights muted the cries of the babies underfoot. Its pictures gave a sense of space where there was no space. In one way and another, it filled the gaps between work and sleep for all ages. Without television, life would be desperately crowded, rasping and empty. Without it, in spite of its unwholesome stimulation, the forces of crime and sex would be harder to resist. But at the same time it adds a powerful force to the other forces which tend to destroy the sense of the significance of the individual.

Finally, the residents of this district have in large measure become dissociated from any strong religious influence. The majority of them are people of Spanish-American origin, often Spanish-speaking when they came, members of a colonial type of Catholic church which has largely lost all hold on them. No Protestant churches have reached them with any religion of significance to them. The situation with the Negroes is similar. The secular mores which surround these races are shot through with materialism and moral confusion,

As a result the people tend to move and think impersonally as members of a collective group, and yet in their homes tend to withdraw behind locked doors with bull's-eye peep-sights and drawn shades to a lonely separateness. While they are a collective crowd they are dissociated people. While they are crowded together as undesirable alien groups they seek to live as Americans. In the process they have lost their own traditions and have acquired no strong American mores, ideals or religious affiliations to replace them.

The Work of the Parish

How the group of young ministers and their wives who were drawn into this community by the very immensity of its spiritual problems have developed their Parish, their lives, and their ministry, they have described far better than I can. What I want to do is to point out, as they appear to me as a layman, the strong characteristics which the Parish has developed through the fullness and directness of its contact with stark and violent realities in its attack on entrenched degradation in the midst of a rich, go-ahead society.

1. The Parish is a deeply religious undertaking. Religious faith is what supports its ministers and their wives in their dedicated service. Religious reclamation is what they hope to bring about. All else is secondary.

After staying with these families in their Parish, seeing the forces against them and the conditions of their lives, I am convinced that only under religious dedication would they continue such a way of living and of working year after year. Moreover, the forces of materialism and impersonality have gone so far in obliterating individual dignity that it would be all but impossible for any secular enterprise to stand against them.

2. The Parish, although its members are drawn from several denominations, is more than inter-denominational. It frankly realizes the necessity of reaching down to religious depths, where because religion has greater simplicity it is more capable of making the word of God vital to these people "to whom the word of God that was spoken to them in the past was remote and unsatisfying." In this vision, reverently, cautiously, but forthrightly, the members of the Parish have experimented with new ways of giving vitality to the Protestant service. To do this the members of the Parish must go beyond working together in acceptance of differences - they must discover what is deeper than any differences, and have the courage to let this guide them even when it leads beyond established practices and formulation.

It seems to me that out of this struggle to make Christianity vital in this area"against the pressures of which .... no superficial understanding of the Christian faith can stand," and out of the deep spirituality which guides this effort, there may come intimations which will have significant influence in regenerating the spiritual vitality of Protestantism amid the lush American life of today.

3. The Parish considers its task the religious and spiritual reclamation of the community - not the mere winning of converts. While it is a Christian mission, it is far from missionary in the narrow sense. Standing in the way of spiritual regeneration, it sees the forces of impersonality, injustice, and degradation, and with no concern as to whether the people affected have joined the Parish or not, it undertakes to oppose these forces wherever it encounters them. The staff of the Parish thus seek to make real in their own lives what the spirit of Jesus means when it has entered into the souls of men, and how this makes men concerned with the lives of all - not just of a chosen few. Hence, by such humble acts as, "the silent word of presence - beside a boy in court - on the block when a fight starts - in our apartments with an open door when there is need," the Parish takes an active part in seeking to reduce drug addiction, vice and violence, and to provide means in the community for all constructive forces which promote self-respect, individual dignity and responsibility.

4. To reach deeply into the hearts of men and members of the Parish the ministers have immersed themselves in the life of the area, living to the full its common life. They do not live together in a missionary compound or a settlement house in which they and their wives and families can carry forward in protected association their former ways of life. Instead they live in typical tenements scattered over the area, each family in the ministry living apart from every other family but in closeness to their neighbours. Even their churches are in scattered, small units, sometimes merely store-fronts, in various parts of the area and in intimate contact with the people. In this intimacy of contact with the people to whom they minister they seek to learn as well as to teach, to find new religious depths and values as well as to give religious leadership. And in this attitude of true sharing the ministers, their wives and children have become accepted as full members of the community, reaching to the hearts of their fellow residents, whose isulation and defensiveness are so great and whose sense of their own individual worth is so broken that they could be reached in no other way. But what this way of life means in dedication on the part of the ministers and their families is hard to realize unless one lives with them.

5. As a result of the work of the Parish, its parishioners are increasing and are becoming a colony in this vast desert of human beings. They, as well as those who minister to them, are showing in their own lives what the vision which the Parish has brought to them means, and are taking responsibility for extending as well as demonstrating its influence.

6. All of the work of the Parish is permeated by idealism; but it is permeated by true realism as well - not the hollow half-realism of mere objectivity, but a balanced realism that comprehends spiritual values.

While the Parish members are aware that it would be unrealistic to expect to chalk up impressive results in quantitative terms, they are also aware that it would be equally unrealistic to deny that intangible results and the very acts of whole-souled dedication of efforts to the recognition of spiritual values, are in themselves of great significance. They thus recoginize that their greatest victories may be won in apparent defeat.

While in order to live the common life of the people and be one with them they live apart from each other, they have seen the necessity of developing common bonds which enable them to strengthen each others' hands, and have developed common "disciplines" to guide them in their worship, their work, and their way of life, but not to bind them or reduce their individuality. While they are forthright in adapting their religion to the stark needs they must surmount, they are aware of the values of the past and are conservative and reverent, cautiously feeling their way.

While they recognize the need of dealing with the problems of congestion and poverty they recognize that the greatest human need in East Harlem is the restoration of the dignity and responsibility of the individual and the recreation of his spiritual values.

This point of view which pervades their service is of primary significance. It is both old and new. In the simpler days of old, the aim of nurturing the dignity and sense of responsibility of the individual was implicit and dedicated human service. In that sense their aim is old. Today this implicit aim is largely lost in the disintegration of the individual which results from the practices of efficient specialization. In this sense the aim of the Parish is new. For it is seeking beneath, around, and above many specialized services of the crowded city life of today some means to restore to man an awareness of the worth, beauty, responsibility of the individual spirit.

The Parish as a Living Reality

The life of the Parish, however, is too subtle and intimate a thing to be grasped in analytical terms alone. On this account I will attempt to picture the Parish as I saw it.

When I stepped out of the subway into East Harlem on a gray winter morning, I saw nothing to suggest the congested life below the surface. The huge, monotonous new buildings, each containing as many people as the ruinous tenements which they replaced, were coldly impersonal. The long, plain corridors of the new buildings - each door identical, each door with its bull's-eye peep-sight to help keep out intruders - reminded me of visits to a penitentiary. The dirty, old tenements seemed almost inviting in contrast to the new, for somehow with the lapse of time each one had developed some character of its own. In new buildings as well as old, curtains were drawn almost everywhere. Within both, the pervading acrid smell spoke of habitation but not of welcome.

The little store-front churches of the Protestant Parish themselves, clean and orderly though they were, were all but lost in the vast impersonality of the community. But there they stood, a break in the man-made desolation - almost the only reminder that there were values that could not be counted in dollars and cents or recorded by social scientists and statistical tables.

As the Parish ministers took me into the tenements of first one parishioner and then another - always they had to say who we were and be recognize through the peep-sights before even these well loved visitors could be admitted. Always the outside world was colorless, forbidding, and impersonal. Always the inner world was crowded, impoverished, confused, and withdrawn.

In each family we visited there were moving problems. A daughter had died some weeks before and today the mother had been informed that she had a serious disease. A son had been returned from a mental hospital and because he was still considered a "problem" the family was no longer eligible for admission to a new housing unit with its requirement of "normality". Everywhere I saw the touching reliance on the visiting minister with his secure sense of the love of God, his safe status in the world outside, his unobtrusive, kindly concern for the family as individuals, and his deep awareness of the problems of these people who must live in a world which treats them without regard to their individuality. Again and again, people spoke of being classified, herded and passed along as types without regard for what they as individuals were at all. As we went from tenement to tenement I saw that it was unhurried, deepfelt individual interest which the families needed and which the minister gave.

When we dropped in at a boys' club there was the unfailing welcome for the minister. Right at the start he was asked to say a prayer. This was a club which had been made up of fighting clubs. I can remember gang fights as a boy - fifty or more on a side, fighting with stones and sling shots - fights which expressed the spirit of youth in a city's streets in spring. But these club fights were different. In East Harlem there is little that boys can do which is real; and fighting, like sex, is real. So fighting is not a sporadic springtime outburst, as it was in my Chicago youth, but is the whole life of many clubs. The Parish club arose because some clubs had gone too far and their leaders were in jail. They turned to the Parish for help, a non-fighting clu was organized, and the boys decided go call it "The Conservatives Club". Yet in swarming East Harlem, what can one provide for a club that is as real as fighting? The very evening I was there two boys said they couldn't take it any more - they wanted to join a fighting club again; but they liked the Conservatives and wanted to stay in it too.

Thus the work of the Parish goes on with little to see. There is no central building where the life of the residents comes together. There was no place large enough for the ministers and their wives to meet around a table in consultation, except in the cellar under one of the churches, so cold that we all kepton our overcoats throughout the meeting which I attended.

Because of this initimate sharing of their whole lives, not just their working hours, because they are not merely residing in the district but living their cultural and spiritual lives immersed in it, the ministers and their wives are accepted in affectionate trust. In my two days living in East Harlem amid the cold housing projects and the dirt and stench of the old tenements, the significance of these resident families and churches, and of the growing colony of devoted parishioners which is developing about them grew upon me. Though I was depressed by the materialism and collectivism, yet my spirit was exalted as I thought of the courage and modesty, the dedication and integrity of what the Parish was doing.

Conclusion

In the East Harlem Protestant Parish one sees a unique, daring and dedicated effort to deal directly with the problem of the protection of spiritual values and the dignity and responsibility of the individual against the concentrated forces of impersonality and materialism.

The forces which are so drastic and intense in East Harlem are, however, forces that less conspicuously are exerting and influence against individuality and the spiritual aspects of life elsewhere in our country. Hence, all that is done is pioneer work, opening paths to spiritual resources that may be of significance elsewhere.

At no time will striking results occur. The very nature of the Parish and its work make this impossible. The results of the Parish must not be judged quantitatively but qualitatively. It is in the character of the people who are dedicating their lives to this work and the character of the relationships which they have established that it can most truly be judged.

As I have watched and studied the work of this Parish, I have been impressed by the importance in such pioneer work, of freedon to feel the way when the way is unknown, freedom to explore when one cannot be sure of results, and freedom to accept unexpected opportunity and follow its vision before it vanishes.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

2050 SECOND AVENUE
NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

JUNE 1958

THE PARISH AND DELINQUENCY: EAST HARLEM

Recently a member of the Parish staff wrote a letter to the Christian Journal of Opinion, Christianity and Crisis, in which he discussed the question of juvenile delinquency in light of the Church's affirmation that it finds its life by giving it away. The letter is here reprinted by permission of the editors.

The church cannot look to the preservation and maintenance of its own life if it is to be an instrument of Christian witness among delinquent youth in American cities. Clergy and laymen must look outward at the streets and people around the church asking not. "How can we relate these people to our church?." but rather, "How we can relate ourselves and Christ's gospel to this place and to these people?"

The church cannot be satisfied to put up an "Everybody Welcome" sign and be happy if a few Negro or Puerto Rican children find their way into the Sunday School. One church school teacher said to me: "We have no prejudice in our Sunday school. We have six Negro children from the neighborhood in our membership. They are the cleanest, sweetest, most well-behaved children you could hope to meet." The church must look outside its doors at those who appear to be dirty, disruptive and unattractive and recognize them to be the very ones for whom the church exists. No Sunday School or youth fellowship program, no group work or case-work program can substitute for a community of Christians who are willing to expose themselves and their church by living with and loving the most troubled youth of a parish.

In a community or city where thousands upon thousands of young people do not know a wholesome home life, do not enjoy the kinds of material things they see in ads and movies, do not experience an ordered community life, it is irrelevant for a church to devise a program based on the aim of improving the moral standards of young people. In East Harlem, for instance, forces stronger than any individual or institution have powerful hold on children growing up in a context of life devoid of what the church has thought of as normative, "respectable" morality. Think of:

A girl, who wasn't wanted by her mother in the first place, who has seen her mother living with several men, who has never known her father, and who has no resources or reason for resisting the offer of affection which leaves her carrying a child who will know even less of the pattern of what we call Christian family life.

A boy, whose father is a drunkard and thief and whose mother is a prostitute, and who finds recognition at home from what he can steal. A 17-year-old girl, whose mother left "for a week or so" with a boy friend, is left with three small children to care for and goes out of her mind. A boy, whose father is a hopeless TB case and whose mother is mentally unstable, tries to forget his expulsion from school for bad behavior by taking heroin.

Christ was mocked for making merry and for breaking bread with sinners. The Body of Christ, his church, must know, accept and share in the life of young people who drink, use narcotics, steal, have out-of-wedlock sex experience, dance the "fish" and the "grind", carry guns and knives, are truant or have quit school, and who do not hold jobs. Their alienation from the church, from society, from all men is great. They desperately crave love and affection and acceptance even though they are often not able to accept it when it is offered They need to have it offered again and again.and again.

The church is given eyes of faith which see Christ victorious and which see, too, the power of the evil one who holds in bondage these children of God. The church be, could be--is called to be--that fellowship of redemption which proclaims the love poured out in fullness for sinners otherwise lost. Clergy and laity alike confess a faith which empowers them to walk into the midst of the worst the world has to offer knowing that God has created the world and all in it for himself, that he calls creation to himself, and is redeeming it unto himself. In the knowledge and faith in what our God has done and is doing, the church can offer itself again and again, regardless of how the world receives its offering.

The church does not need to be concerned about its reputation in having consort with the disinherited and disreputable. Nor does it have to separate itself from them by calling them recipients of charity. The church calls them, by the love shown to them, to love Him who first loved them.

The church does not exist to keep its membership pure from such as are called juvenile delinquents, nor does it exist to keep its property in first-rate condition. The church is the Body of Christ set in the middle of the world to give its life away that men might know the good news of a God who loves them.

One church stopped calling on youth in a new low-income public housing project after some of the young people came to a youth group meeting in response to visits from the church staff. In a scuffle, a church chandelier was damaged and a wall was marred. "We can't have youth who don't know how to behave without breaking up our nice group," one of the leaders said. This church with its upholstered furniture, grand pianos, and stained glass windows might yet discover that God would bless it in its true vocation if it were to make the youth of its parish welcome there, even though it might mean names scratched on its spotless walls and broken panes in the stained glass. Youth who never saw love in action have to test it for a long time before they believe it.

Christians are called to follow Christ as servants to their neighbors. Christ also tells us that we meet him and are blessed in the giving of ourselves to one in need. A ministry to delinquent and predelinquent youth in today's cities is a call to cross-bearing--which is not a pretty nor a comfortable business. Sacrificial giving of money alone cannot do the job. This is a work that demands lives.

To serve delinquent youth may mean the sacrifice of an orderly congregational life. A gang shooting in the church and knives in the Sunday School cannot be handled in the same way that a church budget is drawn up or a series of speakers is planned. It may mean some sacrifice of beauty and order in worship--teenagers get restless during the prayers and the sermons, since they are not sure whether they want to be in or out. It may mean the sacrifice of the well-planned and smooth functioning qualities of a youth fellowship program.

For some clergy and leaders, it will mean the sacrifice of some benefits for their own children and the sacrifice of some of the amenities of family life. Crises do not come on schedule!

Is the church called to such sacrifice in the name of a Father who gave his only Son to die on a cross that the world might be saved?

The Reverend George Todd
East Harlem Protestant Parish
New York, New York

****

WILL YOU SEND GIFTS FOR THE SUPPORT OF THE PARISH THIS YEAR?

The dusty streets of East Harlem become even more crowded in the summertime as thousands of children now must find a substitute for school to occupy their daytime hours. For weeks some of them have been asking us if they will soon be able to go to the country as they did last year, or whether a new teacher will come to tell them Bible stories and take them on trips.

Summer costs us a lot of money. It takes $25.00 to send a teen-ager to a church conference. It takes $400.00 to provide a leader for a children's group. Your gifts are urgently needed to help us to be God's witnesses in East Harlem.

Dr. Francis L. Bouquet
San Francisco Theol. Seminary
San Anselmo, Calif.

NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION

U. S. POSTAGE
1¢ PAID
NEW YORK, N. Y.
PERMIT NO. 10,119

RETURN POSTAGE GUARANTEED

T HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
2050 SECOND AVENUE
NEW YORK 29, NEW YORK

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

2050 Second Avenue, New York 29, New York

October, 1958

THE DIMENSIONS OF OUR MINISTRY

Introduction

On Monday morning, October 25, 1948, a two-column story in the New York Herald Tribune was headed, "Protestants Open First Unit in New Storefront Church Plan." The article went on to describe the first service of worship, conducted the previous day, by the East Harlem Protestant Parish. Several of our present staff attended that first service and often remind us of the discouragement of those early days. The bare little storefront on 102nd Street, underneath the shadow of the Third Avenue El, was occasionally inundated by the defective drains of the adjoining tenement. That first winter it was almost impossible to keep the room warm. But above all, it was not easy for the enthusiastic young staff to gain acceptance in the community. On that first Sunday, after weeks of intensive calling in the neighborhood, the little room was jammed with children for the Sunday School hour. When it came time for church services, literally no one appeared, until finally one elderly Puerto Rican woman from next door walked in. For several weeks she was the only attendant, other than staff, at the Sunday worship. Only gradually did suspicion and distrust begin to fall away as the ministers won acceptance by their life in the community. The most important factor seems to have been the willingness of the staff to live in the neighborhood with their families, thus sharing in the problems and frustrations that are typical of a crowded immigrant community. The storefront approach was also a big help. The minister was visible and available behind the plate glass window, ready to offer help and counsel in meeting the incredible variety of personal crises that threaten and confuse life in East Harlem.

With very great thankfulness we now come to the close of ten years in the life of the East Harlem Protestant Parish. During the fall the whole Parish is spending some time in assessing the work of these years and in defining the lines along which our future witness must be made. One fact is paramount: now in East Harlem the ministry of the Parish must be made by the worship and service of the congregations which, by God's grace have emerged. No longer is the Parish symbolized by the clergy, but by the total witness of the men and women and children who have committed themselves to the Lordship of Jesus Christ. At many crucial points, laymen are assuming responsibility and authority which, in the early years, simply had to be exercised by the staff. In each church there is an active council, with responsibility for the life of the congregation, including their own financing of local expenses and benevolences.

Automatically all members of the four local church councils are delegates to the monthly meeting of the Parish Council. More and more of the basic decisions for the life of the whole Parish are being made here, with much preliminary work carried on by six major committees. It is important to remember that in East Harlem, most members have a dual loyalty: to their local church but also to the East Harlem Protestant Parish. Many aspects of our ministry can be better undertaken as a Parish than through a local congregation. The regular committees include the following: Strategy, meeting bi-weekly to think through the future plans and goals of our ministry; Church Life, charged with the details of many Parish-Wide events such as the anniversary service, Pancake Festival on Shrove Tuesday and the Easter Sunrise service; Education, which seeks to unify the Parish Sunday School curriculum and assist all the churches with teacher training; Parish Acres, responsible for the program at the retreat center, including the regulations and traditions which are gradually developing; Narcotics, directing the expanding program of the Parish in work with the problem of addiction; and Friendly Towns, responsible for registering, examining, and delivering nearly 300 children to Friendly Town homes and camps during the summer months.

BASES OF OPERATION AND STAFF

Geography and Staff

The neighborhood of the Parish consists of the southeast quadrant of the rectangle that is East Harlem. Our ministry is centered in the area bounded by Lexington Avenue and the East River on either side, 96th Street on the south and 106th street to the north. Good estimates indicate that about 25,000 people live in this neighborhood. There are two huge low-income housing projects in the area, but most of the blocks consist of old, badly deteriorated tenements, built sixty years ago to house the immigrants that were flooding into New York---thus built to be slums. The population in ethnic background is roughly 40% American Negro, 30% Puerto Rican, 20% Italian, and 10% white from the various previous immigrant groups. In terms of population density, this is about the most crowded place on the face of the globe. Our ministry centers in the four churches in this area, in several other rented rooms, and above all, in the homes of the staff. These are located as follows:

100th Street Church. This church meets in a storefront in the middle of the 100th Street Block between 1st and Second Avenue. The one small room will seat about sixty at best. Across the street is a family center consisting of two good sized rooms used for all kinds of activities and meetings. The minister is Wendell Elmendorf, the first full time Methodist clergyman on the Parish staff. He is assisted for the current year by Les Stansbury, recent Union Seminary graduate. A laywoman from the congregation, Lynn Baker, serves as part-time education director. Active Adult Members: 38. Church School: 45.

Church of Our Redeemer. This church meets in a small storefront on 102nd Street between 1st and 2nd Avenues. Randy Hammond, the pastor for the past three years lives in an apartment over the church with wife and baby. He is assisted for the current year by Robert Wright, a young Canadian clergyman who is preparing for inner-city work in Toronto. There are three services here each Sunday, beginning with a parish-wide service of communion at 8:30. Active Adult members: 30. Sunday School: 135.

Church of the Son of Man: It meets in a lovely sanctuary on 104th St., between 2nd and 3rd, opposite huge Washington Houses. The church is a converted brownstone house, with apartment overhead for one of the ministers, Carlos Rios. George Calvert is the other clergyman. Emily McLees, a summer staff worker, is continuing this fall as education director. (Money yet to be found!) Sunday service is conducted in both English and Spanish. Active Adult members: 93. Sunday School: 125.

Ascension Presbyterian Church: Located on 106th Street, near 1st Avenue. This was for many years an Italian mission church. In 1952, the Presbytery of New York asked the Parish to provide the staff for the church, and a year later, the congregation voted to join the Parish. Most of its members came from East River Houses, a block away. Shortly, a huge middle income project will rise across the street, demanding a tremendous response from the church. Staff consists of George Todd, currently on Sabbatical, Letty Russell, recently ordained to the ministry following her graduation from Harvard Divinity School, Edna Tourangeau as assistant to the ministers, and Bill Webber part-time. Active Adult membership: 70. Sunday School: 95.

Parish Administration: The office is now located on 2nd Avenue near 106th Street in an old furniture store. Ron Perrin, Union Seminary '58, has taken on the heavy task of administrator, with the assistance of a secretary and two Antioch students on their work term away from college. The office is also the center for the East Harlem Federal Credit Union which has been in operation for a year and a half, a legal clinic, with free legal service several evenings a week, and the social casework service, operated jointly with several other East Harlem churches.

Medical Clinic: Two ground floor apartments on 100th Street are the center for a medical clinic, open five days a week and staffed largely by volunteer doctors under the direction of a remarkable woman doctor, Beatrice Berle. Dr. Berle has served the Parish for over six years, finding funds for the medical program and using the clinic to undertake extensive research into the public health needs of our community.

Narcotics Center. The headquarters for our work with addiction is now located on 103rd Street, between 1st and 2nd. You enter under a large sign on which a large crew of able part-time workers, including doctors, psychologists, social workers, and others.

Parish Acres. The retreat center is located about fifty miles north of East Harlem in Putnam County. Ralph Robinson, young Presbyterian layman, is the resident manager. Parish Acres is used in the summer for family vacations that emphasize Christian family life and an intensive study program, and in the winter for weekend retreats and conferences. It has become a tremendous asset to the whole program, for in the week together at Parish Acres, families and staff from East Harlem can reach new depths of understanding and acceptance.

Conservatives Clubs. The June issue of Harpers carried an accurate article about this remarkable teenage club that grew out of the work of the Parish with a fighting gang. Under the leadership of Ramon Diaz, member of the 100th Street Church, a group of youngsters have found new purpose and meaning in life. Their first center, open seven days a week, is located on 1st Avenue, just south of 100th Street. A second center for the junior division has recently been rented.

CONCLUSION

We are often asked ablut the success of the Parish. People want to know what is happening after these ten years in East Harlem, that some men and women have responded to the claims of the Gospel over their lives. Yet these struggling little congregations have made no great impact on the community. The social problems of East Harlem are immense and sometimes overwhelming. But for us all it is an exciting and wonderful battle in which to be engaged. There are many signs that God is at work here. And in the end, we can only pray that we who acknowledge in East Harlem the Lordship of Jesus Christ may be faithful people, unafraid to witness to the love of Christ, undefeated by whatever the world may do, for we know that the battle has already been won. Whether we seem to succeed or fail is unimportant; we only pray that we may be faithful in our obedience to what we can glimpse as our task of ministering. Our test remains these words of Jesus:

"The spirit of the Lord is upon me
Because he hath anointed me
To preach the Gospel to the poor;
He hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted,
To preach deliverance to the captives,
And recovering of sight to the blind,
To set at liberty those that are oppressed,
To proclaim a year when men may Find acceptance with the Lord."

TENTH ANNIVERSARY

Friends in the New York area are invited to share with us in the celebration of our Tenth Anniversary. The schedule of the weeks events:

Monday, Oct. 20th: Parish committees will give brief resumes of their history and function at Church of the Ascension.

Tuesday, Oct. 21st: Combined Bible study of all churches will be held at Ehmendorf Church on 121st. St. between 2nd and 3rd Avenues.

Wednesday, Oct. 22nd: Family Night, organized by Church of our Redeemer.

Thursday, Oct. 23rd: Christian Action, organized by Church of the Son of Man.

Friday, Oct. 24th: Canteen--movies for children and youth, organized by 100th Street Church.

Sunday, Oct. 26th: Worship Service and Communion at 4:00 p.m. at Ascension Church. Anniversary Dinner at 5:30 p.m.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
2050 SECOND AVENUE
NEW YORK 29, NEW YORK

RETURN POSTAGE GUARANTEED

NON-PROFIT ORGANIZATION

U. S. POSTAGE
1¢ PAID
NEW YORK, N. Y.
PERMIT NO. 10,119

Dr. Francis L. Bouquet
San Francisco Theol. Seminary
San Anselmo, Calif.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

2050 Second Avenue, New York 29, New York

Dec. 1958

Christmas Greetings!

"FOR GOD SO LOVED THE WORLD..."
An episode in the life of our Parish

It was December, 1948. A young minister, newly ordained, stood outside the freshly painted front of a little store on a crowded tenement block in East Harlem. A cold wind from the East River blew angrily through the block, adding to the bleakness of the winter day. The first sharp cold spell always brought suffering to the block. Not many people had warm clothes stored away; few of the rusty furnaces were sending much real warmth into the apartments, and some of the buildings had no central heating at all. While visiting that afternoon he had found families trying to keep warm in front of the gas stove or bringing out battered kerosene heaters. No wonder the local fire station reported that they had to answer four times as many calls as the average station in New York City.

Yes, the young minister had to admit to himself, he was still apalled by the sheer human misery of East Harlem. Here life was often barren and empty, here was hunger and cold, here frustration and bitterness and hatred. When you visited in each home of a building, you had to be ready for sights that made you sick, for tragedy that nothing in your seminary training had been able to prepare you. Sometimes you were greeted with suspicion and you sensed the fear behind the thrice locked doors. More often you were met with apathy and indifference, as though life and lost all meaning and hope. This was a block in East Harlem.

A quick tug at his sleeve brought him back from his thoughts. Standing beside him was Anna, a new-found friend who had adopted the young clergyman as soon as he had begun to work on the block. She was seven, bright-eyed and alert. Now she was excited. "My Mama is goin' to have a baby today." The words rushed out. "She's goin' to the hospital in an ambulance." And she dashed back upstairs. In an hour she was back. This time her first words were, "We've got a new baby. It was just borned."

It was another half hour before the ambulance finally arrived on the block. No crowd gathered around it. The minister noted with surprise that no one paid any attention. Suddenly it dawned on him that when a new baby was born on this congested street, the world couldn't care less. Another child in an already overcrowded tenement apartment, another youngster to jam the overflowing schools, another addict or delinquent--who wanted a baby born on this bleak mid-winter day in East Harlem? Before long he would be playing on the vacant lot, a key tied around his neck*, learning the ways of the street, the law of life that said: "You've got to take care of yourself. Nobody else gives a damn." A baby was born and the world couldn't care less.

And then his mind went back to the baby born in a manger in a far off time. A careless world had also passed him by. Not many on that first Christmas had heard the angels or found their way to the grubby stable. Yet that baby, born in poverty, growing up the friend of beggars and prostitutes and addicts and numbers men, dying between two thieves on a vacant lot, strewn with garbage--that baby had turned the whole world upside down. Because of Him, this new life in East Harlem, ignored by the world, suddenly was precious and wonderful.

Yes, the young minister realized, that was why he was here, because Jesus Christ had come to just such a place as East Harlem. Here he would be at home. His life and death and resurrection were promise of meaning and wholeness and hope for this new baby. God was in Christ Jesus, affirming the goodness of his creation and offering his love to all the forgotten children of men.

Behind the minister was a store, being hastily converted into a little church, a base of operations for the battle against the forces of evil and poverty and hopelessness. Here was a place from which to offer, in every way possible, the love of Christ to those in need. Here was a place to which people might come our of the darkness into the light of life, to be God's people.

That was nine years ago. On the same crowded block the people of God are gathering in that little church during these Christmas days. And Anna's little brother will be there, learning about the baby in the stable and the angel voices, singing the Christmas sons, and findings the joy and love that surrounds every one of God's people during these days of Advent.

* Working mothers resort to the expedient of tying their apartment key around the child's neck in order to permit him access to the home during the day.

NEW OFFICE!

December 2 we moved into our new Parish office at 2050 Second Avenue (between 105th and 106th, about 1½ blocks from our previous location). We now have about twice as much space in which to carry on the multyplying activities of the Parish. There is a small office for the Legal Clinic, one for the Credit Union, and even one spare one for some new enterprise! In these expanded facilities we will be better able to provide the kind of administrative set-up the Parish needs in order to minister to our community in these specialized areas.

YOUR GIFTS...

We want to say "thank you" to all our friends outside East Harlem who have remembered us so generously with money, clothing, and other gifts during 1957. Our ministry has been furthered more than we can say here by your Christian generosity.

As you send your Christmas gifts to your friends this year, we hope that you will remember our continuing need for your support.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

July, 1959

2050 SECOND AVENUE · NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

From time to time, in order to keep our task clearly in focus, it is necessary for the staff of the Parish to look back at our history and then, in the light of this history, to explore the problems of the present. We here offer to our readers the substance of a recent report by one of the Parish ministers in the thought that it will give you a clearer understanding of the work of the Parish (which is largely made possible through your support).

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH: EMERGING ISSUES AFTER TEN YEARS

On the last Sunday in October, 1948, the first worship service of the East Harlem Protestant Parish was held in what had been an abandoned store on the corner of 102nd Street and Third Avenue in New York City. The experience of that Sunday was symbolic of the attitude of the community toward the new Protestant venture. So many children arrived for Sunday school that the little room could not begin to accommodate them. But at the hour for church, in spite of the weeks of calling that had preceded, only one worshipper from the community appeared. In this needy but indifferent community, the white, middle class, theological educated clergy and their wives (for all their good intentions and enthusiasm) found no welcome.

During the early years of the Parish, the needs of the community seemed to the ministers to be beyond imagination. The tenement buildings of East Harlem had been built at the close of the Nineteenth Century. Almost at its beginning, this part of the city had become a slum. Now, in an area slightly larger than one square mile lived a population of Italians, Puerto Ricans, and American Negroes numbering nearly a quarter million. The problems they faced were those characteristic of modern urban culture: racial discrimination, inadequate housing, broken homes, overcrowded schools, juvenile delinquency, alienation from meaning in work, problems in the use of leisure time. Hoping to find New York a port of entry into rich, free America, these people had found in East Harlem only a place of misery and frustration. And yet the troubled life of this community is moving to be a stark forecast of the issues which are emerging in our urbanized culture and which overshadow the future.

With all its great and obvious needs, East Harlem, like numerous similar communities, had baffled Protestant efforts to maintain a vital Christian witness in the inner city. By 1948 the religious life of East Harlem had about ceased. American Negro families, traditionally strongly Protestant, and Puerto Ricans, supposedly Roman Catholic, seemed neither to maintain their religious heritage nor to develop any new religious affiliation amid the pressures of urban life. Our evangelistic efforts encountered many misconceptions of the Christian faith, and provided the basic insight that in the inner city, in spite of the fact that the pseudo-Christian patterns of American life still prevail, the missionary cannot assume that he works among people sympathetic to "religion."

The pagan character of this community, the previous withdrawal of Protestant forces from the area, and the consequent need for depth and variety of missionary resources made a united approach on the part of the Protestant Church necessary from the beginning. Hence, almost from its inception, the Parish has been supported by American Baptists, Congregational-Christians, Methodists, Presbyterians (U.S.A.), the Reformed Church in America, the Evangelical United Brethren, and the Evangelical and Reformed Church. A valuable witness to the unity of the Church, this support has also insured for the staff of the Parish freedom and openness in the attempt to find patterns of obedience and witness. The staff has not sought primarily to develop new techniques; it has sought to be responsive to the leading of the Holy Spirit. It has not been under pressure to maintain any particular home mission pattern or emphasis. Rather has it been led again and again back to the experience of the Reformers and the the early Church, which seems to be strikingly relevant to the Parish situation. The staff has been grateful for the forbearance of the denominational executives responsible for the Parish. They have been patient when the line between foolishness for Christ and just plain foolishness seems to have been transgressed.

The ministry of the Parish has been directed toward one area--the lower eastern quadrant of East Harlem, roughly from 96th to 112th Streets, between Lexington Avenue and the East River. Within these boundaries twenty-five thousand people live both in the old, deteriorated tenements and in the newer, high-rising public housing projects. The Parish employs the following facilities: three storefront churches, begun in the early years of our ministry; a Presbyterian Church, formerly a mission to the Italian community; two rented club rooms used for work with two street clubs; two apartments on 100th Street that serve as the base for a fine medical clinic; a storefront headquarters for work with drug addicts; a large office in a former furniture store on Second Avenue, where there is also a federal credit union, legal aid clinic and library; and a retreat center fifty miles from the city used extensively for weekend retreats and, in the summer, for family camping.

I

Over the past ten years there have been certain persistent issues with which the staff of the Parish has had to deal. Of these more can be said in the way of diagnosis than in the way of solution. The problems discussed here are those which remain on the critical list.

The first issue, symbolized in that first worship service on 102nd Street, arose from the fact that as strangers we, the staff, were intruders into the world of East Harlem. In spite of our enthusiasm and concern to be of help, the community cared little about our new church on the corner. Protestantism had not been there for a long time. The arrival of some young, eager clergy was hardly enough to convince anyone that something new and important was happening. Only later did we learn that people thought this might be a racket of some kind, or a new angle employed by the fellow-travelling Congressman from East Harlem, or worse, since seminarians had to learn somewhere, a place for students to practice being ministers. For the most part the attitude of the community toward the church was one of indifference or distrust, though often it found expression in open hostility. We were intruders. We were 'white of face,' and so fell heir to the opprobrium usually reserved for landlords, plainclothes cops, or racketeers.

On our part, we were middle class to the core. We were shocked at the appalling living conditions in the tenements, at the incidence of narcotics addiction, at all the social problems that beset the inner city and confounded our middle class ideas of what America was like. When the staff families moved into the community to live, they found that simply who they were created barriers which had to be recognized in order to be surmounted. So much of what churches do in their activities and worship services depends upon cultural homogeneity rather than upon oneness in Christ. Obviously the subculture of East Harlem had little in common with the world in which most of us had been raised. We soon realized that we could not expect the people of this community to become like us; we would have to build the bridges. If it has taken a while for East Harlem to accept the staff, the reason has been our own inability to cross the barriers which we created, to become one with our neighbors, to go "native in all things save faith and morals."

Of course, we were theologically trained, but we found that sermons preached in homiletics classes did not sound relevant in the pulpits in East Harlem. Some of us found it easy to talk about the struggle for social justice. We affirmed that in Christ all men are one. But we found that it is another matter to be empowered by the Holy Spirit with real compassion, to feel in one's heart real love for one's parish, to have patience with the ugliness of life, to hope in the face of tragedy and pain when one discerns no hope. Even now it remains difficult to face the realities of our community, to stop our theologically sophisticated romanticizing, and come to honest identification with a full participation in the life of the community.

II

The second issue encountered by the Parish involves the nature of the ministry and the role of the laity. In a mission situation, the church begins with the clergy as the visible sign that the gospel is being preached. To the mind of the community, the church is thus identical with the minister. In this situation it is often easy for a minister to gather around himself weak and dependent Christians who become far more deeply related to himself as minister than to Jesus Christ. The minister is often used by those who find some fulfillment in relating to him or in participating in the life of the growing congregation without coming to the recognition of their dependence upon the grace of God.

Another aspect of the same problem is the tendency of the minister to become like Mickey Mantle--the star of the team. The secular press, not to mention the denominational periodicals, does not hesitate to publish glowing articles about personalities in the Parish ministry. Ministers themselves are often tempted to assume that the Parish hardly needs the people to continue its work quite satisfactorily. Perhaps it is this very temptation which has brought home the fact that the integrity of our ministry depends directly upon our becoming the servants of our congregations, faithful to them and to God. The ministers of the Parish have become convinced that as ministers they must work within or as actual members of their congregations rather than as dominant community figures. This may seem to be a limiting and confining task for those who are used to dominating the church. But as true servants of the congregation, the clergy must be willing to stand aside and let Jesus Christ be Lord.

III

This leads directly to the third issue, which has to do with the form of congregational life. In the Reformation tradition, we have placed central emphasis upon the corporate worship of the church. In regular Sunday services the Word is read and preached in language men can understand, and the Sacrament of Holy Communion is offered in the hope that the people of the Parish may discover the meaning of Christian faith and freedom. At the time of the Reformation, this was wonderful and exciting. Word and Sacrament came alive in men's hearts. It is this sense of vitality in Christian worship that we have been fighting to recover.

But to the author of this paper, this return to the emphases of the Reformation does not seem to be all that is needed to meet the challenge of vital religious life in our day. Single, weekly services are simply not enough to enable the members of a congregation usually scattered widely in the world to know the reality of life as members of the Body of Christ. In our depersonalized, urban culture, the powerful, cutting thrust of the Gospel must be manifest in a fellowship in which men have found oneness in Christ. And this can only be achieved if possibilities for its realization are structured into the life of the Church in such a way that life together may become a reality for Christians.

Whatever the form taken by the small group life of the congregation, one crucial point must never be forgotten. The orientation of Christians when they gather together as the Church for worship and study, must always be toward their return to their life in dispersion in the world as salt or leaven. For the life of the Church must be made aware of the concrete problems of obedience and witness in the world.

The staff of the Parish, made up of Christians who face common issues in their common calling, meets as a Group Ministry. This cannot take the place of our life in the congregation, but it is the locus in which we have sought to discover the direction for our work as ministers. In this group we struggle together with the problems we each face in the fulfillment of our ordination.

IV

We are frequently asked what success we have been having and find ourselves at a loss for a satisfactory answer. We are constantly referred to in Protestant publications as one place where the churches are meeting with power the challenge of the inner city. On the other hand, we are faced with pointed questions and criticism from many quarters, including the seven supporting denominations, the seminary field work students (no more critical group exists), and our wives. Many crucial issues arise from the ambiguity of our situation. We are an experiment trying to become a Church. We are an interdenominational mission project seeking to find our unity and yet remain faithful to our own denominational heritage. We are dependent upon generous mission giving. And above all we are committed to responsibility to the indigenous leadership of the Parish churches.

Yet in the end we are led to affirm this: that God does not require of us success or failure, but asks only for our full obedience. But we are human and we do seek signs that our work is fruitful. Yet we know that we cannot depend for our strength and purpose upon our success in changing the world or overcoming evil or gaining new church members. Our only hope is to live in the world by God's grace, and thus to expose to the world the real meaning of evil. In the world of East Harlem we are witnessing to something that we know God has done. It is in the degree to which we reflect this, and not in the extent to which social improvements are made that we are faithful to our commission. When God gives us grace to labor with this perspective, to be faithful in the face of discouragement that is real and of defeat that hurts, then sometimes the world does respond. But what signs do come serve not so much as proof of success as of doors of communication which have been opened.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

June, 1961

THE GATHERED LIFE OF THE CHURCH IN THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

In our life as Christians in East Harlem we have been constantly frustrated by the irrelevance of many of the traditional patterns of church life as we have known them elsewhere. Judged by normal American standards of church life, the city and its people seem to doom the work of the church to failure. This is particularly true when we view the church primarily as an institution, for then we spend our time trying to make the old patterns work, to adjust them to the emerging facts of inner city life. Our only hope, we would confess, is honestly to face the depth of our failure, and by God's grace, come again to look upon the church as an instrument of God's activity in the world, not as a human institution. Then we come to see the church as persons, not as an institution, and we are concerned with relationships, with faith and love and witness. But this letter is not designed as a theological analysis, but as a concrete picture of some of the new patterns of our common life as Christians in Harlem. They have emerged as we have sought to center our gathered life as Christians (that is, our time together in the church in distinction to our life as Christians in dispersion in the world), in the preaching of the word and the recovery of the meaning and power of the sacraments of communion and baptism.

I. THE RECOVERY OF INTEGRITY IN PREACHING

In East Harlem nearly everyone has a Bible, but except for a few old people, long nurtured in the faith, the Bible is a closed book. When we preached on Sunday we could presuppose no biblical knowledge whatsoever. Yet as Protestants we claim that the Bible is the source of our authority, the story of God's mighty acts of salvation. To know its contents as familiar terrain, to be "drenched in scripture" is not as option but a necessity for every serious Christian. To preach the Word with integrity and relevance, then presupposed a congregation that is studying the Bible regularly and wrestling with the Word of God as it is addressed to our situation here and now, in East Harlem.

Some years ago we began insisting that all those who wished to take seriously their commitment to the church must join with us on Wednesday nights in Bible study in somebody's home. In these sessions the usual method is simply to read the Bible passage aloud and let Scripture raise its own questions in the mind of the group. When a clergyman opens the discussion with a critical explanation, the meeting simply turns into a classroom with teacher and pupils. When, however, the clergyman permits the group to hear and study the passage without intruding his ideas, the result is usually a lively discussion during which people come to grips with the need to understand the meaning of the passage in its biblical context and to wrestle with its relevance for their own situation. The clergyman in this kind of give and take can have a real teaching role, but now he also stands together with the rest of the group under the issues which Scripture raises for them, rather than intruding his ideas between the group and the Bible.

The study on Wednesday night prepares for the Sunday morning preaching. On Sunday one of the Scripture lessons and the sermon are based on the text studied during the previous week. The Reformation tradition that the congregation must be alert to see that the true and lively word is faithfully preached can take on reality and new meaning when the people have themselves studied and pondered the passage. The cumulative effect of this unity of Bible study and preaching is proving to be of significance to the life of the whole Church. The Bible has become exciting and relevant, our preaching seems to have improved, and we pray that now we may learn to defend ourselves by "the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God."

II. THE RECOVERY OF INTEGRITY IN COMMUNION

Wherever men in our day point to renewal in the church, we are almost certain to find a congregation at the center of whose life is holy communion. But in our day we have lost much of the meaning of this sacrament of the common life of Christians. Even the symbols of the service are wrong, now: the table is far removed from the congregation, or inconspicuous, or has become an altar--all of which suggest that the service is rather special, peculiar, esoteric. The celebration tends to be rather infrequent--suggesting that communion is not central and normative in worship. And the service itself has taken on a rather personal and private character. Perhaps all this is inevitable when as Christians we do not gather as those who come to a family meal, knowing each other as brothers. When men and women do not know in their own lives the meaning of human brotherhood and family love, there is little reality in the symbol of the table where we gather in fellowship to celebrate the mighty acts of God. In a word, integrity in communion demands that those who gather at the table must be a family, united in Christ, not as a theological fact alone, but as a reality that is expressed in the common life of the community. It also demands that those who gather at the table know what they are doing and in very truth are reenacting the meaning of the Lord's Supper.

First, then, integrity in communion. This implies that the family of the Church must spend time together in order that the reality of our unity in Christ may be discovered and that we may learn what it is that sustains our life as a community of grace. The insistence upon participation in a Bible study group each week has provided the basic structure through which we may come to know each other as brothers. In a Bible study group some time ago we were studying I Corinthians, wrestling soberly and almost in despair with the problems of immorality in the church at Corinth. I was sitting in the room with a man who was then living with a woman other than his wife, with a woman who was having another child out of wedlock, all of us together forced to expose our lives and ourselves to the judgment of God's word. This kind of continual week-after-week meeting, standing together under the Scripture enables us to know one another--that is to say it almost forces us to open our lives to other people and to dare to expose who we really are. We learn the joy of speaking the truth in love, and harder, of accepting the truth, spoken to us in love. I am beginning to suspect that the primary channel by which the Holy Spirit comes to us is through our brothers, and only through this kind of exposure in depth is the Holy Spirit really able to speak to us with power.

When the community gathers for worship with emphasis upon the sacrament of Holy Communion, it comes together as a family. Where possible in our parish churches, the congregation comes forward to receive the communion, gathering in large circles around the communion table, and there we stand looking at each other not as strangers but as those who have come to know one another in depth and love. Men and women who, when you first meet them, shake hands but do not look you in the eye, now look at you, and there is joy and love in their hearts. When we come to the act of fellowship at the end of a regular service of worship, the congregation turns around and shakes hands with each other as a sign of the brotherhood that is becoming a symbol with a new meaning.

The discovery of the power of community has also come as we have been able to develop forms of worship in our services of Holy Communion that are genuine reminders of the worship of the early Church. They help us in our imaginations to live more fully in the knowledge of the mighty acts of God. On last Maundy Thursday, for example, we removed the pews from the front of the church and put in long wooden tables. At 8:30 in the evening the congregation gathered for worship, sitting around the tables while the church officers and ministers gathered around the communion table in the chancel. We shared a fellowship meal of bread, wine, and fish during which we talked with one another and sang hymns. Following the meal one of the ministers, standing in the center of the congregation, preached a sermon on the servant Lord and servant people, explaining the nature of our servanthood in Christ. Then the clergy, kneeling on the front steps of the chancel, wiped one by one the shoes of the members of the congregation, using one end of the stole. After this they returned to their places at the communion table and the bread was then passed from hand to hand around the tables, and likewise the cup.

III. THE RECOVERY OF INTEGRITY IN BAPTISM

As a congregation comes to know itself as a family of God's people, the act of baptism as a symbol of entrance into a new family takes on a new reality. Then the children who are baptized become surrounded with all kinds of relatives who are concerned about their nurture. The Christian name takes on meaning. But integrity in baptism seems also to depend very much on the community of the faithful becoming a place where men and women are found who have been born again, whose lives express the meaning of baptism as rebirth, and in whom the power of the Holy Spirit is at work. These are the saints of God, men and women who live by grace. I often suspect that in our church life today we really do not expect saints to emerge, men and women who live by God's grace seeking only to do the will of the Father. Again and again, satisfied to judge the Church by institutional terms, we accept men and women into membership not daring to look and see if they have discovered a new life in Jesus Christ. But for me in my own ministry, it is the discovery of these saints, people who have been born again, that sustains me time and time again.

Who are these saints that give integrity to the community and restore meaning to baptism? They are very ordinary people by worldly standards, but they have learned to live by God's grace alone. Three qualities come to mind.

In the Christian community struggling together we find people whose lives are heavily burdened by their mistakes and those of others. In the face of these difficulties they have rejected the alternatives of self-deception or despair, and have faced the problems of daily living with honesty and courage, before God. By freely admitting their own weaknesses and failures, and by this very understanding of their own sin and need for continued grace, they become those best able to minister to the community of Christ and to men and women in the world. For a saint is not one who is perfect, but who knows himself, still a sinner, to be in constant need of grace.

In the community of Christ we also find people who are not only aware of their own weakness but who also take each day as a gift. They have ceased desiring importance, worldly symbols of success or prestige. Rather they see what they have now as a gift, in all times giving thanks to the Lord. Their style of living is one of seeking God's way in the midst of where they are now, not a way out to somewhere else.

People like this, who show us the meaning of life together, have a further quality--that of being able to give and not count the cost. You would say that this is impossible, and perhaps literally that is true. Yet it is possible as a style of life seen in people who seem to give themselves without ever noticing how people take advantage of them, who know no answer to the need of another except to try and help. Unself-conscious giving is what holds and strengthens the life of brothers in a community. There are countless small examples of such among the "little people" of East Harlem--those who clean the washrooms at the Metropolitan Museum, push carts and clothes, act as messengers and clerks; people who have no special claim to distinction, but who know no other answer to the call of a sick neighbor, or to an emergency at the church, or to the need of a home for a homeless teen-ager, but to care, to help support, to come without thought of praise, because in their hearts it is the natural thing to do.

Integrity in baptism, then, depends upon the presence in a congregation of those who are learning to live by the grace of God. For those of us who do not feel very saintly, what is there to do? In terms of Parish structure, this has meant in East Harlem emphasis upon discovery of a "style of life" through learning together the habits which open our lives to God's grace. This is the purpose, in large part, of the disciplines of the Group Ministry. The same concern underlies our efforts as Parish congregations to develop habits of regular Bible study, family worship, weekly attendance at corporate worship, daily intercession, and to enter into community organizations that work for brotherhood and justice. (For a full description, refer to Parish Lectionary for Lent, 1960.)

CONCLUSION

In the midst of the failures of the old patterns in East Harlem, we have been driven to look for the gifts of God to the life of his church, the new community which stands against the mass community of modern life. In the face of utter depersonalization, the church must become again a family. God is indeed renewing his church when he calls forth a community of faithful people who find that their life together is the means of restoring them to their true humanity in the midst of great unhumanity. The struggling churches of our Parish are no success story, but they have pointed us to the reality of God's church. Again and again, we have seen half dead symbols of our faith come alive again, heard the word preached with power, felt the presence of Christ at his table, and shared in the miracle of rebirth. His gift is this: that in his church he does bring forth among us a community of saints who believe in the channels of grace and live in and through them.

* * * * *

MISCELLANEOUS PARISH NEWS NOTES

Church of the Resurrection: The preliminary sketches by the architect, Mr. Victor Lundy, were presented to a meeting of the Parish Council in early May. They are really striking: imaginative, dramatic, combining beauty with a vital expression of the nature of our Parish. We hope that following this initial discussion to have more formal plans by early June. This would make it possible to break ground in the late fall and, at best, be able to worship in the church by the early summer of 1962. As soon as the plans are worked out, we shall send out prints to all of you. Incidentally, we have so far reached $154,000 in our initial building fund goal of $172,500.

Personnel Changes:

The Rev. Chris Hartmire has accepted a call from the National Council of Churches to direct their migrant work program for the state of California. He will be leaving at the end of the summer. His place is being taken by The Rev. Charles Farrell, UTS, 1961. The Farrells begin their work in June, moving to East Harlem with their three children. Mr. Farrell was in business for some years before deciding to enter the ministry.

Miss Lois Ingham is leaving her position as Christian Education worker at Ascension to be married. She will be here until September 1st. We hope that by then a replacement will have been found.

Norm and Peg Eddy with their three children will study for six weeks this summer in Latin America, both to increase their use of Spanish and to learn more about the problems and culture of this part of the world.

Parish Lectionary:

The Bible study guide mentioned early in this Newsletter is being used in a number of other churches and by many individuals. If you would like to have a copy or receive it regularly, write to the Parish Office. The cost of production comes to about 60¢ per copy.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

F 25

October, 1961

THE NEW CHURCH OF THE RESURRECTION

At last we can show you a sketch of the new church we are building in the center of East Harlem. Don't be upset by the enclosed picture, at least until we have been able to tell you what the building is expressing! What should a church look like in the heart of the inner city? How can it express vividly and powerfully the message of the gospel by its structure and design? These were the questions we asked ourselves and discussed endlessly with Victor Lundy, the brilliant young architect we had selected to create the new church.

The problems are severe: We have a very limited budget; the building must go on three tiny lots in the middle of tenement buildings; it must be so designed that it will be at home in the midst of a high rising public housing project, almost certain to be built around the church someday; it must be attractive from all four sides and when seen from above; and it must include as much space as possible for both worship and other church activities.

Now we have the results of Mr. Lundy's work and study and creative imagination. His conception is that of a church, set on a hill, following the biblical injunction to be a light to the world. The sharp point of the sanctuary will lift our spirit and remind us of the power and presence of God, here, in the midst of East Harlem. To reach the sanctuary on the second floor, the worshippers will go up an outside ramp--at the right of the enclosed picture. The roof over the ramp will be glass, bringing light and brightness as you walk as up a gentle hill into the church. The sanctuary, seating about 175, will be centered on a communion table and dominated by a cross. The side walls will converge behind the table, with the triangular roof rising to a peak high above the table and cross. Alternating columns of brick and colored glass will provide rich texture and illumination in these side walls. We are sorry that in the architect's sketch we have reproduced here you cannot see either the windows or the colors. The actual building will in fact be like a piece of beautiful sculpture.

The ground floor of the two story brick building will house a lobby, reception and pastoral offices, a permanent nursery class room, lavatories, kitchen and fellowship hall that can be divided into class rooms for church school. On the second floor in addition to the sanctuary, there will be a lounge, education office, and classroom, all clustered around and opening upon a small outdoor garden.

"Living Stones.....Built into a Spiritual House." I Peter 2:5

All the while we are working toward the new church built with stones, we are doing all we can to become "living stones" whom God can build into a Spiritual House. Only as the congregation that worships in the new building is then sent forth into the world to serve and witness in the name of Jesus Christ will the whole effort be worth anything. As most of you know, the Church of the Resurrection came into being in March, 1960, as the merger of our three storefront congregations. In the face of urban renewal, there simply was no choice but to build a church somewhere in our area if the Protestant Church were not to be pushed right out of this neighborhood.

The task of uniting three congregations is never an easy one, but there is no question that the Church of the Resurrection has indeed become one family. The staff consists of Randy Hammond, Wendell Elmendorf and Charles Farrell, clergy, and Flossie Borgmann as director of Christian Education. These four are carrying the load previously undertaken in the three churches by seven staff. Their basic task, along with all the members, is to equip themselves for their work in dispersion, as they go forth from worship back to the tenements and projects where they live, to the offices and shops where they work, and into the community organizations in which they work for brotherhood and justice.

Sunday worship is at 12:30 pm in the sanctuary of the sister congregation, Church of the Ascension. Church school, youth work, and Bible study, plus other nurture and working groups continue on the blocks, meeting in the storefronts and apartments of members. It is both necessary and good that some of this kind of dispersion continue even after we have our building: necessary because we cannot afford to build all the space required; and good because we will then be forced out into the world, using homes and public facilities, thus protected against the temptation to think that church work and activities are enclosed in a building. We gather in the church only in order to be sent forth better able to serve and obey Jesus Christ. Our church work is in the world.

Thus we continue in the twofold task of upbuilding a part of God's family for witness in this place, and building up a structure to house our corporate life and stewardship. We still stand in great need of funds to undertake and complete our building. If you can make use of the enclosed fliers, be sure and ask for more. We presently hope to break ground by June, 1962, and take occupancy by Christmas of the same year.

The Parish is setting up a new Christian Action research and reading center. Office equipment is needed. If you receive trading stamps (such as S&H Trinic S etc) you can help us by donating some or all of your stamps for this purpose Partially filled books, or loose stamps of any kind will be fine. We will be collecting stamps for several years.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

2050 SECOND AVENUE · NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

THE BIBLE IN THE PARISH

INTRODUCTION

Enclosed with this News Letter is a copy of the latest Parish Daily Bible Readings, usually referred to as the "Lectionary." This booklet is published four times a year to enable our churches to follow the pattern of the church year in our daily Bible reading, our Bible study in groups and our preaching. It is part of our continuing emphasis upon the centrality of scripture in the life of the Christian community. In East Harlem, as elsewhere, the Bible is a book proudly owned and rarely opened. But as Protestants we affirm that the Bible is the authoritative basis for our knowledge of God who is revealed in Jesus Christ. It is the standard by which the Church must test the faithfulness of its mission to proclaim the gospel of its Lord. From these two affirmations it follows clearly that Biblical illiteracy, sadly apparent as the condition of the great majority of American church-goers, is a serious disease. The regular study of the Bible is simply not an optional activity for Christians but stands at the very heart of what men and women must do when they enter into the new life in Christ. Clearly some direct and consistent help must be given to the whole Christian community if the Bible is to come alive and regain its place as the means by which Jesus Christ is made known to the people of God. This Lectionary is part of our efforts to take seriously our Biblical heritage and thus learn to stand daily under the judgment and power of the Word.

THE PATTERN FOR BIBLE STUDY IN EAST HARLEM

1. Daily Bible Reading: The pattern of Christian life includes regular devotional reading and study of the Bible. The Lectionary in a variety of ways tries to open up the meaning of a passage, to suggest relevant issues, and provide helpful background material. Sometimes the Lectionary follows the simple method of proceeding straight through one book of the Bible. At other times, a theme is used around which relevant passages from the whole Bible are studied. Occasionally one passage is studied for a week, with related material suggested. This is the pattern of the present Lectionary. At other times, there is a reading suggested for each day, with brief accompanying exposition. Everyone is urged to make use of the lectionary for personal and family devotions. All Parish meetings customarily begin with the reading of the Lectionary passage for the day.

2. Weekly Bible Study: In the Parish we have discovered the need for each of us to meet at least once a week in a small group with our brothers in Christ. Only in this way do we come to know each other in such a way that we are able to bear one another's burdens. The concern of such groups centers in the problems of living in obedience to Jesus Christ in the daily round of life. The study of the Bible, using the Lectionary passage for the week, is the method of getting at these problems.

On Monday morning, the Parish staff meets for an hour and a half of intensive Bible study, making full use of commentaries and other professional tools. This is a session of hard work, demanding preparation, and hopefully leading to a solid theological discussion in which we seek to be open to the new truth which God may grant us through the Holy Spirit.

On one evening of the week, usually Wednesday, all members of the Parish are urged to attend a Bible study group usually meeting in various apartments throughout the community. In these sessions, the usual method is simply to read the Bible passage aloud and let Scripture raise its own questions in the minds of the group. When a clergyman present opens the discussion with a critical explanation or spends time indicating the "crucial issues" to be considered, the meeting simply turns into a classroom, with teacher and pupils. When the clergy permit the group to hear and study the passage without intruding his ideas, the result is usually a lively discussion during which people really come to grips with the need to understand the meaning of the passage in its Biblical context and to wrestle with its relevance for their own situation. The clergyman in this kind of give and take can have a real teaching role, but now he also stands together with the rest of the group under the issues which scripture raises, rather than intruding his ideas between the group and the Bible. The evening sessions are scheduled for an hour and a half, but rarely does the group finally break up before two or three hours. There is often a strong sense that in our time together we have been truly blessed with the guiding, chastening, inspiring presence of the Holy Spirit.

3. Sunday Sermon: On Sunday one of the scripture passages and the sermon are based on the Lectionary text studied during the previous week. Thus many in the congregation have already studied the passage and are prepared for the general area with which the sermon will deal. The Reformation tradition that the congregation must be alert to see that the true and lively Word is faithfully preached can take on reality and takes on new meaning when the people have themselves studied and pondered the passage. The cumulative effect of this unity of Bible study and preaching is proving to be significant in the life of the whole Parish. Last spring, for example, Paul's first Letter to the Corinthians was studied for ten weeks with the result that many people really have come to know the contents of this letter and to discover and appropriate its tremendous relevance to our situation. Parenthetically, we place the reading of the scripture directly before the sermon. If the sermon is based on scripture directly before the sermon. If the sermon is expository and breaking open of a scripture passage, thus upholding the living Word of Jesus Christ before the congregation, then it seems a little silly to read the scripture twenty minutes before the sermon!

USE AND CONTENTS OF THE ENCLOSED LECTIONARY

During Lent weekly Bible study moves out of apartments all through the community to our Church of the Ascension and takes the form of an adult school. The present edition of the Lectionary was written with this school in mind. The general title of the course will be: "Style of Life in the Church." This material will also be the basis for the annual Laymen's Conference which brings together representatives from East Harlem, the Cleveland Inner City Protestant Parish, the West Side Christian Parish in Chicago, and other churches that use the Lectionary.

When a man commits his life to Jesus Christ and seeks genuinely to follow the path of obedience, there are patterns of life which must be developed. These may be seen as habits which make possible the new life that has been given in Christ. Just as a child must be taught habits of health, so the young Christian must learn the basic habits which are necessary as he seeks to serve his Lord. And most of us are very young Christians.

During Lent, the Lectionary deals with seven habits of the Christian life, using the "I Am" sayings from the Gospel of John. We pray that these habits may become part of our nature ever more securely in the months ahead. From Easter to Pentecost, the Lectionary is concerned with the new life in Christ, with the signs of salvation. The order here is really backwards. Style of Christian living, that is the habits, make sense only as a consequence of commitment to Jesus Christ in all the aspects which this involves. As the Lectionary unfolds, we suggest that the nature of our life in Christ involves:

1) Seeking. The Christian is part of a pilgrim people, throughout his whole life seeking to be obedient to his Lord without ever reaching his destiny.

2) Solidarity. The Christian is one who knows desperately his need for his brother. Through his brother comes the power of the Holy Spirit, judging, correcting, encouraging him in his new life of service.

3) Sympathy. The Christian is one who cheerfully bears his brother's burden and has nothing better to do than offer Christ's love to those in any kind of need.

4) Style. The habits of Christian living make up the style of life of the Christian. They are the forms through which a Christian is able to express his faithfulness to Christ and witness to his power in the world. They do not make one into a Christian, but given the signs of Seeking, Solidarity and Sympathy, then the habits are a sustaining power.

- - - - - - -

We hope you will in your own way be strengthened in the study of the Bible. We would be glad to mail the lectionary regularly to anyone who would like to follow this pattern of Bible study.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

2050 SECOND AVENUE · NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

S.F.T.S LIBRARY

"O GOD, GIVE US PEACE IN THE STREETS...."

All of us in East Harlem are trying to get some real understanding of what lies behind the tragedy of so much teen-age violence. A kind of culture pattern is arising in our urban areas that most of us find hard to comprehend and difficult to believe even when the evidence is clearly before us. Are we really finding youngsters with no real sense of right and wrong? Do some of our teenagers commit murder without really feeling guilt? Are we now witnessing crimes committed under conditions where punishment is almost certain and yet the youngsters seem quite undetered by any prudential considerations? When such signs as these appear, they clearly indicate that the basic presuppositions of our society are no longer taken for granted by many youth. It is time for the most sober kind of study.

In East Harlem, the hot summer has finally drawn to a close. Almost timorously we thank God that we have escaped from the kind of violence that has engulfed so many areas in New York City. Why, with days of really exhausting heat and sleepless nights, did our youngsters manage to "keep cool?" Perhaps it was only luck, but we are inclined to believe that two factors entered our situation that were significant. One was the influence of the "Conservatives" and the other was determination of a young gang leader to break free the patterns that held him. But you need to feel something of the problem to understand.

We have no pat answers, but just a clue to the definition of the problem and a possible way ahead.

The Problem:

Told the Story of the Good Samaritan, and asked why he thought the priest and Levite walked by on the other side, a youngster thoughtfully replied, "I guess he knew the guy had already been robbed." Our modern urban culture seems to be spawning children such as this who do not naturally feel love or sympathy or tenderness. What the world they know has done to them has been to create in them a world view that rather completely blocks out much that we take for granted as natural. When a child is unwanted in the first place and made to know it, when parents are too busy to provide love and security, when by day he is passed to a procession of baby sitters, when schools are too crowded for anyone to care whether he is there or not, whether he learns or not, when even churches are too busy taking care of their property to want him inside, then a today's city boy responds by becoming very much what he feels everyone expects him to be: Not Much. In his world the future has only the reality of a dream. Ask him what he wants to be when he grows up, and the response is either a blank, or something so obviously impossible as to be a joke. School opens no doors to the future, for no one helps him with his homework or bothers about it when he plays hooky. His world view is simple: To every situation he directs the question, "What's in it for me?" He knows he must look out for himself because no one else will. Hearing the story of the Good Samaritan, he identifies only with the robbers who took advantage of a good thing. The end of the process for some youth is a life of addiction, gang violence or crime.

The Direction:

The papers are full of answers to the problems of delinquency. Most of them miss the mark. We are told to "get tough" and "crack down." We are told to provide for more recreational facilities and social work services of all kinds. The churches tend to fall back upon moralism: "These kids need to be taught the difference between right and wrong." But we mentioned two new factors in East Harlem. They point to the one clue that in faith we affirm is true. Ramon Diaz, a member of our 100th Street Church, by his warmth and understanding, won the respect of a gang. Sensing in them a vague restlessness, he encouraged them to "go social" and over the last two years we have watched develop the remarkable Conservatives Club. Through Ramon, a host of youngsters discovered love and acceptance, felt their power, and came to want these elements in their lives. He was tested in ways that were painful, often terribly exasperating, but he never fell into their trap. In the end, he has led over 100 youngsters into experiences that are beginning to redirect their lives. The Conservatives are one fact that may explain why East Harlem has been cool. The second involves a very similar dynamic. Last June a youngster with substantial leadership potential and considerable gang experience, decided for no reason one can isolate to try and form a youth council of gang leaders in East Harlem. He found ready and intelligent support from an Episcopal priest and an able Quaker social worker. Unlike most of the professional social workers, teachers and others who work in the community, these two men both live in East Harlem. The confidence placed in them by the boys was a decisive factor in the youth council which emerged. Meetings were held in their apartments. The atmosphere, tense at first when boys from hostile gangs came into the same room, could not help relaxing in such a friendly and accepting situation. The youth council is presently thriving, with participation from almost every difficult gang in East Harlem. Together these youngsters are trying to find a way out of the patterns of violence which they knew led only to misery, but from which they seemed so powerless to escape.

We pray--and we hope you will join us--that God will use this new channel for bringing a measure of peace to our community. In both these illustrations, youngsters have been given experiences of love, care, and acceptance whose power and reality they came to feel and gradually to accept as the way life ought to be. Is not this the way in which God's Church is always called to deal with his errant children? Men in our cities need to see and taste and feel Christ's love, to be surrounded by it and served by it. Only when the reality of love is thus demonstrated, that is, when the Gospel comes alive in their midst, can they possibly learn of its power. In such a way we may pray that for the youngsters--and for the men and women of our city--the story of the Good Samaritan may regain its power to stir the conscience.

BY WAY OF EXPLANATION....

From the beginning, this Parish has sought ways of keeping in touch with those across the country who are interested in keeping abreast of developments in our ministry. In East Harlem we have been given both resources of money and personnel, as well as freedom to seek forms and patterns for the life of the church which will be faithful channels for the Gospel into the life of the inner city. Four times a year, a rather substantial report on some phase of our work, or a consideration of some problem which is emerging, is presented in the form of a Report to the Administrative Board. These reports are mailed to any who request them and contain the substance of much of the staff thinking about the life and mission of the Church in the inner city. A far larger list of friends and organizations receive this Newsletter, designed to keep you informed about events in our life as a Parish and about such matters as staff changes and Parish needs. The Edge, had it survived beyond one exciting issue, would have replaced the Newsletter. The man responsible resigned after the first issue in order to seek ordination in the Episcopal Church, leaving no one with the energy or ability to carry on. If any one who reads this has questions about the Parish you would like answered or areas of our work you wish discussed, be sure and let us know.

APPROACHING UNITY....

Some months ago, the city took final action to demolish the row of buildings in which our Church of the Son of Man is located. While the actual demolition has not yet taken place, the day is not far distant. The congregation decided against the possibility simply of seeking a new site in favor of a Parish plan to unite three of our churches into one strong unit with a central place of worship as nearly in the center of the area now being served as possible. In a series of large Parish meetings, laity and clergy came together to the conclusion that unity was the path along which God was calling us. As one congregation, the present three churches could present a powerful witness to the community through their life of worship. At the same time, by continuing our outreach on a block by block basis, the values of dispersion would not be lost. At the moment, we are negotiating for a small site on which we hope to build a simple, but lovely sanctuary. Purposely, we do not plan for Sunday school or small meeting rooms. Even if we had the funds, the likelihood of demolition for the block in which the new church will be located makes any long range building program premature. Meanwhile we are discovering that the living room of every church member is a potential center for Bible study or Sunday school. The symbol of the church meeting in people's homes, in the midst of the common problems of life, rather than in a sacred building, cut off from the reality of the world, is a powerful one. On Sunday, God's people rightfully gather together in the sanctuary for word and sacrament, but during the week, in small groups, they gather in one another's homes to seek patterns of obedience for daily life as Christians. At the moment, we are in the period when unity is becoming a reality. Emily McLees is directing one common Christian education program for the children that formerly were in three separate Sunday schools. Carlos Rios is responsible for outreach to and work with Spanish speaking people for the uniting churches, and planning in general is being undertaken jointly. Such venturing in new directions is not without some pain for all concerned. Each local church is discovering that it must give up something to the common cause. So far, the signs are encouraging.

WHAT DO YOU ALL DO????

At present, 24 people are under the disciplines of the Parish staff, with Peg Eddy as chairman. While nine of these are wives all with small children, even they are nearly all involved substantially in some part of the Parish program. The basic assignments are as follows:

1. Local Churches

A. Uniting Churches

Rev. George Calvert	Pastor, Son of Man	Congregational
Rev. Wendell Elmendorf	Pastor, 106th St.Ch.	Methodist
Rev. Ransom Hammond	Pastor, Redeemer	Congregational
Emily McLees	Christian Education Director	Presbyterian, US
Flossie Borgmann	Admin., Redeemer	E and R
Carlos Rios	Spanish Work	Congregational

B. Ascension Presbyterian

Rev. Letty Russell	Pastor	Presbyterian
Elizabeth Zeller	Assistant for Christian Educ.	Reformed Church

C. Elmendorf Reformed

Rev. Don DeYoung	Pastor	Reformed Church
Tom Harris	Student Interne	Presbyterian

2. Special Programs

A. Narcotics

Rev. Norm Eddy	Director	Congregational
Rev. Lynn Hageman	Caseworker	EUB

B. Medical Clinic

Arnie Austin	Nurse (also part-time at Ascension)	Methodist

3. Administration

Rev. George Webber	Parish-wide services	Congregational

We have recently bid farewell to George and Kathy Todd. After eight years in East Harlem, George accepted a call to work in Taiwan under the Presbyterian Board. They will be greatly missed ....Ron Perrin, after a year as office manager, decided to seek ordination and recently accepted a call to a small Episcopal church in Eagle Butte, South Dakota, a city with fewer residents than inhabited the building the Perrins lived in in East Harlem....Randy and Grace Hammond are away for the Fall on a Sabbatical. They are spending a term at the Ecumenical Institute near Geneva. This wonderful opportunity was made possible by a special grant of the Field Foundation.

WHAT DO YOU NEED????

At the moment, in answer to this frequent inquiry, the top priorities are as follows:

1. Rummage. We can use all kinds of clean, usable clothing.

2. Books. We are seeking good children's books for our expanding lending library. But please, if your children didn't like the book, probably ours won't either.

3. Furniture: We are trying to furnish an adult lounge at Parish Acres. Need comfortable chairs, sofa, rugs, etc. The Junior "Conservatives" also need furniture, especially chairs and lamps.

4. Money: The need is so great, we always feel guilty if we haven't spent just a little more than we have in hand. For 1969, about $9,000 still must be raised in unpledged funds.

EQUIPPING THE LITTLE SAINTS

by Letty M. Russell

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINA
S. T. ANSELMO, CALIF.

An Emerging Pattern of Christian Education

Introduction

As a member of the Group Ministry of the East Harlem Protestant Parish I have spent nine years working with children and their families to equip them as saints who can live and labor in their world as Christians. I used the word "saint" in the New Testament sense of followers of Jesus Christ (Eph. 4:12). I have learned much from the members of the church concerning the meaning of sainthood, and I have come to two conclusions. One is that sainthood, a deep love of Jesus Christ which flows over into daily love for those around you, is a gift which comes to big and little...to adults and to children. The other is that this gift of sainthood is a quality of life which can never be taught directly, but only through participation in the life and tradition of the community of saints as it is known in a particular church. Because of these conclusions I have turned my attention to the way in which children and adults alike can be made open to the call of Christ and the power of his Holy Spirit through their participation in a community of saints. This process of opening the channels of grace so that men and women might know and accept their Lord is what I would call Christian Education.

Family in Christian Education

The first thing which strikes anyone who seeks to carry out Christian Education in a crowded inner city area such as East Harlem is that a usual ingredient seems to be missing. I don't mean children. There are always plenty of children. I don't even mean teachers although this is always a problem in a community where education is at a minimum. I mean the assumption that the home wants the child to be educated as a Christian and intends to help. I suspect that this ingredient is missing in countless churches and communities, not just in the inner city, for a constant stream of articles and books cries out that the family in America is frequently not strong enough to maintain itself, let alone to provide a foundation in Christian Education. The experience of parents everywhere is that the decisions they themselves make are conditioned more by the demands of their jobs and the ideas of their friends than by the life of the family. The experience of young people everywhere is that the standards of their peer group motivate their behavior and not the frustrated admonitions of their elders. In short, in the city and indeed in every part of our land, the family is fast ceasing to be the basic social unit. It is the company, the union, the club, the school, the gang...which is setting the pace in our lives. When we look to the family to carry out the lion's share of our Christian education we find that the family is already looking back at the church and saying, "You should be helping us, we can't even run our own lives let alone worry about Christian education."

The family is still very important but it is not the center of influence. And it need not be the center of Christian education. New patterns of Christian education must emerge which will make the call of Christ relevant in an "other-directed" and "group-oriented" society. It is my conviction that these patterns must also be "group-oriented" and therefore take seriously the community of the church as the new family of Christian nurture. If men live in a mass culture and their lives are dominated by social groups, then the church as this new family must be the group, in which men can find strength, help and fellowship to enable them to serve Christ as their Lord, and not the values and religions of the secular world.

Aims of Christian Education

In looking for emerging patterns of Christian education we must first examine the aims of education which we seek to carry out. We have already said that Christian education is a process of opening the channels of grace so that men might know and accept Christ as Lord. This aim is carried out through three different emphases in the work of the church.

First, the church must declare the mighty acts of God's salvation so that all may know that this is the basis of its life and the life of every Christian. This means simply that the whole community must take seriously its history as it is known in the Bible and must teach that history to its children so that all may know their ancestors in the faith, and may come to know the actions and words of God which declare his love for all men. The more the whole church takes the events of God's salvation seriously, the more these events will happen again in the experience of their own lives and will begin to have meaning for those who are hearing them for the first time.

Second, the church must establish a pattern of life which enables its members to grow in the Christian faith and to grow ever closer to the fellowship of the church and to Jesus Christ its head. This is done through allowing each and every man, woman, and child to participate in the church family's pattern of life so that they find the strength and experience to live daily with their lives open to God's grace. Just as a child learns to play ball or use his fork by doing it with others who know how and think it is important, a child or adult also learns to worship, pray, sing, study, and serve by doing it with others who consider this an important and wonderful part of their lives. In our society, "the others" who can accept the children and teach them that they are wanted as part of a church family are not always the parents. Frequently they are the adult "community of saints" who are struggling together to make a pattern of faithful Christian life which will be relevant to their daily life and the lives of the other adults and children of their community.

Third, the church must teach its members how to serve in the world. The Christian community exists so that it may witness to its Lord in the world through acts of love and service. As it seeks to serve it must also be constantly training its new members and children to express their faith in service through explaining why, and setting an example, and also through actually training them in the work of social action. All of these aims can be carried out only through the life of the whole congregation. It is therefore the business of the whole church family, the whole community of saints, to equip their little saints for the Christian life.

An Emerging Pattern of Christian Education

One concrete example of a pattern of Christian education which takes these aims seriously, yet seeks to carry them out through what I choose to call "mass education techniques," is the Released Time Christian Education program of the Church of the Ascension of the East Harlem Protestant Parish. Three years ago I was faced with two facts in the Christian education program of the church. One was that the program was inadequate and did not take into account the great influence of the community and peer group on what the child actually learned. The other was that the Released Time program was virtually useless in its normal pattern. Released Time is a program in New York State which makes one hour a week available to the churches of any given community so that they can conduct voluntary religious instruction in the church of the children's choice. This means in our case that the children who elect to come to the Church of the Ascension are dismissed from school at 2 p.m. each Thursday to attend religious instruction. This is the worst hour for teaching, and normally little or nothing was accomplished when the restless children assembled for singing, worship and classes.

I therefore planned an expanded program of instruction which would provide outlets for the children's energy, accommodate a large number of children, and provide an opportunity for intensive work over a longer period of time. The enrollment provisions are quite detailed. The children must be regular attenders of the Sunday School and promise to come for at least the first two hours. The enrollment card must be signed by a parent, who is also asked to assist, if possible, for a part of the year. 4th, 5th, and 6th grade children are selected, since at this age they are most receptive to this type of program. Present enrollment is 80, but would be larger if space permitted. The program is popular among the children, with more of them eager to register.

From 2:00-2:45 the children have a craft program in which they make something with their hands which is directly related to the content for the week. Usually this is something they can take home with them. As the children finish they are involved in very active group games. No attempt is made to keep them quiet, although all are expected to keep busy. After this period of "letting off steam" the children line up and receive kool-ade and cookies while the helpers set up the chairs and worship center. From 3 to 4 p.m. children meet in one large group for singing, worship, and instruction. All manner of visual aids are used and the lesson is usually repeated at least three times in various forms such as a story, a quiz show, a film strip, or a play. The children like to put on a play every week. A small group rehearses and makes up its own lines during the first hour and then gives the play at the end of the session.

The ten teachers are the ministers and staff of the church including the custodian, and parents of the children, who are requested to help when they enroll their children. The volunteers are not required to have teaching skills as the program of crafts is planned so that the adults need only to supervise. The content hour is planned so that one person teaches the entire group with the others acting as disciplinarians by being seated among the children in the various rows. However, the program provides good training and experience for parents who frequently become Church School teachers. The curriculum is coordinated with the adult Bible study groups and the Sunday sermon, as well as with the Church School curriculum. It follows the daily and weekly Bible Reading lectionary of the East Harlem Protestant Parish so that children and parents alike are learning about the same things.

The last hour from 4-5 is a time when any child may enroll in a church communicant membership course for Juniors. At the same time those who are already communicant members may go to a continuation program which includes games and crafts as well as review material and service projects. The children who do not wish to be part of this program are free to leave. About forty of the children remain each week. The entire program is very strenuous but it is well worth the planning and effort for its effects are felt in the total work and life of the church community.

Released Time and Declaring the Mighty Acts of God

The first emphasis in the church's work of leading men, women and children to encounter Jesus Christ is that of declaring the mighty acts of God. The curriculum of the Released Time program is based on the contents of the Parish Bible lectionary. This means that it is always Bible centered and is also related to the church year. The rhythm of the church year gives the class a chance to live out the acts of God's salvation as the seasons remind us of the events in Christ's life. Thus although the lectionary and curriculum generally follow a three year study cycle of Bible, Jesus Christ, Church, seasons like Advent and Lent give an opportunity for special study of the meaning of our faith for every day life and the ways in which we prepare to greet our Lord. It must be remembered that not only the children but all the members of the church are following the same theme so that children as well as adults hear a sermon Sunday on a text which they themselves have already studied.

One of the important ways in which we come to know the mighty acts of God is by acting them out ourselves. Thus frequently the whole group will enter into a drama to act out a Biblical event together. This year we will celebrate Three Kings Day, the twelfth day of Christmas when the Kings arrive at the manger, not only with a traditional Puerto Rican dinner and festival, but also with a Parade of the Kings through the streets of the Parish. In Released Time all the children will make themselves a crown of cardboard, and a horse of a cardboard box with a hole cut in the bottom and a head and tail added. The children will learn the story and practice marching in threes, dressed in crowns and their box horses. On the following Saturday they will become the marching kings in the Three Kings Day Parade.

It is especially important that children come to know what God has done by becoming so familiar with the characters and stories of the Bible that for the rest of their lives they are greeted as old friends whenever they hear them mentioned or read. How much more likely is this to happen when they actually have a wall which can fall down when they act out Joshua at the battle of Jericho marching with trumpets, arc and spear; or when they actually make a box with lots and use the lots to pick King Saul for their play. If they enjoy learning what God has done they have an opportunity of enjoying and understanding the Bible as adults, which may become the basis of their equipment as saints.

Released Time and Establishing a Pattern of Life

The second emphasis in the work of the church is that of establishing a style of Christian living which will enable men to grow ever closer to the fellowship of the church and to Jesus Christ its head. This is made a reality for the children in Released Time because the patterns of worship, study, prayer, and service are the same that the whole community of the church follows. Worship is conducted on the children's level, yet the general outline and form of the liturgy is also used by the adults. The worship service is the same one printed in the lectionary for use in family and Bible group worship. On the one hand this teaches the children how to follow the parts of the service, how to enter into leadership in the service and how to sing the hymns related to the content presented. Children who graduate from this program have no difficulty at all in providing leadership in constructing and carrying out their own worship or entering into an adult service of worship. On the other hand this teaches the children how to lead worship in their homes and gives them tools for private and family devotion. Everyone knows that a Junior age child is enthusiastic and stubborn when it comes to suggestions from school or church which might be carried out in the home. Many parents have heard over and over, "but the teacher said to do it." By training 80 children in this way we are able frequently to make the child the evangelist to his parents and neighbors. One elder recently confessed that it was her 9 year old son who had to ask her to pray in front of his Lenten worship center. This Advent the children made wooden book stands which can hold either a lectionary of the Bible. The children were instructed how to use this holder in an Advent worship center in their homes along with other decorations such as a manger and an Advent wreath. The children themselves were equipped to bring the specifically Christian dimension into the home preparations for Christmas.

The children learn not only the patterns of worship, study, prayer and singing, but also they learn the habit of discipleship. During Lent, for instance, they actually studied the habits of the Christian life and how these habits were to be carried out. The last hour of Membership class especially emphasizes these habits in preparing the children for participation in the Lord's Supper. The class is for Juniors because this is the age when children are looking for causes and organizations to join and serve. They are natural joiners and should have an opportunity to join the church as well as the scouts, etc. The church recognizes that they are not mature enough to complete their membership so that it expects all who join to continue in the ongoing "communicants group" and to renew their membership by entering the adult membership class during their years in high school. This opportunity for Juniors to join the fellowship of the Lord's Table is especially important just because the homes are so weak. In coming to the table the child receives a new family who will continue to watch over him and nurture him and to accept him into its circle no matter how many problems he may face in the difficult years of adolescence.

The content of the Communicant member course for Juniors is geared to their level and includes things to make and trips to take. The children study the basic facts of the Christian faith and life: The Bible--its meaning, make up, and history; Jesus Christ--his life and work; the Sacraments--their importance and meaning; the Church--its meaning, worship, and membership. But if children are to learn the patterns of the Christian life they must be part of these patterns and feel that they are a meaningful and familiar part of their own life. For a child in a broken home and a broken society, this is only possible if he can find a "new family" where he is welcomed and taught.

Released Time and Teaching to Serve in the World

The third emphasis in the work of the church is that of teaching to serve in the world. Again this is best accomplished when the whole community of the church itself is concerned with service and actively involved beyond the walls of the church in community problems of housing, discrimination, health, schools, politics, etc. It is best accomplished where the church community openly welcomes the outcasts of society and seeks to help all in need regardless of their commitment, and constantly reaches out to tell all men the good news through actions and words.

The children as well as the adults can learn to pray for those who are sick and in need. During the worship services they can mention their concerns to the congregation so that the minister may include them in the prayers. Last Lent the children spent four successive weeks making Giant Match Book games illustrating Christian life in the church and world. The first Match Book was a game to play teaching the parts of the Bible and the major Bible characters. The second Book was a puzzle showing the bread and wine and introducing the words of institution of communion. The third Book turned the children outward to look at ways their church served the community by providing a kind of "horse race game" where each player moved closer and closer to one of the places of service found in our Parish--such as clinics which provide help in the areas of medicine, narcotic addiction, case work, etc. The last Book the children made was devoted to stewardship and contained slots for six new pennies which were named according to their use in church and world. In class the idea of stewardship was discussed. Then we took an offering asking each child to decide what part of that 6 cents he should keep and which part give to help a family with no food and rent money. Many, especially girls, put in all the pennies. Others were reluctant to part with any. One little girl, who knew her mother actually had no money for food or rent, put in one penny. Her friend teased her unmercifully for her stinginess all the way home, but she kept the pennies tight in her hand. When she arrived home she was nearly in tears, but she went to her mother and said, "I brought you five cents to help buy some milk!"

The design of the Released Time program is to make the children strong in their own way to witness in the world. The program is open to all who will get up and come to Church School on Sunday. A Junior child who wants to do this can do so without any great encouragement in the home, especially if he is accepted regardless of the clothes that he wears. The children in turn learn to tell other children about their program and to invite them simply because they enjoy Thursday afternoons and they want their friends to join them. Although our area has a heavy Catholic population, one school teacher exclaimed to her pupils this fall that more children wanted to go to Ascension than to the Catholic church. Actually we find this program is one of the most important ways of reaching new homes and families for the word is spread through the children, and they in turn become involved,even join the church, and finally the parents make up their minds to follow.

An illustration of the way the children learn to tell about what they know and learn is an incident which occurred the first week of class this fall. The children made Bible Belts out of wide plastic and buckles which had been discarded as "seconds" by a factory. To review what they had learned last year they placed little symbols of Abraham, Joshua, Moses, etc. along the belt. Because they were handsome enough to wear, the children took them to school and two boys toured three classes showing the Belts, telling the story of the symbols, and quizzing the children about their knowledge of Old Testament characters. One of the boys later described this with great pride, ending with a note of triumph and scorn in saying "and most of them didn't even know who Abraham was!"

Conclusion

There is no one way for the church to carry out its work of leading men to encounter Jesus Christ. This pattern is not necessarily original nor is it one which all churches should follow. However, I have tried to discuss it in some detail to show how it is possible to work with a group of children and to equip them as little saints, not by making them perfect but by including them in the life of a community of men and women who know themselves as sinners but seek to love and serve their Lord. As part of such a community the children can find a new family, a new social unity which can guide and nurture them, and which can pray that God will use its work, its love and acceptance to touch the hearts of those they serve.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
2050 SECOND AVENUE
NEW YORK 29, NEW YORK

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

October, 1962

EQUIPPING THE LITTLE SAINTS...

is the subject of the enclosure with this News Letter. The task of Christian education in the inner city is a hard one, but at Church of the Ascension Letty Russell has developed a program of nurture, using the framework of Released Time classes as the starting point.

In our News Letters we are eager to keep our readers abreast of developments in the life and thinking of the Parish. If there are areas which you would like us to explore in the future, we would be glad to know about it.

NEWS ABOUT THE STAFF...

George Calvert continues to give major attention to developing an indigenous congregation while working in the community as a layman. He is teaching school this year at Junion High School 117, just across from the Parish office . . . Letty Russell attended meetings of the World Council in Paris for a week and then had a very brief visit in London and Berlin. She is one of the two Americans on the Working Committee of the Department of Studies in Evangelism . . . Bill and Dibby Webber were away for three months. Dibby took the Spanish language course at Middlebury College, while Bill worked on a manuscript.

COOPERATING CHRISTIAN CHURCHES...

is a name to remember. The CCC is a strenuous effort of the Protestant churches of East Harlem to find concrete ways of uniting in witness and service in our community. This is truly an expression of ecumenicity at the place where it must become effective, the local community. This is a real growing edge for the Parish and for all the churches of the neighborhood.

THE NARCOTICS PROGRAM...

faced a major crisis last spring when the average daily load of those seeking help almost tripled to 30 or more a day. There is solid evidence that when addicts feel there is some genuine hope and that they will not be treated as criminals, they are prepared to accept and use help. Lynn Hageman as Executive Director has primary responsibility now for the day to day work of the program. Norm Eddy while still Director of the Narcotics Program is giving a good deal of time to the Christian Action program of the Parish.

CHURCH OF THE RESURRECTION...

still is on paper, but the architect is now prepared to ask for city approval and let out bids to contractors. While about $30,000 must still be raised, the Board of the Parish has voted to proceed at once with the building in the confidence that funds will be found. Meanwhile the congregation continues to worship at Church of the Ascension at 12:30 and hold Sunday School in the storefronts, Parish office, and in the homes of members.

STAFF CHANGES RECENTLY...

After two years at Church of the Ascension, the Rev. Charles Coleman has accepted a call as pastor of a Baptist Church in Halifax, Nova Scotia. Juetta and Charles left on September 1 and are greatly missed. His work is being undertaken temporarily by an interne, the Rev. Harold Eads, June graduate of Perkins School of Theology and summer staff member in East Harlem for the past two years. We are searching for a replacement at Ascension, the primary responsibilities including work in all aspects of the church's life but with particular attention to youth work and community outreach.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

March, 1963

On Sunday afternoon, February 10, 1963, the Rev. Lynn Hageman was installed as the Executive Director of the E.H.P.P. Narcotics Committee. Following the service, held at the Church of the Ascension, the Narcotics Committee presented in psycho-drama form some of the ethical and moral problems confronting the addicted. This Newsletter is a brief summary of the basic facts that lay behind that session.

In New York City alone, there are approximately twenty-four to thirty thousand persons addicted to narcotics. This would be from forty to fifty per cent of the addicts in the U. S. if the estimates of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics are correct. For forty years the narcotic addict was recognized only as a criminal in the eyes of society. No social services were available to him, no hospital beds, no doctors who would treat him in private practice. The only alternatives were a long and painful trip to Lexington, Kentucky for treatment at the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital or painful "cold-turkey" withdrawal without medication in a prison or house of detention.

More recently there have been changes in this dismal picture, largely through the impact upon public opinion of local narcotics programs, of which the Parish's work served as a pioneering venture. Our ministry began in earnest in 1956 through the efforts of Mr. Louis Leon, then one of the young laymen of the Parish, who began to work on his own to encourage boys and girls of the community to avail themselves of the treatment offered to adolescent addicts at Riverside Hospital. Under his pressuring the Parish started a sub-committee of the Christian Action program in an effort to deal with this problem. In 1957 the work of this sub-committee was given a boost by a grant of $1,000 from the Federation of Protestant Welfare Agencies. That modest beginning has led to the development of a program employing four full-time staff and six part-time persons as well as extensive use of volunteers from the community. Over the past five years the Narcotics Committee has worked in varying degrees of intensity with almost 2500 addicts as well as many family members who suffer directly from the presence in their home of a dope user. In 1962, for example, the E.H.P.P. Narcotics Committee was sought out by 670 new addicts. The majority of these were adults, for the treatment of adolescent addiction requires staff and resources lacking in this program. Given adequate staff support and financing the present median age of 27 years would probably be lowered substantially. The first step toward an effective youth program has been made with a $5,000 grant from the Federation of Protestant Welfare Agencies.

The Committee's main office is located in a converted store at 306 E. 103rd St. There are two rooms in the office augmented by a small two room apartment across the hall. On the other side of the entrance hallway are two small converted stores which are used for recreation and meetings. The Rev. Lynn Hageman now serves as Executive Director, working together with The Rev. Norman C. Eddy who continues as half-time director; Mrs. Carmen Ortiz, Program Assistant; Mr. Seymour Fiddle, Research Sociologist; Mr. Hector Velez, Hospital Liaison and Referral Worker; and the part-time assistance of Mr. Tito Camacho, Records Co-Ordinator; Dr. Lonnie MacDonald, Psychiatrist; and Mr. Seymour Ostrow, Attorney and Chairman of the Executive Committee. Dr. Marie Nyswander and Dr. Romano Antonelli have also been assigned to work cooperatively with us by the Narcotics Unit of Metropolitan Hospital.

In the past year we saw more than twelve new addicts per week as well as continuing our work with many old friends from the past. During one period of intensive activity that continued for two months we saw from fifty to seventy-five persons per day in our office in addition to those contacted and served in hospitals, prisons, and on the street. The following types of service were given:

(1) Referral to hospitals.
(2) Advice and help to those returning from hospitals and prisons:
    a) Help and advice in finding jobs.
    b) Family counselling.
    c) Psychiatric counselling, if desired and indicated.
    d) Help in finding food, clothing, and shelter for those who have none. We pay for these, if necessary.
    e) Help in use of leisure time.
    f) Spiritual counselling.
(3) Help in going through our Medical Withdrawal Program.
(4) Legal advice, both to those in difficulty with the law and their families.
(5) Help with problems with other agencies: Department of Welfare, Courts, Probation, Parole, etc., etc.

Throughout the years the Committee has followed the lives of addicted men and women as they move in and out of the culture of addiction through the hospitals and prisons. Of these we have seen a modest number find new life either through religious conversion and new birth or in more prosaic ways that we do not understand with clarity. Many more have been helped to regulate their drug use more effectively and assume an increasing measure of responsibility in their work and family relations. This has been done in the face of overwhelming odds in the forms of dire poverty, poor education, lack of work skills, a hostile society, and the terribly tangible obstacles incurred by those having prison records and experience. Because of these overwhelming facts, the Narcotics Committee has been committed to work in the larger area of Christian Action, serving as an agent of protest wherever injustice seems to prevail.

Most concretely, this protest was made early in the Committee's history when there were no beds available for addicts in New York's hospitals. Through a wide-spread program of community education and visible evidence of the community's concern changes have taken place in which both city and state now acknowledge their responsibility in the area. There are now more than six hundred hospital beds officially allocated for the treatment of addiction in the Metropolitan Area. The Committee has also been active in the promotion of sympathetic legislation and can claim a significant role in the gradually changing climate of public and governmental opinion.

Despite this record of achievement, there are still many matters of concern for the future. The Committee experience has confirmed its belief that rehabilitation and treatment of the addict must eventually be centered in the community where the addict functions and lives. Although there are a slowly growing number of neighborhood-based rehabilitation programs, they must be strengthened and increased in manifold numbers if each of them is not to be swamped by the demands for their services. It is also evident that if neighborhood centers are to be given a fair test their programs of after-care must be far more comprehensive than at present. The E.H.P.P. Narcotics Committee is now convinced that the idea of the half-way-house must soon be implemented, despite the great monetary cost, if our present humane and personal emphasis is not to be lost in the welter of vast public projects. Our present research program also seems to indicate that there ought to be a strengthening of research efforts, not in the sterile environs of the great institutional complex so much as in the rough and tumble world of the addict and his culture. At this point, the Committee's program of research is perhaps the only such venture geared to a knowledge of the addict and his social interaction at the indigenous level.

Over and above all looms the spectre of a well meaning government imposing a massive program which appeals to the experts, but is ultimately irrelevant to the condition of the addict and of those who love him. It may well be that the E.H.P.P. Narcotics Committee, with its very modest accomplishments and program, has yet to make its greatest contributions in the continuing development of a rehabilitative effort that is oriented toward the end of concrete personal involvement and concern for and with those who are themselves voiceless.

For further information about the work of the Parish with addicts, write to us at 2050 Second Avenue, New York 29, N. Y. A number of reports are readily available.

- - - - - - - - - - -

MISCELLANY:

We are glad to report that the Parish finished the year with a balanced budget. We are all most grateful to everyone who helped make this possible.

Particular need: We receive a good deal of rummage and are able to make immediate use of it. But we usually are lacking in clothing for men--suits, jackets, coats, work clothes and especially shoes.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

Fall, 1963

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

This has been a very full and busy summer for the Parish. Both churches have sponsored vacation church schools which have run from six to eight weeks and involved as many as 200 children at one time in such diverse activities as dramatic presentations of Bible stories (Paul was actually lowered over the walls of Damascus--over a wall of card-board boxes in a wicker basket suspended from the ceiling by a rope and pulley), to crafts (replicas of whales were fashioned out of clay with extra large mouths to serve as ash-trays and remind the children of Noah's disobedience), to outings (Jones Beach was a special favorite). Play programs on the blocks and projects augmented the work in the church and storefronts. A wonderful talent show was directed by Fred and Gloria Dennard with local talent, including a fine combo, and put on outdoors in the middle of East River Houses and Franklin Plaza, two neighboring apartment houses. The fine quality of talent displayed should be a real incentive to many of the spectators to try and develop their own talents. The show also provided an opportunity for people in Franklin Plaza, a new middle income co-operative, and East River Houses, an old low income public housing project, to join together in a community-wide activity and to begin to get to know one another on common ground.

One of the major problems facing our youth is their lack of adequate preparation in the early grades. This is especially acute in their failure to read up to the level required for their age. Under the leadership of Dibby Webber, the Parish has developed a remedial reading program which has produced wonderful results, often by doing little more than listening to children read and giving them individual attention. The kids have responded by improving two or three years in the course of six weeks during the summer. This summer our program was greatly strengthened by the volunteer services of two full-time school teachers and a Dean of Women from Penn State College. Under their direction, Junior Hi's met each morning and younger children in the afternoon. The regular attendance of most of the children shows that individual attention and stimulation can make school attractive for children in East Harlem.

The Parish was greatly encouraged by the fine contribution made by East Harlem high school and college students from our own churches to this summer's program. The summer staff which was responsible for the family vacation program at Parish Acres, our retreat center 50 miles north of the city, was composed of but one person from outside East Harlem. Families from our community at Parish Acres had a wonderful time under the direction of Ray Rodriquez, a sophomore at Shaw University and long time member of Church of the Resurrection. Three members of the summer staff at Church of the Ascension are college students from their own congregation. The youth canteen is being conducted by young adults. There are the usual junior staff from our churches that assist with the vacation church program. We are proud of these responsible teen-agers and young adults that have contributed so ably to this summer's program.

Since we have no camp of our own for youngsters and teen-agers, we rely heavily on the Herald Tribune "Fresh Air Fund" for sending children out of the city for a few weeks. This summer almost 350 children visited homes of families in New England and Pennsylvania. For many of them, it was the first time they had been in a "typical" house outside of the city. Our high school kids received a great lift through denominational conferences and city mission camps. A week at such a camp can be a critical experience in the life of a young person couped up in the hot city with nothing to do all summer. This year for the first time, three boys in their late teens attended four rugged weeks at the Colorado Outward Bound School, where they learned personal endurance, and mutual cooperation for survival.

The Civil Rights protest has swept the city with great force. We have supported the drive for fair employment practices in local picketing and sent three bus loads of people from the Parish to the August 28th March on Washington. We spend a great deal of time working with school drop-outs, trying to find jobs and keep them out of trouble. But until equal opportunity is a reality, the assistance we can give is but a drop in the bucket to the employment needs in our community.

Two major issues of action face East Harlem this summer. The first, a rash of terrible tenement fires, is being met by a community-wide education drive on fire prevention, led by Randy Hammond. In addition to showing outdoor movies on fire prevention and distributing literature, the committee is pressing for more adequate police and fire protection. Many of the fires have started in empty apartments and appear to be the work of arsonists.

The other crisis that faces us with great urgency is what to do about our schools. Great pressure is being brought to bear upon public officials to bus children to other neighborhoods in order to integrate schools. Our community must decide whether integration is of first priority or whether there are more viable methods for upgrading the totally inadequate schools our children must attend.

NEW STAFF...

Fred Dennard has been called as a minister of the Church of the Ascension, sharing fully in the total ministry of the church but with a special responsibility for pastoral counselling. Fred, his wife Gloria, and their children, Kenneth, 7, and Dale, 15, have moved into a new co-operative apartment across from the church.

The Dennards come to East Harlem with unusually varied experience. For several years after studying at Julliard School of Music they were professional entertainers, traveling widely and entertaining for the U.S.O. across the world. Fred returned to college after a growing conviction that his calling was to the ministry and after graduation from Brooklyn College in 1959, entered Union Theological Seminary. He worked at Ascension as a field work student. Upon graduation in 1962, Fred took a year of clinical training while also serving as Director of Religious Education at a large Baptist Church in Brooklyn. He begins work full time on September 1st.

Gloria Dennard has served as choir director for both Church of the Ascension and Resurrection since 1961. Their gifts, experience, and dedication to the inner city ministry make the Dennards a most welcome addition to our group ministry.

Esdras Rodriguez has been called as a minister of the Church of the Ascension, with special responsibility for Spanish work, as well as participating in all aspects of the church's ministry. Esdras, Mirty, and their daughter Giselle (age 1) moved into East Harlem in early June and have been hard at work at Ascension ever since.

Esdras has attended the University of Puerto Rico and the Evangelical Seminary at Rio Piedras. He has been a minister in the Methodist Church in Puerto Rico since 1960. In addition, he has worked as a summer counsellor in New Hampshire and has spent several weeks visiting his brother, who works with youth in East Harlem.

Esdras was led to leave Puerto Rico and accept a call in the inner city by his concern that the Gospel be made relevant to the social problems confronting society as well as the spiritual needs of man. We are grateful that he has strengthened our ministry with his gifts and presence.

The Parish is excited by the prospect of having a Negro American, a white American, and a native Puerto Rican as the three pastors of Church of the Ascension. For the first time, the staff at Ascension includes the same ethnic groups as the congregation.

Robert Nichol has been called as Parish Administrator. Bob graduated from Union Theological Seminary in 1961 and worked as a case worker for the New York Department of Welfare for one year before coming to the Parish. While at the seminary he spent two years doing field work at Church of the Ascension. He will be taking over some of the responsibilities of Bill Webber, who is spending two-thirds time at the seminary this year.

Ellie Wise, our efficient office manager, was recently married to James Soler, a social worker in Harlem. Ellie reports that we are in great need of layettes for Parish babies. We are also always able to make good use of rummage.

REPORT ON NARCOTICS COMMITTEE...

Many of you were notified that the E.H.P.P. Narcotics Committee was facing a severe financial crisis last spring. At that time we faced the prospect of a severe cut-back in staff and program because an anticipated grant from the National Institutes of Mental Health failed to materialize. Impending was the necessity for a cut-back of some $20,000 for the second half of 1963. This meant that we looked forward to dropping half of our staff; and this in a program that was understaffed and cruely overworked. This present report will bring you up to date on subsequent developments.

Our first appeal to the churches for direct help was made immediately via the various denominational boards. Out of this came many expressions of concern and several declarations of intention to be of help. Concretely, the Presbyterians sent $2,000 almost immediately, followed by a check for $500 from the Reformed Church with indications that more might be forthcoming. A number of individuals made smaller contributions which together with a promised case aide salary from the New York City Department of Health gave us assurance that we could last out the year. Thus, we have had to drop no full-time staff, although our attorney is working gratis for the balance of this year and all areas of the program and administration are operating on an austerity budget. (Our tight operating budget became somewhat more form fitting when our office and recreation rooms were burglarized and about fifteen hundred dollars in typewriters, tape-recorders, and recreation equipment were lost.)

The National Institutes of Mental Health made a site visit and gave us a lot of encouragement to reapply for a grant, but we now know from hard experience that this resource cannot be counted on until the grant is actually in hand. In the event that we should reapply and be accepted, no funds would be forthcoming in any event until next June at the earliest. Thus, our appeal to the churches and to our friends is no less urgent than it was in the spring.

Several denominations have promised to consider our budgetary needs for 1964, and this help is deeply appreciated. Much will remain, however, for individual churches and churchmen to contribute if our work is not to be curtailed even more drastically than at present. Inquiries about opportunities for giving to specific projects and needs in the Narcotics Committee program may be addressed to The Rev. Lynn L. Hageman, Executive Director, E.H.P.P. Narcotics Committee, 2050 Second Avenue, New York 29, N. Y.

CHURCH OF THE RESURRECTION...

The task of building a new church in the inner city is proving to be incredibly frustrating and utterly exhausting. First, there was the long struggle to find a site that could be used for our purposes. Then came the difficult decision as to the kind of building and design that would serve the function of the Parish and witness to the gospel in East Harlem. Once the architect, Victor A. Lundy, had drawn the final, exciting plans, we ran into the problem of cost. Mr. Lundy, an extremely able and imaginative architect, had agreed to design a building that could be built for $165,000. In January, 1963, the lowest bid from the various New York City contractors was about $257,000. This was a shock to everyone, and at first there seemed no choice but to start all over again. But Mr. Lundy was determined to find a way of creating the church he had designed and thus at his own expense labored for several months to reduce costs substantially while keeping to the same basic plans. We reached this stage over the summer of 1963 and had been awaiting word from the contractor as to a new bid before sending out this News Letter. Word has just come that is very discouraging. After every possible effort to cut costs and still retain the basic design, the architect still finds that the lowest bid is about $220,000. Within the next several weeks, the Parish and its Board will have to decide on the feasibility of proceeding with this design and contract or starting over again. We are sorry to have to report our predicament, but the problems of construction in New York City in the light of the high wage scale and the competition from the construction for the World's Fair are really fantastic. Throughout this long process, discouraging and disconcerting as it has been, the members of the Parish have continued to work and pray for their new church with tremendous confidence that it would actually be achieved. Their own fund raising efforts have been genuinely sacrificial. We shall together continue to work until a new church is built, a sign of hope in the midst of East Harlem.

ASSOCIATES PLAN...

In the early days of the Parish, in response to inquiries from outside of East Harlem, we began an Associates Plan that enabled friends outside of the community to enter into an informal relationship to our work. Our limited staff and office resources did not enable us to sustain this program and it rather faded away. Since that time we have continued to receive requests from individuals who were committed to our work here and wondered if some appropriate relationship might be found to express their concern. We are prepared to explore some sort of Associates Plan but are very concerned that it not turn into a fund raising gimmick, but that if anyone feels moved to enter such a relationship it be done with a commitment to keep all disciplines that are appropriate to one's own particular situation. Associates would receive all Parish mailings including the quarterly publication of a lectionary, Daily Bible Readings. The yearly cost to the Parish of such mailings will be about $3.00. Such forms of expression as regional retreats might be appropriate.

We would appreciate getting your reactions to this plan, as we are flexible as to what shape such a plan might take and are eager to have your thinking on it.

OCT 30 1963

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK 29, N. Y.

MAR 5 1964

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

January, 1964

Although it seemed to be dead and buried in November, the new building for the Church of the Resurrection, with a persistence worthy of its name, has been revived and appears at last to be in the final planning stages. Enclosed is a brief history and progress report of the building. In addition, within East Harlem, and indeed, in every large Metropolitan center in the North, the Civil Rights struggle has centered on education. Dibby Webber has written a report of her remedial reading program which started out as a small children's library and has grown to include many children and volunteers. In past summers the reading program has been greatly strengthened by several fine school teachers who have volunteered their services for up to three months during their summer vacation. Finally, we submit the Associates Plan that we mentioned in the last Newsletter. It is our hope that the commitment described will not be entered into lightly, but will grow into a relationship of mutual support and growth for both the Parish and the Associates.

CHURCH OF THE RESURRECTION BUILDING PROGRAM PROGRESS REPORT

At long last we are happy to report that the new building for the Church of the Resurrection is becoming a reality. It's unusual design aroused widespread interest and general enthusiasm when it was first announced in 1961. In order to bring the cost of the new building within our means, we reduced the originally proposed areas about 40 per cent while preserving the building's basic concept. The resulting sanctuary accommodates 175 people; the fellowship hall and kitchen 130 persons. Three offices and a weekday prayer chapel complete the Church. Christian Education will continue in homes and neighborhood storefronts. Victor Lundy, our architect, spared no effort of time or imagination to make this Great Church for the Inner-city--"a wonderful experience of inter-related spaces opening one upon the other."

Review of the Struggle: For those of you who have wondered what has been happening over the past months, the following is an account of our struggle to realize a new building. After spending 1962 designing a building for reduced areas, the low bid in January, 1963 totaled $280,000, 66 per cent over our specified contract limit of $165,000 for construction cost and site treatment. Faced with the prospect of abandoning the project, Mr. Lundy accomplished a first round of construction economies in consultation with the low bidder, Thompson-Brinkworth Construction Company. By simplifying masonry and roofing, and by eliminating brick and plywood interior finished surfaces, we hoped that the building could be constructed for $195,000. In March the congregation and Parish Board voted approval of this increased estimate.

Architect and contractor worked through the Spring and Summer of 1963 revising plans and cost estimates, only to bring us to a second crisis in September when we learned that the firm estimate for the revised construction was $240,000! Although Mr. Lundy brought this down to $220,000 by a second round of economies, we were extremely discouraged. The increase to $195,000 construction cost voted in March was all that we could justify raising and spending. Again, we concluded that it would be best to start over with a new design.

Faced with the termination of his contract, Mr. Lundy proposed a third round of cost reductions to be attained by simplifying the masonry pattern in the sanctuary walls and by eliminating an ingenious but costly ventilating and lighting scheme. However, the building's crucial forms and spaces remained unaltered. Mr. Lundy further pledged a personal contribution of $4,600, bringing the effective construction cost to $195,400. Thus, the original sculptured building became attainable for the stripped budget.

This wringing out of the design features during 1963 was the necessary and logical extension of our 1962 work to squeeze all areas down to working minimums. The Parish has stuck by Mr. Lundy and his building on the conviction that great design is much needed in East Harlem. The resulting church offers the multiple utility of beauty, symbolism and function in a small structure which will serve, rather than run, the church.

Thus in 1964, we look to more tangible progress as construction begins. January should bring procurement of the building permit and signing of the contract. We anticipate start of construction in March. This will be great encouragement to everyone here, although we know that much hard work remains.

The Next Step: The largest remaining task will be to raise the additional funds needed to complete our budget which will total about $255,000. Of the $50,000 still to be raised, $35,000 represents the unanticipated increase encountered during 1963. The funds raised in East Harlem by Parish members now total $15,000 with a goal of $6,000 for 1964. However, we will also need additional new gifts and increases or extensions of pledges to meet the unexpected increased costs. We hope and pray that in the year ahead you can help us to complete this building upon which so many people have labored for so long.

THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
LIBRARY AND READING PROGRAM

Six years ago an adventurous Parish program was born with an idea, a box of books, and four children. The idea was to bring books into the lives of East Harlem children; the box of books was donated by a church group in New Jersey and it contained an excellent collection of good children's books; the children lived in my building and loved to look at books or listen to stories. They also enjoyed borrowing our books, especially the ones that had learned to read all by themselves. As the interest grew and the number of children increased, the growing operation was transplanted to one corner of the large bare second floor of the Parish office building. With a bookcase, a desk and a call for new books, our Parish Children's Library was launched. At that time only one badly crowded public library was available to our children and that was some eight blocks away through heavy city traffic. The schools were loath to allow books to leave the class room. The only reading materials to be found in most East Harlem homes were daily tabloids in English and Spanish and a sprinkling of lurid comic books. If children could be helped to enjoy books from an early elementary school age, then perhaps, many of the tragic cases of non-readers would be eliminated. At least it was a hope.

The children began to learn that the second floor of the Parish office was a "fun" place to go after school. "They let you take out your very own books," and that was great! The joy and pride felt by a young child as he borrowed his book from the library could only be explained by watching his face. The numbers of children grew as books began to come in to fill the shelves. It began to look as though the library was here to stay. However, it became increasingly evident that most of the children were in desperate need. Too many fifth and sixth graders could only read on a third grade level, and too many third graders were stumbling through basic pre-primers. We decided to formalize what we had, in fact, been doing--helping our Parish children with their reading. A member of the Garden City Church on Long Island, who was the director of Remedial Reading for the Long Island Schools, assisted us in setting up a reading program. An instructor in this field at Teachers College was hired to aid us in the use of materials and techniques. Most important, these experts reinforced our belief that most of the children simply needed encouragement, personal attention, and continuing consistent exposure to the English language and that intelligent, dedicated volunteers could readily learn to give this help. Although professional teachers have been used each year in the program, we rely on as many volunteers as possible with the conviction that individual attention is extremely important.

Each year the library and Reading Program has expanded. The entire second floor of the office building is now lined with book-filled shelves and set up with many long tables stocked with an excellent variety of remedial reading material. On Tuesdays and Thursdays from three to five, and on Saturday morning, the third and fourth floors of the Parish office are also used to accommodate the crowds of children. Wednesday afternoon is used exclusively for borrowing and returning books. The summers are busy too, with a six-week course for juniors and seniors in high school, in addition to the regular programs. Last summer one student jumped three grade levels in reading in five weeks. Seven or eight students progressed a full two years, while the remainder went up a year. In addition to reading help, we are now able to give assistance in other subjects, e.g., arithmetic, simple drills on times tables and fractions. This fall, for the first time, we have been able to provide tutorial help for a great number of the junior and senior high students.

We want to emphasize that very little of this expanding program would be possible were it not that concern for the plight of East Harlem children continues to grow. This concern has manifested itself in the large numbers of persons who are volunteering their time and services. There is no doubt that the Negro Freedom Movement in 1963 has quickened the conscience of Americans to the degree that vast numbers are at last asking, "what can I do?" Forty different individuals have volunteered their services this fall--each one giving at least two hours a week in our Reading and Tutorial Program. At last we are able to give the kind of individual help to our young people which they so desperately need. There is someone who will sit down with one child for a whole hour or two twice a week and give that child his undivided attention, an experience rare in the lives of most East Harlem children. We are becoming increasingly convinced that this lack is the greatest single cause for the poor academic performance of the majority of our children.

Who are all these people who give their time to our program? Of the forty who came this fall, the majority were students themselves --ten college or seminary students; twelve senior high school students from the Scarsdale Congregational Church who came in regularly with their adult leaders (they were invaluable in the teaching of Algebra, Geometry, French and Spanish because for them it was still fresh); three mothers from the East Harlem community; three business men, one of whom comes all the way from New Jersey for three different two-hour sessions; six girls from the Brearley School who come on Thursday to work with the younger children; two ex-school teachers who live in the co-op in the neighborhood; and four women from the Central Presbyterian Church on Park Ave. They are a remarkable group and they obviously enjoy themselves. They also learn that East Harlem children, as children everywhere, are eager to learn when someone really cares.

So from one teacher to forty, from one box of books to five thousand books, from four children to the hundreds who have to come to the Library--this is the running history of one venture among many. This type of work is now growing everywhere, especially in crowded inner city areas where for too long there has been harmful neglect. It will continue to grow. It is blowing in the wind everywhere and for all of us who are involved, it is an exciting adventure.

ASSOCIATE PLAN FOR FRIENDS OF THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

Men and women who have a concern and interest in the work of the Parish and the implications of this work for the life of the church, may show this by becoming Associate Members of the East Harlem Protestant Parish. Associate Members are kept informed about the unfolding efforts of the Parish to find new wineskins in which to witness to the gospel in the inner city. The hope is that by entering into a continuing conversation with the Parish, Associates will be able to apply the thinking and experience of the Parish to their own situation and, in turn, share their insights with those who work in the East Harlem Protestant Parish. Associates are asked to commit themselves to the following:

I. PARTICIPATION AND WORK IN THE LIFE OF THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

1. Prayer and intercession.
2. Study and exchange of written material, including Board Reports, News Letters, Lectionary.
3. Visit to the Parish or Associates Retreat whenever possible.
4. Sharing by giving of time, money, or enlisting help and interest of others.

II. PARTICIPATION IN THE WORK OF THE CHURCH IN THE WORLD WHERE GOD HAS PLACED US

1. Participation in a local church and congregation as the locus of his Christian commitment.
2. Observance of the habits of Christian living.
   a) Ordered Day--the planning of each day as an offering to God.
   b) Regular Bible reading and study, perhaps using Parish Lectionary, if possible with a group of fellow Christians.
   c) Daily prayer with emphasis upon intercession.
3. Work for Christian Action in your own community.
   a) Exchange of plans and projects in common areas between your own community and East Harlem, e.g. legislation on fair employment; housing; narcotics matters; rehabilitation programs for drug addicts; elimination of segregation in housing; civil rights.
   b) Participation in at least one local community organization working for justice or brotherhood.

We believe that a disciplined life of prayer and Bible reading, of the use of time, and of the use of money is essential if one is to live with integrity under the Lordship of Christ. The disciplines outlined above are minimal commitments a Christian should make. We are requesting that anyone who wishes seriously to accept the above commitment contribute $3.00 to help defray the cost of the mailings. This covers only the printing costs to us of the quarterly lectionary. It is expected that an Associate will take with utmost seriousness the demand of sacrificial stewardship of both his time and financial resources, as is most appropriate in his particular situation.

Form for Enrollment

I should like to be enrolled as an Associate member of the East Harlem Protestant Parish. I shall do my best to keep the devotional, vocational, and economic disciplines.

Name_____

Address_____

_____

Please describe below how you intend to keep the disciplines for 1964. (This is to enable both you and the Parish to see the significance of our mutual commitment.)

I. PARTICIPATION AND WORK IN THE LIFE OF THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH.

II. PARTICIPATION IN THE WORK OF THE CHURCH IN THE WORLD WHERE GOD HAS PLACED US.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

May, 1964

PENTECOST - NEW GROUND BROKEN

Pentecost Sunday, May 17th, was a particularly joyful occasion for the Parish this year. As is traditional, the communion table was moved from the chancel to the center of the church with the congregation sitting on three sides of the table and the worship leaders seated behind it. The Parish churches united in a joint communion service literally gathered around the table. As the words of distribution were being spoken, a "dove of the Holy Spirit" (a white helium filled balloon the children had decorated like a bird in Sunday school and accidentally released) slowly descended over the table. This providential coincidence added a touch of humor to a wonderful service which was climaxed by the whole congregation processing out of Church of the Ascension to the vacant lot on 101st Street for the ground breaking ceremonies for Church of the Resurrection.

After the ground had been prepared with appropriately red-painted pick and shovel (two hours of hard pick work had been done a couple of days before to enable the ground to be "broken") our dear friend and advisor Dr. Edward Odell and Mrs. Chasie Ortez (one of the oldest members of the Parish, if not of all New York City) removed the first spadeful of earth. It was a moment of great satisfaction for us all.

Full scale excavation for the new building is expected to begin by the end of May. The contractor expects the church building to be completed by Easter, 1965. Of the total cost of $250,000, $35,000 remains to be raised. As the building becomes a reality, we hope that some of our friends will help us meet these remaining construction costs.

WE'VE WRITTEN ANOTHER BOOK.....

On June 8, 1964, Abingdon Press is publishing a new book, written out of the experience of the Parish: THE CONGREGATION IN MISSION: Emerging Structures for the Church in an Urban Society ($3.50). Bill Webber is the author. The general plan for the book grew out of a current study of the Department of Evangelism of the World Council of Churches on the topic "The Missionary Structures of the Congregation." In preparing for this study, World Council staff members proposed the thesis that the congregation today must be in dialogue not only with the gospel but with the society in which it is found. For the living God who reveals himself in the scripture is also at work in the world. If the congregation is to be a true instrument of God's mission, it must take its shape as much from the form of God's work work in the world as from the nature of the gospel. For some of the Parish staff, this formulation offered a fascinating opportunity to examine the forms of the church in East Harlem and see what, if anything, we might offer to the ongoing discussion of missionary structures. This book,

THE CONGREGATION IN MISSION, is thus written for the congregations in America that are asking about the nature of their mission, whether it be in suburbia, the inner city, or anywhere else, using the experience of the Parish as something of a parable. If you can't get copies elsewhere, we can make them available.

A LONG HOT SUMMER?!

You are well aware that we are facing a moral crisis as a nation on the issue of civil rights. However, outside the precincts of the Ghetto it is hard to imagine the explosiveness and potential destructiveness of what is truly another American Revolution. The time has passed when the White community can afford merely to make consessions to Negroes. White America must shatter the false divisions and phony restrictions that condemn millions of Negro Americans to inadequate education, miserable housing, little opportunity for meaningful employment. American society must be open to all men, regardless of color. White Americans must pass beyond the benevolent paternalism that is willing to consider civil rights as long as there is no personal cost involved and begin to recognize that the fine education White children receive in the segregated suburbs and city neighborhoods is at the expense of the crippled lives of Negro children who are herded into the segregated ghettos of our cities and forgotten; White Americans must begin to see that their cherished property values rest on a foundation of twisted lives of Negroes confined to inner city slums; White America must begin to understand that the economies effected by our government through austerity budgets in public health programs, aid to dependent children, and many other "Welfare" programs are but one more attempt to find a moral justification for selfishness.

It is frightening to contemplate what will happen if the Civil Rights Bill fails to pass or is so emasculated that its present minimal provisions are further weakened. Mail to the Senate has run strongly against the measure now being considered. We urge you to write Senators Dirkson and Mansfield as well as the Senators from your own state to support the bill now being considered, supporting cloture, if necessary, to get the bill to the floor for a vote.

The members of the Parish have been actively engaged in the fight for justice and equality in New York City. We have been struggling to discover ways to bridge the gap between the predominantly White churches that support our work and the Negro and Puerto Rican communities of East Harlem and New York City. We are actively exploring the use of our retreat center as a place for retreats, conferences, and study sessions where men from all parts of the metropolitan community can meet together and begin to face one another, themselves, and the problems of discrimination so deeply embedded in all our lives. A more complete description of our hopes for Parish Acres as a center of metropolitan dialogue and action follows.

NEXT STEPS FOR PARISH ACRES....

During the 16 years of our ministry, the East Harlem Protestant Parish has given its major energy to the work in East Harlem. But increasingly, we have had to give some attention to a wider ministry. We have often been asked to tell about our experiences in seeking to fulfill God's mission in the inner city, not so much to tell about the job we have to do, as to share what light we have been given on the nature and mission of the church in a metropolitan society--in a sense --to provide from our experience a mirror in which other congregations in quite different situations, might examine their task. At the same time, we have become intensely aware of the reality of the whole metropolitan area as one unit. The problems of the inner city will not be solved without the concern of the whole city. The civil rights crisis demands the involvement of suburban and inner city Christians alike.

A growing sense of responsibility for the metropolitan mission of the Protestant churches in our city has been partly responsible for leading us to rethink the central focus of our retreat center, Parish Acres.

Since 1951, Parish Acres has served as a retreat and family camping center for the East Harlem Protestant Parish. In this lovely spot, with its 130 wooded acres, the spiritual life and commitment of the Parish members have been deepened, new people have been led to join in our missionary task in East Harlem through a new or deeper understanding of the gospel, and we have learned much about the nature of life together in Christ. Each year, the facilities have been more extensively used, some buildings have been added, and a pattern of usage has developed.

But as a Parish, we have been increasingly troubled by the recognition that more and more we were using Parish Acres for our own benefit as Christians in East Harlem and only partially as a vital part of our missionary purpose. It does not seem to us right that such a large amount of mission money (about $23,000 a year) should be spent on ourselves, much as we love Parish Acres. Thus for some months the laymen and staff of the Parish, with advice from the Board of Directors, have been seeking a new pattern for Parish Acres that will enable us to use its facilities to serve our missionary purpose in East Harlem and New York City. Our task, over the years, has been to serve the whole church as an experiment as it seeks to find patterns for its life in an urban world, to uncover the needs of the city and call all Christians to enter into Christ's ministry of compassion, and continually to ask what God is calling all Christians to do as part of his mission in metropolis.

Therefore, we wish to make Parish Acres available primarily as a center for the study of urban problems and for the development of action programs by the New York area churches. Unlike most retreat centers, the focus would not be on spiritual retreats for congregations, but upon workshops on urban problems, opportunities for encounter among various cultural and racial groups, and concrete planning for joint action in mission. In the immediate future, the focus of work at Parish Acres might well be upon the civil rights crisis, for this colors almost every other issue in urban life. While our thinking is still on a pretty general level, the program we envisage might include the following:

1. Weekend conferences, open to anyone interested, on such topics as: the role of the church in the civil rights crisis in New York City; the churches and public education; next steps in developing integrated residential communities; the political responsibility of Christians, etc. The Parish Acres program director would coordinate and plan such conferences.
2. Joint retreats between inner city and suburban parishes, providing a badly needed opportunity for genuine meeting and dialogue between Christians of various ethnic and cultural backgrounds.
3. Summer conferences for one week, providing for joint family camping experiences and discussion among Christians from varied backgrounds. A more extensive versinn of the two first possible usages.
4. Weekday use of Parish Acres by those involved in facing urban problems, such as denominational committees, secular civil rights organizations, etc.

Our hope is to move in this new direction as rapidly as possible. By September, we hope to have in operation a new Parish Acres Board that will not only give general supervision to our program, but will exercise effective policy and administrative control on behalf of the Parish Board of Directors. Membership on the new Parish Acres Board will come from the Parish but also from members of congregations that are willing to join us through financial support and participation in the developing program. Beginning in the early fall, the primary use of Parish Acres would be in this new pattern.

Some basic facts about Parish Acres:

Location: Parish Acres is located about 50 miles north of New York in Putnam County, just off the Taconic Parkway. This is an easy drive from the Parish office of about 1 hour 15 minutes.

Facilities: The property is at the end of a road, nestled among wooded hills. The Parish owns 130 acres, a main house with dining facilities for about 50, two modern residence buildings, and a recreation center. There is no swimming on the property, but athletic field and game space. For overnight, there are sleeping accommodations for 50. On day outings, another 100 can easily be handled. For retreats, however, 30 is the usual limit.

Cost: We expect to make a nominal charge for the use of Parish Acres: Day use - $2.00; overnight - $1.00; food at the rate of $1.50 per day. In other words, $4.50 for a 24 hour period. Such fees would cover part of the actual yearly operating cost--perhaps only one third. The rest of the budget would come from the supporting congregations.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

January, 1965

BRIEF NOTES

Associate Plan

In January, 1964, Newsletter, we offered to those interested the opportunity to become an Associate member of the East Harlem Protestant Parish. Some forty persons became Associates, committing themselves to those of our disciplines appropriate to their particular situation. In turn, they have received our Parish lectionary and occasional special articles, as well as the Newsletters and Board Reports of the Parish. We would welcome inquiries from interested persons in exploring this relationship with us.

Subscribers

Our mailing list has now grown to over 5,000 individuals and churches. If you are no longer interested in receiving our newsletter, we would appreciate your dropping us a line so that we may remove your name from our files.

Metro-North

Providing better housing for the poor and disenherited in urban slums has traditionally been the prerogative of city planners, professionals, and politicians. It has left a legacy of mass demolition of existing tenements and the construction of "projects." It has created untold misery as "relocation" uprooted families and destroyed neighborhood. No one bothers to consult the residents who live in a "slum" neighborhood to be "renewed" After all, local people, usually Negroes or Puerto Ricans, have no "power" Beside, the planners know what is "best" for them.

After having watched the wrecking ball and the construction crew slash ugly gaps in the East Harlem community and fill them with bleak columns of re-enforced concrete and brick within which people live at the pleasure of the Housing Authority, members of the community formed a citizens group called "Metro-North." Consisting of residents of some of the worst tenements in New York City, these men and women are determined to have a voice in planning what happens to their blocks and build buildings. A description of the activities of this group follows.

METRO NORTH: A COMMUNITY IN ACTION

The story of Metro North, is the story of a community in action. It is proof that apathy can be shattered and that real leadership can emerge from the most hopeless neighborhood when it is not manipulated, but given a real chance to express itself creatively. The Metro North area is the heart of the neighborhood served by two of the Parish's storefront churches. It is the locus of Dan Wakefield's book, ISLAND IN THE CITY. It includes the block and the building described in Woody Klein's LET IN THE SUN.

The Metro North Area

To all outward appearances, the Metro North Area is a neighborhood without hope. It lies north of Metropolitan Hospital, in East Harlem, from East 99th Street to East 106th Street. It is in the heart of this section that the new Church of The Resurrection is now being built. Here are about 200 buildings and about 15,000 people--old-time Italian families, a smattering of Jews, Irish, German-remnants of old immigrant groups, but predominantly Puerto Ricans and Negroes. Physically, most of the buildings are deteriorating rapidly. At last count, there were almost 300 empty apartments and, in addition, ten totally empty, abandoned buildings. Spiritually, apathy has long prevailed. Many responsible people have said that the leveling of the buildings and and the complete reconstruction of the neighborhood was the only sensible way to renew it. Local residents and leaders disagreed.

Metro North Looks at Itself

The present Metro North Citizens Committee has its roots in a citizen's group that began to meet over four years ago. This group, led by Rev. Wendell Elmendorf and meeting in the 100th Street Storefront Church organized to fight the housing evils plaguing the neighborhood. This group evolved into a committee led by Mr. Peter D'Arpa, a local Italian businessman, and assisted by representatives of the Catholic and Protestant Churches and Union Settlement. The group became convinced that while many buildings had to be razed and such social problems as the narcotics traffic had to be dealt with, there was much in the neighborliness of Metro North that ought to be preserved and improved upon. They agreed, moreover, that all groups of the area had to be included in the forces of renovation, particularly the landlords and the tenants, and that the advice and help of governmental agencies was required. In order to bring these elements into the picture, they saw that at least one full-time person who knew the neighborhood was needed immediately.

Support Develops

In January 1964, the New York City Mission Society agreed to employ the Rev. Norman Eddy, then with the East Harlem Protestant Parish and a fifteen year resident on one of the blocks of Metro North. Since his employment, by New York City Mission Society he has worked as community co-ordinator for Metro North, and has helped to develop the now thriving tenants' group, the Metro North Citizens' Committee. This Committee owes its vitality to its indigenous Puerto Rican and Negro leaders who are fighting the evils which so long have bound them. These outspoken, hard-working volunteers have acted as a healthy counterbalance to the civic-minded landlords' group which has developed concurrently. They have also been a goad both to the other Metro North organizations and to the keenly interested governmental agencies. The Metro North Citizens' Committee now takes active part with all these groups in planning the future of the neighborhood. Most important, it has worked hard at organizing and training for battle the tenants in the deteriorating buildings, has led a campaing to keep good teachers in the local Junior High School, has carried on an extensive voter registration campaign, and has co-operated with the narcotics rehabilitation program of the East Harlem Protestant Parish and with a local youth club and its Cadet Corps. More and more local citizens are taking part in the fight for a new neighborhood as a result of the committee's work. Meeting in the small 100th Street Storefront, even on hot summer nights fifty and more people from the blocks crowd into the meetings each week to discuss how to meet emergencies, to plan strategy, and to suport one another's efforts to realize decent homes for everyone in the neighborhood.

The Student-Workers Program

The Metro North Citizens' Committee quickly saw that neither the Committee as a whole nor its volunteer workers could reach their full potentials without a subsidy for training dedicated potential leaders. Therefore, it applied for and received through the New York City Mission Society an experimental grant to help one young woman and two young men begin their educations anew, while they worked twenty hours a week for the Committee. Each has been tested and counseled vocationally. The young woman is being trained as a secretary and works in the Metro North office. The young men have been tutored during the fall and will gegin more fromal training in February. For twenty hours each week they are helping organize the tenants in the worst buildings and are recruiting volunteer workers from among them. Without the help of these subsidies, each of these young adults would have had to work full-time to support his or her family.

The bulk of the work of the Committee is carried on by volunteers. All of the money for the Metro North Citizens' Committee program office is contributed or raised locally. The student-worker project has strengthened the Committee without undercutting its selfreliance. It will keep expanding as funds become available.

The events of last summer in Harlem and in Bedford-Stuyvesant leave no doubt that the young men and women of the minority groups intend to be heard. Some of the most capable and most dedicated believe that they have no recourse, except violence. East Harlem is prepared to point another way. The fact that it is tri-cultural--Italian, Negro, and Puerto Rican-- means that it can work toward becoming one of the integrated communities of the future. The Student-Worker program is a positive step in training leaders in the art of creative protest and community co-operation.

The Parish and the Future of The Metro North Area

While the Metro North Citizens' Committee can point to seventeen buildings which have been organized and which have helped improve their own lot, and while the Committee can point to a core of leaders, including the Student Workers, who have emerged, the grand plan for the neighborhood goes beyond this. All groups in the neighborhood recognize that there must be a master design that will completely renovate buildings and which will challenge the residents to become new people.

The Church of the Resurrection, with the full backing of the whole Parish, occupies a pivotal position in Metro North, both spiritually and physically. It orginated on these blocks; members of its congregation still live here; the new church building, which is rising rapidly inspires hope in the future. Its congregation is providing much of the leadership for spiritual renewal in the neighborhood through the Metro North Citizens' Committee. In the plans for physical renewal there are at least three considerations which the church must keep upper-most as it seeks to discover its role in the renewal of slum neighborhoods. 1. It must try to realize a variegated neighborhood. 2. It must avail itself of the highest quality planners, architects, consultants, 3. It must address itself to the intricate problem of ownership of the houses in which the low-income American working man lives.

Metro North has been most fortunate in having the services of Mr. William Conklin, of the architectural firm Whittlesey and Conklin. Mr. Conklin has consulted with the tenants and leaders of the neighborhood and has drawn up a flexible master plan for the development of a new community which draws upon the strengths of the old, retaining the best, and rebuilding with human beings in mind where demolition is the only answer. The experience of Union Settlement and particularly of its headworker, Mr. William Kirk, has added expert knowledge and warm human concern. The interest and help of Father Louis Martorella of St. Lucy's Church has rounded out the concept of community participation.

The ownership of housing for the working man in our cities is an almost insolvable problem. Private ownership in slums makes the slums (as Woody Klein makes clear in his book, "Let in the Sun" about 311 East 100th Street). Public ownership, through the New York City Housing Authority, makes for impersonality, coldness, and lack of community life. Co-operatives are not economically accessible to the low-income family. However, recent federal legislation offers new possibilities for good, low rent housing. New laws encourage churches and other non-profit organizations to form non-profit housing corporations. Such corporations can take advantage of various federal plans, e.g., "221-D-3" to obtain money at low interest rates both for rehabilitating old buildings and for constructing new ones.

With these laws in mind, the Parish has joined in negotiations with Union Settlement, St. Lucy's Catholic Church, and the Kate Maremont Foundation of Chicago to explore formation of a non-profit housing corporation. Maremont has had experience in this field, while the other three institutions provide the knowledge of the community and the sense of neighborhood continuity.

Conclusion

1964 has been a year of planning, of training, of tackling housing emergencies. In 1965 the Parish hopes that a non-profit housing corporation can play a decisive role in the physical and spiritual renewal of our neighborhood.

GREAT NEWS! As this newsletter was being prepared, Mayor Wagner announced at a meeting with Metro North representatives that new, six-story, low-rent housing would be built between 101st and 102nd St., to embrace the new Church of the Resurrection. So begins 1965---a year during which Metro North expects to see the beginnings of change and the realization of some of its dreams.

MAR 1 1965

assumed a mortgage for the rest. Then they went to work to remodel the main floor as a worship center and the basem t for a meeting room. Someday they hope to renovate the upstairs floors, now empty, as a residence space. The experience of incorporating, of drawing up by-laws, and of dealing with the many city agencies as property owners has been new and exciting for East Harlem apartment dwellers.

The Church of the Living Hope has become a significant parable of missionary action. Here many of the issues confronting the church are being faced with imagination.

1. The recovery of lay witness. For the congregation, it is clear that the work of the church must be carried out by the laity, both to sustain the gathered life of the congregation and to fulfill its mission in the community. The meaning of the priesthood of all believers takes on a new reality when each person is called upon to exercise, for the sake of all, his particular gift of ministry, when each must bear the burdens of others, and share in the work of witness and service.

2. Freedom to serve the world. With a minimal budget, limited facilities, and unstructured program, the Church of the Living Hope has a wonderful freedom to enter into the life of the community through encouraging its members to give time to political organizations and action groups working for justice in East Harlem. The purpose for their life as a congregation is not institutional self-preservation or aggrandizement, but service in Christ's name.

3. Tent-making Ministry. Many of us suspect that renewal in the church and relevance to the "Secular City" will increasingly demand new forms of church life, often in the shape of small units of Christian life and witness. Much freedom to experiment will be necessary for such new forms of witness to be born. This may take the form of "tent-making ministries" where clergy, following the example of St. Paul, earn their own living by a secular occupation while giving much energy to work as ordained clergy. George Calvert has set a useful precedent in his ministry which may have much wider significance and validity than simply a new form in East Harlem.

The members of Church of the Living Hope were too busy in their work, and too modest to write these paragraphs, but in the Parish we rejoice in their witness and pray that we may all learn from their efforts.

CRISIS IN EDUCATION

During the past year, a crescendo of controversy and conflict has arisen over public education in northern metropolitan areas. While the nation's attention has been focused on the South, the battle for equality has been joined just as surely in the North around the demand for the immediate integration of de facto segregated schools.

The failure of the public educational system to educate Negro and Puerto Rican children has been accurately documented. In many segregated schools, 80 per cent of minority children read below grade level; 9th graders in ghetto schools average three grades below level achievement; over 50 per cent of minority children fail to complete high school. Yet there is basic disagreement about the cause of these alarming statistics. Those outside the ghetto point to the poor home and community environment. The minority communities, supported by significant numbers of educators, lay the blame at the doorstep of the school. Children in ghetto schools and those in white middle-class communities have nearly the same level of achievement until the third grade. After that the ghetto children fall dramatically behind, suggesting that the source of educational problems of minority youth lies in events which occur during the time they are in school rather than in those prior to their entrance into school. The school system in the ghetto reacts to the students' failure to achieve by expecting less of them.

While those in the community power structure - City Hall, business leaders, the Press, the school system - have shown little concern for the value of integration, significant numbers of leading educators (supported by the United States Supreme Court) insist that quality education cannot be achieved without integration. It is unrealistic to believe that children can be educated to participate creatively in an integrated society through a system of segregated education.

Meanwhile, many in the white community have closed ranks in reaction against the pressure to integrate the school system. "Parents and Taxpayers" and similar white community groups are blatantly racist; the Press, through silence and distorted reporting, has misinterpreted the dynamics of the racial protest in the North; there has been no positive action from City Hall. One must conclude that New York City is no different from Selma, Alabama when it comes to hard core discrimination. There will be no significant "voluntary" changes by the white community here. It has just taken longer to hit a "gut" issue, namely education.

At present we have three school systems in the New York Metropolitan area: a private and parochial system for those children whose parents can afford to send them; a public school system for white children (which includes some of the best schools in the country, e.g. Bronx School of Science); and a public school system for minority children that might be compared to the welfare system - it keeps people alive, but does not equip them to compete and live as independent, self-respecting persons. Even worse, within New York City itself, the flight of white children from the public schools is rapidly creating a system that serves primarily minority children and the poor, the social outcasts. Over 50 per cent of the children in the schools serving New York's five boroughts are now Negro and Puerto Rican; almost 80 per cent of the enrollment in Manhattan is from minority groups. It is not an exaggeration to say that our society is moving toward a rigid class structure spawned by a technological revolution, defined by race and income, and buttressed by a discriminatory educational system.

First of all, we must face the fact that public education is a failure in the ghetto, and that the fault lies with the system not with the parents or community. Too many special programs and pilot remedial projects have demonstrated not only that Negro and Puerto Rican children can learn, but that they want to learn. A learning experience must be offered that is sensitive to their particular needs and cultural backgrounds. Our educational system has said in effect that if a child cannot operate in the white middle-class frame of reference that pervades curriculum and staff, he is expendable. But good education for all children is a public responsibility! Massive failure cannot be blamed on the home or the local community.

Secondly, we must realistically face the cost of quality, integrated education. The necessary ingredients to build a public school system of excellence include the development of new curriculum and teaching methods; special programs to compensate for environmental liabilities; educational specialists; better facilities; extended school periodds and special classes during summer recess. Such a program would be very expensive but not nearly as expensive as our space program. If children are our most precious resource, we cannot afford to waste the lives of any for the sake of economy.

Thirdly, we must begin to alert the public to what is really happening in our schools. Community understanding the support for better education has often been lacking because the facts have not been known. It is ironic that most of the Anti-Poverty Program which has received so much publicity is geared to reach the victims of our inadequate educational system. Money spent on improving education could effectively and less expensively prevent the personal tragedies the Anti-Poverty program is trying to help. As it is, we are training school drop-outs without taking serious steps to correct the system that produces them.

Finally, we must stop being alarmed by the threat of whites leaving the school system should integration be implemented. If school zones were extended to suburban areas, there would be no place to flee. But more important, if all comunities are provided with public education of excellence, integration need not be accompanied by inferior education. Indeed, integration would mean a richer educational experience for all children.

Over the years, members of the Parish have given serious attention to education. Two staff wives serve on the local school board. The Schools and Colleges Committee has worked intensively with young people, giving them vocational direction, helping them to apply to schools and obtain scholarships, and providing financial assistance whenever possible. For the past 8 years the remedial reading program has provided after-school tutoring, summer instruction, and study halls to assist neighborhood children. It has attempted to work with the children's families and teachers in order to build an atmosphere of real expectation for each child.

In February, 1965, James Crawford joined the Parish staff to develop a program of Metropolitan Mission. Education is not only a New York City problem; it is the responsibility of the whole metropolitan community. Jim hopes to bring groups together from the whole metropolitan area so that a sense of inter-dependence and mutual commitment to the problems of the metropolis might begin to emerge.

Local parents have become increasingly aware of the educational deprivation of their children. A group known as Citizens for a Better Society (CBS) emerged after the shut-down of a local junior high school in protest against de facto segregation. For over a week, parents and other local citizens picketed the school, urged children to stay away, and conducted a "Freedom School" during the regular school hours. Parents in the ghetto will no longer sit back and watch their children grow up without a future. The people in East Harlem want the same opportunities for their children as those enjoyed by the majority of white Americans.

And so, in the North the battle for equal opportunity has been joined. The white liberal community is upset and hurt by the new militancy of civil rights groups who will no longer accept "reasonable" solutions. The Negro community is increasingly disillusioned by the hollowness of "freedom and justice for all" as each year, tens of thousands of children's lives are being destroyed, irretrievably lost, through a system of education that condemns them to remain outside the main stream of American life.

HELP FOR INFANTS

We have an urgent need for layettes, diapers, and baby clothing of all kinds. Any contribution of this nature will be gratefully received. For some reason the need for such items is particularly great during the summer months. At present we have exhausted our supply of clothing for infants.

MAY 28 1965

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

NOV

September, 1965

CONTENTS OF THIS NEWSLETTER

The Rev. James Crawford has been called to the Parish as our Metropolitan Missioner. Because of the residential identification of most of our congregations, churches more often than not reflect the fragmented, ghettoized nature of American community life. Working primarily with our retreat center, Parish Acres, Jim is developing a program which can bring men from diverse backgrounds together around the common problems of the Metropolitan community.

Poverty in the United States is contained in a framework of enervating dependence that traps the poor in a vicious circle of helplessness and reenforces a sense of worthlessness. The War on Poverty's demand that programs have "the maximum feasible participation from the poor" recognizes that the poor must have the power to control their own destiny before any program can really free them from the bondage of poverty. Enclosed is the description of an experimental mental health program, directed by a trained pastoral counselor with psychiatric consultants, but relying on sensitive local laymen and women to identify problems in their neighborhood, to assist families in trouble and to make appropriate referrals.

Metropolitan Mission:

In February, James Crawford joined the Parish staff to head a program of Metropolitan Mission, using our retreat center, Parish Acres, as a Center for Human Rights. Jim is a graduate of Dartmouth College and Union Theological Seminary, 1962. He comes to the Parish from the Bayonne Federated Church, New Jersey. Jim, his wife Linda, Henry (3), and Betsy (1), are living in Washington Houses, a city project and are members of Church of the Resurrection. Jim is an ordained Presbyterian minister.

Jim has taken on the major task to trying to relate the Mission of the Parish and the problems we see around East Harlem to the churches in the Metropolitan area that have supported the Parish over the years. The decision to make this ministry a major priority was based on at least two convictions: that local congregations, isolated from one-another in exclusive residential neighborhoods can not effectively and appropriately minister within the over-arching structures of the city. It is also painfully clear that the local slum community cannot cope with the problems in our urban ghettoes, but that these problems are the responsibility of the whole Metropolitan community. The very existence of the city as a habitable place for human life depends on the well-to-do white community seeing the dehumanization of life in the inner city as their own problems, and not just the misfortunes of the poor.

This past summer, Jim conducted three family Christian vacation weeks at Parish Acres that brought together Negro and Puerto Rican families from East Harlem with White families from the Greater New York City area. The give and take and mutual enrichment of the weeks were exciting for all who participated. By living together as a large family, sharing in recreation, discussion, Bible study, and chores, the participants experienced the excitement of beginning to know and understand people who were different than themselves. Perhaps more significantly, they realized that they were not so very different after all.

Jim has developed a series of retreats and conferences for 1965-66 centered around the study of the Missionary Structure of the Congregation and the crisis in Human Rights. Anyone interested in learning more of the programs should write him in care of the Parish Office.

Counseling and Mental Health Program:

In East Harlem there are literally ;thousands of people who need assistance in dealing with the tumultuous problems of their lives: a marriage breaking up; a fatherless family overcome with feelings of loneliness and despair; feelings of inferiority and a sense of worthlessness. The areas of marital conflict, parent-child relationships; vocational-educational-motivational problems, self-understanding and release from inner tensions, and the symptoms of underlying problems: drug addiction, alcoholism, mental illness, are dealt with in a variety of ways by public and private agencies. Yet, all too often the particular problem reaches an acute stage before help is sought. And often the professional assistance available represents an approach that isolates the individual's difficulty without dealing with him in his total environment.

A year ago, the Rev. Frederick Dennard, a member of the Parish Staff, was assigned to give one-half time to pastoral counseling. Mr. Dennard established an office in a tenement apartment, providing individual and family counseling service and referral. He worked closely with the Psychiatric clinic at Metropolitan Hospital, a large city hospital in East Harlem. Convinced that every person, whether or not he has a "problem" can profit in self-awareness, in freer expression of human warmth, and in the ability to take meaningful action to improve his own life and that of his community by participating in a personal or group counseling program, Mr. Dennard began a counseling group. This group was composed of individuals committed to the need for greater personal awareness and also to seeking ways to help their neighbors. After more than a year, the counseling group is seeking ways to expand into additional groups seeking to bring self-understanding, support, and encouragement to those with whom they live.

The community mental health program is committed to developing a program that is not just for people, but draws upon their wisdom, experience and skill in a way that not only enriches the participant s own lives but equips them to serve more effectively the needs of their neighbors. With the use of professional consultants in the fields of psychiatry, social work, and medicine, the members of the counseling program seek to reach those who need the help the most -- the poor -- not in a clinical setting, but in the midst of their own community, their home, their family.

The New Building -- The Church of the Resurrection

The Parish is happy to report that all major construction has been completed on the new building for the Church of the Resurrection. While it will be some weeks before final approval from the City will be obtained and a Certificate of Occupancy issued, we wish to thank all who have made this new building possible. The new building is a sign of hope on a street of dilapidated tenements. Since construction began, the city announced plans to build a small "pocket project" which will surround the church, yet will retain the positive characteristics of the tenements it replaces. Church of the Resurrection truly stands at the center of the physical and spiritual renewal of this depressed tenement neighborhood. A date and plans for the dedication of the building will be announced soon.

Remedial Education Program

The remedial education program completed a full and exhausting summer. Over two hundred children enrolled in the program that ran eight weeks, with primary children in the morning and older children in the afternoons. We anticipate an even greater demand for the after-school program which will begin the end of September and run through May, 1966. As in past years, we welcome volunteers from all parts of the New York City area to help from 3 to 5 in the after-school program, Saturday mornings from 10 to 12, and in the evening tutoring individuals in specific subjects and assisting in study halls. If you know of anyone who could assist in any phase of this program, please give their name to Miss Faye Edwards, Director. Your help will be greatly appreciated.

MUST (Metropolitan Urban Service Training Facility)

In the spring of 1965, under the initiation of the National Division of the Methodist Church, plans were developed for a major new training center for the mission of the church in an Urban society. Now under an interdenominational board and known as MUST, this new project comes formally into operation on October 1, 1965, when the initial three staff members begin a period of exploration, preparation, and study that will provide guidelines for the work of the facility. The Parish sees this development as a sign of great hope and potential importance to the work in which we have been engaged. But we also have a personal stake in MUST since Bill Webber has accepted a call to serve as the first director of the Program. His base of operations will thus be transferred to the MUST offices at 229 East 49th Street (next door to Biblical Seminary), but he will continue as a member of the Parish, serve as consultant and advisor, and live in East Harlem.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind."—Luke 4:10

247 East 104th Street, New York 29, New York

February, 1957

4

OPERATION FACELIFT....

see back of this page for issues being added →

East Harlem is due for a facelifting. Already 70 of the 207 city blocks that make up East Harlem have been rebuilt, are under construction, or have been definitely scheduled for housing projects in the near future. In addition, the city has said that there are an additional 108 which are "suitable for redevelopment"; it's just a matter of time before these blocks are rebuilt. This means that there are only 31 blocks (including 9 blocks of city park) which will remain as they now are during the next 10 or 15 years. This is facelifting on a gigantic scale. It means a revolution in the appearance, population, and character of a community of 215,000.

There is a newness and freshness about the projects which give life new possibilities. A new home means a new start in life. Clean, fresh surroundings provide incentive to keep things neat and comfortable. New schools mean a new opportunity for children to learn as pleasant, well-equipped surroundings for study are made available.

But there will still be families and individuals with deep personal and social needs. There will continue to be children and young people looking for friendship and a fresh vision of the future. With all the planning for new homes and new schools in a new East Harlem, there can be a terrible emptiness at the center of life. It is this old emptiness and purposelessness of life in a new city which is the challenge to the churches of East Harlem.

The Parish began as a storefront church on the corner of Third Avenue and 102nd Street. Much of its expansion since 1948 has been into other storefronts on other blocks. It has been the idea of storefront churches ministering to local city blocks which has caught the imagination of many of you who are our friends and supporters.

But the central thing in the Parish's ministry is the community of committed Christians who are alert and open to the needs of their immediate neighborhood. The storefront is an important means of building this kind of committed Christian community on a tenement block. It is also an important symbol of the openness of the Parish churches to the needs of the community--both group and individual needs.

With the changing scene in East Harlem reminding us each day, however, of new opportunities and responsibilities, we have to ask ourselves if a storefront church is an adequate base for ministering to a new housing project with 1500 apartments and 5700 residents. Do people who are living in new homes want to go to a storefront church on a tenement block? The challenge of the new East Harlem to the Protestant Church demands the investment of money and careful planning, the construction of new churches to fit in with the new apartment buildings, helping old congregations adjust to their new responsibilities.

THE PARISH IN THE NEW EAST HARLEM

Ascension Church has from the beginning of its association with the Parish seen its main ministry to be in East River Houses. Ascension will also be in an ideal position directly across the street from the soon-to-be-built Benjamin Franklin Houses for middle

In a folder:

- Supplement A
- Supplement B
- Supplement C
- Disciplenis of the E H G Ministry

Newsletter: 1959

+

1957 Newsletter: Feb / April / June / October /
1958 Newsletter: Feb / April / June / October / Dec
1959 Newsletter: July /
1961 " : June / October

Newsletters Not Dated: ◦ The Bible in the Parish
◦ O God, Give Us Peace

This is First issue in this assortment

NEWSLETTER

S.F.T.S. LIBRARY

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH, 2050 Second Avenue, New York 29, New York

EASTER AND EAST HARLEM.....

"...but we preach Christ crucified, a stumblingblock to Jews and folly to Gentiles, but to those who are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God." 1st Corinthians 1:23-24

During the days of Lent, with their climax in Holy Week, we have been taking seriously the necessity of facing the scandal of the cross and the foolishness of the Gospel. By seeking in our common life as a Parish to live as though we were actually present in the events that led to the cross, we have tried to recapture the eternal contemporaneousness of Christ. Only as we share again in the pathetic, farcical scene on Palm Sunday when a king comes on a donkey, chase after him with the fickle mob, join in the Last Supper on Thursday, an experience of wonder and awe, touched with foreboding, stand with Peter as he denies our Lord, then march the long path to Golgotha and in despair watch the anguish of death on a cross--only then will the joy and power and glory of Easter break anew into our lives. In this way alone we may be driven by God's grace to recognize our own sinfulness and thus, through this path alone, be enabled to throw aside the wisdom of men and live by the foolishness of God's grace.

* * * * * * * * * *

MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS:

This News Letter will be the last in the present format. We hope within a few weeks to publish the first edition of a small paper designed to keep our friends up-to-date about the ministry of the Parish and yet be a witness to the community of East Harlem. The author of the main article in this Letter is the chairman of the Group Ministry of the Parish. As a seminary student, he spent a summer in the Parish and upon ordination, returned to East Harlem as a minister at Church of the Son of Man. For the past two years he has been minister of the Elmendorf Reformed Church just off 3rd Avenue at 121st Street.

* * * * * * *

WE NEED:

1. Rummage: Every two weeks one of the Parish churches holds a rummage sale for the benefit of the Parish community. All kinds of used clothing is most welcome.

2. Children's Books: There is one branch library serving the whole of East Harlem—over 200,000 people. We have been driven to open a library and within days it has been overrun with children. We can't begin to meet the demand for books for all ages. Already we have expanded the program to include remedial reading classes and a general cultural enrichment emphasis.

3. Money: for the regular budget and summer program.

* * * * * * * *

Personnel: Florence Borgmann, after two and a half years away, mostly spent in an exciting new ministry in Glasgow, Scotland, has returned to the Parish and is working with the Narcotics Program and the 100th Street Church....Wendell Elmendorf, minister of the 100th Street Church and Mary Rosado, former staff member, were married in January....Dorothy Crist has taken a leave from the Parish for graduate work at Teacher's College....Melvin Schoonover, former Parish Administrator, is now the pastor of the Baptist Church on 123rd Street in the upper end of East Harlem...

Narcotics Program: This ministry has expanded tremendously under the impact of the fantastic need for help on the part of addicts. Since January 1st, over 12 new addicts a week have come seeking help. The Narcotics Committee has been supporting several urgent bills now before the Legislature, aimed at some help for the addict.

This is page 1 of some supplimental materials in this assortment

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

SUPPLEMENT A

ECONOMIC DISCIPLINE OF THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

I. Present Philosophy of the Economic Discipline

A. Basic Assumptions

1. The observation that few men and women are able to make a long term commitment to the inner city and its ministry. Far too often, the churches resort to young men just out of seminary or to retired preachers in order to carry on some limited witness in the inner city. Many dedicated younger men, through the pressures of limited pay and growing needs of their families, are forced to accept better paying opportunities.

   Therefore, we have sought to pay adequate salaries, geared to the size of a man's family, and to provide the kind of economic stability and security which permits a family to remain in the inner city.

2. The assumption that we need here the full time and energy of the staff.

   Therefore, our staff should be paid a sufficient salary to maintain them without having to resort to any kind of income supplement. As a result, all money earned by the staff through speaking engagements, writing, and the like is turned in to the Parish. This often amounts to a substantial sum.

3. Involvement of the wife in the life of the Parish. It is clear that families of the Parish staff must live in the community and find meaning in their life here. The families are often happiest when the wife comes to feel genuinely at home in the community and takes a substantial part in the life of the Parish.

   Therefore, wives may be asked to accept responsibilities in the work of the Parish, beyond the ordinary involvement of laity. For this, they will be given household and baby sitting help commensurate with their time commitment to the Parish.

Syracuse, N. Y.
Stockton, Calif.

JUL 28 '71

GRADUATE THEOLOGICAL UNION 1962

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume I Number I

OCTOBER 1969

DIMENSIONS OF DIALOGUE are a part of seminary life. Here Dr. Maurice P. Jackson, vice-president of the Berkeley campus, listens carefully to a student.

FACULTY / DIALOGUE

Introducing

Dimensions

The dimensions of the early Christians were expanded when they read a fervent letter from the Apostle Paul who wrote "neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus."

In the Space Age, man's understanding of dimensions has been expanded by seeing men walking on the moon. Their improbable feat rested on the research of many, on the systems engineering of dynamic clusters of men and computers and on the willingness to trust the probability curves.

The Seminary of the West is an expression of both the dimensions of the Spirit and the dimensions of a synergistic corporation that does many things, but does each better because it does all the rest. These are the concepts behind the title of our new publication — DIMENSIONS.

Its name is intended to convey the dimensions of learning that take place between students and faculty, between the churches and the seminary and between the Berkeley and Covina campuses. Combining two former publications, the Berkeley Baptist Bulletin and Vision from the Knolls of the Covina campus, it will be edited by Joan Thatcher, director of communications for the Seminary of the West.

The new publication will seek to communicate something of what makes up the academic and community life on these two campuses.

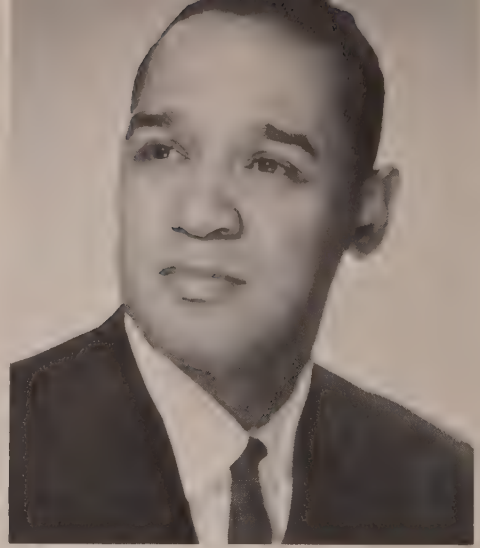
Every effort will be made to avoid confusing what "is" with "what ought to be." As the Seminary of the West experiences spiritual, academic and physical renewal, this quarterly publication will try to provide a feeling of "you are there" for the thousands of Baptists and others on the West Coast and throughout the nation who are interested and involved in its future.

When you hear a lively TV discussion program with which you may not fully agree, it's easy to reach over and turn it off. Or you may turn it up to hear better. This may lead to genuine discussion of important issues in your home and may also help you understand much better a point of view that you thought was without merit.

Theological education has an important prophetic ministry within the church. One of the functions of Dimensions will be to provide a means for expressing the ideas of faculty members and alumni. Don't turn us off, but turn us up. If what we are grappling with brings new insight and vitality to the church, you need us very much. If some of what we struggle with needs correction, listen and then enter dialogue for the benefit of the church of tomorrow.

Historian Lewis Mumford has said "One must learn as much as he imparts." Hopefully, that too will happen in Dimensions.

C. Alvion Heaton



President

Culbert G. Rutenber, ABSW

A. Stanley MacNair, Berkeley

Elliott J. Mason, Covina

65 New Students, 3 New Profs Join ABSW

Sixty-five new students and three new faculty members were welcomed by the Seminary of the West when classes began this fall. They were special guests at student-faculty retreats held at Covina September 19-20 and at Berkeley October 4-5.

The new professors include Dr. Culbert G. Rutenber, professor of the philosophy of religion for ABSW; Dr. A. Stanley MacNair, director of field education at Berkeley and Dr. Elliott J. Mason, visiting professor of New Testament at Covina during Dean Robert Campbell's sabbatical leave. The Berkeley faculty also welcomed back Dr. Norman K. Gottwald from a year's sabbatical in Israel.

Seven students from the Orient and Europe and two missionaries on furlough were among those expected to register at the Covina campus. The ABC missionaries include Rev. Norman Riddle, a Covina alumnus now serving at Kinshasa, Congo and Rev. Floyd Roseberry of the Philippines, who graduated from Redlands.

Among the new students enrolled at Berkeley are a returning Peace Corps veteran and the mother of three college students, who attended Vatican II and plans to share in a team ministry at the University of Washington.

Educational developments at the two campuses include involving Alma College (Jesuit), and San Francisco Theological Seminary (Presbyterian), in the common core courses of the Graduate Theological Union and expanding relationships at Covina with Claremont, Fuller and Berkeley.

Three New Professors

A new professorship in the philosophy of religion has been established at Covina with the coming of DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER, who will also teach selected courses on the Berkeley campus. President of the American Baptist Convention in 1968-69, Dr. Rutenber taught for thirty years on the faculty of Eastern Baptist Seminary and Andover Newton Theological School.

Author of four books and platform speaker at scores of college campuses and state, national and world conferences, Dr. Rutenber earned his bachelor's degree at Kenyon College, his B.D. at Eastern and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Pennsylvania. He was also elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

DR. A. STANLEY MACNAIR has been named director of field education at Berkeley, in addition to serving as pastor of the Bancroft Avenue Baptist Church in San Leandro. He held a similar post at Central Baptist Seminary in Kansas City from 1961 to 1965. He succeeds REV. ROBERT ORPINELA, a Berkeley alumnus, who is completing his doctorate at the Graduate Theological Union.

It would be hard for anyone to be more closely related to Berkeley than Dr. MacNair. After graduating from UCLA, he earned four degrees at Berkeley: MA., B.D., Th.M. and Th.D. Currently he is president of the Berkeley Alumni Association and a member of the board of trustees. From 1948 to 1961 he was minister of University Baptist Church in Seattle. The author of To the Churches With Love, he has served on the boards of both the home and foreign mission societies.

DR. ELLIOTT J. MASON, visiting professor of New Testament at Covina, earned his Ph.D. at the University of Southern California in 1968. He is also minister of Trinity Baptist Church in Los Angeles.

Dr. Mason was valedictorian of Dillard University in 1942 and later earned his B.D. and S.T.M. degrees at Oberlin's Graduate School of Theology. In 1955 he received a Fulbright grant to study New Testament at the University of Edinburgh. After fifteen years as pastor of Third Baptist Church in Toledo, Ohio, he moved to Los Angeles in 1959, where he leads a church of 2600 members.

ABSW Goes to The Holy Land

Text and pictures by
Edmund H. Irvin, Pastor
First Baptist Church
Claremont, California

Imagine yourself on the slopes in Galilee while the Beatitudes are softly spoken . . . Amos' words took on the sting of the wind as we squinted northward from a hillock in Tekoa . . . And sitting on Mars Hill with the Acropolis off your shoulder and modern Athens spread out below, hearing Paul's famous sermon "to an unknown god" read aloud, does something to you... Especially in Israel itself do the pieces begin to fit into place. One is overcome by the fact that so much transpired in such a brief patch of land over so many thousands of years!

Eighteen students boarded a charter flight in Los Angeles June 16 to launch the first Holy Land Study Tour of the American Baptist Seminary of the West. Under the watchful eye of Dr. Robert C. Campbell, dean of the Covina campus, the entire group traveled in eight countries for six weeks, covering thousands of miles by plane and train, and not one person or suitcase got lost!

The trip culminated a dream of Dean Campbell's begun nine years ago. We called ourselves "students" because we prepared ourselves for learning. All had done advance reading. We knew it was a study tour—not a vacation.

The group would have been interesting whether they traveled or stayed at the airport. The make-up read: four seminary students; eight pastors; two student wives; two pastor's wives; and two lay women. Beside Californians, they came from Arizona, Washington and Korea. Each participant was responsible for his own expenses.

Those interested in earning two units of credit enrolled in Dr. Robert Laurin's class in biblical archaeology for ten Tuesday evenings during the spring quarter. Those who followed special assignments on the tour itself received an additional six credits.

In a sense, we all taught each other. Each tour member selected a specific location of significance to biblical studies — such as Jericho or Cyprus — and wrote a three-page summary of its meaning in history. The summaries were duplicated and distributed to all.

Four Covina Students

Lowell Fairley pours lemonade for Dean Campbell and Dr. Anson F. Rainey

The Parthenon in Athens

At all points we had the immediate resource of Dean Campbell. His great reservoir of knowledge — biblical and classical — and his rare ability to fit things together made each country come alive. In Israel we had the benefit of Dr. Anson F. Rainey's guidance for the full two weeks. Professor Rainey, a 1954 graduate of the Covina campus, is a member of the faculties of the American Institute of Holy Land Studies in Jerusalem and the University of Tel-Aviv. He served both as leader in the exploration of Israel's archaeological sites and as teacher in Bible study each day.

The key to the whole study tour was "on location" learning. It is quite an experience to stand in the amphitheater at Ephesus and hear Acts 19 read aloud. We could almost hear the roar of the rioting crowd and see Paul struggling to get in through the arches.

For the serious student, archaeological sources are waiting to be tapped. This summer Professor Rainey began excavations of Tell Beer-Sheva, a familiar biblical site that has been untouched. The results of extensive excavations at Tell Arad also await interpretation.

Tell Arad, though not mentioned in the Bible, holds a place of importance in biblical archaeology because of its location, age and condition of the ruins. Here an altar has been unearthed in the temple area bearing the exact dimensions given for an altar in Leviticus. Also, an inscription, "Sons of Korah," has been found at an 8th century B.C. level, suggesting pre-exilic dates for the Psalms. It is Professor Rainey's prediction that Tell Arad will become the basic point of reference for Judean archaeology in terms of stratigraphy and dating.

Israel — By Foot and Explorer's Truck

Our goal, of course, was the Holy Land — Israel. But how can you make the biblical drama hang together without experiencing the grandeur of ancient Egypt? Without seeing the dignity of Greece? Or feeling the mystery of Turkey? Or walking the elevations of Lebanon? Or wading the Mediterranean off Cyprus? Or drinking in the glory that was Rome? We saw them all, cameras on one shoulder, tape recorders on the other, notebooks in hand and sun hats on our heads.

Dr. Campbell commented on the seriousness with which the group approached this study experience. He said, "It was impressive to see how these people have related to their maps, to the geography, to the historical detail of the Holy Land with a view to tying it together."

Israel itself was a concentrated, in-depth experience. We travelled literally from Dan to Beer-sheba, from Ashkelon to Arad. We saw, heard, felt, smelled and tasted the land holy to three great religions. And we did it the hard way: by explorer's truck and by foot! The former is a four-wheel drive mechanism that goes wherever you point it — up hills, down gullies and around spurs. The party sits back to back on longitudinal benches barely padded, affording a view out the side windows. The latter is a device known to earliest man for getting around. There is a saying from the Talmud now dear to our souls: "Whoever walks four cubits on the Land of Israel is assured of a place in the world to come." We are not only "in" but have enough credit built up to take along several others!

Add to that the several days that ran 6:00 A.M. to 7:00 P.M.; the encounter with strange foods; the sleeping quarters in youth hostels — and you have all the things pampered Americans love to criticize. But oh, the rewards! What ordinary tour group ever sees the headwaters of the Jordan at bubbling Baniass? What vacation vagabonds have found David's Pool at the unexpected Ein Geddi (beckoning for a delicious swim)? We were fortunate to get Israeli Army clearance to visit Qumran, site of the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls.

The intense scheduling and thorough investigation under Dr. Rainey caused Dean Campbell to say, "I have had a 'total' in Israel before of more than four months time, and I got to spots on this study tour that I had never seen before."

The final ten days of the trip were open for individual or group travel and study. Some visited the beauty spots of Italy — Naples, Venice and Florence. Others elected the hinterlands of West Germany. One member toured the Scandinavian countries. I teamed up with the Rev. Lowell Fairley of Pasadena for a look behind the iron curtain in Czechoslovakia and East Berlin.

Each "did his own thing" but reunited in Frankfurt, Germany for the flight home. Two stayed behind. Dean Campbell remained for five months of study at the Sorbonne and Cambridge. Steve Brewster, 1969 Covina graduate, returned to Jerusalem for doctoral studies at the American Institute of Holy Land Studies and Hebrew University.

What about future trips? Dr. Campbell said, "I hope that we eventually might get help from a Christian foundation so that we could make this a required course for students in the seminary. I think this has more motivational quality for biblical study than anything else that can be done. If this tour is done right, it should be profitable for the minister who really wants to study, not the man who wants only a vacation. Pastors start looking at the Bible theologically better than they do when they simply come to it with a theological bent. They really come to the message of the Bible more openly and I think more profitably."

Anyone for Israel next year?

The ABSW study tour visits a dig in Israel. Led by Dean Robert Campbell, the group included four seminary students, eight pastors, four wives and two lay women.

One Trustee's Viewpoint

By Lynn Leavenworth

Dr. Lynn Leavenworth, director of the department of theological education for the American Baptist Convention, has expressed his deep appreciation for the decade of progress just completed at Covina.

He cited the full accreditation of the school, the building of an excellent faculty, the vitality of leadership poured into the churches of Southern California and the total denomination and the openness to enter creatively into the federation which is now the American Baptist Seminary of the West.

An alumnus and trustee of Berkeley, who recently served on the resources planning commission of the American Association of Theological Schools, Dr. Leavenworth has a particular appreciation for the strategic place of the Berkeley campus today. At President Heaton's invitation he wrote the following comments. They reflect conversations he has had across the country with Protestants and Catholics highly knowledgeable in theological education, as well as with his fellow alumni and denominational leaders.

LOOK WHAT WE HAVE GOING FOR US IN THE BERKELEY CAMPUS

A Unique Center for Christian Renewal
Where the Ends of the World Join.

The East and the West meet in the Bay Area; Africa and Asia gather at Berkeley. This is a laboratory in world Christianity. The "far off cultures" of Asia, Southeast Asia, India and Africa come across the Pacific to the West shores of the U.S.A. At the University of California, students from Asia and Africa abound. The international meets the internal forces; the Spanish American, the Black, the organizations and power groups of the U.S.A. This is the setting for Christianity to find its relevant expressions; in this center of world-wide meeting, Christianity seeks its trans-cultural relevance and meets the concrete problems of the crossing points of the cultures.

Here, the "Word" becomes incarnate amid the cultural confrontation. As a maturing ground for the Christian leadership of tomorrow's world the Bay area can be nothing short of God-given, especially for the modern missionary mind that stands in the tradition of Rice and Judson.

The social extremes meet in and around the University of California. Here again the seminary is situated to meet the scientists, the politicians, the poets, the hippies, the sophisticated, the poor, the elderly, the young. This is the setting for the age-old task of re-conceptualizing the Gospel in terms of the human condition. This could be nothing but stimulating to the modern followers of Rauschenbusch.

The Christian forces meet in the Berkeley setting. Protestant meets Protestant in the interseminary community. Lutheran, Episcopal, United Church, Presbyterian, Unitarian, Baptist and a cross section of all the denominations in the country. Where in the world is there a more favorable place for the hammering out of the meanings of heritage and challenge for the Baptist leaders of the future? This is the place for those who have grown tired of isolation and sectarianism. This is the place of growth for the mature and growing.

Dean Paul Clasper talks with middler Stuart Young on the Berkeley seminary campus. At right, the carillon of the University of California dominates the Berkeley skyline, with San Francisco and the bay beyond.

But this is also the meeting ground for Catholic and Catholic, and Protestant and Catholic. Stimulating and challenging. Where are Jesuits confronting Benedictines and Franciscans; where are the educational traditions of Catholic orders more creatively interrelated?

How can one imagine a more creative center for young theologs to grow in depth understanding of the Christian traditions and customs? Where are the stimuli of Christian mission and outreach among the various Christian expressions more available?

But the Churches Meet at Berkeley

Behind the seminaries stand the church bodies and the church executives who meet in the support of educational objectives. Here the rich variety of church organization and outreach is a treasure of insight into church history, theology. mission, practical theology, evangelism and Christian education. Here are the seemingly unlimited opportunities for observation, parcipation, involvement in the mission and outreach of the Christian body in its various denominational and organizational expressions. And here is the gathering point of the ordained and lay leadership of the Christian church of tomorrow.

What do we have going for us? Why, we have a natural inter-cultural, multi-social, inter-faith, inter-church laboratory for the development of competent Baptist leadership of the Christian cause for the 70's. All of these resources exist in Berkeley and are available for any seminarian who chooses to explore them.

Baptist Unity on the West Coast

The American Baptist Seminary of the West in itself is a concrete expression of ability of competitive Baptist interests to learn from their histories, draw upon the resources of the Gospel, draw together for the essential Christian tasks and form a coalition of interests unparalleled in the history of Baptist theological education. From this base is it not possible for students on both the Berkeley and Covina campuses to grow in awareness of the possibility of overcoming cultural, social and religious differences in local communities for the sake of the full expression of the Gospel? If the seminaries can achieve this, does it not follow that the leadership can catch a similar vision for the local congregations?

For the drawing together of these seminaries is above all an expression of Baptist unity where there had been division. This has to be understood as a response to the leading of God as well as a response to the challenge of the times.

Academic Strength in the Berkeley Framework

This is not the strength of a dogged digging into traditionalism. This is the strength born of daring, visionary education, creating new educational designs on the ecumenically cooperative base. In line with its historic emphasis on quality education, Berkeley today has the freedom to follow daring new designs. The Berkeley student has one of the richest deposits of theological education in America at his disposal, as the resources of all twelve seminaries banded together in the cooperative Graduate Theological Union are open to him.

Here is a center sufficiently vital that it is a learning ground for that accrediting association, the A.A.T.S. itself. The Berkeley cluster has helped A.A.T.S. understand the directions required for the accreditation of the new cluster designs for tomorrow.

Recruitment, a Pleasure

When one talks to prospective students about Berkeley as a "dynamic center," it is to speak of the "expanding horizons" of its cultural and social world, the new meanings of the faith coming up from the interchurch involvements and the claim that is laid on the future in the imaginative outreach into community. The students who hear the true story will do their own "recruiting."

Christ and the Dynamics of Culture

Must we not agree with Richard Niebuhr that the true relationship is one in which Christ transforms culture? Where is this more apt to take place than at Berkeley where one can see the confrontation of Christ and social turmoil, Christ and university turmoil, Christ and ecumenical turmoil, Christ and the forces creating the future, Christ and human hope? The convergence of these forces has to add up to a unique and compelling setting for theological education. Can it not be said that God has brought us to this place in this hour where God puts His claim upon the future, where God thrusts us into these life centers, where God thrusts us into the social dynamics?

This is a Climate for Christian Growth

Growth of the Christian in the urban environment, growth of the Christian among power groups, growth of the Christian in intellectual movements and growth of the Christian through ecumenical involvement — all of this is possible at Berkeley.

Baptists should thank God for the guidance that has brought us to this presence in the midst of a fertile and creative center of learning and living. In interdenominational circles distinguished persons with expertise in theological education, denominational strategies and the directions the church is going in relationship to the world consistently lift up Berkeley as the foremost setting for a seminary. Pastors and lay leaders of the Baptist churches, send your inquiring, your searching, your growing, your maturing, your promising youth to this human laboratory of Christian leadership development.

AATS Gives Green Light

Following survey visits in Berkeley last February by a team of experts from the American Association of Theological Schools, the accrediting agency in theological education, word was received this summer by President C. Adrian Heaton that the "Commission on Accrediting in its meeting of May 23-24 took unanimous action to continue the accreditation of Berkeley Baptist without notation." In a confidential newsletter to board members, Dr. Heaton explained that "without notation" means without demerits of any kind. (The Covina campus of the Seminary of the West is also fully accredited by the AATS.)

In August President John Dillenberger of the Graduate Theological Union was notified that the AATS Commission on Accrediting and nation-wide balloting by member schools of the AATS had voted to grant full accreditation to the GTU, which has now been in full operation for five years, as the AATS requires. This is the first cooperative theological program to receive accreditation by the AATS. In this, as in many other respects, the GTU has been a pioneer on behalf of other theological clusters in cities from Berkeley to Boston.

Once the AATS votes to grant accreditation, a school is thoroughly reviewed by visiting experts at five-year intervals. A constructive report and educational critique by Berkeley Baptists's team began with these words:

"Berkeley Baptist Divinity School has had to cope with an in-put of institutional adjustments in recent years that might have caused even a sophisticated computer to register 'tilt.' The visiting team was impressed with the resilience and initiative demonstrated by administration and faculty during this period of rapid transition in the life of the school."

Gordon Packard Named ABSW Finance Chairman

Mr. Gordon Packard, a member of the Berkeley board for six years, has accepted election as chairman of the finance committee for the Seminary of the West.

Mr. Packard graduated from Rutgers University in 1927, when he joined the staff of the International Business Machines Corporation. Within five years he became a senior executive for IBM, responsible for sales, service, education and advertising throughout the United States. Later he became director general of IBM in Europe and lived in Paris.

He also developed an innovative educational program for International Harvester and for three years was executive consultant for the Radio Corporation of America. During World War II he advised members of the American Bankers Association on war bond distribution. Later he owned and operated one of the Southwest's largest cattle and horse ranches at Vail, Arizona.

An active Baptist all of his life, Mr. Packard grew up in the Stelton Baptist Church in Stelton, New Jersey. Since 1960 he has been a trustee and moderator of the First Baptist Church of Menlo Park, California.

The Packards make their home in Atherton. He is an active member of the Bohemian Club of San Francisco.

Funds Needed to Match Challenge Gifts

The Seminary of the West is facing what President Heaton calls a "cash crunch." This fall as nearly 250 students register for classes on the Covina and Berkeley campuses, the school needs at least $100,000 in new money to be ready for them.

Two trustees and their wives have made challenge gifts of $27,000 and $15,000 which will be used to match each gift received, dollar for dollar.

The total budget (including capital investments) for both campuses is $1,084,000, which is within 3% of last year's budget. Despite necessary increases in salaries, scholarship aid and the cost of supplies, savings are being achieved by having one administration and by unifying the business and public relations staffs.

Dr. Heaton explained, "The major savings planned await the lease or sale of the present Berkeley campus when the school moves into the GTU cluster on the north side of the university campus and the sale or lease of a portion of the Covina campus. Because of the current tight money market, such property transfers are slowed so the financial burden remains heavy."

American Baptist churches in the western states which have made pledges to Berkeley, Covina or the Seminary of the West for 1969 are urged to send their contributions in this month. Churches also are reminded to include a significant amount for the Seminary of the West for 1970 as they plan their contribution to Part One of the American Baptist World Mission budget. Those who prefer may designate their gift for either the Berkeley or the Covina campus.

Sources of seminary income this year include $256,000 from tuition and campus rentals; $80,000 from endowment funds; and $75,000 from the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication, including the cancellation of a $50,000 note.

Dr. Heaton concluded, "Unless gifts from churches exceed the 1969 goal of $267,000 and gifts from individuals exceed $175,000, we shall end the year with a deficit of $231,000. Contributions made now will be doubled by the challenge gifts and the entire work of the seminary will be greatly strengthened."

Gifts may be sent to Dr. Heaton at either campus. Persons wishing information about the bequest and annuity program should contact Dr. Carrol O. Morong, vice president or Dr. Lawrence W. Allen, assistant to the president.

New Trustees Elected

Five new trustees of the American Baptist Seminary of the West will be invited to attend their first board meeting November 15 in Los Angeles.

They include REV. WILLIAM CLINE, pastor of Conejo Valley Baptist Church of Thousand Oaks and president of the Covina alumni; DR. THOMAS KILGORE, JR., pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Los Angeles and president of the American Baptist Convention; LOREN MCBAIN, graduate of Eastern Baptist College and student at Covina; CURTIS MCCORMACK, graduate of Oregon State University and student at Berkeley; and DR. C. ELROY SHIKLES, pastor of First Baptist Church of Grand Junction, Colorado and an alumnus of Berkeley, class of 1939.

J. Stillson Judah

ABSW JOINS IN GTU COMMON LIBRARY

First steps toward a common library were taken four years ago with the formation of the Bibliographic Center serving all schools in the Graduate Theological Union at Berkeley. Its staff coordinated acquisitions, catalogued the books and arranged for student and faculty use of all volumes and resource materials housed in the participating institutions.

In June, 1969, Dr. J. Stillson Judah was named as the GTU librarian. A noted author-educator, he had been professor of history of religions and librarian at the Pacific School of Religion since 1941. He was the GTU Bibliographic Center librarian on a part-time basis since 1966 and has long advocated the move to form a common library.

In announcing the appointment, Dr. John Dillenberger said, "There are few precedents since the Reformation when schools of theology representing the major faiths have taken so decisive a step as to merge irreplaceable academic assets such as their library holdings."

The common library will aid participating schools in keeping up with the knowledge explosion in books and maintaining an outstanding graduate library. Dr. Judah will be responsible for carrying out the merger and for allocating the $100,000 annual book buying budget.

When Alma College, the Jesuit seminary from Los Gatos, moved to Berkeley in September, its books were integrated into the common library. During the next few months only such books as are specifically needed for immediate use will be called for from San Francisco Seminary, Pacific Lutheran and the Seminary of the West. Consequently most of Berkeley's will continue to be housed in the Sandford Fleming library building.

In its initial stages, the common library will be housed in present library facilities of GTU schools on the north side of the university campus. Plans are now beginning to secure funds to build a new structure to house the volumes of the common library and provide the library resources needed by the 800 students in the participating schools.

Dr. Gottwald Returns From Year in Israel

Dr. Norman K. Gottwald, professor of Old Testament, Biblical theology and ethics at the Berkeley campus and the Graduate Theological Union, returned in September from a year's sabbatical in Israel. His research concerned the sociology and value systems of Israel's earliest religion.

As a research fellow at Hebrew Union College in Jerusalem he participated in extended field trips to Galilee, the Negeb desert and to Sinai by command car, as well as many one-day trips from Jerusalem. During the spring excavation at Gezer he worked at the 12th and 11th century level during the dig, which corresponded to the period of his formal research.

The research fellows took part in several stimulating conversations

Norman K. Gottwald

with archaeologists concerning the historical and cultural implications of their work. These included Yohanan Aharoni, Ruth Amiran, Joseph Callaway and Kathleen Kenyon. Hebrew Union College offered several slide-lecture reports on recent excavations not yet published.

Dr. Gottwald also spent two weeks visiting Hittite and Graeco-Roman archaeological sites in Turkey and two weeks in the Greek islands, concentrating especially on the Minoan remains in Crete.

His study began with the emergence of Israel in Canaan between 1200-1000 B.C., with the goal of determining the role of the religious factor in coping with socio-political conditions in that period and its applications today.

In a summary report for President Heaton, Dr. Gottwald wrote, "Certain of the well-known features of Israel's early theology have clear socio-political functional significance. That Yahweh is exclusive in his demands, personal in nature, a strong and wilful actor in communal history corresponds to the wilful and exclusive act by which Israel created itself in opposition to Egyptian imperialism and Canaanite feudalism, and in the process, converted separate groups to programs of joint action."

KEN KLIEVERS TO TEACH IN INDIA

Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth K. Kliever (M.R.E. Covina, 1958) left Pasadena August 21 enroute to India, where they will teach for six months in a new ecumenical seminary at Rajahmundry in South India. The president, Dr. Louis Knoll, is a close friend of theirs.

The Klievers are investing their own financial resources in this year of teaching and travel, so that their family can broaden their concepts by experiencing cultures and peoples around the world. They will be accompanied by their two daughters, aged 11 and 13.

In this English-speaking B.D. program, Mr. Kliever expects to do some teaching and work with students in practical field assignments. By spending 1968-69 studying at Los Angeles State and Pasadena College, he has completed the necessary educational credentials for his elementary teaching certificate and has earned an M.A. in education.

Since it is difficult for Americans to secure long-term visas for India, the Klievers have three-month visitor's visas, which can be extended for three additional months. This is almost a full school year in India. Their trip will conclude with a few months of camping in Europe and visiting Baptist-related work there.

During his student years Mr. Kliever served First Baptist Church in Taft. Since graduation he has been director of Christian education and youth work at First, Long Beach and Calvary, Pasadena.

Mrs. Kliever has taught elementary school in the Monrovia district.

"DUAL" ALUMNI HONORED

Distinguished Service Awards were presented to six University of Redlands alumni on May 31 with three of the six also alumni of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School.

Dr. Jesse D. Moses, '39, principal of Washington Junior High School in Pasadena, was recognized for "leadership in public education and for service to humanitarian organizations." A former Army chaplain, he is active in the Chamber of Commerce, Urban League, and NAACP.

Recognized for a "lifetime of work in central city mission projects and for service in experimental church programming" was the Rev. Carl D. Locke, '41. He is an assistant vice-president for the American Baptist Management Corporation, which involves low and middle income housing.

An instructor in social science at Citrus College, Azusa, Manley J. Johnson, '44, received the award for "outstanding leadership in teaching young people and service to bring about understanding of Negro culture and history." He has been a YMCA secretary in three California cities and was a pastor in two interracial, interdenominational churches in the Bay Area.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

COVINA CAMPUS

1949 Air Force Chaplain CHARLES J. BARNES has been promoted from lieutenant colonel to colonel.

1951 Serving the Arizona Convention of American Baptist Churches as director of the Department of Outreach and Service is GRANT B. YEATMAN, pastor of Monte Vista Baptist Church, Phoenix.

1954 WILLIAM C. COLE continues as pastor of the Explorers' Church of Long Beach, a congregation pioneering new areas of mission. An encounter group at a women's reformatory has been commended by government officials. A new program involves volunteers from the church working with parole agents of the California Youth Authority.

1957 Moving from the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Banning to Lindley Avenue Baptist, Tarzana, is CARL G. JENNINGS.

1958 Major JOHN A. DE SAEGHER, Army chaplain stationed at Van Nuys, reported 24 conversions. Among recent activities were leading two retreats, attendance at a counseling workshop, and sponsorship of a lecture series on narcotics . . . WALTER H. HOSTETTLER is pastor of First Baptist Church, Napa, moving from Pleasant Valley Baptist, Camarillo.

1959 Navy Lieutenant Commander JOHN N. DOLAGHAN received a letter of appreciation from the chief of Navy chaplains for a pre-marriage clinic conducted at the El Toro Marine Base. He has completed all work except the thesis for a master's degree in counseling at Chapman College. He is now on his second tour of duty in Vietnam.

1961 Leaving Temple Baptist Church, LaHabra, as director of Christian education, JOHN LYTTLE has gone to First Baptist, Camas, Wash., as pastor.

1965 RICHARD C. AXMANN has been serving since April 1 as pastor of the Community Baptist Church, Hulett, Wyo., and as director of the Wyoming Ranch Ministry, a joint venture of the church, the state convention, and the American Baptist Home Mission Societies . . . Chaplain WILLIAM A. HARRISON, Army captain, has returned from Vietnam to the Savanna Army Depot, Ill.

1967 In May FORREST BELL began his pastorate of the First Baptist Church, Raymond, Wash., going from Longview . . . Moving from director of the Weirton Christian Center, W. Va., to community organization with the Rankin Christian Center, Monroeville, Pa., is CLYDE CRIDLEBAUGH . . . Serving as pastor of the Sheffield Baptist Church, Ia., is R. TED NUTTING, moving from Hampton, Ia.

1968 JAMES H. BRAGAN began June 1 as pastor of the newly-formed Greater Nemaha (County) Larger Parish in Nebraska, with two American Baptist and two Disciples of Christ churches involved. There are some common services and program but each church also maintains some individual responsibilities. A parish council is being formed to direct business and activities.

Seventeen graduates of 1965 and 1966 returned to the Berkeley campus in June to discuss informally the implications of their seminary education and their earliest years in the ministry. The conference included some who have shifted from the pastorate to teaching or social work.

BERKELEY CAMPUS

1935 ARTHUR and OLGA LOVERIDGE retired this summer from the pastorate at Poston Community Baptist Church, Parker, Ariz.

1936 BOYCE VAN OSDEL is one of the writers of the new Christian Faith and Work Plan curriculum of the American Baptist Convention.

1937 RALPH T. COBB is now acting executive secretary for the North Dakota Baptist Convention in addition to his responsibility as executive secretary of the South Dakota Baptist Convention. His office remains at Sioux Falls.

1938 Mrs. James LeGrande (RUTH FINWALL) has moved from Middletown, O., to Denver, Colo.

1941 LOUISE VOTH, retired missionary of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, died on March 18 in Stowe, O. She was principal of Mather School, 1942-51.

1942 Congratulations to Chaplain VINCENT E. NELSON on becoming a colonel and receiving the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service in Japan.

1943 Commander BERYL L. BURR retired June 30 after 20 years of active duty as a Navy chaplain.

1944 The JOHN LANES (D.D. '59, Covina) recently celebrated their 25th anniversary of ministry at the First Baptist Church of Sunland.

1945 Now serving as manager-treasurer of the American Baptist Norcal Credit Union, with offices in Oakland, is ROBERT MARTIN. He was in business and 20 years in the pastorate before being associated with the Credit Union and its first manager-treasurer, the late Dr. M. E. Bratcher. Joining Mr. Martin as an associate is GORDON FORBES, '32, well known in California and Washington for his years of ministry in Christian education . . . Following a two-parish pastorate in Idaho, CHESTER NORTHROP has accepted a call to Pleasant Valley Baptist Church, Portland, Ore.

1946 WILBUR N. THORLAKSON has been pastor of the Florissant Valley Baptist Church, Mo. for 15 years. During this time there have been many new members, new buildings constructed, and mission sites developed.

1947 A feature story in the July-August issue of Crusader tells of JOHN MAC DONALD and his work with "hippies" in the Bay Area. A pastor in Mill Valley, he is also a Civil Air Patrol chaplain.

1948 MARCELLA FORD (Mrs. J. W.) was honored by the Oakland-Piedmont (Calif.) branch of the American Association of University Women as one of their "Women of the Year." . . . The honorary doctor of humane letters degree was conferred upon PAUL L. LAUBY at the commencement exercises of Silliman University, Philippines. After completing 16 years on the faculty, Dr. Lauby has returned to the United States . . . WAYNE and DORIS LONG have moved from Jackson to serve the Laurel Methodist Church, Oakland . . . KENNETH WALLACE (Hon.) retired from the pastorate of Thousand Oaks Baptist Church, Berkeley, began in September as a consultant on the Ministers' Salary Plan for the Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board of the American Baptist Convention, serving in Northern California.

1949 FRANK and IDA PEARL ('47) MC CRAY are now at Chester Avenue Baptist Church, Bakersfield, where he is director of Christian education.

1950 The E. P. Y. SIMPSONS have returned after two years of teaching in New Zealand. He has become associate professor of history at Alderson-Broaddus College in West Virginia.

1951 DORIS HONEY Vineyard and her family have moved to Albuquerque, N.M. where she attended the university this summer, working on library science and is now teaching public school. Her husband, William, is on leave of absence from the Bureau of Indian Affairs to work on his doctor of education degree.

1953 Moving to the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Holden, Mass., from Norfolk, Mass., is DON MENZEL.

1954 After seven years as pastor of First Congregational Church, Everett, Wash., IVAN C. CLEVELAND is now in private practice as a marriage and family counselor . . . Commander THAINE E. FORD, senior chaplain aboard the USS Ranger, was cited by Huntington College as the distinguished alumnus of the year . . . ROBERT FRONTERHOUSE has moved from Columbus, O., to Salina, Kan. . . . On May 4 ROBERT L. LARSEN was installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Nowata, Okla. He and Mrs. Larsen and son, Stephen, were refused permission by the Government of India to return to Assam where they had been missionaries under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies. . . . THOMAS MEICHO, director of admissions at Linfield College since 1960, has been appointed dean of admissions with overall responsibility for public relations, alumni, admissions, and publications . . . Included in the adult curriculum of the United Church of Christ is a book co-authored by ARTHUR MERRILL of the United Theological Seminary in Minnesota entitled The Biblical Witness in the World.

1955 In May ROBERT L. CLOATS joined the staff of the Division of World Mission Support of the American Baptist Convention as field counselor for western Pennsylvania. He and his family had been missionaries in Thailand since 1959 . . . Director of the second annual vacation church school of the Cedar Hills (Ore) United Parish was DWIGHT NEUENSCHWANDER, pastor of the Cedar Hills Baptist Church. Six denominations participated with 350 students registered and 60 teachers and leaders. The parish also sponsors a Dialogue Center in the shopping center, providing a "Christian presence," the opportunity for counseling by the participating pastors and a place for fellowship, conversations and coffee . . . LEE REICHSTEIN has moved from First Baptist Church, Fort Lupton, Colo., to First Baptist, La Junta.

1956 JACK J. CHINN writes from Brazil that he is busy with the Bible College established five years ago. He is in his second term of missionary service there . . . VICTOR DAVIS left the First Baptist Church, Fresno, after five years as director of Christian education to take further graduate work . . . JITSUKO TANAKA Reedy and her family were home for a short furlough in June from their work as United Methodist Church missionaries in Japan. She said their three-year-old son, David, is already bilingual and his Japanese is better than his father's and his English better than his mother's!

1957 V. O. BALDWIN is at Clearlake Highlands retired from the active ministry until health is restored following open heart surgery . . . Dr. and Mrs. WILLIAM K. GOURLEY (ESTHER BEESON) have moved from Shawnee Mission, Kan., to New Orleans, La. . . . DEAN D. KNUDSEN is in W. Lafayette, Ind., from Columbus, O. . . . MILTON O. WHITAKER has left the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Martinez, to engage in further study.

1958 Now at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Deming, N.M., is CHARLES E. ALLEN, moving from Pecos, Tex. . . . LEONARD BALLESTEROS, JR. is associate director of urban work and community ministries of the New Jersey Baptist Convention . . . In July CHARLES R. HARWOOD moved to the Church of the Savior, Mesa, Ariz. from First Baptist, Blythe.

1959 The CARL HOLMGREN family returned home in June for furlough from missionary service in Japan under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies . . . Major MARION D. PEMBER and Major HERBERT A. SNIDER, '62, Army chaplains, reported for duty in Vietnam in February.

1961 After four years as pastor of First Baptist Church, Fort Bragg, WALTER MORGAN moved in May to First Baptist, Red Bluff.

1962 NORMAN MC CUE now serves the Fremont Baptist Church, Seattle, Wash., following a seven-year pastorate at Grace Baptist, Tacoma . . . In May RAY MILER assumed the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Orland, after being associate pastor at First Baptist, Redwood City . . . WILLIAM THOMAS, JR. visited the campus in July on a "mid-term break" from service as a pastor in Kinshasa, Republic of Congo, under the British Baptist Mission Society.

1963 COLVIN BLANFORD received the doctor of religion degree from the School of Theology at Claremont on June 7. He is pastor of Cosmopolitan Baptist Church, San Francisco, and commuted to Southern California for two years! . . . RICHARD GRENELL became pastor of First Baptist Church, Placerville, in July, moving from First Baptist, Carmichael.

1964 Now at Glenn Baptist Church is EDWARD L. MC CALL. He was at Yountville . . . Following language study in Belgium, the VERNON STANLEYS are in Kinshasa, Republic of Congo, under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies . . . WILLIAM A STODDART resigned after five years as associate minister of Calvary Baptist Church, Denver, Colo., to accept a similar position at First Baptist, Portland, Ore., beginning in August.

1965 GEORGE GENTRY is living in Long Beach and recently took a trip to Germany. Seriously injured in Vietnam while serving as a lieutenant in the Army, he is a paraplegic and has been receiving therapy which will continue for another six to twelve months. He is contemplating further graduate study . . . Captain CURTIS G. SMITH, Army chaplain, has received two medals, the bronze star for meritorious service in Vietnam and the air medal.

In India the Jack McCriries pose with a newborn daughter, Heather Shanti.

1966 ESTHER ANG visited the school in June while on vacation from her work in the Neighborhood Center in Utica, N.Y. . . . H. DOUGLAS BROWN has completed all course work for the Ph.D. degree at UCLA, has passed his qualifying exams and will be writing his dissertation this year. . . . WILLIAM J. LAWTON, a United Methodist pastor, has moved from Portola to Milpitas.

1967 In June CHARLES D. WALKER, JR. became associate pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, Concord, after a pastorate at Community Baptist Church, Oakley.

1968 Deepest sympathy is extended to THOMAS GINGERICH in the death of his parents in an automobile accident in Iowa during July. His sister was seriously injured . . . WALTER PARRY is one of the directors of church and community studies under the American Baptist Extension Corporation and lives in Illinois.

1969 "The Importance of Being Verbal," the senior sermon of RONALD K. HARRIS, has been published in the May-June issue of Preaching, a bi-monthly journal of homiletics. Dr. William L. Malcomson of the Berkeley faculty is the ecumenical editor.

WEDDING BELLS

Congratulations and best wishes to:

1962 DAVID QUIRING, married May 10 to Miss Virginia Gates of Chicago. He serves First Baptist Church, Des Moines, Ia.

1968 THOMAS WYATT, married August 16 at the First Assembly of God Church, North Hollywood, to Miss Sharon Castagna.

NEW ARRIVALS

Congratulations and best wishes to:

1957 The JOHN TOWNSENDS on the birth of Alicia Carol.

1962 The WAYNE MARTINS on the birth of Geofrey Scott.

1963 Chaplain and Mrs. DONAL M. COWELL on the arrival of Richard Alan.

1964 The JACK MC CRIRIES on the birth of Heather Shanti ("peace" in Bengali). They are in India with the Peace Corps.

1966 FRANK and JANET (ZERBA) BROUGHER on a son, Peter Aaron.

1927 The JAMES MATHEWS' on the birth of Todd Randal.

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. I October 1969 No. I

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST
Seminary Knolls, Covina, California 91722

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, April, October and December.

Entered as second class matter on March 13, 1931 at the post office at Berkeley, Calif., under the Act of August 24, 1912.

Address Correction Requested
Return Postage Guaranteed

Dean Robert Campbell

Speaking Personally

DR. ROBERT C. CAMPBELL, dean and professor of New Testament at the Covina campus since 1954, was granted a sabbatical leave for the fall months. Following his leadership of a six-week study tour in the Holy Land for Covina students and pastors, he spent two months in language study at the Sorbonne in Paris. From October until Christmas he will do research in New Testament studies at the University of Cambridge.

Dr. DAVID WALLACE, professor of Biblical theology, is serving as chairman of the faculty at Covina during Dean Campbell's sabbatical. Dr. Wallace will preside at faculty meetings, coordinate the reports of faculty committees and assist the president and the instruction committee of the trustees on matters of academic policy. DR. RICHARD DOSS will represent the dean on the Student Council and DR. ROBERT LAURIN will handle matters of transfer credits and academic standing.

DEAN PAUL CLASPER gave a paper on the response of Baptists in America to the current theological scene during a conference of European theological educators in Geneva September 1-4. Other participants included PRESIDENT and MRS. C. ADRIAN HEATON, MRS. CLASPER, DR. and MRS. CYRIL D. GARRETT and DR. CULBERT RUTENBER.

Rev. Bob Richards is a refreshing pied piper for physical fitness and positive American values. He left Los Angeles in June to jog or cycle every foot of the 3384 miles across the country to encourage his fellow Americans to get out of their chairs and out of doors. Driving the van for his fitness crusade is ROBERT J. MCMULLIN, a graduate of UCLA and a middler at Covina.

DR. ELDON ERNST and DR. HAROLD FRAZEE of the Berkeley faculty were delegates to a June conference sponsored by the Center for Urban-Black Studies of the GTU. The conference began in the Berkeley chapel with a service of requiem. The Martin Luther King lectures were given by Dr. Major Jones, president of Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta.

We rejoice in the swift recovery from surgery of an ABSW trustee, DR. EMMETT PARKS of Covina and of DR. MAURICE JACKSON, vice president for the Berkeley campus.

The newest member of the ABSW board of trustees is CURTIS MCCORMACK, representing the Berkeley student body. Now that he has completed his intern year at Good Shepherd Baptist Church in Lynnwood, Washington, Curt will serve as head maintenance man at the seminary during his senior year.

As "head wrangler at the ranch" this summer, BEN PATTERSON of Covina was featured in the Forest Home bulletin as one who helps youth relate God's word to their lives.

MAY 18 1972

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume I Number I

OCTOBER 1969

DIMENSIONS OF DIALOGUE are a part of seminary life. Here Dr. Maurice P. Jackson, vice-president of the Berkeley campus, listens carefully to a student.

FACULTY / DIALOGUE

Introducing

Dimensions

The dimensions of the early Christians were expanded when they read a fervent letter from the Apostle Paul who wrote "neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus."

In the Space Age, man's understanding of dimensions has been expanded by seeing men walking on the moon. Their improbable feat rested on the research of many, on the systems engineering of dynamic clusters of men and computers and on the willingness to trust the probability curves.

The Seminary of the West is an expression of both the dimensions of the Spirit and the dimensions of a synergistic corporation that does many things, but does each better because it does all the rest. These are the concepts behind the title of our new publication — DIMENSIONS.

Its name is intended to convey the dimensions of learning that take place between students and faculty, between the churches and the seminary and between the Berkeley and Covina campuses. Combining two former publications, the Berkeley Baptist Bulletin and Vision from the Knolls of the Covina campus, it will be edited by Joan Thatcher, director of communications for the Seminary of the West.

The new publication will seek to communicate something of what makes up the academic and community life on these two campuses.

Every effort will be made to avoid confusing what "is" with "what ought to be." As the Seminary of the West experiences spiritual, academic and physical renewal, this quarterly publication will try to provide a feeling of "you are there" for the thousands of Baptists and others on the West Coast and throughout the nation who are interested and involved in its future.

When you hear a lively TV discussion program with which you may not fully agree, it's easy to reach over and turn it off. Or you may turn it up to hear better. This may lead to genuine discussion of important issues in your home and may also help you understand much better a point of view that you thought was without merit.

Theological education has an important prophetic ministry within the church. One of the functions of Dimensions will be to provide a means for expressing the ideas of faculty members and alumni. Don't turn us off, but turn us up. If what we are grappling with brings new insight and vitality to the church, you need us very much. If some of what we struggle with needs correction, listen and then enter dialogue for the benefit of the church of tomorrow.

Historian Lewis Mumford has said "One must learn as much as he imparts." Hopefully, that too will happen in Dimensions.

C. Edwin Hatton

President

Culbert G. Rutenber, ABSW

A. Stanley MacNair, Berkeley

Elliott J. Mason, Covina

65 New Students, 3 New Profs Join ABSW

Sixty-five new students and three new faculty members were welcomed by the Seminary of the West when classes began this fall. They were special guests at student-faculty retreats held at Covina September 19-20 and at Berkeley October 4-5.

The new professors include Dr. Culbert G. Rutenber, professor of the philosophy of religion for ABSW; Dr. A. Stanley MacNair, director of field education at Berkeley and Dr. Elliott J. Mason, visiting professor of New Testament at Covina during Dean Robert Campbell's sabbatical leave. The Berkeley faculty also welcomed back Dr. Norman K. Gottwald from a year's sabbatical in Israel.

Seven students from the Orient and Europe and two missionaries on furlough were among those expected to register at the Covina campus. The ABC missionaries include Rev. Norman Riddle, a Covina alumnus now serving at Kinshasa, Congo and Rev. Floyd Roseberry of the Philippines, who graduated from Redlands.

Among the new students enrolled at Berkeley are a returning Peace Corps veteran and the mother of three college students, who attended Vatican II and plans to share in a team ministry at the University of Washington.

Educational developments at the two campuses include involving Alma College (Jesuit), and San Francisco Theological Seminary (Presbyterian), in the common core courses of the Graduate Theological Union and expanding relationships at Covina with Claremont, Fuller and Berkeley.

Three New Professors

A new professorship in the philosophy of religion has been established at Covina with the coming of DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER, who will also teach selected courses on the Berkeley campus. President of the American Baptist Convention in 1968-69, Dr. Rutenber taught for thirty years on the faculty of Eastern Baptist Seminary and Andover Newton Theological School.

Author of four books and platform speaker at scores of college campuses and state, national and world conferences, Dr. Rutenber earned his bachelor's degree at Kenyon College, his B.D. at Eastern and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Pennsylvania. He was also elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

DR. A. STANLEY MACNAIR has been named director of field education at Berkeley, in addition to serving as pastor of the Bancroft Avenue Baptist Church in San Leandro. He held a similar post at Central Baptist Seminary in Kansas City from 1961 to 1965. He succeeds REV. ROBERT ORPINELA, a Berkeley alumnus, who is completing his doctorate at the Graduate Theological Union.

It would be hard for anyone to be more closely related to Berkeley than Dr. MacNair. After graduating from UCLA, he earned four degrees at Berkeley: MA., B.D., Th.M. and Th.D. Currently he is president of the Berkeley Alumni Association and a member of the board of trustees. From 1948 to 1961 he was minister of University Baptist Church in Seattle. The author of To the Churches With Love, he has served on the boards of both the home and foreign mission societies.

DR. ELLIOTT J. MASON, visiting professor of New Testament at Covina, earned his Ph.D. at the University of Southern California in 1968. He is also minister of Trinity Baptist Church in Los Angeles.

Dr. Mason was valedictorian of Dillard University in 1942 and later earned his B.D. and S.T.M. degrees at Oberlin's Graduate School of Theology. In 1955 he received a Fulbright grant to study New Testament at the University of Edinburgh. After fifteen years as pastor of Third Baptist Church in Toledo, Ohio, he moved to Los Angeles in 1959, where he leads a church of 2600 members.

ABSW Goes to The Holy Land

Text and pictures by
Edmund H. Irvin, Pastor
First Baptist Church
Claremont, California

Imagine yourself on the slopes in Galilee while the Beatitudes are softly spoken . . . Amos' words took on the sting of the wind as we squinted northward from a hillock in Tekoa . . . And sitting on Mars Hill with the Acropolis off your shoulder and modern Athens spread out below, hearing Paul's famous sermon "to an unknown god" read aloud, does something to you... Especially in Israel itself do the pieces begin to fit into place. One is overcome by the fact that so much transpired in such a brief patch of land over so many thousands of years!

Eighteen students boarded a charter flight in Los Angeles June 16 to launch the first Holy Land Study Tour of the American Baptist Seminary of the West. Under the watchful eye of Dr. Robert C. Campbell, dean of the Covina campus, the entire group traveled in eight countries for six weeks, covering thousands of miles by plane and train, and not one person or suitcase got lost!

The trip culminated a dream of Dean Campbell's begun nine years ago. We called ourselves "students" because we prepared ourselves for learning. All had done advance reading. We knew it was a study tour—not a vacation.

The group would have been interesting whether they traveled or stayed at the airport. The make-up read: four seminary students; eight pastors; two student wives; two pastor's wives; and two lay women. Beside Californians, they came from Arizona, Washington and Korea. Each participant was responsible for his own expenses.

Those interested in earning two units of credit enrolled in Dr. Robert Laurin's class in biblical archaeology for ten Tuesday evenings during the spring quarter. Those who followed special assignments on the tour itself received an additional six credits.

In a sense, we all taught each other. Each tour member selected a specific location of significance to biblical studies — such as Jericho or Cyprus — and wrote a three-page summary of its meaning in history. The summaries were duplicated and distributed to all.

Four Covina Students

Lowell Fairley pours lemonade for Dean Campbell and Dr. Anson F. Rainey

The Parthenon in Athens

At all points we had the immediate resource of Dean Campbell. His great reservoir of knowledge — biblical and classical — and his rare ability to fit things together made each country come alive. In Israel we had the benefit of Dr. Anson F. Rainey's guidance for the full two weeks. Professor Rainey, a 1954 graduate of the Covina campus, is a member of the faculties of the American Institute of Holy Land Studies in Jerusalem and the University of Tel-Aviv. He served both as leader in the exploration of Israel's archaeological sites and as teacher in Bible study each day.

The key to the whole study tour was "on location" learning. It is quite an experience to stand in the amphitheater at Ephesus and hear Acts 19 read aloud. We could almost hear the roar of the rioting crowd and see Paul struggling to get in through the arches.

For the serious student, archaeological sources are waiting to be tapped. This summer Professor Rainey began excavations of Tell Beer-Sheva, a familiar biblical site that has been untouched. The results of extensive excavations at Tell Arad also await interpretation.

Tell Arad, though not mentioned in the Bible, holds a place of importance in biblical archaeology because of its location, age and condition of the ruins. Here an altar has been unearthed in the temple area bearing the exact dimensions given for an altar in Leviticus. Also, an inscription, "Sons of Korah," has been found at an 8th century B.C. level, suggesting pre-exilic dates for the Psalms. It is Professor Rainey's prediction that Tell Arad will become the basic point of reference for Judean archaeology in terms of stratigraphy and dating.

Israel — By Foot and Explorer's Truck

Our goal, of course, was the Holy Land — Israel. But how can you make the biblical drama hang together without experiencing the grandeur of ancient Egypt? Without seeing the dignity of Greece? Or feeling the mystery of Turkey? Or walking the elevations of Lebanon? Or wading the Mediterranean off Cyprus? Or drinking in the glory that was Rome? We saw them all, cameras on one shoulder, tape recorders on the other, notebooks in hand and sun hats on our heads.

Dr. Campbell commented on the seriousness with which the group approached this study experience. He said, "It was impressive to see how these people have related to their maps, to the geography, to the historical detail of the Holy Land with a view to tying it together."

Israel itself was a concentrated, in-depth experience. We travelled literally from Dan to Beer-sheba, from Ashkelon to Arad. We saw, heard, felt, smelled and tasted the land holy to three great religions. And we did it the hard way: by explorer's truck and by foot! The former is a four-wheel drive mechanism that goes wherever you point it — up hills, down gullies and around spurs. The party sits back to back on longitudinal benches barely padded, affording a view out the side windows. The latter is a device known to earliest man for getting around. There is a saying from the Talmud now dear to our souls: "Whoever walks four cubits on the Land of Israel is assured of a place in the world to come." We are not only "in" but have enough credit built up to take along several others!

Add to that the several days that ran 6:00 A.M. to 7:00 P.M.; the encounter with strange foods; the sleeping quarters in youth hostels — and you have all the things pampered Americans love to criticize. But oh, the rewards! What ordinary tour group ever sees the headwaters of the Jordan at bubbling Baniass? What vacation vagabonds have found David's Pool at the unexpected Ein Geddi (beckoning for a delicious swim)? We were fortunate to get Israeli Army clearance to visit Qumran, site of the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls.

The intense scheduling and thorough investigation under Dr. Rainey caused Dean Campbell to say, "I have had a 'total' in Israel before of more than four months time, and I got to spots on this study tour that I had never seen before."

The final ten days of the trip were open for individual or group travel and study. Some visited the beauty spots of Italy — Naples, Venice and Florence. Others elected the hinterlands of West Germany. One member toured the Scandinavian countries. I teamed up with the Rev. Lowell Fairley of Pasadena for a look behind the iron curtain in Czechoslovakia and East Berlin.

Each "did his own thing" but reunited in Frankfurt, Germany for the flight home. Two stayed behind. Dean Campbell remained for five months of study at the Sorbonne and Cambridge. Steve Brewster, 1969 Covina graduate, returned to Jerusalem for doctoral studies at the American Institute of Holy Land Studies and Hebrew University.

What about future trips? Dr. Campbell said, "I hope that we eventually might get help from a Christian foundation so that we could make this a required course for students in the seminary. I think this has more motivational quality for biblical study than anything else that can be done. If this tour is done right, it should be profitable for the minister who really wants to study, not the man who wants only a vacation. Pastors start looking at the Bible theologically better than they do when they simply come to it with a theological bent. They really come to the message of the Bible more openly and I think more profitably."

Anyone for Israel next year?

The ABSW study tour visits a dig in Israel. Led by Dean Robert Campbell, the group included four seminary students, eight pastors, four wives and two lay women.

One Trustee's Viewpoint

By Lynn Leavenworth

Dr. Lynn Leavenworth, director of the department of theological education for the American Baptist Convention, has expressed his deep appreciation for the decade of progress just completed at Covina.

He cited the full accreditation of the school, the building of an excellent faculty, the vitality of leadership poured into the churches of Southern California and the total denomination and the openness to enter creatively into the federation which is now the American Baptist Seminary of the West.

An alumnus and trustee of Berkeley, who recently served on the resources planning commission of the American Association of Theological Schools, Dr. Leavenworth has a particular appreciation for the strategic place of the Berkeley campus today. At President Heaton's invitation he wrote the following comments. They reflect conversations he has had across the country with Protestants and Catholics highly knowledgeable in theological education, as well as with his fellow alumni and denominational leaders.

LOOK WHAT WE HAVE GOING FOR US IN THE BERKELEY CAMPUS

A Unique Center for Christian Renewal
Where the Ends of the World Join.

The East and the West meet in the Bay Area; Africa and Asia gather at Berkeley. This is a laboratory in world Christianity. The "far off cultures" of Asia, Southeast Asia, India and Africa come across the Pacific to the West shores of the U.S.A. At the University of California, students from Asia and Africa abound. The international meets the internal forces; the Spanish American, the Black, the organizations and power groups of the U.S.A. This is the setting for Christianity to find its relevant expressions; in this center of world-wide meeting, Christianity seeks its trans-cultural relevance and meets the concrete problems of the crossing points of the cultures.

Here, the "Word" becomes incarnate amid the cultural confrontation. As a maturing ground for the Christian leadership of tomorrow's world the Bay area can be nothing short of God-given, especially for the modern missionary mind that stands in the tradition of Rice and Judson.

The social extremes meet in and around the University of California. Here again the seminary is situated to meet the scientists, the politicians, the poets, the hippies, the sophisticated, the poor, the elderly, the young. This is the setting for the age-old task of re-conceptualizing the Gospel in terms of the human condition. This could be nothing but stimulating to the modern followers of Rauschenbusch.

The Christian forces meet in the Berkeley setting. Protestant meets Protestant in the interseminary community. Lutheran, Episcopal, United Church, Presbyterian, Unitarian, Baptist and a cross section of all the denominations in the country. Where in the world is there a more favorable place for the hammering out of the meanings of heritage and challenge for the Baptist leaders of the future? This is the place for those who have grown tired of isolation and sectarianism. This is the place of growth for the mature and growing.

Dean Paul Clasper talks with middler Stuart Young on the Berkeley seminary campus. At right, the carillon of the University of California dominates the Berkeley skyline, with San Francisco and the bay beyond.

But this is also the meeting ground for Catholic and Catholic, and Protestant and Catholic. Stimulating and challenging. Where are Jesuits confronting Benedictines and Franciscans; where are the educational traditions of Catholic orders more creatively interrelated?

How can one imagine a more creative center for young theologs to grow in depth understanding of the Christian traditions and customs? Where are the stimuli of Christian mission and outreach among the various Christian expressions more available?

But the Churches Meet at Berkeley

Behind the seminaries stand the church bodies and the church executives who meet in the support of educational objectives. Here the rich variety of church organization and outreach is a treasure of insight into church history, theology. mission, practical theology, evangelism and Christian education. Here are the seemingly unlimited opportunities for observation, parcipation, involvement in the mission and outreach of the Christian body in its various denominational and organizational expressions. And here is the gathering point of the ordained and lay leadership of the Christian church of tomorrow.

What do we have going for us? Why, we have a natural inter-cultural, multi-social, inter-faith, inter-church laboratory for the development of competent Baptist leadership of the Christian cause for the 70's. All of these resources exist in Berkeley and are available for any seminarian who chooses to explore them.

Baptist Unity on the West Coast

The American Baptist Seminary of the West in itself is a concrete expression of ability of competitive Baptist interests to learn from their histories, draw upon the resources of the Gospel, draw together for the essential Christian tasks and form a coalition of interests unparalleled in the history of Baptist theological education. From this base is it not possible for students on both the Berkeley and Covina campuses to grow in awareness of the possibility of overcoming cultural, social and religious differences in local communities for the sake of the full expression of the Gospel? If the seminaries can achieve this, does it not follow that the leadership can catch a similar vision for the local congregations?

For the drawing together of these seminaries is above all an expression of Baptist unity where there had been division. This has to be understood as a response to the leading of God as well as a response to the challenge of the times.

Academic Strength in the Berkeley Framework

This is not the strength of a dogged digging into traditionalism. This is the strength born of daring, visionary education, creating new educational designs on the ecumenically cooperative base. In line with its historic emphasis on quality education, Berkeley today has the freedom to follow daring new designs. The Berkeley student has one of the richest deposits of theological education in America at his disposal, as the resources of all twelve seminaries banded together in the cooperative Graduate Theological Union are open to him.

Here is a center sufficiently vital that it is a learning ground for that accrediting association, the A.A.T.S. itself. The Berkeley cluster has helped A.A.T.S. understand the directions required for the accreditation of the new cluster designs for tomorrow.

Recruitment, a Pleasure

When one talks to prospective students about Berkeley as a "dynamic center," it is to speak of the "expanding horizons" of its cultural and social world, the new meanings of the faith coming up from the interchurch involvements and the claim that is laid on the future in the imaginative outreach into community. The students who hear the true story will do their own "recruiting."

Christ and the Dynamics of Culture

Must we not agree with Richard Niebuhr that the true relationship is one in which Christ transforms culture? Where is this more apt to take place than at Berkeley where one can see the confrontation of Christ and social turmoil, Christ and university turmoil, Christ and ecumenical turmoil, Christ and the forces creating the future, Christ and human hope? The convergence of these forces has to add up to a unique and compelling setting for theological education. Can it not be said that God has brought us to this place in this hour where God puts His claim upon the future, where God thrusts us into these life centers, where God thrusts us into the social dynamics?

This is a Climate for Christian Growth

Growth of the Christian in the urban environment, growth of the Christian among power groups, growth of the Christian in intellectual movements and growth of the Christian through ecumenical involvement — all of this is possible at Berkeley.

Baptists should thank God for the guidance that has brought us to this presence in the midst of a fertile and creative center of learning and living. In interdenominational circles distinguished persons with expertise in theological education, denominational strategies and the directions the church is going in relationship to the world consistently lift up Berkeley as the foremost setting for a seminary. Pastors and lay leaders of the Baptist churches, send your inquiring, your searching, your growing, your maturing, your promising youth to this human laboratory of Christian leadership development.

AATS Gives Green Light

Following survey visits in Berkeley last February by a team of experts from the American Association of Theological Schools, the accrediting agency in theological education, word was received this summer by President C. Adrian Heaton that the "Commission on Accrediting in its meeting of May 23-24 took unanimous action to continue the accreditation of Berkeley Baptist without notation." In a confidential newsletter to board members, Dr. Heaton explained that "without notation" means without demerits of any kind. (The Covina campus of the Seminary of the West is also fully accredited by the AATS.)

In August President John Dillenberger of the Graduate Theological Union was notified that the AATS Commission on Accrediting and nation-wide balloting by member schools of the AATS had voted to grant full accreditation to the GTU, which has now been in full operation for five years, as the AATS requires. This is the first cooperative theological program to receive accreditation by the AATS. In this, as in many other respects, the GTU has been a pioneer on behalf of other theological clusters in cities from Berkeley to Boston.

Once the AATS votes to grant accreditation, a school is thoroughly reviewed by visiting experts at five-year intervals. A constructive report and educational critique by Berkeley Baptists's team began with these words:

"Berkeley Baptist Divinity School has had to cope with an in-put of institutional adjustments in recent years that might have caused even a sophisticated computer to register 'tilt.' The visiting team was impressed with the resilience and initiative demonstrated by administration and faculty during this period of rapid transition in the life of the school."

Gordon Packard Named ABSW Finance Chairman

Mr. Gordon Packard, a member of the Berkeley board for six years, has accepted election as chairman of the finance committee for the Seminary of the West.

Mr. Packard graduated from Rutgers University in 1927, when he joined the staff of the International Business Machines Corporation. Within five years he became a senior executive for IBM, responsible for sales, service, education and advertising throughout the United States. Later he became director general of IBM in Europe and lived in Paris.

He also developed an innovative educational program for International Harvester and for three years was executive consultant for the Radio Corporation of America. During World War II he advised members of the American Bankers Association on war bond distribution. Later he owned and operated one of the Southwest's largest cattle and horse ranches at Vail, Arizona.

An active Baptist all of his life, Mr. Packard grew up in the Stelton Baptist Church in Stelton, New Jersey. Since 1960 he has been a trustee and moderator of the First Baptist Church of Menlo Park, California.

The Packards make their home in Atherton. He is an active member of the Bohemian Club of San Francisco.

Funds Needed to Match Challenge Gifts

The Seminary of the West is facing what President Heaton calls a "cash crunch." This fall as nearly 250 students register for classes on the Covina and Berkeley campuses, the school needs at least $100,000 in new money to be ready for them.

Two trustees and their wives have made challenge gifts of $27,000 and $15,000 which will be used to match each gift received, dollar for dollar.

The total budget (including capital investments) for both campuses is $1,084,000, which is within 3% of last year's budget. Despite necessary increases in salaries, scholarship aid and the cost of supplies, savings are being achieved by having one administration and by unifying the business and public relations staffs.

Dr. Heaton explained, "The major savings planned await the lease or sale of the present Berkeley campus when the school moves into the GTU cluster on the north side of the university campus and the sale or lease of a portion of the Covina campus. Because of the current tight money market, such property transfers are slowed so the financial burden remains heavy."

American Baptist churches in the western states which have made pledges to Berkeley, Covina or the Seminary of the West for 1969 are urged to send their contributions in this month. Churches also are reminded to include a significant amount for the Seminary of the West for 1970 as they plan their contribution to Part One of the American Baptist World Mission budget. Those who prefer may designate their gift for either the Berkeley or the Covina campus.

Sources of seminary income this year include $256,000 from tuition and campus rentals; $80,000 from endowment funds; and $75,000 from the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication, including the cancellation of a $50,000 note.

Dr. Heaton concluded, "Unless gifts from churches exceed the 1969 goal of $267,000 and gifts from individuals exceed $175,000, we shall end the year with a deficit of $231,000. Contributions made now will be doubled by the challenge gifts and the entire work of the seminary will be greatly strengthened."

Gifts may be sent to Dr. Heaton at either campus. Persons wishing information about the bequest and annuity program should contact Dr. Carrol O. Morong, vice president or Dr. Lawrence W. Allen, assistant to the president.

New Trustees Elected

Five new trustees of the American Baptist Seminary of the West will be invited to attend their first board meeting November 15 in Los Angeles.

They include REV. WILLIAM CLINE, pastor of Conejo Valley Baptist Church of Thousand Oaks and president of the Covina alumni; DR. THOMAS KILGORE, JR., pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Los Angeles and president of the American Baptist Convention; LOREN MCBAIN, graduate of Eastern Baptist College and student at Covina; CURTIS MCCORMACK, graduate of Oregon State University and student at Berkeley; and DR. C. ELROY SHIKLES, pastor of First Baptist Church of Grand Junction, Colorado and an alumnus of Berkeley, class of 1939.

J. Stillson Judah

ABSW JOINS IN GTU COMMON LIBRARY

First steps toward a common library were taken four years ago with the formation of the Bibliographic Center serving all schools in the Graduate Theological Union at Berkeley. Its staff coordinated acquisitions, catalogued the books and arranged for student and faculty use of all volumes and resource materials housed in the participating institutions.

In June, 1969, Dr. J. Stillson Judah was named as the GTU librarian. A noted author-educator, he had been professor of history of religions and librarian at the Pacific School of Religion since 1941. He was the GTU Bibliographic Center librarian on a part-time basis since 1966 and has long advocated the move to form a common library.

In announcing the appointment, Dr. John Dillenberger said, "There are few precedents since the Reformation when schools of theology representing the major faiths have taken so decisive a step as to merge irreplaceable academic assets such as their library holdings."

The common library will aid participating schools in keeping up with the knowledge explosion in books and maintaining an outstanding graduate library. Dr. Judah will be responsible for carrying out the merger and for allocating the $100,000 annual book buying budget.

When Alma College, the Jesuit seminary from Los Gatos, moved to Berkeley in September, its books were integrated into the common library. During the next few months only such books as are specifically needed for immediate use will be called for from San Francisco Seminary, Pacific Lutheran and the Seminary of the West. Consequently most of Berkeley's will continue to be housed in the Sandford Fleming library building.

In its initial stages, the common library will be housed in present library facilities of GTU schools on the north side of the university campus. Plans are now beginning to secure funds to build a new structure to house the volumes of the common library and provide the library resources needed by the 800 students in the participating schools.

Dr. Gottwald Returns From Year in Israel

Dr. Norman K. Gottwald, professor of Old Testament, Biblical theology and ethics at the Berkeley campus and the Graduate Theological Union, returned in September from a year's sabbatical in Israel. His research concerned the sociology and value systems of Israel's earliest religion.

As a research fellow at Hebrew Union College in Jerusalem he participated in extended field trips to Galilee, the Negeb desert and to Sinai by command car, as well as many one-day trips from Jerusalem. During the spring excavation at Gezer he worked at the 12th and 11th century level during the dig, which corresponded to the period of his formal research.

The research fellows took part in several stimulating conversations

Norman K. Gottwald

with archaeologists concerning the historical and cultural implications of their work. These included Yohanan Aharoni, Ruth Amiran, Joseph Callaway and Kathleen Kenyon. Hebrew Union College offered several slide-lecture reports on recent excavations not yet published.

Dr. Gottwald also spent two weeks visiting Hittite and Graeco-Roman archaeological sites in Turkey and two weeks in the Greek islands, concentrating especially on the Minoan remains in Crete.

His study began with the emergence of Israel in Canaan between 1200-1000 B.C., with the goal of determining the role of the religious factor in coping with socio-political conditions in that period and its applications today.

In a summary report for President Heaton, Dr. Gottwald wrote, "Certain of the well-known features of Israel's early theology have clear socio-political functional significance. That Yahweh is exclusive in his demands, personal in nature, a strong and wilful actor in communal history corresponds to the wilful and exclusive act by which Israel created itself in opposition to Egyptian imperialism and Canaanite feudalism, and in the process, converted separate groups to programs of joint action."

KEN KLIEVERS TO TEACH IN INDIA

Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth K. Kliever (M.R.E. Covina, 1958) left Pasadena August 21 enroute to India, where they will teach for six months in a new ecumenical seminary at Rajahmundry in South India. The president, Dr. Louis Knoll, is a close friend of theirs.

The Klievers are investing their own financial resources in this year of teaching and travel, so that their family can broaden their concepts by experiencing cultures and peoples around the world. They will be accompanied by their two daughters, aged 11 and 13.

In this English-speaking B.D. program, Mr. Kliever expects to do some teaching and work with students in practical field assignments. By spending 1968-69 studying at Los Angeles State and Pasadena College, he has completed the necessary educational credentials for his elementary teaching certificate and has earned an M.A. in education.

Since it is difficult for Americans to secure long-term visas for India, the Klievers have three-month visitor's visas, which can be extended for three additional months. This is almost a full school year in India. Their trip will conclude with a few months of camping in Europe and visiting Baptist-related work there.

During his student years Mr. Kliever served First Baptist Church in Taft. Since graduation he has been director of Christian education and youth work at First, Long Beach and Calvary, Pasadena.

Mrs. Kliever has taught elementary school in the Monrovia district.

"DUAL" ALUMNI HONORED

Distinguished Service Awards were presented to six University of Redlands alumni on May 31 with three of the six also alumni of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School.

Dr. Jesse D. Moses, '39, principal of Washington Junior High School in Pasadena, was recognized for "leadership in public education and for service to humanitarian organizations." A former Army chaplain, he is active in the Chamber of Commerce, Urban League, and NAACP.

Recognized for a "lifetime of work in central city mission projects and for service in experimental church programming" was the Rev. Carl D. Locke, '41. He is an assistant vice-president for the American Baptist Management Corporation, which involves low and middle income housing.

An instructor in social science at Citrus College, Azusa, Manley J. Johnson, '44, received the award for "outstanding leadership in teaching young people and service to bring about understanding of Negro culture and history." He has been a YMCA secretary in three California cities and was a pastor in two interracial, interdenominational churches in the Bay Area.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

COVINA CAMPUS

1949 Air Force Chaplain CHARLES J. BARNES has been promoted from lieutenant colonel to colonel.

1951 Serving the Arizona Convention of American Baptist Churches as director of the Department of Outreach and Service is GRANT B. YEATMAN, pastor of Monte Vista Baptist Church, Phoenix.

1954 WILLIAM C. COLE continues as pastor of the Explorers' Church of Long Beach, a congregation pioneering new areas of mission. An encounter group at a women's reformatory has been commended by government officials. A new program involves volunteers from the church working with parole agents of the California Youth Authority.

1957 Moving from the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Banning to Lindley Avenue Baptist, Tarzana, is CARL G. JENNINGS.

1958 Major JOHN A. DE SAEGHER, Army chaplain stationed at Van Nuys, reported 24 conversions. Among recent activities were leading two retreats, attendance at a counseling workshop, and sponsorship of a lecture series on narcotics . . . WALTER H. HOSTETTLER is pastor of First Baptist Church, Napa, moving from Pleasant Valley Baptist, Camarillo.

1959 Navy Lieutenant Commander JOHN N. DOLAGHAN received a letter of appreciation from the chief of Navy chaplains for a pre-marriage clinic conducted at the El Toro Marine Base. He has completed all work except the thesis for a master's degree in counseling at Chapman College. He is now on his second tour of duty in Vietnam.

1961 Leaving Temple Baptist Church, LaHabra, as director of Christian education, JOHN LYTTLE has gone to First Baptist, Camas, Wash., as pastor.

1965 RICHARD C. AXMANN has been serving since April 1 as pastor of the Community Baptist Church, Hulett, Wyo., and as director of the Wyoming Ranch Ministry, a joint venture of the church, the state convention, and the American Baptist Home Mission Societies . . . Chaplain WILLIAM A. HARRISON, Army captain, has returned from Vietnam to the Savanna Army Depot, Ill.

1967 In May FORREST BELL began his pastorate of the First Baptist Church, Raymond, Wash., going from Longview . . . Moving from director of the Weirton Christian Center, W. Va., to community organization with the Rankin Christian Center, Monroeville, Pa., is CLYDE CRIDLEBAUGH . . . Serving as pastor of the Sheffield Baptist Church, Ia., is R. TED NUTTING, moving from Hampton, Ia.

1968 JAMES H. BRAGAN began June 1 as pastor of the newly-formed Greater Nemaha (County) Larger Parish in Nebraska, with two American Baptist and two Disciples of Christ churches involved. There are some common services and program but each church also maintains some individual responsibilities. A parish council is being formed to direct business and activities.

Seventeen graduates of 1965 and 1966 returned to the Berkeley campus in June to discuss informally the implications of their seminary education and their earliest years in the ministry. The conference included some who have shifted from the pastorate to teaching or social work.

BERKELEY CAMPUS

1935 ARTHUR and OLGA LOVERIDGE retired this summer from the pastorate at Poston Community Baptist Church, Parker, Ariz.

1936 BOYCE VAN OSDEL is one of the writers of the new Christian Faith and Work Plan curriculum of the American Baptist Convention.

1937 RALPH T. COBB is now acting executive secretary for the North Dakota Baptist Convention in addition to his responsibility as executive secretary of the South Dakota Baptist Convention. His office remains at Sioux Falls.

1938 Mrs. James LeGrande (RUTH FINWALL) has moved from Middletown, O., to Denver, Colo.

1941 LOUISE VOTH, retired missionary of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, died on March 18 in Stowe, O. She was principal of Mather School, 1942-51.

1942 Congratulations to Chaplain VINCENT E. NELSON on becoming a colonel and receiving the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service in Japan.

1943 Commander BERYL L. BURR retired June 30 after 20 years of active duty as a Navy chaplain.

1944 The JOHN LANES (D.D. '59, Covina) recently celebrated their 25th anniversary of ministry at the First Baptist Church of Sunland.

1945 Now serving as manager-treasurer of the American Baptist Norcal Credit Union, with offices in Oakland, is ROBERT MARTIN. He was in business and 20 years in the pastorate before being associated with the Credit Union and its first manager-treasurer, the late Dr. M. E. Bratcher. Joining Mr. Martin as an associate is GORDON FORBES, '32, well known in California and Washington for his years of ministry in Christian education . . . Following a two-parish pastorate in Idaho, CHESTER NORTHROP has accepted a call to Pleasant Valley Baptist Church, Portland, Ore.

1946 WILBUR N. THORLAKSON has been pastor of the Florissant Valley Baptist Church, Mo. for 15 years. During this time there have been many new members, new buildings constructed, and mission sites developed.

1947 A feature story in the July-August issue of Crusader tells of JOHN MAC DONALD and his work with "hippies" in the Bay Area. A pastor in Mill Valley, he is also a Civil Air Patrol chaplain.

1948 MARCELLA FORD (Mrs. J. W.) was honored by the Oakland-Piedmont (Calif.) branch of the American Association of University Women as one of their "Women of the Year." . . . The honorary doctor of humane letters degree was conferred upon PAUL L. LAUBY at the commencement exercises of Silliman University, Philippines. After completing 16 years on the faculty, Dr. Lauby has returned to the United States . . . WAYNE and DORIS LONG have moved from Jackson to serve the Laurel Methodist Church, Oakland . . . KENNETH WALLACE (Hon.) retired from the pastorate of Thousand Oaks Baptist Church, Berkeley, began in September as a consultant on the Ministers' Salary Plan for the Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board of the American Baptist Convention, serving in Northern California.

1949 FRANK and IDA PEARL ('47) MC CRAY are now at Chester Avenue Baptist Church, Bakersfield, where he is director of Christian education.

1950 The E. P. Y. SIMPSONS have returned after two years of teaching in New Zealand. He has become associate professor of history at Alderson-Broaddus College in West Virginia.

1951 DORIS HONEY Vineyard and her family have moved to Albuquerque, N.M. where she attended the university this summer, working on library science and is now teaching public school. Her husband, William, is on leave of absence from the Bureau of Indian Affairs to work on his doctor of education degree.

1953 Moving to the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Holden, Mass., from Norfolk, Mass., is DON MENZEL.

1954 After seven years as pastor of First Congregational Church, Everett, Wash., IVAN C. CLEVELAND is now in private practice as a marriage and family counselor . . . Commander THAINE E. FORD, senior chaplain aboard the USS Ranger, was cited by Huntington College as the distinguished alumnus of the year . . . ROBERT FRONTERHOUSE has moved from Columbus, O., to Salina, Kan. . . . On May 4 ROBERT L. LARSEN was installed as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Nowata, Okla. He and Mrs. Larsen and son, Stephen, were refused permission by the Government of India to return to Assam where they had been missionaries under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies. . . . THOMAS MEICHO, director of admissions at Linfield College since 1960, has been appointed dean of admissions with overall responsibility for public relations, alumni, admissions, and publications . . . Included in the adult curriculum of the United Church of Christ is a book co-authored by ARTHUR MERRILL of the United Theological Seminary in Minnesota entitled The Biblical Witness in the World.

1955 In May ROBERT L. CLOATS joined the staff of the Division of World Mission Support of the American Baptist Convention as field counselor for western Pennsylvania. He and his family had been missionaries in Thailand since 1959 . . . Director of the second annual vacation church school of the Cedar Hills (Ore) United Parish was DWIGHT NEUENSCHWANDER, pastor of the Cedar Hills Baptist Church. Six denominations participated with 350 students registered and 60 teachers and leaders. The parish also sponsors a Dialogue Center in the shopping center, providing a "Christian presence," the opportunity for counseling by the participating pastors and a place for fellowship, conversations and coffee . . . LEE REICHSTEIN has moved from First Baptist Church, Fort Lupton, Colo., to First Baptist, La Junta.

1956 JACK J. CHINN writes from Brazil that he is busy with the Bible College established five years ago. He is in his second term of missionary service there . . . VICTOR DAVIS left the First Baptist Church, Fresno, after five years as director of Christian education to take further graduate work . . . JITSUKO TANAKA Reedy and her family were home for a short furlough in June from their work as United Methodist Church missionaries in Japan. She said their three-year-old son, David, is already bilingual and his Japanese is better than his father's and his English better than his mother's!

1957 V. O. BALDWIN is at Clearlake Highlands retired from the active ministry until health is restored following open heart surgery . . . Dr. and Mrs. WILLIAM K. GOURLEY (ESTHER BEESON) have moved from Shawnee Mission, Kan., to New Orleans, La. . . . DEAN D. KNUDSEN is in W. Lafayette, Ind., from Columbus, O. . . . MILTON O. WHITAKER has left the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Martinez, to engage in further study.

1958 Now at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Deming, N.M., is CHARLES E. ALLEN, moving from Pecos, Tex. . . . LEONARD BALLESTEROS, JR. is associate director of urban work and community ministries of the New Jersey Baptist Convention . . . In July CHARLES R. HARWOOD moved to the Church of the Savior, Mesa, Ariz. from First Baptist, Blythe.

1959 The CARL HOLMGREN family returned home in June for furlough from missionary service in Japan under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies . . . Major MARION D. PEMBER and Major HERBERT A. SNIDER, '62, Army chaplains, reported for duty in Vietnam in February.

1961 After four years as pastor of First Baptist Church, Fort Bragg, WALTER MORGAN moved in May to First Baptist, Red Bluff.

1962 NORMAN MC CUE now serves the Fremont Baptist Church, Seattle, Wash., following a seven-year pastorate at Grace Baptist, Tacoma . . . In May RAY MILER assumed the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Orland, after being associate pastor at First Baptist, Redwood City . . . WILLIAM THOMAS, JR. visited the campus in July on a "mid-term break" from service as a pastor in Kinshasa, Republic of Congo, under the British Baptist Mission Society.

1963 COLVIN BLANFORD received the doctor of religion degree from the School of Theology at Claremont on June 7. He is pastor of Cosmopolitan Baptist Church, San Francisco, and commuted to Southern California for two years! . . . RICHARD GRENELL became pastor of First Baptist Church, Placerville, in July, moving from First Baptist, Carmichael.

1964 Now at Glenn Baptist Church is EDWARD L. MC CALL. He was at Yountville . . . Following language study in Belgium, the VERNON STANLEYS are in Kinshasa, Republic of Congo, under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies . . . WILLIAM A STODDART resigned after five years as associate minister of Calvary Baptist Church, Denver, Colo., to accept a similar position at First Baptist, Portland, Ore., beginning in August.

1965 GEORGE GENTRY is living in Long Beach and recently took a trip to Germany. Seriously injured in Vietnam while serving as a lieutenant in the Army, he is a paraplegic and has been receiving therapy which will continue for another six to twelve months. He is contemplating further graduate study . . . Captain CURTIS G. SMITH, Army chaplain, has received two medals, the bronze star for meritorious service in Vietnam and the air medal.

In India the Jack McCriries pose with a newborn daughter, Heather Shanti.

1966 ESTHER ANG visited the school in June while on vacation from her work in the Neighborhood Center in Utica, N.Y. . . . H. DOUGLAS BROWN has completed all course work for the Ph.D. degree at UCLA, has passed his qualifying exams and will be writing his dissertation this year. . . . WILLIAM J. LAWTON, a United Methodist pastor, has moved from Portola to Milpitas.

1967 In June CHARLES D. WALKER, JR. became associate pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, Concord, after a pastorate at Community Baptist Church, Oakley.

1968 Deepest sympathy is extended to THOMAS GINGERICH in the death of his parents in an automobile accident in Iowa during July. His sister was seriously injured . . . WALTER PARRY is one of the directors of church and community studies under the American Baptist Extension Corporation and lives in Illinois.

1969 "The Importance of Being Verbal," the senior sermon of RONALD K. HARRIS, has been published in the May-June issue of Preaching, a bi-monthly journal of homiletics. Dr. William L. Malcomson of the Berkeley faculty is the ecumenical editor.

WEDDING BELLS

Congratulations and best wishes to:

1962 DAVID QUIRING, married May 10 to Miss Virginia Gates of Chicago. He serves First Baptist Church, Des Moines, Ia.

1968 THOMAS WYATT, married August 16 at the First Assembly of God Church, North Hollywood, to Miss Sharon Castagna.

NEW ARRIVALS

Congratulations and best wishes to:

1957 The JOHN TOWNSENDS on the birth of Alicia Carol.

1962 The WAYNE MARTINS on the birth of Geofrey Scott.

1963 Chaplain and Mrs. DONAL M. COWELL on the arrival of Richard Alan.

1964 The JACK MC CRIRIES on the birth of Heather Shanti ("peace" in Bengali). They are in India with the Peace Corps.

1966 FRANK and JANET (ZERBA) BROUGHER on a son, Peter Aaron.

1927 The JAMES MATHEWS' on the birth of Todd Randal.

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. I October 1969 No. I

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST
2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, Calif. 94704

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, April, October and December.

Entered as second class matter on March 13, 1931 at the post office at Berkeley, Calif., under the Act of August 24, 1912.

Address Correction Requested
Return Postage Guaranteed

Dean Robert Campbell

Speaking Personally

DR. ROBERT C. CAMPBELL, dean and professor of New Testament at the Covina campus since 1954, was granted a sabbatical leave for the fall months. Following his leadership of a six-week study tour in the Holy Land for Covina students and pastors, he spent two months in language study at the Sorbonne in Paris. From October until Christmas he will do research in New Testament studies at the University of Cambridge.

Dr. DAVID WALLACE, professor of Biblical theology, is serving as chairman of the faculty at Covina during Dean Campbell's sabbatical. Dr. Wallace will preside at faculty meetings, coordinate the reports of faculty committees and assist the president and the instruction committee of the trustees on matters of academic policy. DR. RICHARD DOSS will represent the dean on the Student Council and DR. ROBERT LAURIN will handle matters of transfer credits and academic standing.

DEAN PAUL CLASPER gave a paper on the response of Baptists in America to the current theological scene during a conference of European theological educators in Geneva September 1-4. Other participants included PRESIDENT and MRS. C. ADRIAN HEATON, MRS. CLASPER, DR. and MRS. CYRIL D. GARRETT and DR. CULBERT RUTENBER.

Rev. Bob Richards is a refreshing pied piper for physical fitness and positive American values. He left Los Angeles in June to jog or cycle every foot of the 3384 miles across the country to encourage his fellow Americans to get out of their chairs and out of doors. Driving the van for his fitness crusade is ROBERT J. MCMULLIN, a graduate of UCLA and a middler at Covina.

DR. ELDON ERNST and DR. HAROLD FRAZEE of the Berkeley faculty were delegates to a June conference sponsored by the Center for Urban-Black Studies of the GTU. The conference began in the Berkeley chapel with a service of requiem. The Martin Luther King lectures were given by Dr. Major Jones, president of Gammon Theological Seminary in Atlanta.

We rejoice in the swift recovery from surgery of an ABSW trustee, DR. EMMETT PARKS of Covina and of DR. MAURICE JACKSON, vice president for the Berkeley campus.

The newest member of the ABSW board of trustees is CURTIS MCCORMACK, representing the Berkeley student body. Now that he has completed his intern year at Good Shepherd Baptist Church in Lynnwood, Washington, Curt will serve as head maintenance man at the seminary during his senior year.

As "head wrangler at the ranch" this summer, BEN PATTERSON of Covina was featured in the Forest Home bulletin as one who helps youth relate God's word to their lives.

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume I Number 2
DECEMBER 1969

AS WE WATCH MOON LANDINGS, we realize afresh the significance of God's new creation in the birth of Christ Jesus. May His love for all men bring peace to a troubled world.

FACULTY / DIALOGUE

Dimensions of Curriculum At Berkeley

The theological seminary is an expression of the life of the Christian church. It is "the intellectual center of the church's life." (H. Richard Niebuhr) It lives also as the servant of the church, seeking to train ministers for varied and changing ministries in today's increasingly complex and secularized world.

The church can be more accurately pictured than defined: it is God's chosen instrument of communication; the body of Christ; and the community of the Holy Spirit. It is the channel by which the new quality of life originating in Christ is mediated to God's world. The church exists to share the good news — the gospel — as a community of ambassadors in a life and ministry of re-creation and reconciliation.

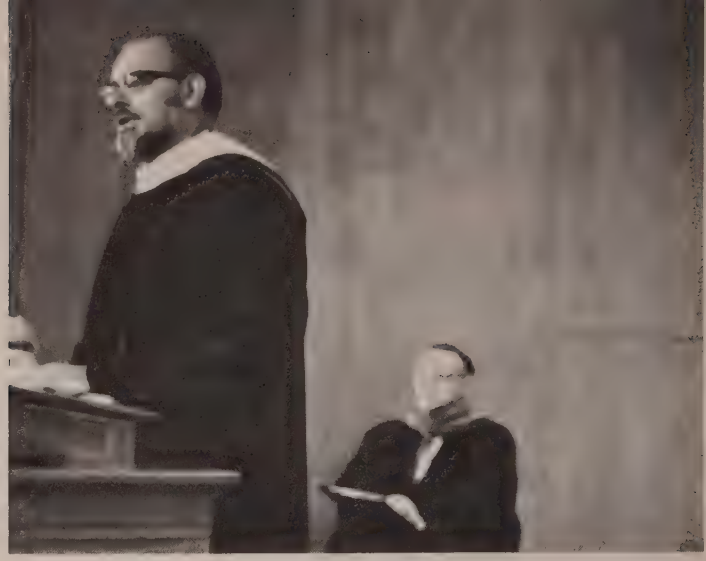
The theological curriculum is the structured-but-flexible instrument of the learning process. It is designed to help persons mature in their understanding of the Christian faith and mission and to enhance their capacities for a lifetime of growth and service. The curriculum is concerned with the whole person in all of his relationships: classroom and in-service training; seminar and "bull session;" campus life and community involvement.

The curriculum is concerned with a scholarly competence in the areas of Bible, church history, theology and cultural analysis; and the ability to think and relate these understandings to life situations. The capacity for dialogue and seeing interrelationships across disciplinary, cultural and ecclesiastical lines is fostered. These foundational disciplines have as their focus the growth of persons for ministry.

The curriculum also provides for clinically oriented field education experiences where learning takes place in actual life situations. Supervised field education and intern programs are integral, not incidental, to the process of theological maturity. Field education is kept in "fruitful tension" with interpretation and theological reflection. Learning through doing is related to the rhythm of action and reflection.

The curriculum is designed to make the maximum use of the life-situation of the San Francisco Bay area. Within an hour's radius of the seminary campus can be found a veritable microcosm of contemporary America—ghettos and universities; suburbs, slums and villages; rolling farmland and industrial complexes; ocean, valleys and mountains. Encouragement is given to shape specific study programs, using to the full the resources of the many educational institutions in Berkeley. The Graduate Theological Union itself reflects the diversity-in-unity of the whole area and is rightly known as one of the most exciting theological centers of the world.

The theological curriculum is the subject of constant, critical scrutiny by the whole seminary community—trustees, faculty and students. A dynamic faith calls for a continual reevaluation and reappropriation of the meaning of the gospel and the mission of the church. This in turn calls for fresh understandings and experiments in the processes whereby learning and growth take place. The ferment of the cultural situation in Berkeley is most conducive to a curriculum responsive to the contemporary scene.



Paul Clasper

Dean, Berkeley Campus

(Reprinted from the 1970 Berkeley catalog)

Members of the Berkeley quartet include Shirley Field, Rick Mixon, Bill Kastning and Steve Ott.

Professor Robert H. Mitchell gave the convocation address on "Music — Substance or Shadow." He pointed out that since the Middle Ages attention has shifted from the composer to the performer to the listener, "until today we are enveloped in a kind of musical wallpaper." Nearly 300 attended the Covina event.

BERKELEY QUARTET SINGS

Many Baptists have already heard the Berkeley Quartet sing during the Southern California convention at Hollywood Hills and the Northern California convention at Redding.

Under the guidance of Professor John Burke, instructor in church music, the quartet members are prepared to sing, dramatize, dialogue, witness, recruit, lead recreation and conduct worship services in Baptist churches. Their schedule is fast filling up, but a limited number of dates are still available through Miss Carol Goodman, administrative assistant at the Berkeley campus.

Leader of the group is Mr. Shirley Field, a second year student from Lodi. He earned his B.S. with honors in business administration at the Berkeley campus of the University of California in 1948. After serving as an accountant, he decided to enter seminary to pursue his interest in Christian education. An accomplished musician, he sings first tenor, plays the piano and composes music.

The second tenor is Rick Mixon, a 1969 graduate of Columbia University, where he was concert and tour manager for the Columbia Glee Club. He also sang with a 12-man madrigal group and the varsity quartet. During the summer of 1968 he interned in the Washington office of Wayne Morse, then U.S. Senator from Oregon.

Bill Kastning was graduated from Ottawa University in 1968 with majors in chemistry and biology and entered seminary last March. Interested in Christian education, especially summer camping for youth, he interned last summer as a recreation center director at King City. He sings baritone and plays the guitar.

Steve Ott of Bellevue, Washington, sings bass and plays the guitar. He was graduated from Linfield College in 1969 with a double major in philosophy and religion. He sang in the Linfield a cappella choir for four years and in many small ensembles. He was elected choir president during his senior year. He is interested in professional counseling, working with disturbed children.

PRESIDENT'S DINNERS SET DECEMBER 5-6

The president's invitational dinners will be held at the Los Angeles Biltmore on Friday, December 5 and at the Sheraton-Palace in San Francisco on Saturday, December 6. The occasions will observe the first anniversary of the incorporation of the American Baptist Seminary of the West.

Trustees, faculty, alumni officers and special friends of the school will be invited to attend. Tickets will be $6.00 per person and will include roast beef in the Renaissance Room at the Biltmore and leg of lamb in the Gold Ballroom at the Sheraton-Palace.

The fourteen-voice Covina concert choir, under the direction of Professor Robert Mitchell, will sing in Los Angeles and the Berkeley quartet, directed by Professor John Burke, will sing in San Francisco.

Both occasions will include recognition of the fact that Dr. Adrian Heaton has completed ten years as president of the Covina campus and two years as president of the Berkeley campus.

The New Curriculum at Covina

By Robert Laurin

Fiddling with the curriculum seems to be a habit shared by most educational institutions and the American Baptist Seminary of the West at Covina is no exception. We hope we have a symphony going on the Knolls, yet we recognize that anything new takes a while getting used to, so there are a few discordant notes.

About five years ago the faculty started working seriously at changing the structure of the curriculum. This was undertaken with the belief that the teaching-learning enterprise at the seminary should attempt to prepare persons for various kinds of Christian ministry in a changing world, not for explicit mastery of the various theological and functional disciplines.

We see ourselves more as a professional school (note: I did not say "trade school") than as a graduate school, although recognizing that there can be no meaningful professional work without its being permeated by the academic and research concerns of graduate study. Yet we face our curriculum clearly and consciously with the intention of providing a situation where men and women can above all learn to become effective, functioning ministers in the varied situations of our modern church and society.

The student who leaves this seminary must not be simply a purveyor of information or manipulator of the status quo, but rather a reflective and skillful leader who can help the church and the ministry adapt to unforeseen situations, so as to help all men to find the meaning of existence under God.

The Four Goals

The curriculum revolves around what the faculty has dubbed the "SPSP concept." These letters represent the four main goals of the curriculum. First, we are trying to develop a "spiritual" person, that is, a man or woman of God. We believe that our graduates should be intelligently and profoundly committed to Jesus Christ. Our aim here is to recognize that the word "spiritual" is dynamic and involves growth and change. This kind of person has made a commitment, exhibited in the way he lives and thinks. He is motivated by the hope of God's purpose and a sense of transcendence in his life, but is always on the road to Christian maturity and certainty.

Second, the curriculum is concerned with "persons." We understand that the gospel is communicated through personality. While in special circumstances an overlooked aspect of the gospel may be effectively promoted by a lopsided personality, in general a balanced person will best express the fullness of the gospel. So we seek to develop men and women who can minister effectively because of their ability to accept and understand themselves and others. This sense of balance is achieved, therefore, when one learns to work with love, with honesty, with responsibility, while having a sense of one's own autonomy and independence from culture and church.

Third, our students are being prepared to be "social" persons. The church has always been called to be involved in society, not to withdraw from it. And the gospel has always been intended to be proclaimed to men and women living in particular cultural situations. This is why we want graduates who understand how society shapes men and institutions, including the church, so that the gospel might be effective. A functioning minister must understand human personality in terms of the social processes of his day that provide both for change and stability. He must be aware of the power structures and processes by which these can be achieved.

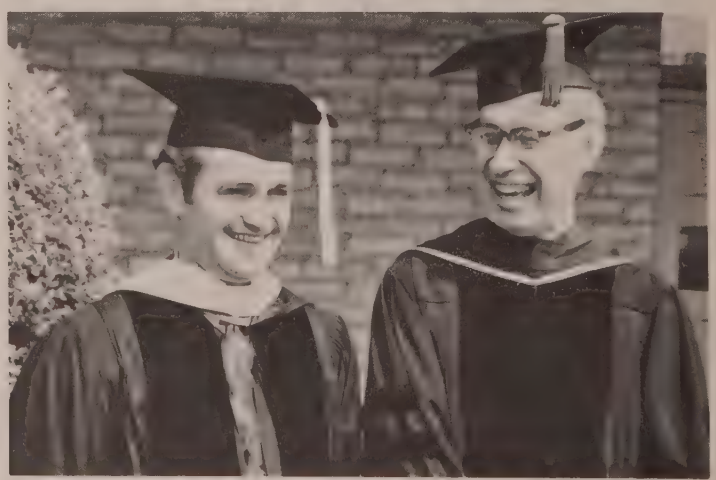
Fourth, we are interested in developing "professional" ministers. This word describes one who is intellectually and technically competent to deal with the varieties of tasks facing the minister. Thus the student must learn the traditional skills of the church vocations, but also be adaptive enough to develop new forms that may be necessary in a given situation.

New Teaching Methods

How does the seminary go about achieving these goals? I must confess that here excitement is mixed with frustration. We are tremendously enthused about what is taking place, but we are moving in territory that has not been charted before. We have made some wrong turns and had to make some changes.

Part of the difficulty lies in the very strength of the new curriculum. Under older methods of teaching the professor dispensed the information, while the student took it down, later to regurgitate it on an examination. Now that has changed. The professor is still at the heart of things, but so is the student. Each person is given major responsibility for educating himself. Much more is demanded of the student in terms of research, evaluation, planning, communicating and self-criticism. The resources of professors, library and community are available, but the student is required to utilize more of them on his own initiative.



We are attempting to establish the kinds of teaching-learning experiences, personal relations and programming which are characteristic of the professional experiences and requirements of contemporary ministry. Thus we want a man or woman to come to the end of his formal education on campus, and not have to ask with great apprehension, as so many of us asked: "Now what do I do with all the information I have obtained?" Our graduates should be able to leave the seminary and continue to function in the ways they have learned here. The task of ministry should not be a surprise.

Studies for the M.Div.

With all this in mind the faculty has structured the curriculum to include various foundational areas of study. Each is inter-related with the others, but emphasizes its own contribution to the over-all task. For the Master of Divinity degree the following three-year program has been devised.

A. The first quarter the student is involved in two major courses. The first and largest is the Prolegomena ("introductory words"). Here the transition is made from the "content-centered" approach to "function-centered" concerns of the seminary. The course operates on the belief that there are some things a person must know about the theological enterprise before he Professors Scott Irvine and Culbert G. Rutenber were formally installed as members of the Covina faculty during the academic convocation on October 3. Mr. Irvine is assistant professor of pastoral counseling and Dr. Rutenber is professor of philosophy of religion.

Team teaching is a necessary ingredient in Covina's new curriculum. Dr. Robert Laurin (Old Testament) is shown here with Dr. Bernard Ramm (systematic theology).

can ask useful questions. To provide the primary biblical, theological and historical tools that are foundational for undertaking the task of ministry, we survey the basic contents and methodologies of each discipline. Lectures, broad reading and critical papers are still central, marking only a half-step into the curriculum.

The other course is a Practicum ("practice"). The concentration here is on learning to experience and develop the tools of communication and the techniques of group work. Once again it is only an initial step, since the majority of time is not yet spent on the practice of communication or group work. The stress is on evaluation—how does the church communicate, what can the artist say better than the preacher, what are the varieties of ways to communicate, what are the dynamics of group experience and so on.

B. The next five quarters provide the heart of the curriculum. The student's time is taken up with three major kinds of courses. First there are the Colloquia ("conversations"). Here teams of professors and students work together at learning (1) to develop techniques of analyzing life situations, (2) to think theologically about these life circumstances, and (3) to formulate ways to respond to the basic questions of life in terms of specific content and methodology.

The student and professor together examine and reflect upon various psychological and sociological situations in our contemporary world. This may occur on campus through a variety of media, or it may involve exposure off-campus. Through lectures, group projects, individual research and tutorial help, the student examines the theological materials that provide resources for dealing with these life problems. Finally the students and professors work together to formulate effective ways of communicating a Christian response.

For the Task of Ministry

The Colloquia have been designed to embrace the basic areas of life to which the Christian ministry must speak, and with which it must work. The five courses under this title are meant to typify the task of ministry. In this we have been given guidance by the curriculum plan developed by the Cooperative Curriculum Project. This is the work of professional curriculum representatives from sixteen denominations in the United States and Canada, summarized in two volumes totaling more than 1000 pages. This research was also basic in developing the denomination's new Faith and Work plan.

Supplementing the Colloquia are the two other kinds of courses. Each of them is considered to be an opportunity to work in greater depth and detail on either the "content" or "functional" aspects of the Colloquia. The first of the two is the Preceptorial ("teaching"). In these the student emphasizes the "content" side of Christian ministry by engaging in intensive research and discussion on a specialized area. These five courses deal with the behavioral sciences, philosophical theology, Christian theology, biblical materials and church history. In each the student prepares a research paper under faculty guidance, and defends a précis of his work.

Students on the committee to plan the faculty-student retreat met with their advisor, Dr. Richard Doss, assistant professor of preaching.

A trinity of guitar players including Loren McBain, Les Holstein and Dick Doss led spirited group singing.

A vigorous volleyball game between the faculty and students is a retreat tradition. This year, the students won.

The second of the two is the Practicum ("practice"). These four courses stress the "functional" side of ministry. The student has the opportunity to learn and practice the wide range of functions needed in the ministry. This includes exegesis, counseling, preaching, group work, pastoral work, educational techniques, communication through music, writing, multimedia techniques and so on.

What is most important is that the student is involved in the Preceptorials and Practica in close relationship both with the Colloquia and with his or her job or field experiences. This underscores the intent of the curriculum to help students learn in the context of life situations. We also recognize that learning is an emotional process as well as intellectual. Group work begins in the first of these five quarters with sensitivity training.

The Senior Year

C. With the completion of these courses the student has reached the senior year. Some now take an extra year to work as an intern in a supervised situation. For those who remain in the three-year program the next two quarters are free of any specific course requirements. The student is encouraged to concentrate his elective courses in areas dealing with special interest or professional goals.The seminary offers a wide range of classes, as well as guided research and reading. A variety of off-campus opportunities include study at the Berkeley campus of ABSW or in the Claremont Colleges complex, participation in the clinical pastoral education program in local hospitals and training for urban work at the Center of Metropolitan Mission In-Service Training in Los Angeles.

The final quarter of a student's work involves electives and two required courses. The first is Workshop. Here the student develops his personal "statement of faith" in a small group under the guidance of a professor. The faculty believes that there should be a time at the end of the student's formal theological education when he is asked to step back from his three years and answer the question: "Where do I stand theologically at this moment in my ministry?"

The other course is Communications. Here the student is asked to utilize the variety of tools that he has learned through the previous years in making a multimedia presentation.

The seminary also offers the Master of Religious Education degree. It is a two-year program, but apart from a series of specialized educational courses which are substituted for some of the Preceptorials and Practica, the course is comparable to the first two years of the Master of Divinity program.

Professors at Covina have spent five years developing a new curriculum which seeks to prepare ministers to function effectively in church and society.

Evaluating the progress of a student in this program is guided by our belief that we should train persons for Christian ministry. There are some examinations given which ask for a grasp of contents of a particular area. This is especially true of the middler screening examination. At the end of the first year each student must pass a six-hour examination in Old Testament, New Testament, Church History and Systematic Theology. Successful completion is required for a student to be able to move into his second year.

However, most evaluation is made on the basis of functioning in the ministry. The ability to analyze situations, to relate biblical ideas to contemporary problems, to structure programs, to handle challenges, to deal with other people are of paramount concern. This is also reflected in the oral comprehensive examination. Given at the end of the second year and required for entrance into senior standing, it involves the student's ability to handle test situations. A week before he is to meet with the faculty, the student is given two detailed case studies which he must research and from which he must present a plan for ministry.

The kind of unified curriculum which the faculty has developed at Covina is possible only because there is a common commitment to professional concerns. We are excited about it, even though it takes a great deal more of our time and still needs refinements. Yet the conviction increases in all of us that we are participating in the education of men and women who will make significant contributions for Christ to the world.

Four Berkeleyites led the conference of Baptist theologians in Geneva. Pictured are Dr. Robert Rasmussen '60 and Dr. Lynn Leavenworth '43 of the ABC's department of theological education and Dean Paul Clasper, who delivered a paper. Not shown is Dr. Gordon Lahrson, former BBDS professor who now heads American Baptist work in Europe.

BERKELEY PUBLISHES NEW CATALOG

"Action follows conviction, not knowledge." (DuNouy) "Life can only be understood backwards; but it can only be lived forwards." (Kierkegaard) "May God deny you peace but give you glory." (Unamuno)

Sprinkled with such mind-jogging quotations selected by Dean Paul Clasper and tasteful contemporary art by Janet Clasper, the new catalog was edited by Carol Goodman and came from the press in September.

Dean Clasper explained, "It seeks to present the stance and direction in which the school is moving. It also interprets Baptist involvement in core courses and electives taught cooperatively by a dozen Protestant and Catholic seminaries through the Graduate Theological Union. Its contemporary format combines the interpretive material of a recruitment brochure with the factual and curricular information included in most catalogs."

Two "samples" of the Berkeley catalog can be found in the article by Dr. Clasper on page two of this issue and in the sketch by Mrs. Clasper on page nine.

President C. Adrian Heaton added, "The Berkeley catalog now joins the Covina catalog published in May. You may be just the right person to invite some college student or recent graduate to look at one of these new catalogs and listen to God's inner call to prepare for service in one of the church-related vocations. Please send us their names, addresses and other information that will help us reach them."

$73,500 RECEIVED SINCE AUGUST

In August the Seminary of the West launched a campaign to secure $100,000 to aid in meeting operating expenses for the opening of the school year. More than 250 students are attending classes on the Berkeley and Covina campuses this quarter, requiring a sizable cash outlay for such varied items as scholarship aid, faculty and staff salaries, library acquisitions and many other needs.

Mr. Victor N. Osterman, Jr., business manager for both campuses, reported that as of October 24 the seminary had received $42,000 in challenge gifts from two trustees and their wives and $31,485 in matching funds. "This means that we still need $26,500 to complete the gift matching program," he said.

In planning the year's program, the seminary board also anticipated receiving $70,000 in Christmas and year-end contributions.

J. A. SMITH ELECTED TRUSTEE

Rev. James Alfred Smith, area representative of the Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board, has been elected to fill a vacancy on the board of trustees of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School and the Seminary of the West.

A native of Kansas City, he was senior class president in high school, college and seminary. At Western Baptist College in Kansas City, he received a B.S. degree in elementary education. After three years as a school principal, he earned his B.D. and Th.M. degrees at Missouri School of Religion at the University of Missouri.

He served for six years on the staff of the American Baptist Churches of Northern California and for two years as assistant to the president at Bishop College in Dallas, Texas. He joined the M&M staff in January.

On a spring trip to Europe in 1968 he spoke extensively to university and seminary students and Baptist groups in Sweden and Denmark and gave an address to the World Council of Churches staff in Geneva.

He is a member of the National Committee of Black Churchmen, and chairman of the board of Opportunities Industrialization Center in Oakland.

Mrs. Smith earned her B.S. degree at Bishop College and teaches adult education classes in Oakland. The Smiths are the parents of three sons and two daughters.

BERKELEY STUDENTS SERVE AS INTERNS

First-hand experience guided by a skillful co-worker is the best teacher. This is the theory behind the internship program for Berkeley students.

The goals of internship are to help students spend their third year of seminary developing their personal and professional identities as ministers serving churches away from the campus. It also helps them discover the major thrusts of education they want to explore when they return for their senior year.

Curt McCormack served last year as intern minister at Good Shepherd Baptist Church in Lynnwood, Washington, near Seattle. Its founding minister, Rev. Bernard L. Turner '55, had served there since 1960 and was granted a year's leave to study at Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kansas.

Curt's myriad duties included preaching every Sunday, leading groups in Bible study and the new church school curriculum, directing and composing for the primary and junior choirs, teaching a class for junior highs, conducting weddings and funerals, doing pastoral counseling and calling, organizing a college group and planning experimental worship services. He also assisted the committee that put on the youth night program at the Seattle convention.

At Thousand Oaks Baptist Church in Berkeley, Douglas-Bruce Heusser was minister of education for fourteen months, assisting Rev. R. Dale Johnson '60. As he worked with the church school, youth groups and board of Christian education and assisted in the morning service, "D-B" concluded, "Relationships are the keys to the ministry. If you can relate to people as people and accept them as they are, your problems tend to diminish."

Carroll Morony spent his internship year as the assistant minister at First Baptist Church in Loveland, Colorado, where he worked with Rev. Francis K. Hauseman. He preached once a month, including dialogue sermons and talk-back sessions; taught the adult class during the fall quarter; was a soloist with the choir; led several special programs for the young people; directed an evaluation of the church program; was a member of the radio-television committee of the ministerial association; and participated in several radio programs. During the summer he supervised six counselors-in-training at Black Forest Baptist Assembly in Colorado and later married his co-counselor in a Christmas wedding.

Bill Kastning did a summer internship at Community Baptist Church in King City, California, where he assisted Rev. Earl W. Grote '63. He was director of a community-oriented summer recreation program serving children and youth, worked with the church youth groups and did some preaching.

Nine Interns This Year

Several specialized kinds of internships are being worked out for nine third-year students this year. Larry Bowden is a staff member at First Baptist Church in Waterloo, Iowa. He serves with Rev. Gary Reif '63, who was minister of Larry's home church in Illinois when he decided to come to seminary.

Those assisting hospital chaplains include Bill Clarke at Mounds-Midway Hospital and School of Nursing in St. Paul, Minnesota; Jerry Gilmer at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco; and Gene Modell at Herrick Memorial Hospital in Berkeley.

At Linfield College in Oregon, Gerry Roe is working with students under the direction of Chaplain Joseph D. Ban. As an innovation this year, two students are doing academic internships. Stuart Young is aiming at a bi-vocational ministry which would involve high school counseling and weekend church work. He is earning a master's degree in counseling at Cal-State at Hayward. John Harrington plans to earn his master's in educational psychology at Cal-State, along with assisting in the seminary dining hall.

Those serving with Rev. Julius Pender '57 at the United Christian Centers of Sacramento include Carol Dudley and Mike Dyer, who are group leaders.

Dr. A. Stanley MacNair, minister of the Bancroft Avenue Baptist Church in San Leandro, is directing the seminary's intern and field education programs.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

Twelve alumni of the American Baptist Seminary of the West are among the officers and board members elected by the Southern California Baptist Convention at its annual meeting in October. The first vice-president is Dr. Ivan B. Bell (B '33) of Redlands.

Members of the board of managers include Rev. Robert C. Bradford ('56), San Bernardino, Rev. Everett W. Curry Jr. ('67), Lakeview Terrace, and Rev. Robert J. Rose ('60), Poway, all of Covina; and Rev. Horacio Quinones ('67), Los Angeles, Dr. Donald E. Reiter ('60), La Mirada, Rev. David L. Silke ('53), Redlands, and Dr. John F. Lane ('44), Sunland, all of Berkeley.

Among the association representatives are Rev. Robert J. Westgate (C '63), Hacienda Heights, Rev. Sylvester Acevedo (B '55), Brawley, Rev. Gordon Gilbert (C '54), Bakersfield, Rev. Merrill O. Brininstool (B '29), Los Angeles, and Mr. Silke.

COVINA CAMPUS

1951 Congratulations to the Rev. and Mrs. GRANT YEATMAN of Phoenix, Ariz., on the birth of Paul Grant on June 13.

1953 MARVIN FRIESEN of Blossom Hill Baptist Church, San Jose, became pastor of Emerald Baptist Church, Eugene, Ore., on September 14.

1954 JOHN D. BLOCK received a master's degree in philosophy from Wichita State University in Kansas. A pastor in Wichita for eight years, he is now ministering in Weatherford, Okla. A son, Paul, received his M.D. degree from the University of Kansas Medical School in June and is interning in Wichita. Another son, James, works in the credit office of Texaco Oil Co. and lives in West Covina.

1961 NORMAN DALTON has moved from the pastorate of Temple Baptist Church, Fontana, to First Baptist, Rivera.

1962 Following a serious accident enroute to Seattle for the American Baptist Convention in May, ROBERT PAULUS has returned to his responsibilities as pastor of the Belmont Baptist Church.

1967 GARY PUTNAM is working on his doctoral dissertation in Pauline theology at Basel, Switzerland, under Dr. Oscar Cullmann. In May he was married to Miss Rita Stalder of Basel. They recently visited his parents in Seattle, the Berkeley and Covina campuses and vacationed in Honolulu.

1968 DONALD STURGEON began his pastorate at the Westlake Community Baptist Church, Daly City, on September 1. He had been serving University Baptist in Palm Desert.

1969 On September 1 DAVID C. BLOOM began his work as minister of Christian education at the Noank Baptist Church, Noank, Conn. . . . A service of ordination for ROBERT BROUWER was held on June 29 in the First Baptist Church, Stockton, his home church. Participants included Dr. Emmett Parks ('55 Hon.), former pastor of the Stockton church and now serving

The president's gavel of the Woman's Auxiliary at Covina was passed to Betty Bradford (left), wife of alumnus-trustee Robert C. Bradford '56 by outgoing president Ann Dunkelberger, wife of alumnus Kenneth Dunkelberger, also class of 1956.

First Baptist in Covina, where Mr. Brouwer is his assistant minister, and Dr. Donald Thomas, vice-president of ABSW at Covina . . . PAUL K. GIDDINGS is now minister of Christian education at Valley Park Baptist Church in Sepulveda in the San Fernando Valley . . . ALLEN E. TREICHEL has been called as associate minister at Sixth Avenue Baptist Church in Tacoma, Wash.

BERKELEY CAMPUS

Four of the seven articles in the special World Fellowship Offering insert in the September Crusader were written by American Baptist missionaries who graduated from or attended the Berkeley campus: Edward E. Bollinger ('50-'51), Okinawa; Arley R. Brown (B.D. '51), Congo; M. Kent Mayfield (B.D. '63), Japan; and Susanne I. Powers ('59-'60), India.

1930 MARGARET LOBB, associate professor of religious education at Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, received the honorary doctor of divinity degree from PSR at the June commencement. A former faculty member of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School, she retired after 22 years on the PSR faculty. She has traveled extensively and engaged in a wide range of responsibilities.

1946 The September Crusader has a cover story on the ministry of MELVIN PEKRUL, pastor, and the First Baptist Church in "The City That Never Sleeps" — Las Vegas, Nev. Clyde B. Reynolds, a 1969 graduate of Covina, is the minister of Christian education.

1951 In May ALICE FINDLAY received the M.A. degree from Andover Newton Theological School. She has served as an American Baptist missionary in India.

1954 ELIZABETH CHAMBERS was named interim field secretary for the Philippine Baptist Mission in September. She continues as head librarian for Central Philippine University in Iloilo City, where since 1954 she has trained librarians throughout the Philippines . . . Serving as acting dean at Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa., during the sabbatical of the dean is ROBERT A. MACOSKEY, professor of Christian history.

1955 At the University of Stockholm RODGER HARRISON is studying language and Russian church history. He has been working under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies as chaplain to American and English-speaking nationals in Moscow. Recently in Sweden he and the Frank Cralles (she is Berkeley's professor of speech) were together for dinner and the ballet . . . On October 1 DWIGHT A. NEUENSCHWANDER became pastor of First Baptist Church, Boulder, Colo., following a pastorate at Cedar Falls Baptist in Portland, Ore.

Students, faculty and wives found opportunities to get acquainted during Berkeley's fall retreat, which began with a picnic in Tilden Park and concluded with dinner and a student meeting on campus.

1956 "Campus Unrest and Christian Faith: Another View" is the title of an article by RAYMOND P. JENNINGS in the June issue of Mission. He is pastor of Berkeley's First Baptist.

1957 NORMAN GREEN JR. of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies has moved from Elmhurst, Ill., to Valley Forge with additional responsibilities in the church strategy program . . . DOUGLAS L. SAXBY is teaching classes in English literature at San Quentin Prison and at the College of Marin. He has been an alternate for the "Fantasticks" performances (musical theater) at Ghiradelli Square in San Francisco.

1959 One of seven faculty members of Sioux Falls College honored by the alumni association was GERTRUDE REVOIR.

1960 Now pastor of First Baptist Church, Boone, Ia., is R. DEAN DIXON (BARBARA METZ '56). He recently participated in a month-long study tour in the Holy Land . . . RONALD KUKA has moved to the pastorate of the American Baptist churches in Omro and Winneconne, Wis. . . . One of the two pastors serving as commentators on a local TV series in Kansas City, Mo., is JAMES LEFFINGWELL, associate at First Baptist Church. The 15-minute program, which "presents news from a Christian viewpoint," is sponsored by the Metropolitan Inter-Church Agency, representing 19 religious groups.

1963 GARY L. REIF, pastor of First Baptist Church, Waterloo, Ia., reports engaging in a new ecumenical experiment in his community. It is a "Dialogue Center" located in the home of a Roman Catholic monsignor. The center is a place where small groups of clergy and lay people meet informally to discuss issues, theology and to relate the Christian faith to community problems. Programs of the Urban Ministry Board, coordination of summer jobs for youth and a sensitivity training program for blacks and whites are channeled through the center.

1964 HJORDIS ANDERSSON and GERD ULMSTEDT, Swedish Baptist missionaries to Japan, are on furlough in Sweden and have visited with the Frank Cralles. Miss Andersson has been on deputation and Miss Ulmstedt has been working on a doctor's degree at the University of Uppsala. They will return to Japan in the summer of 1970.

Ruth and William Cadwallader, who earned B.D. degrees at Berkeley in 1953 and 1954, are studying at the Covina campus during a furlough from missionary service in Thailand.

1967 A service of ordination for JAMES R. MATHEWS was held September 7 by the First Baptist Church of Carmichael in the sanctuary of the First Baptist Church in Sacramento. He served on the staff of the Carmichael church for two years before accepting a position with the American Baptist Churches of Northern California. Participating in the service were John Burke of the seminary, Dr. Wilbur C. Christians and Rev. Herbert R. Cederberg of the Sacramento church, Dr. Blair Hurd of the Carmichael church, Rev. Rodney R. Romney of Oakland's Lakeshore Avenue Baptist, and Rev. LeRoy Willard and Rev. Philip R. Anderson of the state convention staff.

1969 DENNIS ERICKSON was ordained to the ministry on September 28 in the First Baptist Church, Pocatello, Ida., where he is assistant minister. Participating in the service were the pastor, the Rev. WILBUR REES '53, Dr. FRED JUDSON '36, pastor of Mr. Erickson's home church, Trinity Baptist in Santa Monica, and Methodist and Presbyterian ministers . . . On November 1 DAVID SUGARBAKER began his ministry as pastor of First Baptist Church in Montour Falls, N.Y.

NEW ARRIVALS

Congratulations and best wishes to:

1960 Mr. and Mrs. Allen Clemensen (PATRICIA BROWN) on the birth of Daniel Charles on August 29.

1961 The Rev. and Mrs. WALTER MORGAN of First Baptist Church, Red Bluff, on the arrival of Daniel Arthur on May 21.

1968 To the CHARLES GRAVES in Twin Falls, Ida., on the birth of Scott Raymond on May 15 and to the DAVID SIEGELS on the birth of Kevin in Vancouver, Wash.

NEW BOOKS

Dialogue Preaching — The Shared Sermon is the title of a recent book co-authored by a Berkeley alumnus, Gordon C. Bennett '60, instructor in speech and drama at Eastern Baptist College. His writing colleague, William D. Thompson, is professor of preaching at Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Reuel L. Howe says it "is an exciting book because it advances the reader's thinking beyond the frontiers of communications and homiletics. And it correlates some of the creative thinking in those fields with worship.

"The authors present possibilities of new thrusts that are a welcome alternative to the sterility of much worship and preaching. Their treatment of the field is wise and practical, and they provide guides for the pastor who wants to experiment reverently and creatively. The abundant and excellent illustrations give flesh and blood to their thesis."

Published by Judson Press, the book sells for $4.95.

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. 1 December 1969 No. 2

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, Calif. 94704

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, April, October and December.

Entered as second class matter on March 13, 1931 at the post office at Berkeley, Calif., under the Act of August 24, 1912.

Return Postage Guaranteed

Speaking Personally

Heartfelt Christian sympathy is extended to the family of DR. GEORGE MACDONALD, who died in October. The executive minister of the Colorado Baptist Convention, he had been a member of the Berkeley board since 1954.

P. CARTER DOREN has been named lecturer in religious drama at the Covina campus. He is a graduate of Yale, Fuller and Occidental and has done further graduate studies at the University of Southern California.

MRS. JOY ERNST, a graduate of Linfield College, is the new library assistant at the Berkeley campus. She is helping to coordinate our participation in the common library program of the Graduate Theological Union. Mrs. Ernst is the wife of Professor ELDON ERNST, and a daughter of Dr. John Skoglund, former BBDS professor.

DR. ROBERT LAURIN spoke to the Southern California Ministers meeting October 16 on "Biblical Preaching to a Secular Society."

Following the European Baptist Federation in Vienna in August, CULBERT G. RUTENBER spent three weeks in Eastern Europe with Dr. Chester Jump and Dr. Gordon Lahrson of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies. Later he delivered a paper at the conference of Baptist theologians in Geneva.

L. DOWARD MCBAIN, chairman of the Covina trustees and vice-chairman of the ABSW board, studied this summer at Mansfield College in Oxford, England. He is also serving as vice-president of the Ecumenical Council of Arizona.

MAURICE P. JACKSON gave a major address at centennial services in his hometown of Clay Center, Kansas, on October 5.

WILLIAM MALCOMSON spoke at Baptist pastors conferences in Oregon on "Why I think the parish ministry is worth it" and "How our seminary is preparing the kind of ministers we need."

ELDON G. ERNST flew to Rochester for meetings of the American Baptist Historical Society and the editorial board of Foundations, where he was elected an associate editor. His article in the October-December issue suggests ways that scholars might begin to write creative history of Baptists in the Pacific Northwest.

A new book from the University of Chicago Press on The Future of Imperical Theology includes a chapter by BERNARD M. LOOMER.

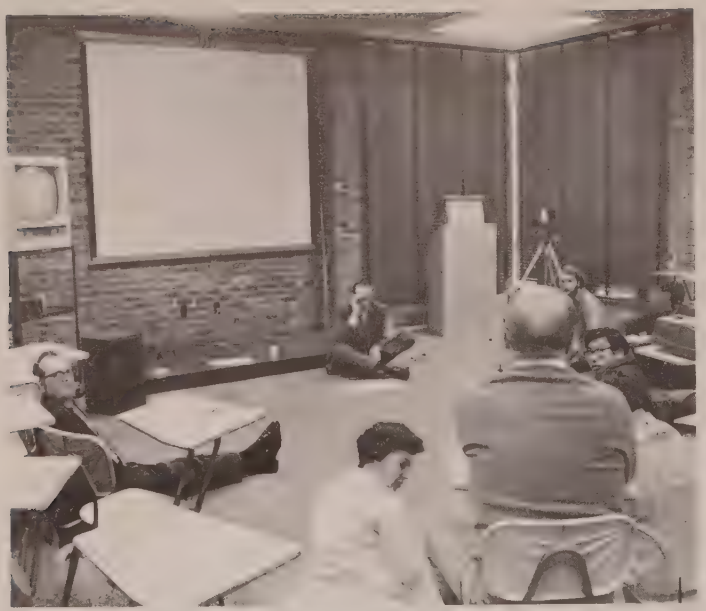
ROBERT H. MITCHELL taught a seminar on new music in the church at Green Lake, Wisconsin; led an all-church retreat for First Baptist Church in Seattle and directed convention music for California Baptists at Redding and Hollywood Hills.

ADA GRACE CRALLE writes frequently from the Baptist seminary in Stockholm, where she is enjoying a sabbatical leave. The Cralles plan to spend Christmas with the Gordon Lahrsons in Geneva before returning to their home in Berkeley.

Cover photo from NASA. Other photos in this issue by Edmund Irvin, Paul Clasper, Thomas Fattaruso, Carol Goodman, Adrian Heaton and Donald Thomas.

JA 1471
THEOLOGICAL
FEB 11 19
1962

Dimensions



American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume I FEBRUARY 1970 Number 3

Relating theology to the functional life of the ministry is the goal of the seminar led by Dr. William Malcomson, associate professor of ministry at the Berkeley campus.

FACULTY DIALOGUE: EXPLORING CREATIVE COMMUNICATION

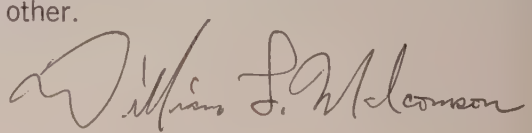
What would happen if you put seventeen people of widely diverse views and backgrounds together in a classroom for two hours once a week for ten weeks?

What if these people included a Roman Catholic laywoman who is a campus minister by profession and who is attending a Baptist seminary, the pastor of a large Baptist church in the suburbs, three highly creative and very honest Presbyterian seminarians, a man in his forties who was in business for twenty years prior to his coming to seminary, a professional Christian educator, a couple of Lutheran students, five other Baptist students who represent many points on the theological spectrum, a Baptist laywoman who has been active for years in various leadership roles in her church and denomination, the pastor of an urban church and a professor who has been both a pastor and a teacher?

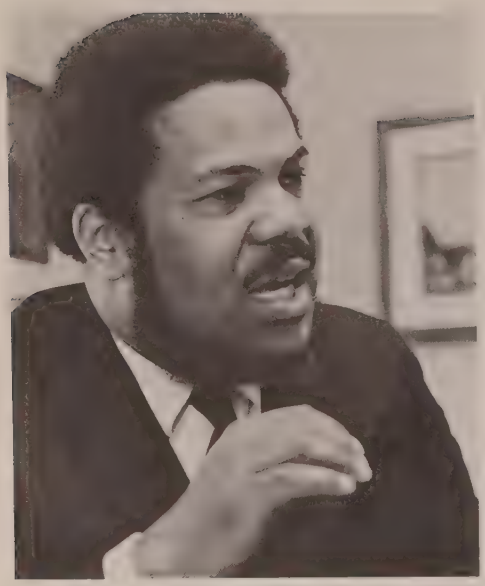
Suppose you called the course "Creative Communication?" And suppose that you had access to a videotape machine that could record anything that happened? I can tell you what can happen, because I was a part of such a group.

As the designated professor in the group, I often found myself just sitting back and watching the emergence of creative communication. Believe me, when you have such people in a group to begin with, you have a tremendous potential for communication. To get these people relating with each other is something in itself.

One time we started off the class session talking about "Freedom"—what it means to the people in the class. What happened was that most of the people in the group became freer than they had ever been up to that time in that setting. We argued, verbally threatened, consoled, reached out to each other. We communicated freely. Watching the video tape of that session was, as they say these days, a "mind-blowing experience."



Another time we tried non-verbal communication. People showed how they felt about each other and about the group. It was shattering for some, but there was an atmosphere of respect and acceptance in the group which was healing.



One of the techniques we used was what we called "adult show-and-tell." This meant that each person was to make a presentation in which he would share with us something of who he was as a human being. He could bring any props he might wish, and his presentation would be videotaped for later viewing and group comments. One person piled a stack of books in front of him to show how he felt himself to be a prisoner of books. Another brought a Bible and a set of car keys to illustrate the spiritual and material sides of his nature. One person brought a live snake into class and talked about his love of animals and of nature and also of how people's attitude toward snakes is similar to their other prejudices.

Briefly, the theory behind most of what we were doing is contained in two basic assumptions. First, that creative communication occurs when you are a free person. That is, free to be who you are and to share who you are. Free to receive other people as they are. Free from worrying overmuch about your self-image.

Second, that creative communication can occur when you are a caring person. When you care about yourself—you believe that you are of worth. When you care about the response of others. And when you care about communicating, as opposed to performing or entertaining.

I feel that God enables us to communicate with each other and with Him when we start on the way to becoming free and caring. I feel this even more now that I have been through an experience with sixteen other people who were willing to communicate with me and with each other.

W. HAZAIAH WILLIAMS NAMED BAILEY VISITING PROFESSOR

Rev. W. Hazaiah Williams, director of the Center for Urban-Black Studies of the Graduate Theological Union, has been named the John William Bailey Visiting Professor for 1970. He will direct three "lecture-happenings" at the Berkeley campus at 8 p.m. on February 25-27.

He plans to involve church and civic leaders of the black community in an effort to help white seminarians and pastors become sensitized to seeing themselves and their role in the midst of the black revolution. The lectures and dialogues are also intended to help future ministers increase their understanding of the problems and prospects of the black revolution.

Dean Paul Clasper said, "Mr. Williams is clearly one of the charismatic leaders in the Bay Area. His outlook has been shaped as much by his work in the ghetto as by his studies in theology. He sees the black church as the predominant institution in the black community and feels it is crucial to any program for change."

Mr. Williams was born in Ohio and earned his B.A. at Wayne State University in 1952 and his S.T.B. at Boston University School of Theology in 1955. There he was a classmate and close friend of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Since he came to the Bay Area he has done graduate study in sociology at UC, Berkeley.

In addition to his post at the Graduate Theological Union, Mr. Williams is also a professor at San Francisco Theological Seminary; pastor of the Church for Today in Berkeley; and an elected member of the Berkeley Board of Education.

The Bailey visiting professorship was initiated in 1959 by the Bailey Bible Class of Berkeley's First Baptist Church, to honor its teacher of more than thirty years. Dr. Bailey was professor of New Testament Interpretation for 32 years at Berkeley and an active churchman until his death last June at the age of 96.

Dr. Maurice P. Jackson, vice-president of the Berkeley campus and a student and faculty colleague of Dr. Bailey's for 25 years, said, "Because Dr. Bailey was always enthusiastic about fresh perspectives on the Christian faith and on social issues, we feel sure that he would be pleased by the 1970 choice as the Bailey visiting professor."

Retirement Dinner Set for Mrs. Ada Grace Cralle

Sunday after Sunday thousands of churchgoers hear more effective pulpit speaking because of the years of effort by Professor Ada Grace Cralle, faculty member at the Berkeley campus for 26 years. She will be honored at a dinner March 6.

Mrs. Frank Cralle came to Berkeley campus in 1943 as instructor in speech and since 1957 has served as dean of women and professor of public speaking. A native of California, she earned her A.B. degree at the University of California at Berkeley. A long-time member of the Radio-TV Commissions of the Northern California Council of Churches and of the American Baptist Convention, she received national recognition for her work in religious radio.

Mr. Cralle was a teacher in the Berkeley public schools until his retirement in 1965.

Mrs. Cralle was invited to teach English conversation at the Baptist seminary near Stockholm for three months, during her sabbatical leave from the Berkeley faculty. Mr. and Mrs. Cralle have just returned from Europe, where they also attended conferences and visited friends.

In commenting on her retirement, Dr. Maurice P. Jackson, vice-president and a fellow professor for 25 years, said, "She has endeared herself to generations of students who have been inspired by her gracious spirit of concern and her skillful interpretation and teaching. She has supported her faculty colleagues responsibly and rendered sacrificial service to the school for a quarter-century."

Dean Emeritus Ralph E. Knudsen wrote, "Her loyalty was a constant inspiration and her enthusiasm in her role an example to students and faculty alike. She gave to many preachers a new meaning for preaching and a new skill in presentation."

328 Celebrate the First Anniversary of ABSW

Three hundred twenty-eight persons enjoyed a special evening at one of the 1969 President's dinners. The first was held on Friday, December 5 at the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles and the second on Saturday at the Sheraton-Palace in San Francisco.

The stirring address by Dr. C. Adrian Heaton, the music by student choral groups and the fellowship around the tables were highlights of both dinners.

Dinner at the Biltmore

Candles on each dessert symbolized the first birthday of the Seminary of the West, causing one tableful of guests to sing "Happy Birthday." Articles of incorporation were filed in Sacramento on December 27, 1968, bringing together the 25-year-old California Baptist Seminary and the 98-year-old Berkeley Baptist Divinity School in a new federation served by one administration for the two campuses.

Toastmaster Richard Doss, assistant professor of preaching, took occasion to express his appreciation for the calibre of the education he received at Covina. He said, "I am deeply grateful for a faculty and a curriculum that offer a strong combination of academic stimulation and practical preparation for the Christian ministry."

Introduced as "Covina's Friar Tuck," Professor Robert Mitchell directed the twelve-voice concert choir in a medley of Christmas music. Selections ranged from one written in the thirteenth century to one written in 1967 by Jesse MacNeil, Jr., while he was a student at Redlands.

Dean Robert C. Campbell, who had just returned from sabbatical study at the University of Cambridge in England, presented Dr. Heaton. He said that as president of the Covina campus for ten years and of both campuses for two years, Dr. Heaton has been "an energetic speaker, an incisive thinker, a brilliant administrator and a compassionate counselor."

Dr. Richard Doss was toastmaster at the Biltmore dinner.

The Berkeley quartet sang at the Sheraton-Palace dinner.

Trustee Gordon Packard and his wife brought several guests.

Above: Dinner guests at the Sheraton-Palace. Below: Robert Mitchell directs the Covina concert choir.

Dean Paul Clasper was toastmaster in San Francisco.

In his address Dr. Heaton stressed the strategic leadership that comes from California in seminary life and other fields; the necessity for structural flexibility; and the seminary's role as a center for extending healing to the alienated within and outside the church.

Dinner at the Palace

In welcoming guests to the Sheraton-Palace, Dean Paul Clasper said "Students today are a wonderful new crop. In classroom situations we all sit around a table. Professors contribute what they have and students contribute what they have, with all positions open to challenge and discussion."

President John Dillenberger brought greetings from the Graduate Theological Union. He said, "There is now more involvement than ever before across denominational boundaries and at the same time a much greater accent on what is a Baptist, what is a Lutheran, what is a Catholic. When the Baptists have graduated from this shared program, they will be more Baptist — but different Baptists — than they would have been without this involvement."

The Berkeley quartet sang two lively groups of numbers. The first featured contemporary folk songs and the second a Christmas theme. It concluded with the whole group of dinner guests becoming a huge choir singing "O Come All Ye Faithful."

In one sense, the "faithful" had come to the dinners to become better acquainted with the new era of the Seminary of the West and would now go out into the churches and the world more aware of the potential and challenges of educating ministers and others in the decade of the seventies.

Scoop on the Seventies

Excerpts from President C. Adrian Heaton's address

As we enter the decade of the seventies, we also celebrate the first anniversary of the incorporation of the American Baptist Seminary of the West. I am delighted for three reasons that the flexible unification of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School and California Baptist Seminary has taken place at this historical moment.

I. The West will increase its spiritual leadership of the nation during the decade ahead.

The rapid population growth, increase of wealth and freedom from old traditions have made the West in general and California in particular the object of envy and of jealous jest.

Writers have teased Los Angeles about being the "Sea Coast of Iowa," "six suburbs in search of a city" and "the kook capital of the world." Herb Caen of San Francisco defends the smaller population of the north with such lines as "sprawl is not all" and "growing out is not the same thing as growing up."

On the positive side Fortune described Los Angeles as "the prototype of the super-city." The New Yorker called it the ultimate city and Southern California was called a "preview of things to come."

Marshall Frady in Harper's Magazine (Dec. 1969) said, "It is no accident, then, that California . . . is where the rest of the country gets its signals of what is about to happen to it."

John Kenneth Galbraith wrote last June in Atlantic Monthly, "Berkeley is the most intense intellectual and political community in the world, perhaps, indeed, it is the nearest thing to a total university community."

Now, it is in Los Angeles County and in Berkeley that American Baptists are carrying on vigorous programs of theological education. The pace-setting leadership already begun in these two centers will increase during the decade ahead, if we keep up our initiative, maintain adequate support and boldly interpret the Gospel for our day.

II. Only institutions structured for flexibility will serve and survive the seventies. The ABSW is structured for freedom.

As we celebrate the founding of the Seminary of the West, an important fact of this new institution is that it is planned for flexibility. Institutions are made to serve man, not to enslave man. Our Lord said the institution of the Sabbath was made for man, not man for the Sabbath. So is the seminary.

President and Mrs. C. Adrian Heaton were honored guests.

Our Lord spoke to Nicodemus about the necessity of being born of the Spirit and then said, "The wind blows where it wills, and you hear the sound of it, but you do not know whence it comes or it goes, so it is with everyone who is born of the Spirit." Likewise institutions must be kept free enough for the "winds of the Spirit."

One of the reasons the institutions in the West can be so free is the great western tradition of the frontier. Chaplain Wes Seeliger of Texas A and M College says the church alternates between "settler theology" which is too set on security and "pioneer theology" which is always moving out.

In the latter the church is the "covered wagon" . . . "It bears the marks of life and movement—it creaks, is scarred with arrows, bandaged with baling wire . . . Jesus is the Scout. He rides out ahead to find which way the pioneers should go. He lives all the dangers of the trail."

Our seminary has both the Gospel roots of "settler theology" and the freedom of "pioneer theology." The tension between the two is essential.

The decade of the seventies will sharpen such tensions for churches and seminaries. Dr. Ernest Campbell recently preached in New York on "Open for Business During Alterations." This is the reality of the church today. As we penetrate the secular structures of the seventies, we will need to post the sign "Compulsory Hard-hat Area Beyond This Point." The ABSW stands with courageous churches to do just that.

III. The seminary will emerge as a center for healing alienated people inside and outside the church.

Young People are alienated by the unfulfilled promises of their elders (the Establishment.) Their primary crisis is religious. What they really believe is of ultimate value and importance. The seminary has contact with leaders among these youth and is dealing with the basic questions of theology and belief.

Ministers face identity crises because they are caught in rapidly changing roles of church, laity, ministers and explosions of knowledge. The seminary shares with ministers the shocks, the hungers and the need for retooling. We stand with them and seek to help them.

Church laity are demanding new freedoms from institutional bondage. Daniel Aldrich, chancellor of the University of California's Irvine campus, spoke in Berkeley on November 2nd. He was reared in the First Baptist Church of Providence, Rhode Island. He understands how laymen must be freed to use their greatest abilities for the sake of the Gospel.

In contrast to the church of the Middle Ages, he said, "The church—its fellowship and witness—is now free of so many housekeeping, vineyard-planting, scroll-copying chores. Praise God for Xerox! Praise the Creator of IBM! . . .

"Organized religion will depend more and more on the brain power of the layman . . . Laymen need to be an uncontrolled force, if the Christian fellowship is going to make it into the twenty-first century . . . The real church comes for the man of faith when he decides to make this Christian commitment effective in the combat of his work."

The seminary wants to build bridges of understanding between the church and vigorous, free laymen.

Finally, America today is facing a time of bitterness, breakdown and guilt. Violence, racism and war brutalities have made us aware that we all are guilty.

At this point in history the seminary must give moral and spiritual leadership. While calling for the end of violence, racism and brutality, we must offer a theology of penitence and absolution. As prophets we must warn of sin and judgment and as evangelists we must offer Christ's forgiveness to penitents.

The ABSW can fulfill such high hopes, if you all do your part. We need your understanding, active participation in planning, assistance in recruitment and your financial support.

O God, if not us — who?
If not here — where?
If not now — when?

Make us a match for our day,
Which is after all, Thy day. Amen.

You Have Will Power

You have will power, when you make a legally valid will.

In 1969 the Seminary of the West received twelve bequests totaling $68,805. Six individuals listed the Covina campus in their wills for a total of $31,357, while six persons remembered Berkeley with gifts totaling $37,448. Ten of the bequests were for general use, while others were designated for the C. Oscar and Rose Johnson Chair of Evangelism and student aid.

Six new gift annuity agreements were written during the year for a total of $112,000. The amounts involved range from $75,000 to $1,000. One woman in southern California who already had a gift annuity with Berkeley gave a second one in an equal amount for the Covina campus. Each gift annuity pays a guaranteed annual income to the donor.

Dr. Carrol O. Morong, vice president for estate planning for the Seminary of the West explained, "A legally valid will enables you to decide exactly how you want your assets to be used. For the 50% of Americans who die annually without a will, the state determines the disposition of the individual's assets. This inevitably means higher taxes for the estate and excludes gifts to Christian causes.

"Such deferred giving plans as bequests, annuities and trust agreements are of incalcuable value to the seminary. Endowment funds provide permanent income for the seminary's program. Among American Baptist seminaries, 95% of the endowment funds belong to the four seminaries in the east. This means we are just beginning to build a solid financial foundation for the Seminary of the West."

President Heaton, Dr. Morong, Dr. Lawrence Allen and Rev. Winston Neal are available to provide detailed information about deferred gifts for any individual or his attorney.

Scott Irvine Speaks February 6

"Spiritual Dimensions of Personality" is the theme Professor Scott Irvine will develop at the midwinter meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary at Covina on February 6. He became assistant professor of pastoral counseling at Covina in January, 1969.

The opening chapel service at 9:40 a.m. will feature the musical and dramatic talents of several students. This will be followed by coffee, a business session, Mr. Irvine's address and luncheon in the seminary dining room.

Meal reservations should be made in advance. Tickets are $1.25 per person.

Dean Robert Campbell was the 1969 tour leader.

1970 HOLY LAND STUDY TOUR

June 27 - August 8

- On-location learning in Italy, Greece, Asia Minor and the Middle East
- Provides motivation for serious Bible study
- Conversations with government and religious leaders
- Opportunity to earn two to eight academic credits
- Approximate cost will be $1400, all-inclusive

One 1969 participant wrote, "In Israel itself the pieces fit together. We saw, heard, felt, smelled and tasted the land holy to three religions."

Tour Leader: DR. ROBERT LAURIN, professor of Old Testament at the Covina campus since 1957. An alumnus of Westmont and Fuller, he earned his Ph.D. at the University of St. Andrews in Scotland and has done further graduate study at Heidelberg and Tubingen.

Leader in Israel: DR. ANSON F. RAINEY, a 1954 Covina graduate who earned his doctorate at Brandeis University. He is a member of the faculties of the American Institute of Holy Land Studies in Jerusalem and the University of Tel-Aviv.

BERKELEY ALUMNUS SERVES IN REHABILITATION PROGRAM

Lawrence Baulch, a Berkeley graduate in 1963, has been director of the Yokefellow Prison Ministry and now works with ACRE, the Associated Community Rehabilitation Enterprises. This is considered one of the most exciting ventures in rehabilitation in the country.

The original plan was developed in consultation with Ramsey Clark, then U.S. Attorney General and with the director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons by William Flood and William Panton of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies. The ABC was the first denomination to become involved with administering half-way houses for minimum-security prisoners still serving their sentences.

Now ACRE's major emphasis is on helping youthful offenders, including those convicted for violations of the Selective Service Act and wards of the court. Its plan is to establish group homes as an alternative to confinement in regular prisons, where a youthful offender often shares a cell block with hardened criminals.

In discussing the theological basis of the program, Mr. Baulch said, "The essence of all sin is separation from God and the essence of all rehabilitation is forgiveness by God."

Staff members of ACRE are developing contract relationships with probation departments and are encouraging churches to provide resources, such as information on available jobs.

Mr. Baulch was the first director of the Half-way House at San Mateo, one of six he has helped establish. He now cooperates with staff members of the San Mateo County probation department, with juvenile authorities in San Jose and with the child welfare department and juvenile hall in San Francisco.

A former prisoner at San Quentin before he came to seminary, Mr. Baulch has described his experiences in a highly readable book, Return to the World, published by Judson Press in 1968.

STUDY TOUR TO THE ORIENT IN JULY

Dr. Culbert G. Rutenber and Rev. Edmund H. Irvin will conduct a tour of mission fields in the Orient, including attendance at the Baptist World Alliance and Expo '70 in Tokyo. Dates for the tour are July 8-29 and the cost is $1275. The itinerary includes Japan, Hong Kong, Okinawa, Taiwan, the Philippines and Hawaii.

Tour members may choose to receive two academic credits for a graduate course on "Religion in the Orient" through the Covina campus of the Seminary of the West. This will involve advance reading, on-location research and writing a term paper in an area of Oriental culture or religion.

Robert T. Handy Gives Drexler Lectures

Dr. Robert T. Handy, one of the nation's foremost church historians, gave the Founder's Lectures at the Covina campus of the American Baptist Seminary of the West January 21-23.

Robert T. Handy

Dr. Handy, professor of church history at Union Theological Seminary in New York City since 1950, spoke on "Facing Polarities in American Protestant Life." He explored using historical methods as a way of facing continual polarities in individuals, churches and in today's culture.

An articulate American Baptist scholar, Dr. Handy is widely known for his two study books We Witness Together and Members One of Another. As a student at Brown University, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. He earned his B.D. at Colgate Rochester Divinity School and his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago Divinity School. He is a member of the Commission on Faith and Order of the World Council of Churches and the Commission on Christian Unity of the American Baptist Convention.

The Founder's lecture series honors Dr. Frederick I. Drexler, who founded California Baptist Theological Seminary in 1944. He is now 92 and lives in Mill Valley, California.

After seven years of holding classes at Temple Baptist Church in downtown Los Angeles, the seminary moved to its present campus at Covina in 1951. Soon after Dr. C. Adrian Heaton became president in 1959, the school received full accreditation from the American Association of Theological Schools and today draws students from all over the United States and many nations overseas.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

WANTED!!

News of Berkeley and Covina alumni — new positions, interesting aspects of ministry, "blessed events," church and community involvement, denominational and ecumenical responsibilities. Please send news items and sharp, black and white photos to Carol J. Goodman, American Baptist Seminary of the West, 2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, California 94704. Thank you!

COVINA CAMPUS

1953 ROBERT L. BALSLEY of First Baptist Church, Redding, was the host pastor for the October convention of the American Baptist Churches of Northern California.

1956 The director of youth ministries for the Southern California Baptist Convention, KENNETH G. DUNKELBERGER, is planning an Asian Caravan for 1970 which will include visits to mission fields, the Baptist World Alliance and Expo 70 in Tokyo. The dates are July 9-August 1 and the cost is $1,090.

1959 JAMES R. PRINCE is now pastor of First Baptist Church, Arcadia, moving from Grace Baptist Church in Wilmington.

1963 Air Force Captain CARL E. HORTON, stationed at Forbes AFB, Kansas, served as dean for two youth camps in the state . . . ROBERT WERNERSBACH is minister of Christian education and youth for the First Baptist Church of Santa Clara. He held a similar position at First Baptist, Pomona.

1964 Serving as chaplain for the Elmwood Rehabilitation Center, Office of the Sheriff, in Milpitas is DONALD N. OWNBEY. He is temporarily a consultant to a county work furlough research study at San Jose State College . . . In October the Honolulu Advertiser carried a feature story on the ministry to youth by RALPH SHOWERS, pastor, and the First Baptist Church of Ewa Beach. Mr. Showers said, "I don't counsel young people in my office. I believe in meeting the young person where he is. The moment for counseling might come after a Coke, a drive and a conversation about the things that are of interest to him." Not only does he place an emphasis on youth but on the place of the laity. He said, "I believe that the important work of the church and the decisions of the church must be made by laymen, and not manipulated by the pastor." . . . LELAND D. STERLING, pastor of East Princeton Baptist Church of Fresno, has been commissioned a First Lieutenant in the chaplaincy of the California National Guard.

1965 Serving the Valley Baptist Church, Walnut Creek, as associate minister is WILLIAM A. HARRISON. The senior minister is JOHN PARKER '58. Mr. Harrison comes to his post following duty as a captain in the U.S. Army chaplaincy where he was awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious service in Vietnam.

1967 JAMES ELLAND has been called to a new work in Las Vegas, Nev., the Paradise Valley Ministry. He was associate minister of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, Mansfield, Ohio.

1969 On September 28 CHARLES BUTCHER was ordained in the First Baptist Church of Centralia, Wash., which he serves as pastor. VERNON KENDALL, Berkeley '49, pastor of Central Baptist, Spokane, gave the ordination sermon. He was Mr. Butcher's pastor in Moab, Utah . . . During the summer CLYDE REYNOLDS was ordained in a service at First Baptist Church, Las Vegas, Nev., where he is director of Christian education. Participants included the pastor, MELVIN PEKRUL, Berkeley '46, Charles Martin, general missionary for the Nevada Sierra Baptist Convention, and several pastors of the area. An unusual feature was the dialogue form used by Mr. Reynolds and one of the pastors in the act of ordination.

BERKELEY CAMPUS

Eight Berkeley alumni were among the officers and board members elected at the November meeting of the Idaho-Utah (Inter-Mountain) Area of the American Baptist Convention, held in Blackfoot, Ida. Serving as president is WILEY KEHRLI '61, pastor at Clearfield, Utah.

Others elected included WILLIAM P. CLARK '49, Boise, Ida. and CHARLES GRAVES '68, Twin Falls, Ida., department of churchmanship; THOMAS J. BLACKBURN '60x, Boise, and ALVIN FISCHER '54, Layton, Utah, department of program development and outreach, with WILBUR REES '53, Pocatello, Ida., as chairman; Dr. MACK McCRAY '45, Boise, and JAMES HUGHES '41, Twin Falls, trustees of the Idaho Baptist Convention.

1934 FLOYD BROWN, recently retired from the full time pastorate, has accepted a part time position in visitation with the First Baptist Church in Stockton . . . CHARLES A. THORMAN has retired from the pastorate of Park Grove Baptist Church, Beech Grove, Ind.

1939 Noting the increasing number of church families owning tape recorders, ELROY SHIKLES, pastor of First Baptist Church, Grand Junction, Colo., the choir, and the moderator made a 20-minute recording for use in Sunday evening "colony" meetings held in the homes of members in 20 areas of the city. He said, "Paper communications do not do the job as effectively as we thought" and indicated the recording approach to small groups has great value.

1943 Following a career in the U.S. Navy chaplaincy, BERYL BURR has accepted the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Missoula, Mont.

1944 The WILLIAM SUTTERLINS celebrated their 10th anniversary of ministry at the First Baptist Church of Birmingham, Mich., last September. He also serves on the board of managers of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication.

1945 CHESTER NORTHRUP, formerly at Boise, Ida., is pastor of Pleasant Valley Baptist Church in Portland, Ore.

1946 An article in the October issue of the California Crusader tells of A. MAY HILL '46x, recently retired American Baptist home missionary, and her developing vocation as an artist. In 1957 she began oil painting as a hobby and for the past six years has studied landscape and seascape painting. She has had several art shows and sold a number of her paintings.

Overseas missionaries doing furlough study at Covina this year include William Cadwallader of Thailand, Norman G. Riddle of Congo and Floyd E. Roseberry of the Philippines.

Students, faculty, staff members and wives enjoyed a Christmas banquet at the Berkeley campus planned by the junior class. A similar event was held the same night at the Covina campus.

1949 FRANK SCHWEISSING, pastor of First Baptist Church, Blackfoot, Ida., recently completed a term as president of the Idaho Baptist Convention. He currently serves as president of the ABC's Inter-Mountain Ministers' Conference . . . WILLIAM WILCOX has moved from Fayette, Ia., to First Baptist Church of Mason City, Ia.

1952 In September CHARLES DAVENPORT began his ministry as pastor of First Baptist Church, Hughson. Earlier he was at First Baptist, Coalinga and then engaged in counseling.

1953 In November, at the invitation of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, Rev. and Mrs. DALE BETHELL spent three weeks on a preaching mission in Puerto Rico. He is pastor of the Atwater Baptist Church . . . ARTHUR SANFORD assumed the pastorate of the Community Baptist Church, Keams Canyon, Ariz., in October under appointment by the American Baptist Home Mission Societies. He had been at Papago Peaks Baptist in Scottsdale . . . HILEY H. WARD, religion writer for the Detroit Free Press, is the author of two new books published in November. Prophet of the Black Nation is a biography of the black militant minister, Albert Cleage, Jr. (Pilgrim Press, United Church of Christ, hardback, $5.95). Rock 2000 is a visual book of impressions in satire and humor of today's youth as they relate to the year 2000, published for the Department of Youth Ministry of the National Council of Churches (Abingdon, paperback). He is the author of five other books.

1954 ROBERT W. THATCHER is a teaching associate for the Christian Faith and Work Plan of the American Baptist Convention. He also has been coordinating the construction of a new program building and remodeled sanctuary at First Baptist Church, Westfield, N.J., where he serves as associate minister. He and his wife, Marge, and their four children have lived in Westfield since 1967.

1958 In September WILLIAM P. BRAY moved from the Community Baptist Church, Cle Elum, Wash., to the pastorate of the Presbyterian church in Waitsburg, Wash. . . . Serving as pastor of First Baptist Church, Alliance, Neb., is JAMES M. WOOD '58x who had been an American Baptist missionary in India.

1959 The Bronze Star was awarded to Major DONALD E. CONKLIN for meritorious service in Vietnam . . . Moving to the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Milpitas, is RICHARD E. CRADER. He was at First Baptist, Moscow, Ida. . . . LYNN HODGES, director of the department of human relations in Tacoma, Wash., for the past two years, returned to the pastorate in December when he began his new ministry at Tacoma's First Congregational Church . . . Leaving First Baptist Church, Santa Cruz, ERIK MADSEN has returned to Washington to serve the Queen Anne Baptist Church in Seattle. He previously pastored Central Baptist in Spokane . . . Major MARION D. PEMBER was awarded an Oak Leaf Cluster to the Army Commendation Medal for distinguished service as assistant hospital chaplain at Letterman Hospital in San Francisco.

1960 H. CLYDE MATHEWS, JR., is deputy director of the Office of Civil Rights in the Federal Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for the eleven western states with his office in San Francisco. Formerly the pastor and director of the Colony Baptist Church and Christian Center in Reno, Nev., he most recently had been director of the Department of Economic Opportunity for the state of Nevada. He and his family are living in Millbrae.

1963 AMOS JOHNSON was the inspirational speaker for the Colorado Baptist Youth Fellowship Convention in November. He is executive director of the Martin Luther King, Jr., Christian Center in Camden, N.J. Involvement group leaders included the GLENN HILLS '47 and '46, ALMUS LARSEN '55, the ALLAN LEES '60, TOM ARBOGAST '63, and BRUCE MORGAN '67.

1964 Following a five-year pastorate at the Community Baptist Church of Yountville, EDWARD L. McCALL was installed as pastor of First Baptist Church in Glenn on September 21 . . . BARBARA DODGE has written a Mission article on a contemporary approach to youth entitled "Group!" A neighborhood action specialist with the Home Mission Societies, she was the first program worker at the ABHMS low and moderate income housing project in Los Angeles.

1965 ALEXANDER GASPAR, JR., received his S.T.M. degree from Andover Newton Theological School in 1969. After three years in a team ministry, he is now pastor of Broadway-First Baptist Church in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada.

1967 Congratulations and best wishes to Nancy and BRUCE MORGAN on the adoption of David Bruce.

1969 The ordination for CHARLES DOUGLASS and his installation as associate minister of counseling and youth were combined into one service on September 14 at the First Baptist Church, San Carlos. Participating in the ordination were his father, ALFRED DOUGLASS '48x, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, Sacramento, and Elmer Laursen, Protestant chaplain at the University of California Medical Center, who was his supervisor during an internship in clinical pastoral training . . . ALVIN E. ELLIOTT was ordained on October 19 in First Baptist Church of Dearborn, Mich., where he is associate minister. JAMES O. LEFFINGWELL '60, associate minister of First Baptist Church, Kansas City, Mo., gave the ordination meditation.

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. I February 1970 No. 3

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, Calif. 94704

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, April, October and December.

Entered as second class matter on March 13, 1931 at the post office at Berkeley, Calif., under the Act of August 24, 1912.

Return Postage Guaranteed

Dr. Sherman E. Johnson
Church Divinity School of the Pacific
2457 Ridge Road
Berkeley, California 94709

Speaking Personally

Warm Christian sympathy goes to MRS. C. ADRIAN HEATON on the death of her brother, Dr. John L. Groom, professor at the University of Redlands. He was killed in a tractor accident in November while leveling off a field for his glider.

Sympathy is also expressed to the family of DR. JENS C. CLAUSEN, an authority on plant evolution at Stanford for 38 years. He was a Berkeley trustee from 1950 to 1961 and died last November.

DR. C. ADRIAN HEATON has been elected chairman of the heads of institutions that make up the Graduate Theological Union. In November he spoke at Westmont College in Santa Barbara.

DEAN PAUL CLASPER was the featured speaker at the general assembly of the Oregon Council of Churches in November. He also spoke to workers with international students in Berkeley on the religious factors affecting Asian peoples and prepared a paper on decision-making for the Northern California BYF.

DR. BERNARD RAMM was the guest speaker for Religious Emphasis Week at Eastern Baptist College in November and met with faculty members at Eastern Seminary in Philadelphia.

MRS. JOHN SPARROWK, a Berkeley trustee, was elected a vice-president of the National Council of Churches during the triennial meeting in Detroit.

DR. GENEVIEVE KELLY, librarian for the Covina campus and librarian-consultant for the Berkeley campus, returned in December from her sabbatical leave during 1969. She emphasized language study in Europe and special problems of librarianship in Germany.

In January ROBERT H. MITCHELL flew to Judson College in Elgin, Illinois, to lead students and faculty in reviewing Christian uses of contemporary music.

EDMUND H. IRVIN, pastor of First Baptist Church in Claremont and director of the senior high camp at Thousand Pines since 1961, is a guest lecturer at the Covina campus during the winter quarter. He is teaching a Monday evening course on "The Church and the Camping Program."

DR. MAURICE JACKSON, DR. DAVID WALLACE and PROF. ROBERT MITCHELL attended a conference in Chicago January 9-11 led by Dr. Charles Whiston and dealing with the devotional life of seminary campuses.

MRS. DOROTHY HUTCHISON, assistant librarian at the Covina campus since 1961, has resigned to move to San Diego, where her husband's work has been transferred.

The seminary press has produced two books available through the bookstore of the Covina campus. An Outline of Church History was written by PROFESSOR LELAND D. HINE and a bibliographical guide on The Tools of Biblical Interpretation was edited by James Hester and DR. GENEVIEVE KELLY.

Berkeley Campus
2606 Dwight Way
Berkeley, Calif. 94704

American Baptist
SEMINARY OF THE WEST

Covina Campus
1300 E. Covina Hills Rd.
Covina, Calif. 91722

Prexy's Prose

PUBLISHED WHEN THE MOOD MOVES BY PRESIDENT C. ADRIAN HEATON

March 1970

ABSW EXPORT: OPTIMISM

We begin a new decade with optimism. It is based on the firm belief that God is not dead. Neither is the church about to follow the dinosaurs into extinction. The seminary has survived "the Tumult of the Sixties." We enter the seventies like Joshua moving ahead with God's guidance: "Be strong and of good courage; be not frightened, neither be dismayed; for the LORD your God is with you wherever you go." (Josh. 1:9) Commenting on the 1960s, Time magazine said, "Nothing may be more boring perhaps than the absence of God, and much of the discontent among youth was basically religious." (Dec. 19, 1969)

* * * * * * * * * * *

BERKELEY CAMPUS SECURES LAND

A choice piece of property at the corner of Scenic, Ridge and Le Conte in Berkeley has been purchased by the seminary. This will be the future location of the Berkeley campus in the middle of the cluster of seminaries north of the University of California campus. It is our plan to build faculty and administrative offices there, secure student housing nearby, and share with other schools in library, classrooms, dining facilities and the like. Our campus south of the university is now ready for lease or sale through Coldwell, Banker & Company.

* * * * * * * * * * *

EYE-BALL TO EYE-BALL IN THE NORTHWEST

President HEATON will visit the Pacific Northwest for a series of church services, dinners, alumni gatherings, recruitment interviews and eye-ball to eye-ball conferences March 15 to 20. He will preach at Olympia, Washington on March 15, visit Seattle March 16, Spokane and Whitworth College on March 17, Yakima on March 18, Portland and Linfield College on March 19. He will report happenings from both campuses and will listen to talk-back for the improvement of theological education.

* * * * * * * * * * *

THEOLOGY IN THE 70s

DR. BERNARD RAMM, professor of systematic theology at Covina, predicts that "The next ten years will be extremely exciting in the theological world." (See his article in Eternity magazine, January, 1970). He forecasts a "wave of Asiatic Christian theology," new benefits from the literature of black churchmen, increasing fragmentation among Roman Catholics, some new theology growing out of space interests and cybernetics, some new philosophic models to assist our age which is "philosophically tired," new efforts to create a genuinely American theology, some hardening of traditional, very conservative theologies, and "a rebirth of evangelical theology."

* * * * * * * * * * *

REV. MAVIS LEE MAKES NEWS

"Without deliberately trying to set a precedent of any kind, the Rev. MAVIS SHAO-LING LEE put a noticeable dent in the established order of things." So wrote BEA PIXA in the San Francisco Examiner on January 16, 1970. "She (Rev. Lee) is the first Chinese lady minister to have been ordained in the United States and the only woman ordained by the Northern California Baptist Convention." She holds degrees from Yenching University and Berkeley Baptist Divinity School. She now spends most of her time doing missionary work among the Chinese of San Francisco and helping immigrants. She is active in the First Chinese Baptist Church of which DR. JAMES CHUCK, a trustee of ABSW is pastor.

* * * * * * * * * * *

AUXILIARY FASHION SHOW MARCH 14

FASHION MARDI GRAS will be held at the Covina campus at 12:30 p.m. Saturday, March 14. The Woman's Auxiliary has arranged for professional models to display tasteful fashions from Hinshaw's Department Stores. They also will serve a delectible luncheon and provide a beautifully decorated setting. To benefit the seminary, a $4.00 donation from adults ($2.00 for children under 12) is requested.

BAPTIST IDENTITY

DEAN PAUL CLASPER of Berkeley has just released a paper he read recently to Baptist educators in Geneva, Switzerland. Discussing who we are as Baptists, he said that we "seem to be a people whose self-understanding is derived from a fresh appropriation of the meaning of Biblical symbols. Renewed Bible study and interpretation is our strength. But turning the Bible into a source of frozen laws and dogmas, and making it an idol is our peril. . . . Insisting on freedom is our strength. But the inability to recognize freedom's diverse pilgrimages is our peril. We . . . are a mixed bag of sinning saints, or saintly sinners. Often we appear to be culture-despising sectarians, but we cannot stifle some true sense of being a part of Christ's Church - - His Body - - which we are also learning to characterize as one, holy, catholic, and apostolic."

* * * * * * * * * *

CONVENTION OF HOPE

"A convention of hope is planned for the American Baptists who meet in Cincinnati May 13 to 17," announced program chairman CLAUDE BLACK, JR. "God Speaks in Revolution, Reconciliation and Renewal" is the theme. DR. L. DOWARD MCBAIN of Phoenix, chairman of the ABSW board at Covina, will be the convention preacher on Sunday morning. Friends and alumni of the Seminary of the West (Berkeley and Covina) will meet for breakfast at the Netherland Hilton Hotel on Friday, May 15, at 7:15 a.m. The special program for this is "Youth and Revolution, Reconciliation and Renewal." Bring your friends. Order your tickets now from either campus: $3.30 per person.

* * * * * * * * * *

GLADDEN LECTURES APRIL 7 to 9

The student body at Covina will sponsor three lectures by DR. RICHARD KRAUSE GLADDEN, executive director of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication's Bureau of Research and Planning. He will speak at 9:30 each morning on April 7, 8 and 9. DR. GLADDEN, trained in research at the University of Virginia, has served as a pastor, a college professor, and a denominational research specialist for both the Presbyterian Church of the U.S. and the American Baptist Convention. His topics on the Christian Faith and Work Curriculum are: April 7 - "The Best of the Last"; April 8 - "From Hypothesis to Practice"; and April 9 - "Action Together: Models, Systems, Strategies, and Grassroots Initiatives." The public is welcome. There is no charge.

* * * * * * * * * *

PSYCHO-SOMATIC SUMMERS

Wise congregations see to it that their ministers meet two basic needs in the summer: One is ample rest for the body (A VACATION) and the second is a renewal of the mind and spirit, often found in summer sessions at seminary (THIS IS NOT VACATION). The Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley announces two 3-week sessions beginning June 22 and July 13. Details will be ready soon.

Covina announces a Holy Land study tour June 27 to August 8 and three other 3-week terms: June 22 to July 10 courses in "Romans" and "The Theology of Death" are taught by Dean ROBERT CAMPBELL and DR. RICHARD DOSS; July 13 to 31, "The Book of Acts," "Contemporary New Testament Scholarship" and "Preaching During a Revolution" by DR. ROBERT L. DUNCAN, DR. ROBERT CAMPBELL, and DR. L. DOWARD MCBAIN; and August 3 to 21, "Theories of Counseling" and "American Theologians" by Professor SCOTT IRVINE and DR. BERNARD RAMM.

* * * * * * * * * *

BERKELEY ALUMNA SPEAKS FOR WOMEN

MISS VIOLET RUDD, national director of American Baptist Women and a graduate of our Berkeley campus, will address the spring meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary at Covina on Friday, April 24. She will point out the necessity of challenging churches and institutions to enlarge the opportunities and status of women to serve at the highest levels of church leadership.

* * * * * * * * * *

HONORS FOR MCNEILS

The book entitled, "The Preacher-Prophet in Mass Society," by DR. JESSE JAI MCNEIL, (the late professor of Christian education at Covina) was chosen by Christianity Today as "one of the ten top books of the decade in the area of communication and Christian witness." Daughter, GENNA RAE MCNEIL, has just graduated from Kalamazoo College. She was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and is now receiving a Ford Foundation Fellowship at the University of Chicago. MRS. PEARL MCNEIL is teaching anthropology at Bishop College in Dallas, Texas.

* * * * * * * * * *

PICTURES TAKE CAMPUS TO NATION

Several excellent pictures of the American Baptist Seminary of the West were published in more than 300,000 copies of the February Crusader on page 15. The text told of how churches that support the America for Christ offering help the seminary which is a part of the total mission of the church. "When you give. . . you truly live."

Dimensions

PACIFIC LUTHERAN
THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
LIBRARY
APR 7 1970

American Baptist
Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume I APRIL 1970 Number 4

EXPRESSING HIS ENTHUSIASM FOR THE PASTORATE, Rev. Vincent H. Coletta, Jr., left, brings two recent college graduates from his church to Covina to discuss preparation for the ministry with Dr. Donald Thomas, seminary vice president. A Berkeley graduate in 1948, Mr. Coletta has served First Baptist, Palos Verdes, since 1961.

Sabbatical in England*

"THE NEW TESTAMENT TODAY" — the formidable, but vital theme for the International Congress on New Testament Studies which I attended at Oxford this past September . . . A five-day smorgasbord of 39 addresses and 123 scholarly papers . . .

Let me share briefly the five major presentations: (1) Glasgow's William Barclay (the preachers' favorite) spoke concerning "The Unending Task and Problem of Translation," most relevant in the light of his recent translation of the New Testament (get it!).

(2) Heidelberg's Gunther Bornkamm spoke on "Paul and Jesus." Current critical study rejects older attempts to prove Paul the villain who perverted the pristine teachings of Jesus into a complicated theological system which became "Christianity."

(3) Princeton's B. E. Gartner dealt with "The Kingdom of God and Christology in the Early Church." The Christology reflected in the Acts and Epistles is rooted in Jesus' self-understanding. Gartner finds the tool for tracing this relationship in Jesus' teachings concerning the Kingdom.

(4) Alan Richardson, Dean of York, presented the query "What Is 'New Testament Theology'?" The answer: (a) to explain the message of the New Testament as a whole; (b) supply the master key of a principle of interpretation (which Richardson — I think rightly — sees as the resurrection); and (c) spell out the meaning for us today.

(5) C. F. D. Moule of Cambridge had the climactic address on "Jesus in the New Testament Kerygma." Most scholars have been wrong in claiming that Paul was disinterested in the historical Jesus. His interest is reflected in both his epistles and a critical handling of the Acts. I was pleased with the excellent reception given Professor Moule, inasmuch as I was able to spend the next two months in research and study with him. But that is another story . . .

If this International Congress is typical of the direction of New Testament studies, three clear projections can be stated: (1) There is an increasing concern in Christology. (2) There is a swing toward a more conservative Biblical scholarship. (3) There is movement toward moderation in continental Biblical research.

The last generation has reflected theological studies which have become more Biblically concerned. Moreover, Biblical theology has emerged as a responsible discipline. Now it seems that Biblical studies are becoming more theologically concerned. This is heartening. It is in line with the real purpose of the Bible. And it rightly relates to the true life of the church!

Robert Campbell

*After leading the first ABSW study tour in the Holy Land for six weeks, Dean Campbell spent two months in language study at the Sorbonne in Paris and then did research for two months in New Testament studies at the University of Cambridge.

BERKELEY CAMPUS BUYS ESTATE ON "HOLY HILL"

The Berkeley campus of the Seminary of the West has purchased the Wilson estate, situated on a prime location on "Holy Hill" in the heart of the Graduate Theological Union cluster, where most of the seminary's classes are already being held.

Bounded by LeConte, Scenic Avenue and Ridge Road, the property is one block south of the GTU headquarters and one block north of the University of California campus. It is across the street from the campuses of Pacific School of Religion and Church Divinity School of the Pacific, which have major facilities for classrooms, library, dining hall and chapel.

President C. Adrian Heaton explained that the Seminary of the West plans to build a structure which will include faculty and administrative offices, seminar rooms and a lounge for group gatherings. Student housing and parking facilities will be nearby. He said, "As our share in the GTU's facilities, we will make a major contribution toward constructing a multi-million dollar common library to house the 500,000 volumes owned by GTU institutions."

Discussions are in progress on the feasibility of a joint building project with the Presbyterians, who are currently moving the first two years of their program from San Anselmo to Berkeley. Cooperative planning is also being done with the master planner of the GTU in determining the best location for the GTU common library.

Dr. Heaton and Dean Paul Clasper both emphasized that the primary reason for the move was educational, rather than economic. Dr. Clasper said, "Full student and faculty participation in the common life of the GTU requires us to be physically present in the midst of where things are happening. A community of learning develops more quickly when we are in immediate conversational reach of our colleagues."

The purchase of the property on January 23 came nearly a year after a vote by the Berkeley and the Covina trustees to sell or lease portions of both campuses in a way that would facilitate the construction of adequate educational and housing facilities on a minimal amount of land. Operating costs for both campuses now exceed the funds available from tuition, rents, endowment and gift income. It is expected that it will be at least September, 1971, before operations are moved.

In the cover story for its year-end issue of December 26, 1969, Time magazine said, "By far the major development in religious education will be the 'cluster seminary,' modeled on the successful Graduate Theological Union on 'Holy Hill' in Berkeley. Founded only seven years ago, GTU now includes nine seminaries and four associated centers."

Some of the benefits of the Berkeley concept, according to Time, are: "Libraries are better. Shared facilities raise teaching standards while keeping individual seminary costs at a bearable level. Cross-registration affords each student the chance to pursue his own curriculum under the best available teachers. The interaction of the diverse groups also contributes dramatically to future changes in the church."

1970 Commencements

SEMINARY OF THE WEST

BERKELEY — 8 p.m., Friday, June 12

Thousand Oaks Baptist Church

Colusa and Catalina, Berkeley

COVINA — 4 p.m., Saturday, June 13

Conaway Chapel, Covina Campus

FOUR PROFESSORS TAKE 1970 SABBATICALS

Four professors at the Covina campus will be taking sabbatical leaves during 1970.

Dean Robert C. Campbell explained, "Largely because of the team teaching required by our new curriculum and at the faculty's request, the trustees have approved granting a one-quarter sabbatical leave every seven quarters, as an option to the usual pattern of a year's study leave every seven years. A sabbatical is not a vacation. Each professor requesting a leave must have his research plan approved in advance by the dean and by the board of trustees. When he returns to the campus, he reports his findings to the board's committee on instruction."

Dr. Leland D. Hine, professor of church history since 1960, is on sabbatical during the spring quarter of 1970. Dr. Hine is working in libraries in California and on the east coast in preparation for writing a book. His manuscript, on the theme of fulfilling God's calling in the world, will be especially helpful in Covina's colloquium on vocation. Dr. Hine's most recent book, a biography of missionary William Axling, was published by Judson Press in 1969.

Professor Robert H. Mitchell, a faculty member since 1954, has received a $4000 grant from the American Association of Theological Schools which will help to make possible a full year's sabbatical in his teaching area of Christianity and the arts. Mr. Mitchell and his wife will attend the Passion Play at Oberammergau in June, followed by two months of German language study at the Goethe Institute.

From September, 1970 to June, 1971, the Mitchells will be at the University of Birmingham in England. He will participate in the Institute for the Study of Worship and Religious Architecture, directed by Prof. J. G. Davies, chairman of the university's department of theology. The program includes academic study and opportunities for involvement in the creative ventures taking place in such centers as Coventry and Chichester. During the summer of 1971 Mr. Mitchell plans to study African church music.

Dr. Robert B. Laurin, registrar and professor of Old Testament since 1957, will lead the Seminary of the West's second Holy Land Study Tour for six weeks during the summer. From mid-August until Christmas, he will be writing a commentary on the Song of Songs to be published as a separate volume and a commentary on Lamentations, which will be part of a twelve-volume Bible commentary published by Broadman Press. He also plans to write some technical articles for professional journals.

Dr. Donald F. Thomas, vice president and professor of pastoral theology since 1963, and his wife will leave May 29 to spend two weeks attending theological lectures in Munich and Hamburg, Germany, followed by participation in the summer session for pastors at Mansfield College of Oxford University in England. Conference leaders will include John Marsh and Principal Caird. There will also be opportunities to get in touch with British theologians and to meet pastors in Britain and on the Continent.

For four months during the fall quarter, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas will be at Cambridge University in England, where he will attend lectures and use the library resources in the areas of New Testament and theology. Mrs. Thomas plans to visit a number of the libraries and book sellers with whom she has correspondence as the circulation librarian at the seminary.

Dr. Maurice P. Jackson, vice president at the Berkeley campus, where he will soon complete twenty-five years as professor of practical theology, is currently working out plans to be an exchange professor at Baptist institutions in Australia and the Philippines during a sabbatical leave from January 1 to August 1, 1971.

J. Lynwood Walker

David L. Bartlett

William L. Malcomson

Berkeley Campus Announces Faculty Additions

Two young scholars, both recipients of doctoral fellowships from the Rockefeller foundation and described as "rare finds" by their professors, have been appointed to the faculty of the American Baptist Seminary of the West at Berkeley. In September James Lynwood Walker will become assistant professor of theology and personality at the Seminary of the West and the Graduate Theological Union, and David Lyon Bartlett will become assistant professor of New Testament, according to an announcement February 25 by Dr. Paul Clasper, dean of the Berkeley campus.

Mr. Walker earned his B.A. summa cum laude at North Carolina College at Durham in 1963, and then received a Woodrow Wilson fellowship for a year at Columbia University. After two years at Duke Divinity School, he moved to the Bay Area and received his B.D. cum laude in 1967 from Pacific School of Religion. He expects to receive his Ph.D. in theology and the personality sciences in June, 1970, from the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley.

Mr. Walker has been an associate minister of Disciples churches in North Carolina, Seattle and Oakland. From 1966-68 he was a graduate fellow at Pacific School of Religion and since then has served in the clinical training and education program of the University of California, Pacific School of Religion, San Mateo County Hospital and Marin County Juvenile Hall.

Mr. Bartlett earned his B.A. magna cum laude at Swarthmore College in 1963 and his B.D. summa cum laude at Yale Divinity School in 1967. He is currently writing the dissertation for his Ph.D. in New Testament at Yale.

As a seminarian, Mr. Bartlett received the Walker, Daggett and Archibald scholarship prizes and the Wade preaching prize. He was a Rockefeller fellow in 1969. A graduate fellow for two years at Yale, Mr. Bartlett has also been the associate minister at Calvary Baptist Church in New Haven and a summer intern at First Baptist Church in Los Angeles, where his father served as minister until 1960. He is an ordained American Baptist minister.

Dean Clasper also announced that Dr. William L. Malcomson, who has been associate professor of ministry at the Seminary of the West on a half-time basis, will become a full-time faculty member in September. He will resign as minister of leadership and program development at First Baptist Church in Oakland, so that he will be able to add the portfolio of director of field education at the seminary to his teaching responsibilities.

A graduate of Denison University, Colgate Rochester Divinity School and Princeton University, Dr. Malcomson is the author of two books. Before coming to the Seminary of the West in 1968, he taught at Central Baptist Theological Seminary and at Pomona College. For three years he was pastor of First Baptist Church in Storrs, Conn. and minister to American Baptist students, University of Conecticut.

THE LENGTHENING PROCESSION

By Joan Thatcher

Commencement after commencement, the graduating seniors lengthen the procession of Seminary of the West alumni dedicated to serving Christ and His church. In 1969 90% of the Berkeley and Covina seniors were called to church-related ministries or further graduate studies, while the remainder entered specialized vocations. The 1970 seniors expect to follow a similar pattern.

Although an overwhelming majority of the 2000 alumni have always served in the local pastorate, mini-size visits with eight graduates reveal the many-faceted dimensions of their ministry.

"I am committed to the local church ministry," is the firm statement made by EMORY C. CAMPBELL, who received his B.D. from Covina in 1956. After graduating from Fresno State, he enrolled at Covina and became a member of the seminary quartet. His field education assignment was at the First Baptist Church of Fullerton, where he served with one of the outstanding preachers on the West Coast.

To Mr. Campbell's considerable surprise, the Fullerton congregation called him to succeed the interim and he has been there ever since his ordination. The congregation now totals 1100 members. They have constructed a new sanctuary and a Christian education building and founded a new mission church. They consider their pastor an effective preacher, a concerned counselor and an active community leader. The father of two sons and two daughters, Mr. Campbell headed the division of church development for the Southern California Baptist Convention and served as president of the American Baptist Ministers Credit Union.

GERARD G. PHILLIPS came to Berkeley in 1952, following his graduation from Minnesota's Macalester College. His leadership abilities were already clear, since he had served as central area vice president for the national BYF, as president of the Minnesota BYF and the Roger Williams Fellowship at Macalester. He was also a youth group advisor during his college and seminary years. Long interested in camping, he has directed summer camps in Minnesota and at Green Lake, Wisconsin.

His deep-rooted Christian faith and his genuine concern for people have been evident in all three of his pastorates — First Baptist, Winona, Minnesota; at Park Baptist in St. Paul and since 1964 at University Baptist in E. Lansing, Michigan. Dean Emeritus Ralph E. Knudsen wrote of him, "He is a fine student not only of theological books but also of the human situation."

Several seniors at Covina discuss placement possibilities with Dr. George Downing and Rev. William Powell of the Southern California Baptist staff.

Mr. Phillips acquired both a degree and a wife at Berkeley. Mrs. Phillips, the former EDITH BAYHA, was a music major at Redlands and earned her M.A. in Christian education at Berkeley. Before her marriage in 1954 she served for three years as director of Christian education and music in Baptist churches in North Sacramento and South Gate, California. The Phillips have three daughters and a son.

MILTON A. COMBS is an Army Air Force veteran who played varsity football in college and was the scoutmaster in his home church, Pilgrim Baptist in St. Paul. One of Gerry Phillips' classmates at Macalester, he found his ministry taking a quite different direction after he received his B.D. from Berkeley in 1956.

Following graduate study at Cornell University, Mr. and Mrs. Combs spent a five-year term in Rangoon, Burma, doing youth work and teaching at the Burma Divinity School. They were the first black couple to be appointed by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies. The Combs returned to the Bay area in 1962 for a year of furlough study at San Francisco State College, only to learn that the mission field in Burma had been closed to Americans. After several years as a special education teacher at Juvenile Hall in Martinez, Mr. Combs is now on the faculty of Solano College in Vallejo and interim pastor at the Dutch Reformed Church in East Oakland. The Combs are the parents of three sons and two daughters.

NORMAN G. RIDDLE was another "first" with the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies in 1952, as the first Covina graduate appointed for overseas service. Born in Pasadena, Mr. Riddle received his B.D. in 1949 and returned on furlough in 1965 to earn his M.R.E. At that commencement he also received the Drexler award for unusual theological awareness and competence. This year the Riddles and their three daughters are again living on the Covina campus during a year of furlough study.

Mr. Riddle believes that warmth of heart and devotion are as essential for Christian service as admirable intellectual tools. He directed the Congo Advance Program, a modified Baptist Jubilee Advance, with program responsibilities at ten stations. In one month he visited 431 homes and contacted 1019 people. Of these, 298 were converted and 537 rededicated their lives to Christ.

After two years as a social worker in San Bernardino, ANSON F. RAINEY decided to enter the ministry and enrolled at Covina in 1951. During the next five years he earned his M.A., B.D. and Th.M. degrees with honors and taught for two years on the Covina faculty. He also earned a B.A. with honors in ancient Greek history at UCLA. In August, 1957, he married Patricia Trench, secretary to Leonard Schmidt, in the seminary business office.

That September Mr. Rainey began graduate studies at Brandeis University near Boston, where he received his M.A. in 1959 and his Ph.D. in 1962. In 1960 he received a Government of Israel award for a year's study at Hebrew University in Israel. Unusually fluent in both Hebrew and Arabic, Dr. Rainey returned to Israel in 1962. He teaches at the American Institute of Holy Land Studies in Jerusalem and is a senior lecturer in Semitics at the University of Tel-Aviv. Last year he translated Land of the Bible, published by Westminster Press, and is the leader in Israel for the Holy Land Study Tour sponsored by the Seminary of the West. A registered nurse, Mrs. Rainey teaches natural childbirth to Israeli women.

Another Covina graduate active in the educational field is WILLIAM FRANCIS SCHELLENBERGER. Since he received his B.D. in 1958, he has served as minister of Christian education at Baptist churches in Bellflower and San Diego, California and in Portland, Oregon, where he assisted Dr. J. Lester Harnish during the year he was national president of the American Baptist Convention. Mr. Schellenberger is now director of Christian education at the First Baptist Church of South Gate, which has 1200 members.

Interested in music since his teen years, he plays the saxophone and clarinet and directs choirs. Mr. and Mrs. Schellenberger are the parents of two daughters.

Among the Berkeley graduates who are top administrators at American Baptist headquarters in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, is MISS VIOLET RUDD, executive director of American Baptist Women. She graduated from Western Washington College of Education in Bellingham and received her bachelor of theology degree from Berkeley in 1938. After seven years as missionary-director of Delta Community Baptist Church in Everett, she became director of Christian friendliness and children's work for the Washington Baptist Convention.

In her present post since 1951, her capabilities have earned the respect of men and women alike. One of the highlights of her life was a three-month world tour in 1965, when she visited mission fields in fifteen countries. The dual purpose of her trip was to provide for a mutual exchange of ideas between Baptist women in America and in other countries and to enable Miss Rudd to observe first-hand the work being done by the United Nations in countries overseas.

DR. AGUSTIN E. MASA, now general secretary of the Convention of Philippine Baptist Churches, did post-graduate study at Berkeley from 1947-49. He earned his M.A. in 1949 and his B.D. in 1950. In 1960 he was honored with a Doctor of Divinity degree from Central Philippine University, where he earned his bachelor of theology degree in 1937. After fourteen years as minister of Capiz Evangelical Church, he was elected president of the Convention of Philippine Baptist Churches in 1947 and later became general secretary. During the Japanese occupation, he served as chaplain among the guerilla forces. After his return from Berkeley, he was pastor of the Baptist church in Roxas City. The Masas are the parents of four children.

Influenced to come to Berkeley by the example of Rev. E. F. Rounds, Dr. Elmer Fridell and Dr. John Skoglund, Mr. Masa wrote, "At Berkeley, everybody who names the name of the Lord, regardless of his color, class and nationality, has a vital contribution to make to the great cause of Kingdom building."

It is toward the "great cause of Kingdom building" that we lengthen the procession of those who go forth from the Seminary of the West.

What PRAYER Means to Me

By Boyce Van Osdel

(In an informal setting with Berkeley students, alumnus-trustee Boyce Van Osdel shared something of his life experiences with prayer during 35 years as a pastor. He has served First Baptist in Oakland since 1959.)

Honest prayer reflects that often the words of our hearts and the meditations of our minds are two quite different things!

I used to wonder whether I was praying about the right things and whether I was doing it in the right way. Now I think I have learned that our part may be to pray — and then let God determine whether or not to answer the prayer.

Many roadblocks to prayer come at the feeling level. In one of the churches I served, psychological tests revealed that one woman was aggressive, hostile and angry. When the tests were interpreted to her she responded by saying "Oh no, I'm not" and walked out. Two weeks later she came back and said that after a long talk with her husband, she understood what the tests meant!

Several years ago I accepted an invitation from Dr. E. Stanley Jones, the great Methodist missionary and author, to be one of the leaders at his Ashram conference. I went to be seen and instead found my life was changed. One night I stood at the back of the auditorium while Stanley Jones was speaking. He concluded by saying, "I have uncommitted areas in my life that I'm going to pray about. I invite any of you who wish to join me at the front."

Quietly I conducted an argument with myself. Why should I go pray at the front when I could pray just as well back here? Well, maybe there was a point to showing publicly that I was willing to do this, so I went up to the front and knelt.

I prayed, "Lord, here I am. I don't know why." I sensed that the Lord replied, "I want your church." I answered that by asking, "You mean you want me to move?" The Lord replied, "No, but I want you to be free enough to move." I prayed about that but I felt nothing. Then Stanley Jones quoted, "Ask whatsoever you will, believing it will be done unto you." Something happened to me then and I walked back down that aisle a new man. I told the church on Sunday morning that they had a new minister. This was such good news that afterwards some church members called others who were on vacation to tell them about it.

One of the deacons and I sandpapered each other in most relationships. After that sermon he said, "Boyce, I don't know what you've got, but I hope you will help me find it."

Like Bluebeard's locked room, we all have areas we have kept God out of. We don't deal with our uncommitted areas. Prayer is the source of faith. I finally saw that if I were to be a whole man, I had to recognize that God loved my "bad guy" areas as much as my "good guy" areas — and maybe more.

A large, enthusiastic audience heard lectures on "The Anatomy of the Black Church" during the John W. Bailey visiting professorship at ABSW (Berkeley) in February. Here Mrs. John W. Bailey talks with the visiting professor, Rev. W. Hazaiah Williams, director of the Center for Urban-Black Studies at the Graduate Theological Union.

SHALOM TO ADA GRACE CRALLE

Over 160 alumni, trustees and friends attended the dinner at Berkeley on March 6 commemorating the twenty-six years of service given by Professor Ada Grace Cralle in speech classes and as dean of women. Mrs. Maurice Hodge of the board of trustees (standing) told Mr. and Mrs. Cralle that "Ada Grace brought out the best in her students." Dr. Maurice P. Jackson, toastmaster, is seated at the left. Mrs. Cralle received three volumes of letters and a check for a plane ticket to Japan.

Sandy and Stuart Young

Interning in Pakistan

Two years as head counselors at the Lahore American School in West Pakistan is the unusual intern assignment for Stuart J. Young, an All-American baseball player at Linfield College in 1966 and currently a second-year student at the Berkeley campus of the Seminary of the West, and his wife, Sandy.

The Youngs flew from Seattle on March 2 and arrived in Pakistan on March 15, following two weeks at Expo '70 in Osaka and visits with mission leaders in Tokyo, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore, and Bangkok.

In West Pakistan they will supervise a youth hostel for thirty American high school students and serve as head counselors at the Lahore American School, where 80% of the students come from American families and 20% from other countries around the world. They may also teach courses or work with the athletic program. The school is related to the American consulate.

The Youngs will be succeeding Rev. Jack Lee Kiekel and his wife, Beverly, who will return to the United States in June following completion of their two-year assignment. Mr. Kiekel received his B.D. degree from the Baptist seminary at Berkeley in 1956 and his wife received her M.R.E. there in 1957. Mr. Kiekel is also a graduate of Linfield College and served as minister of Christian education at First Baptist Church in McMinnville, Oregon, when Mr. Young decided to enroll at the Berkeley campus of the Seminary of the West.

Dr. Paul Clasper, dean of the Berkeley campus, explained that because the seminary faculty recognized the educational advantages Mr. Young would receive by carrying on a youth counseling program in an Asian setting, they granted him a two-year extension of his intern year. While he is in Pakistan, Mr. Young will also take correspondence courses from the seminary and from California State College at Hayward, where he is a candidate for a master's degree in counseling.

A history major, Mr. Young received his B.A. from Linfield in 1967. Elected student body president and president of his class for three years, he was chosen as the "outstanding player" of the NAIA baseball tournament in 1966, when his pitching helped the Linfield Wildcats win their first national baseball championship. During the college All-American series in Honolulu that summer, Mr. Young was named to the first team of All-American players.

Between college and seminary, Mr. Young spent one year in Portland as a public school teacher, athletic coach and youth director for Cedar Hills Baptist Church. In 1968-69 he was a member of the Berkeley Seminary Trio, which presented music and drama programs at churches throughout California.

IN MEMORIAM

Deepest sympathy is expressed to the family of LAWRENCE R. JACKSON (Berkeley, 1959) who died on December 14 in Phoenix, Ariz. He was an American Baptist missionary to the Hopi and Navajo Indians in Arizona until illness forced his retirement several years ago. He is survived by his wife, Ruth; two children; and his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Perry Jackson, who served many years as ABC missionaries among American Indians.

* * * * *

The mission of Christ, particularly in Asia, suffered a tragic loss in the death in India on January 12 of EDWARD SINGHA (Berkeley '56x). He was traveling to Jorhat and became the innocent victim of a feud when the car was stopped and his driver was killed by a brother who then shot and killed Mr. Singha and wounded another man.

Widely regarded as "Mr. Baptist" in Asia, Mr. Singha served from 1956 until 1969 as the general secretary of the Council of Baptist Churches of North East India, the first Indian to hold the post. At his death he was pastor of Gauhati Baptist Church and chaplain of Satribari Christian Hospital in Gauhati.

He was also president of the CBCNEI, president of the Assam Baptist Convention, president of the Assam Auxiliary of the Bible Society of India, chairman of the board of Union Christian College, council member of Serampore College, executive member of the North East India Christian Council and executive member of the Baptist World Alliance. He is survived by his wife, a registered nurse, and their five children.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

COVINA CAMPUS

Newly-elected officers of the Covina Alumni Association include President Robert Westgate '63, pastor of Hacienda Hills Baptist Church, Hacienda Heights; Vice-president Gary Barmore '67, associate pastor, Calvary Baptist Church, San Bernardino; and Secretary Everett Curry '67, pastor of Lakeview Terrace Baptist Church in San Fernando.

1949 Air Force Colonel CHARLES J. BARNES, JR., stationed in Germany, was elected 2nd vice-president of the European Baptist Association for 1969-70.

1952 Chaplain EDWARD G. CARSON retired the end of December, completing 20 years of service. He was in both the European and Pacific theaters in World War II, the Korean conflict, and in Berlin during the airlift crisis.

1953 OTTO BYLSMA has been serving as president of the Ministerial Association in Willows where he is pastor of First Baptist Church. In October the group began a Saturday morning radio program, "Let's Talk It Over." A panel of three discusses an issue of religious interest and answers calls from the listening audience. Some programs received so many calls, the topic had to be continued for another week or two . . . RONALD VALLET was installed as pastor of Eastwood Baptist Church in Syracuse, N.Y. in September, following a ministry in Fredonia, N.Y. He serves on the Metropolitan Church Board for the area, is pastor-counselor for the state American Baptist Men, and recording secretary for the New York Baptist Convention. He, wife Rose Marie, and their two girls welcomed Ronald Everett, Jr. into their family on August 24.

1956 WILLIAM R. TIPTON has resigned his ministry to college students and young adults at First Baptist Church, Pomona, to become pastor of First Baptist, Honolulu.

1958 For the fifth consecutive year KENNETH KLIEVER has been elected chairman of the Department of Camps for the Southern California Baptist Convention. He is associate pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in Pasadena.

1960 Chaplain HARLAN CONFER and his wife, CHARLOTTE '61 continue their ministry in Germany. Visitors in 1969 included Dr. Genevieve Kelly, Covina librarian who was on sabbatical leave, and Mrs. Confer's parents, with whom they toured Italy, Austria, Switzerland, France and Germany.

1963 JAMES E. KILGORE is an associate in counseling at the Pastoral Counseling Institute, Inc. in Athens, Ga. He has a doctorate in the field and is a member of the American Association of Marriage Counselors . . . On February 1 ALAN POLLOCK began new responsibilities as associate minister of First Baptist Church of Corona. He had been director of Christian education at Pico Rivera First Baptist.

1965 In commenting on the annual sessions of the Southern California Baptist Convention in the regional Crusader, JAMES C. ALLEY said, "I was made to see that I was the convention. I was not there just to listen, to be a recipient, but to be a participant. I was given every opportunity to respond in love. My opinions were important, and I had every chance to share my feelings in discussion groups . . ." Mr. Alley is pastor of Bay View Baptist Church, Chula Vista . . . KENNETH WESTON, past president of the Alumni Association and pastor of Del Aire Baptist Church, Hawthorne, has accepted the call of the First Baptist Church, Everett, Wash. to become associate pastor with ERNEST L. HASTINGS '60 Hon.

1967 News from JAMES F. JONES, his wife, Margareta, and year-old Kristina describes their ministry to persons in Uppsala, Sweden where they serve under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies. In their first several months, 300 young people from many countries and backgrounds had been in their home.

BERKELEY CAMPUS

1933 LINNEA NELSON is spending her first year of retirement doing volunteer work in the Baptist Hospital in Managua, Nicaragua. She served for 23 years at Central Philippine University under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies.

1938 Berkeley's Dean Emeritus RALPH E. KNUDSEN is serving as interim pastor at the Church of the Foothills in San Jose.

1942 Completing 25 years of active duty, VINCENT E. M. NELSON retired in December from the Army chaplaincy with the rank of Colonel. He served in the Canal Zone, Japan, Korea, and many stateside assignments, the last as post chaplain at Camp Roberts, Calif. He is now engaged in graduate work in the San Francisco Bay Area with plans to enter the pastorate.

1945 HENRY J. CROES has been appointed a special consultant for the Division of Christian Higher Education of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. He will be related to a special project of the Commission on the Ministry dealing with ministerial recruitment and guidance. He is completing a study for the denomination on where seminary students come from and what factors influence long-term ministerial leadership in the ABC.

1948 SAM KLEINSASSER and his wife, of First Baptist Church, Roseburg, Ore., were among a group of ministers who spent two weeks on a preaching mission in Puerto Rico at the invitation of the Baptist Convention there.

1949 Among the American Baptist pastors and their wives who participated in a mission to Norway were the HAROLD BJORNSONS of First Baptist Church, Palo Alto.

1951 While serving as acting pastor of the Plantsville Baptist Church, Connecticut, NORMAN GANO '51x also directs an ambitious program of drama under Gano Productions. The theater group is periodically presenting a half-hour drama on television under the sponsorship of the state Council of Churches.

1952 RICHARD R. HAWORTH, area minister for the American Baptist Churches of Northern California, began responsibilities January 1 in the new position of minister of educational ministries for the American Baptist Churches of the West, the new regional structure bringing together Northern California and Nevada.

1953 Air Force Chaplain VERNON R. EDMONDSON is now at Holloman AFB, New Mexico. While stationed in Thailand late last year, he visited American Baptist missionary RICHARD GREGORY '54 at the Chinese Day School in Bangkok and had another missionary, JAMES CONKLIN '54, as an overnight guest . . . GLENN D. HAMMER '53x resigned in December as pastor of Westwood Community Baptist Church in Phoenix to devote full time to his position as executive minister of the Arizona Convention of American Baptist Churches. The convention voted in February on a proposal to join with Southern California in a new administrative area within the American Baptist Convention.

1954 After 35 years in the ministry GERALD MOYER '54x has retired. He was executive secretary of the Arizona Baptists, and served churches in Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, and Northern California. He and Mrs. Moyer will continue to make their home in Corte Madera.

1955 JOHN D. WARD has been appointed chaplain of the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Reno, Nevada. He will also be interim pastor of First Baptist Church, Sparks.

1957 V. O. BALDWIN '57x was called for the second time to serve as pastor of First Baptist Church of Martinez. He has ministered in several churches since the earlier pastorate and spent a year recuperating from open heart surgery . . . ARDEN A. CLUTE, JR. '57x is a teacher in the Berkeley public schools and living in Albany . . . GEORGE HEAD has moved from Southern California to serve on the staff of the Marble Collegiate Church in New York City.

1958 RICHARD M. PIPER received the Ph.D. degree in education from Michigan State University during ceremonies held in December . . . Participating in a preaching mission in January were ALAN SOUTHWELL and his wife of Calvary Baptist Church, Salem, Ore. They were part of a group of pastors from America who visited Nicaragua and El Salvador to engage in two weeks of preaching and teaching . . . An extension of the ministry of First Baptist Church, San Carlos, is its Pastoral Counseling and Communication Center. The minister-director is ROBERT W. WHEATON who is assisted by CHARLES T. DOUGLASS '69, associate minister of counseling and youth. Both men are professionally qualified for this developing ministry which offers classes, seminars, and group and individual counseling.

1959 Chaplain RICHARD E. GROTHE was awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious achievement in Vietnam . . . PAUL SHELFORD '59 Hon. resigned as executive director of the Glendale Council of Christian Churches, effective the end of December. He had given a year and a half of leadership in Glendale following his retirement as executive director of the San Francisco Council of Churches.

SEMINARY OF THE WEST BREAKFAST AT CINCINNATI

All alumni and friends of both campuses are invited to attend the annual Seminary of the West breakfast on Friday, May 15, during sessions of the American Baptist Convention at Cincinnati. Faculty and students will speak to the theme "Youth and Revolution, Reconciliation and Renewal." Breakfast will be served at 7:15 a.m. at the Netherland Hilton Hotel, Fifth and Race Streets. Tickets are $3.30 per person and are available from either campus in advance or from the ticket booth during the convention.

1960 RICHARD HEPLER has moved from Michigan where he was associated with Friendship House in Detroit and the Neighborhood Service Organization to become director of the Goodrich-Gannet Neighborhood Center in Cleveland, Ohio . . . Following a pastorate at First Baptist Church, Gildford, Mont., WALTER H. NELSON is now at First Baptist, Ellensburg, Wash. . . . DONALD REITER has left Hillside Baptist Church, La Mirada, to accept the pastorate of First Baptist in Santa Ana. Participating in the installation service on March 22 was Seminary of the West President C. Adrian Heaton.

1962 Major HERBERT A. SNIDER received the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service with the Chaplain Section at Fort Huachua, Ariz. He is now in Vietnam.

1963 Belated congratulations to the GEORGE W. POLLEYS on the arrival of Erika Marie last June. A novel by Mr. Polley, Sojourn in the Land of the Dead has been accepted for publication in 1970 by Kodosha Publishers of Japan. An article on "Henry Miller as Religious Writer" was published in the Autumn 1969 issue of South Dakota Review and is scheduled for publication in a Japanese translation in 1970 . . . DOUGLAS L. SIDEN '63x, an area minister for the American Baptist Churches of the West and past president of the San Francisco Council of Churches, participated in a dialogue sermon with a Roman Catholic clergyman in Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, as part of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity.

1967 Following a short term assignment with the American Baptist Churches of Northern California in the area of Christian education, JAMES R. MATHEWS has accepted a staff position at First Baptist Church, Mount Vernon, Wash. in the area of Christian education and music. The pastor is WILLHOLLAND WILLIAMS '52x. . . . STEPHEN REDDY, pastor of El Salvador Baptist Church in Denver for two years, assumed new responsibilities on January 15. He is now minister of youth for the Harvey Park Baptist Church of that city. He and his wife, Donna, have two children . . . DONALD G. SMITH has recently moved to Penns Creek, Pa. to serve as pastor of Emmanuel United Church of Christ.

1968 DAVID SIEGEL has accepted a staff position with the First Baptist Church of Port Angeles, Wash., moving from Vancouver.

1969 Congratulations to Merle and RONALD HARRIS on the birth of Bonnie Lynn on January 17 in Portland, Ore. where he serves on the staff of First Baptist Church . . . RONALD G. KALLANDER was ordained in a service held January 4 in the Union Baptist Church, Burke, South Dakota. He is director of Thousand Pines Camp for Southern California Baptists.

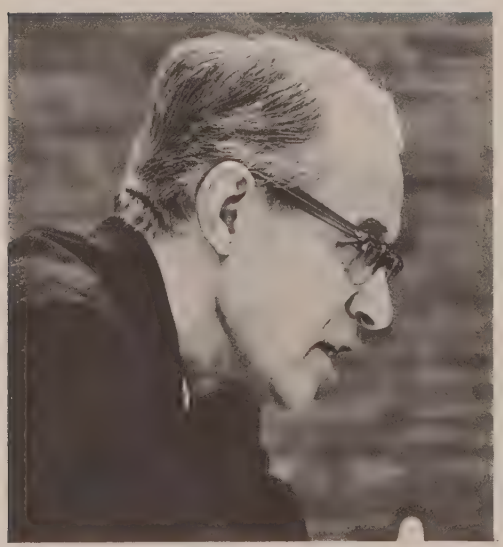
Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. I April 1970 No. 4

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, Calif. 94704

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor



Published February, April, October and December.

Entered as second class matter on March 13, 1931 at the post office at Berkeley, Calif., under the Act of August 24, 1912.

Return Postage Guaranteed

Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary
2770 Marin Avenue
Berkeley, California 94703

Speaking Personally

DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER returned to the Covina campus in March following an extended study project in western Europe. Traveling under the auspices of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies, Dr. Rutenber visited France, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Sweden and England. The purpose of his trip was to investigate present and potential projects in experimental ministries, including lay academies and other new forms of the church.

DR. RUSSELL S. ORR, executive minister of the American Baptist Churches of the West and an ABSW trustee, was installed in January as president of the Northern California Council of Churches for 1970.

Judson Press is publishing two books by DR. ROBERT LAURIN. The Laymen's Introduction to the Old Testament will be available this spring. He is also editing a second volume, Contemporary Old Testament Theologians, written by Baptist Old Testament scholars around the world.

DR. HAROLD FRAZEE spent a week in Salt Lake City in January, participating in a second-year training program for the National Education Associates of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. The forty delegates to this workshop will train Teaching Associates throughout the western states, who will in turn train local church people in using the new curriculum.

DR. C. ADRIAN HEATON preached at Temple Baptist Church in Los Angeles in February and engaged in a dialogue sermon with DR. THOMAS KILGORE, ABC president and ABSW trustee, at Second Baptist Church, Los Angeles, in March. He also led the Easter Sunrise Service sponsored by Forest Lawn in Covina.

DEAN PAUL CLASPER led state Baptist pastors conferences in Idaho-Montana and Washington in February, took part in Lenten series at First Baptist Church in Worcester, Mass. and the Downtown Oakland Christian Parish in March and will lead a four-week series at First Baptist, Palo Alto, in April on Eastern religions and the Christian faith.

The problem of white racism in the suburbs is being studied during an intern year by MICHAEL MCKEE of the Covina campus and three seminarians from Claremont, as part of a grant from the Irwin, Sweeney, Miller Foundation. Called "Project Understanding," its goal is to encourage positive steps toward better human relations in Pasadena and Arcadia.

The Church Responds is the title of a book of case studies on church renewal written by JOAN THATCHER. It will be published by Judson Press in May.

FEB 1 '71

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume I APRIL 1970 Number 4

EXPRESSING HIS ENTHUSIASM FOR THE PASTORATE, Rev. Vincent H. Coletta, Jr., left, brings two recent college graduates from his church to Covina to discuss preparation for the ministry with Dr. Donald Thomas, seminary vice president. A Berkeley graduate in 1948, Mr. Coletta has served First Baptist, Palos Verdes, since 1961.

Sabbatical in England*

"THE NEW TESTAMENT TODAY" — the formidable, but vital theme for the International Congress on New Testament Studies which I attended at Oxford this past September . . . A five-day smorgasbord of 39 addresses and 123 scholarly papers . . .

Let me share briefly the five major presentations: (1) Glasgow's William Barclay (the preachers' favorite) spoke concerning "The Unending Task and Problem of Translation," most relevant in the light of his recent translation of the New Testament (get it!).

(2) Heidelberg's Gunther Bornkamm spoke on "Paul and Jesus." Current critical study rejects older attempts to prove Paul the villain who perverted the pristine teachings of Jesus into a complicated theological system which became "Christianity."

(3) Princeton's B. E. Gartner dealt with "The Kingdom of God and Christology in the Early Church." The Christology reflected in the Acts and Epistles is rooted in Jesus' self-understanding. Gartner finds the tool for tracing this relationship in Jesus' teachings concerning the Kingdom.

(4) Alan Richardson, Dean of York, presented the query "What Is 'New Testament Theology'?" The answer: (a) to explain the message of the New Testament as a whole; (b) supply the master key of a principle of interpretation (which Richardson — I think rightly — sees as the resurrection); and (c) spell out the meaning for us today.

(5) C. F. D. Moule of Cambridge had the climactic address on "Jesus in the New Testament Kerygma." Most scholars have been wrong in claiming that Paul was disinterested in the historical Jesus. His interest is reflected in both his epistles and a critical handling of the Acts. I was pleased with the excellent reception given Professor Moule, inasmuch as I was able to spend the next two months in research and study with him. But that is another story . . .

If this International Congress is typical of the direction of New Testament studies, three clear projections can be stated: (1) There is an increasing concern in Christology. (2) There is a swing toward a more conservative Biblical scholarship. (3) There is movement toward moderation in continental Biblical research.

The last generation has reflected theological studies which have become more Biblically concerned. Moreover, Biblical theology has emerged as a responsible discipline. Now it seems that Biblical studies are becoming more theologically concerned. This is heartening. It is in line with the real purpose of the Bible. And it rightly relates to the true life of the church!

Robert A. Campbell

*After leading the first ABSW study tour in the Holy Land for six weeks, Dean Campbell spent two months in language study at the Sorbonne in Paris and then did research for two months in New Testament studies at the University of Cambridge.

BERKELEY CAMPUS BUYS ESTATE ON "HOLY HILL"

The Berkeley campus of the Seminary of the West has purchased the Wilson estate, situated on a prime location on "Holy Hill" in the heart of the Graduate Theological Union cluster, where most of the seminary's classes are already being held.

Bounded by LeConte, Scenic Avenue and Ridge Road, the property is one block south of the GTU headquarters and one block north of the University of California campus. It is across the street from the campuses of Pacific School of Religion and Church Divinity School of the Pacific, which have major facilities for classrooms, library, dining hall and chapel.

President C. Adrian Heaton explained that the Seminary of the West plans to build a structure which will include faculty and administrative offices, seminar rooms and a lounge for group gatherings. Student housing and parking facilities will be nearby. He said, "As our share in the GTU's facilities, we will make a major contribution toward constructing a multi-million dollar common library to house the 500,000 volumes owned by GTU institutions."

Discussions are in progress on the feasibility of a joint building project with the Presbyterians, who are currently moving the first two years of their program from San Anselmo to Berkeley. Cooperative planning is also being done with the master planner of the GTU in determining the best location for the GTU common library.

Dr. Heaton and Dean Paul Clasper both emphasized that the primary reason for the move was educational, rather than economic. Dr. Clasper said, "Full student and faculty participation in the common life of the GTU requires us to be physically present in the midst of where things are happening. A community of learning develops more quickly when we are in immediate conversational reach of our colleagues."

The purchase of the property on January 23 came nearly a year after a vote by the Berkeley and the Covina trustees to sell or lease portions of both campuses in a way that would facilitate the construction of adequate educational and housing facilities on a minimal amount of land. Operating costs for both campuses now exceed the funds available from tuition, rents, endowment and gift income. It is expected that it will be at least September, 1971, before operations are moved.

In the cover story for its year-end issue of December 26, 1969, Time magazine said, "By far the major development in religious education will be the 'cluster seminary,' modeled on the successful Graduate Theological Union on 'Holy Hill' in Berkeley. Founded only seven years ago, GTU now includes nine seminaries and four associated centers."

Some of the benefits of the Berkeley concept, according to Time, are: "Libraries are better. Shared facilities raise teaching standards while keeping individual seminary costs at a bearable level. Cross-registration affords each student the chance to pursue his own curriculum under the best available teachers. The interaction of the diverse groups also contributes dramatically to future changes in the church."

1970 Commencements

SEMINARY OF THE WEST

BERKELEY — 8 p.m., Friday, June 12

Thousand Oaks Baptist Church

Colusa and Catalina, Berkeley

COVINA — 4 p.m., Saturday, June 13

Conaway Chapel, Covina Campus

FOUR PROFESSORS TAKE 1970 SABBATICALS

Four professors at the Covina campus will be taking sabbatical leaves during 1970.

Dean Robert C. Campbell explained, "Largely because of the team teaching required by our new curriculum and at the faculty's request, the trustees have approved granting a one-quarter sabbatical leave every seven quarters, as an option to the usual pattern of a year's study leave every seven years. A sabbatical is not a vacation. Each professor requesting a leave must have his research plan approved in advance by the dean and by the board of trustees. When he returns to the campus, he reports his findings to the board's committee on instruction."

Dr. Leland D. Hine, professor of church history since 1960, is on sabbatical during the spring quarter of 1970. Dr. Hine is working in libraries in California and on the east coast in preparation for writing a book. His manuscript, on the theme of fulfilling God's calling in the world, will be especially helpful in Covina's colloquium on vocation. Dr. Hine's most recent book, a biography of missionary William Axling, was published by Judson Press in 1969.

Professor Robert H. Mitchell, a faculty member since 1954, has received a $4000 grant from the American Association of Theological Schools which will help to make possible a full year's sabbatical in his teaching area of Christianity and the arts. Mr. Mitchell and his wife will attend the Passion Play at Oberammergau in June, followed by two months of German language study at the Goethe Institute.

From September, 1970 to June, 1971, the Mitchells will be at the University of Birmingham in England. He will participate in the Institute for the Study of Worship and Religious Architecture, directed by Prof. J. G. Davies, chairman of the university's department of theology. The program includes academic study and opportunities for involvement in the creative ventures taking place in such centers as Coventry and Chichester. During the summer of 1971 Mr. Mitchell plans to study African church music.

Dr. Robert B. Laurin, registrar and professor of Old Testament since 1957, will lead the Seminary of the West's second Holy Land Study Tour for six weeks during the summer. From mid-August until Christmas, he will be writing a commentary on the Song of Songs to be published as a separate volume and a commentary on Lamentations, which will be part of a twelve-volume Bible commentary published by Broadman Press. He also plans to write some technical articles for professional journals.

Dr. Donald F. Thomas, vice president and professor of pastoral theology since 1963, and his wife will leave May 29 to spend two weeks attending theological lectures in Munich and Hamburg, Germany, followed by participation in the summer session for pastors at Mansfield College of Oxford University in England. Conference leaders will include John Marsh and Principal Caird. There will also be opportunities to get in touch with British theologians and to meet pastors in Britain and on the Continent.

For four months during the fall quarter, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas will be at Cambridge University in England, where he will attend lectures and use the library resources in the areas of New Testament and theology. Mrs. Thomas plans to visit a number of the libraries and book sellers with whom she has correspondence as the circulation librarian at the seminary.

Dr. Maurice P. Jackson, vice president at the Berkeley campus, where he will soon complete twenty-five years as professor of practical theology, is currently working out plans to be an exchange professor at Baptist institutions in Australia and the Philippines during a sabbatical leave from January 1 to August 1, 1971.

J. Lynwood Walker

David L. Bartlett

William L. Malcomson

Berkeley Campus Announces Faculty Additions

Two young scholars, both recipients of doctoral fellowships from the Rockefeller foundation and described as "rare finds" by their professors, have been appointed to the faculty of the American Baptist Seminary of the West at Berkeley. In September James Lynwood Walker will become assistant professor of theology and personality at the Seminary of the West and the Graduate Theological Union, and David Lyon Bartlett will become assistant professor of New Testament, according to an announcement February 25 by Dr. Paul Clasper, dean of the Berkeley campus.

Mr. Walker earned his B.A. summa cum laude at North Carolina College at Durham in 1963, and then received a Woodrow Wilson fellowship for a year at Columbia University. After two years at Duke Divinity School, he moved to the Bay Area and received his B.D. cum laude in 1967 from Pacific School of Religion. He expects to receive his Ph.D. in theology and the personality sciences in June, 1970, from the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley.

Mr. Walker has been an associate minister of Disciples churches in North Carolina, Seattle and Oakland. From 1966-68 he was a graduate fellow at Pacific School of Religion and since then has served in the clinical training and education program of the University of California, Pacific School of Religion, San Mateo County Hospital and Marin County Juvenile Hall.

Mr. Bartlett earned his B.A. magna cum laude at Swarthmore College in 1963 and his B.D. summa cum laude at Yale Divinity School in 1967. He is currently writing the dissertation for his Ph.D. in New Testament at Yale.

As a seminarian, Mr. Bartlett received the Walker, Daggett and Archibald scholarship prizes and the Wade preaching prize. He was a Rockefeller fellow in 1969. A graduate fellow for two years at Yale, Mr. Bartlett has also been the associate minister at Calvary Baptist Church in New Haven and a summer intern at First Baptist Church in Los Angeles, where his father served as minister until 1960. He is an ordained American Baptist minister.

Dean Clasper also announced that Dr. William L. Malcomson, who has been associate professor of ministry at the Seminary of the West on a half-time basis, will become a full-time faculty member in September. He will resign as minister of leadership and program development at First Baptist Church in Oakland, so that he will be able to add the portfolio of director of field education at the seminary to his teaching responsibilities.

A graduate of Denison University, Colgate Rochester Divinity School and Princeton University, Dr. Malcomson is the author of two books. Before coming to the Seminary of the West in 1968, he taught at Central Baptist Theological Seminary and at Pomona College. For three years he was pastor of First Baptist Church in Storrs, Conn. and minister to American Baptist students, University of Conecticut.

THE LENGTHENING PROCESSION

By Joan Thatcher

Commencement after commencement, the graduating seniors lengthen the procession of Seminary of the West alumni dedicated to serving Christ and His church. In 1969 90% of the Berkeley and Covina seniors were called to church-related ministries or further graduate studies, while the remainder entered specialized vocations. The 1970 seniors expect to follow a similar pattern.

Although an overwhelming majority of the 2000 alumni have always served in the local pastorate, mini-size visits with eight graduates reveal the many-faceted dimensions of their ministry.

"I am committed to the local church ministry," is the firm statement made by EMORY C. CAMPBELL, who received his B.D. from Covina in 1956. After graduating from Fresno State, he enrolled at Covina and became a member of the seminary quartet. His field education assignment was at the First Baptist Church of Fullerton, where he served with one of the outstanding preachers on the West Coast.

To Mr. Campbell's considerable surprise, the Fullerton congregation called him to succeed the interim and he has been there ever since his ordination. The congregation now totals 1100 members. They have constructed a new sanctuary and a Christian education building and founded a new mission church. They consider their pastor an effective preacher, a concerned counselor and an active community leader. The father of two sons and two daughters, Mr. Campbell headed the division of church development for the Southern California Baptist Convention and served as president of the American Baptist Ministers Credit Union.

GERARD G. PHILLIPS came to Berkeley in 1952, following his graduation from Minnesota's Macalester College. His leadership abilities were already clear, since he had served as central area vice president for the national BYF, as president of the Minnesota BYF and the Roger Williams Fellowship at Macalester. He was also a youth group advisor during his college and seminary years. Long interested in camping, he has directed summer camps in Minnesota and at Green Lake, Wisconsin.

His deep-rooted Christian faith and his genuine concern for people have been evident in all three of his pastorates — First Baptist, Winona, Minnesota; at Park Baptist in St. Paul and since 1964 at University Baptist in E. Lansing, Michigan. Dean Emeritus Ralph E. Knudsen wrote of him, "He is a fine student not only of theological books but also of the human situation."

Several seniors at Covina discuss placement possibilities with Dr. George Downing and Rev. William Powell of the Southern California Baptist staff.

Mr. Phillips acquired both a degree and a wife at Berkeley. Mrs. Phillips, the former EDITH BAYHA, was a music major at Redlands and earned her M.A. in Christian education at Berkeley. Before her marriage in 1954 she served for three years as director of Christian education and music in Baptist churches in North Sacramento and South Gate, California. The Phillips have three daughters and a son.

MILTON A. COMBS is an Army Air Force veteran who played varsity football in college and was the scoutmaster in his home church, Pilgrim Baptist in St. Paul. One of Gerry Phillips' classmates at Macalester, he found his ministry taking a quite different direction after he received his B.D. from Berkeley in 1956.

Following graduate study at Cornell University, Mr. and Mrs. Combs spent a five-year term in Rangoon, Burma, doing youth work and teaching at the Burma Divinity School. They were the first black couple to be appointed by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies. The Combs returned to the Bay area in 1962 for a year of furlough study at San Francisco State College, only to learn that the mission field in Burma had been closed to Americans. After several years as a special education teacher at Juvenile Hall in Martinez, Mr. Combs is now on the faculty of Solano College in Vallejo and interim pastor at the Dutch Reformed Church in East Oakland. The Combs are the parents of three sons and two daughters.

NORMAN G. RIDDLE was another "first" with the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies in 1952, as the first Covina graduate appointed for overseas service. Born in Pasadena, Mr. Riddle received his B.D. in 1949 and returned on furlough in 1965 to earn his M.R.E. At that commencement he also received the Drexler award for unusual theological awareness and competence. This year the Riddles and their three daughters are again living on the Covina campus during a year of furlough study.

Mr. Riddle believes that warmth of heart and devotion are as essential for Christian service as admirable intellectual tools. He directed the Congo Advance Program, a modified Baptist Jubilee Advance, with program responsibilities at ten stations. In one month he visited 431 homes and contacted 1019 people. Of these, 298 were converted and 537 rededicated their lives to Christ.

After two years as a social worker in San Bernardino, ANSON F. RAINEY decided to enter the ministry and enrolled at Covina in 1951. During the next five years he earned his M.A., B.D. and Th.M. degrees with honors and taught for two years on the Covina faculty. He also earned a B.A. with honors in ancient Greek history at UCLA. In August, 1957, he married Patricia Trench, secretary to Leonard Schmidt, in the seminary business office.

That September Mr. Rainey began graduate studies at Brandeis University near Boston, where he received his M.A. in 1959 and his Ph.D. in 1962. In 1960 he received a Government of Israel award for a year's study at Hebrew University in Israel. Unusually fluent in both Hebrew and Arabic, Dr. Rainey returned to Israel in 1962. He teaches at the American Institute of Holy Land Studies in Jerusalem and is a senior lecturer in Semitics at the University of Tel-Aviv. Last year he translated Land of the Bible, published by Westminster Press, and is the leader in Israel for the Holy Land Study Tour sponsored by the Seminary of the West. A registered nurse, Mrs. Rainey teaches natural childbirth to Israeli women.

Another Covina graduate active in the educational field is WILLIAM FRANCIS SCHELLENBERGER. Since he received his B.D. in 1958, he has served as minister of Christian education at Baptist churches in Bellflower and San Diego, California and in Portland, Oregon, where he assisted Dr. J. Lester Harnish during the year he was national president of the American Baptist Convention. Mr. Schellenberger is now director of Christian education at the First Baptist Church of South Gate, which has 1200 members.

Interested in music since his teen years, he plays the saxophone and clarinet and directs choirs. Mr. and Mrs. Schellenberger are the parents of two daughters.

Among the Berkeley graduates who are top administrators at American Baptist headquarters in Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, is MISS VIOLET RUDD, executive director of American Baptist Women. She graduated from Western Washington College of Education in Bellingham and received her bachelor of theology degree from Berkeley in 1938. After seven years as missionary-director of Delta Community Baptist Church in Everett, she became director of Christian friendliness and children's work for the Washington Baptist Convention.

In her present post since 1951, her capabilities have earned the respect of men and women alike. One of the highlights of her life was a three-month world tour in 1965, when she visited mission fields in fifteen countries. The dual purpose of her trip was to provide for a mutual exchange of ideas between Baptist women in America and in other countries and to enable Miss Rudd to observe first-hand the work being done by the United Nations in countries overseas.

DR. AGUSTIN E. MASA, now general secretary of the Convention of Philippine Baptist Churches, did post-graduate study at Berkeley from 1947-49. He earned his M.A. in 1949 and his B.D. in 1950. In 1960 he was honored with a Doctor of Divinity degree from Central Philippine University, where he earned his bachelor of theology degree in 1937. After fourteen years as minister of Capiz Evangelical Church, he was elected president of the Convention of Philippine Baptist Churches in 1947 and later became general secretary. During the Japanese occupation, he served as chaplain among the guerilla forces. After his return from Berkeley, he was pastor of the Baptist church in Roxas City. The Masas are the parents of four children.

Influenced to come to Berkeley by the example of Rev. E. F. Rounds, Dr. Elmer Fridell and Dr. John Skoglund, Mr. Masa wrote, "At Berkeley, everybody who names the name of the Lord, regardless of his color, class and nationality, has a vital contribution to make to the great cause of Kingdom building."

It is toward the "great cause of Kingdom building" that we lengthen the procession of those who go forth from the Seminary of the West.

What PRAYER Means to Me

By Boyce Van Osdel

(In an informal setting with Berkeley students, alumnus-trustee Boyce Van Osdel shared something of his life experiences with prayer during 35 years as a pastor. He has served First Baptist in Oakland since 1959.)

Honest prayer reflects that often the words of our hearts and the meditations of our minds are two quite different things!

I used to wonder whether I was praying about the right things and whether I was doing it in the right way. Now I think I have learned that our part may be to pray — and then let God determine whether or not to answer the prayer.

Many roadblocks to prayer come at the feeling level. In one of the churches I served, psychological tests revealed that one woman was aggressive, hostile and angry. When the tests were interpreted to her she responded by saying "Oh no, I'm not" and walked out. Two weeks later she came back and said that after a long talk with her husband, she understood what the tests meant!

Several years ago I accepted an invitation from Dr. E. Stanley Jones, the great Methodist missionary and author, to be one of the leaders at his Ashram conference. I went to be seen and instead found my life was changed. One night I stood at the back of the auditorium while Stanley Jones was speaking. He concluded by saying, "I have uncommitted areas in my life that I'm going to pray about. I invite any of you who wish to join me at the front."

Quietly I conducted an argument with myself. Why should I go pray at the front when I could pray just as well back here? Well, maybe there was a point to showing publicly that I was willing to do this, so I went up to the front and knelt.

I prayed, "Lord, here I am. I don't know why." I sensed that the Lord replied, "I want your church." I answered that by asking, "You mean you want me to move?" The Lord replied, "No, but I want you to be free enough to move." I prayed about that but I felt nothing. Then Stanley Jones quoted, "Ask whatsoever you will, believing it will be done unto you." Something happened to me then and I walked back down that aisle a new man. I told the church on Sunday morning that they had a new minister. This was such good news that afterwards some church members called others who were on vacation to tell them about it.

One of the deacons and I sandpapered each other in most relationships. After that sermon he said, "Boyce, I don't know what you've got, but I hope you will help me find it."

Like Bluebeard's locked room, we all have areas we have kept God out of. We don't deal with our uncommitted areas. Prayer is the source of faith. I finally saw that if I were to be a whole man, I had to recognize that God loved my "bad guy" areas as much as my "good guy" areas — and maybe more.

A large, enthusiastic audience heard lectures on "The Anatomy of the Black Church" during the John W. Bailey visiting professorship at ABSW (Berkeley) in February. Here Mrs. John W. Bailey talks with the visiting professor, Rev. W. Hazaiah Williams, director of the Center for Urban-Black Studies at the Graduate Theological Union.

SHALOM TO ADA GRACE CRALLE

Over 160 alumni, trustees and friends attended the dinner at Berkeley on March 6 commemorating the twenty-six years of service given by Professor Ada Grace Cralle in speech classes and as dean of women. Mrs. Maurice Hodge of the board of trustees (standing) told Mr. and Mrs. Cralle that "Ada Grace brought out the best in her students." Dr. Maurice P. Jackson, toastmaster, is seated at the left. Mrs. Cralle received three volumes of letters and a check for a plane ticket to Japan.

Sandy and Stuart Young

Interning in Pakistan

Two years as head counselors at the Lahore American School in West Pakistan is the unusual intern assignment for Stuart J. Young, an All-American baseball player at Linfield College in 1966 and currently a second-year student at the Berkeley campus of the Seminary of the West, and his wife, Sandy.

The Youngs flew from Seattle on March 2 and arrived in Pakistan on March 15, following two weeks at Expo '70 in Osaka and visits with mission leaders in Tokyo, Hong Kong, Taiwan, Singapore, and Bangkok.

In West Pakistan they will supervise a youth hostel for thirty American high school students and serve as head counselors at the Lahore American School, where 80% of the students come from American families and 20% from other countries around the world. They may also teach courses or work with the athletic program. The school is related to the American consulate.

The Youngs will be succeeding Rev. Jack Lee Kiekel and his wife, Beverly, who will return to the United States in June following completion of their two-year assignment. Mr. Kiekel received his B.D. degree from the Baptist seminary at Berkeley in 1956 and his wife received her M.R.E. there in 1957. Mr. Kiekel is also a graduate of Linfield College and served as minister of Christian education at First Baptist Church in McMinnville, Oregon, when Mr. Young decided to enroll at the Berkeley campus of the Seminary of the West.

Dr. Paul Clasper, dean of the Berkeley campus, explained that because the seminary faculty recognized the educational advantages Mr. Young would receive by carrying on a youth counseling program in an Asian setting, they granted him a two-year extension of his intern year. While he is in Pakistan, Mr. Young will also take correspondence courses from the seminary and from California State College at Hayward, where he is a candidate for a master's degree in counseling.

A history major, Mr. Young received his B.A. from Linfield in 1967. Elected student body president and president of his class for three years, he was chosen as the "outstanding player" of the NAIA baseball tournament in 1966, when his pitching helped the Linfield Wildcats win their first national baseball championship. During the college All-American series in Honolulu that summer, Mr. Young was named to the first team of All-American players.

Between college and seminary, Mr. Young spent one year in Portland as a public school teacher, athletic coach and youth director for Cedar Hills Baptist Church. In 1968-69 he was a member of the Berkeley Seminary Trio, which presented music and drama programs at churches throughout California.

IN MEMORIAM

Deepest sympathy is expressed to the family of LAWRENCE R. JACKSON (Berkeley, 1959) who died on December 14 in Phoenix, Ariz. He was an American Baptist missionary to the Hopi and Navajo Indians in Arizona until illness forced his retirement several years ago. He is survived by his wife, Ruth; two children; and his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Perry Jackson, who served many years as ABC missionaries among American Indians.

* * * * *

The mission of Christ, particularly in Asia, suffered a tragic loss in the death in India on January 12 of EDWARD SINGHA (Berkeley '56x). He was traveling to Jorhat and became the innocent victim of a feud when the car was stopped and his driver was killed by a brother who then shot and killed Mr. Singha and wounded another man.

Widely regarded as "Mr. Baptist" in Asia, Mr. Singha served from 1956 until 1969 as the general secretary of the Council of Baptist Churches of North East India, the first Indian to hold the post. At his death he was pastor of Gauhati Baptist Church and chaplain of Satribari Christian Hospital in Gauhati.

He was also president of the CBCNEI, president of the Assam Baptist Convention, president of the Assam Auxiliary of the Bible Society of India, chairman of the board of Union Christian College, council member of Serampore College, executive member of the North East India Christian Council and executive member of the Baptist World Alliance. He is survived by his wife, a registered nurse, and their five children.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

COVINA CAMPUS

Newly-elected officers of the Covina Alumni Association include President Robert Westgate '63, pastor of Hacienda Hills Baptist Church, Hacienda Heights; Vice-president Gary Barmore '67, associate pastor, Calvary Baptist Church, San Bernardino; and Secretary Everett Curry '67, pastor of Lakeview Terrace Baptist Church in San Fernando.

1949 Air Force Colonel CHARLES J. BARNES, JR., stationed in Germany, was elected 2nd vice-president of the European Baptist Association for 1969-70.

1952 Chaplain EDWARD G. CARSON retired the end of December, completing 20 years of service. He was in both the European and Pacific theaters in World War II, the Korean conflict, and in Berlin during the airlift crisis.

1953 OTTO BYLSMA has been serving as president of the Ministerial Association in Willows where he is pastor of First Baptist Church. In October the group began a Saturday morning radio program, "Let's Talk It Over." A panel of three discusses an issue of religious interest and answers calls from the listening audience. Some programs received so many calls, the topic had to be continued for another week or two . . . RONALD VALLET was installed as pastor of Eastwood Baptist Church in Syracuse, N.Y. in September, following a ministry in Fredonia, N.Y. He serves on the Metropolitan Church Board for the area, is pastor-counselor for the state American Baptist Men, and recording secretary for the New York Baptist Convention. He, wife Rose Marie, and their two girls welcomed Ronald Everett, Jr. into their family on August 24.

1956 WILLIAM R. TIPTON has resigned his ministry to college students and young adults at First Baptist Church, Pomona, to become pastor of First Baptist, Honolulu.

1958 For the fifth consecutive year KENNETH KLIEVER has been elected chairman of the Department of Camps for the Southern California Baptist Convention. He is associate pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in Pasadena.

1960 Chaplain HARLAN CONFER and his wife, CHARLOTTE '61 continue their ministry in Germany. Visitors in 1969 included Dr. Genevieve Kelly, Covina librarian who was on sabbatical leave, and Mrs. Confer's parents, with whom they toured Italy, Austria, Switzerland, France and Germany.

1963 JAMES E. KILGORE is an associate in counseling at the Pastoral Counseling Institute, Inc. in Athens, Ga. He has a doctorate in the field and is a member of the American Association of Marriage Counselors . . . On February 1 ALAN POLLOCK began new responsibilities as associate minister of First Baptist Church of Corona. He had been director of Christian education at Pico Rivera First Baptist.

1965 In commenting on the annual sessions of the Southern California Baptist Convention in the regional Crusader, JAMES C. ALLEY said, "I was made to see that I was the convention. I was not there just to listen, to be a recipient, but to be a participant. I was given every opportunity to respond in love. My opinions were important, and I had every chance to share my feelings in discussion groups . . ." Mr. Alley is pastor of Bay View Baptist Church, Chula Vista . . . KENNETH WESTON, past president of the Alumni Association and pastor of Del Aire Baptist Church, Hawthorne, has accepted the call of the First Baptist Church, Everett, Wash. to become associate pastor with ERNEST L. HASTINGS '60 Hon.

1967 News from JAMES F. JONES, his wife, Margareta, and year-old Kristina describes their ministry to persons in Uppsala, Sweden where they serve under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies. In their first several months, 300 young people from many countries and backgrounds had been in their home.

BERKELEY CAMPUS

1933 LINNEA NELSON is spending her first year of retirement doing volunteer work in the Baptist Hospital in Managua, Nicaragua. She served for 23 years at Central Philippine University under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies.

1938 Berkeley's Dean Emeritus RALPH E. KNUDSEN is serving as interim pastor at the Church of the Foothills in San Jose.

1942 Completing 25 years of active duty, VINCENT E. M. NELSON retired in December from the Army chaplaincy with the rank of Colonel. He served in the Canal Zone, Japan, Korea, and many stateside assignments, the last as post chaplain at Camp Roberts, Calif. He is now engaged in graduate work in the San Francisco Bay Area with plans to enter the pastorate.

1945 HENRY J. CROES has been appointed a special consultant for the Division of Christian Higher Education of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. He will be related to a special project of the Commission on the Ministry dealing with ministerial recruitment and guidance. He is completing a study for the denomination on where seminary students come from and what factors influence long-term ministerial leadership in the ABC.

1948 SAM KLEINSASSER and his wife, of First Baptist Church, Roseburg, Ore., were among a group of ministers who spent two weeks on a preaching mission in Puerto Rico at the invitation of the Baptist Convention there.

1949 Among the American Baptist pastors and their wives who participated in a mission to Norway were the HAROLD BJORNSONS of First Baptist Church, Palo Alto.

1951 While serving as acting pastor of the Plantsville Baptist Church, Connecticut, NORMAN GANO '51x also directs an ambitious program of drama under Gano Productions. The theater group is periodically presenting a half-hour drama on television under the sponsorship of the state Council of Churches.

1952 RICHARD R. HAWORTH, area minister for the American Baptist Churches of Northern California, began responsibilities January 1 in the new position of minister of educational ministries for the American Baptist Churches of the West, the new regional structure bringing together Northern California and Nevada.

1953 Air Force Chaplain VERNON R. EDMONDSON is now at Holloman AFB, New Mexico. While stationed in Thailand late last year, he visited American Baptist missionary RICHARD GREGORY '54 at the Chinese Day School in Bangkok and had another missionary, JAMES CONKLIN '54, as an overnight guest . . . GLENN D. HAMMER '53x resigned in December as pastor of Westwood Community Baptist Church in Phoenix to devote full time to his position as executive minister of the Arizona Convention of American Baptist Churches. The convention voted in February on a proposal to join with Southern California in a new administrative area within the American Baptist Convention.

1954 After 35 years in the ministry GERALD MOYER '54x has retired. He was executive secretary of the Arizona Baptists, and served churches in Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, and Northern California. He and Mrs. Moyer will continue to make their home in Corte Madera.

1955 JOHN D. WARD has been appointed chaplain of the Veterans' Administration Hospital in Reno, Nevada. He will also be interim pastor of First Baptist Church, Sparks.

1957 V. O. BALDWIN '57x was called for the second time to serve as pastor of First Baptist Church of Martinez. He has ministered in several churches since the earlier pastorate and spent a year recuperating from open heart surgery . . . ARDEN A. CLUTE, JR. '57x is a teacher in the Berkeley public schools and living in Albany . . . GEORGE HEAD has moved from Southern California to serve on the staff of the Marble Collegiate Church in New York City.

1958 RICHARD M. PIPER received the Ph.D. degree in education from Michigan State University during ceremonies held in December . . . Participating in a preaching mission in January were ALAN SOUTHWELL and his wife of Calvary Baptist Church, Salem, Ore. They were part of a group of pastors from America who visited Nicaragua and El Salvador to engage in two weeks of preaching and teaching . . . An extension of the ministry of First Baptist Church, San Carlos, is its Pastoral Counseling and Communication Center. The minister-director is ROBERT W. WHEATON who is assisted by CHARLES T. DOUGLASS '69, associate minister of counseling and youth. Both men are professionally qualified for this developing ministry which offers classes, seminars, and group and individual counseling.

1959 Chaplain RICHARD E. GROTHE was awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious achievement in Vietnam . . . PAUL SHELFORD '59 Hon. resigned as executive director of the Glendale Council of Christian Churches, effective the end of December. He had given a year and a half of leadership in Glendale following his retirement as executive director of the San Francisco Council of Churches.

SEMINARY OF THE WEST BREAKFAST AT CINCINNATI

All alumni and friends of both campuses are invited to attend the annual Seminary of the West breakfast on Friday, May 15, during sessions of the American Baptist Convention at Cincinnati. Faculty and students will speak to the theme "Youth and Revolution, Reconciliation and Renewal." Breakfast will be served at 7:15 a.m. at the Netherland Hilton Hotel, Fifth and Race Streets. Tickets are $3.30 per person and are available from either campus in advance or from the ticket booth during the convention.

1960 RICHARD HEPLER has moved from Michigan where he was associated with Friendship House in Detroit and the Neighborhood Service Organization to become director of the Goodrich-Gannet Neighborhood Center in Cleveland, Ohio . . . Following a pastorate at First Baptist Church, Gildford, Mont., WALTER H. NELSON is now at First Baptist, Ellensburg, Wash. . . . DONALD REITER has left Hillside Baptist Church, La Mirada, to accept the pastorate of First Baptist in Santa Ana. Participating in the installation service on March 22 was Seminary of the West President C. Adrian Heaton.

1962 Major HERBERT A. SNIDER received the Army Commendation Medal for meritorious service with the Chaplain Section at Fort Huachua, Ariz. He is now in Vietnam.

1963 Belated congratulations to the GEORGE W. POLLEYS on the arrival of Erika Marie last June. A novel by Mr. Polley, Sojourn in the Land of the Dead has been accepted for publication in 1970 by Kodosha Publishers of Japan. An article on "Henry Miller as Religious Writer" was published in the Autumn 1969 issue of South Dakota Review and is scheduled for publication in a Japanese translation in 1970 . . . DOUGLAS L. SIDEN '63x, an area minister for the American Baptist Churches of the West and past president of the San Francisco Council of Churches, participated in a dialogue sermon with a Roman Catholic clergyman in Grace Cathedral, San Francisco, as part of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity.

1967 Following a short term assignment with the American Baptist Churches of Northern California in the area of Christian education, JAMES R. MATHEWS has accepted a staff position at First Baptist Church, Mount Vernon, Wash. in the area of Christian education and music. The pastor is WILLHOLLAND WILLIAMS '52x. . . . STEPHEN REDDY, pastor of El Salvador Baptist Church in Denver for two years, assumed new responsibilities on January 15. He is now minister of youth for the Harvey Park Baptist Church of that city. He and his wife, Donna, have two children . . . DONALD G. SMITH has recently moved to Penns Creek, Pa. to serve as pastor of Emmanuel United Church of Christ.

1968 DAVID SIEGEL has accepted a staff position with the First Baptist Church of Port Angeles, Wash., moving from Vancouver.

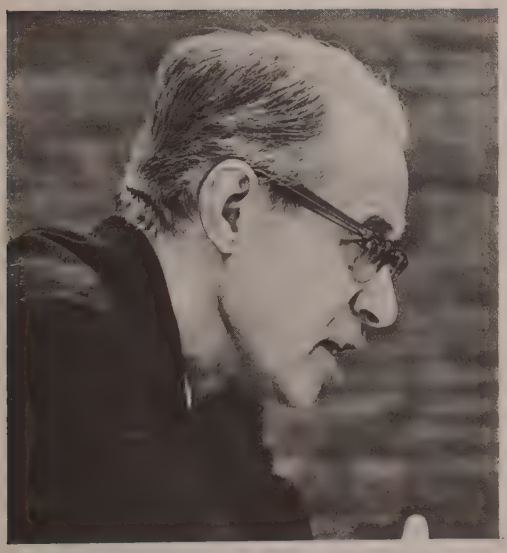
1969 Congratulations to Merle and RONALD HARRIS on the birth of Bonnie Lynn on January 17 in Portland, Ore. where he serves on the staff of First Baptist Church . . . RONALD G. KALLANDER was ordained in a service held January 4 in the Union Baptist Church, Burke, South Dakota. He is director of Thousand Pines Camp for Southern California Baptists.

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. 1 April 1970 No. 4

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, Calif. 94704



C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, April, October and December.

Entered as second class matter on March 13, 1931 at the post office at Berkeley, Calif., under the Act of August 24, 1912.

Return Postage Guaranteed

Speaking Personally

DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER returned to the Covina campus in March following an extended study project in western Europe. Traveling under the auspices of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies, Dr. Rutenber visited France, Switzerland, Italy, Germany, Sweden and England. The purpose of his trip was to investigate present and potential projects in experimental ministries, including lay academies and other new forms of the church.

DR. RUSSELL S. ORR, executive minister of the American Baptist Churches of the West and an ABSW trustee, was installed in January as president of the Northern California Council of Churches for 1970.

Judson Press is publishing two books by DR. ROBERT LAURIN. The Laymen's Introduction to the Old Testament will be available this spring. He is also editing a second volume, Contemporary Old Testament Theologians, written by Baptist Old Testament scholars around the world.

DR. HAROLD FRAZEE spent a week in Salt Lake City in January, participating in a second-year training program for the National Education Associates of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. The forty delegates to this workshop will train Teaching Associates throughout the western states, who will in turn train local church people in using the new curriculum.

DR. C. ADRIAN HEATON preached at Temple Baptist Church in Los Angeles in February and engaged in a dialogue sermon with DR. THOMAS KILGORE, ABC president and ABSW trustee, at Second Baptist Church, Los Angeles, in March. He also led the Easter Sunrise Service sponsored by Forest Lawn in Covina.

DEAN PAUL CLASPER led state Baptist pastors conferences in Idaho-Montana and Washington in February, took part in Lenten series at First Baptist Church in Worcester, Mass. and the Downtown Oakland Christian Parish in March and will lead a four-week series at First Baptist, Palo Alto, in April on Eastern religions and the Christian faith.

The problem of white racism in the suburbs is being studied during an intern year by MICHAEL MCKEE of the Covina campus and three seminarians from Claremont, as part of a grant from the Irwin, Sweeney, Miller Foundation. Called "Project Understanding," its goal is to encourage positive steps toward better human relations in Pasadena and Arcadia.

The Church Responds is the title of a book of case studies on church renewal written by JOAN THATCHER. It will be published by Judson Press in May.

JUL 28 '71

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume 2 Number 1

OCTOBER 1970

Future plans for student housing are discussed by President Adrian Heaton and Arlo Reichter, president of the Berkeley student body. Already a student committee is responsible for making housing assignments.

FACULTY DIALOGUE

WHAT'S HAPPENING IN OUR SEMINARIES?*

By Bernard L. Ramm
Professor of Systematic Theology,
ABSW

The great sociological changes altering the ideologies, values and morals of today's young people also make an impact on seminaries.

The following observations do not apply to all seminaries. But they are the kinds of things that are happening today.

The Clustering Idea

(1) Modern theological education is much devoted to the cluster plan. As many seminaries as possible cluster in the same geographical region, particularly in a large city where diverse kinds of ministries are possible. Cities such as Boston or New York or Chicago or Berkeley are ideal for clustering.

The most obvious advantage to this plan is that it saves money. It saves all kinds of expensive duplication. One library for all the seminaries is cheaper to operate than six libraries for six seminaries. Food services may be combined. Common dormitories may be built. Classroom space can be shared.

The other advantage is educational. The student has access to all the courses and all the professors of the entire cluster.

It is also "ecumenical" education in that the students start to appreciate other denominations and other theological options which in turn will make them more understanding pastors in their future ministry. Even Roman Catholic schools are joining some of these clusters.

(2) Modern seminary education is interested in university relatedness. A university has a spread of courses no seminary can match. A university has a pool of scholars upon which the seminary can draw at critical points. A university will have library holdings far beyond what a seminary could provide. Further, men interested in academics may work through the universities and obtain Ph.D. degrees as cooperative projects between seminary and university.

A Plurality of Ministries

(3) Modern theological education is aimed at a plurality of ministries. Historically it was a well-beaten path from the seminary to the pastoral ministry. Well over 90% of any graduating class was placed as parish ministers. Today this figure is as low as 40% in some cases, but more commonly it is about 60%.

The plain truth is that more and more seminarians are not interested in the pastorate. It may be for negative reasons such as, "The church wants me to do its traditional Mickey Mouse program instead of getting with it." Or, "The church wants me more for an errand boy or yes man than a prophet and leader." Or, "Society has pushed the church to the edge of community life where it is ineffectual."

It may be for positive reasons. The seminarian may believe he can do more for the gospel in some other way than the pastorate. Some think that teaching or going into social work gets them next to people the church will never touch. Others look to the military or hospital chaplaincy as a more vital place of service. Others think that psychological counseling offers greater help to people than the pastoral ministry. Some seminarians think the slums and the ghettos are the places where Christian justice must begin.

At the seminary level this calls for a loosening up of the curriculum to meet all these new demands.

(4) The doctor's degree is becoming the standard

(continued on page 12)

*Excerpts from an article in Eternity magazine, June, 1970. Reprinted with permission.

AATS Approves Doctor of Ministry Degree

In June, 1970, the American Association of Theological Schools voted to recognize the right of member schools to establish programs for a professional doctorate, designated as the Doctor of Ministry (or D.Min.).

The faculty and trustees of the Covina campus agreed to begin offering a four-year professional doctorate in September, 1970. Such prompt action was possible when the faculty learned that the guidelines for the new program, recommended by an AATS committee headed by Dean Krister Stendahl of Harvard Divinity School, closely followed the pattern for professional education already envisioned in curriculum changes at Covina.

Discussions of a similar program are underway at the Berkeley campus of the ABSW, in conjunction with the Graduate Theological Union.

In the committee's final report to the AATS, Dean Stendahl wrote, "I see the establishment of D.Min. programs as a mandate for increase in competence and for creative experimentation in professional education . . . I envisage (this) as the timely challenge of shaping professional education according to the long-term and deep-down needs of the minister. The issue is not less thinking and more doing. The issue is rather to think harder and with more academic rigor."

The AATS has based the development of a professional doctorate on several curricular concepts. These concepts view traditional content as nuclear to the practice of ministry, focus on competencies in the practice of ministry, use experiential learning in both church and non-church settings, seek integration through colloquia, encourage independent studies and provide for interdisciplinary learning.

"For more than eight years the Covina faculty has been engaged in dramatic and extensive curricular revisions along precisely these lines," commented Dean Robert C. Campbell. He pointed out that the purpose of the professional doctorate is to prepare adequate practicing ministers for church-related vocations rather than to prepare academic specialists qualified to teach and carry on research in religion. Ph.D. and Th.D. curricula are designed for these goals.

Adjunct Professors and Teaching Pastors

The dean and faculty are broadening the curriculum in two major ways as they initiate the professional doctorate. Several adjunct professors, employed on a part-time basis, add their specialized expertise to the teaching abilities of the present Covina faculty.

These visiting professors have the highest academic credentials, including earned doctorates, solid experience in university teaching and research and writing in their particular fields. They respond warmly to the idea of doing part of their teaching in a seminary situation, where they can combine fully their Christian commitment and their professional teaching skills. It is expected that five new four-unit courses will be offered each quarter.

The second area is the development of a program of teaching pastors. Some of the most competent pastors in the Greater Los Angeles area are being invited to participate. Following their own concentrated period of orientation, each pastor will give close supervision to a group of two to four seminary students assigned to his church for learning experiences aimed at extending the seminary classroom directly into the church.

In contrast to traditional field education plans, the teaching pastors program places its primary accent on those experiences that are most beneficial to the student's learning process, rather than merely upon those tasks which the particular church needs to have done.

The two-year program in Christian education (leading now to an M.A. degree) and the three-year Master of Divinity curriculum will be continued.

Following examinations after two years of seminary study, regular students at Covina may apply for admission to the D.Min. curriculum. Requirements for admission include academic competence, capacity for professional growth and high motivation. Graduates of Covina or other accredited seminaries who meet these standards may write Dean Campbell to learn the variety of ways in which they may meet the balance of the academic requirements for the doctoral program.

Dean Robert Campbell announces professional doctorate.

The Shape of Berkeley's Future

Plans are progressing to move the ABSW campus at Berkeley from its present location south of the university campus (A in photo) to the north side of the university (B in photo), in the heart of the cluster of seminaries.

The lower aerial photograph shows the relationship of the new campus location and other schools in the Graduate Theological Union. The Wilson estate purchased by ABSW is marked 1; Pacific School of Religion is marked 2; Church Divinity School of the Pacific is 3; and the headquarters of the Graduate Theological Union is 4.

Most of the ABSW classes are already being held on the north side. Church Divinity School and Pacific School of Religion have major facilities for classrooms, library, dining hall and chapel. ABSW plans to construct an administration building with space for faculty offices, seminar rooms, a multi-purpose lounge and parking facilities. It will also need to acquire an apartment building with at least 24 units, to provide housing for married students and apartments shared by single students.

Cooperative planning is being done with the master planners for the GTU and some space may be shared with the Presbyterians, who are moving the first two years of their program from San Anselmo to Berkeley.

—Aerial photos courtesy Skypic

Dr. L. Doward McBain

Emmett H. Bradley

Dr. Stanley W. Burriss

DR. McBAIN ELECTED ABSW TRUSTEE HEAD

Dr. L. Doward McBain, national president of the American Baptist Convention in 1967-68, became chairman of the board of trustees of ABSW on July 1.

Dr. McBain was minister of First Baptist Church, Covina, from 1954 to 1962, when he moved to First Baptist in Phoenix. He continues as a visiting lecturer in pastoral theology on the seminary faculty, teaching during summer school.

A graduate of Eastern Baptist College and Seminary, he has done further study at Union Theological Seminary and Columbia University.

At commencement in June, Dr. McBain's son Loren, who represented the Covina students on the seminary board of trustees last year, received the diploma for his master of divinity degree from Dr. McBain, as chairman of the Covina trustees.

Eight New Trustees Elected

Eight new trustees have been named to boards of the Seminary of the West. Three were elected for regular terms and five representatives of students, faculty and alumni were elected to one-year terms.

Joining the Covina board is Emmett H. Bradley of Alexandria, Virginia, chief operating officer of the Susquehanna Corporation and president of Atlantic Research Corporation, one of its subsidiaries. An electrical engineer and a member of Phi Beta Kappa, he earned his B.S. degree summa cum laude from Duke University in 1949 and his M.S. at M.I.T. in 1950. A member of Fairview Baptist Church in Costa Mesa, California, he commutes frequently from Virginia to Southern California.

Stanley W. Burriss of Sunnyvale is a member of the Berkeley board. He has been group vice president of Lockheed Aircraft Corporation since 1961 and is president of Lockheed in Sunnyvale. Also an electrical engineer, he earned his B.S. from Newark College of Engineering in 1938. Before becoming an executive of Lockheed he was employed by Otis Elevator Company, the U.S. Navy and the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory. He received a meritorious public service award from the U.S. Navy in 1961 and an honorary doctor of engineering degree in 1964 from Newark College of Engineering. He is a member of First Baptist Church in Menlo Park and recently was a featured speaker at the Baptist Laymen's Conference in Southern California.

As the interim executive secretary for Colorado, Rev. William D. Scott has also been elected as a Berkeley trustee. He is a graduate of Kansas State University and received his theological education at Central and Northern seminaries. Before joining the staff of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies in 1967, he was a pastor in Oelwein, Iowa and at Rogers Park Baptist Church in Chicago.

Randle Mixon, Jr. is the student trustee for Berkeley. A 1969 graduate of Columbia University, he sang in the Berkeley Quartet last year. The Berkeley faculty representative is Dr. William Malcomson, associate professor of ministry and director of field education. The new alumni president is Rev. R. Dale Johnson, class of 1960, pastor of Thousand Oaks Baptist Church in Berkeley.

David Roberts, a senior at Covina, is their student trustee. A graduate of the University of Washington, he is the son of another trustee, Dr. E. Wayne Roberts, executive minister of the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Northwest. The new alumni president is Rev. Robert J. Westgate, class of 1963, pastor of the Hacienda Hills Baptist Church in Hacienda Heights, Calif. Dr. Robert Laurin, professor of Old Testament and registrar, was re-elected as the faculty representative.

Dean Paul Clasper welcomes a former Burma colleague, Dr. Russell E. Brown and Dr. James Sprigg, formerly of the Philippines. Both are now foreign mission society staff members.

The World On Our Doorstep

By Joan Thatcher

The world is on our doorstep in Berkeley. The University of California and the Graduate Theological Union are crossing points of culture for students from East and West. In this laboratory of world Christianity, students and professors seek Christian perspectives amid diverse faiths and cultures.

These concerns and interests were emphasized during an innovative conference on "The Christian Mission in International Perspective," held on the Berkeley campus of the Seminary of the West in April. Leaders included Dean Paul Clasper, chairman; Dr. James Sprigg and Dr. Russell Brown of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. Seven overseas students and six ministers and professors with international experience were also panel participants.

Nearly 100 seminary students and faculty, laymen and ministers, active and former missionaries shared in honest, informative discussions on the changing role of missions in developing nations. Discussion themes included "Christian Communities in the Developing Nations"; "The Coming Dialogue of Christian Faith and Renewed Asian Religions"; and "The Re-Orientation of the Educational Task for Western Churches."

Dr. Clasper explained that the intensive day of study and discussion was aimed at "de-provincializing our theological perspectives." He pointed out that most seminaries now have many more overseas students and fewer missionaries enrolled than a decade ago. The role of the mission professor is also changing. "Without special emphasis, the seminary community may be less conscious of the church in world cultures," he said.

Overseas Students Speak

During the morning panel, the Congo was interpreted by Robert Youdi, a graduate of Baptist mission schools in Congo who is now studying at Stanford. He declared that the church has been a strong force in the Congo for pushing the country ahead. Under Belgian rule for 80 years, Catholicism was as strong as it was in Belgium. Congolese churches have always been independent, but more so since Congolese independence in 1960. During the country's struggles to gain independence, two institutions did not die — the soccer games and the churches!

One Protestant seminarian from Panama said he found he could have franker talks with Catholic priests from Panama in Berkeley than he had ever been able to have with Catholics when they were at home in Panama.

American Samoa was represented by Faatui Laolagi, a senior at the Seminary of the West. Christianity came to the islands from London in 1830 and later the Samoans carried the message from island to island. Three-fourths of the people are now Congregationalists and the others belong to various denominations.

Kazuo Masuno of Japan, a special student at ABSW, felt that his Buddhist background was like the Old Testament of his faith. A missionary helped him to be drawn to Christianity from Buddhism. As an example of the problems missionaries have in preaching after six months of language study, he quoted one preacher who said, "The Great Turtle hates your wife." By changing three syllables slightly, you learn that the missionary intended to say, "The Great God hates your sin."

Conversion or Dialogue?

On the question of conversion versus dialogue as a goal of mission, Dr. Clasper said there is a distinct difference in attitudes between first and third generation Christians. The first generation convert usually feels he has paid the price and wants everyone else to find the light. The third generation is more apt to say, "We also need to understand our culture and our neighbors." Many people want to understand Hinduism and Buddhism to glean what these faiths have to contribute to their own faith. He concluded, "If there is a uniqueness in Christianity, one should not hesitate to affirm it."

Four seminary alumni participated in the evening panel discussion, conducted in the round by Professor William Malcomson. The alumni included Dr. Sprigg, Rev. Dean Kirkwood, former missionary to China and now western representative for ABFMS; Dr. James Chuck, seminary trustee and minister of First Chinese Baptist Church in San Francisco; and Dr. Raymond Jennings, former missionary to Japan and now minister at Berkeley's First Baptist.

Dr. Jennings explained that "Mission churches concentrate on meeting human need, more than some churches at home would dare to do. Working with an alien culture, such as the street people in Berkeley, doesn't turn off former missionaries as quickly as most people, because missionaries are used to meeting human needs in a different culture."

In recognition of 25 years of service on the Berkeley faculty, the school presented Dr. Maurice P. Jackson with an automatic slide projector. Mrs. Jackson looks on at the left.

DR. JACKSON COMPLETES 25 YEARS ON FAULTY

Dr. Maurice P. Jackson has had four careers at Berkeley since 1945. He taught Christian education, supervised field education, was dean of students and is vice-president and professor of practical theology.

A "mini-celebration" in his honor was held during the alumni dinner on commencement day, June 12. Appreciation for Dr. Jackson's many contributions were expressed by Professor Ada Grace Cralle, Dean Paul Clasper and Dr. A. Stanley MacNair. Dr. and Mrs. Jackson were presented with an automatic slide projector.

Born in Clay Center, Kansas, Dr. Jackson was licensed to preach there in 1935. He graduated from Ottawa University in 1939 and earned his M.A. and B.D. degrees from Berkeley Baptist Divinity School in 1942 and 1943. The school honored him with a D.D. in 1951.

After nearly three years as minister of education at North Shore Baptist Church in Chicago, Dr. Jackson returned to the divinity school in 1945 to teach practical theology. On his sabbatical in 1961, he received a Lilly Endowment Fellowship to study psychology under Dr. O. Hobart Mowrer at the University of Illinois. During his sabbatical in 1971 he plans to teach and travel in Australia and the Philippines.

Dr. Jackson has been moderator of the Northern California Baptist Convention and of First Baptist Church in Oakland. He served on the founding committee for the cooperative program in clinical pastoral education for the Bay Area seminaries.

ABSW JOINS THE JET SET

Since commencement in June, eleven professors, trustees and students have left the country for conferences or study leaves on four continents. None of the traveling is at seminary expense!

In June the Seminary of the West was represented by six persons in Mexico City at the Council on Theological Education, sponsored by the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. The group included Dean Robert C. Campbell and Professor Robert Laurin of the Covina faculty; Dean Paul Clasper of the Berkeley faculty; Rodney Allen, a senior student at Berkeley; Benton A. Dixon, vice-chairman of the Covina trustees; and Gordon Packard, chairman of the Berkeley trustees.

Dr. Culbert G. Rutenber, professor of philosophy of religion, gave four addresses in Tokyo in July. Three were during sessions of the Baptist World Alliance and the fourth was at a conference sponsored by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society for BWA delegates from "third world" nations of Asia and Africa. He also led a study tour to Baptist mission fields in Asia.

Dr. L. Doward McBain, chairman of the board of ABSW trustees and a visiting lecturer at Covina, left July 12 to spend two weeks in Congo, at the invitation of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. Accompanied by Mrs. McBain, he toured mission stations, preached and talked with missionaries and national leaders.

Two Covina professors are in Europe for sabbaticals. Professor Robert H. Mitchell received an AATS grant to spend a year at the University of Birmingham, England, participating in the Institute for the Study of Worship and Religious Architecture. Mrs. Mitchell joined him in August.

Dr. Donald F. Thomas, vice president and professor of pastoral theology, and Mrs. Thomas took part in the summer session for pastors at Mansfield College of Oxford University and will meet with British theologians and pastors in Britain and on the Continent until Christmas.

William Segura, a second-year student at the Berkeley campus, left in August for an extended internship in West Pakistan. The Seguras join Stu and Sandy Young as counselors at the Lahore American School.

Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of Merlin C. Donaldson, Berkeley '43x, who died March 2 in Los Angeles after a three-month illness. A scholarship has been established at the Berkeley campus of the American Baptist Seminary as a memorial.

Ordained in 1942 at the First Baptist Church of Redwood City, Mr. Donaldson had been a resident of Pico Rivera for 17 years. He is survived by his wife, Lucille, and son, Merlin C., Jr.

Contributions to the Merlin C. Donaldson Scholarship may be sent to 2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley 94704.

Berkeley, class of 1970

1970 Commencement Celebrations

Student-planned commencement celebrations were held at Berkeley on June 12 and at Covina on June 13, as twenty-nine students received the master of divinity degree. In both services a litany of commitment, written by the 1970 seniors at Covina, was read responsively by the faculty, the seniors and the congregation. Both services used traditional and contemporary music and like many other 1970 graduates, both groups of seniors voted to wear suits rather than academic caps and gowns.

At Berkeley, in place of the usual commencement address, each senior received his diploma and heard individualized remarks from the professor who served as faculty adviser on his senior project. The service was held at Thousand Oaks Baptist Church in Berkeley.

At Covina, a senior-faculty dialogue discussed "Apology for Mission: Openness to God's Future." Participants included Merrill Charles Hubbard and Henry Louis Engle of the class of 1970 and Dr. Richard W. Doss, assistant professor of preaching. A collage of biblical and contemporary readings was presented by Miss Maxine Clark and Loren D. McBain of the senior class.

Gillette O. James, center, received the Claiborne Hill award for academic excellence provided by the alumni.

BERKELEY GRADUATES

Philip Bennett, Linfield College, plans further graduate study in Old Testament at the Graduate Theological Union.

Donovan J. Cook, Stanford University, continues as associate pastor of First Baptist Church in Palo Alto.

William Ferguson, who earned his M.A. in counseling last year at San Jose State, continues as a pastoral counselor with offices at Grace Baptist Church in San Jose.

M. Jerry Gilmer, Kansas State University, is pastor of the Baptist Church in Okanogan, Wash.

Donald H. Gwynne, Defiance College, is pastor of the United Church of Christ in Lopez, Washington.

Wendell E. Hansen, University of Dubuque and Northern Baptist Theological Seminary, now minister of First and Grace United Methodist Churches in Livingston.

Douglas-Bruce Heusser, California State College at Fullerton, continues as minister of education at Thousand Oaks Baptist Church in Berkeley.

Gillette O. James, University of San Francisco, was recently named associate pastor at Beth Eden Baptist in Oakland.

W. Gordon Maxwell, Fresno State College, is now the assistant administrator of San Joaquin Gardens, an American Baptist retirement residence in Fresno.

Curtis K. McCormack, Oregon State University, entered a bi-vocational ministry. He serves half-time as minister of youth at First Baptist and First Presbyterian churches in Oakland and half-time as a salesman at Tupper & Reed Music Company in Berkeley.

Loren McBain and Maxine Clark participated in a student-planned celebration at Covina.

Covina, class of 1970

Carroll Morony, Linfield College, completed his intern year at First Baptist Church in Loveland, Colorado.

COVINA GRADUATES

A. Stephen Alexander, Eastern Baptist College, is a pastoral counselor in Beverly Hills.

Richard E. Balsiger, Sacramento State College, is doing further graduate study at Covina.

Maxine F. Clark, Sioux Falls College, is now the assistant registrar at Covina.

Henry Louis Engle, University of California, Santa Barbara, is minister of Christian education at First Baptist Church in Santa Ana.

Donald R. Forden, who earned his B.A. from LaVerne College and his M.A. from Eastern Baptist Seminary, is chaplain at Long Beach Memorial Hospital in Long Beach.

L. Elaine Halstead, College of Idaho, plans to serve in Christian education. She received her M.Div. magna cum laude.

Merrill C. Hubbard, San Fernando Valley State College, has been assistant pastor of Valley Park Baptist Church in Sepulveda. He received his M.Div. degree cum laude.

Roger C. Jump, Sioux Falls College, is a Los Angeles county social worker.

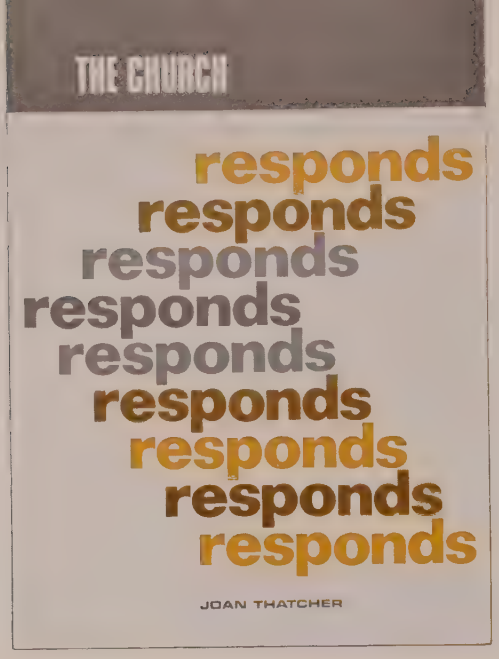
James Lyle Kepart, LaVerne College, serves on the staff of First Baptist, Bakersfield.

Dong Sun Lim, Seoul Theological College in Korea, has been the chief chaplain of the Korean Air Force.

Loren D. McBain, Eastern Baptist College, is spending an intern year in "Project Understanding" at Claremont School of Theology.

Bruce G. Martin, University of Minnesota, is minister of youth at First Baptist Church in St. Paul, Minnesota.

Alex Lee Muro, Sacramento State College, continues as assistant pastor of First Baptist Church, Anaheim.



Myron E. Reed, University of Redlands, is now pastor of Loyalton Baptist Church in Loyalton.

E. Lon Schneider, Sioux Falls College, is now pastor of First Baptist Church in Eagle Grove, Iowa.

Arthur R. Shoap, Jr., California Baptist College in Riverside, is pastor of Advent Christian Church in Los Angeles.

Jan Ter Braak, a graduate of the Baptist Theological Seminary in Ruschlikon, Switzerland, and LaVerne College, is a former Dutch Baptist missionary to Congo. He has now been appointed by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and will teach religious education in a Congolese high school at Sona Bata.

James B. Williams, University of Omaha and a twenty-year Air Force veteran, is doing further graduate study in pastoral counseling.

Joan Thatcher,* The Church Responds, Valley Forge: Judson Press, 1970. Reviewed by William L. Malcomson, associate professor of ministry, ABSW, Berkeley.

This is a book about what is happening in a large number of churches throughout our land. It is also a book about individuals, particularly clergymen. What the churches and the individuals have in common is that they are in the midst of renewing experiences.

Try this statement on for size: "Every church must choose the role of guest or servant in the city. Only a few landmark churches can survive as guests. The others must realize that usefulness is the rent they pay for room on earth." (p. 14) Pause and consider that.

A church must choose its role. One of the dominant themes in the book is that churches that are "making it" are not content to drift, to let time take care of their problems. The people at Judson Memorial Church in Greenwich Village decided to be a different kind of church. A group of denominations decided to make something happen in Philadelphia and they created Metropolitan Associates of Philadelphia. Don Stuart saw a need in San Francisco and he made a conscious decision to try to meet the need. When he did so, the Night Ministry began.

In case study after case study, we find that renewing takes place when people in groups and people as individuals decide that sitting around lamenting the state of the church is a waste of time, and that nothing is going to change unless they take up the cudgels.

Guest or servant. It would appear that the church is either not wanted, or, what is worse, is ignored in the city today. But when a church decides to serve the people in the city (rather than expect them to come because they want a church), there is more than enough to do. Doors previously closed begin to open. Leon Sullivan tried this out and the Opportunities Industrialization Center came into being. Training black men for jobs was a tremendous need and when Sullivan and the folks from Zion Baptist Church in Philadelphia decided to meet that need they didn't have to be told how to justify their lives as Christians. They knew.

"Servant" may mean going to people where they are to listen to them and to minister with them. Not to wait for them to come to you. Industrial missions, for example, go to top executives and other decision-makers in our society. Churches in the inner city develop programs with the poverty people. Middle class people also have needs and many of the churches that are renewing are dealing with this group through the ministry of small groups. In the Church of the Saviour in Washington, D.C., there is a rather unusual program for balancing the two emphases: the movement into the city to meet obvious needs (the "journey outward") and the movements into the feelings, thoughts and wills of the groups who are moving outward (the "journey inward").

Usefulness is the rent they pay for room on earth. Usefulness. That is the word. To be useful to all, and, of course, to be used by all. There are so many examples in The Church Responds, but they all point to the fact that churches have to earn their right to be in the society. They are not granted status because they are churches. They have to prove that they have a reason for being. This is a hard pill to swallow. But it is being swallowed by more and more Christians. This book will help you "take your medicine" and rejoice that the medicine brings healing.

I would suggest that you use this book as a study book for a group of laymen and clergy in your church. It is a very fine "first book" on church renewal. The style is journalistic. In fact, it reads like a popular magazine. There is a very helpful bibliography which will enable you to move on to books which deal with particular issues and examples in more depth.

There are a couple of problems with the book. It is very urban-oriented. In a way, this is unfortunate because large numbers of churches, particularly American Baptist churches, are town and country churches. They need renewing also. Secondly, I found myself wishing that the author had mentioned a few failures. Or, at least, that she had dealt more with the problems that were encountered in renewing. People do leave churches and clergy are fired. Not only that, but it is often a very slow process to get a church into the renewing phase. It would be unfortunate if church people felt that to begin renewing was not worth the effort because they couldn't become another Glide in two years.

It is a good book. It is interesting to read. It should help you to see that renewing is worth all of the effort.

*The author is instructor in communications, ABSW.

Dr. Robert Laurin, professor of Old Testament, Covina

Robert B. Laurin, The Layman's Introduction to the Old Testament, Valley Forge: Judson Press, 1970. Reviewed by O. Dean Nelson, Chaplain to the University of Redlands, Redlands, California.

Dr. Robert B. Laurin, the product of United States, Scottish and Continental scholarship, has combined a love for the Old Testament, rooted in his evangelical American heritage, with the best of European learning. He states his purpose as follows: "This little volume is intended to provide for the person who is not a specialist in biblical matters a guide to understanding the structure and significance of the Old Testament." Laurin succeeded!

The outline of this paperback work is very clear and is devoid of forced alliteration and unnatural headings. The author's approach is to view the Old Testament as the drama of God at work with his people. The Old Testament approach to "history" is dynamic, incorporating many styles of "reporting."

The author illustrates the literary diversity with various accounts of one central event, the deliverance of the Israelites from Egyptian slavery. There is a "theological description" of this event in Exodus 14, a "hymnic glorification" in Exodus 15, a "mythological personification" in Isaiah 51 and an "allegorical representation" of the same deliverance in Psalm 80. "It is to be noted here that not one of these descriptions is 'historical,' although each is dealing with an actual event" (p. 19).

The brevity of the book may account for the cursory treatment of certain sections of the Old Testament that many readers might wish had been given greater emphasis, especially several that have special relevance to twentieth century ethical problems. For example, the shame connected with the sexual identity of Adam and Eve after the Fall in the Garden of Eden is not explicated; the "fertility" cult of ancient times is barely mentioned. Likewise, the cultic background of the decalogue is given a very limited study. Today questions are being asked about the authority and antecedents of the Ten Commandments.

The author writes well about the development of monotheism in the middle of polytheistic cultures (pp. 37ff). The Jewish sacrifices and feasts are covered. Overall, a fair balance is given to competing emphases in the Old Testament. One of the most stimulating sections—besides the Pentateuch, Genesis and Exodus in particular—is the section on the Psalms and other "Song Texts," in chapter six. There are also excellent summaries on each of the prophets.

For Robert Laurin, the Old Testament is authoritative. He maintains a high view of Scripture without attempting to defend a particular view of inspiration to support the authority of the Old Testament. Where natural, he focuses on the latest archaeological finds but not for defense of the Scriptures. He is honest, competent and practical as a scholar.

Note the author's comments on Jonah. "One of the most profound Old Testament books, Jonah, has been one of the most superficially used. The emphasis so often has been directed towards the great fish. Could a whale really swallow a man? Could a man survive in the belly of a whale? Did this really happen? These are common questions. Scholarship has shown us that the fish story is really only the embroidery around the edge of quite a different concern" (p. 146).

What is important is Dr. Laurin's understanding of the prophet's message. "The emphasis of the book is on God's graciousness to all men, even to the hated enemies of Israel. In Jonah's reluctance to undertake the call—he even preferred to die rather than to go to Nineveh (1:12) or to have the people saved (4:3)—Israel was to read her own selfishness and insularity. She was being warned not to believe, as she had so often, that her choice as God's own people (Exodus 19:6) meant that she alone merited the attention and love of Yahweh" (p. 148).

This approach to the Old Testament, augmented by the well formulated questions at the end of each chapter, makes this paperback a good choice for study groups in the local congregation and a needed resource for all who might inquire into what the Old Testament has to say to the 1970's.

for seminaries. The trend is to eliminate the bachelor's degree and grant students a professional doctorate. (See the article on page 3)

New Learning Techniques

(5) Seminaries are getting away from traditional or classical seminary education. Students learn better when they study problems rather than gobs of material. They also learn better when they participate in the entire process of instruction. Some have called this "peer group education." It involves a variety of new approaches. There is team teaching where each faculty member comes into a class and contributes the insights from his specialty.

There are also exposure techniques. Students visit hospitals of all kinds, they visit skid-row and the ghettos. Granted the exposure is not as intense as educators would like, it nevertheless permits students to see modern problems for themselves, rather than learn them from a book.

This also means experimentation with new kinds of worship patterns, new kinds of church music and new ways of preaching as guided by our modern theories of communication.

With this comes other new emphases. Instead of confining instruction to traditional theological materials and seeing issues and problems from an intense theological or biblical perspective, seminary education draws heavily from secular learning. Christian education is permeated by the results of studies in secular education. Christian ethics is supplemented by studies in political theory, economic theory and sociological research. Literature and drama are brought into the study of theology.

(6) Theological seminaries grant more personal liberty to students. Although the range of this liberty varies enormously among the seminaries, the spirit of it is found in most.

The general idea is that certain matters are personal and have nothing to do with the "official" ministry of the pastor. The world is not going to hell over a can of beer but over our great social injustices, economic inequalities and racial discriminations. The modern seminarian says the fight is here.

Positives and Negatives

How do we assess all of this? Let's make an experimental score card to see what issues might be:

(i) By eliminating dogmatic, authoritarian preaching for more conversational or "dialogical" preaching we may gain more realistic communication between preacher and listener. But by making such a major adjustment to make effective contact with the listener, we may lose that uncompromising prophetic note of "thus saith the Lord."

(ii) By studies in psychology and sociology and by having experiences in some form of group therapy, the preacher gains in becoming more humane, more perceptive of human need and more responsive to his people. His loss may be that he loses sight of the great theological foundations of the Christian faith which make theology a science and which give it its academic respectability in a world come of age in scholarship.

(iii) By exposure to other denominations, other professors and university life, he gains perspective (in width and depth). His chances of being bigoted or doctrinaire become greatly reduced. His loss may be the intense, narrow, prolonged exposure to one great mind which often does more for a student than all his seminary and university experience put together.

(iv) By in-depth exposure to man's desperate ills, he gains a sense of the injustice that is built into the fiber of society itself and he gains a compassion for those who suffer economically, politically and sociologically. He knows the senselessness of preaching the gospel to empty stomachs, cold bodies and disenfranchised people.

Finding True Holiness

His loss is that he may fail to catch sight of true holiness, true spirituality and true saintliness. Christian faith is not only doing the right thing, but being the right person. A full stomach, a warm body and a nice home do not make a person a Christian. In the end, we may find out that we have achieved a whole raft of lesser (but important) goals for human life, and missed the biggest of them all: being conformed to the image of Christ in speech and conduct, in love, in faith, in purity.

Alumni Elected At ABC

A number of alumni of the Seminary of the West were elected to national boards during sessions of the American Baptist Convention in May.

GENERAL COUNCIL: Rev. John O. Eby, C'65, Buttonwillow; Rev. John B. Parker, C'58, Walnut Creek;

AMERICAN BAPTIST FOREIGN MISSION SOCIETY: Dr. A. Stanley MacNair, B'37, '38, '46, '48, San Leandro, president of the society; Mrs. Maxwell Powers (Mary Dorothy Simmons), B'48x, Oakland;

AMERICAN BAPTIST HOME MISSION SOCIETIES: Rev. James W. McCrossen, B'57, Ottawa, Kan.; Mrs. Harold Bjornson (Miriam Eller), B'47x, Palo Alto; Dr. James Chuck, B'53, San Francisco; Rev. A. John Nastari, B'55, Portland, Ore.;

BOARD OF EDUCATION AND PUBLICATION: Rev. William P. Clark, B'49, Boise, Ida.; Rev. Noe R. Lopez, B'55x, Fresno; MINISTERS AND MISSIONARIES BENEFIT BOARD: Dr. John H. Townsend, B'57, Los Angeles.

Alumni News

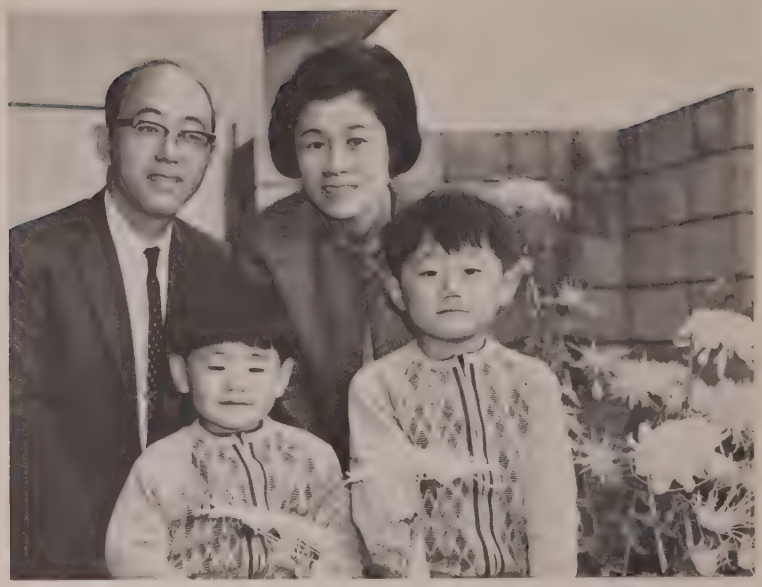
By Carol J. Goodman

"PULPIT PUT-ON"

A satirical commentary by NORMAN DALTON, Covina '61, on people's attitude toward the church received a full column of space in Christian Century (July 8, 1970) and a feature report in the Los Angeles Times of July 11. Appearing first in the newsletter of his church, Rivera First Baptist, Pico Rivera, Pastor Dalton "apologized" for being absent from the Sunday morning service because of a picnic hastily arranged during a visit of his wife's relatives.

UNIQUE VOLUME BY SEMINARY ALUMNUS

H. CLYDE MATHEWS, JR., Berkeley '60, participated in the Oral History Project of the University of Nevada whose purpose is "to preserve the past and the present for future research by tape recording the reminiscences of people who have played important roles in the development of Nevada and the West." Mr. Mathews, who served for ten years as a pastor and director of the Colony Christian Center in Reno, is now deputy director of the Office of Civil Rights for H.E.W., with his office in San Francisco.



COVINA CAMPUS

1969 Since March GEORGE BRITT has been chaplain at the Fairfield Hills State Hospital in Newtown, Conn. During the previous year he was in a clinical pastoral education program in Norwich State Hospital . . . Best wishes to CLYDE B. REYNOLDS and Justina Kompik who were married in March at the First Baptist Church of Las Vegas, Nev. where he is director of Christian education.

1968 A man willing to risk openness for the sake of God and fellow men is the picture of FRANK MARTINEZ in an article in the May 1970 issue of Impact. Pastor of the First Baptist Church, Chapman, Neb., he graduated from seminary and entered the pastorate following 15 years as a mechanical engineer.

1967 Serving as pastor of University Baptist Church, Mt. Pleasant, Mich. is WILLIAM W. BERGSTROM. He had been on the staff of Delmar Baptist Church, St. Louis, Mo.

1966 This fall KEITH W. HUBBELL began new responsibilities as director of admissions for Ottawa University. He had held the same position at Judson College . . . From Thailand comes word of American Baptist missionaries PAUL LEWIS, '66 Hon. and CLAIBORNE ERICKSON, Berkeley '67. They raised funds for land to begin a resettlement village for Lisu peoples who have earned their living growing opium poppies but want a new way of life. Nine households already moved to the village.

A newsletter from Michie and NOBORU HOJO told of the expansion program at Nerima Shinai Church, where they serve in Tokyo.

1965 Congratulations to the BOYD BAKERS on the birth of Anna Marie in January. Mr. Baker is associate pastor of First Baptist Church, Scottsdale, Ariz. . . . Serving as chairman of Operation Breadbasket in Los Angeles is EDGAR R. EDWARDS, pastor of Immanuel United Church of Christ. This SCLC program seeks a broader base of black employment and economic development.

1964 For six years EDWARD E. BURGESS has led Bostonia Baptist Church in El Cajon, which assists the El Cajon Emergency Welfare in its commodity distribution program. Mr. Burgess is chairman of chaplains for the El Cajon Valley Hospital and plans to establish a coffee house ministry.

1963 Now serving the Church of the Master in Tucson, Ariz. is ROBERT MILLSPAUGH, formerly pastor in Spring Valley, Calif.

1959 Lieutenant Commander JOHN DOLAGHAN received the Purple Heart for wounds suffered in Vietnam and a Navy Bronze Star for "heroic achievement." . . . The April 1970 World Vision tells of EUGENE A. NIDA ('59 Hon.), an executive in the translations department of the American Bible Society for 27 years. Dr. Nida has helped missionaries and others learn to analyze and speak 150 languages. They in turn can preach the Word of God to people in their own tongue and teach them to read and write.

1956 Following six years as minister of Christian education at First Baptist Church, Burlingame, JAMES H. MCALLISTER assumed new responsibilities as associate pastor in April.

1954 With concern we report that JAMES E. BURNETT, former student association president, has had to resign his pastorate at Temple Baptist Church, Norwalk, due to failing eyesight. He has been in Studebaker Community Hospital in Norwalk.

1952 EDWARD G. CARSON, who retired in December from the Air Force chaplaincy, returned to the pastorate in March and was installed at First Baptist Church, Nevada City.

1950 Pastor of Norwood Baptist Church of Warwick, R.I., GEORGE H. MOSELEY is also president of the state convention.

1949 WILLIAM D. LAWRENCE, pastor of First Baptist, Maywood, was selected as "Citizen of the Year" by the chamber of commerce. Dr. Lawrence is also an artist who paints to "unwind" after a busy day.

1948 A. LEONARD GILMOUR is president of the trustees of Bi Bett, a non-profit corporation which operates a small therapeutic community for alcoholics near Clayton in Contra Costa County. He is pastor of the Walnut Creek Friends Church.

BERKELEY CAMPUS

1968 The new director of the Pueblo Christian Action Center in Los Angeles is GERALD ADAMS. He had been on the staff of First Baptist Church, Kansas City, Mo. . . . Congratulations to Linda and DANIEL ALLEN on the birth of Jonathan Lothrop on May 17 in Tacoma, Wash. where Mr. Allen serves on the staff of First Baptist Church.

1967 RICHARD HUBER is now minister of personal growth at First Baptist, Denver, Colo. And congratulations to the Hubers on the birth of Mark Richard on March 9.

1966 Congratulations to MARILEA ADAMS Wolf '66x and husband James on the birth of Jeremy Scott on March 5 in Lemoore . . . H. DOUGLAS BROWN received his Ph.D. from UCLA in June and is now teaching at the University of Michigan in applied linguistics . . . Teaching in the philosophy department of Chapman College in Orange is DAVID P. DODSON. He is also completing work for his doctor of theology degree at the Graduate Theological Union . . . Cari Lyn was born to the RICHARD ORRS on March 15 in McMinnville, Ore. . . . Serving as administrator of Valle Verde, the American Baptist retirement home in Santa Barbara, is RAYMOND SCHNEIDER. He was associate administrator of San Joaquin Gardens in Fresno.

1965 EDYTHE MCCARTY '65x, American Baptist missionary to Thailand, visited the Berkeley campus in April. She was on deputation in the East, Pacific Northwest and Arizona and in May spoke for the foreign mission luncheon in Cincinnati.

1964 LUIS G. BORUNDA '64x is director of Project Headstart in Los Angeles. Serving as president is HORACIO QUINONES '67, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist in L.A. . . . Belated congratulations to the PHILIP CADWALLADERS (PHOEBE DELK '64) on the adoption of Karin Lea in July 1969. Mr. Cadwallader is in management with General Telephone Co. in Coeur d'Alene, Ida. . . . GERALD DOWNING '64x was a visitor on campus a few months ago from Borger, Tex. where he is acting supervisor for the Hutchinson County Welfare . . . Best wishes to JOAN DUNHAM and Father Jack M. Tench, an Episcopal priest, who were married in April. They are living in Seattle where he is curate at St. Elizabeth Parish of Burien. Mrs. Tench had been director of Christian education at University Baptist, Seattle . . . ROBERT ORPINELA is assistant professor of humanities at Raymond College, one of the cluster colleges of the University of Pacific in Stockton. Dr. Orpinela, who received his Th.D. degree in June from the Graduate Theological Union, is teaching in the area of philosophy and religion. He is interested in inter-disciplinary study . . . LARRY E. TRETTIN '64x completed a two-year project in Ghana under the Frontier Internship in Mission, after receiving his B.D. degree at Princeton Seminary. In July he moved to Grants Pass, Ore.

1963 After three years as associate pastor, TOM ARBOGAST was called last December as pastor of First Baptist Church, Pueblo, Colo. . . . Since May DAVID R. BEALS '63 and '65 has been serving as youth minister at First Baptist Church of Laguna Hills. He is also director of the Theater in the World repertory group of southern Orange County . . . COLVIN BLANFORD, founding pastor in 1963 of Cosmopolitan Baptist Church, San Francisco, resigned to become director of the American Baptist Christian Center in Hammond, Ind., beginning in May. . . . FRANK BYRDWELL was elected vice-president of the Western Area Directors of Christian Education at their annual conference, held at the Covina campus of ABSW. He spoke at the seminary chapel service . . . Now director of special ministries at Messiah Lutheran Church in Redwood City is FLOYD C. ELLISON. His responsibilities include counseling, training teachers for a youth ministry and developing a community nursery school. His wife, Lillian, is enrolled in pre-elementary education at San Jose State and will serve as head teacher of the new school . . . On a trip to the Middle East in June, part of a world study tour, Eleanor and DOUGLAS SIDEN '63x were among a group of Americans held hostage in a hotel in Amman, Jordan. They were released unharmed and flown to Greece. He is an area minister of the American Baptist Churches of the West and currently president of the San Francisco Council of Churches . . . Congratulations to KATHRYN (WILSEY) and Vernon Baker on the birth of Emily Louise in Winchester, Ill.

1962 To Harold and LYNN (VAN DYKE) Piggott belated congratulations on the birth of William Franklin in April 1969. They live in Carbondale, Illinois . . . JUSTIN WALUSAI, '62x sent greetings from Congo where he gives leadership to sixteen churches . . . DALE WRIGHT, assistant professor and chairman of the department of psychology at Juniata College, Huntingdon, Pa., received his Ph.D. in psychology from the University of Vermont.

1961 LOUIS F. KNOLL, president of Ramapatnam Baptist Theological Seminary in India, has succeeded the Archbishop of Calcutta as Master of the Senate of Serampore University . . . LLEWELLYN S. WALKER '61x is a pastor in Plainfield, Ia. after serving as minister of Christian education and associate pastor of First Baptist, Colorado Springs.

1960 ELWARD P. ELIASON assumed the pastorate of Church of the Foothills, San Jose, in March, moving from First Baptist of San Antonio Heights in Upland . . . ALLAN LEE, minister of Christian education for the Colorado Baptist Convention since 1966, resigned to become associate minister at Calvary Baptist, Denver . . . On March 22 DONALD E. REITER was installed as pastor of First Baptist, Santa Ana. Participants in the service included President Heaton of ABSW, Dr. George H. Armacost of the University of Redlands and DR. JOHN H. TOWNSEND '57 of First Baptist, Los Angeles. A former staff member of BBDS, Mr. Reiter moved from Hillside Baptist Church, La Mirada.

1959 Chaplain WILLIAM WELLS organized a battalion project to support a children's hostel in Fang, Thailand.

1958 ROBERT D. PECK has been appointed assistant director of the Oregon Educational Coordinating Council. He is also administrator of grants for improving undergraduate instruction. Former registrar and faculty member at Linfield College, he will continue to live in McMinnville.

Covina alumni were among groups introduced during the Seminary of the West breakfast in Cincinnati in May.

1957 Since July Dr. and Mrs. WILLIAM K. GOURLEY (ESTHER BEESON '56x) have been at home in Moshi, Tanzania, where he is staff pathologist for the new Kilimanjaro Christian Medical Center, at the foot of Mt. Kilimanjaro . . . In September PAUL LITTLE joined the Redlands faculty as professor of drama and director of the drama program, succeeding the well known Albert Johnson who retired. Awarded the Ph.D. in humanities from Syracuse University last year, Dr. Little had been on the faculty at Linfield College . . . JOHN H. TOWNSEND received the honorary D.D. degree from the University of Redlands for "faithful and imaginative service in the ministry." A 1954 graduate of the university, he is pastor of First Baptist, Los Angeles, and has led in developing an interracial congregation. He is an ABSW trustee.

1956 Moving from Waukegan, Wis. to Kansas City, Mo. were the MASON BROWNS (MARTHA BURCH '55). He is minister of Christian education and she is assistant organist at the First Baptist Church . . . The JACK KIEKELS (BEVERLENE MANDRAPA '57) have returned from their two-year assignment as house parents in a youth hostel in Lahore, West Pakistan. They are living in Salem, Ore. where he is working on his doctor of education degree at the University of Oregon . . . Kanto Gakuin University in Japan provided a round trip ticket to Tokyo for RAYMOND JENNINGS, pastor of First Baptist, Berkeley, to attend the Baptist World Congress. Dr. and Mrs. Jennings taught for ten years at the university under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society.

1955 In Sacramento JAMES DELKIN is pastor of a church which is the union of two congregations, Judson Memorial Baptist and Meadowview Church of the Brethren. Following several months of worshiping together, the two churches formally united in January as the Prince of Peace Church . . . In June JACK VAN LIEW (Covina MRE '63) began an intensive 15-month program at Chicago Theological Seminary leading to the doctor of religion degree . . . The BURTON WEIDMANS (PATRICIA WALLACE), American Baptist missionaries, have returned to India following furlough in the U.S. Formerly in Bengal, they are now in Orissa doing village work with emphasis on stewardship, food production, cooperatives, sanitation, nutrition, youth work, etc.

1954 Pastor of Grace United Methodist Church in San Francisco, LEONARD AUTAJAY serves a Caucasian and Filipino congregation.

1953 In a warm letter to President Heaton, Doris and WALDO PENNER wrote from India of their appreciation for Berkeley faculty. They are encouraged by the founding of ABSW and the development of the Graduate Theological Union. In India for 24 years, their work under the Canadian Baptists is now at Andhra Christian Theological College, an ecumenical venture . . . C. GERALD WEAVER, on furlough as treasurer of the American Baptist Mission in Congo, has been speaking in many places, including California, Colorado and Arizona.

1950 JANET HERRING DeWitt of Sioux Falls, S.D. attended a two-day seminar in Madison, Wis. on "Community Action," sponsored by the American Association of University Women.

1948 On July 1 PAUL T. LAUBY became general secretary of the United Board for Christian Higher Education in Asia. He was a professor and administrator for 16 years at Silliman University in the Philippines. The United Board is an interdenominational organization which provides assistance in funds, personnel and counsel for church-related higher education in Asia.

1946 FLORENCE FAIRHILL, administrative assistant at the Center for the Ministry in Wellesley Hills., Mass., has moved to the new Western Church Career Center in Oakland . . . The master of theology degree was awarded in June to LEROY EDMUND LINDSEY by Asbury Theological Seminary, Kentucky.

1945 A series of celebrations marked the 25th anniversary of the Community Baptist Church, San Francisco and WILLIAM TURNER, who is both the founding and present pastor.

1937 In August M. ECCO HUNT retired as an American Baptist missionary. She served in Burma from 1937 to 1965, when she went to Japan. She now lives in Toppenish, Wash.

1930 Currently teaching Christian education and administrative courses at Patten Bible College in Oakland is MARGARET LOBB. In June 1969 she retired after 21 years on the faculty of the Pacific School of Religion.

Return Postage Guaranteed

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. 2 October 1970 No. 1

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

Seminary Knolls, Covina, California 91722

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, April, October and December.

Second class postage paid at Covina, Calif.

Speaking Personally

Congratulations to seven faculty members and trustees who were elected to national boards during sessions of the American Baptist Convention in Cincinnati. DR. EDWARD B. COLE will serve on the General Council; Librarian GENEVIEVE KELLY and REV. JAMES ALFRED SMITH will serve on the Historical Society board; DR. JAMES CHUCK was re-elected to the Home Mission board; EVERETT CARLSON was re-elected to the finance committee; and MRS. PAUL CLASPER and DR. JOHN H. TOWNSEND were elected to the Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board. Already a member of the General Council, PRESIDENT C. ADRIAN HEATON was elected to its executive committee.

In addition to teaching at Berkeley, DEAN PAUL CLASPER is visiting professor of religion at Mills College, teaching Asian religions during the fall term. With Dean George Peck and Dr. John Carman he served in a "think tank" to discuss future directions with the Foreign Mission board in Keene, New Hampshire, in September. At Kalamazoo College in October he will participate in panel discussions on the theology of hope with Dr. Jurgen Moltmann and address the Michigan Baptist Convention. In November he speaks at sessions of the regional convention in southern California.

DR. J. LYNWOOD WALKER, who joined the Berkeley faculty this fall as assistant professor of theology and personality on a half-time basis, has also been named assistant to the president at the Graduate Theological Union.

Before he left for Europe on sabbatical, PROF. ROBERT H. MITCHELL led a chapel service at Westmont College and also presented "Church Music and All That Jazz" to 1000 pastors and key laymen at the western synod of the Lutheran Church in America.

Leaders of a management seminar for pastors sponsored by Pacific Lutheran Theological Seminary and held on the ABSW campus in Berkeley included DR. HAROLD FRAZEE and DR. MAURICE JACKSON.

Berkeley trustee JAMES A. SMITH was the Black Church lecturer at the Missouri School of Religion at the University of Missouri in April. The title for his series was "The Black Church and Black Liberation: An Inquiry Into the History of the Black Church."

At the Presbyterian Synod School for clergy and laymen at Coe College in Iowa, DR. NORMAN K. GOTTWALD gave a series of Bible lectures and taught a seminar on the Old Testament and world issues. He is also the author of a chapter on the theology of Walter Eichrodt of Germany. It will appear in November in a book edited by DR. ROBERT LAURIN of the Covina faculty, entitled Contemporary Old Testament Theologians.

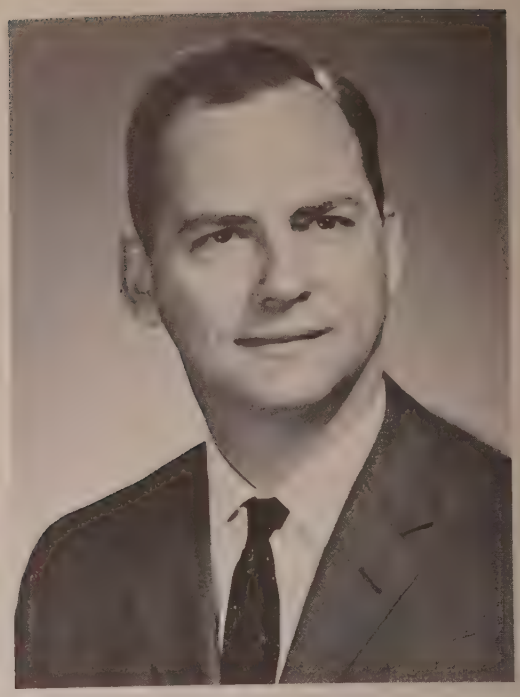
DR. ELDON G. ERNST attended the alumni council meeting at Colgate Rochester Divinity School and lectured at Linfield College in April.

DR. WILLIAM MALCOMSON was a speaker at a national conference for Baptist pastors and laymen at Green Lake, Wisconsin, in July. He has also been elected to the board of directors of the newly-formed Union of American Baptist Clergy.

JA 1 '71

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West



A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume 2 DECEMBER 1970 Number 2

Faculty, staff and students led small groups during Covina's fall retreat.

FACULTY DIALOGUE

THE PARADOX OF CHRISTMAS

By David H. Wallace
Professor of Biblical Theology,
ABSW, Covina

In his correspondence to the Corinthian congregation Paul observed that "God chose what is foolish in the world to shame the wise, and what is weak in the world to shame the strong . . ." In an age mesmerized by institutions and instruments of power, these words call us again to a reconsideration of the sense of Christmas, 1970.

In a mass society, undergirded by scientific technology and governmental authority, we are, quite uncritically, accustomed to regard the only credible and effective force in the world which demands our respect as that found in the recognized structures of power: military strength, the weight of government, power of violence and terror, the awesomeness of great wealth, the effectiveness of charismatic personalities, achievement of the canons of importance in society at large—all these and more are the coin of our thinking today.

Perhaps even as Christians we ourselves are not far from the mood of Stalin's famous comment about the Roman Catholic Church when he cynically asked, "How many divisions does the Pope have?" The inhabitants of the household of faith are often drawn into this way of thinking, furtively rebuking the Almighty for His failure to seize the propitious moments to step into our terrestrial scene, and in one magnificent, Madison Avenue stroke put all our devils to flight. How we wish we could have been present at the Creation! We harbor the comforting thought that had we been present at the creation things would not have come to their present pass in the world.

Instead of the dramatic, spectacular and notorious way of achieving His ends, God has, as the Bible unfolds the story, moved among us almost incognito without the benefit of press releases and directors of divine publicity. An unknown, stammering and hesitant Israelite Moses is called upon to confront the entire nation of Egypt to secure deliverance for his people. Not an auspicious choice.

Centuries later God appeared among us, not with fanfare of trumpets and a royal entourage, not with a clank of soldiers' arms and march of booted feet, but in the form of an infant. The whole of the divine intention to deliver an alien race from bondage of a vaster dimension became embodied in the weakest, the least convincing form, a human baby, son of a peasant Jewess. No announcement of this birth was made in the society pages of the day. But the judgment of Christian history sees in the Incarnation of Jesus Christ the release of divine power for "us men and our salvation."

The mewling cries of the Infant of Bethlehem are heard with greater moral effect in the moral nature of the world than all the assembled councils of diplomacy, the roar of armies, the clamor of notoriety or the ceremonious pomp of the elite of earth. At Christmas God indeed "choose what is weak in the world to shame the strong . . ."

Six of the team leaders pose with Prof. Leland Hine (third from left) and Dr. Heaton (far right).

MEETING SEMINARIANS: 1970

October 28-29 marked the first time that sixty seminary students — half from Berkeley, half from Covina — came together on the Covina campus to exchange ideas and become better acquainted. The group had an international flavor and included students from Germany, Hong Kong, India, Japan and the Philippines.

The occasion was also the first time in fifteen years that teams of American Baptist leaders have visited various seminary campuses, rather than gathering in one conference at Green Lake, Wisconsin.

The visiting denominational team was headed by Dr. Harold Richardson, executive secretary of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. Other national guests included Dr. Russell Brown of foreign missions; Dr. Jitsuo Morikawa of home missions; Dr. Robert Torbet of the general secretary's staff; Dr. Raymond Weigum of World Mission Support; Dr. Robert Rasmussen of the Commission on the Ministry; Rev. Terry Burch and Rev. James Alfred Smith of the M&M Board's western office. Western state and city executives who took part were Dr. Arnold Boal of Los Angeles; Dr. George Downing of Southern California-Arizona; Dr. Russell Orr of Northern California-Nevada and Rev. William Scott of Colorado.

Following introductions and brief statements by the two student representatives—Rodney Allen of Berkeley and James Rhoads of Covina — a perspective presentation was given by Dr. Morikawa. In reflecting upon his recent sabbatical leave in Japan he said, "Even in secularized Japan, without the benefit of a large Christian community, with few churches, Jesus Christ is at work with redeeming power . . . Jesus Christ is more than the church, more than religion, and more than spirituality. He is the Sovereign Lord of history."

Mr. Scott pointed out that "The renewed church is in your hands as future leaders — you need to create the kind of church you want to lead." He also urged students to make their presence felt in denominational activities, as several had done at Cincinnati in May.

Small discussion groups shared ideas on such questions as placement, centralization of authority, the need for seminarians to learn administration and the importance of the local church.

Everyone met together for lunch in the seminary dining room. After seeing a filmed report on the Cincinnati convention entitled "The Next Voice," the small groups met again with a different team of leaders. Wednesday evening was left free for Berkeley and Covina students to meet together for fellowship and discussion. Team members had dinner with members of the Covina faculty and their wives, as they had done with the Berkeley faculty on Monday evening.

Thursday morning the entire group gathered in the seminary chapel to discuss such major developments as a regional placement system, the opening this fall of a Center on the Ministry in Oakland and the preliminary report of the study commission on denominational structure (SCODS). Dr. Brown spoke to the issues of secularization and world awareness. Dr. Rasmussen described a new personnel system being developed to provide interconnected guidance and record-keeping from the time a person decides to enter the church vocations until his or her retirement.

After the conference, many of the student participants expressed appreciation for the experience but felt that it would have been even more valuable had there been fewer gaps in communication during the planning process and greater involvement of student leadership during the conference itself. At the same time, they believed that some valuable insights had been gained and some stereotypes shattered, both about denominational leaders and about students from the "other" campus of the Seminary of the West.

Mr. Gordon Packard, chairman of the Berkeley trustees and a former IBM executive, discusses the cost of quality theological education with President C. Adrian Heaton.

TO GIVE IS TO HAVE

By C. Adrian Heaton

God gave His best gift at Christmas. With thankful hearts we honor Jesus Christ by exchanging gifts at this season.

But do we give our best gifts to tell Christ's story? How much of our Christmas expense budget goes directly to the work of our Lord?

This year the seminary invites you to share the burden of preparing servants of God for ministry. Your gifts help young adults who become tomorrow's missionaries, pastors, teachers, chaplains, counselors and Christian leaders.

In arranging priorities, remember that ten dollars pays the seminary cost of one student for one day, seventy dollars covers a full week's expense and three hundred dollars provides a month of ministerial education for one student.

Some of our friends are able to give $3,650 or the total cost of one student for a year. Gifts may be designated to Berkeley only, Covina only, to student aid, to field education, to urban-black studies or to any other part of the seminary program.

What you give, you really have! What you cannot let go of, has you!

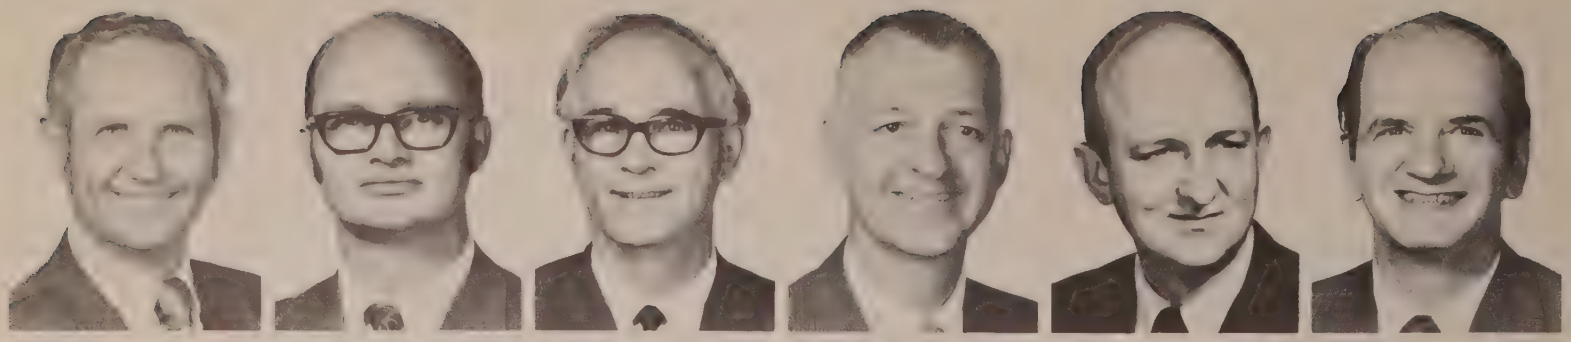
FOUR OVERSEAS GUESTS SPEAK AT ABSW

Early in the fall quarter, four overseas guests spoke at Berkeley or Covina.

Dr. John McIntyre, principal of New College and professor of divinity at the University of Edinburgh, lectured on "The Humanity of Christ" at Covina. A former professor at St. Andrews, he is the author of two books on theology.

Baptist leaders from Scandinavia visited both campuses. Rev. Kjell Kyro-Rasmassen, pastor of Kobner Memorial Church in Copenhagen and the representative of the Danish Baptist Union for the World Council of Churches, spoke at Covina on "The Gospel and the Sexual Revolution in Scandinavia."

At Berkeley, guests for an evening discussion included Rev. Kurt Andersen, editor of the Norwegian Baptist paper and Dr. Gordon Lahrson, former faculty member of BBDS and long-time representative in Europe for the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies.



Rev. Ted Noffs, a Methodist minister from Sydney, Australia, spoke to Berkeley students in November. The author of The Wayside Chapel, just published by Judson Press, he described his experimental ministries in "the wickedest square mile in Sydney." The chapel attracted a million visitors during its first four years. He spent a month in the U.S.A. with an Australian film crew, making a documentary of positive programs involving youth today.

President's Dinners Set December 3-4

The president's invitational dinners will be held in the Gold Ballroom of the Sheraton-Palace in San Francisco on Thursday, December 3 and in the Gold Room of the Los Angeles Biltmore on Friday, December 4. Both occasions will observe the second anniversay of the incorporation of the American Baptist Seminary of the West.

Trustees, faculty, alumni and student officers and special friends of the school will be invited to attend. Tickets will be $6.50 per person.

Seminary students will provide special music. Recognition will also be given to the fact that Dr. Adrian Heaton has completed eleven years as president of the Covina campus and three years as president of the Berkeley campus.

Dr. Campbell Dr. Doss Dr. Garrett Dr. Hine Dr. Laurin Dr. Ramm

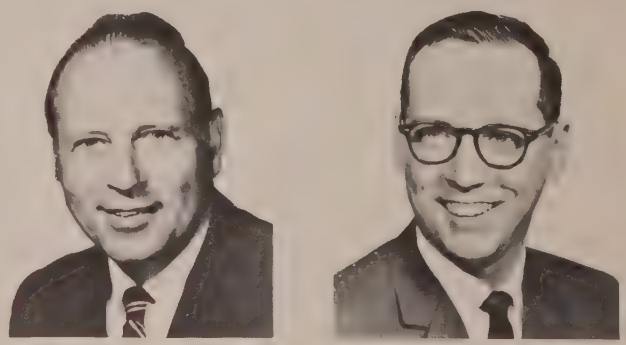
8 Professors Teach in Lay Schools of Theology

Six seminary professors will teach Learning for Laity, to be held at the Covina campus on five Monday evenings from February 1 through March 1. Members of all denominations are invited to participate.

Dr. Robert C. Campbell, dean of the seminary and professor of New Testament since 1954, will teach a course on the book of Romans. He earned graduate degrees at U.S.C. and Eastern Baptist Seminary.

The significance of the youth culture for society and the church will be the theme of a course by Dr. Richard Doss, assistant professor of preaching. He is a graduate of U.C.L.A., Covina and Boston University.

Ways to unify the home and family program of the church will be taught by Dr. Cyril D. Garrett, professor of Christian education. He earned his A.B. at Stetson and his doctorate in education at Michigan State.



How the Protestant church developed in America will be discussed by Dr. Leland D. Hine, professor of church history. He is a graduate of Eastern Baptist Seminary and received his Ph.D. from the University of Pennsylvania.

Studying the Old Testament for personal growth and understanding will be taught by Dr. Robert Laurin, professor of Old Testament, who just completed a book on this subject. He is a graduate of Westmont and Fuller and earned his Ph.D. at St. Andrews in Scotland.

"What Christians Have Believed" is the subject for Dr. Bernard L. Ramm, professor of systematic theology. He was educated at the University of Washington, Eastern Baptist Seminary and U.S.C.

Dr. Donald F. Thomas, seminary vice-president and director of the lay school, explained, "These courses are offered for persons interested in enriching their understanding of the Christian life or in receiving specific help for their responsibilities in the church. Teachers, youth workers, church officers, other members and pastors are invited to this venture in learning."

Each person selects one course, which meets for two hours each Monday, with a coffee break inbetween. The registration fee for the five sessions is $10, plus the cost of a textbook. Registration forms and further details are available from Dr. Thomas at Covina.

Dr. Clasper Dr. Malcomson

Area Lay Schools Held

A Lay School of Theology was held at Grace Baptist Church in San Jose from October 11 through November 8. It was co-sponsored by the Seminary of the West and the South Coastal area of the American Baptist Churches of the West.

Dr. Paul Clasper, dean and professor of theology, taught a course entitled "A Theology of Biblical Pictures" and Dr. William Malcomson, associate professor of ministry, taught a section discussing "Are There New Ways to Worship?"

At a four-session lay school at Tulare during the fall, Dr. Leland Hine presented Baptist history and current trends in the church, while Dr. Cyril Garrett led another group in discussing the teaching-learning process in the new American Baptist curriculum.

Growing in Understanding

by Joan Thatcher

At Covina

The Covina retreat at the Alpine conference center near Lake Arrowhead opened with about 120 students, wives, faculty and staff expressing community by singing "Feeling Groovy" to the accompaniment of two guitars. It concluded with a communion service where the group sang "Rise Up, O Men of God."

During the twenty September hours inbetween, the group moved from a smorgasbord dinner to "trinket groups" organized during registration. Each person received a trinket, such as a paper clip or a thimble, which indicated the group to which he was assigned. Groups of six met Friday evening to get better acquainted.

After a coffee break, students met by classes, with special groupings for wives and faculty members. Each faced the question, "What are you doing in seminary?"

Saturday morning President Heaton suggested that coming to seminary involved belonging, the genuine fellowship of koinonia; believing, with interaction required as much as in-put; and behaving, in a community governed by participatory democracy rather than a fat rulebook.

The president and Dean Campbell discussed the school's future plans and the reasoning behind the development of the professional doctorate.

Following brief meetings of students, wives and faculty, each trinket group was paired with another group. Some interesting insights emerged as the participants made non-verbal exchanges of puzzle pieces, to see if each person could secure the right pieces to form a five-inch square.

One leader, for example, gave all three of his original pieces away and received none in exchange. No one else in the group seemed aware of the situation. Later he concluded, "Most of us do not expect that leaders (or professors or ministers) have needs. But we do!"

After watching a contemporary film which showed what it means to carry a cross in today's world, the group participated in a service of communion, with the members of the faculty acting as the deacons.

The retreat ended with an energetic student-faculty volleyball game. A caravan of cars wended its way down the mountain, ready to begin another school year.

At Berkeley

Both students and faculty are on pilgrimages seeking the most fulfilling ways of serving God and mankind. Often there is a sharing of community and of interests that disregards age differences.

This was true during the community-building experience held on the Berkeley campus October 1-3, with nearly 100 students, wives, faculty and staff members participating.

Rather than inviting a traditional lecturer for the John W. Bailey visiting professorship, the faculty decided to secure a group facilitator for the fall experience.

The person selected as the facilitator was Armand Quiros, who has been professor of pastoral theology and canon law at the Franciscan School of Theology in Berkeley. Prof. Quiros worked on a project for a year with Carl Rogers, the famous research scholar of Chicago in the field of group therapy, and has led several workshops at the Berkeley Center for Human Interaction.

Everyone in the seminary community contributed to a potluck dinner on Friday evening and the student association provided lunch and dinner on Saturday. The wives' group sponsored baby-sitting.

The fall experience began with the group silently walking around the room, looking intently at each person they passed. Then the participants formed pairs for get-acquainted conversation. Soon each pair joined another pair and later groups of eight were formed. Small groups also met Saturday morning and afternoon.

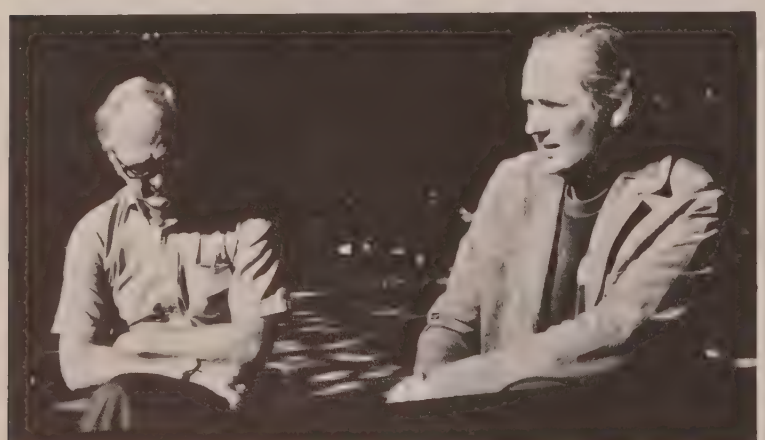
Many of the participants remarked that the limited amount of structuring during the weekend seemed to help each person get to know several others in some depth, in considerably less time than this usually takes.

President Heaton and Dean Clasper answered questions about the relationships of this campus to the other nine schools of the Graduate Theological Union and to the Covina campus, as well as plans for offering a doctor of ministry degree, the need to serve and lead among the churches and the critical financial issues we must face.

The dean described the seminary's purpose as that of preparing leadership for the on-going life of the Christian community in the world, sensitizing and equipping with skills those who serve on the frontiers, in whatever shape the Christian church may take.

One professor mentioned that it was amazing how many good things in the last year have been student-initiated and student-led. One student expressed surprise at learning that professors have some anxieties about their teaching roles and that they honestly feel they learn much from the students.

Mrs. John W. Bailey was an active participant throughout the weekend. She brought the fall experience to an appropriate conclusion by quoting the final sentence from one of the late Dr. Bailey's after-breakfast prayers, "As we go on our way, may we come into deeper meanings and deeper understandings."



At Berkeley nearly 100 students, wives, faculty and staff took part in a fall community-building weekend.

Much of the time was spent getting acquainted and sharing ideas in small groups. Mrs. John W. Bailey is at the right.

Retreat leaders Dr. William Malcomson, right, and Father Armand Quiros (with beard) check details before the session.

Faculty participants at Covina included Dr. Cyril Garrett and Dean Robert Campbell.

Students and faculty alike enjoyed singing, games and good fellowship at the Alpine retreat.

DR. HINE NAMED TO FIELD EDUCATION POST

After ten years as professor of church history on the Covina faculty, Dr. Leland D. Hine has also been named to a new post as director of field education.

In explaining the reason for the appointment, Dean Robert Campbell said, "As we have restructured the new curriculum, field education appears at the heart of the learning experience. It seems imperative that the person directing our expanded and deepened program of field education has been a part of our eight-year process of curriculum building."

Dr. Hine earned his A.B. degree at Hastings College in Nebraska, his B.D. and Th.M. degrees at Eastern Baptist Seminary and his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Pennsylvania.

Following eight years of pastoral experience in Nebraska and Pennsylvania, he joined the faculty of Northern Baptist Seminary in 1953 as associate professor of church history and moved to Covina in 1960.

Long active in church and community projects, Dr. Hine is the author of A History of Baptists in Southern California and Axling: A Christian Presence in Japan, both published by Judson Press. He is also a contributing editor of Foundations.

Sixteen Already Enrolled for D.Min. Degree

Sixteen men with pastoral or missionary experience have already been accepted by the admissions committee as candidates for the professional degree of doctor of ministry at Covina. Several others who are now seniors or special students have applied for later admission.

Ten of those enrolled are pastors in the area and others have taken sabbaticals or resigned from their churches to resume full-time study. Nine are Covina alumni, two are Berkeley alumni and five are graduates of other seminaries. They include nationals from Japan, Korea and New Zealand and a missionary from Congo.

D.Min. Candidates

Richard Balsiger, Covina '70, who teaches young adults at First Baptist, Pomona;

Gary E. Barmore, Covina '67, associate pastor at Calvary Baptist, San Bernadino;

Orville R. Chapman, Berkeley '55, American Baptist missionary on furlough from Congo;

Kenichi Dojo, Doshisha University graduate and a member of the Japanese Church of Christ;

William E. Hirose, Covina '54, associate pastor of the Gardena Valley Baptist Church in Gardena;

Carl G. Jennings, Covina '57, pastor of First Baptist Church in Banning;

James R. Johnson, Berkeley '61, formerly minister of First Baptist Church in Kelso, Washington;

Roger B. Koen, Covina '59, pastor of Grace Baptist Church in Palmdale;

Keith C. Lee, a Presbyterian from Korea, has earned four graduate degrees from American schools;

Loren D. McBain, Covina '70, an intern in Project Understanding at Claremont School of Theology;

James R. Prince, Covina '59, pastor of First Baptist Church in Arcadia;

James E. Ruckle, Covina '69, director of Shalom House for Youth Resources, Inc.;

Charles P. Salvaggio, Covina '59, on sabbatical leave from First Baptist Church in Taft;

Harry W. Skeels of New Zealand earned his B.D. at Fuller on a Fulbright grant and is pastor of First Baptist Church in Twentynine Palms;

Melvin V. Taylor, graduate of Eastern Baptist Seminary and senior minister of Fairview Baptist Church in Costa Mesa; and Henry G. Thompson, graduate of Northern Baptist Seminary and pastor of First Baptist in South Pasadena.

Persons interested in becoming doctor of ministry candidates should contact Dean Robert C. Campbell at Covina or Dean Paul Clasper at Berkeley, where discussions are taking place with member schools of the Graduate Theological Union.

STUDENTS ESTABLISH SHALOM HOUSE

The new curriculum at Covina leads from study to action. One dramatic example is the founding of Shalom House, a center for troubled youth, located in a house just west of the Covina campus.

The center and its sponsoring organization, Youth Resources, Inc., developed following a class project a year ago on the spiritual and other needs of nearby young people. Nine denominations are already involved in supporting the program.

Dr. LELAND HINE, professor of church history and president of the center's board of directors, explained "our basic concern is with the troubled youth caught up in the unrest of the youth culture, which they express in the use of drugs and by other means. We see drug use as both dangerous and frightening."

The center provides a place where youth 16-24 can meet and in an open, accepting atmosphere seek answers to their problems through counseling, talk sessions and other methods. Resources are also available to meet specific personal, family, health and legal difficulties. A unique feature is the provision for short-term residency. Dr. Hine said, "We do not envision long-term residency or a place for hard addicts or a youth commune. Our model is that of a particular type of crisis center."

Director of the center is Rev. JAMES RUCKLE (M.Div. '69), a doctoral candidate at ABSW, who will be assisted by JAMES RHOADS, seminary senior, and Miss SHARON MICK, a first-year student. Rev. DANIEL BENEDICT, '69 Covina, Minister of Education at the Covina United Methodist Church, serves on the board of directors.

Richard Balsiger and Michael McKee Ordained

RICHARD E. BALSIGER (Covina '70) was ordained at First Baptist Church in Pomona on September 6. Participants included the senior pastor, Dr. Edward B. Cole, ABSW trustee; Dr. Leland Hine and Rev. Scott Irvine of the seminary faculty; Rev. Daniel Benedict, Jr. and Rev. William R. Herzog, Jr., both of Covina's class of 1969, Rev. James Bright '60 and two other clergymen.

A graduate of Sacramento State, Mr. Balsiger served for a year as associate minister at the Mt. Baldy Village Church and taught a class of single young adults at the Pomona church. He is currently working toward a professional doctorate at Covina.

MICHAEL D. McKEE (Covina '71) was ordained at Temple Baptist Church in Los Angeles on September 9. The ten clergymen sharing in the service included Dr. Culbert G. Rutenber and Dr. David Wallace of the seminary faculty; two seminary trustees, Dr. A. George Downing and Dr. Paul Kopp; two classmates, Rev. William Herzog and Rev. Loren D. McBain; and two ministers from All Saints Episcopal Church in Pasadena, where Mr. McKee is now serving in a ministry shared by several denominations.

A graduate of Azusa Pacific College, he spent three years working in the Christian education program at First Baptist in Pomona and participated in Project Understanding during his seminary internship.

STREET MINISTRY IN BERKELEY

Clay Ford, who has studied a year at ABSW in Berkeley and a year at ABSW in Covina, spent the summer working with the street people through Berkeley's First Baptist Church. This unusual program was sponsored by the American Baptist Home Mission Boards.

At summer's end his report said, "Many of the street people are outcasts from society . . . Terribly oppressed by their own hangups, they are oppressed also by a society that demands rigid conformity; by a society that has grown cold to human suffering; by a society whose preoccupation with power and material success has made it unable to understand that its focus should be on the fulfillment of human beings; by a society that has deceived itself into believing that compassion is better expressed by words than by actions.

"The ultimate oppression that haunts the innermost being of mankind: the spiritual oppression of those alienated from God, the Source of genuine love and true fulfillment . . .

"As a student for the ministry, the fact that only the Baptist church is ministering to the street people profoundly disturbs me, for if this jungle of human sickness and suffering is not the mission field of the Body of Christ, I cannot help but wonder what is. Who needs a doctor but the sick?"

The last day, Clay and others working with the street people conducted a communion service. Later one young man confided to the pastor of the church, "Man, that was heavy. I knew Clay as a friend . . . having fun with us all summer . . . then all of a sudden he's talking serious . . . and I am kneeling looking up at him. It was heavy, man."

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

Darrell Bennett Heads Chicago Baptists

Rev. Darrell S. Bennett (Berkeley '52) has been named interim executive secretary for the Chicago Baptist Association. Since 1967 he has been program representative for the division of parish development of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies.

A cost engineer before entering the ministry, Mr. Bennett graduated from Whitworth College in 1949 and then enrolled at the divinity school. He was the organizing pastor of Valley Baptist Church in Walnut Creek from 1951 to 1957, when he became director of church development and strategy for the Los Angeles Baptist City Mission Society.

His son Philip, who was three years old when the Bennetts moved to Berkeley, received his master of divinity degree at Berkeley last June and is now enrolled as an M.A. candidate in Old Testament at the Graduate Theological Union.

(Note: We appreciate the response to our request for alumni news and hope you will continue to send in items of interest. Because of the publication schedule, some news may be delayed and we ask your patience and understanding! Special note to Berkeley alumni: Thanks to the many who responded to the request for information from those not currently serving in a paid church or church-related position. There are interesting and significant things happening and we plan to share these at a later time.—CJG)

COVINA CAMPUS

1970 L. ELAINE HALSTEAD is the new secretary to the president at Covina. She also is assisting Dr. Leland Hine in developing a teaching pastors program related to the new curriculum.

1968 Since leaving Houston GORDON HAMBLEY has been a chaplain at Spring Grove State Hospital in Baltimore, which serves 2,500 psychiatric patients. He has concentrated on family therapy and presented a paper and some videotapes at a national conference in Boston in November. The family sails from Los Angeles on January 13th to return to New Zealand. Gordon becomes pastor of the North Memorial Baptist Church in Auckland and hopes to work part-time with seminary students in pastoral counseling. . . . DOUGLAS KNIGHT is studying at the University of Gottingen in Germany for a doctorate in Old Testament under Prof. Hans-Joachim Kraus. On September 1 he became the first American to be appointed as a faculty assistant. In addition to doing his own doctoral research, the assistantship involves helping Dr. Kraus with research and teaching and brings with it a monthly stipend, a private office and many faculty privileges.

1967 A letter from Margareta and JAMES JONES told of some of their experiences in Sweden where he is student minister at the University of Uppsala, under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. In addition to conducting church services, small group sessions and individual counseling, he led a group of students on a tour to Russia, Czechoslovakia and East Berlin. The birth of Kevin Egron in April came four days after his father's return from the trip! Their daughter Kristina is almost 2.

1953 IVAN G. MEARS was awarded the doctor of education degree by the University of Southern California earlier this year. He has been a teacher at West Covina Christian School and Los Angeles Baptist High School and principal of Huntington Park Baptist Elementary School.

BERKELEY CAMPUS

1970 CARROLL MORONY has been named interim associate minister at the First Baptist Church of Pueblo, Colorado.

1969 JACQUELINE HINSON is teaching Spanish at Foothill intermediate school in Walnut Creek. . . . DAVID and LUCILA (GELLECANAO '68) MAGUIRE are the parents of Joy Marjy, born in the Philippines on August 5. Dave is teaching at Silliman University, which has a peak enrollment because of student unrest in Manila. The Maguires plan to return to the USA next year.

1967 News from the CLAIBORNE ERICKSONS in Thailand relates a "first" for the Thai churches — an organized foreign mission program. Through the Thai Student Christian Movement, work is being done among the Iban tribal people in Sarawak, Malaysia.

1966 FRANK BROUGHER is serving a pastorate in Utah following ministry at First Baptist Church, Cottage Grove, Oregon. . . . KENNETH HUNT '66x is studying for an M.A. degree in guidance and counseling at the University of Iowa.

1963 Now stationed at Spangdahlem AFB in Germany is DONALD M. COWELL, a captain in the USAF chaplaincy. He has had duty at March AFB, California, and in Thailand.

1969 The GEORGE GILLESPIES (CHARLOTTE FLETCHER '58x) and their four children have returned to India for their third term of service as American Baptist missionaries. They are living in Gauhati where he is adult literacy secretary for the Council of Baptist Churches in North East India. In addition to preparing materials and arranging classes for teaching illiterate adults to read and write, he will be working with Indian writers to help build up an indigenous literature with roots in the Indian Christian experience. . . . GERTRUDE REVOIR, counselor to women at Sioux Falls College, is on sabbatical for a year. She is studying at the College of St. Matthias in Fishpond, Bristol, England.

1958 CHARLES V. DAVISON received the A.B. degree in music education from Kearney State College, Nebraska, and is now teaching instrumental music in Fairfield, Nebraska. His wife, Mary, is also teaching music in the elementary school. They have three children, Vicky, 12, Kay, 9, and Vernon, 5 . . . ALAN SOUTHWELL resigned from the pastorate of Calvary Baptist Church, Salem, Oregon, to take further graduate study in counseling at Oregon College of Education.

1957 Although he has returned to Congo where he is an American Baptist missionary, WESLEY H. BROWN is writing his doctoral dissertation for a Ph.D. in social ethics from the University of Southern California. He related that the Evangelical Theological School of Kinshasa, where he is professor of Christian ethics, has a beautiful new campus with the land given by the government. . . . FELAND L. MEADOWS, JR. is president of Instituto Mexicano de Investigacion Pedagogica, A.C. in Tlacopac, Mexico, and of Asesoria de Viajes S.A. For 11 years he was field representative for education under the American Baptist Home Mission Societies and rector of the Baptist Seminary of Mexico. . . . MILTON O. WHITAKER, SR. was the subject of a feature article by the religion editor in the Seattle Times. He recently became chaplain at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Seattle following a year at the V.A. hospital in Martinez with a residency in clinical pastoral education, pastoral psychology and the behavioral sciences. He is enthusiastic about the team approach of treating patients as physicians, psychiatrists, chaplains, case-workers and others become "integrated members of the healing team."

1956 Currently serving as pastor of Faith Baptist Church, Citrus Heights, is AMOS NORVEL NELSON. He was ordained by the Baptist General Conference. . . . Representing ABSW at the inauguration of the new president of Judson College in Illinois was DR. GEORGE VANDERLIP, dean at Northern Baptist Seminary.

1955 In September GERARD PHILLIPS returned to the pastorate of Park Baptist Church in St. Paul, Minnesota, which he had served from 1958 to 1964. Since then he has been pastor of University Baptist Church in East Lansing, Michigan. . . . BERNARD L. TURNER has resigned from Good Shepherd Baptist Church in Lynnwood, Washington, to join a team ministry with RICHARD ORR '66 at First Baptist Church in McMinnville, Oregon.

1953 GLENN D. HAMMER '53x, formerly executive secretary of the Arizona Convention of American Baptist Churches, is now an area minister with the Mid-American Baptist Churches (Iowa and Minnesota). The Hammers live in Harlan, Iowa. . . . HILEY WARD, religion editor for the Detroit Free Press, has been serving as national president of the Religion Newswriters Association. Earlier in the year he was given an award citation by the Religious Public Relations Council. He is the author of several books.

1952 JACK J. CARMICHAEL, counselor and assistant professor, has been appointed assistant to the president at Central Missouri State College. A former U. S. Army chaplain, he served with the Peace Corps in Cameroon, West Africa, has taught at Ohio University and was dean of students at Evangel College before becoming director of admissions at CMSC in 1967. He is married with three children.

1948 SAM KLEINSASSER has resigned from the pastorate of the First Baptist Church, Roseburg, Oregon, to enter full-time evangelism. He and his wife already have a number of meetings scheduled in American Baptist churches in Oregon and California.

1947 PHILIP J. UHLINGER, American Baptist missionary to the Congo since 1947, is on furlough this year and delivered three missionary addresses during the October convention of the American Baptist Churches of the West. He is doing graduate study at the Covina campus.

1942 American Baptist missionary DOROTHY WISEMAN '42x is on furlough from her work in Kimpese, Congo, with the Evangelical Medical Institute. She and her sister, Doris, also on furlough from Congo, are living at Brookings, Oregon.

ALUMNI JOIN IN NEW VENTURE

Berkeley alumni Henry Croes '45, and Allan Anderson '50 and their families, joined by the Kenneth Rushings, are developing a unique, comprehensive ministry in Christian education and recreation for all ages known as the Elk River Re-creation Association of Colorado, Inc.

Located in a beautiful area near Steamboat Springs, the new venture began operation last summer with a variety of services such as back country wilderness camps, hunting trips, continuing education for ministers and families, cabin rentals, church school and worship experiences, tent camping, and hunter education. Other services will be offered as the work develops.

Dr. Croes, an experienced outdoorsman, served pastorates in California and Colorado and spends part of the year as a special consultant for the Division of Christian Higher Education of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. Mr. Anderson has had wide experience in Christian education, serving the First Baptist Church, Tacoma, Wash., the Tri-State Area and for the past 13 years the Washington Baptist Convention as minister of Christian education.

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. 2 December 1970 No. 2

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

Seminary Knolls, Covina, California 91722

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, April, October
and December.

Second class postage paid at Covina, Calif.

Address Correction Requested

Graduate Theological Union
2465 LeConte Avenue
Berkeley, California 94709

Speaking Personally

Christian sympathy is extended to the family of FRED STOEHR, who died on September 14. He completed nine years as a seminary trustee at Covina.

DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER of the Covina faculty taught a course at the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley during the fall quarter on theology and the Greek philosophers. DEAN PAUL CLASPER of Berkeley will teach a seminar on the Buddhist challenge to Christian faith at Covina on Tuesdays during the winter quarter.

PRESIDENT C. ADRIAN HEATON led a Sunday School Advance and preached at Third Baptist Church in St. Louis; led a chapel service and took part in installing a new dean at Eastern Baptist Seminary; and spoke at the South Coastal region at Redwood Glen, Calif., on the theme "Turned-on by the Gospel."

DEAN ROBERT CAMPBELL led Bible studies on Ephesians at South Shores Baptist Church in Laguna Niquel on four Sunday evenings in October; was the guest leader at a Bible conference in Mesa, Arizona, Oct. 30-Nov. 1 and represented the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication at General Council meetings in Valley Forge.

DR. ROBERT LAURIN of Covina and DR. WILLIAM MALCOMSON of Berkeley led a continuing education conference for clergy sponsored by the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Northwest. The event was held Oct. 26-29 at Camp Burton, across Puget Sound from Seattle.

In October DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER addressed the annual convention of the Church of the Brethren in Phoenix, Arizona and the installation services for Thomas Gibbony at Chino, Calif.

DR. GENEVIEVE KELLY, librarian at Covina, gave the fall convocation address there, reflecting the research done during her sabbatical leave in 1969. She is the vice-president of the American Theological Library Association.

In Las Vegas in September, DR. CARROL O. MORONG spoke at a joint meeting of the ministers and laymen of the Nevada Baptist Convention.

PROF. DAVID BARTLETT led the Sunday morning Bible study during the October convention of the American Baptist Churches of the West.

DR. ELDON ERNST wrote an article in the June issue of Church History on the involvement of Protestant churches in the steel strike of 1919-20 and reviewed a 600-page book on Baptists in Oregon in the September issue.

The sun never sets on the Berkeley alumni who use speech and communication skills learned from ADA GRACE CRALLE in their worldwide ministries. A certificate of appreciation was presented to Mrs. Cralle Oct. 25 during the American Baptist regional convention at Santa Rosa, recognizing her 25 years of teaching on the Berkeley faculty.

NORMAN K. GOTTWALD is contributing five articles to the forthcoming 12-volume Encyclopedia Judaica. To be published by the Israel Program for Scientific Translations, it intends to present a comprehensive interpretation of the Jewish past and present. The articles include the blessing of Jacob and the books of Samuel.

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

FEB 23 '71

Volume 2 Number 3
FEBRUARY 1971

Two President's Dinners were held in December. Above, Dean and Mrs. Paul Clasper chat with Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Burris, a new Berkeley trustee. Below, seminary senior Bob Pankratz directs the Covina concert choir at the Biltmore in Los Angeles.

FACULTY DIALOGUE

FACULTY BOOKS

Contemporary Old Testament Theologians

Robert B. Laurin (ed).), Valley Forge: Judson Press, 1970.

Reviewed by Reidar B. Bjornard

Professor of Old Testament Interpretation, Northern Baptist Seminary

Of the printing of books there is no end. The possibility for any person to keep up even in his own field of speciality is decreasing every day. Everybody, from President Nixon on down, needs briefs and condensations in order to maintain a certain level of acquaintance with ideas and changes in developments.

It is this reality that Robert Laurin has faced in regard to Old Testament theology. He set out as an editor to gather about him a fine crew of Baptists, Old Testament scholars from England and the USA, who could take the works of the best known Old Testament theologians and condense them into critical essays. It was a grand idea, and the result is a great and much needed book.

In the first article Norman Gottwald gives us a critique of the now so famous Theology of the Old Testament by Walther Eichrodt. Less than half of the article is given to resumé. The rest contains a tackling of Professor Eichrodt's presuppositions, methods and solutions, so thorough that one is slightly surprised when one finds toward the end a final heading labelled "Critique." The essay is an able piece of work, but will it entice anyone to read Eichrodt? The reviewer thinks back upon Gottwald's exhilarating review in the Expository Times (April, 1963). Eichrodt's book has not changed. What has made the big difference?

Henton Davies takes on Gerhard von Rad in an almost similar manner. There is a constant dispute going between the essayist and the theologian, and one must agree with most of the perceptive criticism levelled against von Rad.

Good as these two opening essays are, one must be permitted to ask whether the editor really thinks these two essays "provide a review perspective" as stated in his preface? And can they in any way substitute for reading the original? The same goes for his own essay on Edmond Jacob.

Schofield's exposé of Otto Procksch and Clement's review of Vriezen are much more satisfactory in this regard. Schofield reveals great empathy with Procksch, so much so that we are even missing a concluding section of critique. An editorial question: Since Procksch so deeply had influenced both Eichrodt and von Rad, should he not have preceded them in the book? Clement's essay must be judged as coming closest to satisfying the editor's stated program.

The reviewer frankly wonders how G. A. F. Knight got into this august company? Prof. Durham says that much himself in his opening statement. The essay is sharply perceived and well written, and one could have wished that this excellent effort had been spent on a worthier subject, such as Ernst Sellin or even Ludwig Koehler.

The last essay is mis-titled. In addition to Paul van Imschoot it covers several other Roman Catholic theologians, especially Paul Heinisch. One is grateful to Dr. Hubbard for a perceptive and understanding essay on these men, whose works are so little known among us. However, also here we find this running debate instead of a full report of what the men are saying before any judgment is brought to bear upon them.

It is indeed encouraging to see that such an excellent book has been published by the Judson Press. The idea of a joint effort is a very fertile one, and one can only hope that the co-operation between these good Baptist scholars will be continued.

The American Baptist Seminary of the West can be proud to have two of its faculty members connected with this fine book.

DR. JACKSON TAKES SABBATICAL TRIP TO ASIA AND AUSTRALIA

Dr. Maurice P. Jackson, vice-president of the Berkeley campus and professor there since 1945, and Mrs. Jackson left January 3 on the freighter Montana for a visit to seminary alumni in Asia and to assist with the teaching ministry at Central Philippine University and at five Baptist theological schools in Australia, where he will be a consultant on practical theology.

During January the Jacksons visited four centers in Japan, followed by Okinawa and Hong Kong. They will spend the month of February at Central Philippine University in Iloilo City, where Dr. Jackson will teach in the field of pastoral care.

After a brief trip to Bangkok and Singapore, they will arrive at Perth, Australia, early in March. The five Baptist theological schools where Dr. Jackson will be a consultant are located in Perth, Adelaide, Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane.

On their homeward trip in June the Jacksons will visit New Zealand, Fiji, Samoa and Honolulu before returning to Berkeley the end of June.

During Dr. Jackson's absence, Arlo Reichter, a third year student, will coordinate recruitment, with Dr. Eldon Ernst as faculty consultant. Placement of seniors will be done by Dr. William Malcomson and Dr. Harold Frazee will coordinate alumni placement activities.

Alumni and other friends may write Dr. Jackson's secretary, Mrs. Arne Nielsen, who will serve as a channel of communication during his absence.

SIX VISITING PROFS TEACH D.MIN. COURSES AT COVINA

Dean Robert C. Campbell has announced that at Covina this quarter six visiting professors are teaching courses which are designed primarily for students in the doctor of ministry program.

Dean Paul Clasper of ABSW-Berkeley is teaching a Tuesday morning seminar on the Buddhist-Christian dialogue. A graduate of Taylor University and Southern Baptist Seminary, he earned his Th.D. at Union Seminary in New York. After twelve years as an American Baptist missionary in Burma, he was professor of theology and world religions at Drew University until moving to Berkeley in 1968.

Sociology of religion is the subject of a seminar taught by Dr. Edward H. Rybnicek, chairman of the social science division at Chapman College in Orange. He earned degrees at Denison University and Colgate-Rochester before completing his Ph.D. at the University of Minnesota. Since 1963 he has taught sociology at Carroll College and Northern Arizona University. A former Navy chaplain, he is a fellow of the American Sociological Association.

A course in Hebrews is taught by Dr. Luis Fidel Mercado, head of the Hispanic Institute in Los Angeles. A former professor at the Evangelical Theological Seminary in San Juan, Puerto Rico, he earned his B.D. at Eastern Baptist Seminary, his M.A. at the University of Pennsylvania and his Th.D. at Harvard.

A preceptorial on church history and a seminar on the Great Councils are led by Dr. James Breckenridge. He earned his B.D. at Covina and his Ph.D. at the University of Southern California.

William R. Herzog II is assisting Dr. Robert Laurin in a course on advanced Hebrew and working with Dr. Bernard Ramm in a "theology through literature" seminar. Mr. Herzog received his A.B. at Harvard, his M.Div. with honors at Covina in 1969 and is now a doctoral student in theology and literature at Claremont Graduate School. He has also studied at the American Institute for Holy Land Studies in Jerusalem.

Professor Scott Irvine is teaching a Tuesday afternoon course on role-playing with Rev. Robert Blees, pastor of the Church of the Celebration and director of the Institute of Christian Counseling in San Dimas.

Interested in an Intern?

Several ABSW students are interested in internships. Is your church one in which a seminarian could work full-time for a summer or for a full academic year — working with the pastor in ministering to the people of your church and community? We have a number of students who are highly motivated toward discovering if they can really do a job in the professional ministry. Here is your chance to have the experience of cooperating in the training of a future minister.

To explore this further, write one of the ABSW field education directors: Dr. William Malcomson at Berkeley or Dr. Leland Hine at Covina.

Dr. William Malcomson

Mrs. Janet Clasper

Dr. Lyn Walker

THE PRESIDENT'S DINNERS

"Getting the Word Around" was the theme of the two President's Dinners held early in December for 312 special guests, trustees, faculty and students.

President C. Adrian Heaton conducted David Frost-type interviews, followed by an impressionistic picture-music presentation of how the Seminary of the West gets the Word around. The latter was prepared by Stephen M. Jackson, a young engineer who is active in the Fountain Valley Baptist Church.

At the Palace in San Francisco

In interviewing Dean Emeritus Ralph E. Knudsen, Dr. Heaton asked, "Why did you decide to become a dean, which ruins a good teaching career?" Dean Knudsen chuckled, "I often wondered!"

Strongly Christological in his thinking, David Bartlett is a newly-appointed professor who chose the field of New Testament so that he could do theology with a New Testament background. When Dr. Heaton asked how he was progressing with his struggle between selecting the pastorate or the teaching profession, he replied, "Still ambivalent, thanks!"

Dr. Lyn Walker, who teaches courses in religion and personality, said he chose the field of psychology mainly because of his self-search. He grew up in the church and was interested in how ministers could help people actualize their faith, rather than just talk about it.

Chris Askew, one of the students interviewed, said, "My seminary education is special because it's MY education. It is meeting my needs as no education ever has."

Mrs. Paul Clasper, an accomplished artist, commented "Modern paintings, like women, are not so much fun if they are understood." Yet, she enjoys helping to communicate Christian art to theological students and to lay people in the churches.

Asked to describe a week in the dean's life, Dr. Clasper said, "As a teaching dean, I spend half of four days a week in the classroom. Other time is spent in committees, interviews and in acting as liaison between ABSW and the Graduate Theological Union.

"When ten different schools plan academic programs together, it demands lots of energy and heart-searching discussions. Beyond the mechanics of course planning, the deepest concern is to help produce graduates who have a pastor's heart, a sensitivity to human need and the ability to encourage lives to grow." The Claspers are frequently hosts to groups in their home and the dean speaks in churches about once a week.

At the Biltmore in Los Angeles

Among the special guests Dr. Heaton introduced at the Biltmore were Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Karpe of Bakersfield. The president said Mr. Karpe's life reminded him of a statement by Emerson, "The great moments of life are not weddings or funerals or holidays, but quiet afternoons when a new idea is born."

Dr. Heaton and Richard French, vice president of the seminary's board of trustees, joined in honoring Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Schmidt. He retired recently after fifteen years as business manager at Covina. Mr. French said, "Mr. Schmidt has the qualities of Barnabas, who expressed sacrifice in his living and actions. Through his dedication and his business skills, he made the gospel go farther, faster."

Mr. Schmidt received a leather-bound copy of a resolution expressing deep appreciation for his services, which was voted unanimously by the Covina trustees. Earlier, members of the staff and faculty held a dinner in his honor and presented a retirement gift.

Dr. Paul Kopp, minister of Temple Baptist in Los Angeles, paid tribute to Sarah Grace Parker, a member of Temple, who began the tradition of President's Dinners eleven years ago. She died in 1970 at the age of 100, guests at the Biltmore heard.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Schmidt were guests of honor. He retired recently after fifteen years as business manager at Covina.

The Gold Ballroom of the Sheraton-Palace was a sparkling setting for the San Francisco dinner.

Dean Campbell talked with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jameson.

Dr. Heaton described a nightmare he had recently, in which he dreamed that Ralph Nader was going to investigate the seminary. "Mr. Nader said that our graduates have no warranty, and there's no money back if they don't work. We have no uniform standards as to size, speed or personal warmth. The period of time until obsolescence varies widely!"

Asked how he would answer Ralph Nader, Dean Robert Campbell replied that he felt Mr. Nader would be quite pleased with the high ideals of students and with the new curriculum's approach in helping students learn how to do the job. He added that the Doctor of Ministry candidates even come in with a warranty—of solid recommendations!

Dr. Heaton concluded, "We are dedicated to getting the Word of God around, by old methods and new. We have the personnel and the situations of great leadership for Christ. Because of the tight money situation in the country, the seminary needs substantial support now from its friends and churches."

An impressionistic presentation with slides and music was prepared by Steven Jackson, a young Baptist layman, to convey the mood of "Getting the Word Around."

Rick Mixon and Chris Askew of Berkeley sang Christmas music.

Miss Harriet Robbins of the Berkeley board greeted Mr. and Mrs. Omer Robbins of the Covina board at the Biltmore.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Packard, left, were seated with Dr. and Mrs. Heaton. Mr. Packard is chairman of the Berkeley trustees.

MINISTERS-IN-TRAINING

Preparing men and women who are profoundly committed to the Christian faith and who are learning to find satisfaction in serving others for the sake of Christ are among the primary goals at both campuses of the Seminary of the West.

Both Berkeley and Covina emphasize that field education is primarily an educational experience and not just an opportunity for a church to receive some leadership and a student to receive some financial help. As a result, the seminary is assuming increasing responsibility in supervision of students, pastors and churches. Since last September, Dr. William Malcomson has been named director of field education at Berkeley and Dr. Leland Hine has become director of field education at Covina.

Most field education experiences are church-centered. In special cases, field education or internships are arranged in conjunction with clinical pastoral education or urban training centers or in other situations which develop skills in teaching, human relations or administration.

Field Education at Covina

The new curriculum at Covina gives strong emphasis to combining successful experience in practicing the skills of ministry while studying about them. This takes one-half of the third year of seminary training. To up-grade supervision in the churches, several courses are being developed in the new Doctor of Ministry program which will lead toward becoming a credentialed "teaching pastor."

The new book by Dr. Cyril Garrett charts 25 specific tasks recommended at Covina as part of the student's experience in the local church. Along with field observations and evaluation sessions, these are directly correlated with an on-campus practicum which discusses the theory and practice of the pastoral skills being done in the churches.

Among the graduated tasks carried on during field education are: assisting in the chancel, sharing leadership in communion services, relating to a major board, learning office routines, calling in homes and hospitals, some type of group work, personal conferences with laity, preaching, assisting in the pastor's classes for new members and planning summer programs.

Field Education at Berkeley

by William L. Malcomson

When I think of field education, I think of particular people engaged in particular tasks. Gil Sandy is out there in Antioch working with young people and doing a lot of counselling of adults as well.

Over in Richmond, Paul Christie is meeting with a group of laity and pastors, trying to develop some ways of bettering community life in Richmond.

Up in Vallejo, John Giles, a black seminarian, is working with Stan Cornils and the folks in First Baptist (virtually an all-white congregation) to develop a youth program that meets the needs of a great variety of young people.

In the paper the other day, I saw Mike Burr's phone number listed as the one to call in Oakland about police-community relations. Mike is working with Sam Pinkston of the ABCW staff.

Across the bay in San Francisco, Harry Wu and the people of First Baptist are setting the stage for a neighborhood program which will be relevant to the needs of the kids who live near the church.

Down in San Carlos, Robb Hasencamp, under the supervision of Bob Wheaton, is becoming involved in the counselling center there and in the general life of the church.

Up in San Pablo, the Steeple — a pizza house owned by MacArthur Community Baptist Church — is housing a program directed by Gus Owen, a first-year student.

I think of others — Rick Mixon at Lakeshore, Chris Askew out in Livermore, Denny Stull in Pleasant Hill.

Twenty-six students in our school are presently engaged in supervised field education. Twenty work with ABC churches, three are in ecumenical programs and three are students from other denominations. There are twenty supervisors, including those mentioned above and others such as Stan MacNair, Gene Davis, Dale Johnson, Mike Petrillo, Laurie Malcomson, Ray Jennings, Milt Gire, Curt McCormack, Rod Romney, Ralph Rowe, Dwight Dodson, Dale Edmondson, John Streater, Dave Harmon and Palmer Watson.

The students are excited about their work and the supervisors are finding that they gain deep personal satisfaction from working with ministers-in-training.

Alumni Associations Vote Support

Because of their gratitude for a more comprehensive field education program than has ever been offered before at either campus, the alumni associations of both Covina and Berkeley have adopted substantial goals for funds to be raised through special contributions from the seminary alumni.

Covina officers have recommended that the sum of $15,000 would provide $5,000 to underwrite the teaching pastors program, $3,000 for professional seminars including both pastors and students, $2,000 for secretarial costs and $5,000 toward the faculty director's salary. A similar plan is being developed by the Berkeley alumni officers.

NINE STUDENTS' EYE-VIEWS

by Joan Thatcher

When prospective students visit the seminary, they like to have time to talk with current students. Suppose we eavesdrop on some candid conversations with "real live students" at Covina and Berkeley.

Three Students from Overseas

ALPHA DOFELITZ, a graduate of Central Philippines College of Theology, is doing an M.A. in counseling at Covina: "I want to be fully equipped to serve the Philippine Baptist churches when I return. Interestingly, in the Philippines women can have top leadership roles and salaries equal to men. We don't need 'women's lib!'

"The educational program at Covina is comprehensive and challenging. It demands hard work in studying and research, which is to our advantage when we graduate. The faculty and students are sweating it out together."

STEVE HENEISE of Haiti, a graduate of Eastern Baptist College, is a first-year student at Covina: "This was one of the seminaries my father recommended. Most Covina students are very serious and know why they are here. I really like the faculty, although I found the first quarter somewhat confusing academically.

"When I graduate, my wife and I will return to Haiti to teach in secondary education. There we will work with my parents and my brother, who was just commissioned by First Baptist in Long Beach as an agricultural missionary."

HARRY WU, an alumnus of Chung Chi College and Burma Divinity School, is an M.R.E. student at Berkeley: "I have long wanted to come here. Most of the missionaries I knew in Burma were BBDS graduates and when Dr. Clasper was in Rangoon he influenced me to join the ministry. Also, I knew I could get some of the specialized courses I wanted in radio-TV through the Graduate Theological Union and UC at Berkeley.

"In Burma we lived and ate and fellowshipped together like a big family. Here, I like the faculty and staff I've met but there seems to be much more of a gulf between the single and married students than in Burma.

"Academically, Berkeley rates very high, particularly because of the GTU resources, which lift us above the ordinary seminary. The preparation I am finding here, in classes and otherwise, will be very helpful when I return to minister in Asia."

Two First-Year Students

TIM NORRIS, graduate of Arizona State University and a first-year student at Berkeley: "I came to seminary because I have some deep religious concerns and a sense of commitment to people. I feel the ministry in all its varied forms is probably the best way to help people find what they really need.

Harry Wu of Hong Kong described his impressions of Berkeley during the ABSW breakfast at regional convention, Santa Rosa.

"Initially I was attracted to Berkeley by the warmth of the people I met. I enrolled here because I think it offers the widest variety of educational experiences. I'm committed to the ecumenical movement and feel seminary education should be ecumenical. This is the best way for us as individuals to find out what it means to be a Baptist and, more importantly, to be a Christian.

"All my expectations have been fulfilled and surpassed. The feeling of warmth I experienced when I visited the campus pervades the whole ABSW community. Interaction with people of other religious faiths is also extremely rewarding.

"Before I came I was almost convinced that a parish-type ministry was not for me. Now I have been awakened to the potential of the parish and feel it is a live option for me, but I'm not closing out other possibilities such as counseling or Biblical studies."

ALAN O'REGAN, a graduate of Louisiana State University and a first-year student at Berkeley: "Theological education is everybody's responsibility who identifies himself with the church. I also came to seminary to explore my own real needs and personality development.

"As a Southern Baptist, my orientation has been totally toward the local church. I need to be challenged by the other side of interchurch involvement and new forms coming out of secular movements.

"I'm impressed with both faculty and students here. There's a broad enough assortment of students that you can easily find those you groove with. As a student representative at faculty meetings, I've found that our faculty has many innovative ideas the whole GTU needs.

"The unstructured nature of the first-year program is an asset for the person who knows where he is going, but it can be a confusing whirlpool for the person with real self-doubts. The GTU has fantastic resources but it is almost impossible to sort them out on your own.

Covina seniors, shown here, symbolize the deep sense of dedication that is true of seminarians on both campuses.

"At this point I'm tending toward college teaching of religion or theology, but I am more attracted to the parish ministry now than I was before I came."

Three Senior Students

LARRY BOWDEN, graduate of Monmouth College and a senior at Berkeley: "Although I began college as a science major, I got turned on by an introductory course in philosophy and made that my major. Conversations with Gary Reif (B '63), my home pastor and my philosophy professor, aided my decision to go to seminary en route to a doctorate in philosophical theology.

"Students need a voice in forming curriculum, but not a dominant voice. A professor should be sensitive to student needs, but not at the expense of giving away his own sense of direction for the course.

"My intern experience last year on the staff of First Baptist in Waterloo was helpful and enlightening. A lot of learning took place on both sides. I found that once you've gained the trust of a parish, they will give you a great deal of freedom.

"Professors here are trying to prepare students for the parish AND for advanced graduate study. It's hard for any school to do both equally well.

"Right now, my first hope is to teach, but I'm not closed to the parish ministry. Teaching seems to offer both the sheer intellectual stimulation important to me as a person, as well as warm human relationships."

PAUL CHRISTIE, an Ottawa alumnus and a transfer senior at Berkeley: "Coming to seminary was part of the whole maturation process that began my last year in college. I felt I was finding out who I was and where I was going and wanted to continue that. Seminary also meant I did not have to 'freeze' a vocational decision, since I had several areas of interest.

"I transferred 2700 miles to Berkeley because I was attracted by the cluster idea and liked the Bay Area. I have been thoroughly pleased with the professors I know and with the variety of courses in the GTU. I feel I am getting a much better education here.

"My field situation is very exciting, since I am coordinating action programs for six churches in Richmond. I'm also enjoying my senior project, on leadership development for camps of the Churches of the West. I hope to find a position on a church or cluster staff."

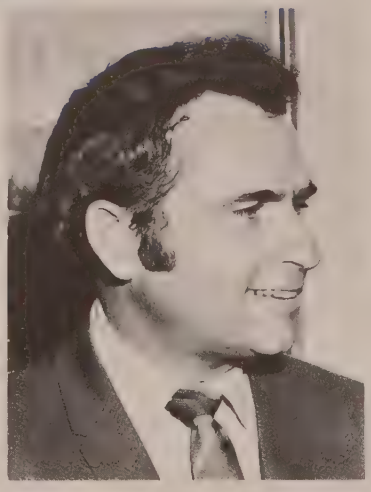
STEVE SNYDER, a Stanford graduate and a senior at Covina: "I chose this seminary because it was innovative, not plodding along in classical patterns. The new curriculum involves a methodology of learning how to learn and helping the student learn about himself. The professors don't see us as boxes to be filled with wise and pithy sayings.

"The point of learning for the student may be the book he's reading, a conversation or a field trip, maybe even a film. Unlike most schools, classrooms at Covina are not primarily the place for input but rather give us a chance for reflection and for fitting ideas together.

"To get content, the student must invest himself. He has a responsibility to himself, to the professor and to the other students.

"After graduation I plan to earn a Ph.D. in the theology of American history. I feel there's a strong opportunity for evangelism through teaching and hope to be able to stimulate two or three students a year at a deep level. In working with the chaplain at Redlands this year, I've found I'm a 'head' person and relate best to other 'head' people."

A Doctor of Ministry Candidate



TANDY SULLIVAN earned his B.A. at the University of Michigan, his B.D. at Gordon Seminary and his M.A. at Emerson College. He did graduate study at U.S.C. and Claremont, before enrolling in Covina's D.Min. program. After seven years as pastor at University Baptist Church in Long Beach, last month he became an area minister for the Pacific Southwest region.

He said, "Covina offers a meaningful learning experience for pastors, at a school where you don't have to jump through a set of academic hoops. You discover a joy and excitement because the course work is immediately concerned with the pastorate. These faculty men cause us to stretch and to reach in the proper ways.

"Even one course a semester makes a difference in helping men become better pastors and better people, alive to the world. These professors are simpatico in understanding the pastor's experience, because they have been there."

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

Dale Johnson Takes M&M Area Post

R. Dale Johnson, pastor of Thousand Oaks Baptist Church since 1966 and current president of the Berkeley Alumni Association, becomes an area representative for the ABC Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board on March 1. The Johnson family will move to Southern California in June, since 40% of all M&M members in the west live there.

Following his graduation from the Divinity School in 1960, Mr. Johnson became associate minister of First Baptist Church in Denver. From 1962-66, he served the Bethel Baptist Church in Casper, Wyoming.

MELVIN PEKRUL HEADS REGIONAL BAPTISTS

Elected president of the American Baptist Churches of the West at its fall annual meeting was MELVIN PEKRUL, the first Nevadan to hold the office since that state and Northern California joined to form one region. He has been pastor of First Baptist, Las Vegas, for ten years.

On January 25 Mr. Pekrul left for Thailand, on a mission involvement tour sponsored by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society.

ALUMNI SERVE SOUTHWEST

At the San Diego meeting of the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest, six alumni of the Berkeley and Covina campuses of ABSW were elected to the board of managers:

Class of 1971: Rev. Albert H. Babcock '63 B, Los Angeles; Rev. Everett W. Curry, Jr. '67 C, San Fernando; Rev. Roger W. Price '63 C, Pasadena; and Rev. David L. Silke '53 B, Redlands.

Class of 1972: Rev. Robert C. Bradford '56 C, San Bernardino.

Class of 1973: Dr. Donald E. Reiter '60 B, Santa Ana.

BERKELEY CAMPUS

1970 The Sunday morning worship service was the occasion for the ordination of CURTIS K. McCORMACK at the First Baptist Church of Oakland. Participating with him were the pastor, Dr. BOYCE VAN OSDEL '36 and Dr. William L. Malcomson, professor at the Berkeley campus of ABSW. Mr. McCormack has chosen a bi-vocational ministry, serving half-time as minister with youth at First Baptist and First Presbyterian and half-time as a salesman in a music store.

1969 DENNIS ERICKSON is a chaplain intern at Mounds-Midway Hospital in St. Paul, Minn., participating in a year's program of clinical pastoral education . . . JACQUELINE HINSON and James Allen were united in marriage on December 19 at Lakeshore Baptist Church in Oakland.

1967 Serving as associate minister of the Community Church of Barrington, Ill., is BROOKE ROLSTON. He received the M.A. degree from the University of Chicago last year . . . Now pastor of the United Church of Christ in Milwaukie, Ore., is GARY VAUGHAN. He moved from associate at Calvary Baptist, Salem. The Vaughans have two boys, Brian, 2, and Danny, 8 mos.

1964 Congratulations to the PHILIP CADWALLADERS '64x (PHOEBE DELK '64) on the arrival of Kimberly Ann, their second adopted daughter. Mr. Cadwallader is with General Telephone in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, and Mrs. Cadwallader is teaching a class in social work at North Idaho Junior College.

1963 Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lofstrand (KATHLEEN TAYLOR '63x) on the birth of Erik Philip in August.

1961 News from GEORGE F. HOLLAND indicates he is in his ninth year of service as Protestant chaplain at the State Correctional Institution in Huntingdon, Pa. He is active in the Lions Club and is state chaplain of the American Legion. During a trip to Cincinnati for a meeting of Assemblies of God chaplains, he delivered a paper and also served on a panel with LAWRENCE BAULCH '63. Mrs. Holland serves as co-pastor of the Neffs Mills Assembly of God and is the first woman president of the Huntingdon County Ministerium.

1959 The October 1970 issue of The American Baptist carries an article on "The Sycamores," a group home living experience in Indiana for the mentally retarded. ROYCE L. JONES, a field representative for the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, headed the establishing of the program which now has two units and has been acclaimed by secular professionals in the field. Support is provided by ABHMS, Indiana Baptists and the state welfare department . . . ALLAN L. WIGHTON has moved from West Chester, Pa., to First Baptist Church, Park Ridge, Ill.

1957 ELMO NAUMAN, JR. has resigned from the pastorate of First Christian Church in Philadelphia and is now teaching philosophy at the Camden, N.J. campus of Rutgers University. His first book, A New Dictionary of Existentialism, has been published by the American Philosophical Library.

1956 JULES BALLAS is an Assembly of God chaplain in the U.S. Army with the rank of Lt. Col. At last report he was serving a second tour of duty in Vietnam . . . NATHAN TURNER has made a staff change within the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. He moves from director of the Department of Ministry with Adults to program associate in family life education and consultant in human development.

1955 RICHARD E. CLARK completed work for the M.A. degree in sociology at Western Washington State College last fall . . . RODGER HARRISON has returned from Europe where he served under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, including a period in Moscow. He is Baptist chaplain on an interfaith staff at the Irvine campus of the University of California.

1954 RUSSELL M. HENDRICKSON became pastor of First Baptist Church, Bellingham, Wash., in December. Since 1961 he had served the Community Baptist Church, Issaquah . . . ROBERT A. MACOSKEY, formerly on the faculty of Crozer Theological Seminary, has been involved since September in a sabbatical program as resident humanist with the Satellite Division of the Cabot Corporation, Kokomo, Ind.

1953 During his furlough as an American Baptist missionary in Okinawa, EDWARD E. BOLLINGER '53x is a Ph.D. candidate at the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley. His area of specialization is history and phenomenology of religions, the area chaired by Dean Paul Clasper . . . RUTH ('53) and WILLIAM ('54) CADWALLADER returned to Thailand in July, where they had served for fifteen years with the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. Bill teaches at Ruam Rudi High School, founded by the Redemptorist Fathers and serving many children of the diplomatic community of Bangkok. Ruth is information secretary for the East Asia Christian Conference. The Cadwalladers and their four children live at the Student Christian Centre operated by the Church of Christ in Thailand. . . . Last fall THOMAS YONKER joined the faculty of Linfield College as associate professor of education.

1952 Working for an M.S.W. degree at the University of Iowa Graduate School is LAWRENCE R. ODEGARD.

1950 AUGUSTIN MASA, general secretary of the Convention of Philippine Baptist Churches, is serving as a vice-president of the Baptist World Alliance.

1949 Last fall EUGENE DUNCAN moved from associate pastor at First Baptist Church, Vallejo, to the pastorate of the Community Baptist Church, Arco, Idaho.

1945 Nineteen countries on six continents are represented in the 53 persons named to five study commissions of the Baptist World Alliance. Among the members is GRANT HANSON, executive director of the Division of Educational Ministries for the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. He is serving a five-year term on the Commission of Christian Teaching.

1940 BEN JACKSON is serving as pastor of the Community Baptist Church in Yountville.

1933 After 20 years as associate pastor of First Baptist Church, Oakland, LESTER PUGH has resigned to accept the chaplaincy of Fairmont Hospital, a large county facility in Oakland. He and his wife, EVELYN MAYER PUGH, continue as members of First Baptist.

1923 Enjoying an active retirement is HENRY W. ANDERSON. In 1961, following 38 years as pastor and as Army and veterans administration chaplain, he "retired" to be 1) special representative for Berkeley Baptist Divinity School, 1961-62; 2) associate pastor, First Baptist Church, South Gate, 1963-66; 3) interim pastor, First Baptist, Claremont, 6 months of 1966; 4) teacher of adult class at South Gate, 1968-70, traveling 80 miles round trip each Sunday. In January, 1971, he became minister of visitation for First Baptist Church, Pomona.

COVINA CAMPUS

1970 ALEX MURO became pastor of Westlake Community Church in Daly City on February 1.

1969 In November, ELLIS KECK, a staff member of Second Baptist Church in Los Angeles, spoke on behalf of the NAACP at the ministers' meeting of the Pacific Southwest Region at San Diego. The Kecks recently welcomed their third daughter.

1967 GARETH PUTNAM has translated a book by Oscar Cullmann entitled Jesus and the Revolutions, published by Harper and Row. Mr. Putnam has been engaged in graduate studies in Switzerland.

1966 Studying for his doctorate at Claremont Graduate School is JEAN MASAMBA of Congo. President Mobutu, on behalf of that country's government, gave land to build a junior college in Kinshasa, where Mr. Masamba teaches. The school is supported by American Baptists and nine other church groups. It enrolls 78 students and last year 28 were baptized.

1963 JAMES HESTER, assistant professor of religion at the University of Redlands, has been given a grant by the school to participate with other scholars from more than 20 universities and colleges in a study of the letters of the apostle Paul. The University of Redlands will serve as the western regional center for this five-year national research project of the Society of Biblical Literature. Dr. Hester is corresponding secretary and a member of the steering committee . . . A letter from WILLIAM E. YAEGER tells of a fruitful ministry at the First Baptist Church, Modesto. Last year there were 176 baptisms and a fifth full-time staff member has been added. There is a Spanish congregation "within" the church with a Spanish-speaking pastor working half-time.

1962 EUGENE CROW '62 Hon., director of church and community witness for American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest, resigned to become executive minister for the Pennsylvania Baptist Convention on January 1 . . . ROBERT PAULUS, pastor of Belmont Baptist Church, Belmont, has been elected Northern California representative for the alumni of the Covina campus of ABSW. He will also be meeting with the alumni council of the Berkeley campus.

1960 On November 1 GARY MANN was installed as pastor of Hillside Baptist Church, La Mirada, with Dr. Heaton participating in the service. Mr. Mann had been at Calvary Baptist, Morro Bay . . . Moving to First Baptist Church, Dinuba, in November was DONALD E. RAISNER. During his three-year pastorate at Temple Baptist, Richmond, the congregation made improvements to the building and increased giving. He is a member of the program board of Camp Sugar Pine, owned and operated by churches of the San Joaquin Valley. The Raisners (KAY KEELE '58x College) have four children, the youngest, Daniel Christian, born a year ago.

1955 Teaching at Government College in Nigeria is MYRWOOD GUY. In addition to classes in Bible at the college, he leads worship services and Bible study at a federal training center and at the Nigerian Air Force Base. He is also responsible for radio and TV programs. Mrs. Guy assists in the areas of music and counseling.

Address Correction Requested

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. 2 FEBRUARY 1971 No. 3

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

Seminary Knolls, Covina, California 91722

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, April, October
and December.

Second class postage paid at Covina, Calif.

Graduate Theological Union
2465 LeConte Avenue
Berkeley, California 94709

Speaking Personally

DR. C. ADRIAN HEATON participated in inaugural ceremonies in Rochester, N.Y. for Dr. Arthur McKay, president of Colgate Rochester, Crozer and Bexley Hall.

DEAN ROBERT CAMPBELL was elected president of the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest, which represents 325 churches in Arizona, Baja California, Hawaii and Southern California. He is also a board member of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication and represents them on General Council.

DEAN PAUL CLASPER gave two addresses during the regional convention of Pacific Southwest Baptists in San Diego. He preached recently at Mills College chapel in Oakland and at St. Mark's Episcopal Church in Berkeley during the Week of Christian Unity.

DR. BERNARD RAMM gave a lecture series on contemporary theology during the intersemester session at Malone College in Canton, Ohio. In June Word Books will publish his book on ethics, entitled The Right, the Good and the Happy. Another book manuscript is already in the publisher's hands.

Black Preaching has been published by Lippincott. The author is DR. HENRY H. MITCHELL, Berkeley trustee and honorary alumnus of Covina. He is Martin Luther King Professor of Black Studies at Colgate Rochester.

MRS. CORA SPARROWK, a Berkeley trustee, is chairman of the search committee to nominate a successor to Dr. Edwin Tuller for the General Council's consideration.

RANDLE MIXON, who represents Berkeley students on the board of trustees, is a member of the program committee for ABC sessions in Minneapolis May 12-16.

During his winter quarter sabbatical, DR. RICHARD DOSS is doing further research on death and the funeral. This will include speaking at the national convention of the American Cemetery Association at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas in February.

Two Covina professors are currently serving interim pastorates. DR. RICHARD DOSS is at Calvary Baptist in Pasadena and DR. LELAND HINE is at Lorraine Avenue Baptist in Glendora.

DR. ELDON ERNST was elected vice-president of the American Baptist Historical Society and has written an article on the interchurch world movement for the winter, 1970, issue of the Journal of Presbyterian History. In January he represented the seminary at the inauguration of the dean at Golden Gate Theological Seminary.

"The New Look in Preaching" was the theme used by DR. WILLIAM L. MALCOMSON at the regional conference of homiletics professors held at Golden Gate Seminary. MRS. FRANK CRALLE presided at a panel discussion the following morning.

At the November session of the American Academy of Religion at San Fernando State, DR. GENEVIEVE KELLY presented a paper on "Theology and Theater in Reformation Germany," which reflects her sabbatical research.

The new American Baptist curriculum was the major subject discussed during the National Education Association held at Green Lake, Wisc. in January. DR. HAROLD FRAZEE was among the conference delegates.

APR 13 '71

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

GRADUATE THEOLOGICAL UNION 1962

Volume 2 Number 4

APRIL 1971

LOOKING TOWARD A FUTURE PASTORATE is Arthur Mize, middler student at Covina. At both campuses 85% of the graduates enter the local church ministry.

The Good-News People

by Paul Clasper

Christians can be described in many ways. I think one of the most basic descriptions is: The Good-News People. We have heard and been grasped by the good news (the Gospel). Our lives are shaped by the fact of this good news.

The American Bible Society did well to call their recent version of the New Testament, GOOD NEWS FOR MODERN MAN. This good news is no vague, sentimental hope that everything will sooner-or-later somehow be O.K. It is good news based on His story: God's caring outreach, Jesus and his salty people and the Spirit's continued creative work in the world. Christians are those whose history is being shaped decisively by His story.

This means that an affirmation of life's possibilities can be made in the face of all the obvious bad news, dead ends and illusory utopias which dominate the general news media.

This "good news" has been called by a previous generation "the old, old story." In our day we must rediscover it as new and relevant, not a drugging escape from the real world.

If Christians are good-news people then theology is meant to be an increasing understanding and articulation of this good news for modern man. Theology will take seriously both the good news and the modern man. If it is not this, no matter how critical or philosophical it is, it has lost touch with the main business.

If Christians are good-news people then the ultimate heresy is to live like gloomy owls, as if no good news were available.

If Christians are good-news people then apostasy is to have one's attitude shaped by a negative, cynical, world-weary spirit. It is to live as if bad news were normative.

Good-news people express what St. Paul called the "fruit of the Spirit": caring, joy, kindness, endurance and discipline. (Gal. 5:22,23) These people are energized by the Spirit to "hang in" when others "drop out." These are marked by the tough, homey strengths of unending hope and dogged endurance. Suffering and defeat are known but not accepted as final; new beginnings are always possible. As the Chinese proverb states, good-news people light candles rather than curse the darkness.

But good-news people are to be distinguished from the Pollyanna types. They are not glib in the face of life's enormous problems. Good-news people are more sensitive, not less sensitive, to Vietnam, social injustice, generation gaps and racial tensions.

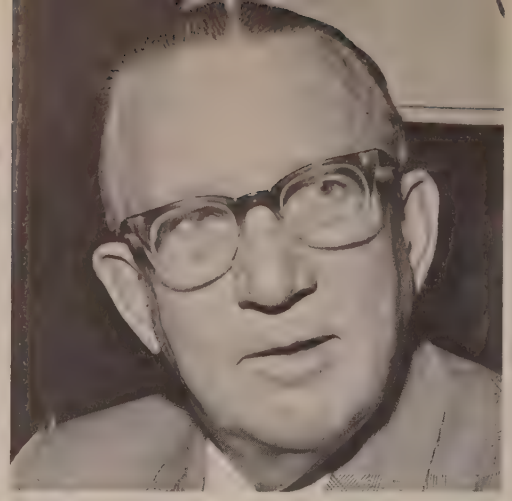
At the same time, we must be quick to note that good-news people are not the same as "religious" people. "Religion" has often had the effect of drugging people into a pleasant opium-like sluggishness, which removes them from any real care or identification with social and political problems. Good-news people are to be distinguished from both the glib and the drugged; they are marked by courage to face real struggles and stamina to keep slogging away.

Good-news people are not the products of affluence and ease. These circumstances do not often produce vision, imagination, identification with other's struggles and inner stamina. More often these circumstances produce complacency, mediocrity and boredom.

Good-news people are produced on the far side of a broken and a contrite heart; they are re-made people; they hunger for a life of reality beyond the sham and phoniness which so easily clogs us all; they are future oriented, desiring to be part of the new times which the Creative Spirit is bringing in; they are open, accepting people because they have experienced acceptance in spite of their known unworthiness.

Good-news people are not yesterday's people, stubbornly clutching at old life styles and values. Good-news people have the fresh vitality of the new man and the new age. They are energized by the Spirit that makes all things new; the Renewing Spirit. They will be like a breath of fresh air because their life comes from the Creative Spirit, whom I like to call "Our Lord, the Spirit."

Myron Chartier Called To the Covina Faculty



Myron R. Chartier, former campus minister at Fort Hays Kansas State College, will become assistant professor of speech-communication at Covina on September 1.

Dean Robert Campbell said, "By using his unusual capacities to combine professional experience and graduate study, Mr. Chartier has impressive credentials for a man as young as 33. We are confident he will add to our teaching strength."

Mr. Chartier received his B.A. from the University of Colorado in 1960, his B.D. magna cum laude from Covina in 1963, his M.A. from Fort Hays Kansas State College in 1969 and is now completing his Ph.D. dissertation at the University of Denver, where he is a graduate teaching assistant.

An ordained American Baptist minister, for four years he was an associate pastor at churches in Colorado and California.

His wife Jan graduated with distinction from Redlands; received her M.R.E. summa cum laude from Covina and expects to receive her Ph.D. degree in August from the University of Denver. She will serve as guest lecturer in Christian education at Covina. The Chartiers have two young children.

PACKARD, COLE HEAD TRUSTEES

Mr. Gordon Packard, chairman of the Berkeley board of trustees, has been elected chairman of the Seminary of the West board, beginning July 1. Dr. Edward B. Cole, pastor of First Baptist Church in Pomona, was elected chairman of the Covina board and vice-chairman of ABSW.

Mr. Packard was graduated from Rutgers University in 1927, when he joined the staff of IBM. Within five years he became a senior executive, responsible for sales, service, education and advertising throughout the United States. He then became director general of IBM in Europe.

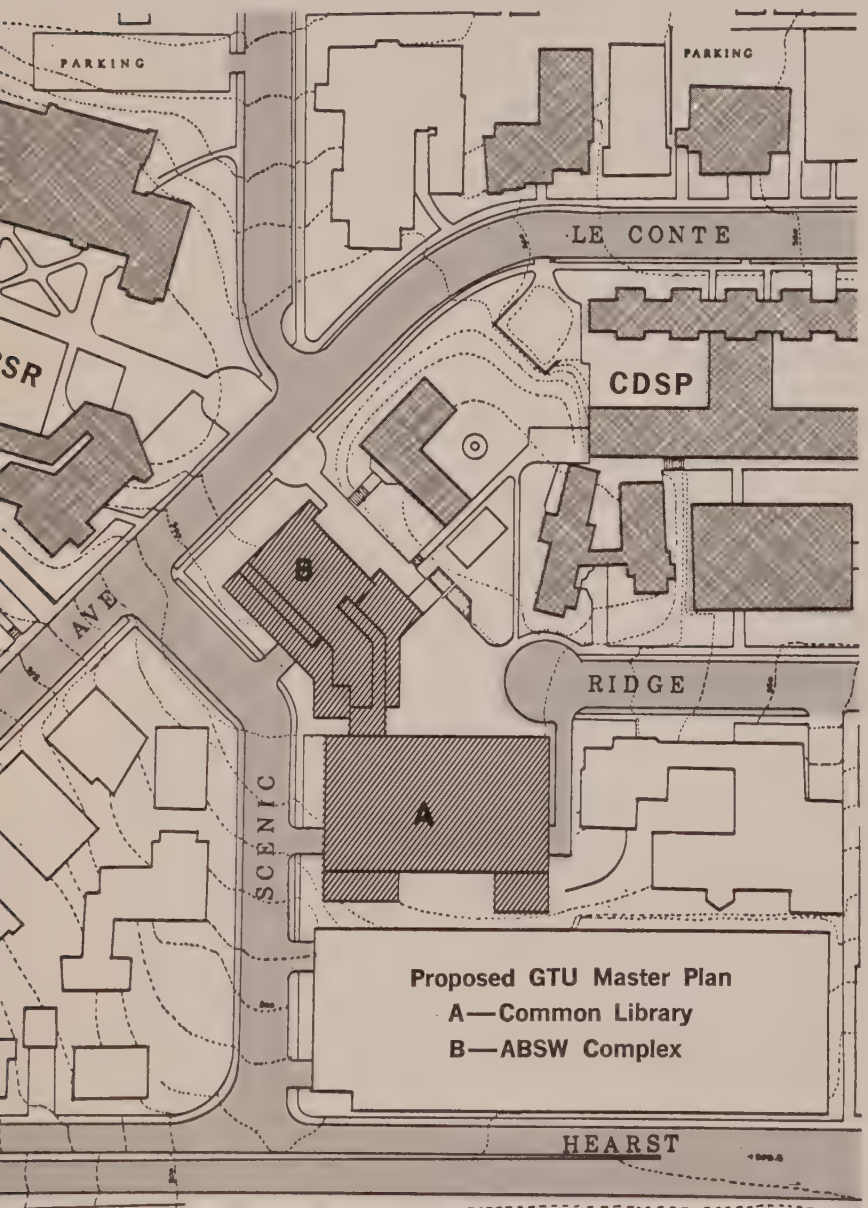
Later he developed an innovative educational program for International Harvester and for three years was executive consultant for RCA. After World War II he owned and operated one of the Southwest's largest cattle and horse ranches at Vail, Arizona.

An active Baptist all his life, Mr. Packard has been a trustee and moderator of First Baptist Church in Menlo Park since 1960.

First Baptist of Pomona, where Dr. Cole has been pastor since 1955, has a staff of 35 people, including eight full-time ministers. Its membership of 5,100 is the largest in the American Baptist Convention. The church has sponsored seven new churches and some 140 young people have entered church vocations.

Dr. Cole earned four degrees from Eastern Baptist College and Seminary in Philadelphia. When he returned to earn his doctorate in religious education in 1954, his major professor was Dr. C. Adrian Heaton. In 1959 Dr. Heaton became president of the Covina campus, succeeding Dr. Cole's brother, Donald.

During a five-year pastorate at the North Park Baptist Church in his native San Diego, "Ted" Cole developed a program of evangelism among servicemen in which 2,000 men accepted Christ.



Now serving his second nine-year period as trustee of the seminary, Dr. Cole was visiting professor of homiletics at Covina for three years. He is a member of the General Council, American Baptist Convention.

Dr. and Mrs. Cole are the parents of four teenage children. Following a world mission tour with her husband last summer, Mrs. Cole joined the secretarial staff at Covina.

Other officers of the ABSW board are the secretary, Dr. James Chuck, pastor of First Chinese Baptist Church of San Francisco, and the treasurer, Rev. James Webster, pastor of North Park in San Diego.

Examining the scale model of the plans proposed for Holy Hill are Arlo Reichter, student body president; Patrick Quinn, GTU master planner; Dr. Heaton; and Stan Smith, student head of Berkeley's maintenance crew.

BOARD APPROVES CAMPUS DEVELOPMENT PLANS

Next steps in campus development at Berkeley and in southern California were approved when the seminary trustees met in the Bay Area March 5-6.

The Berkeley board voted to proceed with land development north of the University of California campus. The present proposal by the master planners for the Graduate Theological Union calls for constructing a GTU complex at Scenic and Ridge Roads, on land located between the campuses of Pacific School of Religion and the Church Divinity School of the Pacific.

In this area, the highest section of land on "Holy Hill," would be constructed a common library serving all GTU schools; an ABSW building for administrative and faculty offices and seminar rooms; and the additional facilities needed by the Presbyterians and other GTU schools. These buildings would face a central plaza designed as a meeting place for students, faculty and administrators in all GTU schools.

President C. Adrian Heaton commented, "This plan puts the physical presence of the Baptists at the very center of the GTU schools, symbolizing the relationship already clear that Baptist faculty, administrators and students are at the heart of the entire scope of teaching and planning for the GTU."

The master plan for Holy Hill calls for minimum demolition of existing buildings; uses the land slope to maintain the scale of the present buildings; permits greater density on this site by using the open spaces that are already part of the PSR and CDSP campuses; suggests creating study spaces in existing buildings rather than planning many study carrels in the new library at five times the cost; and advocates designing new buildings with space adaptable for many functions.

Negotiations are in process for the sale or lease of the present Berkeley campus south of the university.

Escrow Agreement Accepted at Covina

The Covina board voted to enter into an escrow agreement for the sale of the 50-acre Covina campus and to seek a new campus location of 15 to 20 acres near the University of California at Irvine. It will take one year to secure new zoning and be sure of the developer's success in initiating a major commercial venture at Covina. The school has been guaranteed at least three more years of continued operation at Covina while another location is made ready.

During this year of search for a new location, there is no plan to buy property or build buildings. These steps will be undertaken after the money has been received from the campus sale and financing for the academic complex is pledged through the seminary's share of a united capital fund drive in the Pacific Southwest.

Reasons for considering Irvine as the best location for the American Baptist campus in southern California include the following: (1) Proximity to a major and growing university, with a committed churchman as chancellor; (2) This is the fastest growing area of southern California but has not yet been fully developed, so land is available at reasonable costs; (3) Recruitment will be enhanced and study improved by moving to a cooler area near the ocean; and (4) Adjacent freeways provide rapid access to Los Angeles, San Diego and other population centers and to the accredited seminaries of Fuller and Claremont.

The Future: Not Rich, But Debt-Free

The recent report from the American Association of Theological Schools on seminary education in the 1970's indicated clearly that operating costs are growing faster than financial resources. Since this trend is expected to continue, the solution appears to be a decision to operate seminary campuses on smaller land parcels, with fewer buildings and to share facilities with other institutions wherever this makes sense.

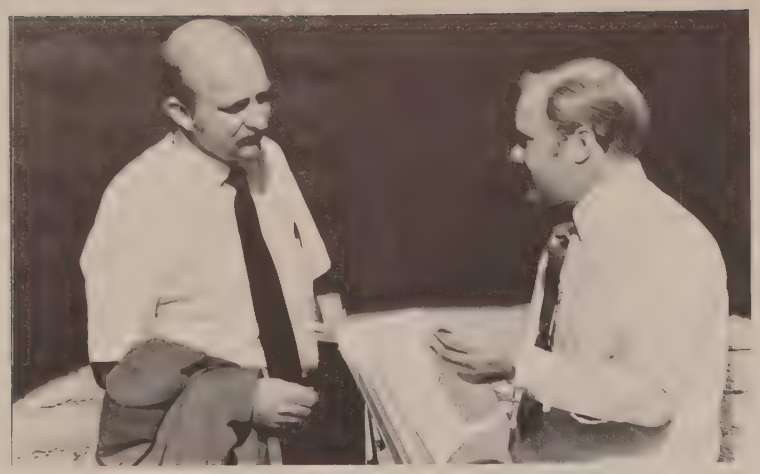
By following these principles both at Berkeley and at Irvine, Dr. Heaton told the trustees that there is genuine hope for maintaining quality education on both campuses within a balanced budget, rather than the present situation of deficit financing because of frozen assets.

Currently, the American Baptist seminaries on the East Coast have 95% of the endowment funds, while the four schools west of Chicago share the remaining 5%. Since theological students can pay only a small portion of the cost of their education, the other channels for financing the balance at ABSW are income from endowments (which will be enlarged by some of the money from land sales) and by the continued generous support of churches and individuals in both current and deferred giving.

LIBRARY RECEIVES RURAL COLLECTION

The outstanding library of books and pamphlets on the rural church movement, collected by the late Dr. Mark Rich, has been given to the library of the American Baptist Seminary of the West at Covina for its permanent collection, according to Dr. Genevieve Kelly.

Dr. Rich founded the Rural Church Center at Green Lake, Wisconsin in 1943 as a resource for rural pastors. His personal library on rural life and the rural church movement was acquired by the center and developed under his guidance to the point where it was regarded as the outstanding collection of books, pamphlets and documents on the rural church movement.



The collection totals 1000 volumes dealing with agriculture and the place of the church in rural service. Some of the strictly agricultural items will be shared with the library at California State Polytechnic College at Pomona. Since 1950 California has led the nation in agricultural production and food processing.

After graduating from Linfield College and Colgate Rochester Divinity School, Dr. Rich served the Groton Larger Parish in upstate New York from 1925 to 1935. He earned M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Cornell University in 1933 and 1937.

After fourteen years as director of town and country work for the American Baptist Home Mission Society, he became professor of rural life and the rural church at Missouri School of Religion in Columbia. From 1960 until his death in 1967, he was on the staff of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. His major responsibility was organizing continuing education and related programs for area Councils on the Ministry in New England and the Pacific Northwest.

The author of three books and numerous articles and pamphlets, he served on several commissions of the National Council of Churches and the American Baptist Convention.

One of his co-workers, Rev. Robert T. Frerichs, said, "His approach to the rural church was that of a pastor, sociologist, conservationist and educator. He was one of the great innovators for change in rural religious and social structures and an ecologist with a strong view of the wholeness of man and man's need for cooperation and growth in society."

COVINA: 1971

Photos by Helga Gilbert

Stimulating ideas have been swirling around the Covina campus, from classroom to faculty office, from the library to chapel services and coffee break discussions. Some of this excitement of learning has been caught by the camera of Helga Gilbert, a professional photographer from Los Angeles who spent a day on campus.

One of the new facets of education has been the development of the Doctor of Ministry program. Above, Dr. Robert Laurin discusses post-graduate study with Rev. Tandy Sullivan, a Covina student who was recently named as one of the area ministers for the region.

At right, two classroom scenes symbolize the importance of student initiative in the learning process and the colloquia sequences, which are basic to the new curriculum. As one student said, "A lot of seminaries 'talk' about finding ways to help students 'get it all together,' but Covina actually practices the kind of education that integrates thinking in the classroom with the doing we face in the local church."

Five professors pause in the sunshine with Dean Robert Campbell, far right. They are Dr. Cyril Garrett, Christian education; Dr. David Wallace, Biblical theology; Prof. Scott Irvine, pastoral counseling; Dr. Leland Hine, church history and field education; and Dr. Culbert Rutenber, philosophy of religion.

Worship experiences are at the heart of seminary education. Here the "upstairs secretaries" lead a chapel service on the meaning of loneliness. It concluded with singing these words to a contemporary tune: "Life can be so meaningful when you finally see that only in His love will you really be free . . . Touch someone near you in love, if you can; Give all you have and be part of God's plan."

Helping people become part of God's plan. Isn't that what a seminary is for?

JOHNSON FUND PROVIDES SCHOLARSHIPS

To honor the magnificent Christian ministry of the late Dr. C. Oscar Johnson and his wife Rose, friends have given a special fund now totaling $23,789. Although the original purpose was to endow a professorship, Mrs. Rose Johnson recently made a formal request to the trustees that the annual earnings from this endowment fund be given to worthy seminarians.

For 27 years Dr. C. Oscar Johnson was pastor of Third Baptist Church in St. Louis. Johnson Hall at the church contains oil paintings of Dr. and Mrs. Johnson, which are reproduced above.

Dr. Johnson was also president of the American Baptist Convention and of the Baptist World Alliance. His son Ralph was president of the divinity school at Berkeley from 1957 to 1963. After Dr. Johnson's retirement from Third Church he taught at Berkeley.

Additional contributions to the Johnson Fund are welcomed and may be sent to the Berkeley campus.

Workshops Deal With Great Themes

In January and February four one-day workshops directed by Dr. William Malcomson were held in Northern California to provide continuing education opportunities for 100 pastors and laymen and to serve as a bridge between the Berkeley campus and the churches.

An unusual format enabled the participants to deal in some depth with major themes of Biblical and church concerns. The workshops were also an occasion for seminarians to test out their leadership skills.

"Jesus: Man for Today" was the theme of the largest workshop, held at Chico for 45 laymen and pastors from seven churches in the Redding-Chico area. The leadership team included Dean Paul Clasper and two senior students, Paul Christie and Gene Modell. The host pastor wrote, "This was one of the best things that has happened to this church."

Nine pastors met in Coalinga to discuss "Valid images of ministry for our time." Arlo Reichter and Tim Norris were the seminarians.

"Renewing the Church" was discussed by fifteen pastors from the Sacramento area. Leaders were Dr. Lyn Walker, Steve Ott and Bill Clarke.

An ecumenical group of pastors from Atwater discussed "Biblical guidelines for church renewal." The seminary team included Professor David Bartlett, Alan O'Regan and Dennis Stull.

Another workshop participant was Rev. Robert Frerichs, ABC consultant for continuing education.

Black Odyssey Week In Berkeley

The Center for Urban-Black Studies in Berkeley has announced plans for the Black Odyssey Festival Week to be held May 17 through May 23. The theme is "Blackness in All of its Creation and Pro-Creation."

Highlight of the week will be the Martin Luther King, Jr. Lecture Series. These evening lectures will be given May 19 and 20 by Bishop Joseph Johnson of the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church in Louisiana. He is the author of the recent book, "Soul of the Black Preacher." A service of requiem will be held on Tuesday evening, May 18.

Other participants in the week's program include Cornish Rogers of Chicago, associate editor of Christian Century; Dr. Marcus Foster, superintendent of the Oakland public schools; Mrs. Raye Richardson, professor of black culture at the Golden Gate campus of San Francisco State College; and Charles Koen, director of the Black United Front in Cairo, Illinois.

A new feature of the 1971 program will be a competition for black seminarians. The paper selected in first place will be read at the conference and its author will receive a scholarship.

Rev. W. Hazaiah Williams is director of the Center for Urban-Black Studies of the Graduate Theological Union. Details can be secured from the Center office at 2465 Le Conte Avenue in Berkeley.

Seminary Receives 29 Wills, Annuities

In the past fourteen months the seminary has received bequests and annuities from 29 persons, for a total of $601,572, including estates now in probate. These gifts range in size from one bequest of $162,500, where the principal is to be received over a ten year period, to a bequest of $450. Names of these persons are placed in a memorial book of honored friends which is kept in the president's office.

One woman in Redlands stipulated that Berkeley and Covina were to receive equal percentages of her estate. Each campus now has a check for $9,337. Two trustees who died each remembered the school they served in their wills, for a total of $23,782.

Wills now in probate include two from long-time friends of Covina, with bequests totaling $192,000. From a 90-year-old blind woman in a nursing home, Berkeley received an estate check for $13,158, plus stock certificates valued at approximately $7,000.

When they entered a retirement home, a couple in Pomona gave their $48,000 home to Covina as an annuity. Each gift annuity written by the seminary pays a guaranteed annual income to the donor.

These bequests and annuities are nearly triple the amount received a year ago. Dr. Carrol O. Morong, vice president for estate planning for the Seminary of the West explained, "Since the tight money market reduced our income from individual gifts by about 25% in the last half of 1970, we have been unusually grateful for these deferred gifts."

President Heaton, Dr. Morong, Dr. Lawrence Allen and Rev. Winston Neal will provide detailed information about deferred gifts for any individual or his attorney.

IN MEMORIAM

DR. JOHN PREVOL, professor of practical theology at Covina from 1947 to 1956, died on March 3. Dr. Lawrence Allen, one of his colleagues on the early faculty, represented the seminary at the memorial service.

Sincere sympathy is expressed to the family of MRS. ROBERT DOUGLASS of Alhambra, who died in February at the age of 82. She was school hostess at Berkeley from 1950 until her retirement in 1960. The divinity school has a scholarship honoring her husband, who was a pastor in Idaho and then executive secretary of the Tri-State area until his death in 1948.

COMING EVENTS

SEMINARY OF THE WEST BREAKFAST
Minneapolis Convention
Thursday, May 13, 7:15 a.m.
Cardinal Room, Curtis Hotel

The breakfast program will include up-to-date reports of professors and students from both campuses who are attending the convention. Alumni, pastors and other friends of the seminary are invited to attend.

TICKETS—$2.75 per person, including tax and tip. They are available from either campus in advance.

COVINA COMMENCEMENT
Conaway Chapel, Covina Campus
Saturday, June 5, 4:00 p.m.

The earned professional degree of Doctor of Ministry will be awarded for the first time during the 1971 commencement ceremonies.

There will also be a luncheon for alumni, graduates and friends and an outdoor buffet supper for everyone attending the commencement program.

BERKELEY COMMENCEMENT
Seminary Campus in Berkeley
Saturday, June 12, 11:00 a.m.

During an outdoor ceremony, each graduate will receive his degree individually from one of the faculty members. Following commencement, graduates, alumni and guests are invited to a buffet luncheon in Karpe Hall. Please make reservations in advance.

* * *

Guest speakers at Covina chapel services recently have included Dr. Roland Bainton, Yale's professor emeritus of church history; Professor Thomas Torrance of New College in Edinburgh; Dr. John Priest, professor of religion at Florida State University and Dr. Paul Clasper, dean of ABSW's Berkeley campus.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

Alumni Head DCE Group

Two of the three officers elected at the January conference of the Western Area Directors of Christian Education are Berkeley alumni. The new president is FRANK BYRDWELL '63 of Mt. Zion Baptist Church, Seattle. He also works in the office of the president of the University of Washington in the area of counseling minority students and those of disadvantaged backgrounds. Serving as secretary-treasurer for the directors' group, which met at the Covina campus of ABSW, is DOUGLAS-BRUCE HEUSSER '70. He has been working on the staff of the Thousand Oaks Baptist Church, Berkeley. On February 28, he was ordained as part of the morning worship service at the church.

Participating in the ordination were the pastor, R. DALE JOHNSON '60, DAVID GATTEY '66 Covina, associate at Oakland's Lakeshore Avenue Baptist Church, and Professor Harold B. Frazee of the Berkeley campus.

Alumni Dinner in Japan

The gathering of Berkeley alumni for dinner on January 17 was a highlight of the visit to Japan by Dr. and Mrs. Maurice P. Jackson during his current sabbatical.

Alumni who attended were YOSHIHISA SAWANO '54, teacher at Kanto Gakuin High School, married with two daughters; TOSHIO SASAKI '61, pastor of Kasumigaoka Baptist Church and assistant professor at Kanto Gakuin University. He recently translated the "Supplement to the Cambridge Bible Commentary of the New Testament" and has other translations in progress; FUSAE SAITO '61, executive secretary of the Metropolitan YMCA of Tokyo; TORU NUMAJIRI '69, pastor of a suburban church in Chiba.

Also HARUMI ISHII '52, Kanto Gakuin University; MICHI SHIRAYAMA Shiga '64, housewife and mother; TARO YAMATOTO '51; YOSHIO OSHIMA '54, university teacher. Mrs. SHIN CHIBA '53, was ill.

The Jacksons visited Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Reedy (JITSUKO TANAKA '56) who welcomed daughter Noel into their family on Christmas day, 1970. They also have a four-year-old son, David.

ROBERT PIPES IS HEW FELLOW

HEW Secretary Elliot L. Richardson announced the appointment of Robert E. Pipes as a HEW Fellow. Mr. Pipes earned his M.Div. at Covina in 1969.

Mr. Pipes is the liaison in Los Angeles on minority procurement, a program that has a potential of $10 million in HEW contracts for minority businessmen.

A native of Mississippi, Mr. Pipes was reared in Watts and earned his B.A. in psychology from Pepperdine University in Los Angeles in 1966.

From 1967 to 1969 Mr. Pipes was a fellow of the Rockefeller Foundation. During this time he served American Baptists in Los Angeles, first as a group worker in Pacoima and then as pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church.

From 1969 to 1970 he was assistant dean of student affairs for the University of California at San Diego, where he was responsible for counseling minority and disadvantaged students.

1925 Sincere sympathy is expressed to ROY D. KING 'B on the death of his wife, Nellie, on December 30, 1970 in Santa Paula.

1937 Following a ministry at Orange Cove, Rev. and Mrs. Samuel G. English (CORENE GAGE 'B) are now semi-retired, living in Orland.

1938 VIOLET E. RUDD 'B, executive director, and Mrs. Donald N. Thompson, president, of American Baptist Women are serving on task forces to draft policy proposals for the 1971 White House Conference on the Aging to be held in November.

1940 CELIA ALLEN '40x B was honored by the First Chinese Baptist Church of San Francisco for 31 years of leadership in its Christian education program. She began her work in 1937 when the present pastor, JAMES CHUCK '53 B, was in the primary department. From 1954-56, she served as a Christian friendliness missionary. She will continue at the church this year as a "full-time volunteer."

1942 PAUL WHITE '42x B has moved from the First Baptist Church of Milton-Freewater, OR. to First Baptist, Prosser, WA.

1943 J. LYNN LEAVENWORTH 'B has been called to be the consultant to a Consortium on the Ministry, a two-year study by American Baptists from Colorado to Michigan. He has been released half time from his post as director of theological education for the ABC's Board of Education and Publication.

1946 PRISCILLA GIPSON 'B, president's secretary at BBDS from 1953-63, is now director of U.S. programs for Laubach Literacy, Inc. Last summer she took part in an Afro-Lit conference in Kinshasa, Congo, followed by visits in East Africa and ten days of travel in South India with her brother Tracy (B '45) and his wife Marji, ABFMS missionaries in Hyderbad. During the last four days of her trip she visited twelve literacy classes in the villages of Kerala state in India.

1948 CECIL W. JOHNSON 'B was honored by First Baptist Church, Idaho Falls, ID. by being named pastor emeritus. JAMES MERLIN '45 B is pastor . . . On January 1 JOHN E. PARROTT 'B became pastor on a part-time basis of the Moraga Hills Community Baptist Church, Moraga. He continues as administrator of Piedmont Gardens, one of the American Baptist retirement homes in Oakland.

1951 Serving First Baptist Church, Lewiston, MT. is LAWRENCE C. BEAL 'B. He had been at First Baptist, Vancouver, WA. RICHARD A. UZZEL '51 B has been called as pastor of the First Baptist Church, Oroville, moving from Fowler First.

1952 ROGER GILLERSTROM 'B is vocational services coordinator with the Marin County social services department in San Rafael. He is also pastor of a small Methodist church in Napa . . . In January WILLIAM R. KASTNING 'B returned to the Colorado Baptist Convention as director of camping, a post he held until 1969 when he became pastor of Glenrock Baptist Church, WY.

1953 The WILLIAM H. ALLISONS 'B (FERN MC MASTER '48 B) have moved from Bethany Baptist Church, American Falls, ID. to First Baptist, Yreka . . . A letter from the GORDON BOTTEMILLERS 'B in Kinshasa, Congo tells of a busy year, including a period when they were the only missionary family at the Kikongo station (two others on furlough). The new Bible Institute graduated its first class and several buildings are under construction through funds from the World Mission campaign. Daughter Sandi is attending Arizona State University with the other three children still in Congo with their parents.

1954 Teaching in the department of religion at Linfield College during the spring semester is GERALD GANO 'B. He and his family are on furlough from Japan where they are American Baptist missionaries . . . KEITH KORSTJENS 'C is founder of the Pomona chapter of The Fish, a volunteer program for emergency aid in the name of Christ and the church to persons in need. In the Pomona area the work involves 200 volunteers from Protestant and Catholic churches. On the staff of First Baptist, Mr. Korstjens has developed an extensive family life program over the past four years. He is also active in community action groups such as the police and ministers committee, United Parents of Pomona, fair housing and equal employment.

1955 ELLIOTT N. PAULSEN 'C, pastor of Fairway Park Baptist Church, Hayward, reports that they have established Christian junior and senior high schools which are housed in the church facilities. There are 100 students in a college preparatory program with a faculty of 10.

1956 "Japan — Flight into Yesterday: Encounter with Tomorrow" is a feature article by RAYMOND P. JENNINGS 'B in the February 1971 issue of The American Baptist. Pastor of Berkeley's First Baptist Church, he served as a missionary in Japan from 1950 to 1959. He made his first return visit last year and gives his impressions in this article.

1957 DAVID C. P. KWOK 'B and his family moved from Singapore to West Hill, Ontario, Canada in December.

1958 ROBERT E. SHAW 'B, senior minister of Prairie Baptist Church, Prairie Village, KS., was appointed visiting pastor for the second semester of 1970-71 at Central Baptist Theological Seminary. He is teaching a course in church leadership, focusing on the pulpit ministry and church administration . . . RICHARD E. TAYLOR 'C is pastor of two churches which have combined some aspects of their work and are now known as the New Community of Faith. Blue Hills Baptist Church and the United Church of the West Valley, both in San Jose, retain their denominational ties, separate boards and organizations but have the same pastor and worship together. Already pastor of the Baptist congregation, Dr. Taylor was called as pastor also by the UCC group when their pastor resigned to accept another church . . . Last year STEVEN WONG 'C earned an M.A. in counseling at the University of Santa Clara. He is co-founder of Oriental Counseling Service, Inc.

1959 Congratulations to Chaplain JOHN DOLOGHAN 'C on his promotion to Commander in the Navy.

1960 Moving from Osage, IA. to University Baptist Church, Collinsville, IL. is WESLEY A. ANDERSON 'B . . . As a chaplain at Fort Ord, MARSHALL HOFFMAN 'C is working with families waiting the return of husbands and fathers serving in Viet Nam, Korea, Thailand, and other overseas posts.

1962 Crises counseling services through telephone and follow-up programs are described by DONALD C. BUSHFIELD 'C in a chapter he has written in Community Mental Health: The Role of Church and Temple, edited by Howard J. Clinebell, Jr., professor of pastoral counseling at the School of Theology at Claremont and published by Abingdon Press, 1970. Mr. Bushfield, chaplain for the Help Line Telephone Clinic tells of its ministry, which is sponsored by the Los Angeles Baptist City Mission Society. He was recently elected vice-president of the Los Angeles chapter of the American Association of Pastoral Counselors.

1963 Following a pastorate at Knott Avenue Baptist Church, Stanton, CA., DEAN A. PAINTER B is now pastor of West Alameda Community Baptist Church, Lakewood, CO.

1964 JOSE D. CAMACHO 'B, pastor of First Baptist Church, Caguas, Puerto Rico, and president of the National Conference for Spanish Baptist Work, will be one of the speakers for the American Baptist Convention in Minneapolis, May 12-16 . . . Congratulations to the DAVID OLSONS 'B on the birth of Steven Leroy Thomas on February 8. He joins four brothers and a sister.

1965 In February and March RICHARD AXMAN 'C, Wyoming pastor, engaged in a preaching mission in Central America under the American Baptist Home Mission Societies . . . WILLIAM A. HARRISON 'C is pastor of First Baptist Church, Porterville, following service as associate at Valley Baptist, Walnut Creek . . . Named JayCee Man of the Year in Pulaski, NY. was JERRY MILLER 'B, pastor of the Pulaski Baptist Church. He was recognized for outstanding service to the community at a dinner early in the year. Besides pastoral and denominational duties, he has been active in PTA, day care centers, ministerial association, youth center, county health planning board, music society and the establishment of a narcotics guidance council. He and his wife, BEATRICE '68 B, have three sons, 7, 5 and four months.

1966 Named Optimist of the Year for 1969-70 was WILLIAM CLINE 'C, pastor of Conejo Valley Baptist Church, Thousand Oaks.

1968 Working with the United Campus Christian Ministry in Ellensburg, WA. is CHARLES N. ELVEN 'B . . . In January THOMAS GINGERICH 'B joined the staff of First Baptist Church, San Carlos, where the pastor is ROBERT W. WHEATON '58 B.

1969 CHARLES BUTCHER 'C has resigned from the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Centralia, WA. to return to school . . . Preaching the opening sermon for the Progressive Baptist Convention's annual meeting this spring is ELLIS KECK 'C. He is associate minister to Dr. Thomas Kilgore at Second Baptist Church, Los Angeles . . . On March 1 DAVID A SUGARBAKER 'B began as associate pastor at Northbrae Community Church, Berkeley, where CRAIG S. JESSUP '57 B is pastor. He comes from the First Baptist Church of Montour Falls, NY.

1970 GILLETTE O. JAMES 'B, associate, is the new pastor of Beth Eden Baptist Church, Oakland. On March 1 he succeeded the long time pastor, Dr. A. C. Dones, who has retired.

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. 2 APRIL 1971 No. 4

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

Seminary Knolls, Covina, California 91722

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, April, October
and December.

Second class postage paid at Covina, Calif.

Address Correction Requested

Speaking Personally

DEAN ROBERT CAMPBELL is leading a 19-day Baptist tour to the Holy Land, Rome, Athens and Paris, which left Los Angeles on April 19. Other tour leaders include DR. A. GEORGE DOWNING, ABSW trustee and Rev. William Goddard, pastor of First Baptist Church in Pasadena. Sympathy is expressed to Dr. Campbell on the death of his mother on March 19.

This summer DR. ROBERT LAURIN will lead a Bible Lands tour. The group will leave June 28 and spend two weeks visiting Greece, Turkey, Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, Egypt and Cyprus, concluding with five days in Israel.

During the Baptist conference at Asilomar July 13-17, DEAN PAUL CLASPER will speak each evening on "Signs of Hope in Today's World." As chairman of the policy committee for the Foundation for Theological Education in Southeast Asia, he will attend board meetings in New York City early in June.

PROF. DAVID BARTLETT became the interim minister of Thousand Oaks Baptist Church in Berkeley.

DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER was the major speaker for Theology and Life Week at the University of Redlands early in March. He was the keynote speaker at the National Bible Conference in Dallas on March 15, which also featured Dr. Billy Graham. Dr. Rutenber has been named to the Commission on Religious Liberty and Human Rights of the World Council of Churches.

DR. DAVID WALLACE spoke to an area ministers conference in Idaho Falls in late February. He gave three addresses on "Theological Uses of Biblical Images."

DR. WILLIAM MALCOMSON led a retreat for Baptist ministers in the North Coastal area of Northern California in February and for ABC adults in Las Vegas in April.

DR. BERNARD RAMM spoke on "Communicating the Gospel Today and Tomorrow" during a college-community conference at Regent College in Vancouver, B.C., Feb. 18-20. He also led an eight-week series this spring during the School for Christian Living at Bel Air Presbyterian Church.

DR. LYNWOOD WALKER led the first School of Religion held in Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, sponsored by the United Church of Canada. He said, "The church is potentially the most exciting place a man can be because of its attempts to make sense out of peoples' diversity of experiences."

DR. L. DOWARD McBAIN, pastor of First Baptist Church in Phoenix and chairman of the ABSW board of trustees, has been named chairman of the ABC's committee for planning the ecumenical evangelistic emphasis, "Key 73." This is a follow-up of congresses on evangelism held recently in Berlin and Minneapolis.

REV. WINSTON NEAL is now Director of Development, Berkeley campus.

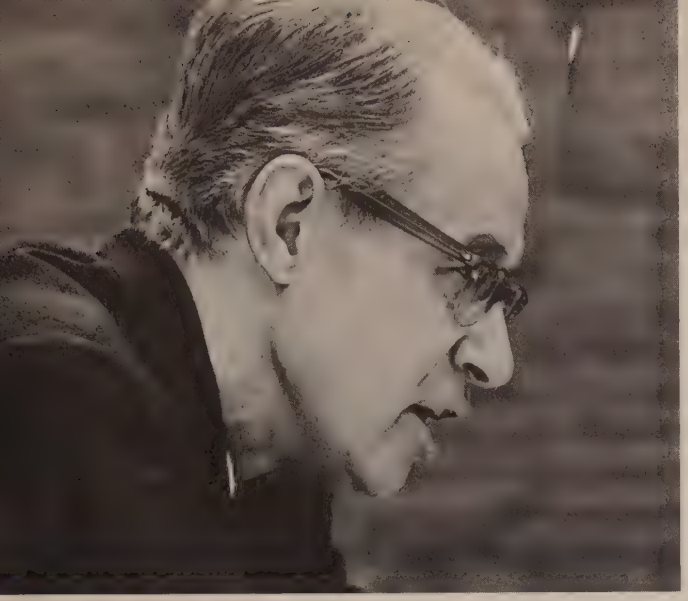
DR. HAROLD FRAZEE received a certificate of service from the City of Berkeley for his contributions as a member of the committee on child care since July 1968.

Dimensions

NOV 22 '71
GRADUATE THEOLOGICAL UNION

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY



Volume 3 NOVEMBER 1971 Number 2

The light has come!

Let there be trumpets. Let there be power.
Let all the earth kneel and be glad!

- Charles Waugaman

How to be Relevant Without Being Superficial!

By Culbert G. Rutenber
Professor of Philosophy of Religion, ABSW

These thoughts on how Christ brings relevance to our lives seem especially appropriate at Christmas.

During the ABC convention sessions last spring in Minneapolis, the newspapers reported remarks made by Martin Marty to the University of Chicago Divinity School alumni. The relevance kick, Marty was quoted as saying, is over. The idea originally was to leave the irrelevant church and go out to the world where true germaneness could be found. Only it turned out that the world wasn't too relevant either.

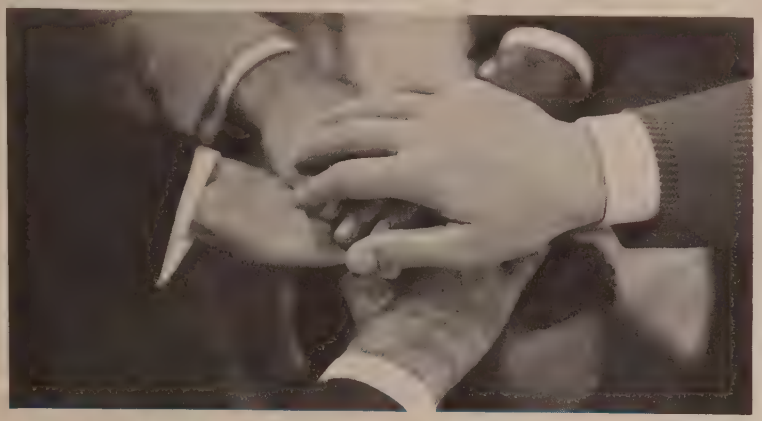
(Who would lift law as the model of relevance when our Chief Justice suggests that the whole judicial system is in danger of collapse; or government, when John Gardner—may his name be blessed—has to start a new organization of citizens to reform it? — C.G.R.)

So the mood now, suggested Marty, is to study yourself to see how and where you can make a contribution. As Michael Novak says, "Nothing is so irrelevant as yesterday's relevance." The idea of one of yesterday's seers would be equally apt: He who weds himself to the spirit of the times will be a widower tomorrow (Dean Inge).

Not that the relevance kick was all wrong. Nothing is all wrong that reminds a complacent church of the need for social involvement and a smug seminary of the necessity for curriculum revision. But a corrective is always in danger of becoming a norm and at that point it too has to be corrected.

The problem with the appeal to germaneness was its superficiality, its refusal to ask the previous questions: germane to what, in whose eyes, by what criteria, in the present or in the future? Is there anything that is permanently and intrinsically relevant—e.g., the training of the mind to think — whether at the moment it turns the student on or not?

Perspective of the Kingdom



Where the rhetoricians of relevance went awry was in their lack of the sense of the Transcendent. In his The Promise: Ethics in the Kingdom of God, Vernard Eller writes: "An action is relevant when it makes sense from the perspective that obtains."

The perspective of the Christian is the Kingdom of God and the difference that perspective makes can be studied in the life of our Lord. He never had a compulsive itch to be where the action was. He was never swept off his feet by the demands for relevance as his contemporaries conceived it. Rather his mission demanded he refuse to play their game.

He could say Yes to the world — What else does the Incarnation mean? But he could also say No to it — What else does the Cross mean? He was this-wordly with a passion that knew no limits but he was other-worldly with a commitment which was total. In his mind there was no contradiction. His other-worldliness was not an escape but an effort to find firm leverage outside the world for moving it in the right direction.

The appeal to relevance in Christian things is always to be respected, in or out of seminary, if the context is clear. The here and now will then be balanced by the there and then and the concerns of the present attacked in the light and security of God's future.

DIMENSIONS is published by the American Baptist Seminary of the West, 1300 E. Covina Hills Road, Covina, Calif. 91724. Issued in February, May, September and November. Second class postage paid at Covina, CA.
POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to above address.

13 ABSW Graduates Ordained

Thirteen alumni who received master of divinity degrees in 1971 from Berkeley or Covina have been ordained recently,

Rev. Larry R. Bowden, chaplain of Sioux Falls College, was ordained August 8 at First Baptist Church in Waterloo, Iowa, where he served as an intern in 1969-70. The senior minister there is Rev. Gary Reif, who graduated from Berkeley in 1963. A large delegation came from First Baptist Church in Monmouth, Illinois. Mr. Bowden grew up in that church, where Mr. Reif was the former pastor.

The most unusual service took place August 8 in Peoria, Illinois, when a husband and wife both were ordained to the Gospel ministry at the Immanuel United Church of Christ. Four UCC ministers in Illinois took part in ordaining Carol Dudley Dyer and Michael H. Dyer to the ministry in a joint service held in Mr. Dyer's home church. During their intern year in 1969-70 Mr. and Mrs. Dyer were group leaders at the United Christian Centers of Sacramento. They both plan to enter the parish ministry.

Rev. Arlo R. Reichter, president of the Berkeley student body in 1970-71, was ordained in his home church in Renwick, Iowa, on May 16. Rev. David L. Bartlett, assistant professor of New Testament at Berkeley, preached the ordination sermon and Dr. John Townsend, senior minister of First Baptist Church of Los Angeles, led the ordination prayer. On October 1 Mr. Reichter became associate minister of First Baptist in Los Angeles, with primary responsibilities for youth and young adult work.

Rev. Faatui Laolagi of American Samoa was ordained during the morning service on June 27 at First Congregational Church in Berkeley. Formerly an assistant high school principal in Samoa, Mr. Laolagi and his family have returned to serve in American Samoa. He is an associate pastor at a village church and Mrs. Laolagi is an assistant principal at a government high school.

Rev. Scott C. Thomson, who became pastor of First Baptist Church of Hutsonville, Illinois, in September, was ordained during a communion service on August 22 in San Jose. The service was held at the New Community of Faith Church (ABC), where Dr. Richard Taylor, a Covina alumnus of 1958, is pastor. Mr. Thomson directed group counseling there during his senior year.

An ordination service for David L. Anderson has been set for Sunday evening, November 7, at the First Baptist Church of Arbuckle, where he serves as pastor.

Ordinations for Six Covina Grads

Rev. Ronald A. Bertsch and Rev. Clark T. Lashmett were ordained in June at First Baptist Church of Claremont where they both had worked as seminarians. Mr. Bertsch is minister of Trinity Baptist Church in Long Beach and Mr. Lashmett is associate pastor of First Baptist Church in Stockton. Dr. Robert Laurin of the Covina faculty preached the ordination sermon.

Rev. Robert Pankratz, son of Rev. and Mrs. Otto Pankratz of Merced, was ordained at First Baptist of Bellflower on June 20 with his father participating in the service. Formerly minister of youth at Bellflower, Mr. Pankratz is now associate pastor at First Baptist in Stockton, with responsibilities for youth and music.

Rev. Roger C. Jump and Rev. James Rhoads were ordained in a joint service held October 24 at First Baptist Church of West Covina, where they had both been active members during seminary. Mr. Rhoads is on the staff of Shalom House, a short-term residence center for troubled youth, located on the edge of the Covina campus. Mr. Jump has been called as minister of Christian education at First Baptist, San Bruno.

Fred A. Ansell was approved by the region's ordination council and is presently continuing work for the doctor of ministry degree.

"We Gather Together to Ask the Lord's Blessing"

By C. Adrian Heaton

For the last four years the activities of the Berkeley and the Covina campuses of the American Baptist Seminary of the West have been more gathered together than ever before. We are together to seek "the Lord's blessing." This old Thanksgiving hymn has special meaning for us.

Here are some of the blessings we are experiencing. First, we are substituting cooperation for what some people saw as unhealthy competition in years past. Second, we are reducing overhead costs by combining administrative, financial and public relations offices. Third, we are telling our story in a unified way to prospective students and to our supporting constituency.

Fourth, we are sharing between the campuses some faculty resources, cash flow liquidity and long-range planning. Fifth, student bodies of both campuses are growing, while each is able to develop its own style of theological education. Sixth, we are receiving church support through the Basic Mission Budget of American Baptist Churches (Part I) from all western states.

While the seminary is grateful to receive a regular percentage of the basic missionary giving of the church, we urge all churches and their congregations to increase their support of the total American Baptist mission (Part I). Only in this way will the participation of the seminary in Part I of the budget not be a drain on other essential mission goals. All mission projects need larger gifts. (Churches that want to designate certain amounts to Berkeley or Covina may do so. These designations will be respected.)

It is very helpful for your church to include a generous portion in your Part I giving for the Seminary of the West. This year we graduated 50 ministers and missionaries. Your seminary is the primary source for your future spiritual leaders. "Remember: sparse sowing, sparse reaping; sow bountifully, and you will reap bountifully." (II Cor. 9:6, New English Bible)

The Crunch Has Come

As many of those close to the seminary already know, both the Berkeley and Covina boards voted in March, 1969, to sell or lease their present campus locations and to continue distinctive educational programs on smaller land parcels and with fewer buildings. Because the real estate negotiations to bring efficiencies are so complex, it has already taken thirty months and the contracts are not yet complete. We need just a little more time. Unfortunately, we cannot pay salaries, student aid and other bills with hope and enthusiasm, but only with cash!

If there ever was a time when gifts were highly valued from churches, individuals, alumni and foundations, NOW IS THE TIME! As Christmas and year-end giving is planned, we pray that more funds than ever before will be directed toward Christ's work in the seminary.

Often it is our alumni, faculty, staff and students who have led the way in giving, through one-time gifts or through regular monthly giving. Alumni boards at both campuses voted to direct alumni gifts to support the intensified field education programs. Recently the teen-age son of one of our professors brought in a check for $70. He explained that it was a portion of money he had earned and he thought the seminary needed it. He was as right as could be!

The seminary lives by faith in God and in His people. Dr. Roger Fredrikson recently quoted this illustration from Paul Tournier. A trapeze artist swings back and forth on one parallel bar, waiting for the precise moment to leap across the empty space to the vacant bar meeting him. This is an apt symbol of the risk of faith.

The seminary, too, is taking the risk of faith. We believe God has called us into existence and that somehow through His people He will care for our present and future needs.

"We gather together to ask the Lord's blessing." Christian generosity is linked directly to man's grateful response for God's amazing grace, personified in the coming of Christ. Will YOUR RESPONSE be one worthy of the seminary's needs and of the many riches God has given to you?

The ABSW Field Staff

The seminary field staff includes Dr. Lawrence W. Allen (left), assistant to the president; Dr. Carrol O. Morong (top right), vice-president for estate planning; and Rev. Winston E. Neal, director of development, Berkeley campus. President C. Adrian Heaton and Victor N. Osterman, Jr., business manager, also lend assistance, along with some trustees. Foundation proposals are prepared by Miss Joan Thatcher.

Gift Annuity Rates Increased

Following the recommended action of the Conference on Gift Annuities, the seminary has increased its gift annuity rates.

A gift annuity guarantees a fixed rate of income to the donor for life. The income is determined by the size of the gift and age of the donor. There are also joint-survivor annuities.

Another advantage of gift annuities is that a portion of the initial investment is considered a charitable gift for tax purposes and a portion of the income is excludable from income tax. Samples of the new annuity rates follow:

Single		Joint and Survivor (2 lives)
Age Now	Rate	Ages	Rate
55	4.9%	65 and 61	4.8%
60	5.2	68 and 66	5.1%
65	5.6	72 and 70	5.5%
70	6.2	80 and 76	6.3%
75	7.0
80	8.2
86 & over	10%

For a complete schedule of rates and more information, write Dr. Carrol O. Morong at either Berkeley or Covina.

President's Dinners Set December 3-4

The president's invitational dinners are the year's most festive occasions sponsored by the seminary. In 1971 they will be held in the Gold Room of the Los Angeles Biltmore on Friday, December 3 and in the Gold Ballroom of the Sheraton-Palace in San Francisco on Saturday, December 4.

Trustees, faculty, alumni, student officers and special friends of the school will be invited to attend. Tickets will be $6.50 per person.

Seminary students will be featured on each program. Recognition will be given to the fact that Dr. C. Adrian Heaton has completed twelve years as president at Covina and four years as president at Berkeley.

Doubling Your Money!

Some sage once remarked: "Whoever says 'Two can live as cheaply as one' hasn't tried it lately." But two can give as easily as one and the Seminary of the West can be the beneficiary.

Approximately 500 large companies across the United States have a policy of matching gifts made by their employees to educational institutions. In nearly all cases this includes your gifts to the seminary, whether or not you are an alumnus.

As you prepare to send your check to the seminary, find out the procedure from the personnel director or corporate giving officer of your company. Soon your dollars will be doubled.

Among Participating Firms

Abbott Laboratories
Aerojet-General Corporation
Aetna Life & Casualty
Allied Chemical Corporation
Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co.
Aluminum Co. of America
American Airlines
American Can Co.
American Express Co.
Armstrong Cork Co.
Atlantic Richfield Co.
Bank of America
Bank of California
Borg-Warner Corp.
Bristol-Myers Co.
Burlington Industries, Inc.
Cabot Corp.
Campbell Soup Co.
Chrysler Corp.
Cities Service Company
Colgate-Palmolive Co.
Container Corp. of America
Continental Can Co.
Corning Glass Works
A. B. Dick Co.
Eaton Yale & Towne, Inc.
Ex-Cell-O Corp.
Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.
Ford Motor Co.
General Electric Co.
General Foods Corp.
General Mills, Inc.
General Tele. & Electronics Corp.
General Tire & Rubber Co.
Gillette Co.
B. F. Goodrich Co.
Gulf Oil Corp.
Hershey Foods Corp.
Hewlett-Packard Co.
Honeywell, Inc.
Hughes Aircraft Co.
Humble Oil & Refining Co.
International Bus. Machine Corp.
International Tel. & Tel. Corp.
Johnson & Johnson
Kaiser Steel Corp.
Kimberly-Clark Corp.
The Koppers Foundation
Maytag Co.
McGraw-Hill, Inc.
Merck & Co., Inc.
Metropolitan Life Ins. Co.
Motorola Inc.
Munsingwear, Inc.
National Cash Register Co.
Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co.
Northwestern Nat'l Life Ins. Co.
Olin Corp.
Pillsbury Co.
Polaroid Corp.
Prudential Ins. Co. of America
The Quaker Oats Co.
Rockwell Manufacturing Co.
SCM Corporation
Scott Paper Co.
Security Van Lines, Inc.
Sherwin-Williams Co.
Singer Co.
Stauffer Chemical Co.
J. P. Stevens & Co., Inc.
Sylvania Electric Products, Inc.
Texaco, Inc.
Time, Inc.
Trans-World Airlines
Travelers Insurance Companies
Turner Construction Co.
Union Oil Co. of California
United Aircraft Corp.
Upjohn Co.
Westinghouse Electric Corp.
Weyerhaeuser Co.
Whirlpool Corp.
Xerox Corporation
And 400 others!

The Covina retreat concluded with a contemporary communion service, when participants served the elements to each other.

Small groups gave time for interaction and discussing who we are, why we are here and how we see our sense of ministry.

Diverse in One Spirit

The spirit of truth unites us. Berkeley and Covina each has its own campus, its own faculty and its own distinctive style of education. Yet, searching and pilgrimage are styles of life on both campuses, clearly felt by professors and students alike.

This fall, following registration by about 200 students at the two campuses, students, faculty and staff gathered for fall retreats.

Covina Retreat Stresses Community

"Rich enough to be generous" (II Cor. 9:11, NEB) was the Covina theme, under the chairmanship of student body president Paul Strid. Seven returning students spoke about what their seminary experiences had meant to them and the new students were introduced. Small groups gave time for interaction.

As one participant put it, "Here the whole community really cares." Another used these words: "We need to love each other and be open to each other — to recognize ourselves as brothers and sisters. After all, how are we going to work for Christian community in the churches we will serve unless we experience such community here?"

The depth of community was symbolized in the observance of the Lord's Supper. Following an interpretation by Dr. Bernard Ramm of how the dynamic church defines its faith, six people at a time served communion to each other across the Lord's table.

Students Lead Berkeley Retreat

At Berkeley, students planned the program and even prepared the excellent meals served during the weekend. One highlight was the stimulating presentation by Dr. Eldon Ernst on the religious scene in America today. Five students shared something of the pilgrimage that led them to come to seminary in Berkeley.

During the closing worship, Professor Harold Frazee read his paraphrase of Ecclesiastes, chapter 3:

"There's a time to leave home and a time to build a new one; a time to break old ties and a time to form new relationships; a time to play and a time to study; a time for simulation and a time for reality; a time to read and a time to write; a time to listen and a time to speak; a time to be in dialogue and a time to be alone; a time for confrontation and a time for reflection; a time to seek and a time to commit one's self; a time for changing and a time for resisting change; a time for pessimism and a time for hope; a time to gather and a time to disperse; a time to worship and a time to serve."

Planners for the Berkeley retreat included Dean Paul Clasper, student officers Dennis Stull and Tim Norris, Dr. William Malcomson and Mrs. Graham Thornton, not shown.

Professor Richard Doss's conversation with senior David Carlson was typical of the meaningful, unstructured time to become better acquainted.

Students, faculty and their wives enjoyed a picnic and afternoon of volleyball, frisbee and just getting acquainted.

The activists enjoyed a rapid-fire volleyball game.

Dimensions of Tragedy and Comedy In the Search for Self

By J. Lynwood Walker, Berkeley

Dr. Lynwood Walker, assistant professor of religion and personality at our Berkeley campus and assistant dean of the Graduate Theological Union, recently read the following paper at our Covina campus. It afforded an excellent background for discussing the way the Apostle Paul in Romans 7 faced the tragic-comic tension in his own life.

Through the integration of tragedy and comedy, one can clean his mirror enough to see himself clearly and know aagin the hope that sustains life and perhaps also the hope of another life, for he will know that life and death are bigger than himself.

Between the polar extremes of birth and death, man plays out the drama of the wandering spirit through the dimensions of tragedy and comedy.

In the drama of the self, our choices of style are limited to the emphasis of the tragic or comic perspectives, or to a fusion of the two.

Some choose to emphasize tragedy to the relative exclusion of comedy. If the tragic perspective is carried far enough, one ultimately reaches the point at which his responses to life are defined by psychosis, suicide and murder, for he comes to feel that life is utterly hopeless and meaningless, with little or no chance for change and renewal, or to feel that improvement in his condition depends on his ability to make others suffer.

Others choose to emphasize comedy to the relative exclusion of tragedy. If the comic perspective is carried far enough, one ultimately reaches the point at which his responses to life are circumscribed by fatalism, passivity and vanity, for he comes to feel that since life ends with a whimper rather than a bang, all the noisy action in which man engages to make life meaningful and worthwhile is silly and futile.

Overemphasis of either tragedy or comedy leads ultimately to a sense of hopelessness and despair. Only the apparent responses to that hopelessness and despair distinguish the tragic from the comic figure.

The tragic figure tends to respond to his condition with an explosive self- or other-destructive act; the comic figure tends to respond to his condition with a feigned courage, expressed through a happy-go-lucky faith that things will work out somehow.

Still others choose to see both tragedy and comedy as necessary, though perhaps insufficient, ingredients for the creative, wholesome self. Life, when viewed as the tragicomic drama of each self in its strivings for completion and wholeness, comes to be appreciated as an enterprise to be taken seriously, though not so seriously that one is overwhelmed by the pathos and sorrow, the absurdity and folly.

In literature, the purpose of tragedy is to appeal to serious thoughts and emotions, concerning especially the profound sufferings of man. The focus is generally on some tumultuous passion or weakness of the leading character that leads him to a catastrophic end. Usually, in the denouement of the tragedy, the hero, who is often admirable in many ways, achieves insight into the meanings of his conflicts and the tragic act signifies an achievement for the hero of some sense of unification of an inner self.

In contrast, comedy highlights man's follies and absurdities and usually comes to a happy ending. For a fairly long period in America most movies ended on a happy note, with the implication that the heroes "lived happily ever after." One can downgrade comedy only if he remains unaware that comedy usually contains satirical, chiding and mocking aspects which challenge us to fresh perspectives and new action.

Though the ostensible purpose of comedy is to excite mirth, its deeper purpose is to excite, ultimately, the alertness of wit, serious reflection and deep involvement which tragedy demands. Consequently, we are inaccurate when we oppose the ostensible light-heartedness of comedy to the deeper emotions of tragedy.

The Difference in Tragedy and Comedy

The difference between tragedy and comedy in the search for self is the difference between taking oneself too seriously and being able to acknowledge one's ridiculously human limitations which, when seen clearly, can be fairly easily transcended. In short, the difference between tragedy and comedy is the difference between man's age-old heritage of alienating pride and his ever-present potentiality for reconciling humility.

Clearly, the tragic perspective is the prime source of the martyr-complex and, consequently, of the waiting game that leads one to expect that some magically apocalyptic or eschatological occurrence will deliver one from all his pains and ills. It is also the perspective that challenges us to take life seriously and to do battle with the forces of death which plague us.

The comic perspective is the prime source of that self-destructive flippancy that allows us to be foolhardy and noncommital about life's deeper meaning. Yet, it is also the perspective which enables us to achieve the liberating awareness that we are free to determine how we will respond to our conditions and to participate in the continuing creation and re-creation of the world God has given to us.

I contend that the truth is somewhere in the middle. Life is a tragicomic pilgrimage from cradle to grave in which each man strives to discover and re-discover a sense of self through which he creates his own meaning and through which meaning is perceived and revealed in interpersonal and divine-human communion.

The song "Who Am I?" is illustrative of the necessary unification of tragedy and comedy if the self is to be made whole. In her interpretation Nina Simone entertains questions about freedom and determinism, life and death, death and resurrection, separatedness and relatedness. Yet these lyrics also represent the striving of a mystified self to overcome alienation, to recover a sense of healing perspective which allows one to acknowledge that all truths, all love, all life must be questioned if the self is to be renewed and is to grow. To learn how to join the power of compassion and understanding with the soothing gentleness of sensitivity and perspective is the ever-present challenge to each curer of souls, be he minister or musician, medical man or witch doctor, loved one or stranger.

Identity Yields Understanding

When I can identify with another's suffering fully enough to understand the depths and dynamics of his struggle, I am able to reflect to him the totality of his experience in all of its seriousness and ludicrousness.

I am continually astounded at how ill-prepared our culture is to accept either deep laughter or deep weeping. We tend to judge those who enjoy laughter as guilty either of flippancy or of sinful indulgence in sensuality. We also judge those who dare to weep openly as guilty of weakness, especially if they are males, or of taking matters too seriously.

In a culture in which unfinished business is the norm and in which we are encouraged to save the completing of unfinished business for the life-to-come, one who perceives possibilities of creating or discovering heaven in his own time and space must work through the comic gaiety and the tragic reflection of his unfinished business here and now. Only thus can he reclaim the life-giving energies with which he can participate in the death of the old and the exhilarating birth of the new. Life, then, is to be both suffered and enjoyed.

The self-conscious, serious search for self can be, and often is, a most effective way of avoiding the self, of providing oneself a reason-for-being when one is afraid that there is no reason and that the self, on its own terms, is not worthy of time and space. Comedy often is a means of resisting change and growth.

Combined into a wholesome tragicomic perspective, seriousness and light-heartedness can become the means by which we see, acknowledge, and accept truths about ourselves which we have previously rejected. For example, the Jews' self-conscious identity as a suffering people seems to be a source of their concept of themselves as God's chosen people.

The Black Identity Struggle

In the current struggle of blacks for identity and integrity, we also see the tension between tragedy and comedy. Authors such as James Cone assert that blacks are singularly oppressed and blessed (Black Power and Black Theology). While there is profound truth in this, there is also danger of arrogance.

James Baldwin's agonized writings, which reflect his deeply personal pilgrimage, come to mind as evidence of how the self-consciously chosen and overemphasized dimension of tragedy becomes excess baggage when added to the realities of evil and suffering which seem inherent in the human condition.

Yet, in Baldwin, there remains a balance of perspective which makes possible in him the reconciliation between the opposing forces of joy and despair.

Like the Jews, blacks have produced both cogent thinkers and sensitive comics, who fear neither serious nor lighthearted analysis of the contemporary state of man and society.

I do not fully understand the relative lack of spontaneity and gaiety in many contemporary white Christians.

The essence of the tragic-comic tension in life is oscillation between arrogant pride and unself-conscious humility; between self-centeredness and self-transcendence; between self-pity and self-concern; between determinism and freedom; between permanence and impermanence; and between vitality and death.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

1942 ERNEST M. NELSON 'B, a former Army chaplain, is now pastor of the First Baptist Church, Martinez, succeeding VANDER O. BALDWIN '57x B who had to retire because of health.

1945 C. ARLIN HEYDON, JR. 'B has accepted the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of Foothill Farms, Sacramento. He had served First Baptist, Fort Collins, CO since 1965 . . . Serving under the Conservative Baptist Foreign Mission Society in Japan is JOSEPH MEEKO 'B. He is working with Pacific Broadcasting Association, Tokyo, in providing tapes for radio and TV stations. He formerly spent 11 years as a missionary in rural areas of northern Japan . . . On March 1 WARREN SHERK 'B became the first full-time Protestant chaplain at Arizona State Prison.

1946 MELVIN A. PEKRUL 'B, pastor of First Baptist in Las Vegas, presided at the second regional meeting of the American Baptist Churches of the West, held in Reno Oct. 22-24. A major program feature was the installation of ROBERT RASMUSSEN 'B 60, as the region's new executive minister.

1947 MARSHALL LUCKEY '47x B is pastor of First Baptist Church, Benicia, following a ministry at First Baptist, Albany.

1948 Sincere Christian sympathy is extended to the family of KENNETH WALLACE '48 Hon. B who died July 12. He was pastor emeritus of Thousand Oaks Baptist Church, Berkeley.

1949 ROY ISHIHARA 'C of Los Angeles and GEORGE H. MOSELY ('C 1950) of Seekonk, Mass., are both serving on the program committee for the 1972 American Baptist Convention in Denver . . . NORMAN G. RIDDLE 'C (B.D. and '65 M.R.E.) has been awarded the M.A. degree by Fuller School of World Missions in Pasadena. He completed resident requirements last year while on furlough from his work in Congo under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. He is evangelism secretary for the Western Congo Baptist Convention.

1953 A new book by WILBUR REES 'B is entitled $3.00 Worth of God. He has been pastor of First Baptist, Pocatello, ID, since 1967. Recently he has been in graduate study at Idaho State College in the area of counseling. His book is available at Judson Book Stores for $2.95.

1954 NEVILLE ARROUES 'C became pastor of the First Baptist Church, Placerville, in July.

1955 WILBUR C. CHRISTIANS (Hon.'B) and Mrs. Christians returned in September from a three months leave of absence in Zermatt, Switzerland. The leave was granted by the official board of First Baptist Church of Sacramento, where Dr. Christians has been pastor for twenty years. Dr. Christians is also a long-time member of the Berkeley board of trustees . . . JOHN NASTARI 'B is serving for the second year on the program committee of the American Baptist Convention. He is pastor of First Baptist Church in Portland, Oregon.

1956 WILLIAM R. TIPTON 'C was appointed a missionary by the American Baptist Home Mission Societies to serve the First Baptist Church of Honolulu.

1957 Since April DAVID C. P. KWOK 'B has been pastor of the Chinese Conservative Baptist Church in New York City. He was registrar and lecturer at Singapore Bible College from 1962-70 when he immigrated to Toronto, Canada . . . DAYLE H. SCOTT 'B, pastor of First Baptist, Eureka, has been elected president of the Humboldt County Council of Churches.

1959 RICHARD E. ICE 'B, deputy executive secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, graduated in July from the Advanced Management Program of Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration. Established in 1943 to improve executives' ability for decision-making and long-range planning, the AMP program now has 7,120 alumni, many of whom are company presidents, government officials and chairmen of boards . . . LEE REGIER 'B, pastor and CHARLES WALKER '67 B, associate, of Trinity Baptist Church, Concord, began a radio broadcast in March geared to persons not normally associated with the church. Scheduled at 4 p.m. on Tuesdays, the program has a Christian perspective and features contemporary sounds in music, comments on issues of the day, a special interview, and a five-minute devotional.

1960 Now pastor of First Baptist Church, Jackson, WY, is EVERETT ANDREW 'B. He began in June after eight years as a high school English teacher in the Bay Area. Recently he felt called to enter the pastorate and was ordained at Lucas Valley Community Baptist Church, San Rafael . . . Congratulations to the Allen Clemensens (PATRICIA BROWN 'B) on the birth of Thomas Lester on July 28 in Tacoma, WA. They now have three boys . . . THOMAS F. HUTSON 'B recently became pastor of Community Baptist Church, Yountville. He will have a bi-vocational ministry as he is also involved in clinical-pastoral work . . . Appointed to the faculty of Central Baptist Theological Seminary in the fall was ROBERT L. REVENAUGH 'B. A Ph.D. candidate at the University of Oklahoma, he is associate professor in the field of parish ministry at Central. He also holds a license from California as a marriage, family and child guidance counselor . . . THEODORE SCHRAMM 'C has been appointed as a missionary to Austria by the Conservative Baptist Foreign Mission Society. A native of the Ukraine and raised in Germany, he has been a pastor in Arizona and also taught at Southwestern College in Phoenix.

1961 As he planned, V. REX WOODS 'B has worked himself out of a job. In 1967 he became director of the Nevada Sierra Neighborhood Action Project in Reno, relating to the Reno-Sparks Indian Colony. Although Colony Baptist Church and Christian Center were ministering to the social and spiritual welfare of the people, there was need for the Indian community to develop self-determination. Mr. Woods has worked to that end. With strong Indian leadership and better community funding, the active service of the Neighborhood Action Project will end by December 31, 1971. Currently Mr. Woods is a resident in the clinical pastoral education program at Mounds-Midway Hospital, St. Paul, Minn.

1962 JOHN DAVEY 'B, who has been in a bi-vocational ministry in Neenah, WI, is moving to a similar situation in Vermillion, SD. A chemical analyzer, he will be working for a chemical company as well as pastoring a church . . . WILLIAM DOTY 'C is serving the Poston Community Baptist Church, Parker, AZ, as a missionary under the American Baptist Home

Mission Societies . . . GEORGE A. NYE 'B became pastor of First Baptist Church, Pocatello, ID in September, following a ministry in Seattle at Columbia Baptist Church. The Nyes (SANDRA McCRORY '62x B) have increased their family to five with a 17-year-old foster daughter . . . JAMES H. STEWART 'B has returned to the Bay Area as the new pastor of McGee Avenue Baptist Church, Berkeley. He served Church of the Good Shepherd, Oakland, from 1958-67. He then went to the Pacific Northwest as the American Baptist representative in the Ecumenical Metropolitan Ministry in the Puget Sound area . . . Following service in the military chaplaincy ALFRED VAN SELOW 'C accepted the pastorate of First Baptist Church in Stockton.

1963 ROGER PRICE 'C moves from director of Christian education at First Baptist in Pasadena to minister of Christian education at First Baptist in Ottawa, Kansas.

1964 Congratulations to Rev. and Mrs. Jack Tench (JOAN DUNHAM 'B) on the arrival of Nathanial Breed on July 20 in Bellevue, WA . . . ROY W. HERNDON '64x B is pastor of First Baptist Church, Roseville, coming from Church of the Light in McKinleyville . . . DANA HAWKES 'C has moved from pastor of the First Baptist Church of Fountain Valley to interim minister of University Avenue Baptist in San Diego, while he is doing graduate work in communications at San Diego State College. He is the author of "The Jesus People: Freaks or Friends?" in the September issue of the American Baptist magazine.

1965 LARIN KERR is now serving the First Baptist Church of Dover, DE, moving from Indianapolis, IN. Earlier he had been pastor of First Mesa Baptist Church, Polacca, AZ.

1966 After three years on the staff of the Division of Social Action of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, ROGER L. STEWART 'B resigned to become administrator of community concerns in a Pennsylvania school.

1967 DARRELL WATTERS 'B is pastor of two United Methodist churches in New York, at Alexandria Bay and Redwood. For two years he was associate pastor of Tabernacle Baptist Church, Utica, NY.

1968 GERALD ADAMS 'B is a missionary under the American Baptist Home Mission Societies serving in the Pueblo Christian Center in Los Angeles.

1969 Following a year of study as student chaplain at Mounds-Midway Hospital, St. Paul, MN, DENNIS ERICKSON 'B was called as associate pastor of Grace United Church of Christ, Akron, OH . . . GLENN W. TILTON 'B is placement officer for Sacramento City College. From 1966 until August 1971 he was director of the Del Paso unit of the United Christian Centers in Sacramento.

1970 RICHARD E. BALSIGER 'C has been named pastor of First Baptist Church in Rupert, ID . . . Congratulations to GILLETTE JAMES 'B and his wife, Rosa, on the birth of Jennifer Ann on August 7. He is pastor of Beth Eden Baptist Church in Oakland . . . ELAINE HALSTEAD 'C, administrative assistant at Covina, participated in a conference on "Women in Professional Leadership" sponsored by the Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board in New York City Oct. 26-27.

1971 PAUL C. CHRISTIE 'B has been called as director of the Greater Richmond Interfaith Program, a community action effort which he helped establish as his seminary field education project . . . DONALD R. WELLS has been called as pastor of First Baptist of Anamosa, Iowa.

2 Chartiers Earn Ph.D's

There are now two doctorates in the Chartier family, the newest additions to the Covina faculty. Both Myron and Janet Chartier received doctor of philosophy degrees in speech communication from the University of Denver in August.

Dr. Myron Chartier, who became assistant professor of speech-communication in September, is a specialist in communication methodologies that relate to interpersonal, group and organization communication.

His dissertation was designed to discover the best way to utilize a simulation game to gain maximum effectiveness in learning. Simulation games have their ancestry in role playing, ordinary games such as Monopoly and in the simulators used for training pilots.

The simulation game used for the experiment was Generation Gap by S. S. Boocock and E. O. Schild. The game simulates the relationship between an adolescent child and a parent. Its purpose is to teach an understanding of the structure of power and interdependence in the family and to shape effective communication strategies for handling family conflicts.

Using four control groups, Dr. Chartier found that subjects who both played and discussed the game were most satisfied with their learning experience.

Dr. Janet Chartier is guest lecturer in Christian education. Her research on family communication processes is one of the few investigations to be done with non-clinical family groups.

Twenty-one family groups from a Roman Catholic parish in Denver served as subjects for her study. Two parents and two teenagers from each family participated in a decision-making experience which consisted of making individual and group decisions about seven fictitious family situations. The conversations of the families were tape recorded for later analysis.

One conclusion of Mrs. Chartier's research was that family members who talk the most influence the most, irrespective of whether they be parents or teenagers. Family members who talk a great deal tend to be more satisfied with family decisions than those who talk less.

Speaking Personally

Genuine Christian sympathy is expressed to the family of MRS. C. OSCAR JOHNSON, who died in San Jose in August. She was the mother of the late Dr. Ralph M. Johnson, former president of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School. Memorial contributions may be made to the C. Oscar and Rose Johnson Scholarship Fund at the Berkeley campus.

PRESIDENT C. ADRIAN HEATON appeared on four television programs in Los Angeles this fall. The first was a dialogue with DR. "TED" COLE, chairman of the Covina trustees and moderated by REV. EVERETT CURRY (C '67) on channel 13. The other three programs were part of the "Today's Religion" series.

As president of the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest, DEAN ROBERT CAMPBELL delivers the presidential address in Oxnard on Nov. 5. Re-elected to the board of managers of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication, he attended fall meetings in Valley Forge, Pa.

DEAN and MRS. PAUL CLASPER were resource leaders at a September retreat for ministers and their wives held at the Burton Baptist Assembly, across Puget Sound from Seattle. Dr. Clasper also taped a television show for the American Bible Society and will speak Thanksgiving weekend at a conference for international students at First Baptist, San Francisco.

JOHN BURKE taught on the faculty of the West Coast Church Music Conference at Mount Hermon.

MR. and MRS. FRANK CRALLE return Nov. 9 from a five-week trip to visit former students in Japan, Hong Kong and Bangkok. Part of the trip was made possible by alumni contributions presented at the retirement dinner which honored Mrs. Cralle's 26 years as professor of speech at Berkeley.

Christian education professors HAROLD B. FRAZEE and CYRIL D. GARRETT joined regional and national staff members in Seattle Oct. 4-6 for the Pacific regional planning team. They developed strategies and tactics to aid the educational ministries of local churches. Dr. Frazee also led a training conference for 55 persons from Nevada and Northern California at Lakeshore Baptist, Oakland, in June.

NORMAN K. GOTTWALD is speaking to a house church in Richmond on "The Possible Contributions of Israelite Covenant Models to Contemporary Community Building."

DR. ROBERT LAURIN is teaching an adult class at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Charter Oak, conducts a two-month continuing education class for chaplains at El Toro Marine Base and is leading Bible conferences this fall at Prairie Village, Kansas and Honolulu, Hawaii.

DR. BERNARD RAMM led a five-week discussion series at Whittwood Baptist Church in Whittier and taught a college class at First Baptist, Pomona.

During his sabbatical leave for the fall quarter, DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER wrote several encyclopedia articles and delivered four addresses at the Nebraska Convention in Scottsbluff in September.

DR. LYN WALKER addressed the laymen's conference at Pacific School of Religion and a gestalt workshop for clergy and laity in Seattle in October.

Dimensions
American Baptist Seminary of the West

Vol. 3 NOVEMBER 1971 No. 2

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY OF THE WEST
1300 E. Covina Hills Road
Covina, California 91724

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, May, September and November.

COLOR ART

Director of Publications
Graduate Theological Union Library
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, Calif. 94709

OCT 26 '71

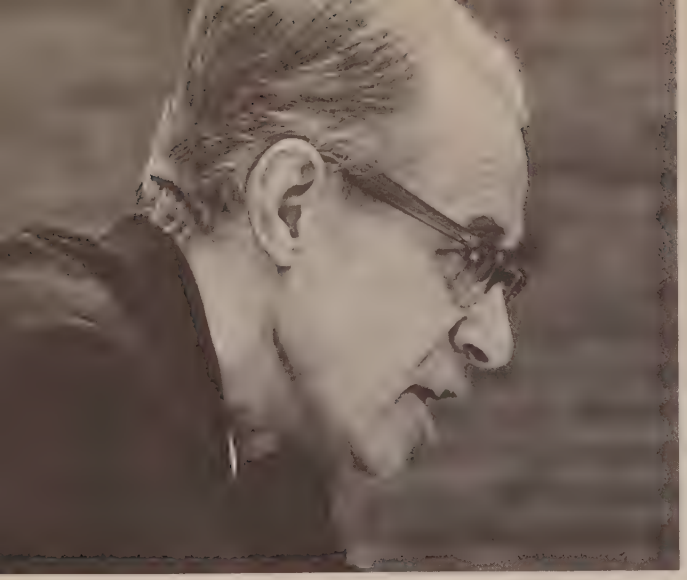
Dimensions

THEOLOGICAL UNION

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume 3 NOVEMBER 1971 Number 2



The light has come!

Let there be trumpets. Let there be power.

Let all the earth kneel and be glad!

- Charles Waugaman

How to be Relevant Without Being Superficial!

By Culbert G. Rutenber
Professor of Philosophy of Religion, ABSW

These thoughts on how Christ brings relevance to our lives seem especially appropriate at Christmas.

During the ABC convention sessions last spring in Minneapolis, the newspapers reported remarks made by Martin Marty to the University of Chicago Divinity School alumni. The relevance kick, Marty was quoted as saying, is over. The idea originally was to leave the irrelevant church and go out to the world where true germaneness could be found. Only it turned out that the world wasn't too relevant either.

(Who would lift law as the model of relevance when our Chief Justice suggests that the whole judicial system is in danger of collapse; or government, when John Gardner — may his name be blessed — has to start a new organization of citizens to reform it? — C.G.R.)

So the mood now, suggested Marty, is to study yourself to see how and where you can make a contribution. As Michael Novak says, "Nothing is so irrelevant as yesterday's relevance." The idea of one of yesterday's seers would be equally apt: He who weds himself to the spirit of the times will be a widower tomorrow (Dean Inge).

Not that the relevance kick was all wrong. Nothing is all wrong that reminds a complacent church of the need for social involvement and a smug seminary of the necessity for curriculum revision. But a corrective is always in danger of becoming a norm and at that point it too has to be corrected.

The problem with the appeal to germaneness was its superficiality, its refusal to ask the previous questions: germane to what, in whose eyes, by what criteria, in the present or in the future? Is there anything that is permanently and intrinsically relevant—e.g., the training of the mind to think — whether at the moment it turns the student on or not?

Perspective of the Kingdom

Where the rhetoricians of relevance went awry was in their lack of the sense of the Transcendent. In his The Promise: Ethics in the Kingdom of God, Vernard Eller writes: "An action is relevant when it makes sense from the perspective that obtains."

The perspective of the Christian is the Kingdom of God and the difference that perspective makes can be studied in the life of our Lord. He never had a compulsive itch to be where the action was. He was never swept off his feet by the demands for relevance as his contemporaries conceived it. Rather his mission demanded he refuse to play their game.

He could say Yes to the world — What else does the Incarnation mean? But he could also say No to it — What else does the Cross mean? He was this-wordly with a passion that knew no limits but he was other-worldly with a commitment which was total. In his mind there was no contradiction. His other-worldliness was not an escape but an effort to find firm leverage outside the world for moving it in the right direction.

The appeal to relevance in Christian things is always to be respected, in or out of seminary, if the context is clear. The here and now will then be balanced by the there and then and the concerns of the present attacked in the light and security of God's future.

DIMENSIONS is published by the American Baptist Seminary of the West, 1300 E. Covina Hills Road, Covina, Calif. 91724. Issued in February, May, September and November. Second class postage paid at Covina, CA.
POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to above address.

13 ABSW Graduates Ordained

Thirteen alumni who received master of divinity degrees in 1971 from Berkeley or Covina have been ordained recently,

Rev. Larry R. Bowden, chaplain of Sioux Falls College, was ordained August 8 at First Baptist Church in Waterloo, Iowa, where he served as an intern in 1969-70. The senior minister there is Rev. Gary Reif, who graduated from Berkeley in 1963. A large delegation came from First Baptist Church in Monmouth, Illinois. Mr. Bowden grew up in that church, where Mr. Reif was the former pastor.

The most unusual service took place August 8 in Peoria, Illinois, when a husband and wife both were ordained to the Gospel ministry at the Immanuel United Church of Christ. Four UCC ministers in Illinois took part in ordaining Carol Dudley Dyer and Michael H. Dyer to the ministry in a joint service held in Mr. Dyer's home church. During their intern year in 1969-70 Mr. and Mrs. Dyer were group leaders at the United Christian Centers of Sacramento. They both plan to enter the parish ministry.

Rev. Arlo R. Reichter, president of the Berkeley student body in 1970-71, was ordained in his home church in Renwick, Iowa, on May 16. Rev. David L. Bartlett, assistant professor of New Testament at Berkeley, preached the ordination sermon and Dr. John Townsend, senior minister of First Baptist Church of Los Angeles, led the ordination prayer. On October 1 Mr. Reichter became associate minister of First Baptist in Los Angeles, with primary responsibilities for youth and young adult work.

Rev. Faatui Laolagi of American Samoa was ordained during the morning service on June 27 at First Congregational Church in Berkeley. Formerly an assistant high school principal in Samoa, Mr. Laolagi and his family have returned to serve in American Samoa. He is an associate pastor at a village church and Mrs. Laolagi is an assistant principal at a government high school.

Rev. Scott C. Thomson, who became pastor of First Baptist Church of Hutsonville, Illinois, in September, was ordained during a communion service on August 22 in San Jose. The service was held at the New Community of Faith Church (ABC), where Dr. Richard Taylor, a Covina alumnus of 1958, is pastor. Mr. Thomson directed group counseling there during his senior year.

An ordination service for David L. Anderson has been set for Sunday evening, November 7, at the First Baptist Church of Arbuckle, where he serves as pastor.

Ordinations for Six Covina Grads

Rev. Ronald A. Bertsch and Rev. Clark T. Lashmett were ordained in June at First Baptist Church of Claremont where they both had worked as seminarians. Mr. Bertsch is minister of Trinity Baptist Church in Long Beach and Mr. Lashmett is associate pastor of First Baptist Church in Stockton. Dr. Robert Laurin of the Covina faculty preached the ordination sermon.

Rev. Robert Pankratz, son of Rev. and Mrs. Otto Pankratz of Merced, was ordained at First Baptist of Bellflower on June 20 with his father participating in the service. Formerly minister of youth at Bellflower, Mr. Pankratz is now associate pastor at First Baptist in Stockton, with responsibilities for youth and music.

Rev. Roger C. Jump and Rev. James Rhoads were ordained in a joint service held October 24 at First Baptist Church of West Covina, where they had both been active members during seminary. Mr. Rhoads is on the staff of Shalom House, a short-term residence center for troubled youth, located on the edge of the Covina campus. Mr. Jump has been called as minister of Christian education at First Baptist, San Bruno.

Fred A. Ansell was approved by the region's ordination council and is presently continuing work for the doctor of ministry degree.

"We Gather Together to Ask the Lord's Blessing"

By C. Adrian Heaton

For the last four years the activities of the Berkeley and the Covina campuses of the American Baptist Seminary of the West have been more gathered together than ever before. We are together to seek "the Lord's blessing." This old Thanksgiving hymn has special meaning for us.

Here are some of the blessings we are experiencing. First, we are substituting cooperation for what some people saw as unhealthy competition in years past. Second, we are reducing overhead costs by combining administrative, financial and public relations offices. Third, we are telling our story in a unified way to prospective students and to our supporting constituency.

Fourth, we are sharing between the campuses some faculty resources, cash flow liquidity and long-range planning. Fifth, student bodies of both campuses are growing, while each is able to develop its own style of theological education. Sixth, we are receiving church support through the Basic Mission Budget of American Baptist Churches (Part I) from all western states.

While the seminary is grateful to receive a regular percentage of the basic missionary giving of the church, we urge all churches and their congregations to increase their support of the total American Baptist mission (Part I). Only in this way will the participation of the seminary in Part I of the budget not be a drain on other essential mission goals. All mission projects need larger gifts. (Churches that want to designate certain amounts to Berkeley or Covina may do so. These designations will be respected.)

It is very helpful for your church to include a generous portion in your Part I giving for the Seminary of the West. This year we graduated 50 ministers and missionaries. Your seminary is the primary source for your future spiritual leaders. "Remember: sparse sowing, sparse reaping; sow bountifully, and you will reap bountifully." (II Cor. 9:6, New English Bible)

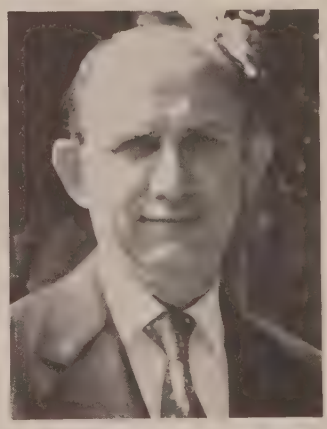
The Crunch Has Come

As many of those close to the seminary already know, both the Berkeley and Covina boards voted in March, 1969, to sell or lease their present campus locations and to continue distinctive educational programs on smaller land parcels and with fewer buildings. Because the real estate negotiations to bring efficiencies are so complex, it has already taken thirty months and the contracts are not yet complete. We need just a little more time. Unfortunately, we cannot pay salaries, student aid and other bills with hope and enthusiasm, but only with cash!

If there ever was a time when gifts were highly valued from churches, individuals, alumni and foundations, NOW IS THE TIME! As Christmas and year-end giving is planned, we pray that more funds than ever before will be directed toward Christ's work in the seminary.

Often it is our alumni, faculty, staff and students who have led the way in giving, through one-time gifts or through regular monthly giving. Alumni boards at both campuses voted to direct alumni gifts to support the intensified field education programs. Recently the teen-age son of one of our professors brought in a check for $70. He explained that it was a portion of money he had earned and he thought the seminary needed it. He was as right as could be!

The seminary lives by faith in God and in His people. Dr. Roger Fredrikson recently quoted this illustration from Paul Tournier. A trapeze artist swings back and forth on one parallel bar, waiting for the precise moment to leap across the empty space to the vacant bar meeting him. This is an apt symbol of the risk of faith.



The seminary, too, is taking the risk of faith. We believe God has called us into existence and that somehow through His people He will care for our present and future needs.

"We gather together to ask the Lord's blessing." Christian generosity is linked directly to man's grateful response for God's amazing grace, personified in the coming of Christ. Will YOUR RESPONSE be one worthy of the seminary's needs and of the many riches God has given to you?

The ABSW Field Staff

The seminary field staff includes Dr. Lawrence W. Allen (left), assistant to the president; Dr. Carrol O. Morong (top right), vice-president for estate planning; and Rev. Winston E. Neal, director of development, Berkeley campus. President C. Adrian Heaton and Victor N. Osterman, Jr., business manager, also lend assistance, along with some trustees. Foundation proposals are prepared by Miss Joan Thatcher.

Gift Annuity Rates Increased

Following the recommended action of the Conference on Gift Annuities, the seminary has increased its gift annuity rates.

A gift annuity guarantees a fixed rate of income to the donor for life. The income is determined by the size of the gift and age of the donor. There are also joint-survivor annuities.

Another advantage of gift annuities is that a portion of the initial investment is considered a charitable gift for tax purposes and a portion of the income is excludable from income tax. Samples of the new annuity rates follow:

Single		Joint and Survivor (2 lives)
Age Now	Rate	Ages	Rate
55	4.9%	65 and 61	4.8%
60	5.2
65	5.6	68 and 66	5.1%
70	6.2	72 and 70	5.5%
75	7.0
80	8.2	80 and 76	6.3%
86 & over	10%

For a complete schedule of rates and more information, write Dr. Carrol O. Morong at either Berkeley or Covina.

President's Dinners Set December 3-4

The president's invitational dinners are the year's most festive occasions sponsored by the seminary. In 1971 they will be held in the Gold Room of the Los Angeles Biltmore on Friday, December 3 and in the Gold Ballroom of the Sheraton-Palace in San Francisco on Saturday, December 4.

Trustees, faculty, alumni, student officers and special friends of the school will be invited to attend. Tickets will be $6.50 per person.

Seminary students will be featured on each program. Recognition will be given to the fact that Dr. C. Adrian Heaton has completed twelve years as president at Covina and four years as president at Berkeley.

Doubling Your Money!

Some sage once remarked: "Whoever says 'Two can live as cheaply as one' hasn't tried it lately." But two can give as easily as one and the Seminary of the West can be the beneficiary.

Approximately 500 large companies across the United States have a policy of matching gifts made by their employees to educational institutions. In nearly all cases this includes your gifts to the seminary, whether or not you are an alumnus.

As you prepare to send your check to the seminary, find out the procedure from the personnel director or corporate giving officer of your company. Soon your dollars will be doubled.

Among Participating Firms

Abbott Laboratories
Aerojet-General Corporation
Aetna Life & Casualty
Allied Chemical Corporation
Allis Chalmers Manufacturing Co.
Aluminum Co. of America
American Airlines
American Can Co.
American Express Co.
Armstrong Cork Co.
Atlantic Richfield Co.
Bank of America
Bank of California
Borg-Warner Corp.
Bristol-Myers Co.
Burlington Industries, Inc.
Cabot Corp.
Campbell Soup Co.
Chrysler Corp.
Cities Service Company
Colgate-Palmolive Co.
Container Corp. of America
Continental Can Co.
Corning Glass Works
A. B. Dick Co.
Eaton Yale & Towne, Inc.
Ex-Cell-O Corp.
Firestone Tire & Rubber Co.
Ford Motor Co.
General Electric Co.
General Foods Corp.
General Mills, Inc.
General Tele. & Electronics Corp.
General Tire & Rubber Co.
Gillette Co.
B. F. Goodrich Co.
Gulf Oil Corp.
Hershey Foods Corp.
Hewlett-Packard Co.
Honeywell, Inc.
Hughes Aircraft Co.
Humble Oil & Refining Co.
International Bus. Machine Corp.
International Tel. & Tel. Corp.
Johnson & Johnson
Kaiser Steel Corp.
Kimberly-Clark Corp.
The Koppers Foundation
Maytag Co.
McGraw-Hill, Inc.
Merck & Co., Inc.
Metropolitan Life Ins. Co.
Motorola Inc.
Munsingwear, Inc.
National Cash Register Co.
Northwestern Mutual Life Ins. Co.
Northwestern Nat'l Life Ins. Co.
Olin Corp.
Pillsbury Co.
Polaroid Corp.
Prudential Ins. Co. of America
The Quaker Oats Co.
Rockwell Manufacturing Co.
SCM Corporation
Scott Paper Co.
Security Van Lines, Inc.
Sherwin-Williams Co.
Singer Co.
Stauffer Chemical Co.
J. P. Stevens & Co., Inc.
Sylvania Electric Products, Inc.
Texaco, Inc.
Time, Inc.
Trans-World Airlines
Travelers Insurance Companies
Turner Construction Co.
Union Oil Co. of California
United Aircraft Corp.
Upjohn Co.
Westinghouse Electric Corp.
Weyerhaeuser Co.
Whirlpool Corp.
Xerox Corporation
And 400 others!

The Covina retreat concluded with a contemporary communion service, when participants served the elements to each other.

Small groups gave time for interaction and discussing who we are, why we are here and how we see our sense of ministry.

Diverse in One Spirit

The spirit of truth unites us. Berkeley and Covina each has its own campus, its own faculty and its own distinctive style of education. Yet, searching and pilgrimage are styles of life on both campuses, clearly felt by professors and students alike.

This fall, following registration by about 200 students at the two campuses, students, faculty and staff gathered for fall retreats.

Covina Retreat Stresses Community

"Rich enough to be generous" (II Cor. 9:11, NEB) was the Covina theme, under the chairmanship of student body president Paul Strid. Seven returning students spoke about what their seminary experiences had meant to them and the new students were introduced. Small groups gave time for interaction.

As one participant put it, "Here the whole community really cares." Another used these words: "We need to love each other and be open to each other — to recognize ourselves as brothers and sisters. After all, how are we going to work for Christian community in the churches we will serve unless we experience such community here?"

The depth of community was symbolized in the observance of the Lord's Supper. Following an interpretation by Dr. Bernard Ramm of how the dynamic church defines its faith, six people at a time served communion to each other across the Lord's table.

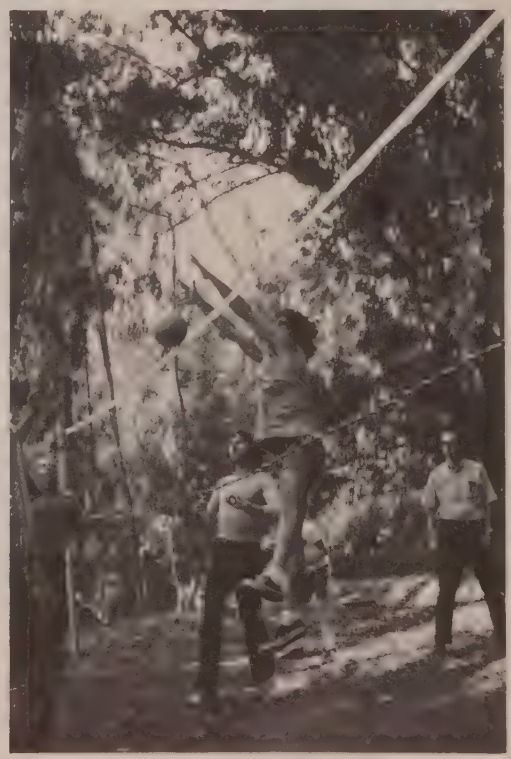
Students Lead Berkeley Retreat

At Berkeley, students planned the program and even prepared the excellent meals served during the weekend. One highlight was the stimulating presentation by Dr. Eldon Ernst on the religious scene in America today. Five students shared something of the pilgrimage that led them to come to seminary in Berkeley.

During the closing worship, Professor Harold Frazee read his paraphrase of Ecclesiastes, chapter 3:

"There's a time to leave home and a time to build a new one; a time to break old ties and a time to form new relationships; a time to play and a time to study; a time for simulation and a time for reality; a time to read and a time to write; a time to listen and a time to speak; a time to be in dialogue and a time to be alone; a time for confrontation and a time for reflection; a time to seek and a time to commit one's self; a time for changing and a time for resisting change; a time for pessimism and a time for hope; a time to gather and a time to disperse; a time to worship and a time to serve."

Planners for the Berkeley retreat included Dean Paul Clasper, student officers Dennis Stull and Tim Norris, Dr. William Malcomson and Mrs. Graham Thornton, not shown.



Professor Richard Doss's conversation with senior David Carlson was typical of the meaningful, unstructured time to become better acquainted.

Students, faculty and their wives enjoyed a picnic and afternoon of volleyball, frisbee and just getting acquainted.

The activists enjoyed a rapid-fire volleyball game.

Dimensions of Tragedy and Comedy In the Search for Self

By J. Lynwood Walker, Berkeley

Dr. Lynwood Walker, assistant professor of religion and personality at our Berkeley campus and assistant dean of the Graduate Theological Union, recently read the following paper at our Covina campus. It afforded an excellent background for discussing the way the Apostle Paul in Romans 7 faced the tragic-comic tension in his own life.

Through the integration of tragedy and comedy, one can clean his mirror enough to see himself clearly and know aagin the hope that sustains life and perhaps also the hope of another life, for he will know that life and death are bigger than himself.

Between the polar extremes of birth and death, man plays out the drama of the wandering spirit through the dimensions of tragedy and comedy.

In the drama of the self, our choices of style are limited to the emphasis of the tragic or comic perspectives, or to a fusion of the two.

Some choose to emphasize tragedy to the relative exclusion of comedy. If the tragic perspective is carried far enough, one ultimately reaches the point at which his responses to life are defined by psychosis, suicide and murder, for he comes to feel that life is utterly hopeless and meaningless, with little or no chance for change and renewal, or to feel that improvement in his condition depends on his ability to make others suffer.

Others choose to emphasize comedy to the relative exclusion of tragedy. If the comic perspective is carried far enough, one ultimately reaches the point at which his responses to life are circumscribed by fatalism, passivity and vanity, for he comes to feel that since life ends with a whimper rather than a bang, all the noisy action in which man engages to make life meaningful and worthwhile is silly and futile.

Overemphasis of either tragedy or comedy leads ultimately to a sense of hopelessness and despair. Only the apparent responses to that hopelessness and despair distinguish the tragic from the comic figure.

The tragic figure tends to respond to his condition with an explosive self- or other-destructive act; the comic figure tends to respond to his condition with a feigned courage, expressed through a happy-go-lucky faith that things will work out somehow.

Still others choose to see both tragedy and comedy as necessary, though perhaps insufficient, ingredients for the creative, wholesome self. Life, when viewed as the tragicomic drama of each self in its strivings for completion and wholeness, comes to be appreciated as an enterprise to be taken seriously, though not so seriously that one is overwhelmed by the pathos and sorrow, the absurdity and folly.

In literature, the purpose of tragedy is to appeal to serious thoughts and emotions, concerning especially the profound sufferings of man. The focus is generally on some tumultuous passion or weakness of the leading character that leads him to a catastrophic end. Usually, in the denouement of the tragedy, the hero, who is often admirable in many ways, achieves insight into the meanings of his conflicts and the tragic act signifies an achievement for the hero of some sense of unification of an inner self.

In contrast, comedy highlights man's follies and absurdities and usually comes to a happy ending. For a fairly long period in America most movies ended on a happy note, with the implication that the heroes "lived happily ever after." One can downgrade comedy only if he remains unaware that comedy usually contains satirical, chiding and mocking aspects which challenge us to fresh perspectives and new action.

Though the ostensible purpose of comedy is to excite mirth, its deeper purpose is to excite, ultimately, the alertness of wit, serious reflection and deep involvement which tragedy demands. Consequently, we are inaccurate when we oppose the ostensible light-heartedness of comedy to the deeper emotions of tragedy.

The Difference in Tragedy and Comedy

The difference between tragedy and comedy in the search for self is the difference between taking oneself too seriously and being able to acknowledge one's ridiculously human limitations which, when seen clearly, can be fairly easily transcended. In short, the difference between tragedy and comedy is the difference between man's age-old heritage of alienating pride and his ever-present potentiality for reconciling humility.

Clearly, the tragic perspective is the prime source of the martyr-complex and, consequently, of the waiting game that leads one to expect that some magically apocalyptic or eschatological occurrence will deliver one from all his pains and ills. It is also the perspective that challenges us to take life seriously and to do battle with the forces of death which plague us.

The comic perspective is the prime source of that self-destructive flippancy that allows us to be foolhardy and noncommital about life's deeper meaning. Yet, it is also the perspective which enables us to achieve the liberating awareness that we are free to determine how we will respond to our conditions and to participate in the continuing creation and re-creation of the world God has given to us.

I contend that the truth is somewhere in the middle. Life is a tragicomic pilgrimage from cradle to grave in which each man strives to discover and re-discover a sense of self through which he creates his own meaning and through which meaning is perceived and revealed in interpersonal and divine-human communion.

The song "Who Am I?" is illustrative of the necessary unification of tragedy and comedy if the self is to be made whole. In her interpretation Nina Simone entertains questions about freedom and determinism, life and death, death and resurrection, separatedness and relatedness. Yet these lyrics also represent the striving of a mystified self to overcome alienation, to recover a sense of healing perspective which allows one to acknowledge that all truths, all love, all life must be questioned if the self is to be renewed and is to grow. To learn how to join the power of compassion and understanding with the soothing gentleness of sensitivity and perspective is the ever-present challenge to each curer of souls, be he minister or musician, medical man or witch doctor, loved one or stranger.

Identity Yields Understanding

When I can identify with another's suffering fully enough to understand the depths and dynamics of his struggle, I am able to reflect to him the totality of his experience in all of its seriousness and ludicrousness.

I am continually astounded at how ill-prepared our culture is to accept either deep laughter or deep weeping. We tend to judge those who enjoy laughter as guilty either of flippancy or of sinful indulgence in sensuality. We also judge those who dare to weep openly as guilty of weakness, especially if they are males, or of taking matters too seriously.

In a culture in which unfinished business is the norm and in which we are encouraged to save the completing of unfinished business for the life-to-come, one who perceives possibilities of creating or discovering heaven in his own time and space must work through the comic gaiety and the tragic reflection of his unfinished business here and now. Only thus can he reclaim the life-giving energies with which he can participate in the death of the old and the exhilarating birth of the new. Life, then, is to be both suffered and enjoyed.

The self-conscious, serious search for self can be, and often is, a most effective way of avoiding the self, of providing oneself a reason-for-being when one is afraid that there is no reason and that the self, on its own terms, is not worthy of time and space. Comedy often is a means of resisting change and growth.

Combined into a wholesome tragicomic perspective, seriousness and light-heartedness can become the means by which we see, acknowledge, and accept truths about ourselves which we have previously rejected. For example, the Jews' self-conscious identity as a suffering people seems to be a source of their concept of themselves as God's chosen people.

The Black Identity Struggle

In the current struggle of blacks for identity and integrity, we also see the tension between tragedy and comedy. Authors such as James Cone assert that blacks are singularly oppressed and blessed (Black Power and Black Theology). While there is profound truth in this, there is also danger of arrogance.

James Baldwin's agonized writings, which reflect his deeply personal pilgrimage, come to mind as evidence of how the self-consciously chosen and overemphasized dimension of tragedy becomes excess baggage when added to the realities of evil and suffering which seem inherent in the human condition.

Yet, in Baldwin, there remains a balance of perspective which makes possible in him the reconciliation between the opposing forces of joy and despair.

Like the Jews, blacks have produced both cogent thinkers and sensitive comics, who fear neither serious nor lighthearted analysis of the contemporary state of man and society.

I do not fully understand the relative lack of spontaneity and gaiety in many contemporary white Christians.

The essence of the tragic-comic tension in life is oscillation between arrogant pride and unself-conscious humility; between self-centeredness and self-transcendence; between self-pity and self-concern; between determinism and freedom; between permanence and impermanence; and between vitality and death.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

1942 ERNEST M. NELSON 'B, a former Army chaplain, is now pastor of the First Baptist Church, Martinez, succeeding VANDER O. BALDWIN '57x B who had to retlre because of health.

1945 C. ARLIN HEYDON, JR. 'B has accepted the pastorate of the First Baptist Church of Foothill Farms, Sacramento. He had served First Baptist, Fort Collins, CO since 1965 . . . Serving under the Conservative Baptist Foreign Mission Society in Japan is JOSEPH MEEKO 'B. He is working with Pacific Broadcasting Association, Tokyo, in providing tapes for radio and TV stations. He formerly spent 11 years as a missionary in rural areas of northern Japan . . . On March 1 WARREN SHERK 'B became the first full-time Protestant chaplain at Arizona State Prison.

1946 MELVIN A. PEKRUL 'B, pastor of First Baptist in Las Vegas, presided at the second regional meeting of the American Baptist Churches of the West, held in Reno Oct. 22-24. A major program feature was the installation of ROBERT RASMUSSEN 'B 60, as the region's new executive minister.

1947 MARSHALL LUCKEY '47x B is pastor of First Baptist Church, Benicia, following a ministry at First Baptist, Albany.

1948 Sincere Christian sympathy is extended to the family of KENNETH WALLACE '48 Hon. B who died July 12. He was pastor emeritus of Thousand Oaks Baptist Church, Berkeley.

1949 ROY ISHIHARA 'C of Los Angeles and GEORGE H. MOSELY ('C 1950) of Seekonk, Mass., are both serving on the program committee for the 1972 American Baptist Convention in Denver . . . NORMAN G. RIDDLE 'C (B.D. and '65 M.R.E.) has been awarded the M.A. degree by Fuller School of World Missions in Pasadena. He completed resident requirements last year while on furlough from his work in Congo under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society. He is evangelism secretary for the Western Congo Baptist Convention.

1953 A new book by WILBUR REES 'B is entitled $3.00 Worth of God. He has been pastor of First Baptist, Pocatello, ID, since 1967. Recently he has been in graduate study at Idaho State College in the area of counseling. His book is available at Judson Book Stores for $2.95.

1954 NEVILLE ARROUES 'C became pastor of the First Baptist Church, Placerville, in July.

1955 WILBUR C. CHRISTIANS (Hon.'B) and Mrs. Christians returned in September from a three months leave of absence in Zermatt, Switzerland. The leave was granted by the official board of First Baptist Church of Sacramento, where Dr. Christians has been pastor for twenty years. Dr. Christians is also a long-time member of the Berkeley board of trustees . . . JOHN NASTARI 'B is serving for the second year on the program committee of the American Baptist Convention. He is pastor of First Baptist Church in Portland, Oregon.

1956 WILLIAM R. TIPTON 'C was appointed a missionary by the American Baptist Home Mission Societies to serve the First Baptist Church of Honolulu.

1957 Since April DAVID C. P. KWOK 'B has been pastor of the Chinese Conservative Baptist Church in New York City. He was registrar and lecturer at Singapore Bible College from 1962-70 when he immigrated to Toronto, Canada . . . DAYLE H. SCOTT 'B, pastor of First Baptist, Eureka, has been elected president of the Humboldt County Council of Churches.

1959 RICHARD E. ICE 'B, deputy executive secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, graduated in July from the Advanced Management Program of Harvard University Graduate School of Business Administration. Established in 1943 to improve executives' ability for decision-making and long-range planning, the AMP program now has 7,120 alumni, many of whom are company presidents, government officials and chairmen of boards . . . LEE REGIER 'B, pastor and CHARLES WALKER '67 B, associate, of Trinity Baptist Church, Concord, began a radio broadcast in March geared to persons not normally associated with the church. Scheduled at 4 p.m. on Tuesdays, the program has a Christian perspective and features contemporary sounds in music, comments on issues of the day, a special interview, and a five-minute devotional.

1960 Now pastor of First Baptist Church, Jackson, WY, is EVERETT ANDREW 'B. He began in June after eight years as a high school English teacher in the Bay Area. Recently he felt called to enter the pastorate and was ordained at Lucas Valley Community Baptist Church, San Rafael . . . Congratulations to the Allen Clemensens (PATRICIA BROWN 'B) on the birth of Thomas Lester on July 28 in Tacoma, WA. They now have three boys . . . THOMAS F. HUTSON 'B recently became pastor of Community Baptist Church, Yountville. He will have a bi-vocational ministry as he is also involved in clinical-pastoral work . . . Appointed to the faculty of Central Baptist Theological Seminary in the fall was ROBERT L. REVENAUGH 'B. A Ph.D. candidate at the University of Oklahoma, he is associate professor in the field of parish ministry at Central. He also holds a license from California as a marriage, family and child guidance counselor . . . THEODORE SCHRAMM 'C has been appointed as a missionary to Austria by the Conservative Baptist Foreign Mission Society. A native of the Ukraine and raised in Germany, he has been a pastor in Arizona and also taught at Southwestern College in Phoenix.

1961 As he planned, V. REX WOODS 'B has worked himself out of a job. In 1967 he became director of the Nevada Sierra Neighborhood Action Project in Reno, relating to the Reno-Sparks Indian Colony. Although Colony Baptist Church and Christian Center were ministering to the social and spiritual welfare of the people, there was need for the Indian community to develop self-determination. Mr. Woods has worked to that end. With strong Indian leadership and better community funding, the active service of the Neighborhood Action Project will end by December 31, 1971. Currently Mr. Woods is a resident in the clinical pastoral education program at Mounds-Midway Hospital, St. Paul, Minn.

1962 JOHN DAVEY 'B, who has been in a bi-vocational ministry in Neenah, WI, is moving to a similar situation in Vermillion, SD. A chemical analyzer, he will be working for a chemical company as well as pastoring a church . . . WILLIAM DOTY 'C is serving the Poston Community Baptist Church, Parker, AZ, as a missionary under the American Baptist Home

Mission Societies . . . GEORGE A. NYE 'B became pastor of First Baptist Church, Pocatello, ID in September, following a ministry in Seattle at Columbia Baptist Church. The Nyes (SANDRA McCRORY '62x B) have increased their family to five with a 17-year-old foster daughter . . . JAMES H. STEWART 'B has returned to the Bay Area as the new pastor of McGee Avenue Baptist Church, Berkeley. He served Church of the Good Shepherd, Oakland, from 1958-67. He then went to the Pacific Northwest as the American Baptist representative in the Ecumenical Metropolitan Ministry in the Puget Sound area . . . Following service in the military chaplaincy ALFRED VAN SELOW 'C accepted the pastorate of First Baptist Church in Stockton.

1963 ROGER PRICE 'C moves from director of Christian education at First Baptist in Pasadena to minister of Christian education at First Baptist in Ottawa, Kansas.

1964 Congratulations to Rev. and Mrs. Jack Tench (JOAN DUNHAM 'B) on the arrival of Nathanial Breed on July 20 in Bellevue, WA . . . ROY W. HERNDON '64x B is pastor of First Baptist Church, Roseville, coming from Church of the Light in McKinleyville . . . DANA HAWKES 'C has moved from pastor of the First Baptist Church of Fountain Valley to interim minister of University Avenue Baptist in San Diego, while he is doing graduate work in communications at San Diego State College. He is the author of "The Jesus People: Freaks or Friends?" in the September issue of the American Baptist magazine.

1965 LARIN KERR is now serving the First Baptist Church of Dover, DE, moving from Indianapolis, IN. Earlier he had been pastor of First Mesa Baptist Church, Polacca, AZ.

1966 After three years on the staff of the Division of Social Action of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, ROGER L. STEWART 'B resigned to become administrator of community concerns in a Pennsylvania school.

1967 DARRELL WATTERS 'B is pastor of two United Methodist churches in New York, at Alexandria Bay and Redwood. For two years he was associate pastor of Tabernacle Baptist Church, Utica, NY.

1968 GERALD ADAMS 'B is a missionary under the American Baptist Home Mission Societies serving in the Pueblo Christian Center in Los Angeles.

1969 Following a year of study as student chaplain at Mounds-Midway Hospital, St. Paul, MN, DENNIS ERICKSON 'B was called as associate pastor of Grace United Church of Christ, Akron, OH . . . GLENN W. TILTON 'B is placement officer for Sacramento City College. From 1966 until August 1971 he was director of the Del Paso unit of the United Christian Centers in Sacramento.

1970 RICHARD E. BALSIGER 'C has been named pastor of First Baptist Church in Rupert, ID . . . Congratulations to GILLETTE JAMES 'B and his wife, Rosa, on the birth of Jennifer Ann on August 7. He is pastor of Beth Eden Baptist Church in Oakland . . . ELAINE HALSTEAD 'C, administrative assistant at Covina, participated in a conference on "Women in Professional Leadership" sponsored by the Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board in New York City Oct. 26-27.

1971 PAUL C. CHRISTIE 'B has been called as director of the Greater Richmond Interfaith Program, a community action effort which he helped establish as his seminary field education project . . . DONALD R. WELLS has been called as pastor of First Baptist of Anamosa, Iowa.

2 Chartiers Earn Ph.D's

There are now two doctorates in the Chartier family, the newest additions to the Covina faculty. Both Myron and Janet Chartier received doctor of philosophy degrees in speech communication from the University of Denver in August.

Dr. Myron Chartier, who became assistant professor of speech-communication in September, is a specialist in communication methodologies that relate to interpersonal, group and organization communication.

His dissertation was designed to discover the best way to utilize a simulation game to gain maximum effectiveness in learning. Simulation games have their ancestry in role playing, ordinary games such as Monopoly and in the simulators used for training pilots.

The simulation game used for the experiment was Generation Gap by S. S. Boocock and E. O. Schild. The game simulates the relationship between an adolescent child and a parent. Its purpose is to teach an understanding of the structure of power and interdependence in the family and to shape effective communication strategies for handling family conflicts.

Using four control groups, Dr. Chartier found that subjects who both played and discussed the game were most satisfied with their learning experience.

Dr. Janet Chartier is guest lecturer in Christian education. Her research on family communication processes is one of the few investigations to be done with non-clinical family groups.

Twenty-one family groups from a Roman Catholic parish in Denver served as subjects for her study. Two parents and two teenagers from each family participated in a decision-making experience which consisted of making individual and group decisions about seven fictitious family situations. The conversations of the families were tape recorded for later analysis.

One conclusion of Mrs. Chartier's research was that family members who talk the most influence the most, irrespective of whether they be parents or teenagers. Family members who talk a great deal tend to be more satisfied with family decisions than those who talk less.

Speaking Personally

Genuine Christian sympathy is expressed to the family of MRS. C. OSCAR JOHNSON, who died in San Jose in August. She was the mother of the late Dr. Ralph M. Johnson, former president of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School. Memorial contributions may be made to the C. Oscar and Rose Johnson Scholarship Fund at the Berkeley campus.

PRESIDENT C. ADRIAN HEATON appeared on four television programs in Los Angeles this fall. The first was a dialogue with DR. "TED" COLE, chairman of the Covina trustees and moderated by REV. EVERETT CURRY (C '67) on channel 13. The other three programs were part of the "Today's Religion" series.

As president of the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest, DEAN ROBERT CAMPBELL delivers the presidential address in Oxnard on Nov. 5. Re-elected to the board of managers of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication, he attended fall meetings in Valley Forge, Pa.

DEAN and MRS. PAUL CLASPER were resource leaders at a September retreat for ministers and their wives held at the Burton Baptist Assembly, across Puget Sound from Seattle. Dr. Clasper also taped a television show for the American Bible Society and will speak Thanksgiving weekend at a conference for international students at First Baptist, San Francisco.

JOHN BURKE taught on the faculty of the West Coast Church Music Conference at Mount Hermon.

MR. and MRS. FRANK CRALLE return Nov. 9 from a five-week trip to visit former students in Japan, Hong Kong and Bangkok. Part of the trip was made possible by alumni contributions presented at the retirement dinner which honored Mrs. Cralle's 26 years as professor of speech at Berkeley.

Christian education professors HAROLD B. FRAZEE and CYRIL D. GARRETT joined regional and national staff members in Seattle Oct. 4-6 for the Pacific regional planning team. They developed strategies and tactics to aid the educational ministries of local churches. Dr. Frazee also led a training conference for 55 persons from Nevada and Northern California at Lakeshore Baptist, Oakland, in June.

NORMAN K. GOTTWALD is speaking to a house church in Richmond on "The Possible Contributions of Israelite Covenant Models to Contemporary Community Building."

DR. ROBERT LAURIN is teaching an adult class at the Church of the Good Shepherd in Charter Oak, conducts a two-month continuing education class for chaplains at El Toro Marine Base and is leading Bible conferences this fall at Prairie Village, Kansas and Honolulu, Hawaii.

DR. BERNARD RAMM led a five-week discussion series at Whittwood Baptist Church in Whittier and taught a college class at First Baptist, Pomona.

During his sabbatical leave for the fall quarter, DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER wrote several encyclopedia articles and delivered four addresses at the Nebraska Convention in Scottsbluff in September.

DR. LYN WALKER addressed the laymen's conference at Pacific School of Religion and a gestalt workshop for clergy and laity in Seattle in October.

Dimensions
American Baptist Seminary of the West

Vol. 3 NOVEMBER 1971 No. 2

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY OF THE WEST

1300 E. Covina Hills Road
Covina, California 91724

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, May, September and November.

COLOR ART

FEB 22 '72

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume 3 FEBRUARY 1972 Number 3

INTERN DALE JOHNSON works with Dr. Robert Rasmussen, executive minister of the American Baptist Churches of the West. Based in the regional office in Oakland, Dale's portfolio of communications introduces him to all the region's activities. He is a first-year student at Berkeley.

How Death Relates to Life

By Richard W. Doss
Associate Professor of Preaching, Covina

A new and exciting field of study has emerged in the last few years. What was a taboo topic in our society is becoming a matter of interest and concern. The new field of study is called Thanatology (thanatos is the Greek word meaning death); the taboo topic is death. Already several universities have opened centers for thanatological studies. Two new journals were introduced in 1971 dealing specifically with research on death and dying. And in just the last two years, thousands of doctors, nurses, psychologists and clergymen have participated in seminars and conferences on the meaning of death.

My own research in this field began in early 1969 under the auspices of a grant given to the American Baptist Seminary of the West by the Forest Lawn Foundation. The head of the foundation, Mr. Frederick Llewellyn (chairman of the board, University of Redlands), had been an early sponsor of seminars for clergy on the significance of death and the funeral. My initial interest in the subject had begun during my doctoral studies in Boston when I first noticed that few theological writings were available on the subject of death. My curiosity was aroused by the fact that while the eschatological dimension is so central in Biblical Christianity, no major Protestant theologian had attempted to formulate a theology of death. It now seems clear that this will be a topic of significant interest in the 1970's.

The importance of facing death personally and intellectually should be obvious but has been long overlooked. When death is separated from life, the fullest meaning of life is negated. Life gains depth and significance when death is confronted openly and realistically.

Death has a positive value for each of us because it enables us to face life seriously and responsibly. Death can expose the triviality of so many of the ambitions and aspirations to which we devote ourselves. This kind of honest appraisal should be an inevitable part of our commitment to Jesus Christ. But unfortunately most of us are influenced by our culture which seeks to disguise and deny death and shroud its reality in a conspiracy of silence.

Interested persons can find a growing literature for serious study. The Meaning of Death by psychologist Herman Feifel and Robert Fulton's Death and Identity present important insights from the behavioral sciences. Arnold Toynbee's Man's Concern With Death, Nathan Scott's The Modern Vision of Death and Liston O. Mills' Perspectives on Death all contain important essays on the religious and philosophical dimensions of death. A compelling clinical study is psychiatrist Elizabeth Kubler-Ross' On Death and Dying. These volumes present an important starting-point for the minister and student beginning his reading in thanatology.

My research has convinced me that the study of death can confront us in a powerful way with the meaning and future of our lives. And most important, death enables us to understand and feel the dynamic of Christian life and faith. Being a Christian helps me to face the reality of my own death and my own life, to make sense of it and to interpret it in fullest perspective.

DIMENSIONS is published by the American Baptist Seminary of the West, 1300 E. Covina Hills Road, Covina, Calif. 91724. Issued in February, May, September and November. Second class postage paid at Covina, CA.
POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to above address.

STUDENTS DO THEOLOGY THROUGH FIELD EDUCATION

When most students register for seminary, they expect to take courses in theology, church history, Biblical studies, pastoral counseling, Christian education and other areas. What students do not always expect is to have their theological and Biblical beliefs put to the test within the crucible of the church or some specialized situation.

At the Seminary of the West this year, 39 students are involved with in-depth field experiences, including 33 serving in local churches. Supervisors are carefully selected and participate in special training sessions.

To make it clear that field education is directly related to rigorous academic effort, both campuses have chosen field education directors who have solid academic doctorates. At Covina, Leland Hine earned his Ph.D. in history from the University of Pennsylvania and at Berkeley, William Malcomson received his Ph.D. in comparative religions from Princeton University. Other faculty members share the task of supervision, which keeps influence flowing in both directions between the academic and the field experiences.

Field education is the opportunity for students to be involved in ministry while they are still students. This experience as professionals-in-training gives them time to test out skills, attitudes and ideas. The seminary does not expect students to become instant adults and instant ministers!

Some Berkeley Students Doing Field Education

The cover of this issue of Dimensions pictures Dale Johnson, a first-year student serving as an intern with Dr. Robert Rasmussen in the regional office in Oakland. Dale graduated from the University of Idaho, where he was an English major and student drama director. He enrolled in seminary after a year as a VISTA volunteer in the inner-city of St. Louis.

In the Churches of the West offices, his major portfolio is communications, which introduces him to all of the region's activities. He also works directly with each of the program divisions.

Two second-year students are working at Lakeshore Avenue Baptist Church in Oakland. Tim Norris, minister-in-training, is a graduate of Arizona State University.

In the field education practicum, Covina students have an opportunity to reflect on their ministry, guided by Dr. Leland Hine.

Ralph Bunting talks with a musical group performing at the Stage Door coffee house at Temple Baptist in Los Angeles.

As a ministerial intern Scott McOwen (center) takes part in a staff meeting at the First Baptist Church of Fullerton.

Covina's student body president, Art Mize, is a ministerial intern and youth minister at Evangelical Free Church in Covina.

David Morris gets preaching experience at Second Baptist in Los Angeles, where Dr. Thomas Kilgore is the senior minister.

At Juvenile Hall in Martinez, intern Steve Ott talks informally with a teenaged girl, one of 90 youth he sees each week.

Gus Owen, a Navy veteran and graduate of Idaho State, is the minister of youth. Gus and his wife Sandy have spent three summers managing the Cathedral Pines camp at Ketchum, Idaho. Last year Gus directed the Steeple, a coffee house program sponsored by MacArthur Community Church (ABC) in San Pablo.

At Lakeshore both young men assist with the Sunday morning service, teach church school classes, attend staff and board meetings and take part in the young adult group which meets Sunday evenings. Gus is also the advisor for youth group activities.

Across the Bay at San Francisco's First Baptist, two Asian students are a vital part of the church staff. In his second year there is Harry Wu, an alumnus of Chung Chi College of Hong Kong and Burma Divinity School. After working with the program for neighborhood children last year, Harry is now responsible for leadership development. He supervises the educational program, teaches a young adult class, was the staff resource person for the stewardship campaign and directed a major conference for international students over Thanksgiving weekend.

Miss Sharon Ruiz, graduate of Central Philippine University and the University of Hawaii, teaches a senior high class and contributes her musical talents to the church choir and the Sunday evening services.

Two seniors at the seminary make up the entire pastoral staff of the Point Richmond Baptist Church. Evan Anderson of Wilmington, Delaware, is a graduate of Brigham Young University and Phillip Reuter of Hacienda Heights, California, earned his A.B. at Azusa Pacific College. The young men divide parish visitation and administrative tasks. Since the summer of 1970, Evan has majored on preaching and Phil on ministering with youth and their parents.

After his graduation, Phil's vocational plans are to become a minister with youth. Evan intends to be an associate pastor while he earns a law degree and then to enter full-time ministry.

In June, Stephen Ott began an internship as associate chaplain with Rev. Keith Spooner at Contra Costa County Juvenile Hall in Martinez. A Linfield graduate, Steve is experienced at working with troubled youth and emotionally disturbed children. In an average week at Juvenile Hall, he ministers to 45 disturbed teenagers in a formal way through groups and individual counseling and to another 45 on an informal basis. He expects to complete his M.Div. degree at Berkeley and his M.S. in counseling at Hayward State this summer.

Field Education at Covina

by Elaine Halstead

Whether doing role-playing in the classroom of a hospital visit under the supervision of a skilled counselor, participating in a church staff meeting, guiding a coffee house ministry or preaching on Sunday morning, third-year Covina students are participating in a greatly expanded field education program.

At Lakeshore Baptist, Oakland, alumnus Rodney Romney supervises two ministers-in-training, Gus Owen and Tim Norris.

Harry Wu and Sharon Ruiz serve in the educational program of First Baptist Church in San Francisco.

Phillip Reuter and Evan Anderson, student pastors at Pt. Richmond, talk with Richard Wilson, a key layman.

Each student, called a "ministerial intern," is placed in a church where he is given a broad range of experiences designed to expose him to the many ministries of the church. As senior Grady Casey put it: "The church has ceased to be an 'it' and has become more personal. The flexibility of the program allows us to discover the kind of ministry we are best suited for instead of assigning us to only one area of ministry."

Dr. Leland Hine, director of the Covina program, has said that he sees field education as "building a bridge between the church and the seminary with the student as the meeting point of that bridge. By working simultaneously in the seminary and in the church, it is hoped that the student will become deeply aware of the value of each and commit himself to keeping the two together." Asked why he became involved in field education, Dr. Hine replied that it was because he saw it as "an attempt to weld theory and practice together and because this is one of the most challenging and needful endeavors of our day."

Unlike many programs in which church work is over and beyond classroom obligations, the Covina program offers the student eight hours per quarter of academic credit. This means that a student's seminary schedule includes the twenty hours or more per week he spends in ministry in the church.

Participating churches and pastors have expressed their commitment to the new program as a part of the church's ministry in assisting the seminary to train ministers. Rev. Emory Campbell of Fullerton First Baptist Church declared his enthusiasm when he said, "I am excited about the new field education program because it gives the local church an opportunity to have a part in equipping seminarians for ministry in the local parish. Under this new approach a student is allowed to develop his skills and become aware of the fact that he can be an instrument of God while at the same time discovering an excitement in the possibility of ministry in the local church by his involvement in it." For its part, the seminary has committed itself to helping the pastors become more effective supervisors and pastors.

To allow time for reflection on his work, the ministerial intern also takes classes on campus. In the field education workshop the students share their experiences and interact with each other and with faculty. The supervising pastor holds periodic conferences with the intern to help him evaluate his program and to help both of them become more effective ministers of the Gospel.

Students involved in the program have had high commendation for it. Art Mize, speaking at the President's Dinner, told the guests, "Working with a skilled and understanding pastor has helped me to have a new sense of hope about the possibilities in the church of Jesus Christ. Some of us have fears about not being able to do the job. The field education program is giving me a lot of confidence and providing many situations which allow me to discover that I can have an effective ministry."

Dr. Ted Cole, Covina trustee chairman, concluded Los Angeles dinner.

Mrs. Wendell Hamlett and Mrs. Robert Weidner spoke for the Woman's Auxiliary.

Miss Sharon Ruiz, first-year Berkeley student, sang Filipino songs in San Francisco.

500 Attend President's Dinners

"A Light for All Seasons" was the theme highlighted at three President's dinners held in December. The first was at the Biltmore in Los Angeles on Dec. 3; the second at the Sheraton-Palace in San Francisco on Dec. 4 and the third at Perry's Inn in Tulare on Dec. 11.

An informal, relaxed program moderated by President C. Adrian Heaton was organized around a do-it-yourself format. People at each table formulated questions to ask or comments to make. As many of these were presented as the time allowed.

Dinner at the Biltmore

At the Biltmore dinner there was a lively dialogue between two members of the Covina Woman's Auxiliary. Two doctors in psychological counseling described how their lives had been blessed by their alumnus-pastor, Rev. Robert Westgate, president of the Covina Alumni Association. Mrs. Theodore Kubera, a lay woman from First Baptist, Redlands, reported on a recent trip to alumni on mission fields in the Orient.

Dean Robert Campbell introduced Arthur Mize, student body president, who expressed his deep concern for the future of the church. Miss Lenore Soules, Larry Blazer and Paul Strid also commented from the student perspective. First using the longest word in Swedish and then switching to English, business manager Victor N. Osterman, Jr., reported on the seminary's financial situation.

Dr. James Webster, pastor in Temple City, commented on why he was glad to be a seminary trustee and wished that the present Covina curriculum had been available when he was a seminary student.

Special music was provided by the concert choir, directed by Robert Mitchell, professor of Christianity and the arts. Choir members included a student wife from Thailand, students from Haiti and Hong Kong and Dr. Janet Chartier, guest lecturer in Christian education.

President Heaton talked about the proposed campus move to Irvine and how that would affect the educational program. He spoke of an attitude of Christian stewardship that affected both the giving process and the spending process of dollars dedicated to the seminary. He also gave special tribute to the memory of Vernon Brown, for whom the gymnasium is named, and to Arthur Karpe (see story on page 9). Both men died during the year and left generous legacies to the seminary.

The meeting was concluded by Dr. Ted Cole, pastor of First Baptist in Pomona and chairman of the Covina board of trustees, who gave an inspirational plea to support the seminary with prayers and gifts.

Dinner at the Sheraton-Palace

In San Francisco, special music was sung by student Norman Race and his wife of Philadelphia and Miss Sharon Ruiz, a student from the Philippines. They were accompanied by John Burke, instructor in church music.

During the program, Rev. Douglas Siden, a Berkeley alumnus and Mrs. Frank Cralle, retired professor of speech, discussed their recent visits to alumni around the world. Mrs. Cralle explained that the teaching she did at the Baptist seminary near Stockholm was a class in English conversation, but she added, "Any class I teach is a class in speech!"

Rev. Samuel Pinkston of the regional staff suggested ways of getting more black students enrolled in the seminary and Asian student Harry Wu described his decision to enter the ministry, made at a Burmese camp-

At the Sheraton-Palace, Dean and Mrs. Paul Clasper (right), visit with Dr. and Mrs. Claude Welch (center), newly-appointed dean at Berkeley's Graduate Theological Union.

Retired professor Ada Grace Cralle and alumnus Douglas Siden commented on their recent world trips to visit alumni.

The Gold Room of the Hotel Biltmore was a festive setting for the Los Angeles dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Davis (left), chairman of Berkeley and ABSW trustees, enjoy a light moment with Mrs. Adrian Heaton and Dr. Elmer Gray, dean of Golden Gate Baptist Seminary.

fire service in 1957 led by Dean Paul Clasper. Vice-president Carrol O. Morong brought greetings from President emeritus Sandford Fleming of Santa Barbara.

Dr. Claude Welch, newly-appointed dean of the Graduate Theological Union, defined a teacher as one who inspires creative collisions between students and ideas, students and other persons and between church and university. He described the interdependence of the GTU's member schools as involving a shared library, faculty, financing and intellectual and spiritual goals. He complimented ABSW as the leading school in the GTU in its "export-import" ratio, since it sends 75 students to take courses at other schools and accepts 123 other students to take courses from ABSW professors.

Student body president Dennis Stull explained that his models for entering the ministry included a pastor who affirmed life and had a caring attitude for others and a Berkeley intern who refused to settle for easy answers. He is enthusiastic about a church that affirms by its whole life style that it is on the way to becoming something other than what it is now.

Mrs. Louise Haas, a Roman Catholic student, expressed her appreciation to the Baptists for the warmth and openness she had experienced as a student.

In concluding the dinner, trustee chairman Harold Davis cited the church as a major force to correct what is wrong in the world.

Dinner in Tulare

A large group of friends were the guests of Mr. C. H. Perry at Perry's Inn in Tulare on Dec. 11. Program participants included Vice-president Donald Thomas, Dr. Morong, Rev. D-B Heusser, who received his M.Div. from Berkeley in 1970, Paul Strid of Covina, who was an intern last year at First Baptist of Fresno and other Covina students.

The guest preachers in the area on Sunday included Dr. Thomas at First Baptist of Tulare, Rev. Winston Neal at Island Baptist Church in Lemoore and Dr. Lawrence Allen at First Baptist in Clovis.

Special music by the Covina concert choir was directed by Robert Mitchell, professor of Christianity and the arts.

President Heaton enjoyed opportunities to visit with area pastors, alumni and other friends of the seminary.

Many people at the Biltmore dinner found it an excellent time to become re-acquainted with faculty and other friends.

Benefactor A. H. Karpe Dies

Friends of the Seminary of the West were saddened to learn of the death of A. H. Karpe of Bakersfield on October 10 at the age of 86. A generous benefactor of both campuses, Mr. Karpe was active in agricultural and business interests.

His autobiography, Life with a Lusty Pioneer, was published in the fall of 1969. It details many of his experiences and his philosophy of life, based on a strong commitment to the Christian faith, which he first learned from his mother.

Born in a Minnesota blizzard, he left his father's farm in Faribault to become a mill hand in Minneapolis when he was 16. Later he moved to Colorado and in 1904 to Bakersfield. There, with borrowed capital of $5 and the loan of four horse shoes and 28 nails, he began a business which became the largest individually owned agency for International Harvester in the U.S.A. His early savings went to buy land considered useless by others but which he was able to bring to such high productivity that he harvested as much as 50,000 acres of wheat annually.

A man known for his quiet ways, Mr. Karpe said that his greatest satisfaction came through opportunities to help people and worthy enterprises. He wrote, "Years ago, I promised myself that if God ever entrusted me with money, I would make it my personal goal to do something for the cause of sound education." Convinced that "a nation is no stronger than its religious influences and the church is not likely to be stronger than its preachers," Mr. Karpe decided to devote the fruits of his life work to strengthening theological education.

His will includes provision for the final payments on his $150,000 pledge to Karpe Hall at the Berkeley seminary campus and the establishment of the Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Karpe Trust for endowment, scholarships and aid for needy students, to be shared equally between the Covina campus and Northern Baptist Seminary in Illinois.

President Heaton participated in memorial services for Mr. Karpe, which were conducted in his home church in Bakersfield by his pastor, Dr. John A. Lavender. Dr. Lavender is an alumnus of the Seminary of the West, Berkeley campus, and a former Covina trustee.

Learning for Laity Sets Two Series

The annual Learning for Laity series conducted by the faculty of the Seminary of the West, Covina campus, will be held this year in two different places — the first on the seminary campus and the second at First Baptist Church of Santa Ana, 1010 W. 17th Street.

Each class runs for five Monday evenings, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Registration fee is $10 for each course, with application blanks available from Dr. Donald Thomas, vice-president, Covina campus.

Courses at the seminary will be conducted from February 7 through March 6. Teaching faculty will include Dean Robert Campbell on "The Witness of John's Gospel;" Drs. Myron and Janet Chartier will emphasize "Interpersonal Communication for Churchmen;" Dr. Robert Laurin will deal with "The Bible and the Future;" Prof. Robert Mitchell will teach "Music and Art in the Church" and Dr. Bernard Ramm will lead a series on "Moral Crises of Our Times."

April 3 through May 1 are the dates for Learning for Laity at First Baptist in Santa Ana. Courses taught there will include "The Church School Teacher Prepares" by Dr. Cyril Garrett; "The Youth Revolution" by Dr. Richard Doss and "The Witness of John's Gospel" by Dean Campbell.

Members of all denominations are invited to participate in either or both series. The courses are designed for teachers, youth workers, church officers, pastors and other members interested in enriching their understanding of the Christian life or in receiving specific help for their responsibilities in the church.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

BERKELEY IN JAPAN

On their recent trip to Japan, the Frank Cralles visited with a number of Berkeley campus alumni. Boyd and JITSUKO TANAKA Reedy '56 entertained them for lunch in their home, also inviting SHIN CHIBA '53. Mrs. Reedy is now certified to teach religious education, passing an examination of the United Church of Japan.

In Yokohama, the Cralles were met by YOSHIHISA SAWANO '64. Later at a "Berkeley Dinner" they were joined by the GERALD GANOS '54, HARUMI ISHII '52 and TOSHIO SASAKI '61.

* * * *

COVINA AND BERKELEY ALUMNI NEWS

1923 Sincere sympathy is extended to the family of T. MOORE ATKINSON 'B who died in October at the age of 86. A native of New York, he held pastorates in Salt Lake City, Monterey and Arcata and had lived in Berkeley since 1941. Active in church and literary circles, Mr. Atkinson had his short stories, essays, poetry and other articles published in such magazines as Good Housekeeping, The Personalist and Educational Forum.

1932 Christian sympathy also goes to the family of VICTOR WIK 'B who died in October of a heart attack in Des Moines, IA.

1935 Since July 1971 PHILIP GRAF 'B has been serving as the regular part-time pastor of the First Baptist Church of Lynden, WA. He and Mrs. Graf (HELEN '35 B) live in Burien, near Seattle, in partial retirement but drive to Lynden each Friday, returning Sunday evening.

1936 Following a period of ministry in Thailand CARLTON W. SAYWELL 'B is serving as pastor of First Baptist Church, Big Bear. Prior to going overseas he was executive secretary for the Arizona Baptist Convention and a seminary trustee.

1942 Working toward a master of theology degree at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary is VINCENT ERNEST M. NELSON 'B, pastor of First Baptist Church, Martinez.

1944 MARGARET POE 'B has moved from Peru, IN, to the pastorate of the First Baptist Church, Chatsworth, IL.

1945 WILLIAM C. HUNTER 'B is pastor of First Baptist Church, Centralia, WA, following an eleven-year pastorate at First Baptist, Coeur d'Alene, ID.

1948 The ROSWELL C. McFADDENS 'C were honored at a reception in September by the First Baptist Church, Brea, on the occasion of their 20th anniversary of service in the church . . . In September the Antioch Baptist Church, San Jose, honored their pastor, C. W. WASHINGTON 'B and his wife at a banquet marking the 25th anniversary of their ministry with the church. Recently the church constructed a 190-unit low income housing project.

1949 Chosen to serve on the program committee for the 1972 national convention of American Baptists, to be held in Denver, is ROY ISHIHARA 'C of Los Angeles. He has been pastor of Gardena Valley Baptist Church and most recently was interim pastor of Evergreen Baptist in Los Angeles.

1950 CARLYLE D. BENNETT '50 Hon. C, professor of voice, conducting and music administration at Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary, led the oratorio choir in the annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah" in December. He and Mrs. Bennett, an instructor in music, expect to retire in July, 1972 . . . EARL BYLEEN 'B has moved from Lincoln, NE, to First Baptist Church, North Platte.

1953 The WILLIAM H. ALLISONS 'B (FERN McMASTER '48 B) have moved from Bethany Baptist Church, American Falls, ID, to First Baptist, Yreka, CA . . . In September DOUGLAS JEFFREY 'C began his pastoral ministry at First Baptist Church, Fountain Valley, moving from First Baptist, Huntington Park . . . RICHARD M. JONES 'B has been appointed associate secretary of the Office of Planning and Organizational Development of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies . . . WILBUR E. REES 'B is now pastor of the Southside United Protestant Church in Richland, WA. Following a pastorate at First Baptist Church, Pocatello, ID, he completed a master's degree in counseling at Idaho State University. His book, Three Dollars Worth of God, was published by Judson Press last spring.

1955 The ROBERT L. COATS 'B have returned as American Baptist missionaries to Maesariang, Thailand, where they served from 1958-68. For the past two and a half years he was associate director of promotion in the western district of the Pennsylvania Baptist Convention. Three of their five children are with them with the two oldest remaining in this country for higher education . . . ALMUS O. LARSEN 'B was appointed assistant to the president of Sioux Falls College in July, 1971. He has been at the college four years . . . JOHN MINTER 'B has received his Ph.D. degree from the University of California. His dissertation was on the beginnings of the Graduate Theological Union . . . JACK VAN LIEW 'B and '63 C began in November as director of counseling and group development with the Chicago Southwest Suburban Community Parish and Community Center Foundation. In October he received the doctor of religion degree from Chicago Theological Seminary. His wife, Shirley, has been promoted to head nurse for neurosurgery care at Billings Hospital (the University of Chicago Hospitals and Clinics). They have a married daughter, a son in 9th grade and a daughter in 5th grade.

1956 Serving as co-pastor of the Emerald Baptist Church, Eugene, OR, is JACK KIEKEL (BEVERLENE MANDRAPA '57 B).

1957 DALE EDMONDSON 'B, pastor of Pleasant Hill Community Baptist Church, began dual responsibilities in October as pastor of the Moraga Hills Community Baptist Church.

1958 Serving as consultant on Spanish-speaking ministries for the American Baptist Churches of New Jersey is LEONARD J. BALLESTEROS 'B. He also continues as pastor of North Baptist Church in Jersey City.

1959 LORIMER OLSON 'B is the assistant administrator of Orangewood, the Baptist retirement residence in Phoenix. He had been pastor of Memorial Baptist Church, San Jose . . . After 18 years as religion writer for the Oakland Tribune, WILLIAM F. ROSE 'B collapsed and died at his desk on Dec. 21. Warm sympathy is extended to his family.

1960 H. CLYDE MATHEWS, JR. 'B is special assistant to the director of civil rights in the office of the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) in Washington, D.C., with responsibilities for the Indian program. Prior to joining HEW, he was an American Baptist pastor in Nevada.

Tim Norris, a second-year student at Berkeley, spoke during the seminary breakfast at the regional convention in Reno.

1961 A former American Baptist missionary to Congo, BRAINERD FRASER 'B ('60-'61, '65-'66) is now pastor of the White Temple First Baptist Church of Walla Walla, WA . . . Serving as administrator of the Adlai E. Stevenson House in Palo Alto is EARL WILLIAM GREENE, JR. 'B. His responsibilities in this "active living center for the elderly" include supervising a staff of sixteen and program development in social, recreational, cultural and service areas for the residents.

1963 EUGENE H. BARTELS 'B has moved from Firgrove Baptist Church, Puyallup, WA, to the Federated Church, Hamilton, MT . . . DAVID R. BEALS 'B is now pastor of First Baptist Church, Centerville, PA, moving from Costa Mesa, CA . . . In January EARL W. GROTE 'B began as pastor of Thousand Oaks Baptist Church, Berkeley, following a ministry at Community Baptist, King City . . . M. KENT MAYFIELD 'B has been in India studying with a program sponsored by the U.S. Educational Foundation. His area of study is theater with an accent on the religio-ritual aspects of folk arts. He is returning to the United States by way of Japan where he will be honored with a degree from the temple school at Zuiganzi.

1964 Our apologies to DAVID OLSON 'B for incorrect information about him in the September 1971 issue of Dimensions. He is pastor of the First Baptist Church of Akron, IA (rather than Christian education in Akron, OH). He and his wife, Judy, are involved in Christian education in the church and the American Baptist region — and in their home as they have a daughter and five sons.

1965 In December A. KEITH BAUSERMAN 'B moved from the pastorate of Baywood Baptist Church, Castro Valley, to Wilshire Baptist Church of Los Angeles . . . FRANK M. LEINEN 'B is pastor of two churches in New York State, Commack Baptist Church, Commack, and First Baptist, Port Jefferson.

1966 Congratulations to the WILLIAM KOENIGS 'C who have adopted a baby boy of Korean descent, Scott James . . . PAUL POEHLMAN 'C, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Darrington, WA, is serving as an advisor and counselor for a ministry known as "Reconciliation Ranch." A 60-acre property near Darrington was obtained by the First Baptist Church of Everett to provide a working ranch for young people alienated from their parents, possibly high school dropouts and/or users of drugs. An experienced Christian staff is working with them, the services of a Christian psychologist are provided and family counseling is available when the youth leaves the ranch. Ernest Hastings, ABSW trustee, is pastor of the Everett church.

1967 Taking chaplaincy training at the hospital in Larned, KS, is FORREST BELL 'C. He had been pastor of First Baptist Church, Raymond, WA . . . JAMES MATHEWS 'B is teaching at Sedro Woolley High School, Mt. Vernon, WA, where he is director of the orchestra, the band and the choir. He continues part-time in Christian education at First Baptist Church.

1968 Moving from First Baptist Church, Evansville, IN, to First Baptist, Taft, CA, is LARRY J. BENNETT 'C . . . DOUGLAS C. MYERS 'C is a marriage and family counselor for the Family Court Division of the Snohomish County (WA) Domestic Relations Department. He is also sharing in counseling services at First Baptist Church, Everett. He received the Ph.D. degree in counseling psychology in 1970 . . . Serving as pastor of the Federated Church, Quincy, MI, is WILLIAM NOBLITT 'C. He had been assistant chaplain at Inter-Community Hospital, West Covina.

1969 Congratulations to the RONALD HARRISES 'B on the birth of Robin Elaine, October 4, in Portland, OR, where the proud father is associate minister of First Baptist Church. Robin joins sister Bonnie Lynn, almost 2.

1970 GILLETTE O. JAMES 'B, pastor of Beth Eden Baptist, Oakland, was elected president of the East Bay Area of the American Baptist Churches of the West. Professor David Bartlett of the Berkeley campus of ABSW is vice-president. VINCENT ERNEST NELSON '42 B and MILTON GIRE '56 B are among the board members . . . LOREN McBAIN 'C was installed as pastor of the High Desert Baptist Church in Victorville on September 26.

1971 Several ordinations have taken place recently: JOHN BERGGREN 'B, pastor at Victor, MT, November 28 at First Baptist Church, Tacoma, WA; RICHARD FISKE 'C in First Baptist, Huntington Beach, November 14; E. JIMMIE SIMON 'C in First Baptist, Yakima, WA; and DONALD WELLS 'C in Iowa where he is pastor in Anamosa . . . KARL MILLER was called as assistant pastor by First Baptist Church, San Luis Obispo.

BERKELEY MAYOR NAMED BAILEY VISITING PROFESSOR

The Honorable Warren Widener, mayor of the city of Berkeley and an active Methodist layman, has been named as the 1972 John W. Bailey Visiting Professor. He will lead four discussions on the seminary campus which will focus on the social and ethical aspects of issues before the city council and ways the clergy can give leadership in involving the churches in city government.

Dates for the mayor's visits will be from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon on Wednesday mornings on February 2, 16, 23 and March 1.

Preceding each visit by Mayor Widener to the seminary campus, students and faculty will be encouraged to attend the Monday evening meetings of the city council. Other interested members of the larger Berkeley community are also invited to take part in discussions at the seminary.

Mayor Widener is an attorney at the Earl Warren Legal Institute of the University of California at Berkeley, where he provides legal assistance across the nation for minority groups engaged in economic development projects.

Speaking Personally

DR. JOHN DILLENBERGER resigned as president of the Graduate Theological Union as of June 30. Following a sabbatical leave he will occupy an endowed chair in historical theology named in his honor at the GTU.

DEAN CLAUDE WELCH has been named acting president of GTU, while a search committee seeks a successor to Dr. Dillenberger. After eleven years as chairman of the religion department at the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Welch became GTU dean last September.

DEAN ROBERT CAMPBELL attended executive committee meetings of the AATS in December and spoke to Los Angeles ministers on the charismatic movement and its place in the local church. He also led Bible studies at the Unified Baptist Church in Inglewood and Plymouth Congregational, Whittier.

DEAN PAUL CLASPER of Berkeley's ABSW campus was a featured speaker at the 5-state Pastors Convocation at Sioux Falls College in January. In Lent he will be interim minister at First Congregational Church in Berkeley, during Dr. Browne Barr's sabbatical. Recently he led a retreat for a group of Jesuits about to be ordained as priests.

Three Covina churches are developing a cooperative educational program for mentally retarded children. This is a direct outgrowth of a conference led by DR. CYRIL GARRETT at Covina last spring.

DEAN EMERITUS RALPH E. KNUDSEN is interim minister at the Prince of Peace Church in Sacramento for three months, during the pastor's sabbatical leave.

DR. ROBERT LAURIN is leading an eight-week series on Future Shock at La Jolla Presbyterian Church.

In January DR. WILLIAM MALCOMSON led a ministry to youth conference at Hamilton Air Force Base. The purpose was to improve communication between 50 chaplains of the Pacific region's Civil Air Patrol and a core of CAP cadets. ABC pastors in Oregon benefited from the leadership of Dr. Malcomson and Rev. Robert Frerichs, during a consultation on continuing education and ministry.

DR. BERNARD RAMM spoke recently at two college Religious Emphasis Weeks. His latest book on Christian ethics, The Right, the Good and the Happy, has been selected as the book of the month by Word Books and the Evangelical Book Club.

1972 EARL LECTURES, FEBRUARY 8-10

Pacific School of Religion will sponsor major lectures by Dr. Langdon Gilkey, professor of theology at the University of Chicago Divinity School and by Dr. Jose Miguez-Bonino, dean of Union Theological School in Buenos Aires. Dean Paul Clasper of ABSW will lead a seminar series on Buddhism. Sessions will be held at First Congregational Church in Berkeley.

Director of Publications
Graduate Theological Union Library
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, Calif. 94709

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Vol. 3 FEBRUARY 1972 No. 3

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

1300 E. Covina Hills Road
Covina, California 91724

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, May, September and November.

COLOR ART

APR 13 1972

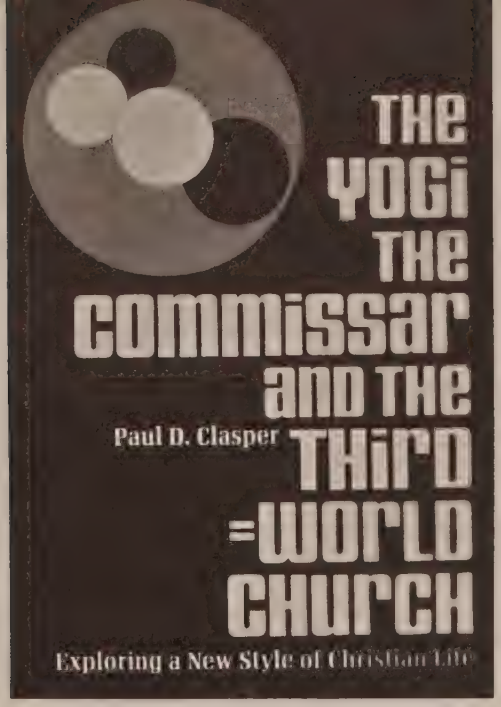
THEOLOGICAL UNION GRAD 1962

Dimensions

American Baptist Seminary of the West

A FEDERATION OF BERKELEY BAPTIST DIVINITY SCHOOL AND CALIFORNIA BAPTIST THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

Volume 3 Number 4



MAY 1972

Author Clay Ford — see page 4.

DEAN ROBERT CAMPBELL, datebook in hand, discusses his nomination as ABC general secretary with Dr. Culbert Rutenber, ABSW professor and recent ABC president.

The Yogi, the Commissar and the Third-World Church

by Paul Clasper, Judson, 1972, $1.95. (Dr. Clasper is dean of the Berkeley Campus, ABSW).

Reviewed by Culbert G. Rutenber

Professor of Philosophy of Religion, ABSW

Don't let this book fool you. It could. The style is so delightful, the elaboration of the argument so deceptively clear and concise, the whole so refreshingly lacking in the heavy jargon by which theologians prove their intelligence to one another that you might just wonder. Don't. The points are important. And layman and clergy alike can profit.

Essentially what Dean Clasper is trying to do is to suggest an image of wholeness for the Christian man which will transcend the polarizing conflict between the pietist and the activist while retaining the truth enshrined in each position. In the year of our Lord 1972 such an effort is still important.

Dean Clasper's suggested image is that of ambassador for Christ and he draws out the Christian implications by a stimulating comparison of this biblical concept with the position of the secular ambassador of a nation state.

The author draws suggestively on his rich background as missionary to the Orient and theologian in America. Theology, missions, third-world aspirations, other religions, the drive for social justice — all these and more are woven into an integral and persuasive pattern. (Incidentally, third-world church is not a church located in the third world but the third kind of church, neither yogi-oriented nor commissar-oriented but with elements of both.)

One thing that comes through is the balance of the writer. The chapter on continuous reformation illustrates it. Institutionalization is necessary but dangerous, runs the theme, and the subheadings remind the reader that there is one gospel but many theologies; one church, many churches; one mission, many missions; one Spirit, many ministries; one worship, many liturgies.

Strangely the greatest imbalance is at the main point of the book. Paraphrasing Jean Kerr, the commissar (activist) gets all the best lines, both quantitatively and qualitatively. The dean reveals himself finally as a Western Christian who speaks more easily about action and the practical than about meditation and the mystical.

Dean Clasper wants to start discussion, not give answers. He succeeds. I'd like to discuss with him the undefined term "revolution" which is easily made to embrace Jesus, the gospel and minorities in Burma and elsewhere struggling violently for political independence. (And was there really an American revolution or only a rebellion?)

I'd like to hear his analysis of Koestler's sequel to The Yogi and the Commissar, viz., The Lotus and the Robot where K. sadly concludes that Asian mysticism has no significant advice to offer mankind in its crucial hour. I'd even like to ask a few theological questions!

A stimulating job.

DIMENSIONS is published by the American Baptist Seminary of the West, 1300 E. Covina Hills Road, Covina, Calif. 91724. Issued in February, May, September and November. Second class postage paid at Covina, CA.

POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to above address.

DEAN CAMPBELL NOMINATED AS ABC GENERAL SECRETARY

After nearly two decades as dean of the Covina campus of the Seminary of the West, Dr. Robert C. Campbell has been nominated by the denomination's General Council to fill the office of general secretary, the top administrative post of the American Baptist Convention. The election will take place at the convention's annual meeting in Denver, May 10-14.

Dr. Campbell is no stranger to American Baptists. In 1970-71 he was president of the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest. Currently he is serving a fourth term on the board of managers of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. He has represented that board on the General Council.

He has also served as chairman of the board of MATE (a ministry in the Watts section of Los Angeles) and is an executive committee member of the American Association of Theological Schools. In 1967-8 Dr. Campbell was program committee chairman for the American Baptist Convention in Boston.

Dr. Campbell earned his A.B. degree from Westmont College in Santa Barbara in 1944 and subsequently received his B.D., Th.M. and Th.D. degrees from Eastern Baptist Theological Seminary in Philadelphia. He also earned an M.A. degree from the University of Southern California in Los Angeles in 1959. He has done post-graduate study at the University of Pennsylvania, Dropsie College of Hebrew and Cognate Learning, the School of Theology at Claremont, New York University, the University of London and Cambridge University.

Dr. Campbell married Lotus Graham in 1945. Mrs. Campbell also holds degrees from Westmont College and Eastern Baptist Seminary. The parents of Robin Carl and Cherry Colleen, the Campbells are members of First Baptist Church of Pomona.

Dr. Campbell was ordained in 1947 and has served numerous churches in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and California as staff minister, pastor or interim pastor.

He began his teaching career as assistant professor of biblical languages at Eastern Baptist Seminary in 1949. Two years later he became associate professor of religion at Eastern Baptist College, St. David's, Pa.

In 1953, Dr. Campbell was invited to California Baptist Theological Seminary, now the Covina campus of the Seminary of the West, as associate professor of New Testament. He accepted the seminary's deanship in June, 1954. In addition to his duties at Covina, he has been visiting professor of New Testament Greek at the School of Theology at Claremont and visiting professor of religion at the University of Redlands.

As seminary dean, Dr. Campbell administers the faculty, student personnel services, the library staff and the academic budget. He was instrumental in having the Covina campus receive recognition as an ABC seminary in 1958. Under the combined leadership of Dr. Campbell and President C. Adrian Heaton since 1959, the Covina campus has earned full accreditation from the American Association of Theological Schools and in 1968 joined a federation with the Berkeley Baptist Divinity School.

Dean Campbell has lectured widely in denominational and ecumenical circles, including presentations at religious emphasis weeks at major universities and at nation-wide conferences of the American Baptist Convention. In 1963 he lectured on the Gospels for a network television audience on NBC's "Frontiers of Faith" program. He has traveled and studied in Europe and the Near East.

Dr. Campbell has published Great Words of the Faith and is the author of church school curriculum materials and various journal articles.

President Heaton commented, "The seminary is proud indeed that one of its own staff has been nominated for this high office. I feel that Dean Campbell fulfills admirably the criteria listed two years ago by the search committee. These include capacity for prophetic leadership, tested administrative skill, sensitivity to the needs of minority groups, theological insight and platform presence."

COMING EVENTS

SEMINARY BREAKFAST AT DENVER

Friday, May 12, is the date for the Seminary of the West breakfast during the ABC sessions in Denver. Dean Robert C. Campbell of Covina, the nominee for general secretary of the American Baptist Convention, will be the main speaker. Alumni, trustees, students, staff and friends of both Berkeley and Covina are invited to the Hilton Hotel at 7:15 a.m. Tickets at Denver will cost $3.85, including tax and gratuity. Tickets purchased in advance from either campus will cost $3.50.

COVINA COMMENCEMENT ON JUNE 3

The graduating class of 1972 cordially invites interested friends to a celebration of commencement, to be held at 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 3, in Conaway chapel on the Covina campus. The graduates and their families and ABSW alumni are invited to a luncheon on campus that noon. Reservations must be made with Miss Elaine Halstead at Covina by June 1. Luncheon tickets are $2 each.

BERKELEY COMMENCEMENT ON JUNE 10

Following a coffee hour at 10 a.m., a celebration of commencement will be held at 11 a.m. on Saturday, June 10, in an outdoor setting on the Berkeley seminary campus. A brief charge to the graduates will be given by Dr. David Shannon, an American Baptist who is professor of religion at Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pa. and visiting preacher at First Congregational Church in Berkeley. ABSW alumni are sponsoring a luncheon in Karpe Hall following the ceremony. Reservations must be made with Miss Carol Goodman by June 7. Tickets are $2 per person.

BOOK REVIEW

Berkeley Journal by Clay Ford, published April 12 by Harper & Row at $4.95. Reviewed by Joan Thatcher.

During a summer spent directing the free coffee house at Berkeley's First Baptist Church, Clay Ford, a Covina seminarian, became immersed in working with Berkeley's street people. He was one of four students sponsored by the ABC's Home Mission Societies.

His journal combines a depth of insight into people and theology to a degree rare in theologians, much less seminarians. His brief word pictures paint a vivid portrait of the myriad life-styles in Berkeley.

He describes one young man this way. "Cheyenne is hard not to love. His smile is warm; his laughter is alive and contagious. He is always ready to believe the best about people. He is a friend. He knows what it means to hurt inside, so he avoids hurting others."

In a later section he writes, "I am head-over-heels in love with Sarah Miles, a woman who has become involved in our coffee house ministry. She is radiant; her smile is overwhelming, disarming, and enchanting; her eyes sparkle; and her face is aglow with the peace and joy of God . . . She doesn't talk much, but then she doesn't have to. Her mere presence is enough to demonstrate the reality of God's love in the world. Only one factor mars our otherwise perfect relationship: she is 78, and I am 24. Woe is me."

With unusual perception, Mr. Ford identifies several distinct groups that make up the street people:

"The cop-outs have lost all will to live responsibly; they are unconcerned about what is right and wrong. They are lazy and have interest only in those things which bring pleasure or excitement, such as drugs, sex and riots. These are the most difficult people to reach . . . The societal orphans are those who are not acceptable or not able to function in a society like ours that demands rigid conformity. Included in this group are psychological misfits and the insane, members of motorcycle gangs, runaways unable to conform to home or school expectations, and unemployed ghetto youths and Vietnam war veterans who find it difficult to establish a niche . . ."

In another section he declares, "The Establishment churches need the Jesus People. They need their sparkle and enthusiasm, the effectiveness of their witness and testimony, their bubbling joy, and their love and acceptance of all colors and life-styles of people. On the other hand, the Jesus People need the Establishment churches. They need the content of the Christian faith revealed in the Scriptures and tradition as well as their own invigorating experience of faith."

Clay Ford concluded, "The Spirit of God grew inside me this summer, enabling me to love more deeply, more intensely, and more unconditionally. I've learned to look past hair length and skin color into the eyes, past life-styles into the heart."

This aerial view of the UC-Irvine campus shows the number of new buildings already constructed. In 1970 Irvine experienced the largest enrollment growth (26.7%) of any major university.

This large apartment building near the GTU complex is representative of the kind of facility which needs to be purchased when funds become available for the necessary down payment.

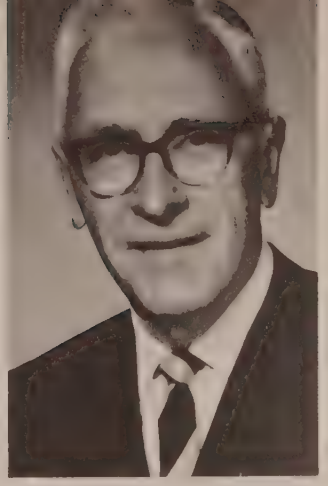
CAMPUS DEVELOPMENT PLANS

Both educational and economic needs have motivated the Seminary of the West to undertake moving its Covina campus to a new location at Irvine and its Berkeley campus from the south side of the university to the north side, in close proximity to several other seminaries. Plans for campus moves by 1974 were explained by President C. Adrian Heaton during the seminary's board of trustees meetings March 10-11.

At Covina the innovative teaching program needs contemporary educational buildings and close proximity to a great university. Irvine is the newest of the nine campuses of the University of California. Library holdings, cultural events, faculty personnel and other educational resources can be shared with the university and with a new Lutheran college being built at Irvine.

The master plan adopted for Berkeley's Holy Hill calls for centering the GTU complex at Scenic and Ridge Roads, on land located between the campuses of the Pacific School of Religion and the Church Divinity School of the Pacific. The 500,000 volume common library, to be shared by nine seminaries, may be designed by Louis Kahn of Philadelphia, latest winner of the gold medal award of the American Institute of Architects. The GTU's architectural committee is now negotiating with him.

ABSW plans to construct a faculty-seminar building with space for offices, seminar rooms, a multi-purpose lounge and parking facilities. An apartment building is also needed, to provide housing for both married couples and single students.



Dr. Heaton told the trustees of plans for the Pacific Southwest United Appeal. It has a goal of $3,100,000 for the capital needs of American Baptist agencies in the region, including $800,000 for the Seminary of the West to provide a contemporary learning center and chapel-auditorium at Irvine. The campaign will conduct a major gift phase in late 1972 and encourage church pledging between January and June, 1973. Theme of the program is "One Region — Meeting Real Needs."

The Covina trustees have entered into an escrow agreement for the sale of the 51-acre Covina campus for a large scale commercial development. High level conversations have been held with Chancellor Daniel Aldrich at the university's Irvine campus and with officials of the Irvine Company. The seminary is seeking a new location of 15 to 20 acres near the Irvine campus. Three professors have already moved from Covina to Irvine and are now commuting between the two locations.

Operating costs for both campuses now exceed the funds available from tuition, rents, endowment and gift income. The solution appears to be a decision to operate on smaller land parcels, with fewer buildings and to share facilities with other institutions.

By following these principles both at Berkeley and at Irvine, Dr. Heaton told the trustees that it will be possible to maintain quality education within a balanced budget, rather than to continue the present deficit financing program.

DR. MORONG RETIRES FROM SEMINARY STAFF

Dr. Carrol O. Morong has announced his plans to retire on June 30 as vice president for estate planning, following the observance of his 65th birthday on June 4.

A resolution was voted unanimously by the seminary trustees at their March meeting in appreciation of Dr. Morong's services in increasing the number of bequests and annuities received by the seminary during his three years on the staff.

Before moving to southern California, Dr. Morong spent four years as national director of the World Mission Campaign, a successful $22 million program conducted by the American Baptist Convention.

Born and educated in New England, Dr. Morong earned degrees at Harvard, Andover Newton Theological School and his doctorate from Boston University.

In addition to eleven years in the pastorate, he spent sixteen years as headmaster of Peddie School, an American Baptist preparatory school for boys in Hightstown, N.J.

Dr. Morong has made an excellent recovery from his open heart surgery in December, 1970. He and his wife Marion plan to retire in Santa Monica where they now live. They have three daughters and a son.

NEW SEMINARY TRUSTEES

Ten persons were elected to the Seminary of the West board of trustees at the March meeting. Four will serve on the Berkeley board and six on the Covina board. Additional faculty, student and alumni representatives will be named later.

New members of the Berkeley board include Miss Agnes Ellis of First Baptist Church in Long Beach; Dr. James Havens, executive minister of the American Baptist Churches of the Rocky Mountains; Dr. Harold Lane, pastor of First Baptist Church in Menlo Park; and Ernest Larsen, an orange grower of Redlands.

New Covina trustees include Rev. Gary Barmore, president of the Covina Alumni Association; Elbert Barrett of Scottsdale, a layman in First Baptist, Phoenix; Mrs. Paul J. Crapo of Calvary Baptist Church in San Bernardino; E. Charles Ford, an attorney in Los Angeles; Rev. John Epp, pastor of First Baptist Church in Visalia; and Dr. Elliott J. Mason, pastor of Trinity Baptist Church in Los Angeles.

Those retiring from the Berkeley board include Dr. Wilbur Christians, minister of First Baptist Church in Sacramento; Raymond Hardy, a layman of Pollock Pines; Rev. Dale Johnson, outgoing president of the Berkeley Alumni Association; Rev. William Scott, interim executive minister of the Colorado Baptist Convention; Mrs. John Sparrowk, lay woman of First Baptist Church in Danville; and Dennis Stull, outgoing president of the Berkeley Student Association.

Those completing terms of service at Covina include Ralph Bunting, representing Covina students; Rev. Douglas Jeffrey, pastor of First Baptist Church, Fountain Valley; John Kerr, retired Woolworth executive of Phoenix, Ariz.; C. H. Perry, owner of Perry's Tulare Inn, Tulare; Firman Staib, rancher of Dinuba; Robert Weidner, retired nurseryman of Encinitas; Dr. James Webster, pastor of First Baptist, Temple City; and Rev. Robert Westgate, outgoing Covina alumni president.

Alumni News

By Carol J. Goodman

• New officers for the Covina Alumni Association were elected at the annual barbeque held on the campus in January. Serving for the current term are: president — GARY BARMORE '67, co-pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, San Bernardino; vice president — EVERETT CURRY '67, director of the office of media ministries, Los Angeles Baptist City Society; secretary-treasurer, H. LOUIS ENGLE '70, minister of Christian education, First Baptist Church of Santa Ana.

******

• LORENZ R. MICHELSON, '46 B, field counselor of the Division of World Mission Support for the American Baptist Churches of the West, led a mission tour during February and March. The itinerary included Japan, Taipei, Thailand, Burma, India, Zaire, Cyprus, the Holy Land, London and New York. Among those in the group are CELIA ALLEN '40x B, San Francisco; ROBERT C. DOUGHERTY, '63 C, Danville; LEO REED '48 B, Nampa, ID; RALPH P. ROWE, '60 C, Rio Vista; Mr. and Mrs. John Sparrowk, Ione; and Mrs. Harry Jenks, Palo Alto, all former trustees.

******

• A news item in the February issue of Dimensions told of the visit of the Frank Cralles with Berkeley alumni in Japan. We regret that the names of some alumni visited were omitted and include them here: YOSHIO OSHIMA '54, HJORDIS

ANDERSSON '63-'64, GERD ULMSTEDT '63-'64, and in Thailand, RICHARD WORLEY '58.

• Four Seminary of the West alumni are involved in two new ventures of Lakeshore Avenue Baptist Church, Oakland. In 1971, the congregation decided to expand their ministry through establishing a day care center and a group home for boys, ages 12-16. Four houses adjacent to the sanctuary and fellowship hall were renovated for offices, the center and the home, increasing the use of facilities from 9,000 hours a year to 90,000.

The day care center, licensed to serve 45 children, opened March 1 and is under the direction of WILMA TURNER '63 B and the head teacher is FLOYD ELLISON '63 and '71 B. Planned for six boys, the home also opened in March and is directed by DAVID S. GATTEY '66 C, associate pastor. The pastor of the church is RODNEY R. ROMNEY '60 B.

1931 GORDON D. FORBES 'B has resigned from the staff of the American Baptist NorCal Credit Union to enter a new venture of helping professional people build a retirement income. Mr. Forbes has been in Christian education as state director in Washington, on the staff of First Baptist, Sacramento and director of field education for ABSW in Berkeley.

1938 Sincere sympathy goes to the family and congregation of RYOSUKE KATENA 'B who died in early December 1971. He was pastor of the Nara Baptist Church in Nara, Japan.

1945 Due to cataracts ROBERT B. MARTIN 'B has resigned from the NorCal Credit Union after seven years of service. He was the associate of Dr. M. E. Bratcher and later became manager-treasurer. He and Mrs. Martin, secretary to the faculty at the Berkeley campus of ABSW, live in El Cerrito and Mr. Martin will continue to lead the Berkeley Park Chapel.

1951 Now serving as pastor of Ledyard-Gales Ferry Baptist Church, Gales Ferry, CT, is NORMAN E. GANO '51x B.

1952 CHARLES R. DAVENPORT 'B is a high school principal in Coalinga.

1953 "Change in Chinatown" is a feature article by JAMES CHUCK 'B in the January 1972 issue of The American Baptist.

1954 In the fall of 1971 MICHAEL MARKHAM 'B, pastor of Panorama Baptist Church, Pacoima, attended the European Congress on Evangelism in Amsterdam. He also spoke to churches and groups in West Germany and Yugoslavia.

1957 Current president of the Kansas Baptist Convention is JAMES W. McCROSSEN 'B, pastor of First Baptist, Ottawa, since 1966 and a faculty member of Ottawa University.

1958 LEONARD BALLESTEROS, JR. 'B was appointed a field representative for the American Baptist Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board, in February. His particular responsibility will be with Hispanic ministers throughout the United States and Puerto Rico. He has been pastor of North Baptist Church, Jersey City, NJ. . . . Serving as pastor of the Columbia United Church of Christ in Barberton, OH, is RALPH L. YOUNG 'B.

1959 KENNETH D. BLAZIER 'B, program associate, has been appointed associate director of special services, Division of Educational Ministries of the American Baptist Board of Education and Publication. He will carry basic responsibility for curriculum interpretation and field services as well as newly defined duties in management . . . RICHARD E. ICE 'B has resigned as deputy executive secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies to become executive director of the American Baptist Homes of the West, effective July 1, 1972. He had been with ABHMS for eight years and for three years was associate executive minister for American Baptists in Northern California . . . On January 16 CHARLES P. SALVAGGIO 'C began as pastor of First Baptist Church in Huntington Park. He had been the pastor in Taft.

1960 JAMES O. LEFFINGWELL 'B has resigned as associate pastor of First Baptist Church, Kansas City, Kansas to become executive director of the Metropolitan Inter-Church Agency of Kansas City, an ecumenical agency covering seven counties.

1961 LONGRI AO '61x 'B of India is one of 25 Baptist leaders from 18 countries to be named to the program committee for the Baptist World Congress in Stockholm in 1975.

1962 Sincere sympathy goes to the family of DAVID AGNOR 'C of Elgin, OH, who died recently . . . MERVYN M. BETTS 'B returned from New Zealand in February to accept a position with Alderson-Broaddus College . . . In early 1970 Belmont Baptist Church, ROBERT L. PAULUS 'C, pastor, began exploring ways to have a more significant ministry to the community. The results are a year-old foster home, using a building already on their property. The project was launched through the cooperative planning and support of the church, the San Mateo Council of Churches and the county probation department . . . WILLIAM THOMAS, JR. 'B and his wife, who are now studying at Covina, have been appointed by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies to serve as missionaries in Europe where they will assist the International Fellowship of Evangelical Students in work among university students. They previously served a term of service in Zaire with the Baptist Missionary Society of London, England.

1964 RALPH K. SHOWERS 'C moved from the pastorate of First Baptist Church, Ewa Beach, HI, to First Baptist of Buena Park, March 1 . . . After graduation from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1968, LARRY TRETTIN '64x B and his wife worked for two years as community organizers for the Christian Council of Ghana, West Africa, and spent 10 months on an independent study tour of West Africa and Eastern and Western Europe. He is currently pastor of Bethel Baptist Church and director of the Catacombs Community Ministry in Ventura. The Trettins have a son, Graham Frederich, born October 22, 1971.

1965 A. KEITH BAUSERMAN 'B has moved to the pastorate of the Wilshire Baptist Church in Los Angeles.

1966 Congratulations to JEANNETTE (CHANDLER 'B) and DONALD JORDAN '66x B on the birth of Jennifer Noel on December 23. In Milwaukee, WI, he is program and camp director of the North Shore YMCA.

1967 BRUCE W. MORGAN 'B has moved from his post as associate minister at Calvary Baptist in Denver to become pastor of First Baptist, Lafayette, IN.

1968 Serving with the Saginaw (Michigan) Valley Council of the Camp Fire Girls is JANET DELOREY 'B . . . Moving from Twin Falls, ID, to First Baptist of Salt Lake City, where he is minister of Christian education and youth work is CHARLES GRAVES 'B.

1969 After graduate study in youth cultures at Princeton Theological Seminary, DAVID C. BLOOM 'C joined the staff of Calvary Baptist Church, Washington, D.C., where Dr. George W. Hill is senior minister . . . LELAND PAYNE 'C is recuperating after brain surgery at Los Alamitos General Hospital. He is working with First Baptist, Paramount, in Christian education.

1970 Congratulations to MAXINE F. CLARK 'C, assistant registrar at the Covina campus, and TIMM ASHLEY, a third-year student, on their engagement. After a summer wedding they will go to the University of St. Andrews in Scotland.

1971 JOHN BERGGREN 'B is now the permanent pastor of Victor Federated Church, Victor, MT . . . E. JIMMIE SIMON 'C is pastor of Firgrove Community Baptist Church, Puyallup, WA.

Speaking Personally

DR. LUIS FIDEL MERCADO is the full-time guest professor of New Testament at Covina this spring.

HAROLD DAVIS, chairman of the Berkeley trustees, became head of Oakland Housing Authority in March.

Four Covina professors led a series of mini-courses on the Bible at First Baptist, Fullerton, in March. They were DR. RICHARD DOSS, DR. ROBERT LAURIN, DR. DONALD THOMAS and DR. DAVID WALLACE.

Because of the continuing illness of DR. MAURICE P. JACKSON, the trustees have appointed DR. WILLIAM MALCOMSON as acting vice president for the Berkeley campus. He chairs the newly-created Division on the Ministry of the American Baptist Churches of the West and was the featured speaker at the region's Pastor-Laymen Seminar in March.

PROF. DAVID BARTLETT gave three lectures on religion and poetry at Sioux Falls College in February.

DR. MYRON R. CHARTIER spoke to the Idaho-Utah pastors in April on "The Minister as Communicator." This spring he is teaching methodologies of communication at the Marine Corps Air Station at El Toro.

During the winter quarter at El Toro, twelve chaplains took part in a seminar on the relationship between theology and psycho-therapy, led by DR. RICHARD DOSS.

In April, DEAN PAUL CLASPER was a leader for the ABC ministers retreat at Mission Springs. He also met with the long-range planning committee and executive staff of the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society and preached at First Baptist, Visalia, CA.

Twenty watercolors by MRS. JANET CLASPER were exhibited at the Cleveland Gallery of Northbrae Community Church in Berkeley.

DR. ELDON G. ERNST gave three lectures on American Christianity at First Congregational Church in Berkeley this spring. On sabbatical this quarter, he is continuing research in American religious history.

PROF. ROBERT H. MITCHELL will lead a music workshop during the ABC convention in Denver; is song leader and worship leader for the World Mission Conference at Asilomar this summer; and will be song leader and workshop leader at the Mission Conference at Green Lake, Wis. He lectured on Christian worship to the Hispanic Baptist pastors at Thousand Pines.

The latest book by DR. BERNARD RAMM is The God Who Makes a Difference, a critical evaluation of some contemporary theologians.

DR. CULBERT G. RUTENBER led Holy Week services in the Monumental Baptist Church of Jersey City, N.J. and spoke on the ethics of love to the Westfield, N.J. public school teachers, who are engaged in a desegregation effort. At the Denver convention in May, he will be a reactor to the major address on peace Friday night.

DR. DONALD F. THOMAS directed a two-week continuing education experience at Covina for twelve pastors from Arizona. It included biblical and theological studies of ministry, a review of preaching patterns using video-tape equipment and seminars on mission.

MISS JOAN THATCHER, director of communications and editor of Dimensions since 1969, left the seminary staff in late March. She is writing a book manuscript and doing further study at the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley during the spring quarter.

Dimensions
American Baptist
Seminary of the West

Volume 3 MAY 1972 Number 4

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY
OF THE WEST

1300 E. Covina Hills Road
Covina, California 91724

C. Adrian Heaton, President
Joan Thatcher, Editor

Published February, May, September and November

COLOR ART

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY OF THE WEST

Dimensions

APRIL 1973

Volume 4 Number 3

MAY 16 1973

SEMINARY ADVANCES THROUGH ADVERSITY

A Report by President C. Adrian Heaton

In marriage ceremonies couples pledge to love each other deeply "for richer or for poorer." Our Seminary, a federation of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School and California Baptist Theological Seminary, is now testing this vow institutionally.

In an historic decision, the Board of Trustees voted on March 10 to center the degree programs of the Seminary on a single campus in the southern part of the West Coast area and, at the same time, to maintain a center for continuing theological education in cooperation with the Graduate Theological Union in Berkeley. This basic decision was reached when the Board faced fully the fact that our constituency was not able to finance the fully developed two-campus programs at Berkeley and Covina.

The President told the Board, "Although we still believe the two-campus vision is right, it does little good to hang tenaciously onto it if the Baptists who support us do not follow our leadership." The Board voted to set up a one and one-half million dollar endowment fund from assets previously given to Berkeley in order to maintain a center for cooperation with other seminaries in the Bay Area as we provide short-term courses, refresher courses and continuing research for American Baptists.

Our major degree programs will be centered in the south. The primary reason for selecting the southern campus is nearness to our largest concentration of American Baptists in the West. In a very real sense the Seminary is a servant of the churches. It must maintain a very close inter-relatedness with the churches. Through vital programs of field education and internships for students the education of ministers becomes a shared responsibility of churches and seminary. Such dependence upon the churches also grows out of a theological belief that the local church is the primary center of God's activity in the world today. Consequently, although the seminary needs positive relationships with urban need, university settings and the many centers where culture is being formed, it must keep the closest relationship to the churches it serves. Because nearly one-half of the American Baptists of the West are in Southern California, and because 65% of the students of the two campuses of the American Baptist Seminary of the West are located at the southern campus, three-fourths of our faculty is now in the south, and because there is greater participation in the life of the churches by the students and faculty of the southern campus and a consequent by-product of less alienation from the churches in the south, it seems that the southern location is to be preferred if the American Baptist Seminary of the West is to have only one central campus. We hope the merger will be a new, rich, wholistic impact of the best of both the Berkeley and Covina traditions.

If we move our campus to the University of Califorina at Irvine (near Newport Beach) in two years, we still will be near our greatest population of American Baptists in the West.

(continued next page)

(continued from page one)

By living within a balanced budget, we hope not only to maintain our permanent center in Berkeley but to be able to set up and staff short-term programs of theological study in such centers as Seattle, Portland, Salt Lake City, Visalia, San Diego, Phoenix and Denver.

The changes voted above will reduce our costs significantly, but the school will still need better support from our churches and individual contributors to be strong. We invite you to help.

The published goals of the Seminary remain constant. They are:

1. Preparing spiritually motivated and well-educated pastors and missionaries.
2. Educating academic specialists for careers in vocations closely related to the Christian ministry.
3. Providing continuing education for ministers in the West.
4. Giving theological education for laity.
5. Engaging in research to assist pastors and laity in solving problems confronting the churches.
6. Maintaining and servicing repositories of Baptist and Christian heritage.
7. Providing special educational services in cooperation with minority groups such as Blacks, Hispanics and Asians.

The degrees offered at our southern campus include the master of arts, master of divinity and doctor of ministry. The school also is involved in continuing education for ministers and chaplains, in lay education and in several specialized programs of individual faculty members such as helping mentally retarded children, drug abuse centers, simulation learning, research on the theology of death and dying, religious drama and Key 73.

The present degree programs at Berkeley will be continued for one more year. After that we shall carry our basic professional degree programs in the south but we shall continue also our involvement with graduate programs in the Graduate Theological Union. Dr. Eugene Carson Blake, who headed the World Council of Churches 1966-1972, said recently of the "elite" education of the GTU, "In the face of a common demagogic attack which favors ignorance over knowledge, falsehood over truth, bias over balance, imbecility over understanding or incompetence over comprehension, one must choose to follow the elite, however dangerous elitism may be. That is the chief reason I am here to celebrate ten years of the GTU with you."

* * * * * *

The vote for consolidation on March 10 was carried 24 to 13 with one abstention. The 38 trustees in attendance were:

Dr. Gary Barmore, pastor, Calvary Baptist Church, San Bernardino
Rev. Glenn Camper, executive minister, Oregon Baptist Convention
Everett Carlson, businessman, Menlo Park
Dr. James Chuck, pastor, Chinese Baptist Church, San Francisco
Dr. Edward B. Cole, pastor, First Baptist Church, Pomona
Harold Davis, executive director of the Oakland Housing Authority
Dr. A. George Downing, executive minister, American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest
Rev. John Epp, pastor, First Baptist Church, Visalia
Dr. Eldon G. Ernst, professor of American religious history, ABSW/Berkeley
Rev. Lowell Fairley, pastor, First Baptist Church, Scottsdale, AZ
Richard French, vice president, Best Maintenance Company, Los Angeles
Dr. Ernest Hastings, pastor, First Baptist Church, Everett, WA
Dr. James Havens, executive minister, American Baptist Churches of the Rocky Mountains
Wilbert Hill, M.D., Downey

(continued on page 7)

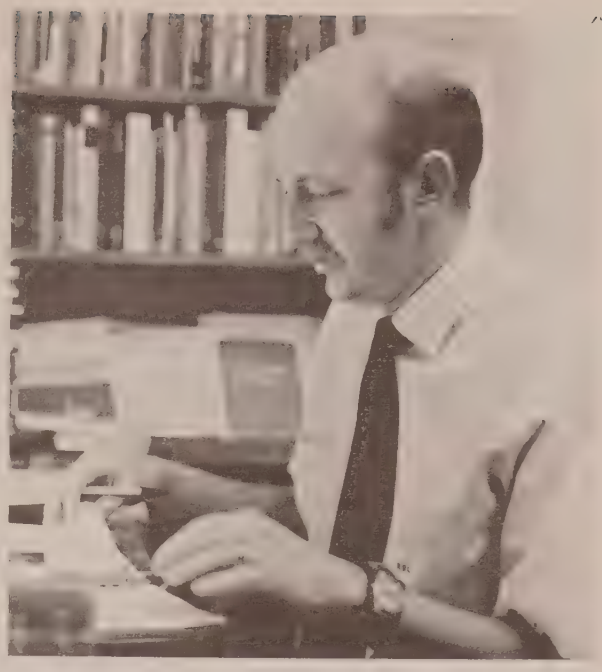
DIMENSIONS is published by the American Baptist Seminary of the West with campuses at 2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, CA 94704, and at 1300 East Covina Hills Road, Covina, CA 91724. Issued in January, April, July and October. Second class postage paid at Covina, CA.

C. Adrian Heaton, President

Carol J. Goodman, Editor

POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to 1300 E. Covina Hills Rd., Covina, CA 91724.

DR. LAURIN NAMED DEAN



Dr. Robert B. Laurin, professor of Old Testament and registrar for ABSW/Covina, was named dean of that campus by the board of trustees of the American Baptist Seminary of the West on March 10, 1973. He succeeds Dr. Robert C. Campbell who became general secretary of the American Baptist Churches in the U.S.A.

Dr. Laurin said, "Appointment to the deanship presents me with a very exciting challenge. Theological education is in the midst of great change and experimentation, and I look forward to the opportunity of providing leadership in teaching the basic affirmations of the gospel in the context of current professional concerns for ministry."

A graduate of Westmont College and Fuller Theological Seminary (B.D. cum laude and Th.M.), Dr. Laurin received his Ph.D. degree from the University of St. Andrews, Scotland. His dissertation was titled, "Eschatology and Messianism in the Qumran Scrolls." He is the author of When God Judges, The Laymen's Introduction to the Old Testament and Contemporary Old Testament Theologians, all published by Judson Press, and essays in The Dictionary of Practical Theology, The Wycliffe Bible Commentary, Baker's Dictionary of Theology, The Broadman Commentary and The Biblical Expositor.

Dr. Laurin has been a leader in shaping the curriculum at Covina which "combines academic rigor, interdisciplinary study and functional integration with ministerial practice." In addition to teaching and responsibilities as registrar he was acting dean until his permanent appointment.

A member of a number of professional societies, Dr. Laurin is currently chairman of the Commission on Theological Concerns for American Baptists and assists agencies and groups to develop theologically responsible goals and procedures. He also serves on the board of the Center of Metropolitan Mission In-Service Training which helps churchmen in Los Angeles to develop skills and motivation for responsible social and personal change.

Dr. and Mrs. Laurin have three children, Bruce, Catherine and Karen.

The search committee for the deanship included Dr. James Webster, chairman, pastor of Temple City Baptist Church; Dr. Edward B. Cole, pastor, First Baptist Church, Pomona; Dr. Gary Barmore, pastor, Calvary Baptist Church, San Bernardino; Rev. Robert Huston, director of clergy relations for Forest Lawn Mortuaries; Richard Stratford, Covina student; Dr. Cyril Garrett, professor of Christian education; Dr. Richard Doss, associate professor of preaching; and President Heaton. The committee unanimously recommended Dr. Laurin as a man of deep Christian commitment, brilliance as a scholar-teacher and competence as an administrator.

A REMINDER

Seminary of the West Breakfast

May 24, 1973

Radisson Cornhusker Hotel
Lincoln, Nebraska

$2.50

Convention of
American Baptist Churches in the USA

DR. MALCOMSON TO VICE PRESIDENT

Dr. William L. Malcomson, professor of ministry and director of field education for ABSW/Berkeley, has been elected vice president of that campus. He succeeds Dr. Maurice P. Jackson who has had to curtail his activities because of health.

A graduate of Denison University, Colgate Rochester Divinity School and Princeton University, where he received both the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees, Dr. Malcomson joined the Berkeley faculty in 1968. He has been a pastor of an American Baptist church in Connecticut, minister of leadership and program development for First Baptist, Oakland, and taught at Pomona College and Central Baptist Theological Seminary.

President C. Adrian Heaton said of Dr. Malcomson and his new responsibilities that "he acts for the president in his absence, supervises the non-faculty staff, guides field education and heads programs of continuing education. As the emphasis of our program at Berkeley changes, he will give more time to setting up centers in the west for continuing education."

Dr. Malcomson is the author of several articles on preaching and worship, is co-editor of The Church Creative and author of The Preaching Event. He is a member of the advisory board for theological studies of the American Baptist Churches in the U.S.A.

Dr. and Mrs. Malcomson reside in Oakland where they are active in the First Baptist Church, he is currently moderator of the congregation, and have three children, Christi, Scott and John.

DR. ERNST PROMOTED

Dr. Eldon G. Ernst, a member of the ABSW/Berkeley faculty since 1967, has been promoted from associate professor to full professor of American religious history. A graduate of Linfield College and Colgate Rochester Divinity School, Dr. Ernst received his Ph.D. degree from Yale University, writing his dissertation on "The Interchurch World Movement of North America, 1919-1920."

Prior to joining the Berkeley faculty Dr. Ernst served American Baptist churches in New York and Connecticut and he and his wife, Joy, are currently active members of the Lakeshore Avenue Baptist Church, Oakland. He is associate editor of Foundations, a Baptist journal, vice president of the American Baptist Historical Society and a member of several professional organizations. He has written a number of articles for such journals as Church History, Foundations, Journal of Presbyterian History and Action/Reaction.

Dr. Ernst is recognized for his guidance of ABSW students as well as Ph.D. and M.A. students at the Graduate Theological Union. In the cooperative curriculum areas he was recognized by professors in his field in serving a two-year term as chairman of the area of historical studies.

Dr. and Mrs. Ernst are the parents of four boys, Michael, David, Peter and Samuel, born in February. Mrs. Ernst is assistant librarian for the Berkeley campus.

Pastor James Alfred Smith confers with Mrs. Regina Anderson, director, and students of the Hi-Rise Tutorial Program sponsored by Allen Temple Baptist Church of Oakland.

SEMINARY AND CHURCH

The relationship between the seminary and the church is a vital one. One aspect of that association is seen in recent events linking ABSW/Berkeley and Allen Temple Church, Oakland. Dr. James Alfred Smith, pastor of the church, serves on the ABSW/Berkeley board of trustees and last June received the Th.M. degree from the Berkeley campus. His thesis, written under the direction of Dr. Eldon G. Ernst, professor of American religious history, is entitled Thus Far By Faith and is a history of the Allen Temple Church.

In October 1972 the church celebrated its 53rd anniversary. Participating in the special services with the pastor were Dr. Norman K. Gottwald, Berkeley's professor of Old Testament and a member of the church, Anthony Lloyd, middler student at the seminary and youth minister for the church, and Dr. Kelly Miller Smith, pastor of First Baptist Church, Nashville, TN and dean of Vanderbilt University Divinity School.

Dr. Smith (J.A.) has also recently written a series of meditations entitled Don't Be Squeezed Into the World's Mold. This book and his thesis have been published by Allen Temple Baptist Church and are available through the church for the price of $5.00 for the church history and $1.50 for the meditations.

Dr. Smith is a graduate of Western Baptist College, Kansas City, MO, with the B.S. degree and received the B.D. and Th.M. degrees from Missouri School of Religion. He was honored with the LL.D. degree by Inter-Baptist Theological Center in Houston, TX.

TRIBUTE FOR MISSIONARY

A former missionary to Zaire (Congo), Mrs. Charles E. Smith (Viola), will be honored at the June commencement of the ABSW/Berkeley campus for her distinguished service in that African country. She and her husband, who directed agricultural and community life programs, ministered for over 30 years in Banza Manteke, Nsona Mpangu, Kimpese, Matadi, Sona Bata and Kikongo. Both took classes at Berkeley.

Now living in retirement in Claremont, Mrs. Smith continues to minister in Zaire through the on-going health services she established. In addition she has translated textbooks and during her last term on the field was head of the school system of 72 village and regional schools, principal of the station school and inaugurated a teacher training program and a home economics school.

At the request of the Congo Baptist Convention, Mrs. Smith wrote a history of the Baptist church in Congo entitled "Diatungwa va Tadi" which means "It was built on a Rock." The work was published in 1966 after five years of research by Mrs. Smith.

SPEAKING PERSONALLY

JOHN T. BURKE, instructor in church music at the Berkeley campus and organist-choirmaster of First Congregational Church, Berkeley, has been elected president of the board of directors of the Choristers Guild. The organization, with offices in Dallas, TX, is dedicated to increasing the effectiveness and work of directors who are conducting children's choirs throughout the world. Its membership includes 7,000 directors from the United States, Canada, Japan and Europe.

Samuel Frederick was born February 21 to DR. and MRS. ELDON G. ERNST of the Berkeley faculty. Congratulations!

MRS. JOHN SPARROWK, ABSW trustee, was elected vice-president of the American Baptist Board of International Ministries (American Baptist Foreign Mission Society) at its annual meeting in February.

Alumni News

News Briefs

JOHN TOWNSEND '57 B and ROBERT B. WALLACE '58 B are two of 14 American Baptist pastors who have items printed in the 1973 edition of THE MINISTERS MANUAL, edited by Charles L. Wallis of Keuka College and published by Harper and Row.

1953 J. E. DOLLAR 'B Hon. retired as director of the American Baptist Assembly in Green Lake, WI and has moved to Placerville. He served for 12 years as director of public relations for Berkeley Baptist Divinity School.

1954 RUSSELL HENDRICKSON 'B, pastor of First Baptist Church, Bellingham, WA, is serving as president of the Bellingham Area Council of Churches.

1964 O. KENNETH WALTHER 'Bx has been pastor of Burnt Hills Baptist Church, NY, for six years. He and his wife are both enrolled in the Ph.D. program in classics at the State University of New York at Albany.

Fields of Service

1936 RALPH T. COBB to field representative for Central Baptist Theological Seminary, from executive minister of South Dakota Baptist Convention. A plaque was presented to him on his retirement as executive minister by the American Baptist Ministers Council and the national staff of the American Baptist Churches "in appreciation of his fellowship and Christian statesmanship and his service as a leader in the Convention."

1937 EARL GOSA 'B to interim pastor of First Baptist Church, Kent, WA.

1938 HENRY M. KOSLOW 'B to interim pastor of First Baptist Church, Pendleton, OR.

1947 JOHN A. MACDONALD 'B to pastor of Blossom Hill Baptist Church, San Jose, from First Baptist, Mill Valley, effective February 1973.

1948 JAMES E. SPRIGG 'B (Mrs. Sprigg—PEARL WOOLFOLK '46 B) to pastor of First Baptist Church, Fitchburg, MA, effective April 2, 1973, from secretary of the Overseas Division of the American Baptist Board of International Ministries.

1949 PHYLLIS VANDER PLAATS Smith 'B is coordinating the nursery school program for the Milwaukee, WI, YWCA.

1951 LAWRENCE C. BEAL 'B to pastor of First Baptist Church, Flagler, CO, from First Baptist, Lewistown, MT.

1954 GORDON E. GILBERT 'C to pastorate of First Baptist Church, Hanford, from University Baptist Church, Bakersfield, effective November 1972 . . . ROBERT W. THATCHER 'B to area minister for Mid-American Baptist Churches, effective April 1, 1973, from associate pastor of First Baptist Church, Westfield, NJ. He will be living in the Twin Cities area of Minnesota.

1956 MILTON L. GIRE 'B to pastor of First Baptist Church, Port Angeles, WA, from First Baptist, Alameda, effective March 1, 1973.

1958 ROBERT WHEATON 'B from pastorate of First Baptist Church, San Carlos, but continuing as director of the church's Counseling Center.

1959 BRUCE HOMFELDT 'B to area minister of American Baptist Churches of the Northwest, from First Baptist, Kent, WA, January 1973.

1960 MAX W. MORGAN 'B Hon. to pastor of Delmar Baptist Church, St. Louis, MO, from Wichita, KS . . . ROBERT L. REVENAUGH 'B to pastor of Bay View Baptist Church, Milwaukee, WI, from faculty of Central Baptist Theological Seminary.

1961 C. STANDLEY ANGLE 'B is teaching school in Deadwood, SD . . . V. REX WOODS 'B to pastor of Whiting Community Baptist Church, Neenah, WI, from chaplaincy at Mounds Park and Midway Hospitals, St. Paul, MN.

1963 M. KENT MAYFIELD 'B is now serving on the staff of Arizona State Hospital in Phoenix.

1966 ROGER L. STEWART 'B to assistant administrator of the Baptist Home of District of Columbia, effective December 1, 1972, from field representative in services to the aging for the American Baptist Home Mission Societies.

1967 CHARLES WALKER 'B to chaplain of Santa Clara County jail system, effective January 1973, from co-pastor of Trinity Baptist Church, Concord.

1971 PAUL C. CHRISTIE 'B to minister to the community, sponsored by Grace Baptist Church, First Christian Church and St. James Episcopal Church in San Jose, from coordinator for the Greater Richmond Interfaith Program.

1972 HOYT D. SHERWIN 'C to pastor of First Baptist Church, Reedsport, OR, effective February 1973.

1973 FRED A. ANSELL 'Cx, to campus ministry in Hays, KS.

New Arrivals

Congratulations to the happy parents on the following births:

LYNN VAN DYKE Piggot '62 B — a daughter, Heather Renee, on November 16, 1972, in Carrollton, IL. She joins a brother, William Franklin, 3, and a foster brother, David Robert, 2.

RICHARD BALSIGER '70 C—a daughter, Heather Ruth, on March 7, 1973.

SONDRA SAKALA '71 C — a daughter, Rebecca Suzanne, on February 10, 1973. After a leave, Mrs. Sakala returned this spring to her position as minister of education of Panorama Presbyterian Church, Panorama City.

In Memoriam

Sincere sympathy goes to the family on the death of:

C. W. WASHINGTON, SR. '48 B — on February 21, 1973 in San Jose where he was pastor of Antioch Baptist Church.

(continued from page 2)

Dr. Leland Hine, professor of church history, ABSW/Covina
Mrs. Maurice B. Hodge, former president, American Baptist Convention, Portland, OR
Dr. Paul Howard, professor of sociology, Linfield College, McMinnville, OR
Mrs. Walter Hunsaker, businesswoman, Long Beach
Dr. Blair Hurd, state department of education, Sacramento
Rev. Robert Huston, director of clergy relations, Forest Lawn Mortuaries, Glendale
Henry Jensen, public school administrator, San Jose
Dr. Thomas Kilgore, pastor, Second Baptist Church, Los Angeles, and former president of American Baptist Convention
Dr. Harold Lane, pastor, First Baptist Church, Menlo Park
Ernest Larsen, orange grower, Redlands
Dr. Elliott Mason, pastor, Trinity Baptist Church, Los Angeles
Norman Neste, head of Neste, Brudin and Stone, civil engineers, San Bernardino
Mrs. Gordon Packard, businesswoman, Atherton
Keith Patterson, olive processor and distributor, Strathmore
Roland Peterson, businessman, Oakland
Charles Pierpoint, retired vice president, University of Redlands
Dr. Robert Rasmussen, executive minister, American Baptist Churches of the West
Miss Harriet Robbins, retired school executive, Santa Monica
Dr. Elroy Shikles, pastor, First Baptist Church, Grand Junction, CO
Harold Smith, student, ABSW/Berkeley
Dr. J. Alfred Smith, pastor, Allen Temple Baptist Church, Oakland
Mrs. John Sparrowk, vice president, National Council of Churches, Ione
Richard Stratford, student, ABSW/Covina
Edward Waller, retired insurance executive, Berkeley

RESOLUTION

The Western Commission on the Ministry of the American Baptist Churches in the U.S.A. met in Oakland on March 11 and 12, 1973. After a report on the action on March 10 by the board of trustees of the American Baptist Seminary of the West, the commission passed the following resolution:

> The Western Commission on the Ministry, in cognizance of the crucial and history making decisions now in process in the American Baptist Seminary of the West, declares its deep interest in, concern for, and affirmation of the future of the Seminary. The Western Commission stands ready to be of service and support in whatever ways may be useful and desirable to the president, the administration, the faculty, and the students.

ASSURANCE ON ANNUITIES

"The moving of our degree program to a single campus at the end of next year has no effect on any of the annuity contracts. Income will continue to be paid regularly as provided for in the contracts. All charitable gift annuities with the American Baptist Seminary of the West are written in conformity with provisions of the Insurance Code administered by the California Commissioner of Insurance. This control and the high standards involved insure the donor of security in payments. The annuity program of the Seminary is a means of securing safe, guaranteed income for life while at the same time making a gift to the work of educating men and women for ministry.

"There is a new type of gift annuity which is called a deferred gift annuity. A person may place on deposit with the Seminary an amount now to be held until a period of one, five, or more years from now and then begin to receive an income based on their age at that time. The income will also be based on the principle deposited now plus the accrued interest. For further information write to the Seminary Development Office."

— Winston E. Neal

Alumni and Friends Are Cordially Invited to Attend

THE 1973 COMMENCEMENTS

Covina Campus — June 2

Set for 4 p.m. on Saturday, June 2, at the campus, the Covina commencement program will have a central theme of "The New Person in Jesus Christ" according to Dean Robert B. Laurin. "Recognizing the Old Testament promise of a new Exodus, a new heart and a new world, and accepting the new life brought by Jesus Christ, the graduating class will affirm their participation as new ministers."

Special music, a litany and "trialogical preaching" by a professor, an alumnus and a member of the graduating class will develop the theme.

Dr. Lawrence W. Allen will be the guest of honor at the Alumni Luncheon at 12:30 p.m. He is retiring after 25 years of service as professor, dean of students, vice president and assistant to the president. Reservations are necessary.

Berkeley Campus — June 9

The Berkeley commencement on Saturday, June 9, will be "A Drama in Three Acts," beginning at 10:00 a.m. on the campus. The first act will feature an address by Ann McGrew Bennett (Mrs. John C.), music by the brass ensemble of Berkeley's First Baptist Church and a litany of worship. Mrs. Bennett, a graduate of the University of Nebraska and Auburn Theological Seminary, has been active in public school and religious education, has been a member of national church boards and is an active member of peace groups.

The awarding of degrees, citations and awards will highlight the second act. Dr. Maurice P. Jackson will be acting dean and Dr. Harold B. Frazee will be marshal. The charge to the candidates will be by the faculty.

A luncheon sponsored by the Alumni Association and communion will be the third act. Reservations are necessary for the meal.

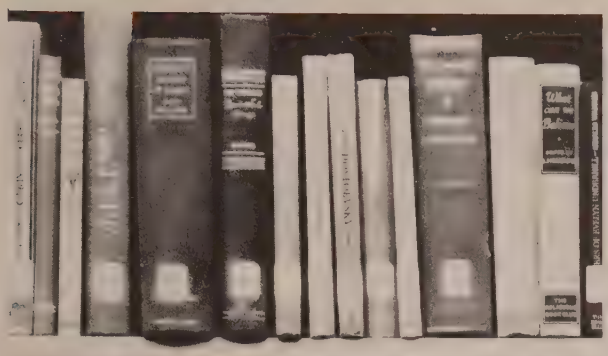
Dr. Lawrence W. Allen

Mrs. John C. Bennett

American Baptist Seminary of the West — 1300 E. Covina Hills Road, Covina, CA 91724

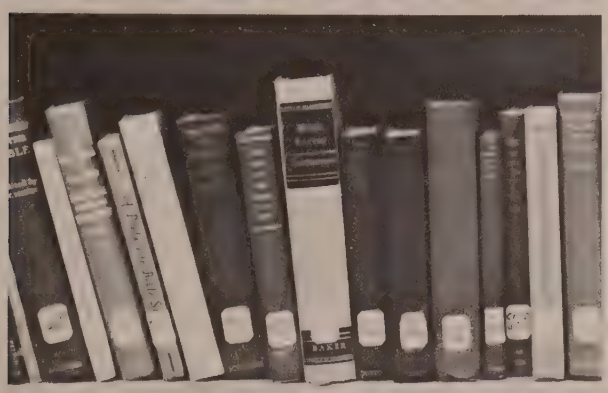
Director of Publications
Graduate Theological Union Library
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

OCT 17 1972

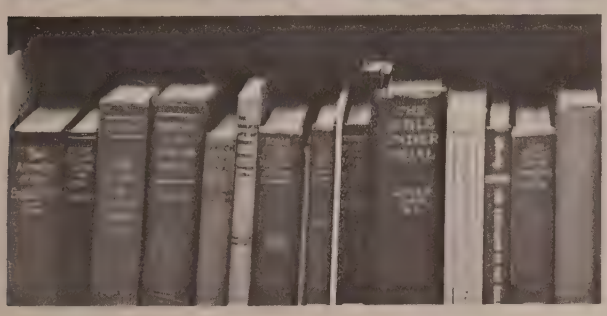


AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY OF THE WEST

Dimensions



OCTOBER 1972



Volume 4 Number 1

GRADUATE THEOLOGICAL UNION 1962

Fall Quarter Opens

A rich cross section of personalities, backgrounds and experiences make up the profile of the new and continuing students who have begun their fall quarter studies at the American Baptist Seminary of the West. Their goals for ministry include the pastorate (the largest single area), Christian education, teaching, missionary service, counseling and community outreach.

The students come from the U.S. and ten foreign countries, thirty-one states, ten denominations (American Baptist is the largest number), and have studied at fifty-two colleges and universities plus six graduate schools.

Two new students, husband and wife, have both taught in Belgium where they met. He is from Egypt with a doctorate in pharmacology and they plan to minister among Moslem Arabs. There are two other couples, one from India, where both husband and wife are full time students.

Included in the experiences of the students are nursing service in Zaire, a summer missionary term in Africa, work under the Office of Economic Opportunity, and the Peace Corps as well as service in the pastorate, church music, and Christian education.

Activities preceding the beginning of classes were highlighted by the annual student-faculty-staff retreats which gave opportunity for getting acquainted, recreation and the sharing of ideas, plans and aspirations. At Covina, where classes began on September 18, the retreat was again held at Alpine Conference Grounds in the San Bernardino Mountains. The first day of classes at Berkeley was October 2 with the retreat at Westminister House in Alamo. Other events prior to classes included an all-school potluck dinner, coffee hour, and a dessert social.

Covina Campus

FALL CONVOCATION

Friday, November 3, 1972

8:00 p.m.

CONAWAY CHAPEL

Speaker — Rev. Scott Irvine

Assistant Professor of Pastoral Counseling

A unique event with plans to award academic degrees for the first time at this time of year.

CLASPERS TO ASIA

Hong Kong will be "home base" for at least six months for Berkeley's dean, Dr. Paul Clasper, and his family as he begins a sabbatical leave in January, 1973. He will be engaged primarily in studying matters relating to China—Chinese religion, the Chinese revolution and the Christian mission as it relates to the Chinese people. He will also be studying the Chinese language.

Dr. Clasper will be returning to a "first love" in his study. His original interest in Christian missions concerned China but the Communist regime changed his plans. He spent 11 years in Burma as an American Baptist missionary, serving as vice-president and professor of theology at the Burma Divinity School. A high point of his leave will be a week in Burma with his family, his first return since leaving in 1963.

While in Asia, Dr. Clasper will spend one term on loan to the Southeast Asia Association of Theological Schools. He will be on a team to investigate seminaries in four countries, Burma, Thailand, Taiwan and the Philippines.

The Claspers' daughters, Cindy and Cathy, will be enrolled in the International School in Hong Kong. A recognized artist, Mrs. Clasper will be continuing her interest in sketching and painting. The Claspers will return to Berkeley in time for the opening of the seminary's fall quarter in 1973.

Kurt Schwalbe, 1971 M.Div. graduate of the Berkeley campus, is shown here with children of Chovar Village in the Katmandu Valley of Nepal. He and his wife, Elizabeth, spent a year here, from June 1971 to June 1972, studying the language, culture and religion of the Nepali and Tibetan people. He first became interested in the Tibetan culture and people through the handcrafts he sold in his work with an import business while in seminary.

Mr. Schwalbe arranged for Tibetan language study with Lama (priest) Sangye Tenzing, going to his home three afternoons a week. Located in the foothills of the Himalayan mountains, Chovar is a village of 300 people with a moderate climate. Houses are of stone and mud-like mortar with dirt floors and glassless, shuttered windows.

The Schwalbes came back to the U.S. in June and in September returned to Nepal for a second, more intensive year of study. They will be living in Serlo Gompa monastery where Mr. Schwalbe's teacher-priest is now living. It is near Junebese Village in the Solo Khumbu region in the "shadow" of Mt. Everest.

Next year Mr. Schwalbe will return to the Graduate Theological Union, where he is on leave from the M.A. program, to enroll for the Ph.D. degree.

DIMENSIONS is published by the American Baptist Seminary of the West with campuses at 2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, CA 94704, and at 1300 East Covina Hills Road, Covina, CA 91724. Issued in January, April, July and October. Second class postage paid at Covina, CA.

C. Adrian Heaton, President

Carol J. Goodman, Editor

POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to 1300 E. Covina Hills Rd., Covina, CA 91724.

Covina Alumni Council

(Left to right) Gary Mann '60, William Thurmond '71, Daniel Benedict '69, Elaine Halstead '70, Gary Barmore '67 (president), Maureen Brians '53, Alan Pollock '63, Louis Engle '71, and Everett Curry '67. (See story for other members not pictured.)

COVINA ALUMNI MEET

Under the leadership of President Gary E. Barmore, co-pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, San Bernardino, the Covina Alumni Council held an evaluation and goal-setting session. After determining major areas of concern, task groups were assigned to consider each area.

One major concern was the development of support systems for alumni, particularly those located too far from the seminary to utilize its resources. One task group is working on development of a means, perhaps small local study groups with the seminary providing resources, by which ministers can encourage each other in keeping up and moving ahead in ministry.

For the second year, the council will sponsor a series of "Clergy Queries" as an opportunity for ministers to encounter some pertinent issues. Proposed topics this year are: "New Church Life Styles"; "Process Thought"; "The New Testament and a Relevant Church"; "Church Group Management"; "The Charismatic Movement Today"; and "Racial Attitudes of Black and White Ministers."

Discovering the interests, needs and concerns of alumni was the assignment of another task group. As an initial step, Covina graduates will receive a questionnaire to help discover how the school and the alumni association can best serve their continuing needs.

Newly elected officers of the council, in addition to Mr. Barmore, are Everett Curry, vice-president, director of media ministries for the Los Angeles Baptist City Mission Society, and H. Louis Engle, secretary, minister of education at First Baptist Church, Santa Ana.

Members of the council not pictured above are Emil Authelet '60, William Herzog '69, William Schellenberger '62, Robert Paulus '62 (Northern California representative), Kenneth Weston '65 (Northwest representative), and Roger Price '63 (Midwest representative.

PRESIDENT'S DINNERS

Friday, December 1 — Gold Room of the Biltmore Hotel in Los Angeles

Friday, December 8 — Gold Ballroom of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel in San Francisco

Alumni News

News Briefs

1948 First Baptist Church, Nampa, ID, where LEO W. REED 'B is pastor, has undertaken major projects in their rural community of 20,000: a medical clinic for the poorer citizens, a ministry for over 1,000 mentally handicapped people, and a new home for the care of youthful offenders.

1949 "Burma: Majoring in Minorities" is an article by HAROLD SCHOCK 'B in the April 1972 issue of THE AMERICAN BAPTIST. He and his wife, ESTELLE (MIO '50 B), have been American Baptist missionaries since 1955, serving first in Burma, and assigned to Hong Kong in 1967. He visited Burma from his new post and reports especially on the work of the gospel among the minorities. The Schocks are presently on furlough in Yakima, WA.

1950 E. P. Y. SIMPSON 'B has been advanced from associate to full professor of history at Alderson-Broaddus College where he has served since 1969.

1952 The Perisho Award of Sioux Falls College was awarded to GORDON E. SMITH 'B "in recognition of outstanding and far-reaching service to his church, Christian higher education, and the community." He is director of education and development for the Baptist Hospital Fund, Inc., St. Paul, MN.

1953 ELMER J. DYMMEL 'C, Lt. Col., U.S. Air Force, was decorated with the Bronze Star for meritorious service in Vietnam. In May he was given the "Military Chaplain of the Year" award at the American Baptist Convention. He is now stationed at Vance AFB, OK . . . RICHARD M. JONES 'B, associate secretary in the office of planning and organizational development of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, has staff responsibility for Key 73, the continental evangelistic thrust. He has written an article in the May 1972 issue of THE AMERICAN BAPTIST on "Key 73: An Evangelistic Life Style."

1954 The RICHARD GREGORYS 'B returned in June to Thailand for another term as American Baptist missionaries. They stayed with the Paul Claspers and visited the Berkeley campus before flying to Thailand.

1955 ELBERT BEAMER 'B received the Ph.D. degree in philosophy from the University of Syracuse . . . WILBUR C. CHRISTIANS 'B Hon., recently retired after 20 years as pastor of First Baptist Church, Sacramento, and a former ABSW trustee, has been elected chaplain of the California State Senate . . . The BURTON E. WEIDMANS 'B continue as American Baptist missionaries in India. Early in 1972 they entertained a tour group of 18 American Baptists from the U.S. and later a college and seminary friend, JAMES DELKIN 'B.

1956 ROBERT R. DOLLAR 'B was clinical consultant for the American Baptist Assembly, Green Lake, WI, during the past summer. A new position inaugurated on an experimental basis in 1971, it provides additional resources to conference directors in group dynamics and interpersonal relations. It is being continued with an added emphasis on developing support systems within the assembly staff. Since 1964 Mr. Dollar has been a training consultant to the staff development and leaders group at Napa State Hospital . . . NATHAN W. TURNER 'B, program associate for family life education, American Baptist Board of Education and Publication, is on a leave of absence until June 1973 to complete requirements for a doctoral degree in psycho-educational processes at Temple University, Philadelphia, PA.

1959 The GEORGE GILLESPIES 'B, American Baptist missionaries in North East India, are engaged in helping to produce indigenous Christian literature. For the next year he will be on the faculty of Eastern Theological College, Jorhat.

1962 DONALD C. BUSHFIELD 'C is director of the new A.B.C. Counseling Service in Los Angeles. He continues on the staff of the Los Angeles Baptist City Mission Society who sponsor the new service together with local ABC churches. Serving on the advisory board are HARDEN V. ROWLAND '52 C, pastor of Del Aire Baptist Church, Hawthorne, and JAMES N. SCHULTZ '65 B, pastor of Lennox-Bethany Baptist, Inglewood . . . JOHN E. D'ABOY 'B received his Ph.D. degree in counseling from Arizona State University and is now assistant professor of counselor education at Gonzaga University. While at Arizona State he was a research fellow, a supervisor in the counselor training center, an NDEA fellow and completed a clinical internship in a Phoenix hospital. His wife, Diana, received her M.A. degree in elementary education at Arizona State. The D'Aboys and their four children reside in Spokane, WA . . . Congratulations to ROBERT PAULUS 'C, pastor of Belmont Baptist Church, Belmont, on his selection by the Belmont Jaycees as "Outstanding Citizen" of the year. He was cited for involvement with the YMCA, establishment of the Whole Earth "Hotline" (switchboard) and for setting up a foster home for girls.

1963 COLVIN BLANFORD 'B sent his best wishes as he wrote of his continuing responsibilities as executive director of Brooks House of Christian Service in Hammond, IN. Literally thousands of children, youth and adults are served in a variety

Berkeley Alumni Officers

(Left to right) David A. Sugarbaker '69, vice-president and representative for Northern California and Nevada; Mrs. Robert Orpinela (Johnette) '62, secretary; and Paul Howard '47, president.

ALUMNI PLANS

Dr. Paul Howard, associate professor of sociology at Linfield College and president of the Berkeley Alumni Association, presided at a meeting of the alumni executive committee and related seminary staff in July. The full council will meet in October.

A priority concern has been the development of a mutual support relationship among alumni and between the alumni and the school. This concern is building upon discussion of previous council meetings on the nature, function and structure of the alumni association. To implement the discussion, area representatives have been appointed and area task forces are being developed.

Serving with Dr. Howard are the Rev. David A. Sugarbaker, associate pastor of Northbrae Community Church, Berkeley; Mrs. Robert Orpinela (Johnette), Stockton; the Rev. Arlo Reichter '71, (Southwest representative), staff of First Baptist Church, Los Angeles; Miss Diana Zediker '57 (Northwest representative), staff of American Baptist Churches of the Northwest, Seattle; and the Rev. Allan Lee '60, (Rocky Mountains representative), associate pastor, Calvary Baptist Church, Denver.

---

of ways by Brooks House — breakfast program for children; educational programs (courses, tutorial help, study center); recreation; cultural development; employment counseling and placement; legal aid; health care; and library facilities . . . JAMES E. KILGORE 'C has been honored by Melrose Press of London, England, for his work in marriage and family counseling by inclusion in its volume, THE TWO THOUSAND MEN OF ACHIEVEMENT. Dr. Kilgore has offices in Atlanta, GA . . . The May 1972 LINFIELD COLLEGE BULLETIN carries an article by M. KENT MAYFIELD 'B on the Indian ritual theater of Kathakali. Director of cross-cultural education at Ottawa University, he has traveled widely to make special studies of certain aspects of the cultures of Japan and India.

1964 YOSHIHISA SAWANO 'B, professor at Kanto Gakuin, American Baptist-related university in Yokohama, and American Baptist missionary John F. Scott accompanied 19 second-year high school students from Japan to the U.S. where they visited the Berkeley campus of ABSW, other areas of California, including Yokohama's sister city of San Diego, the Grand Canyon and Las Vegas. Although students at a Christian school, none of the tour members is Christian.

1965 KENNETH WESTON 'C, associate pastor at First Baptist Church, Everett, WA, has joined with the pastor, ERNEST L. HASTINGS '60 C Hon., and three other men in forming Human Growth Associates, a counseling service located in a house owned by the church.

1966 HARLEY HUNT 'B has been elected to the Linfield College board of trustees. He is pastor of Gregory Heights Baptist Church, Seattle, WA.

1967 The CLAIBORNE ERICKSONS 'B and their five children are making their home in Eugene, OR, while on furlough as American Baptist missionaries in Thailand. He is attending the University of Oregon . . . Through his work with small groups of foreign students, JAMES JONES 'C, American Baptist missionary in Sweden, was asked for help by the Department of Clinical Psychology of the Swedish University in Uppsala. He was asked to design a project using the small group process as a means of helping students in emotional crisis situations. The project was accepted, receiving a financial grant from the university. He has received permission from the ABFMS and his student committee in Sweden to invest part of his ministry in the project which he hopes will become a therapeutic treatment program of benefit to the whole university community.

1969 JACQUELINE HINSON ALLEN 'B is a junior high counselor and English teacher in Fremont. She received her M.S. in education and her credential in counseling this past year from California State University in Hayward . . . STEPHEN HAMILTON 'B was ordained in April 1972 in the First Congregational Church, Elgin, IL, where he serves as minister of education. Preaching the ordination sermon was Dr. Bernard Loomer with the charge to the candidate given by Dr. Arthur Foster, former dean at the Berkeley campus and now at Chicago Theological Seminary.

1971 PHILIP BENNETT 'B is business manager of an inner city journal newspaper in Rochester, NY, which has recently received a government grant for a training program in journalism for inner city youth. He also has established the Urban Press of Rochester to encourage printing for community organizations . . . WILLIAM CLARKE 'B was ordained in Pleasant Hill Community Baptist Church in May 1972. The participants included Berkeley's dean, Dr. Paul Clasper; Dr. BOYCE VAN OSDEL '36 B, pastor of First Baptist, Oakland; Rev. Robert W. Pruitt, Mr. Clarke's grandfather; Rev. ROLAND SMITH '50 B, director of the Council of Churches of Central Contra Costa County; and Rev. DALE K. EDMONDSON, '57 B, pastor of the church . . . EUGENE MODELL 'B is working on his Ph.D. degree in San Diego with a goal of pastoral counseling . . . Best wishes to DONALD WELLS 'C and Connie Brink on their marriage in August in Iowa, where he is pastor of Anamosa Baptist Church.

1972 Point Richmond Baptist Church, EVAN ANDERSON 'B, pastor, joined with the other two churches of the Greater Point Richmond Parish for a unique event on July 23, 1972. They had held joint services before but on that Sunday the Baptist and First United Methodist churches met for worship with Our Lady of Mercy Catholic Church and shared in open communion for the first time.

New Arrivals

Congratulations to the happy parents on these births:

- GARY REIF '63 B — a son on September 9, 1971.
- CHARLES E. GRAVES '68 B — a daughter, Julie Lynne, on August 16, 1971.
- DAVID SUGARBAKER '69 B—a son, Allan David, on April 19, 1972.
- RONALD BERTSCH '71 C — a son on April 17, 1972.
- MICHAEL DYER '71 B and CAROL DUDLEY DYER '72 B — a son, Jeffrey Michael, on April 6, 1972.
- DANIEL ELLSWORTH '71 B—a son, David Daniel, on March 25, 1972.
- DONALD HARRINGTON '71 B — a daughter, Heather Sue, on April 4, 1972.
- CLAYTON FORD '72 C — a son in April 1972.
- ARLO REICHTER '72 B — a daughter, Kristie Marie, on August 17, 1972.
- STUART YOUNG '72x B — a daughter, Nicola Shareen, on June 22, 1972.

Fields of Service

1945 CHESTER NORTHRUP 'B (wife, GRACE '45x) to First Baptist Church, Tacoma, WA in evangelism from Pleasant Valley Community Baptist, Portland, OR.

1946 LORENZ R. MICHELSON 'B to western regional representative for the department of special gifts of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies and American Baptist Foreign Mission Society, September 1, from 12 years as director of missionary promotion for American Baptist Churches of the West.

1948 ALFRED H. DOUGLASS '48x B to pastor of First Baptist Church, Orange Cove, from Calvary Baptist, Sacramento.

1949 ROY L. MILAM 'C to associate pastor, Westlake Community Baptist Church, Daly City.

1950 ALLAN ANDERSON 'B to minister of education, First Baptist Church, Greeley, CO, in April 1972.

1952 ELAM J. ANDERSON 'B to pastor of First United Methodist Church, Emmett, ID, in June 1972 from three-year pastorate in Filer, ID . . . RICHARD HAWORTH 'B to minister of parish life, Lakeshore Avenue Baptist Church, Oakland, in areas of calling, administration and church organization from over four years on the staff of American Baptist Churches of the West . . . RODGER W. STEWART 'B from pastor of Immanuel Baptist Church, Spokane, WA but continuing as chaplain at Veterans Hospital and other institutions.

1953 WILBUR REES 'B to counseling coordinator of Lutheran Family Service, Pasco, WA, September 15, 1972, from Community Church, Richland, WA.

1954 JAMES T. LEDBETTER 'B from seven-year pastorate of First Baptist Church, Port Angeles, WA to area minister for the American Baptist Churches of the Northwest (Intermountain and Many Rivers areas), residing presently in Spokane.

1955 WILLIAM STURM 'B to professor of philosophy at Virginia Wesleyan College, Norfolk, VA, in September 1972 from Franklin College, IN.
1956 MARY H. MOLLOY '56x B to pastor of Community United Methodist Church, Caliente, NV, from five years as director of Christian education, First United Methodist Church, Stillwater, OK.
1957 JAMES LONG 'B to resident director of Redwood Glen Camp under the United Camps of Northern California, from American Baptist missionary to the Philippines.
1958 JAMES M. WOOD '58x B to state director of town and country and community ministers for Nebraska Baptist Convention, from pastorate of First Baptist Church, Alliance, NE.
1959 PAUL CONKLIN 'B to pastor of First Baptist Church, Rio Linda, from First Baptist Church, Reedley . . . LYNN E. HODGES 'B to executive director of the Northern California Ecumenical Council, from pastorate of First Congregational Church, Tacoma, WA . . . ROYCE L. JONES 'B to project manager for Northwest Baptist Home Society, directing development of group homes for the mentally retarded in Iowa, continuing as assistant vice-president of the American Baptist Management Corporation and serving as project consultant for Indiana, Massachusetts and other states.
1960 MAX W. MORGAN 'B Hon. to senior pastor of Delmar Baptist Church, St. Louis, MO, from almost 10 years at First Baptist, Wichita, KS.
1961 JAMES R. JOHNSON 'B and '72 C to pastor of First Baptist Church, Springfield, OR, from D.Min. program and previous pastorate at Kelso, WA.
1962 T. WAYNE MARTIN 'B to pastor of First Emmanuel Baptist Church, Sparks, NV, from Blossom Hill Baptist, San Jose . . . CLYDE WOODS 'B to director of Lutheran Family Service in Pasco, WA.
1963 DAVID LOGUE 'C to Greenwood, WI . . . RICHARD G. TAYLOR 'C to South Coastal Area Minister for American Baptist Churches of the West, from six-year pastorate at First Baptist, Ukiah.
1964 EVELYN BROWN 'B to director of Christian education, Federated Church, West Lafayette, IN.
1967 JAMES ELLAND 'C to staff of Calvary Baptist Church, Denver, CO, from pastorate of Paradise Valley Baptist, Las Vegas, NV.
1968 JAMES BRAGAN 'C to Calgary, Alberta, Canada . . . DANIEL J. REBASA 'C and Mrs. Rebasa to special service workers under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society in Buenos Aires, Argentina, serving in the Evangelical Methodist Church and as chaplain of Ward College, a secondary and normal school of 1,042 students.
1969 DANIEL BENEDICT 'C to pastor of Marengo Avenue United Methodist Church, Alhambra . . . ELEANOR MENKE 'B to program associate in the department of ministry with adults, American Baptist Board of Education and Publication, Valley Forge, PA, in September 1972, from five years as director of Christian education for First Baptist, Paterson, NJ . . . CLYDE B. REYNOLDS 'C to counselor with Help Line of the Los Angeles Baptist City Mission Society from minister of education at First Baptist, Las Vegas, NV.
1970 DONOVAN COOK 'B to associate pastor of University Baptist Church, Seattle, WA, from staff of First Baptist, Palo Alto . . . H. LOUIS ENGLE 'C to pastor of First Baptist Church, Monrovia . . . DONALD FORDEN 'C to staff of counseling center sponsored by First Baptist Church, Bakersfield, from assistant pastor of First Baptist, Porterville . . . BRUCE MARTIN 'C to youth minister, Catalina Baptist Church . . . E. LON SCHNEIDER 'C to First Baptist Church, New Hampton, IA.
1972 FRED ANSELL 'C to campus ministry in Fort Hays, KS . . . STANLEY L. SMITH 'B to pastor of Fowler Baptist Church, Fowler, CO.

In Memoriam

Sincere sympathy goes to the families on the death of these loved ones:
• HAROLD W. SWEEZEY '53 B Hon. — in June 1972 following surgery. He was pastor of Temple Baptist Church, La Habra.
• JOHN H. LEGATE '61x B — on July 6, 1972 after a long illness. He was pastor of First Baptist Church, Edmonds, WA.
• ROBERT W. WIEDENHAUPT '63 B — suddenly on May 17, 1972 of a massive heart attack.

Dr. James Lynwood Walker (left) of the ABSW, Berkeley, faculty discusses plans for Project Understanding with the Rev. Paul J. Schulze, director of the Center for Social Change in Oakland. Dr. Walker is project director and Mr. Schulze is director of training for the two-year program being launched this fall through Bay Area seminaries to deal with racism in suburban churches and communities. Under the direction of a bi-racial team of ministers, the project will involve 10 seminarians in special training to work with 25 selected churches in all-white Bay Area communities. The purpose is to change attitudes and systems that still discriminate against minority persons. Similar programs are being launched in Chicago, Atlanta and Los Angeles.

Commencement 1972

Local church ministry, missionary service, clinical training and further graduate study are the areas of involvement for the 1972 graduates with the pastorate the largest single area of ministry.

Highlights of the 26th annual commencement at the Covina campus, June 3, included "expressions of experience" by five graduating seniors, the conferring of the honorary Doctor of Literature degree on Dean Robert C. Campbell, and the awarding of prizes. David M. Morris, president of the senior class, received the Alumni Award for Preaching, and Daniel Franklin was given the Women's Auxiliary Award for Christian Leadership.

The personalized presentation of degrees, the awarding of prizes and the honoring of the class of 1922 were highlights of the Berkeley commencement on June 10. Dr. David T. Shannon, dean of faculty at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, gave the charge to the graduates. The Claiborne M. Hill Scholarship Prize was awarded to Klaus Jaehn and Phillip Reuter received the M. E. Bratcher Prize in functional theology.

Warren Hoffman (right), 1972 doctor of ministry graduate from the Covina campus, did an intensive three-month research project under the guidance of Dr. R. Eugene Crow (left), executive minister of the Pennsylvania Baptist Convention. He received 16 units of academic credit for his research into the structure and function of the American Baptist Convention, Pennsylvania Baptist Convention and Delaware Baptist Convention. It was the first time such an assignment had been under the direction of a state convention executive.

Graduates and guests following Covina commencement. →

THE CLASS OF 1922

Special recognition was given at the Berkeley commencement to the class of 1922 on their 50th anniversary. Three of the four members were present with their wives and are shown with Dr. and Mrs. Maurice P. Jackson (left): (left to right) Dr. and Mrs. V. Stanley Silke, Redlands; Dr. and Mrs. Elmer A. Fridell, Santa Barbara; and Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Hobart, Oakland. The fourth member of the class, Dr. Hubert C. Mathews, Springfield, MO, and Mrs. Mathews visited the seminary this summer and are pictured at the right. To honor them, four scholarships have been set up for the next year in the name of each man.

THE CLASSES OF 1972

Berkeley Campus

EVAN L. ANDERSON, JR., M.Div., (Brigham Young University), is studying for the doctor of ministry degree at San Francisco Theological Seminary.

JOHN F. BARTLESON, JR., M.Div., (Nebraska Wesleyan University), was ordained at Fayette, MO on May 31 and is pastor of the United Methodist Church, Doniphan, MO.

MICHAEL J. BURR, M.Div., (Western Washington State College).

ARTHUR A. CHUNG, M.Div., (San Francisco State College).

R. FRED CRAIG, M.Div., (Kansas State College of Pittsburg), is assistant pastor of the United Methodist Church, Santa Rosa.

CAROL DUDLEY DYER, M.Div., (Linfield College), was ordained at Immanuel United Church of Christ, Peoria, IL and is working with her pastor husband.

LOUISE A. HASS, M.Div., (St. Mary-of-the-Woods), is in the Th.M. program at ABSW, Berkeley.

KLAUS J. JAEHN, M.Div., (Baptist Seminary, Hamburg, Germany), has returned to Germany and is looking to the parish ministry.

NG FOOK SENG, M.R.E., (Chung Chi College, Hong Kong).

RAYMOND L. ORNDOFF, M.Div., (Warner Pacific College.

PHILLIP D. REUTER, M.Div., (Azusa Pacific College), was ordained in June at Point Richmond Baptist Church where he was co-pastor during seminary. He is now assistant pastor at First Baptist Church, Vallejo.

JAMES ALFRED SMITH, Th.M., (Western Baptist College; Missouri School of Religion), is continuing as pastor of Allen Temple Baptist Church, Oakland.

Covina Campus

TIMOTHY. R. ASHLEY, M.A., (Sioux Falls College), was ordained in Omaha, NE in August and is now doing graduate study in Old Testament at St. Andrews, Scotland.

GARY E. BARMORE, D.Min., (University of Redlands; California Baptist Theological Seminary), is continuing as pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, San Bernardino.

ROBERT A. BLACK, M.Div., (Biola College), is assistant pastor of First Baptist Church, Garden Grove.

RALPH R. BUNTING, M.Div., (Southern Oregon College), was ordained in June at Eastwood Baptist Church, Medford, OR and is pastor of East Princeton Baptist Church, Fresno.

DAVID C. CARLSON, M.A., (Wheaton College), is in graduate study in Biblical theology at Edinburgh, Scotland.

GRADY P. CASEY, M.Div., (Judson College).

KENICHI DOJO, D.Min., (Doshisha University, Japan).

DOUGLAS G. FARRELL, M.Div., (Judson College), is in clinical training at County General Hospital, Los Angeles.

W. CLAYTON FORD, JR., M.Div., (Davidson College), is assistant pastor at Judson Baptist Church, San Bernardino.

DANIEL D. FRANKLIN, M.Div., (Linfield College), was ordained in June at First Baptist Church, Whittier, and is now assistant pastor of Manette Community Church, Bremerton, WA.

J. DAVID GRAY, M.Div., (Taylor University), is working with Help Line under the Los Angeles Baptist City Mission Society.

WARREN L. HOFFMAN, D.Min., (Messiah College), is ministering in the Brethren Church, Salem, OR.

HOLMES F. IVES, M.A., (University of California, Santa Barbara), is continuing as head of the graphic arts department at the Covina campus.

JAMES R. JOHNSON, D.Min., (Linfield College; Berkeley Baptist Divinity School), is pastor of First Baptist Church, Springfield, OR.

CHARLES W. LONG, M.Div., (Southern University), was ordained in June at Athens Baptist Church, Los Angeles, where he is the pastor.

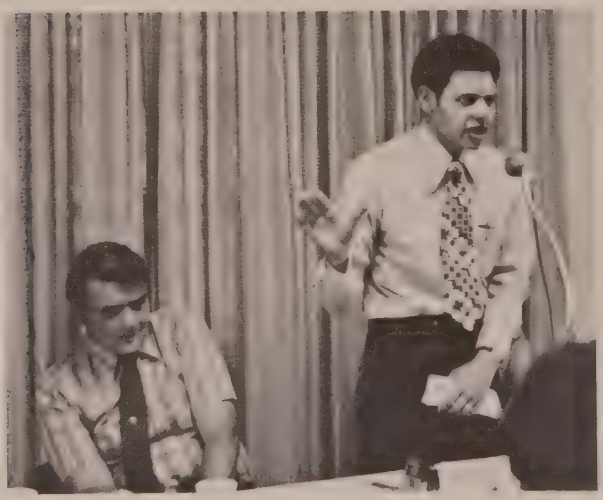
VIVAN H. MARTINDALE, M.Div., (King's College), is assistant pastor of Main Street Baptist Church, Binghampton, NY.

DAVID M. MORRIS, M.Div., (University of California, Los Angeles), was ordained in June at Second Baptist Church, Los Angeles, where he is on the staff.

J. BENNY PATTERSON, M.Div., (LaVerne College), is assistant pastor at La Jolla Presbyterian Church.

HOYT D. SHERWIN, M.Div., (Ottawa University), was ordained in June at Hillside Baptist Church, La Mirada.

H. WILBUR SKEELS, D.Min., (University of New Zealand; Fuller Theological Seminary), is continuing as pastor of First Baptist Church, Twenty-nine Palms.

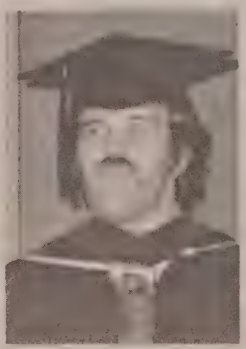


E. VICTOR SMITH, M.Div., (California State Polytechnic College), is assistant pastor of Paradise Valley Methodist Church, Phoenix, AZ.

PAUL E. STRID, M.Div., (Pomona College), was ordained in June at First Baptist Church, Fresno, and is now studying for a Ph.D. in history at UCLA.

WILLIAM THOMAS, M.A., (Jamestown College; Berkeley Baptist Divinity School), is counseling students in Belgium under the American Baptist Foreign Mission Society.

Presentation of the doctor of ministry candidates at Covina.



Covina senior class president, David M. Morris, shown here at the commencement luncheon, received the Alumni Award for Preaching.

Dean Robert C. Campbell received citation and honorary degree at Covina.

William Thomas

Victor Smith

Charles Long

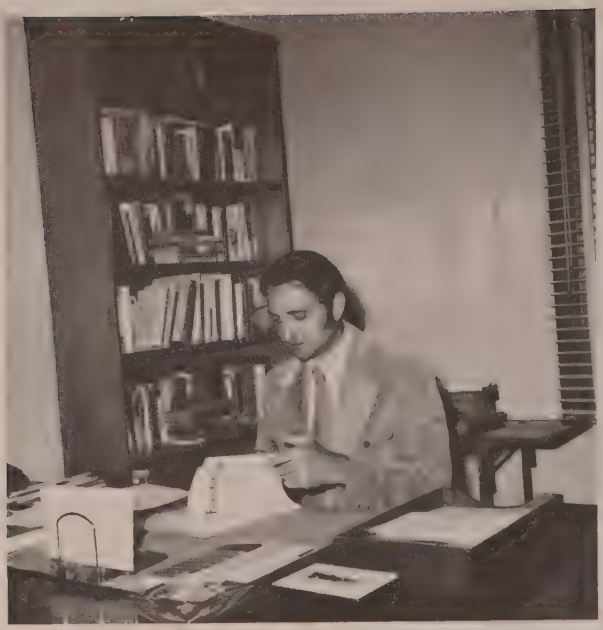
Timothy Ashley

Covina Student Speakers

David Carlson

Berkeley's class of 1972 with faculty and commencement participants.

Phillip Reuter, awarded the M. E. Bratcher Prize at Berkeley for outstanding ability in functional theology, with Mrs. Bratcher.



Alumni President R. Dale Johnson, Mrs. Frank Cralle and Dr. Maurice P. Jackson at Berkeley commencement.

Klaus Jaehn was awarded the Claiborne M. Hill Scholarship Prize by Berkeley.

President Heaton (left) and Dean Clasper at Berkeley with Mrs. A. Crawford Greene, chairman of the board of trustees, Graduate Theological Union.

DR. ERNST RETURNS FROM SABBATICAL

"Twentieth Century Issues of War and Peace: An Historical Statement of the American Baptist Convention's Stand" is an article for the winter 1972 issue of Foundations and one of the main projects during the spring quarter sabbatical of Dr. Eldon G. Ernst, Berkeley's associate professor of American religious history and the history of Christianity. He was asked to write the article by the Peace Task Force of the denomination's national agencies.

In researching the article Dr. Ernst studied denominational resolutions related to war and peace from 1908 through 1970 and found in them a remarkable consistency. He analyzes the denomination's position which has been peace-oriented, anti-militaristic and supportive of such organizations as the League of Nations and the United Nations.

During his sabbatical Dr. Ernst prepared for his participation in the International Congress of Learned Societies in the Field of Religion, held in Los Angeles, September 1-5, with some 3,000 scholars from around the world gathered for more than 370 scheduled events. Three years in the planning, the congress was held under the auspices of the Council on the Study of Religion which includes three Roman Catholic and five interdenominational theological and biblical societies. Dr. Ernst developed the theme and format, selected the speakers and presided at the session on "Religion, the American Revolution and the Civil Order."

As part of the cooperative evangelism thrust, Key 73, Dr. Ernst has been preparing a paper on the social dimensions of evangelism for presentation to the all-staff retreat of the American Baptist Home Mission Societies, November 13-15, at Valley Forge. The paper will be published next year in Foundations. Following the retreat he will be among a select group of American Baptist theologians who will continue in session to discuss the theological base and understanding for the Key 73 effort.

Dr. and Mrs. Ernst, who is assistant librarian at the Berkeley campus, are members of the Lakeshore Avenue Baptist Church, Oakland.

American Baptist Seminary of the West — 1300 E. Covina Hills Road, Covina, CA 91724

Director of Publications
Graduate Theological Union Library
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

AMERICAN BAPTIST SEMINARY OF THE WEST

Dimensions

JANUARY 1973

Volume 4 Number 2

Dr. Heaton

Report from the President

At its last meeting on November 18, 1972, the Board of Trustees met to review the progress of the Seminary and to take some important actions concerning our future. First, the Board voted that we move with all deliberate speed to enhance our interrelationships with the Graduate Theological Union (the cluster of seminaries in Berkeley). Although cash shortages require us to make changes in staff and programs, there is a deep commitment to enrich our curriculum at Berkeley. Dean Claude Welch of the GTU said he considered the overall approach of our Board as "bold and imaginative—a kind of move that we believe to be educationally desirable, even if it were not necessitated in part by economic considerations."

Second, the Board affirmed the kinds of suggestions by the Covina faculty for undergirding our program of theological education in the south. A part of the design in the south is to move the campus to Irvine.

Third, the Board voted unanimously to move at once toward a complete merger at the Board level of the seminaries now merely affiliated, namely, the Berkeley Baptist Divinity School and the California Baptist Theological Seminary.

To help see these decisions in perspective, let me review our current programs.

The Northern Campus (Berkeley)

In the midst of the cluster of nine seminaries contiguous with the University of California an exciting style of theological education has developed at our northern campus in Berkeley. Our American Baptist professors guide students to do theological study, engaging in confrontation and dialogue with major contemporary issues, exploring the Biblical and historical roots of their faith and developing skills for Christian ministry in our time. Our Baptist faculty is supplemented by more than one hundred professors in the other schools of the Graduate Theological Union. This means that

(continued on page 10)

Dean and Mrs. Clasper hosted an informal evening of fellowship for the students, faculty and staff of the Berkeley Campus. Professor John Burke at the pump organ and Dr. Clasper with his trumpet were joined in song by some of the group.

A clinical psychologist, two business executives, a career counselor and two pastors participated as resource persons for the fall course at ABSW Berkeley, "The Minister as Manager." Professor William L. Malcomson invited each one to speak to a particular area relating to the overall subject.

Sharing their expertise were:

Rev. Richard Ice, executive director, American Baptist Homes of the West — "Working with Volunteer Boards and Committees."

Dr. Robert C. Richard, clinical psychologist — "Conflict Management in the Local Church."

Rev. John Akers, pastor of Grace Baptist Church, San Jose, and

Rev. Al Van Selow, pastor of First Baptist Church, Stockton — "Styles of Ministerial Leadership."

Roy Hughes, vice president of Kaiser-Aetna — "Staff Relationships."

Rev. James Burns, career development counselor, Center for the Ministry — "Managerial Psychology."

Dr. Raymond Jennings, pastor of Berkeley's First Baptist Church, commented on the three seminarians working with him this year: "We are very fortunate in the young persons we have working with us from the seminary. In my own seminary days, I had a lot of zeal, too much confidence and the good fortune to work in churches whose members had a good measure of tolerance and patience. . . . I think today's seminarians . . . are more mature, more aware of the world around them and have much more poise and personal presence. . . . They communicate at a personal level, even when in the pulpit, in a remarkable way."

LOOKING AHEAD

Seminary of the West Breakfast

May 24, 1973

Radisson Cornhusker Hotel

Lincoln, Nebraska

$2.50

Convention of

American Baptist Churches in the USA

DIMENSIONS is published by the American Baptist Seminary of the West with campuses at 2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, CA 94704, and at 1300 East Covina Hills Road, Covina, CA 91724. Issued in January, April, July and October. Second class postage paid at Covina, CA.

C. Adrian Heaton, President

Carol J. Goodman, Editor

POSTMASTER: Please send Form 3579 to 1300 E. Covina Hills Rd., Covina, CA 91724.

George Markham (left) received his D.Min. diploma from Dr. Heaton.

DEGREES IN THE FALL

Academic degrees were awarded for the first time at a fall convocation of the Covina Campus. President C. Adrian Heaton and Dr. Robert B. Laurin participated in the conferring of degrees on November 3, 1972 to the following:

ROGER MARTIN MEYER, M.A., (California State Polytechnic College)
THOMAS WILLIAM MITCHINER, M.Div., (California State College at Long Beach)
ARTHUR CLARENCE MIZE, JR., M.Div., (University of Nevada)
LEE ROY M. BRANDES, D.Min., (Capital University; Evangelical Lutheran Seminary)

Professor Irvine used a black bust as he gave the convocation address on "Religious Foundations for Racial Attitudes."

GEORGE WILLIAM MARKHAM, D.Min., (Westmont College; California Baptist Theological Seminary)
CHARLES EDWARD SMITH, D.Min., (Oklahoma Baptist University; University of Arizona; Southeastern Baptist Theological Seminary)

Professor Scott Irvine delivered the convocation address on the subject, "Religious Foundations for Racial Attitudes." Other professors participating in the program were David H. Wallace, Culbert G. Rutenber and Robert H. Mitchell who was organist and conductor of the chapel choir.

While Dr. Paul Clasper is on sabbatical, any inquiries to the dean's office at the Berkeley campus will be handled by Mrs. Graharn Thornton, assistant to the dean and registrar.

PASTORATE FOR BARTLETT

The Seminary accepted with regret the resignation from the faculty of Dr. David L. Bartlett, assistant professor of New Testament at the Berkeley Campus. On January 1 he became pastor of the University Baptist Church, near the University of Minnesota, in Minneapolis. He also plans to do some teaching at one of the seminaries in the area.

Dr. C. Adrian Heaton, ABSW president, wrote to him saying, "Your work at the Seminary has been outstanding in quality and influence. You have excited the students to learning, have literally turned them on to the New Testament and have set before them a great example of Biblical preaching, rooted in the gospel and relevant to our times."

Last fall DR. RALPH E. KNUDSEN, Berkeley's dean emeritus, led a Bible conference at First Baptist Church, Boulder, CO, with two other conferences pending. He preached for three Sundays at San Jose's Church of the Foothills and one Sunday at First Baptist, Sacramento.

DR. OSWALD NIELSEN, ABSW trustee, is spending this year as a visiting professor in the School of Business of Florida State University at Tallahassee. He is a retired professor of business from Stanford University.

PRESIDENT C. ADRIAN HEATON is serving a six-year term on the accreditation commission of the American Association of Theological Schools.

KATHY JOHNSON, first year student from Kansas at the ABSW Berkeley Campus, was elected in December to serve on the new governing board for the next triennium of the National Council of Churches.

DRS. MYRON and JANET CHARTIER of the Covina faculty recently wrote FAITH INSIGHTS, a booklet of background essays for IMAGES OF FAITH, a media kit produced by the Franciscan Communications Center.

"Is It Safe to Shift to 'Interpersonal Theology'?" is the title of an article by Covina Professor Bernard R. Ramm in the December 1972 issue of ETERNITY magazine.

Serving on the program committee for the first biennial meeting of the American Baptist Churches in the U.S.A. in May 1973 are: MRS. MYRON CHARTIER (Janet) '63 C, guest lecturer in Christian education at Covina; LYNELL ARNOTT-JOHNSON, Berkeley senior; and the REV. JAMES ALFRED SMITH '72 B, Oakland pastor and ABSW trustee.

• Dr. Elmer C. Adams, former chairman of the board of trustees of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School, died suddenly on Friday, January 19, in Walnut Creek. Memorial services were held on January 23 in that city in Valley Baptist Church, where he was moderator of the congregation. Dr. Adams served for 20 years as a seminary trustee, five as chairman, 1961-66. He received the honorary doctor of divinity degree from Berkeley in 1950.

Dr. Adams was a pastor in New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, executive secretary of the Associated Baptist Conventions of Utah, Idaho and Montana and executive of the Oregon Baptist Convention. From 1957 until his retirement in 1970 he was an executive with the American Baptist Ministers and Missionaries Benefit Board, first serving the ten Western states with offices in Berkeley and later in Wellesley Hills, MA at the newly established Center for the Ministry. He and Mrs. Adams returned to the West Coast upon his retirement.

• Mrs. Grace Makinson, long-time friend of the Berkeley Baptist Divinity School and member of the First Baptist Church, Oakland, died in November, 1972 after an extended illness. She served on the seminary's board of trustees for many years and was an honorary trustee at the time of her death.

Mrs. Makinson gave two years as a special field representative of BBDS on behalf of the Living Endowment and Scholarship funds. During a 10-month tour of Baptist mission fields in China, Japan, India, Burma and the Philippines she visited a number of Berkeley alumni serving overseas. She was active in local and state Baptist women's work and served as president of the Oakland Council of Church Women.

"OPPORTUNITIES TO WITNESS"

The American Baptist Seminary of the West at Covina is one of six Baptist institutions in Southern California who have joined in The Pacific Southwest United Appeal to raise $3,100,000 in capital funds.

With the theme, "Opportunities to Witness," the campaign has earmarked $800,000 for the Seminary to provide a learning center with classroom and study facilities, new equipment and furnishings, a faculty center and a worship/assembly center.

The campaign is now in its major gifts program, seeking leadership gifts of $5,000 to $200,000 from members of the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest. The pledges are payable over a three-year period. The program provides "opportunities to witness" to contributors who wish to make memorial gifts which link service of the past with the on-going ministry of the six participating institutions.

Gifts are not restricted to residents of Southern California! All alumni, board members and friends of the Seminary are invited to share in the "most unique undertaking ever attempted" by the Pacific Southwest Baptists. Further information may be secured from the resident director of the campaign, the Rev. Edwin H. Shuman, P.S.U.A., 816 Figueroa Street, Los Angeles, CA 90017.

The five other institutions in the campaign are the Children's Baptist Home of Southern California; Atherton Baptist Homes; Los Angeles Baptist City Mission Society; American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest; and the University of Redlands.

NEW SCHOLARSHIP FUNDS

In December the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther Thomas and Mrs. Thomas gave a substantial gift to the American Baptist Churches of the Pacific Southwest to establish a scholarship fund for students for the ministry at the Covina Campus of ABSW. It will be named the Martin Luther and Florence Thomas Scholarship Fund.

Dr. Thomas, an octogenarian, served forty years as a military chaplain, living in many parts of the world. He retired as a colonel. According to Dr. C. Adrian Heaton, ABSW president, nothing shakes his positive witness for Christ nor his deep commitment to the Scriptures as the only hope for man in this world and the next. Dr. and Mrs. Thomas have founded churches wherever they lived, the latest being the Grand View Baptist Church in Riverside.

Dr. Heaton said, "We and future generations of ministerial students, along with the people they will serve, offer our hearty thanks to Dr. and Mrs. Thomas."

COVINA CAMPUS RETREAT

Tuning up!

Dr. Cyril Garrett waits for the serve.

Meal time!

ADJUNCT PROFESSOR

The Rev. Robert T. Frerichs, consultant for continuing education at the American Baptist Center for the Ministry in Oakland, is related to the American Baptist Seminary of the West, Berkeley, as an adjunct professor to help coordinate continuing education programs of the American Baptist Churches with seminary programs. A member of the staff of the division of Christian higher education of the American Baptist Board of Educational Ministries, he carries the title of associate director of continuing education and serves the western states.

In 1950 Mr. Frerichs was appointed to head the Rural Church Center at Green Lake, WI, an in-service training institution for town and country pastors and later led a similar program for urban ministers. For two years he was director of staff development for the American Baptist Home Mission Societies at Valley Forge, PA, supervising an extensive program of organizational development and staff training.

Mr. Frerichs is a graduate of Linfield College and Colgate-Rochester Divinity School and studied for three years at the Divinity School of the University of Chicago in the field of Christian worship. In 1966 he attended a three-month advanced management program at the Graduate School of Business Administration at Harvard University.

Dr. Genevieve Kelly, Covina librarian, served as president of the American Theological Library Association last year.

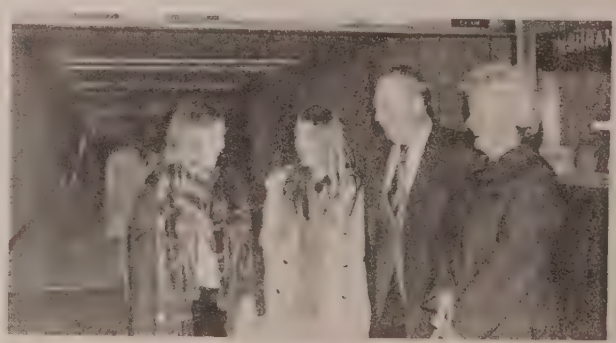
Abundant Living and Giving

Two people who know the meaning of living and giving are Mr. and Mrs. Alfred W. Oberg. Long-time friends of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School who continue to give to the on-going program of the Seminary, they recently added to an annuity they carry with the school. They give because they are "very much interested in young people and their education for ministry." Their own lives are filled with the zest for living and sharing.

Mrs. Oberg, born in a log cabin on the Montana prairie, lost her parents when she was young. Later she put herself through three years at Washington State University, majoring in civil engineering. On one of her many mountaineering trips she met Mr. Oberg who also had a great interest in mountain climbing. He is a lifetime member of the Sierra Club.

Mr. Oberg was born on a farm sixty miles from Omaha, NB. He left school at age 12 to work, returning to school at 19. His family moved to California and he attended what is now the University of Pacific. When he went to work for Western Electric Company installing power plants for Bell Telephone Company, he traveled from the Canadian to the Mexican border. After he and Mrs. Oberg were married, they lived in 39 locations in fifteen years.

Upon retirement in 1945, the Obergs settled in Hughson in the first home of their own. He had joined the First Baptist Church there in 1912. They have both been active in the life of that church where they still retain their membership although now living in Oakland at Grand Lake Gardens, the Baptist retirement residence. They attend the nearby Lakeshore Avenue Baptist Church.



Although they had no children of their own, their interest in young people is reflected in their giving to the Seminary and in work in P.T.A. and Cub Scouting with Mr. Oberg receiving the first P.T.A. honorary life membership awarded in Hughson. He was also the first in Hughson to receive the Silver Beaver award from the Boy Scouts of America for outstanding work with youth. Mrs. Oberg has been active in women's club work in the community and in the women's division of Farm Bureau.

The Obergs interest in travel has taken them on many trips: to Mexico by car; two trips to the East Coast; into Canada; a boat trip on the Delta Queen down the Ohio and Mississippi rivers; by freighter on the St. Lawrence Seaway; a 10-day boat trip to Alaska; but trip on the Alcan Highway to Fairbanks; a tour of Europe; two-month cruise to the South Pacific; and a six-week trip to the Holy Land. Mrs. Oberg shares these trips through travelogues illustrated with the color slides she takes.

The American Baptist Seminary is deeply indebted to the Obergs and friends like them who affirm life and the good news of the gospel through their abundant living and giving.

Berkeley's dean and his family, Dr. and Mrs. Paul Clasper, Cindy and Cathy, are shown about to board a plane for Hong Kong on sabbatical leave. Their first letter in January told of a warm reception, moving into a house in Kowloon, seeing old friends, meeting new friends, settling in school for the girls.

Alumni News

News Briefs

Three ABSW alumni are serving on the planning committee for the Baptist World Youth Congress, to be held in Portland, OR, July 31-August 4, 1974. Chairman of the committee is JOHN L. CARROLL '55 B, director of the American Baptist Board of Educational Ministries' department of ministry with youth. Among those on the committee are RICHARD ORR '66 B, co-pastor of First Baptist Church, McMinnville, OR, and WALTER PULLIAM '54 B, co-pastor of First Baptist Church, Seattle, WA.

1937 WILBUR LARSON 'B was honored by the board of managers of the American Baptist National Ministries for his 33 years of service. He has been BNM's secretary for the division of missions and will now transfer to International Ministries with responsibility for Latin American and Caribbean missions.

1943 ELLIOTT H. ROBINSON 'B retired from 20 years in the Air Force chaplaincy in December 1972. After a period of travel, he expects to settle in Port Angeles, WA.

1945 EDWARD H. TONG 'B, pastor of First Chinese Baptist Church, Fresno, is chairman of the Fresno Community Development Commission. Composed of representatives from districts of the city, the commission reports directly to the mayor and city council about needs of the communities.

1951 Chaplain (Major) CONARD O. EDWARDS 'B received the Army Commendation Medal for "heroism in connection with military operations" in Vietnam.

1952 ROBERT A. MURPHY 'B was given an award by the American Baptist Churches of the U.S.A. as "outstanding urban pastor" . . . LAWRENCE R. ODEGARD 'B received his master of social work degree from the University of Iowa in 1972. He is now associate professor of social work at the University of Dubuque in addition to being pastor of First United Methodist Church, Olin, IA.

1953 HILEY WARD 'B, religion editor of the DETROIT FREE PRESS since 1960, has written a new book, THE FAR-OUT SAINTS OF THE JESUS COMMUNES. Published by Association Press it is "a firsthand report and interpretation of the Jesus People movement." Mr. Ward made a cross-country tour of the communes and shared in the life-style of the youth, talking with them about their lives and beliefs.

1955 JOHN L. CARROLL 'B, director of ministry with youth for the American Baptist Board of Educational Ministries, is co-author with Keith L. Ignatius of a new book, YOUTH MINISTRY: SUNDAY, MONDAY AND EVERY DAY.

1957 DONALD L. BRAY 'C, pastor of Bethany Baptist Church of Montclair and former president of the Covina Campus alumni, is conducting an evangelism clinic for pastors in February using the Coral Ridge Evangelism Explosion method. He has attended two clinics, including one at Dr. James Kennedy's Coral Ridge Church in Fort Lauderdale, FL.

1958 WILLIAM BRAY 'B is in his fourth year as pastor of Waitsburg (WA) Presbyterian Church and currently serves as vice moderator of the presbytery of central Washington . . . ROBERT E. SHAW 'B, senior pastor of Prairie Baptist Church, Prairie Village, KS, is serving a three-year term as president of the national American Baptist Ministers Council. In this capacity he is a member of the general board of the American Baptist Churches of the U.S.A.

1960 LE ROY T. GARDNER 'B is in the residency chaplain program at Midway and Mounds Park hospitals in Minneapolis, MN.

1961 LONGRI AO '61x B from the Naga people of Northeast India is one of two Asian Baptist evangelists who will be in the United States during the spring of 1973 as part of the Key 73 evangelistic program. It is hoped that he will be present for the sessions of the American Baptist Churches in Lincoln, NE in May.

1966 PAUL E. POEHLMAN 'C, pastor of First Baptist Church, Darrington, WA and five teenage boys of his congregation spent two weeks in Central America, working in American Baptist missions and sightseeing. They worked at Colegio Bautista in El Salvador and visited other mission stations. They spent two years earning money for the trip.

1967 DONALD P. JORDAN 'B and his wife, JEANETTE (CHANDLER 'B), are living in Pontiac, MI where he is director of the West Oakland YMCA, Detroit Association, in nearby Milford.

1968 JANET DELOREY 'B became Mrs. Edward Joseph Baker on August 19, 1972. She continues as district director of Saginaw Valley Council Camp Fire Girls. He is office manager for a typewriter company . . . CHRISTINE E. MORTON 'B was ordained on October 15, 1972 in the Magnolia Congregational Church, Seattle, WA.

1969 JOHN R. LANDGRAF 'C recently completed requirements for the Th.D. degree at Claremont's School of Theology. He is a pastoral counselor and director of consultation and education at Inter-Faith Counseling Service in Scottsdale, AZ. His wife, Bobbie, is in graduate studies at Arizona State University.

1972 ARTHUR C. MIZE 'C was ordained on November 20, 1972 in the First Baptist Church of Reno, NV. He is now serving as minister of youth at the First Baptist Church, Olympia, WA.

Fields of Service

1938 R. DEAN GOODWIN '38x B, executive director of the division of communication of the American Baptist Churches, to the newly created position of public liaison executive for the ABC where he will coordinate and expedite matters relating to public relations, protocol and special communications.

1941 CARL D. LOCKE 'B to vice president of the American Baptist Management Corporation, living in Newhall.

1944 CHARLES R. MARTIN 'B to pastor of First Baptist Church, from Nevada-Sierra area minister of American Baptist Churches of the West.

1950 ALLAN W. ANDERSON 'B, minister of Christian education for First Baptist Church, Greeley, CO, to regional field counselor for American Baptist Churches' division of world mission support in the American Baptist Churches of the Rocky Mountains, effective January 1, 1973.

1951 WILLIAM TAPSCOTT 'B to managing director of Camp Koinonia, a Baptist camp in Ohio, from director of Christian education for Pittsburg Baptist Association.

1953 RICHARD M. JONES 'B, associate secretary, to secretary of the office of planning and organizational development in American Baptist Churches National Ministries, effective November 1, 1972.

1954 WILLIAM W. CADWALLADER, JR. 'B to foreign student advisor at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti, MI.

1955 EMMETT PARKS 'C Hon. to First Baptist Church, Merced, from First Baptist Church, Covina.

1957 DAYLE H. SCOTT 'B to minister of educational ministries for American Baptist Churches of the West, from six years as pastor of First Baptist Church, Eureka, effective December 1, 1972.

1959 M. JAMES METZGAR 'C to pastor of First Baptist Church, Blair, NE, from assistant pastor of First Baptist Church, Nacogdoches, TX . . . HAL C. ROBERTS 'C to Atherton Baptist Church, Inglewood, from four years at Glassell Park Baptist Church, Los Angeles.

1962 JAY P. WARDEN 'B to field counselor of the American Baptist Churches' division of world mission support for the American Baptist Churches of the Northwest and American Baptist Churches of Oregon, from pastorate of First Baptist Church, Pendleton, OR.

1963 RICHARD B. GRENELL 'B to First Baptist Church, Reno, NV, as minister of Christian education and youth, effective September 1972 . . . DOUGLAS C. WOOD 'C to executive director, Peninsula Branch of the San Francisco YMCA, effective September 15, 1972. His wife, Susan, is teaching nursing at San Francisco State College.

1964 DONALD HARLOW 'B to director of operations for Casa Royale Convalescent Hospitals, a new division of All-West which currently operates 41 hospitals on the West Coast. He is based in Oakland.

1967 R. TED NUTTING 'C to staff of First Baptist Church, Loveland, CO, to share in pastoral responsibilities and Christian education, from pastorate of First Baptist Church, Dubuque, IA . . . STEPHEN REDDY 'B to minister of youth and music of West Alameda Baptist Church, Lakewood, CO.

1968 THOMAS GINGERICH 'B to California Institute of Family Relations in Modesto, from staff of First Baptist Church, San Carlos.

1971 WAYNE B. ANDERSON 'B to minister of music at Valley Baptist Church, Walnut Creek. He continues as co-owner of Tupper and Reed music store in Berkeley . . . SONDRA SAKALA 'C to part-time director of Christian education at Panorama Presbyterian Church, Panorama City.

1972 CLAY FORD 'C to assistant pastor of First Baptist Church, Chula Vista, effective October 1972.

1973 DAVID ROBERTS 'C, completing work for the doctor of ministry degree, to pastor of the Federated Church, Palouse, WA.

New Arrivals

Congratulations to the happy parents on the following births:

- VAL J. SAUER '69 C — a daughter, Colleen June, on November 18, 1972.
- WILLIAM SEGURA '70x B — a son, Chad Key, on August 21, 1972.
- LARRY BOWDEN '71 B — a daughter, Natasha Larae, on September 24, 1972.
- CLARK LASHMETT '71 C — an adopted son.

In Memoriam

Sincere sympathy goes to the families on the death of these loved ones:

- MARJORIE HALL '43 B — in August, 1972 in Salem, OR.
- PAUL FONG, '47 B — on November 6, 1971. He was pastor of Chinese Baptist Church, Seattle, WA.
- ST. ELMO NAUMAN, SR., '39 B and '54 Hon. — on January 1, 1973, in La Quinta.

Ms. Durla Guzon, professor of life sciences at Central Philippine University, studied at the Covina Campus last fall.

(continued from page 1)

students in the master of divinity program (or any of the degree programs) may elect courses from this total faculty, giving a breadth and depth of resources which no one school could offer. At the same time, our Baptist students have the guidance of Baptist faculty, as advisors and teachers, and the fellowship of the Baptist seminary community and its related groups and churches.

The students are further enriched by a group of teaching pastors who help them relate their academic learnings to the practices of contemporary church ministries. From time to time a professor from our southern campus teaches for a quarter or more in Berkeley and in turn a professor from Berkeley may teach at the southern campus.

Providing additional resources for learning are the Center for Judaic Studies and the Center for Urban-Black Studies. Many Baptist leaders and students feel that the curriculum style we are using in the midst of a great ecumenical cluster and in the context of a community characterized by great intellectual and social ferment provides the best setting for the education of ministers in our day.

In addition to the master of divinity curriculum, which is the basic program to prepare for ordination, other degrees available to our students at Berkeley are: master of arts in religious studies; master of religious education for Christian educators; and two doctoral degrees, doctor of theology and doctor of philosophy.

Currently we are seeking to move our administrative and faculty offices and student housing from the present campus on the south side to the north side of the University of California. Almost all of our classes and our library resources are already on the north side. As funds become available, we will build or purchase facilities north of the University to provide an American Baptist center with offices and space for dialogue and fellowship groups.

The Southern Campus (Covina or Irvine)

A different style of theological education is carried on with vigor at our southern campus, now located in Covina. Plans are underway to move this campus to a site across the street from the University of California at Irvine, three miles from the Pacific Ocean near Newport Beach. The location is within easy reach of freeways, buses and planes for the massive population of the Los Angeles area and its field education opportunities. The Seminary hopes to move to Irvine by 1974.

For a decade the Covina faculty, assisted by students, pastors and educational experts have been developing a special and almost unique style of theological education. The three curriculum patterns at Covina leading to the master of arts degree or the master of divinity degree or the doctor of ministry degree stress team teaching in inter-disciplinary patterns. The basic courses avoid the traditional problems of repetition and proliferation while enabling the students to approach the various theological disciplines in the forms they will actually use in the ministry. The faculty believes that professional attitudes and competencies which the minister uses should be integral parts of the seminary curriculum.

The curriculum revolves around what the faculty has dubbed the "SPSP concept." These letters represent four main goals in the curriculum: first, the development of "spiritual persons"; second, the development of "persons" who understand themselves and the purposes of God in their lives; third, the preparation of "social" persons who are aware of the power structures and processes of the formal and informal interpersonal groups in which they live and must minister; and fourth, the curriculum seeks to develop "professional" ministers, those who have the intellectual and technical competence to carry out the varieties of tasks facing ministers today.

The curriculum at our southern campus uses the rich ecumenical sources of research and learning provided in journals, books and field experiences but is taught by a predominantly Baptist faculty of highly qualified men and women. There is a developing program of Hispanic studies being set up in cooperation with the American Baptist Hispanic Caucus and the agencies of our denomination.

Further Unification

The American Baptist Seminary is now seeking to bring about a complete merger at the Board level of the Berkeley Baptist Divinity School and the California Baptist Theological Seminary. Such a merger will mean greater flexibility, higher efficiency, greater economy of funds and personnel and quicker responses to the needs and concerns of our supporting constituency, the American Baptists in the West.

The legal existence of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School and California Baptist Seminary will be continued so that those who have made wills or have annuities with either one will be legally protected. We encourage friends of the Seminary to continue writing wills and annuities in the name of Berkeley Baptist Divinity School, 2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, CA 94704; or, California Baptist Theological Seminary, 1300 East Covina Hills Road, Covina, CA 91724; or American Baptist Seminary of the West, using the address of 1300 East Covina Hills Road, Covina, CA 91724.

Talking it over during the coffee hour at the Berkeley Campus orientation.

CHARITABLE GIFT ANNUITANTS NOW RECEIVE LARGER CHARITABLE DEDUCTIONS

Now when you give a Seminary Gift Annuity a larger portion of what you give is considered a charitable contribution and is deductible on your income tax return. New revised tables show that deductions for charitable contributions may be doubled in some cases.

And there is more good news! If you convert stock that has appreciated in value into a Seminary Gift Annuity, you will gain two ways:

First — you take advantage of the higher deduction for charitable contributions;

Second — you save on the capital gains tax. In addition, you can write off the capital gain over your life expectancy instead of reporting it all when you establish your annuity.

Frequently, the savings generated by a charitable deduction completely offset the capital gains tax.

Additionally, most of the income is treated by the government as tax-free income to you.

This is an excellent way to help the Seminary and at the same time insure yourself of safe, guaranteed income for the rest of your life.

* * * *

For further information, write for our booklet, The Seminary Gift Annuity. It will be sent free and without obligation. Address your request to:

Office of Development
American Baptist Seminary of the West
2606 Dwight Way, Berkeley, CA 94704
or 1300 East Covina Hills Rd., Covina, CA 91724

Director of Publications
Graduate Theological Union Library
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

NOV 2 8 1972

SIGNS OF SOUL

VOLUME III NUMBER 1 . NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE NEWSLETTER . JAN 1971

DETROIT BLACK CATHOLICS "NO SCHOOLS - NO CHURCHES"

By Sister Shawn Copeland, CSSF

[Sister Shawn is the chairman of the Michigan region of the NBSC]

With the passage of Proposal C, the parochial schools in Michigan face a precarious future. Inner-city parochial schools were hardest hit. The principals of Martin de Porres High School and St. Theresa-Visitation Elementary School, Joseph Dulin and Jesse Cotton, along with NBSC members, lay person-parents, teachers and students took up action to dramatize the concern blacks have for education in the inner-city. With the slogan, "No Schools- No Churches," the group "seized" Visitation and St. Theresa churches on two successive Sundays. The "seizures" involved the chaining of the church doors, thereby preventing the celebration of Masses. Both churches were unlocked for a soul-Mass which concluded the demonstrations.

State aid to parochial schools has plagued Michigan for some time. Tax payers saw Parochi-Aid as a threat to the public school system, draining them of dollars which could have been used for the improvement of the public schools. The purpose of Proposal C was to prohibit the passage of Parochi-Aid, a bill which would have poured badly needed money into the parochial schools of Michigan. Eventually, Proposal C grew in scope, and not only did it prohibit Parochi-Aid, but it also

(Continued on page 3)

NATIONAL OFFICE FOR BLACK CATHOLICS: A SHARED RESPONSIBILITY

By Brother Joseph Davis, Director - NOBC

Brother Davis

"What happens to a dream deferred?
Does it dry up
Like a raisin in the sun?
...
Maybe it just sags
Like a heavy load.
Or does it explode?"

In a very real sense, we can talk of the National Office for Black Catholics (NOBC) as being a "dream deferred." Deferred in that it was not funded to an acceptable level by the American hierarchy, the full scheme of the four regional offices with four service divisions cannot be immediately implemented. And because the minimum funds that were allocated were rejected, the National

(Continued on page 16)

BLACK SISTERS WANTED TO TEACH:

· Loretto High School, 723 S 45th St, Louisville, Kentucky 40211: contact S. Mary Swain, SL. Small school, 220 girls, 50% black. Opportunity for creativity and education experimentation.

· St. Thomas School, Beacon St., Waterbury, Connecticut 06704: contact S. Margaret Sugrue, SC. 280 students, 25% black, eight grades.

· Martin de Porres High School, Detroit, Michigan: contact Mr. Joseph Dulin, call collect 313 868-6855. Positions opened immediately or in September 1971. 540 students, 98% black.

· Martin Luther King Community School, Milwaukee, Wisconsin: contact: S. Reginalda Polk, 2661 N. 2nd St., Milwaukee Wis 53204. Eight grades, 99% black. Individualized instructions. Positions open immediately, June and September 1971.

NURSES NEEDED: St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital, Memphis, Tennessee: contact S. Jane Francis. Duties include home visits and research - nutrition and poverty in pre-school children.

Black sister needed to fill position as coordinator on NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE STAFF. Position opening in June 1971. Applicants must submit resumés by 1 March 1971. Application forms will be sent upon receipt of resumés.

PUBLICATIONS AVAILABLE

A limited supply of the proceedings from the NBSC's 1969 conference, "Black Survival: Past, Present and Future" are available at a special rate of $3.00 each. Also available are the 1969 retreat proceedings, "Black Soul: Life and Resurrection" at $1.00 each. Send requests for copies to the NBSC office.

SCHOLARSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

· Teachers College, Columbia Univ is offering tuition scholarships to minority students for full-time graduate study during the 1971-72 year.

· Postdoctoral fellowships in Afro-American, American Indian, Mexican-American Historical, Cultural and Social Studies offered by Nat'l Endowment for Humanities for year 1971-72.

· Advanced study fellowships for black Americans who have previously pursued, or arenowpursuing graduate studies. For the year 1971-72 by Ford Foundation.

· Doctoral fellowships for black students who have not yet started grad school - for the year 1971-72, by Ford Foundation.

[For further information on the foregoing scholarships and fellowships, contact S. Louis Marie Bryan, SC IMMEDIATELY at: St. Elizabeth Convent, Convent Station, New Jersey 07961

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Signs of Soul is published three times a year by the National Black Sisters' Conference, a non-profit socio-religious organization. Because of our continually expanding mailing list and the costs incumbent in publishing and distributing the newsletter, it is no longer expedient for us to be "giving it away" as we have been since its conception in 1969.

We are therefore offering subscriptions to non-members of the NBSC at a rate of $3.00 per year. All subscriptions and business correspondence should be addressed to: NBSC, 3333 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa 15213, Phone (412) 621-9677 ended shared-time services, reading and library services, health services and much more. The negative wording of the proposal confused voters: to pass the bill one had to vote "YES."

Voters on both sides of the issue campaigned long, loud and hard. Several black legislators opposed the proposal on the basis that Catholic schools are not really for black people. Black and white Catholics resented their stand. When the proposal passed, blacks were bitterly upset. White Catholics turned to them and retorted, "Your own people voted it down." True, and for good reason. Many blacks felt whatever aid that could have come would have been portioned off to white schools first, black schools receiving only the minimum in aid. What white Catholics ignored is the vote in two all-white, Catholic suburban cities on the outskirts of Detroit - Dearborn and Warren. In both cities, the "YES" vote was almost unanimous.

The whole incident caught John Cardinal Dearden and the School Office without alternate plans. Cardinal Dearden quickly regrouped forces and set up committees to study various approaches to survive without the money. What happened from then on is a series of unprecedented events in the history of American Roman Catholicism.

Cardinal Dearden set up the Archdiocesan Task Force to set standards which a school must meet if it wishes to remain open. The Task Force was composed of 32 members, 29 of them white; all the members were from suburban or fringe city areas. Of the three blacks, only one represented black people, the other two men were present because of Archdiocesan positions.

Puzzled and disturbed by statements from the hierarchy, blacks throughout the city caucused. The siezure of churches was devised as a plan of dramatization of concern for schools.

The first church "seized" was Visitation Church. Approximately 200 persons joined in the demonstration and rally held on the First Sunday of Advent, 1970, marching and singing for five hours. Another 100 persons joined the group for a soul-Mass concelebrated by Father Donald Clark, from Detroit, Father Phil Lyndon, from Baltimore, and Father Gerald Britz, pastor of the seized church.

After the Mass, a motorcade of 25 cars delivered a list of demands to the Cardinal's residence. The demands called for archdiocesan recognition of the number one priority in the inner-city as education, black input into archdiocesan decision making affecting blacks, the consolidation of parishes rather than the closure of schools, a reaffirmation of the Cardinal's previous commitments to inner-city education, and the Cardinal's presence at a meeting in the black community the following week.

SISTER SHAWN PONDERS THE CLOSING OF DETROIT'S INNER-CITY SCHOOLS

In the scheduled meeting with Cardinal Dearden, the Cardinal coldly and repeatedly told the gathering of more than 500 that black Catholics are "only" a minority in the Roman Catholic Church, and that the Catholic Church "is not concerned about color."

Rejecting the indifference of the Archdiocesan Task Force, black Catholics formed their own Christian Task Force. The 34 member Task Force represented a

(Continued on page 15)

Sister Yvonne Tucker (left), joined the staff of the National Black Sisters' Conference in June 1970, and has been busy arranging the finances of the Conference ever since. A native of Chicago, Sister Yvonne spent several years in Wisconsin as a Franciscan Sister, and in November of 1970 she was accepted as an affiliate member of the Pittsburgh Sisters of Mercy. In addition to her work as a member of the NBSC staff, Sister Yvonne is starting her second semester as a student at Carlow College, and still finds time to be an integral part of her new religious community.

BLACK SISTERS ACTIVE IN POSITIONS WITH NATIONAL BLACK CATHOLIC ORGANIZATIONS

Sister Callista Armand (right), and Sister Alfred Marie Russell (bottom right), have been released by their respective congregations to work full-time with Brother Joseph Davis and the National Office for Black Catholics (NOBC) in Washington, D.C.

Sister Callista arrived in Washington, D.C. in November to begin work as the assistant director of the NOBC. She was previously a school supervisor in the Diocese of Tulsa, Oklahoma, and is a member of the general council of the Sisters of the Holy Family in New Orleans.

Sister Alfred Marie, a Sister of St. Francis of Mary Immaculate in Joliet, Illinois relinquished her position as Director of Pharmaceutical Services at her congregation's hospital in Joliet, and as chairman of the Midwest region of the National Black Sisters' Conference in order to devote her time and talents to research and special projects for NOBC. Sister Alfred Marie joined the NOBC staff in October 1970.

Sister Alfred Marie (left), talks with Sister Antona Ebo, SSM at the 1970 NBSC Conference at Notre Dame

The contributions the sisters have made to the NOBC have been invaluable, especially in view of the financial struggle the NOBC must contend with, in addition to the routine struggle of affecting their programs, and, generally, making the Catholic Church relevant in the black community.

THE CHURCH, REVOLUTION AND BLACK CATHOLICS

By Sister M. Martin de Porres Grey, RSM

[Condensed from Sister Martin de Porres' article in the December 1970 issue of The Black Scholar]

The vital thrust behind almost every major revolution in this universe has been the man or woman who has stood in some spiritual creed or "religion." Spiritual leaders have historically done more to spearhead social and political change inside and outside of the church than any "common person" because religious can more easily cross social, economic and political hurdles: they can afford, politically and economically, to risk subversion and intimate involvement in bold transformations and innovations.

Creation itself was a deliberate revolution of the Spirit of God. The Christian parable of Adam and Eve in Genesis reveals Eve as the first revolutionary. Eve, like a spiritual leader in that she was replete with the life of God, could not stride in the Word of God about goodness; she was sure that something else had to be as good or better. As the story goes, "she bit into the forbidden fruit," and we may conclude that she savored upon the first taste of change. Her responsible radical and violent action came out of her personal suspicion of "other," and the consequences of her action were not only her own, but Adam's and ours. This revolution was in the real order of changing the governing and living of life - from the concept of all good to the concept of part evil. The interesting nugget here is that phenomenon of all revolutions: the innovative change or victory is never complete; the results of revolution live, but the consequences always vie straining with a part of what was conquered.

The Christian segment of the world's ideologies would proclaim Jesus Christ as the greatest historical revolutionary, although other radicals lived before His time. It is interesting that Christ's priority for living was to liberate His people - not God the Father who is analagous to our "religion" - but people: Christ lived in God but for people; because Christ was so much in God, it was not necessary to make God the Father a priority. It is necessary that one's philosophy nourishes and sustains his works. Christ, the living revolution and "church," reached people's philosophies or religion or reason for being through tending to their primary needs - providing them with food, clothing, shelter, and even "community" - a safe environment of persons like themselves. He, the "minority," the separatist, the non-conformist, created a movement and in the end his own people contributed to and supported the violent death of their own leader. Here again, violence was indispensable to revolution and rejection by one's own people was part of bringing about the revolution; nevertheless, irrevocable faithfulness to the conviction of liberation was mandatory.

THE RESULTS OF REVOLUTION LIVE, BUT THE CONSEQUENCES ALWAYS VIE STRAINING WITH A PART OF WHAT WAS CONQUERED.

Religion contributes to man's fullest development because it is the philosophy that challenges him to probe into the mystery of the chains and liberties of life, of man who lives seeking comrades and endeavoring to identify his enemies, and the intrigue of the mysterious initiative that graces man with the breath of life without his will and smothers it in a mysterous way against his will. Religion or creed can be as deified as any organized religion or as humanistic or secular as Marxism.

The most phenomenal characteristic of this pervasive interior philosophy is that this internalized creed is possessed by an individual, and is no good to the possessor unless he extends it beyond himself to people. Religion belongs to community. Once this creed is internalized by some, the process of institutionalization occurs; when a conviction or a concept is accepted or institutionalized, change occurs.

(Continued on Page 6)

There are certain ingredients common to the product of a revolution. The composition of a black revolution demands that we are cognizant of the fact that black people are a vital part of the history of this universe and our nation, and that out of this creed we forge a clear and detailed understanding of how we ought to be living for the safety and welfare and expansion of "the nation." For the black revolution to be, there must emerge a prophetic leader; there must also develop an unconditional faithfulness to the ways and means and goals of the prophet and the people. Black revolutionaries must have the courage to criticize and the ability to stand firm and alone as outsiders. White rejection has prepared black people to stand in and survive in spite of rejection. All black people have this quality in one way or another; this sense of outsidedness must be preserved by deliberately fostering and living our creative difference. All the social creativity that goes into actualizing this revolution is another step toward a new system of living.

Revolutions don't just happen; they are made and they are made by rebels who commit themselves unconditionally and in full faith to the ultimate cause of liberation and change to the degree that all other concerns are secondary to it, including the sacrifice of one's family, one's life, and other convictions. The church, by her very nature, is meant to be the revolutionary agent in all times. Again, recall the revolutionary Jesus Christ, the living institution, whose churchness was his mind and soul and body; the mind which comprehended the injustice and dehumanization of man by poverty and oppression, the soul which had the faith to pierce through the weird contradictions and ambiguities of life and conceive of and believe in the reality that all men were meant to be free and bent toward a power beyond themselves for the freedom of each other, and the body which had the strength to endure anything that bringing about human liberation called for. The pristine church of the living Christ was people and "nation" oriented and material only in the sense of providing the people's prime needs, such as food, shelter and clothing; likewise, the black revolution is not about money, although it needs money, it is first about people - the liberating redirection of a people's spiritual creed. Women and men who have chosen "religion" as their profession, especially those who profess such service to the example of Jesus Christ, must recognize that the guts of such a commitment demands a revolution within those committed to revolutionize those who are omitted.

THE CHURCH, BY NER VERY NATURE, IS MEANT TO BE THE REVOLUTIONARY AGENT IN ALL TIMES.

Scripture says, "The Kingdom of Heaven suffers violence and only the violent can bear it away." Black people suffer evil; it is impossible to resist it and liberate oneself from it without some form of violence to the oppressor. One cannot underestimate the revolutionary nature of an authentic "church" which supports each member to believe and live the conviction that we are here first to liberate one another. Therefore, we can say that the primary sociological, ethical, theological and moral purpose for a revolution is for the "common good" of a people. If the church and her constituency is to resurrect herself into involvement again, then she must dare to risk the change that a real revolution can force one to undergo.

(Continued on page 7)

Those who make peaceful revolution impossible will make violent revolution inevitable. JFK

THE CHURCH, REVOLUTION AND BLACK CATHOLICS (Cont'd)

The power of good or evil wrought through progress of subversion is nothing more than the creative energy to make a difference - a revolution. If God is the active and imminent initiative that energizes life, and if God is continuously changing throughout the whole of history, then we cannot resist the emergence of his creative revolutionary designs through us. Actualization of the powers beyond us can make a difference, although the difference may not be for the better.

OUR WINE IS BITTER,
BUT IT IS OURS.
JOSÉ MARTI

Black revolution within an institution has meant, to date, inclusion in almost every ramification of white life, especially as it affects black people. An authentic and full-course black revolution means an overthrow of all strains of control and the supplanting of a new system for the common good of the "nation." If the Catholic Church is going to engage in the black revolution for the freedom of black people, her black constituency must decide whether their energy is for the revolution of "inclusion or the revolution of "separation."

The church touches every ramification of black life, even if that touch brings forth conscious rejection and damnation of God or organized religion. Nevertheless, the church can still be the primary inductor of black people into the revolution just as it once was the primary inductor of persons into society; spirituality is indispensable to the revolution. In a dispassionate critique in his Anatomy of Revolution, Crane Brinton says that "the guts of a revolution comes on as fervor. This fervor must take on some ideological form." Regardless of the form, the fervor is synonomous with the courageous, faithful and passionate "fervor" of religion. This "religious fervor" is a composite of the Christian virtues of faith, hope and love. Faith is an attitude of being ultimately and unconditionally concerned, and the courage to do what is necessary regardless of the consequences. Hope waits, seeks, depends, and looks beyond the individual and the group with the national character of the sense of the possibility and the will to live. Love is an intelligent strong, vital, passionate, dangerous commitment to the development, freedom, safety and welfare of our "brothers and sisters" even at our own expense. These Christian virtues are the gut virtues of any revolution.

If the black Catholic Church or any organized religion is going to be relevant to anyone in the future, she must begin to deliberately form revolutionary persons concerned first with the gut liberation of people. Black brothers and sisters within and outside of organized religion must collaborate with and encourage black Catholics to, as Richard Wright puts it, "get into the thick of the struggle whether we like it or not." The unification of all our "souled" differences in a common effort to develop in the black corpus an interior cultural credibility that will enable us to live our convictions regardless of the consequences, that will help us believe that we have started this movement, and we can make a revolution and program a new future. The unification of all our differences in this common effort may well culminate into a new black religion.

We have seen
the light
and it is not our desire to be thrust back into darkness.
S. BOLIVAR

can I then conceive?

For all the child in you for all the woman in you for all of you
I want to say
Take care ~ for us.

On the sterility of Religious they were dressed up all dressed up they were dressed by themselves
no one else dared, shared = all too well they knew where hairs should be that buttons should be what they shouldn't see what shouldn't be seen;
Dearly Beloved
the Funeral began at 6:30 with Mass and ends
at 9-00 with compline.
mourn well for tomorrow
you shall mourn.

The Sisterhood

Sister,
You are my sister
Not because You wear an Afro
Or a veil
Use movement
Rhetoric
Have the convent mimic:
You are my sister
Cause
We all understand
What a mother Feels
When her childrens'
Shoes
Have no
Heels:
All's in the house
Is Bleached
Corn meal
What a father experiences
When his older extensions Utter spontaneously
"You didn't
Do a damn Thing for me."
What a people Feel:
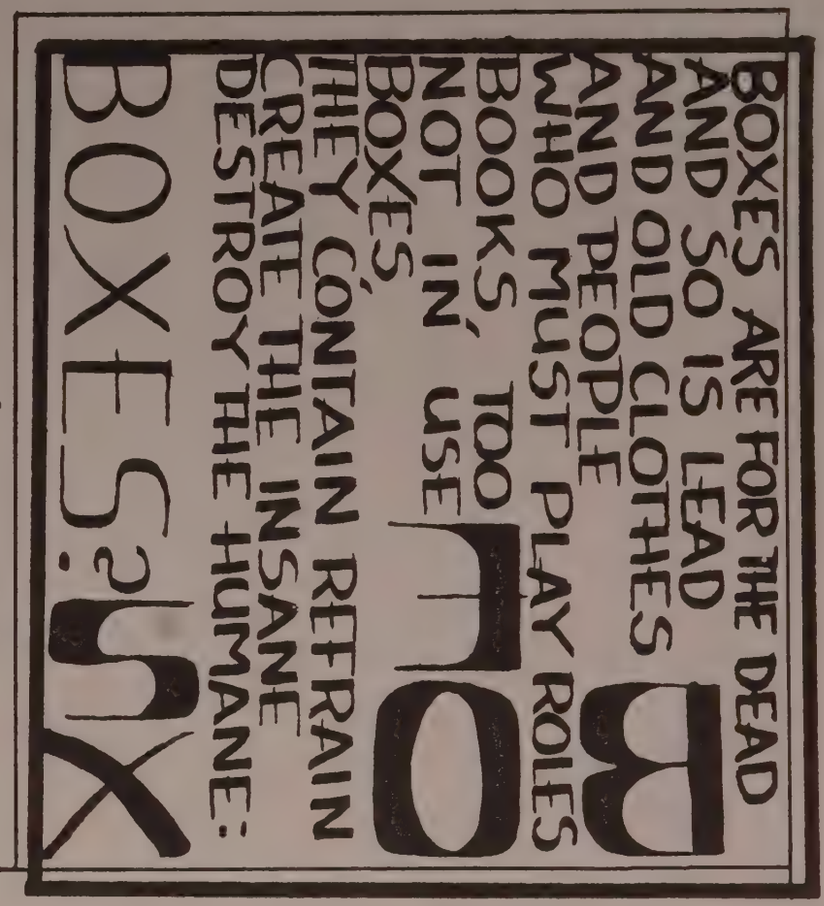
You are my sisters
Cause
You can feel
For real
The real.



POEM

BY TERRY PERRY

SOMETIMES IT BE'S WAY THAT YOU BE'S EMBARRASSED CONCERNED THAT YOU BE'S ABOUT ANOTHER'S BEING THAT YOU CARE

Daddy died
happy (the neighbors said).
All eleven of us were still alive
I mean all of (of age)
had gone to college.
None of us

How often I say
The wrong thing
I manipulate people.
Is it because I behold in their beauty delicacy uniqueness
A person is reaching out to me crying begging yearning
For gentleness.
A person --- can I become?
Oh, it is so easy
Just to behold
the redness of the apple the orangeness of the orange Redness conceals whiteness
Within there are seeds
Blood gushes from whiteness
The presence of all colors
Not one of which has come through as real
Has touched the real
The seed.
How often I run from hither and thither
Is it because I have not discovered treasured beheld
My own seed center to be-ness
A person is reaching out to me crying begging
yearning
For gentleness.

concerning cpt waiting for you and waiting

and you don't come or call and i find myself pulverized unruffled cause i know that you don't know that i am waiting-waiting

that is why

a prayer for me not be a body to be touched to be loved had been called criminals.

sm to one almost had doctorates.
Daddy died
(jim's neighbors said)
happy the neighbors said)
in locked-up world.

BLACK SISTER ON HOSPITAL SHIP S.S. HOPE

On January 8, the hospital ship S.S. Hope steamed out of Baltimore harbor bound for Kingston in the West Indies. Sister Thelma Mitchell, SSM, a pediatric nurse from St. Louis, has been selected to participate in this ten month medical teaching/treatment mission. Project HOPE, which sponsors the S.S. Hope, is the principle activity of the People-to-People Health Foundation, Inc., an independent, non-profit international health organization.

Sister Thelma received her nursing education from St. Louis University and the University of California in San Francisco where she received her Master's Degree. Before joining HOPE, she worked for San Francisco General Hospital.

SISTER AGNES ROLLE, OSB

The former Mother Superior of the Sisters of St. Martin de Porres, Sister Marie Agnes Rolle, OSB, died suddenly at St. Cloud Hospital in St. Cloud, Minnesota on 1 July 1970. A native of Nassau, Sister Agnes pioneered the amalgamation of the Sisters of St. Martin de Porres with the Sisters of St. Benedict, St. Joseph, Minnesota. She entered the Sisters of St. Martin de Porres in Nassau in 1938 - and pronounced perpetual vows as a Benedictine on 1 September 1963.

CMSW FEASIBILITY STUDY

Four members of the NBSC - Sisters Jamie Phelps, Martin de Porres Grey, Yvonne Irvin and Callista Armand - represent the Conference at regularly scheduled meetings of a CMSW Feasibility Group. Also included in the meetings are representatives of National Sisters Vocation Council, National Association of Women Religious, Sister Formation Conference, Conference of Major Superiors of Women, and National Coalition of American Nuns. Purpose of the meetings is to promote the development of religious life for women, and to keep abreast of what the national organizations of women religious are about.

BLACK CATHOLIC CLERGY CAUCUS ELECT FATHER LUCAS AS PRESIDENT

Dr. Oswald Bronson, President of the Interdenominational Theological Center, congratulates Father Lucas, while the executive committee of the Caucus looks on. From left: Rev. Albert McKnight, Dr. Bronson, Rev. Edwin Cabey, Rev. Lawrence Lucas, Rev. Rollins Lambert, Rev. August Thompson, Brother Joseph Davis, and Frater Thaddeus Posey.

Father Lucas, pastor of Resurrection Church in Harlem and chairman of the Eastern Region of the Black Catholic Clergy Caucus was elected president of the Caucus during their national conference in Atlanta, Georgia, November 9 - 13, 1970. Father August Thompson, pastor of Our Lady of Prompt Succor Church in Mansura, La. was elected vice-president.

Under the theme "Black Spirituality: A Stronger Soul for Building the Kingdom," highlights of the conference included presentations by Rev. Cabey, God and Liberation (see pg 11); Dr. Vincent Harding, On Being Religious Leaders for the New Black Generation; Dr. J. Deotis Roberts, Why a Black Clergy Caucus in 1970; and Miss Teresa Perry, Celibacy and Black Clerical Spirituality.

GOD AND LIBERATION

By Reverend Edwin Cabey, SVD

More and more black people are coming to realize that theology is meaningless unless it addresses itself to the most important need for survival today: the liberation of black people. The very concept of God as the Bible presents it is that He is the God of liberation.

No one in the Judeao-Christian tradition could remain true to himself without the deep conviction of God as liberator, and in our present situation, as the liberator of oppressed black people. To escape this harsh reality, we sometimes translate liberation as "salvation," which carries the soothing connotation of other-worldliness. White Christianity then tried to reach this as if God were not concerned with the political, educational and economic liberation of black people. This type of pseudo-Christianity must be rejected by blacks, who must come to view their oppression as the Israelites saw theirs, and vigorously fight for their liberation, convinced that God, the liberator of the oppressed, is fighting with them and for them.

One of the central themes in Israel's profession of faith in God is, "We were Pharoah's slaves in Egypt"(Deut 6,20). Pharaoh and Egypt are the protagonist. To the Israelites this was a symbol of man's power. Egypt was then considered the mightiest nation on earth that could impose its will on others. This only served to bolster the conviction of the Israelites of Yahweh's love for them and of his supreme power, when he could take on such a mighty nation in order to procure their liberation.

The Israelites grew increasingly numerous and strong, and Pharaoh feared that they might organize and demand their freedom: he therefore set about organizing a system of racial oppression in three stages:

...economic exploitation
...infanticide by the midwives
...general mobilization for racial infanticide

The police could now club an infant to death and get a promotion for doing it. Civilians could take the law into their own hands and drown any Hebrew boy they met and be praised for it. Man was reduced to the inhuman state in which lynching was acceptable. There would be no one to cry outrage.

No one? That was Pharaoh's miscalculation. He thought he only had to deal with a powerless race. Little did he realize that by oppressing poor people, he would have to tangle with the God of the poor and the oppressed who would be working for their liberation.

Pharaoh had asked his subjects to throw the Hebrew baby boys into the river in order to destroy them. In Moses' case, his own mother threw him into the river, not in order to drown him, but in an attempt to save him. And who should rescue him, but Pharaoh's own daughter. Pharaoh's daughter, like a good liberal, adopted the child and gave him an Egyptian name. Now Moses, who was destined to forcefully liberate his people from Pharoah's racist polices, was trained at the court of Pharaoh himself.

God first called upon Moses to be his spokesman and representative, but not before Moses had chosen to identify himself with the sufferings of his brothers, despite the allurements and easy life of the court administration. By this time, he was considered a criminal, a fugitive from the law. Yet he was the one Yahweh called upon to carry out his plan of liberation. Why Moses? Why not one of the task masters who would have been more acceptable to Pharaoh? It seems that Moses' orientation was not towards compromise, but for complete liberation.

God's plan for liberation outlined to Moses (Ex 3,16-22) is a four-point plan:

1) Gather the people together and tell them that Yahweh was about the business of their liberation. In spite of their broken spirits and a slave mentality, they would

(Continued on page 13)

Sisters Teresita Weind and Patricia Haley

PARISH MISSION

Father James Lyke, OFM Cap, a member of the Black Catholic Clergy Caucus and the pastor of St. Thomas Church in Memphis, Tennessee sponsored a week-end mission (retreat) for his approximately 900 parishoners. The mission won the approval and participation of almost 100% of the parishoners of St. Thomas, the only all-black parish in Memphis.

Sisters Teresita Weind, SMP, Patricia Haley, SCN and Martin de Porres Grey, RSM were invited to participate as ministers of the mission. Their presence served as an edification to the people of the position of black religious in the church and in the black community. Not only did they assure the youth and young adults that they were with them in the struggle, but they reached a group that too many within the church either take for granted, placate or ignore .. the elderly. In a special session with approximately 300 elderly women and men, Sister Teresita prayed with them, and together they praised God through their blackness and, perhaps for the first time, embraced their own blackness.

Through the art of music and dance and the historical experience of black people, the sisters taught the young and old alike of Christ the Liberator, and of His love for us.

The event also served as the dedication ceremony of two pictures painted by a St. Thomas parishoner, David Green. The paintings, shown below, are St. Martin de Porres, left, and St. Benedict the Moor, right.

HALLELUIA BAPTIST CHURCH

With Father Kenneth Brigham (of the Black Catholic Clergy Caucus) as celebrant, five sisters of the Midwest region of the NBSC, Sisters Jamie Phelps, Lucy Williams, Dorothy Jackson, Angela Murray and Teresita Weind, joined with the congregation of the Halleluia Baptist Church in a day devoted to black theology and liturgy.

The sisters reflected on TRUTH and the black experience, FEELINGS and the black situation, the relationship of CHRIST to the experience of the black man, and LIBERATION as it relates to the freedom of blacks in the oppressed circumstances.

Following this brief period of theology and catechetics in theory, the whole Church enfleshed the words and celebrated their truth on the Table of Sacrifice. Father Brigham truly inspired the Church to answer "AMEN" as an affirmation of the faith held in common by the community.

Hopefully, this experience will prove to be the first of what will become some very meaningful celebrations in the black community.

rally around the cry for liberation.

2) Negotiate: Once the goal of liberation was set as the focal point of unity, Moses asked to go with the elders of Israel to Pharaoh to try negotiations. It was a non-violent march and the demand was simple: "Give us leave to make a three days' journey into the wilderness to offer a sacrifice to Yahweh our God." (Ex 3,18) But God knew that Pharaoh was not going to concede anything. Any oppressor knows that once he concedes anything to the process of liberation, there would be no end to it. Compromise is out of the question. He either has to stop his oppression or tighten his control, thus setting the stage for a violent confrontation.

3) The power struggle: Realizing that man does not relinquish power by talk alone, God made plans to use his power to loosen Pharaoh's grip over the people. (Ex 3,19-20) There is no discussion of whether the means are going to be violent or non-violent. That would be irrelevant. The goal is liberation, and he will use appropriate means to achieve it. The oppressor is the one who really decides how far God must push him before he gives up his oppression.

4) Reparation: Liberation is for living, and the process is not complete until the people can live as free human beings. We blacks know only too well that the shackles of slavery can be removed only to be replaced by other forms of racist oppression. This happens whenever adequate reparation, that should provide the means for living, is not included as an integral part of liberation. God would make sure that his people exact reparation, not just from the government, but from the Egyptian populace who directly or indirectly profited from the oppression and exploitation of the Israelites. (Ex 3, 21-22)

Moses went back to Egypt and immediately started to follow out God's plan for liberation. He gathered together the Israelites and they confronted Pharaoh. Pharaoh continually tried to control the people, but God continued to fight with them to preserve their freedom. At the Red Sea the Israelites witnessed what God does to the armies of the oppressor. "Israel witnessed the great act that Yahweh performed against the Egyptians, and the people venerated Yahweh; they put their faith in Yahweh and in Moses, his servant." (Ex 14,31)

THE MORE THEY WERE CRUSHED, THE MORE THEY INCREASED AND SPREAD. (Ex 1,12)

Free at last! Yes, God Almighty had freed them! Now they can celebrate, as they did in the song of freedom in Exodus 5,1-21. They had something to celebrate - their freedom. And the only God worth worshipping was the God of their liberation.

"It's nation time!" The kingdom of God is near. For black people today any religious celebration that does not pertain to their liberation is meaningless. The only God we can worship is the God who fights with us for freedom and liberation.

If we black Catholics have anything to celebrate today, it is because we have scratched the surface of liberation through pretty much the same process as the Israelites went through with Pharaoh.

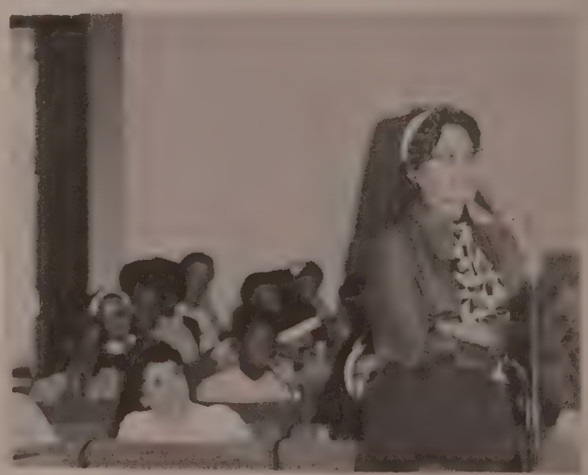
The question we have to ask ourselves now, is whether we can achieve full liberation within the church and by what means. The example of Pharaoh is clear. He does not give up power willingly. As soon as the pressure is lifted he would use any means to keep the people in slavery. That we do not want to see happen, for that would be a denial of our God, the God of liberation.

. . . .

[Father Cabey is a Scripture Scholar at Divine Word College, Epworth, Iowa. This article is condensed from his presentation at the Black Catholic Clergy Caucus, 11/13/70]

Book Review

BLACK PRIEST - WHITE CHURCH
Random House $6.95
Father Lawrence Lucas



By Sister Francesca Thompson, OSF

"Nigger first, priest second," that is what Lawrence Lucas says he wishes to be. I think he has made it. I am even more convinced after reading his book, BLACK PRIEST-WHITE CHURCH. Lucas' book is a journey into his own experience as a black man endeavoring to adjust to a white church and a white mentality. Lucas did not and could not make that adjustment. Too bad for Lucas? Oh, no! Too bad for the white church and all the white churchmen who must now bear Lucas' censure. And censure Lucas does as he takes us step by step through his struggle for survival as a "nigger" within a white racist institution.

Some may say that Lucas' book is too personal. Perhaps one would have wished him to take a wider, broader, more comprehensive view, but a man does not write a personal account without delving into his own past and into his own very personal experience. Being personal, Lucas draws very well defined conclusions about the Catholic Church and about blacks within that church as it exists and operates today. (Sad to say operations today are much like operations of yesteryear.)

The chapters of the book read like a litany and they also resemble a questionnaire. It is a questionnaire that many blacks would do well to answer for themselves, personally. "LAWDY, I WENT THROUGH THE WHITENING PROCESS: BASICALLY, LORD, IT'S ALL RACISM: MY LORD, WHAT HAVE THEY DONE TO YOU?: MY LORD, WHAT HAVE THEY DONE TO THEMSELVES?: MY LORD, WHAT HAVE THEY DONE TO YOUR PEOPLE?: MY LORD, WHAT MUST THEY DO?: LAWD, WHAT ABOUT ME?" The final chapter title, I believe, should be the question that the reader comes away pondering. Of course, we cannot all answer that question as Father Lucas has answered it, but at least the impetus to answer it should be given from even a cursory reading of Lucas' "self-tale."

It is an old story, it is a sad story, but good reading, especially for those prone to ask, "What is wrong with the church? Why must these radicals continue to attack it so?" Lucas does attack the institutional church, the "system," but he also gives good reasons for sticking with it and fighting to survive within it.

Sister Francesca

As far as this reviewer is concerned, his reasons for sticking give us hope and cause for rejoicing, "The age of miracles is NOT past." As long as there are black Lucas' to re-tell this story, then there must be readers to continue to ask themselves that final soul-searing question and there must be readers who are ready and willing to come to terms, as Lucas has done, with the answer. Pray God we can admit at least that the question is there to be answered, "Lawd, what about me?"

. . . .

[Sister Francesca is a Doctoral Candidate in Speech and Theatre at the University of Michigan.]

"No Schools - No Churches" - (Cont'd)

cross-section of the Archdiocese - black and white students, teachers, parents, clergy and religious - covering Metropolitan Detroit and suburbs. The Task Force submitted four recommendations to the Archbishop:

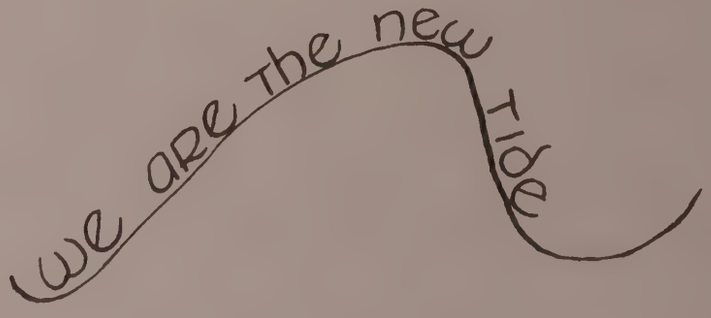
...That the Archdiocese sponsor a quality education system for schools with a majority of minority groups, such as blacks, browns, reds, yellows, and poor whites.

...That the diocesan quota be increased sufficiently to support the new educational system.

...That the local school communities benefiting directly from the new educational system be encouraged to provide a substantial number of scholarships to those students unable to take advantage of the education provided.

...That a new school office be established, controlled and administered by a central school board made up of representatives of the local school boards.

THE MOST SIGNIFICANT CONTRIBUTION THE CHURCH HAS MADE TO BLACKS HAS BEEN THROUGH EDUCATION



After the meeting of the Task Force, black Catholics gathered support from blacks throughout the city and discussed church "seizures." The "seizure was chosen as the action because of its dramatic appeal. Symbolic as the seizure was, it also directly related to the many times blacks have been "locked out" of Catholic Churches.

Black people in Detroit are beginning to value their schools more than their churches. Quality education for blacks may be the key to breaking the "hellish circle of poverty." And it is true: the most significant contribution the church has made to blacks has been through education.

On Christmas Eve, nearly 160 Catholics met at St. Martin de Porres High School for the liturgy of the word. After the reading of the Scriptures, singing and praying, the group drove to the Cathedral of the Archdiocese and celebrated the liturgy of the Eucharist on the steps of the Cathedral. The group symbolically locked themselves out of the Church. After the service, several members of the group entered the Cathedral and remained seated throughout the ceremony as a sign of their lack of union with those attending the Cardinal's Christmas Eve Mass. After the Communion rite an "edict" was read, a Christmas message which offered a prophecy. The message, read by Mr. Jesse Cotton and Sister Shawn, interpreted the parable of Jesus cursing the fig tree: "If the church can only bear the fruits of disillusionment and despair, like the fig tree, may she be cursed, wither, and die."

In Detroit, the struggle continues. The scope of the protest has widened considerably and the tactics will change as needed. Yet, there are new questions to be answered and new challenges to be posed.

"Symbolic" seizures can go on for the next one hundred years accomplishing little practical and fewer moral goals. A concrete and definite step is needed for the "black Church in Detroit" to enter into, accept and fulfill its divine and eternal inheritance in Christ. The "Black Church in Detroit" must not only witness to Christ, but perhaps, the "Black Church in Detroit" must be Christ. And if they must be Christ cleansing the temple of duplicity, moneyed and political religion, then that is the Christ they must be. For if the "Black Church in Detroit" can truly liberate their "blackness," if they can truly celebrate Christmas as "their rebirth in blackness," the "Black Church in Detroit" may be able to liberate us all.

NATIONAL OFFICE FOR BLACK CATHOLICS
(Continued from page 1)

Office, the heart of the NOBC program, must redefine goals, objectives and purposes, and redirect energies.

Certainly we would be fooling only ourselves if we would not admin that what we have carried from a pure concept to material reality during the past two years could dry up, remaining as a somewhat painful memory for all of us. That could happen if anyone of us allowed ourselves to forget that NOBC was there. It does exist and is about the business of exploring the issues that are important to all of us and at the same time creating that kind of public which will enable it to expand. NOBC could dry up were we to forget that it was a shared dream and, consequently, a shared responsibility.

What has NOBC been doing? What are the issues it is pursuing? How is it creating an audience of support?

During the past two months, those of us involved in the day to day functioning of the National Office have been taking a serious look at the practicability and desirability of trying to keep the NOBC a living and functioning organization. There is little question about the desirability part. Black Catholics need an organization that will do two things: one, assist them in the development of a more effective and official voice for black Catholics in matters that are of concern to them. Typical of our activities has been our involvement in local areas in organizing and strengthening black Catholic caucuses, promoting black unity Masses, helping initiate in-depth studies of three Catholic parishes in a particular black community. Issues on which NOBC has spoken out or is in the process of investigating are the sentencing to death of the black African bishop by his government, the expelling of blacks from a Catholic parish in Cairo, Illinois, the question of state and federal aid to Catholic schools, the reconstructing of a "white" Catholic Church in Past Christian, Mississippi, etc. Every day there are new issues coming to our attention which really need an advocate or a challenger.

The latest question for NOBC is not the desirability, but the possibility of keeping it alive and that is where all the options for a dream deferred are left to us. It is a difficult thing to determine the right option. We can never be absolutely sure. However, we do have some guidelines to help us make that determination - especially the original dream. What did we have in mind when we set out? What did we want NOBC to be or do? Putting all the best indicators together, the National Office should neither dry up or sag like a heavy load, but should explode into a creative pace-setting catalyst for the entire American church.

The future is bright because there is a world of opportunity that lies open to NOBC. It is the very world - local, diocesan and national - that you and I live in. The problems that you see around you everyday are opportunities for NOBC. That is why the notion of a shared responsibility is so important. NOBC has to be a national office for all black Catholic clergy, religious and lay. It is the umbrella under which individually and collectively, we can most effectively work toward black liberation.

"What happens to a dream deferred?" The answer depends as much on you as on me. We should keep NOBC alive. We can keep NOBC alive. We intend to keep NOBC alive. We all committed ourselves. In keeping with our commitment, let us shoulder our responsibility.

BLACK SISTERS' RETREAT

The NBSC has confirmed a location for its Easter week retreat, 12 - 16 April 1971. The retreat will be held in Baltimore, Maryland at the Motherhouse of the Oblate Sisters of Providence. Complete cost: $25 per sister. Interested sisters write: NBSC, 3333 5th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa 15213.

NOV 2 8 1972

SIGNS OF SOUL

VOLUME III NUMBER 2 • NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE NEWSLETTER • MAY 1971

Who can be born black and not sing

the wonder of it the joy
the challenge

Who can be born black and not exult!

Mari Evans

CO-OPS AND THE QUIET REVOLUTION

Father Albert McKnight

When Father Albert McKnight, CSSp, was assigned to rural Louisiana in the mid-1950's (Father was raised in Brooklyn), he found a population in which 75% of blacks over 25 years old could not read or write. The adult literacy classes he set up to alleviate the illiteracy were a failure -- nobody was interested. Economics, or purchasing power, directly influences the realization of the other human aspirations. Since few had any purchasing power, they didn't aspire to much else.

Because his parishoners could not get loans or establish credit, Father McKnight set up credit unions and other economic programs to establish purchasing power. The credit unions grew and became popular in the area around his parish, and he began to feel the need for one large organization that could bring people together from all over the state. Because he could not get a charter for a statewide credit union, and because co-ops were easier to get a charter for, Southern Consumer's Cooperative was established in 1962. Southern Consumer's is an investment holding company, and is one of the largest black economic development programs in the South with a membership of over 2000. Several small businesses have been started with the invested money.

Father McKnight saw a need for more co-ops, especially to protect the black farmers and assure sale of their produce. Blacks who worked on plantations had to be let go because of mechanization of cotton farming. Many others were let go as reprisals for civil rights activities. It was almost impossible to start their own farms because of discrimination of FHA (Farmers Home Administration) loans. Those who did farm were just limping along trying to get a few cents for their potatoes from the white buyers. Prior to the establishment of a co-op, white buyers who controlled the market were paying black growers 25¢ to 30¢ for a bushel of sweet potatoes that they would resell for $2.50 to $3.25 a bushel.

When the agricultural co-op was established, the co-op bought the product from its black farmer members at $2.50 to $3.25 per bushel, and thereby forced existing companies to pay fairer prices for the farmers' products. The co-op has brought its farmer members hope that a future remains for black people wishing to continue to live and work in the rural South. (Continued on page 14)

BLACK SISTERS WANTED TO TEACH:

[All openings for teachers effective in September 1971]

· St. Joseph Community School, 18 Hulbert St., Roxbury, Massachusetts 02119: contact Sister Sylvia Thibodeaux, SSF, principal. Progressive and unique urban school divided into 3 non-graded levels: primary, intermediate and secondary for children from ages 6 to 14. Each level is composed of a team of 6 to 10 teachers. Black sisters needed for all levels.

· St. Theresa-Visitation Elementary School, 4317 Blaine Avenue, Detroit, Mich 48204: contact Mr. Jesse Cotton, principal. 500 black students: need black religious who know what Life! Rejection! Happiness! is. Positions opened for primary, language arts, science, social studies, English, and assistant principal.

· Queen of Angels Catholic School, 44 Belmont Avenue, Newark, N.J. 07103: contact Mr. Lewis Roland, principal. Staffed by Oblate Sisters of Providence. Openings for language arts in the upper grades; several positions in the lower elementary level.

· St. Agatha School, 1264 East 123rd Street, Cleveland, Ohio 44108: contact Sister Elaine Eggert, principal. Position open in grade 8; small inner-city school; 30 pupils or less in grade 8.

· St. Thaddeus School, 9540 South Harvard, Chicago, Illinois 60628: contact Mr. Rudolph Smith. 276 students - all black. Openings for director of education, and 8th grade teacher. Community controlled school.

· Holy Angels School, 740 W. 28th Street, Indianapolis, Indiana 46208: contact Rev. Clarence Waldon, pastor. 196 students, inner-city school; ungraded-open classroom concept.

· Ss. Peter & Paul School, Box 1706, St. Thomas, Virgin Islands 00801: contact Father Zeiler, pastor. Urgently need one black sister for elementary school and one for high school.

· Martin de Porres High School, Detroit, Michigan: contact Mr. Joseph Dulin, 2015 Webb St., Detroit 48206.

· Academy of our Lady, 5th St. & G Place, N.W., Washington, D.C.: contact Sister Nathan Marie Adams. 99% black: need exists for black principal, two black nuns, black lay teachers.

SUMMER PROGRAM: CATHOLIC INNER-CITY MINISTRY: Two black sisters needed to form community group in order to relate the Catholic Church to the needs and lives of the people. Contact: Father William Collins, Director, 921 West State St., Rockford, Ill 61102

ST. MICHAEL'S COMMUNITY CENTER, 98 Capen Street, Hartford, Connecticut 06117. Contact: Sister Barbara Brodeur. Two black sisters needed to work in Hartford's black community - parish work... incl visitations, working with youth, adult education, liturgy and team ministry.

SUBSCRIPTIONS

Signs of Soul is published three times a year by the National Black Sisters' Conference, a non-profit, socio-religious organizations. Subscriptions are available to non-members of the NBSC at a rate of $3.00 per year. All subscriptions and business correspondence should be sent to: National Black Sisters' Conference, 3333 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Penn., 15213

TOWARDS THE DEVELOPMENT OF A METHODOLOGY FOR A BLACK THEOLOGY

By Theresa Perry

To talk about developing a black philosophy or theology is not simply a matter of locating a different problematic, not even if such a problematic emerges out of the experience of black people.

Theresa Perry

To talk about black theology is to posit a distinct black American cultural experience. And if there be a distinct cultural experience, there will necessarily be a "structure of reality" indigenous to that culture. The reality structure also presupposes and is inextricably linked to its own ways of viewing reality, or distinct categories for understanding reality. In short, the problematics should emerge from the aforementioned; and therefore methodology and content should be interdependent.

The extent to which one can authentically talk about Eastern, Western, etc., theology, is because of the distinct "reality structure" indigenous to the culture that was the context for the theologizing.

The valuations and ultimations of reality accepted by black people are, in large part, those proffered by the dominant white culture. It is precisely out of this context that the need for a black theology emerges.

Colonization is a fact -- and so are the colonized and the colonizers. The overwhelming reality is that in order for the colonized to exist, the colonizers had to create a mythical picture of the colonized, one built on a series of negations. Such was the mechanism of remolding the colonized. This mythical picture, proffered by the colonizers, once accepted by the colonized, assumes a certain amount of reality and, in fact, contributes to the final creation of the colonized.

Transforming the mythical picture from illusion to reality is aided by social institutions which define some "concrete situation which close in on the colonized, weigh on him, until they bend his conduct, and leave their marks on his face."

IF WE CAN SPEAK IN ANY SENSE OF THE FAITH OF THE BLACK COMMUNITY, THAT FAITH IS CHRISTIAN FAITH, HISTORIZED AS HOPE.

Black theology emerges out of a need for a new ideology, which will usurp the role played in the consciousness of Afro-Americans, by white ideology. To usurp that role, theology must be capable of appealing to the ultimate allegiances of black people. To date it appears that the church is the only quasi-dependent institution in the black community. If any institution is capable of claiming the ultimate allegiances of grass-roots blacks, it is the church. If we can speak in any sense of the faith of the black community, that faith is Christian faith, historized as hope.

We understand black theology as aimed at the development of a "new way of viewing reality," a "new meaning structure of reality," one other than that of the colonizers. Black theology does so by the process of focusing on the values that are intrinsic to the black cultural, communal experience. The context out of which a recognition of such values emerge is that of an alive relationship of the people and the Word of God.

(Continued on next page)

Towards the Development of a Methodology for a Black Theology (Continued from pg 3)

Black theology presupposes the legitimatizing of the black experience, an acceptance of the existence of a distinct cultural experience prone to Afro-Americans. It is that scientific enterprise in which we, fully acknowledging the reality of blackness, engage in developing an understanding of the Word of God that speaks to the contemporary black experience, is interpretative of it, and interpreted by it.

We understand blackness as that unique manner of speaking, writing, dancing, singing, cooking, dressing, drawing, acting, and behaving which is innate to black people in America, and characteristic of people of African descent living anywhere in the West. It is possessed by all Afro-Americans. It is exhibited by some, denied by others; the degree of exhibition or non-exhibition depending on the presence or absence of vivid skin coloration, the absence or presence of marked Negro features, the length of time spent in school, and the degree of acceptance granted by the white society. Blackness is the sum total of all the ideas, attitudes, actions, creations, which stem from the African's attempt to accommodate himself to, to integrate into, coexist with, and separate from the West.

Black theology is a confrontation of the black personality and the Word of God, in which clarifications are reciprocal. It is a dialogical process involving one's black being and Christ as the center and finality of the world, in which clarifications, specifications and authentifications are reciprocal. Out of this process, new symbols and new categories for understanding both realities emerge.

The foregoing definition of black theology is not the result of an intellectual exercise; it is not random. We have proffered it precisely because of the fact that we have ventured to say, what in fact the black experience has to say about the process of knowing in general, and how it informs theological knowledge in particular.

THE DYNAMICS OF A THEOLOGY OF LIBERATION CANNOT BE FORGED FROM A UNIVERSITY CHAIR.

The dynamics of a theology of liberation cannot be forged from a university chair. It cannot be forged by black or whites who are merely in the academic world. Such a theology cannot be directed or written for white people, but rather to and for indigenous blacks and their "so called" leaders, those who are in the process of restructuring institutions and setting up new ones.

Black theology is the process of locating the native orientations and values of the indigenous black community by engaging in a dialogue with the Word of God; it is that process of building a system of order for the black community, and on that which is native to that community: a system of ordering the political, economical and social aspects of black life. The very ordering is part of a process, precisely because of the open relationship black people have to their environment.

Indeed, if this activity is called theology, it must be part of the meaning-giving activity central to the black culture. If it is to be liberating, then it must be part of the process of decolonization of mentality, and resocialization as the new values are incarnated in institutions.

RADICAL COMMUNICATION ANALYSIS WITH WHITE NUNS

To uproot false value assumptions that whites have about blacks is not a priority for the NBSC; nevertheless, individual NBSC members do sometimes sincerely program the liberation of white people in this area. Sister Barbara Giles, SSND and Sister Dolores Harrall, SSND undertook the responsibility to promote black cultural awareness among their white confreres in the SSND New England province. Along with keynote speakers, workshops and worship experience, the weekend of 3-4 April in Bridgeport, Connecticut was highlighted by Sister Mary Clark's elementary school children's Africa Dance group, Newark, New Jersey's Queen of Angels' black gospel choir, and Reverend Morales' Connecticut State Gospel Singers. Sister Mary Clark is a young, dynamite black Sister of Charity from Convent Station, New Jersey. Program speakers were: Sister Teresita Weind, Mrs. Dorothy Jones, Sister Patricia Haley, Father Charles Burns, Sister Martin de Porres Grey, and Brother Joseph Davis.

Sister Barbara Giles

Sister Dolores Harrall

BLACK SISTERS EXHIBIT AT THE NCEA CONVENTION: The NBSC manned an exhibit booth at the recent convention of the National Catholic Educator's Association in Minneapolis, Minnesota. The sisters were there to promote NBSC's publications, but particularly to promote the image of black religious women deeply involved and concerned with Catholic schools in the black community. Pictured, bottom left, from left to right are: Sisters Lucy Williams, OSF, Matthew Savoy, FDC, Shawn Copeland, CSSF, Martin de Porres Grey, RSM and Laura Kendricks, HVM.

Sisters Laura Kendricks and Patricia Russell, OSB.

PREVIEW OF 1971 ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The fourth annual conference of the National Black Sisters' Conference will be divided into three institutes: community organization, black ministry, and education. The focus of the institutes will be as follows:

• Institute on Community Organization will impart the techniques for discovering the things that colonize people: it will present ways and options to organize and use a unified organ to alleviate the strains of oppression, and thereby instill in a people the creeds for self-determination. The institute will emphasize parish action training programs and guides for fund raising for programs in the black community. Mr. Squire Lance, a community organizer, will coordinate the institute.

. Institute on Education: Since the function of education is to prepare children to live in a real world, the educational process should occur in an environment which allows children to be fully human, and completely responsive to the needs of the individual child. An educational environment unresponsive to changing needs fails in its unique function. The institute on education will assure a successful educational process for children by use of a three-fold process: parental involvement, community, and learning. The school and community must function as partners to bring its resources to bear in the establishment of a new model. How this model can function in a black community school will be the goal of this institute. Sister Slyvia Thibodeaux, SSF, principal of St. Joseph Community School in Roxbury, Massachusetts will coordinate the institute.

. Institute on Black Ministry: An alternative for realizing the belief that Jesus is Lord, for actualizing the business of continuing his work of liberation here in this world is the ministry; a stable and specific function of service keeping alive the presence of Church in the midst of black people. The primary purpose of the institute is to penetrate beyond the expressions of the ministry to the reality out of which it originates, namely, the Gift of Life. The thrust, then, will be toward discovering specifically black culturally-seated methods and modes for actualizing the services. The institute will explore the ministry and its effectiveness within the cultural matrix which gave and apparently can still give rise to the hope for liberation, determination and destiny. The coordinator for this institute will be Sister Teresita Weind, SMP, Instructor, Black Theology and Catechetics at Mundelein College, Chicago, Illinois.

The 1971 annual conference is open to all black religious men and women, priests, seminarians and laity. For additional information, write to the National Black Sisters' Conference.

TIME TO GET TOGETHER
TIME TO be one STRONG FAST black ENRGY SPACE one pulsating POSITIVE magnetism, RISING
TIME TO GET UP and BE.

LeRoi Jones

BLACK SEMINARIANS MEET IN D.C.

The National Black Seminarians Association officially came into being in August 1970 during the third annual conference of the National Black Sisters' Conference at Notre Dame, Indiana. The event marked the first meeting of black Catholic seminarians on a national level. The seventy-five seminarians in attendance caucused separately from the sisters in business sessions, wherein they drew up a position paper, and elected Mr. Paul Wise as president. A resolution included in their position paper reads as follows:

> "Let it be known to all that we do not deny our blackness in the face of the white community, nor do we deny our Christianity in the face of the black community. We desire to be legitimaters of Christianity in the black community. We shall develop programs which will make our education relevant to our needs, and to the needs of our people by incorporating a theological, cultural, historical approach which will speak to both our heritage and the needs of the community we will serve."

In their second national conference, held 12-14 April 1971 at St. Joseph's Seminary in Washington, D. C., the seminarians reaffirmed their reason and need to exist as a national organization. As a national organization they resolved to support the NOBC in every way possible, to actively and continuously recruit black seminarians, to pursue educational programs geared to black seminarians, and to hold a national meeting this summer.

In addressing the seminarians, Father Edwin Cabey, SVD, Divine Word College, Epworth, Iowa, informed the brothers of a Religious Black Studies Program at the Chicago Theological Union, which was devised and implemented by Father Cabey. The seminarians voted that the Chicago Theological Union become the temporary school of theology for the black seminarians.

Father George Clements, pastor of Holy Angels Parish in Chicago also addressed the seminarians regarding their role in serving black people.

Paul Wise, right, President of NBSA

Mr. Clarence Williams was appointed Director of Communications. For additional information concerning the National Black Seminarians Association, please contact Mr. Williams, Box 755, St. Joseph's College, Rensselaer, Indiana 47978.

SOUTHERN REGION SPONSORS RETREAT

The Southern region of the NBSC sponsored a retreat, entitled Black Christian Action, at St. Augustine's Seminary, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi on 16 - 18 April.

Ministers of the retreat were: Brother Booker Ashe, House of Peace, Milwaukee; Dr. Loretta Butler, New Orleans Education Department; Father Al Dixon, Formation Director, Divine Word Seminary; and Father Jerome LeDeaux, Chaplain, Xavier University, New Orleans.

The initiative taken by the sisters in the Southern region set a precedent for other regions wishing to make a black retreat but unable to travel the distance that the national retreat often entails.

PRESS RELEASE - Issued by the National Black Sisters' Conference on 20 April 1971

BLACK NUNS OPT FOR COMMUNITY CONTROLLED SCHOOLS

The Board of Directors of the National Black Sisters' Conference (NBSC) met in Baltimore, Maryland on 17-18 April 1971. As a first, the Board issued a proclamation undoubtedly occasioned by the NBSC's participation (via exhibit) in the 68th annual NCEA convention held 13-15 April in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

The proclamation called for "sweeping reform in the nature of parochial schools in the black community." The Board stated "the most viable survival strategy presently operative in the black community is the community controlled school." The school does not belong to the church; it belongs to the people. Therefore, community control necessitates that the leadership responsibility of black Catholic schools be invested in the black community and actively implemented by black administrators.

Current diocesan procedures of "twinning, consolidation and centralization" were condemned by the sisters as last steps before total closing of Catholic schools which serve black children. The NBSC Board firmly declared that "state and federal aid to inner-city schools will not determine their survival." Sister Martin de Porres Grey, RSM, President of NBSC, defines survival in the black community as "black leadership and control. The survival of the 400 black Catholic elementary and secondary schools in the United States will only exist with and under total black control - with or without state and federal money. To consolidate or 'integrate' black Catholic schools with white Catholic schools and appoint white nuns or clergy as administrators immediately takes from the black community the only black institution that the Catholic Church can account for in the black community."

As a first step toward black control and survival, the Board called for a "redistribution of black religious women educators and administrators. Black sisters who serve in predominately white Catholic schools are urged to resign so that they may serve in Catholic schools which are predominately or totally black."

With regard to the NCEA's push for racial integration, Sister Martin de Porres stated that "For the welfare of black schools, we are non-supportive of 'integrating' white schools. Operation of black controlled schools is possible only with black leadership and staff. Therefore, we are in opposition to the NCEA's suggestion 'urging that qualified minority group teachers be employed in these all white schools' until all our black schools are fully staffed with black personnel."

The Board also committed the NBSC to the "implementation of a radical methodology for assuring blacks every opportunity for obtaining the education necessary for liberation." Sister Martin de Porres says that "the 1971 annual conference will be the first intense move to prepare our constituents to implement that methodology which will effect community controlled schools and black liberation."

BLACKNESS GROWING TOWARD FREEDOM

By Miss Betty Mansfield

[Excerpt of Miss Mansfield's presentations at the April Black Sisters' retreat: Miss Mansfield is an instructor at Long Island University]

Man creates himself in the historical process which began with his first act of freedom - the choice to disobey, the freedom to say no... the Garden of Eden. Only by going through the process of alienation can man overcome it and move toward a new harmony.

The Messianic time is the historical answer to the existence of man. Until man is willing to experience the insecurity of change, he cannot discover this new harmony. The only sin is man's unwillingness to experience change, to become a part of history and to take part in the revolution. This revolution means a radical change from the kind of state that man now finds himself in to this new state in which he will be willing to be free.

Freedom is based on the achievement of the ability to liberate one's self from the ties that give security, yet enslave man. We are constantly seeking for new ties that will give us the security that we once knew as children. But when we were not free, when decisions were made for us, or better still. when we had the illusion of making choices, someone always protected us from the consequences of those choices.

The parallel of all human history is symbolized in the story of the liberation of the Jews from the Egyptians. This liberation is primarily a social, not a national, revolution. The Jews were not freed because their life as a national minority was unbearable, but because they were enslaved by their Egyptian leaders. Here we must pose the question, "Is it possible for man to change?" Is it possible for man to want to experience the loneliness, the insecurity, the lack of assurance that independent free decision implies? How can slaves change so that they want to be free? So that they will be willing to throw off the yoke of dependency and become solely responsible for the decisions that effect their lives?

As long as a slave remains a slave he does not know freedom. What is demanded here is that a man make radical changes in his self-understanding. He is called upon to leave the familiar, miserable, but secure state of infantile situation and dependency of the slave conditions and to run the risk of new choices which often mean bad choices. But he is being asked to assume the sole responsibility of the consequences of his decision, of his exercise of freedom. Is this change from slavery to freedom possible? Is revolution possible at all? Can this new man be set afoot?

This new man is one who neither oppresses nor allows himself to be oppressed. It is the man who accepts his own nature as a rational human and in so doing accepts the responsibility of independence. He is committed to freedom. Because he felt competent to act as a free being he has no need to reduce others to a condition of slavery in order to boast his own self-esteem. He feels sure of his efficacy and his worth as a human person. Only the man who is not free himself fears to permit another to be free. When and to the extent that a man chooses to evade the effort and responsibility of independent action, the effort and responsibility of making his own decision, of seeking knowledge, of passing judgement, his action is one of self-enslavement or self-oppression, and to this extent he will be willing to accept the oppression of another.

(Continued on page 10)

(Continued from page 9)

What role does God play in the process of liberation? Does he change man's heart ? Does he bring man out of the land of Egypt to freedom? Historical change and revolution seem to present a paradox. The slave has no concept of freedom, yet he cannot become free until he wills it. The Exodus story gives us an answer to this paradox. The beginning of man's liberation lies in his capacity to suffer, and he suffers if he is oppressed physically, psychologically and spiritually. The suffering moves him to act against his oppressors, to seek to end oppression; not only his own, but all oppression, and in so doing he sets afoot a new man.

In this first step of revolution man develops new powers which he could not have known as a slave and these new powers eventually make it possible for him to achieve freedom. In the process of liberation, however, man is constantly in danger of a falling back into the old pattern of slavery. He is constantly in danger of losing the revolutionary impulse after attaining a degree of liberation. BY ACCEPTING THE OLD BELIEFS AND REBUILDING THE OLD INSTITUTIONS HE REINSTATES THE SAME OPPRESSION FROM WHICH HE HAS JUST ESCAPED.

God wanted the Jews in the desert to act as free men and do what they wanted to do. However, he didn't leave them without direction. From time to time he sent people to tell them what their choices were, what the alternatives were, what things there were they could do as free men. God's will is that we be free and so he tells us from time to time all the things we can do, and the consequences of various things that we do. Sometimes these are presented in the forms of rewards and punishments which really are just examples of things that they are to do and the choices that they are to make. The Jews wanted fewer choices. They wanted to be told what to do. They wanted the kings to tell them what to do so they could be sure they were making the right choice. They had to always remember that there had been bad choices made over and over again. They would have had more assurance if they had a king.

What is God's role in the historical process? Does God make it possible for man to become free by changing his heart? Does God intervene in history? No. Man is left to himself and makes his own history. God helps. He becomes a very powerful ally in man's revolution. But God never intervenes by robbing man of his freedom. For this is God's will above all else. Man is left to himself and nobody can do for him what he is unwilling to do for himself.

The oppressor, the one who enslaves another, is also a slave because a free man cannot enslave another. A man who makes his own choices cannot demand from another that he be allowed to make choices for him. A man who is free himself must force others to be free. He must refuse to make decisions for other people.

A person who is conscious of himself as being a man must not only be allowed to make his own choices, he must be forced to make his own choices because if there are no choices made for us, we must make our own.

To liberate man, God helps him to come to the place where he will accept freedom. God does not change man. He helps by giving him strength, boosting his power to accept responsibility of the consequences of his actions. When we make good choices we can benefit from those choices. We are not overpowered by good choices, nor crushed by the bad ones. God does not tell us what choices to make; that would be robbing us of our freedom. He does not prevent us from making bad choices; that would be robbing us of our freedom. He does not change the consequences so that we don't suffer so much, because that would be robbing us of our freedom. He allows us to become aware of the consequences of various choices.

(Continued on page 11)

(Continued from page 10)

It is the job of people in authority to tell you what the choices are. They are in their positions because they are competent and know the choices. Frequently the idea of authority is for somebody to tell us what to do, but competent people won't do that. Because they are competent themselves, they are confident in giving that same competency to everyone else.

As long as I am not sure of my worth, I have got to have somebody else lower than I am so that I can feel a little bit better about myself. When I am sure of my worth, when I have a high degree of self-esteem, I want others to be equal to me, because it is in this that I truly become a human person. As long as I must feel superior it is because I am not sure that I have any worth at all.

When God talks about the last becoming first, he doesn't mean that as an established order. He means that you have to upset everything in order to put it straight from bottom up: but you have to upset it in order to destroy it to build something new. So when you twist it all around and shake it all up you are not going to let it settle down and have the same old thing; you are going to create something out of it.

Blacks will not always be THE oppressed; there will be others. Other minorities have passed out of the scene ... but blacks have been on the slate too long as THE oppressed. The Jewish and Irish used to be THE oppressed. They had to help create another minority group so that they could cease being THE oppressed. They have to continually convince the dominant group that "we are with you." The blacks can very well help to create a lower group. But is that what liberation is all about? Do we want to stop being oppressed oppressed and become oppressed oppressors? Do we at last want to become first to make the first last? That is not new. That is the old order. That is not liberation. That is not freedom.

Remember that God's will is free men, that man makes his own history and God does not will to intervene by changing the nature of man nor his heart. We must constantly make the choice between our craving for security and certainty and our faith in the unknowable God and our wish for freedom.

IF YOU REALLY LEARN HOW TO THINK, YOU REALLY BECOME FREE

Intelligent decisions don't necessarily mean good decisions. They mean you knew what you were doing; that you were not ignorant. If you really learn how to think you really become free. If you 'goof' up you don't have anybody to blame. It lets us off the hook to be able to blame somebody else. But that is not God's will. It is not God's will for us to 'goof' either; but God gets more pleasure out of us 'goofing' than out of us not making choices. We are not acting freely when we know that we are not really going to have to suffer the consequences.

We have to seek knowledge and truth and get as much of it as possible so that we can exercise this freedom with some feeling of competence. We are free to choose our way, and yet must accept the consequences of our choice.

If we are not free and if we choose to be enslaved then we will have people who will tell us what to do. But that is not God's will. It is true that God leaves man to shape his own history, but does this mean that God is a passive spectator? No. He is a God who reveals himself in history. God's role in history is to send messengers and prophets. (All of us here are messengers and prophets.) These messengers and prophets remind man that there is God, the one who revealed himself to us and that man's goal is to become fully human, and that means to become free like God.

(Cont'ed on page 12)

Blackness Growing Toward Freedom
(Continued from page 11)

What is highly dangerous are ignorant choices. When we do not have educational systems that have trained for freedom, we have people making a lot of ignorant choices and this is highly dangerous. Societies cannot flourish when we have people making ignorant choices. We must learn how to use freedom, how to make choices... learn the self discipline so that we do not do everything we feel like doing. We learn how to control our feelings and emotions because we are the masters. We have not been forced to repress them because of fear and punishment from others. We have control. Self control is the quality of a free person who does not act because he does not choose to act; not because he fears punishment.

Coming to our desire for freedom requires revolution .. going through the radical changes that will force you to throw off the yoke of enslavement so that you become free from oppression. That means also working to rid society of all forms of oppression. We have to be led to take part in the process of liberation. It begins with individuals but must continue and be carried out in society. For if oppression exists anywhere we are all oppressed.

NBSC RETREAT, coordinated by Sister Teresita Weind, SMP, was held at the Motherhouse of the Oblate Sisters of Providence in Baltimore, Maryland, 13-16 April 1971.

Father Donald Clark, left, celibrates the liturgy.

Miss Betty Mansfield, above, and Brother Andrew Jackson, left, were ministers of the retreat along with Father Clark and Sister Teresita Weind.

PRACTICABILITY STUDY

The National Black Sisters' Conference has undertaken a Practicability Study to:

1) Determine the requisites necessary to produce the black religious woman who, while being an effective agent of liberation for black people, is part of the becoming of the church.

2) To determine a codification of the priorities for deified social transformation and interactions for black religious women.

3) To devise a plan for the most suitable kind of research and programming for producing the black religious woman who can effectively participate in the liberation of the Kingdom, given the requisites that are discovered and the codification of priorities that are determined.

Participants of the Study are 16 black men and women - religious and laity - who have been boldly involved in transformation of their black world. They include: Bishop Harold Perry, Sisters Alice Chineworth, Sylvia Thibodeaus, Teresita Weind and Dolores Harrall, Dr. Vincent Harding, Miss Theresa Perry, Mrs. Barbara Sizemore, Brother Joseph Davis, Dr. Patricia Goler, Dr. J. Alfred Cannon, Mr. Jesse Cotton, Sister Helen Marie Christian, Sister Martin de Porres Grey and Sister Shawn Copeland.

The Study participants met for the first time on 20-21 March 1971 in Pittsburgh under the guidance of a professional facilitator, Mr. Rad Wilson. The firm with which Mr. Wilson is affiliated is designed to generate and facilitate the kind of open and honest exchanges that are absolutely essential if the Study members are to develop the kind of trusting and cooperative relationships that implementation of the Practicability Study will demand. As a result, the first meeting of the Study was a "group dynamics" or "sensitivity experience" in order to develop communications skills among the participants.

It is projected that the Study will meet ten times, for two days at a time, during an 18 month period. The full results of the Study will be published. In order to get a broad cross-section of black religious women, individual sisters will be invited to attend the sessions; additionally, Study members will visit with sisters in their respective environs and at the NBSC annual conference.

The in-depth Study is necessitated by the fact that the potential of women religious has always been dictated by persons other than themselves -- it has been dictated by clergy interpretation and laity expectation. Even now when many religious congregations of women are examining and "renewing" their congregations they are looking at the congregation as a whole, and not as individual women -- and certainly not as black women! The Study emphasized that black religious women must dictate their own potential based on their own concern and expectation as well as the concern and expectation of the black community. Queries posed, left unanswered for subsequent Study meetings, were: How do we define religion? How do we deal with our power as black religious females as a part of a very powerful institution? How do we assume a role of leadership which we have never assumed before? How do we be black religious women and be part of the church?

All of the participants came away with the realization that those questions, and others like them, must be answered if we are to determine priorities for black religious women.

The next meeting of the Practicability Study is scheduled for 5-6 June 1971 in Pittsburgh.

Co-ops and the Quiet Revolution
(Continued from page 1)

The success of the agricultural co-op venture convinced Father McKnight that similar co-ops should be established throughout the rural South. He therefore founded the Southern Cooperative Development Program, and subsequently the Southern Cooperative Development fund to assist technically, financially and educationally in developing co-ops. With the help of the Southern Cooperative Development Program, over 200 co-ops have been established in Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee and Alabama.

"The new cooperative movement in the South," explains Father McKnight, "is an attempt to create a black power institution which will help blacks to achieve identity and express their blackness. In our work with cooperatives we have found that through participation in the affairs of the co-op, people develop a sense of belonging, and that by identifying themselves with the co-op they gradually overcome this image of self-hate. Through our limited experience we have become convinced that co-ops are excellent instruments or tools for coming to grip with self hatred, massive apathy and the lack of social cohesion which are so prevalent among an underdeveloped people."

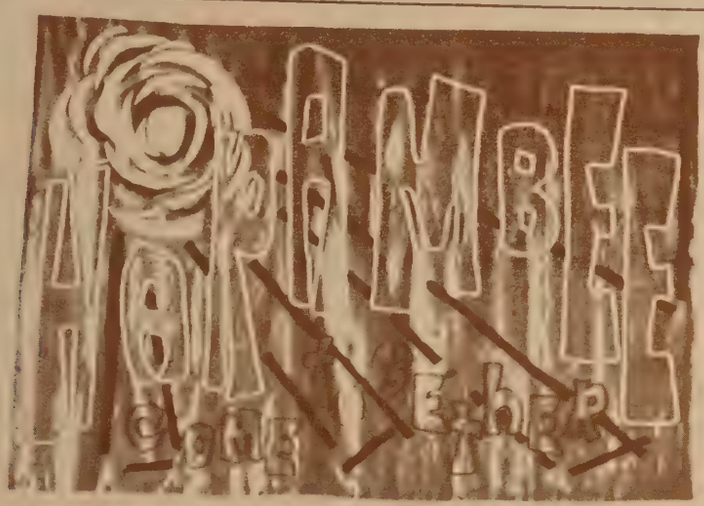
THEY BEAR THE MARK OF OPPRESSION -- SELF HATRED

Unlike most co-ops, Southern Cooperative is not in it for the money, but for the development of undeveloped people. There are millions of people in the rural South who have been completely passed by in our affluent and sophisticated society. They have been systematically excluded from the affairs of the community, and have lived behind the high barriers of a caste system with a history of slavery, then segregation, and then discrimination. They bear the mark of oppression - self hatred - which makes it psychologically impossible for many of them to take advantage of the change of laws which have recently broken the physical shackles of the caste system.

In expressing his personal view, Father McKnight stated, "Working with [agricultural co-ops] has taught me much about the rotteness and capitalist corruption of our society. My experience with co-ops makes me believe theirs is a better way for people to live and work together cooperatively. The co-op has helped me know myself better, taught me something about wisdom, education, humility and how to live better. There is no greater testimony to co-ops than cooperators who are convinced."

BOOK RELEASED

The proceedings from the 1970 annual NBSC conference, Celibate Black Commitment, are now available to the public. Celibate Black Commitment reveals black religious women and men delving into the psychological and physiological implications of celibacy from a black perspective. Recommended for theology courses, black studies, and sociology. For a copy, send $5.00 to: National Black Sisters' Conference, 3333 Fifth Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa 15213

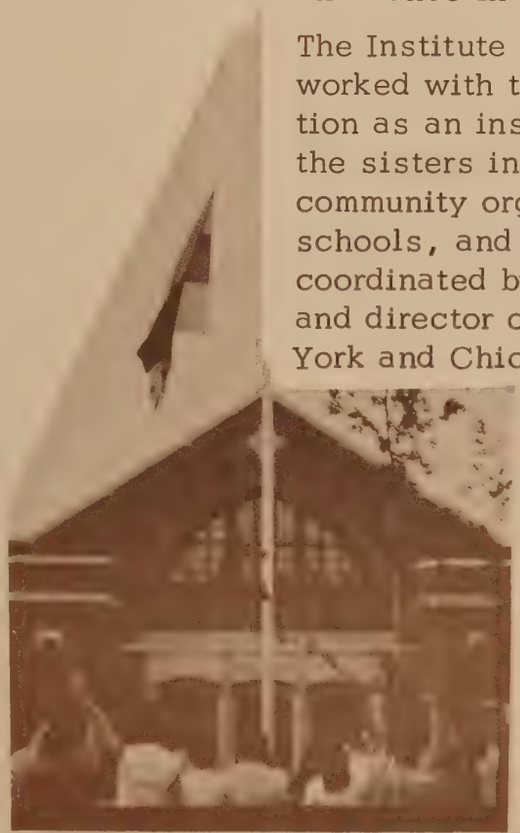


IN THIS ISSUE

Co-ops & the Quite Revolution - Pg 1
Classified Ads - Pg 2
Methodology for a Black Theology - Pg 3
Communication Analysis w/White Nuns - 5
NCEA Convention - Pg 5
Preview of 1971 NBSC Conference - Pg 6
Black Seminarians Meet - Pg 7
Southern Region Retreat - Pg 7
Press Release: Community Controlled Schools - Pg 8
Blackness Growing Toward Freedom - Pg 9
NBSC Retreat - Pg 12
NBSC Practicability Study - Pg 13

NOV 28 1972

SIGNS OF SOUL



VOLUME III NUMBER 3 · NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE NEWSLETTER · SEPTEMBER 1971

HARAMBEE!

The Fourth Annual meeting of the National Black Sisters' Conference, 13-20 August, at Carlow College, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, took the theme from the Swahili word, harambee, come together . . . .

A group of 200 concerned black men and women composed of nationalists, protestant ministers, religious brothers and sisters, youth, parents, teachers, priests, community organizers "came together" under the red-black-green flag of their aim and destiny: the liberation flag, to prepare themselves to move effectively for black people through a tri-institute on decolonization in the areas of education, community organization and ministry.

The Institute on Black Education and Community Schools dealt with the development of black curriculum, the community school concept, and guidelines in black principalship, and included parent-student involvement. The Institute on Education was coordinated by Sister Sylvia Thibodeaux, SSF, principal of the all black St. Joseph Community School in Roxbury, Massachusetts.

The Institute on Black Ministry, coordinated by Sister Teresita Weind, theology instructor at Mundelein College in Chicago, treated black theology - its development and expression. The Ministry Institute held workshops on the art of black ministry, gospel and spiritual music, and the use of culture, poetry and dance in liturgy.

The Institute on Community Organization worked with the concept of the organization as an instrument of power and aided the sisters in determining their role in community organization, community schools, and churches. The Institute was coordinated by Mr. Squire Lance, founder and director of Trans-Urban East of New York and Chicago.

BLACK SISTERS WANTED

· St. Adalbert Elementary School, 2347 East 83rd Street, Cleveland, Ohio 44104: contact Father Charles Burns, 216 881-7647. All black school - 275 students. Need principal and teachers for all levels. Authorities threatening to close school.

· Social Action Department, Diocese of Des Moines, 507 Ascension, Des Moines, Iowa 50314, 515 244-7157: contact Father Jacob Weiss. Need black nuns and priests to work in creative team ministry.

· Archdiocesan Center of CCD, Archdiocese of Chicago, 1025 West Fry Street, Chicago, Illinois 60622: contact Father James Corrigan. Need black religious or lay to work in the area of adult religious education.

· St. Charles Borromeo School, 85 Custer Avenue, Newark, New Jersey 07112: contact Mrs. Gertrude Washington. Need principal and teachers for all levels in this community involved school.

NOTE: Innumerable schools have been contacting the NBSC all summer in search of black sister teachers for the September 1971 semester. Their ads do not appear in this issue because they would have already filled the vacant positions by the time Signs of Soul reached you. If you are available or will soon be available for teaching in parochial schools in the black community, please send us your name so that we might refer you to those schools in earnest search of black teachers.

SUBSCRIPTIONS: Signs of Soul is published three times a year by the National Black Sisters' Conference, a non-profit, socio-religious organization. Subscriptions are available to non-members of the NBSC at a rate of $3.00 per year. All subscriptions and business should be sent to: 3333 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15213.

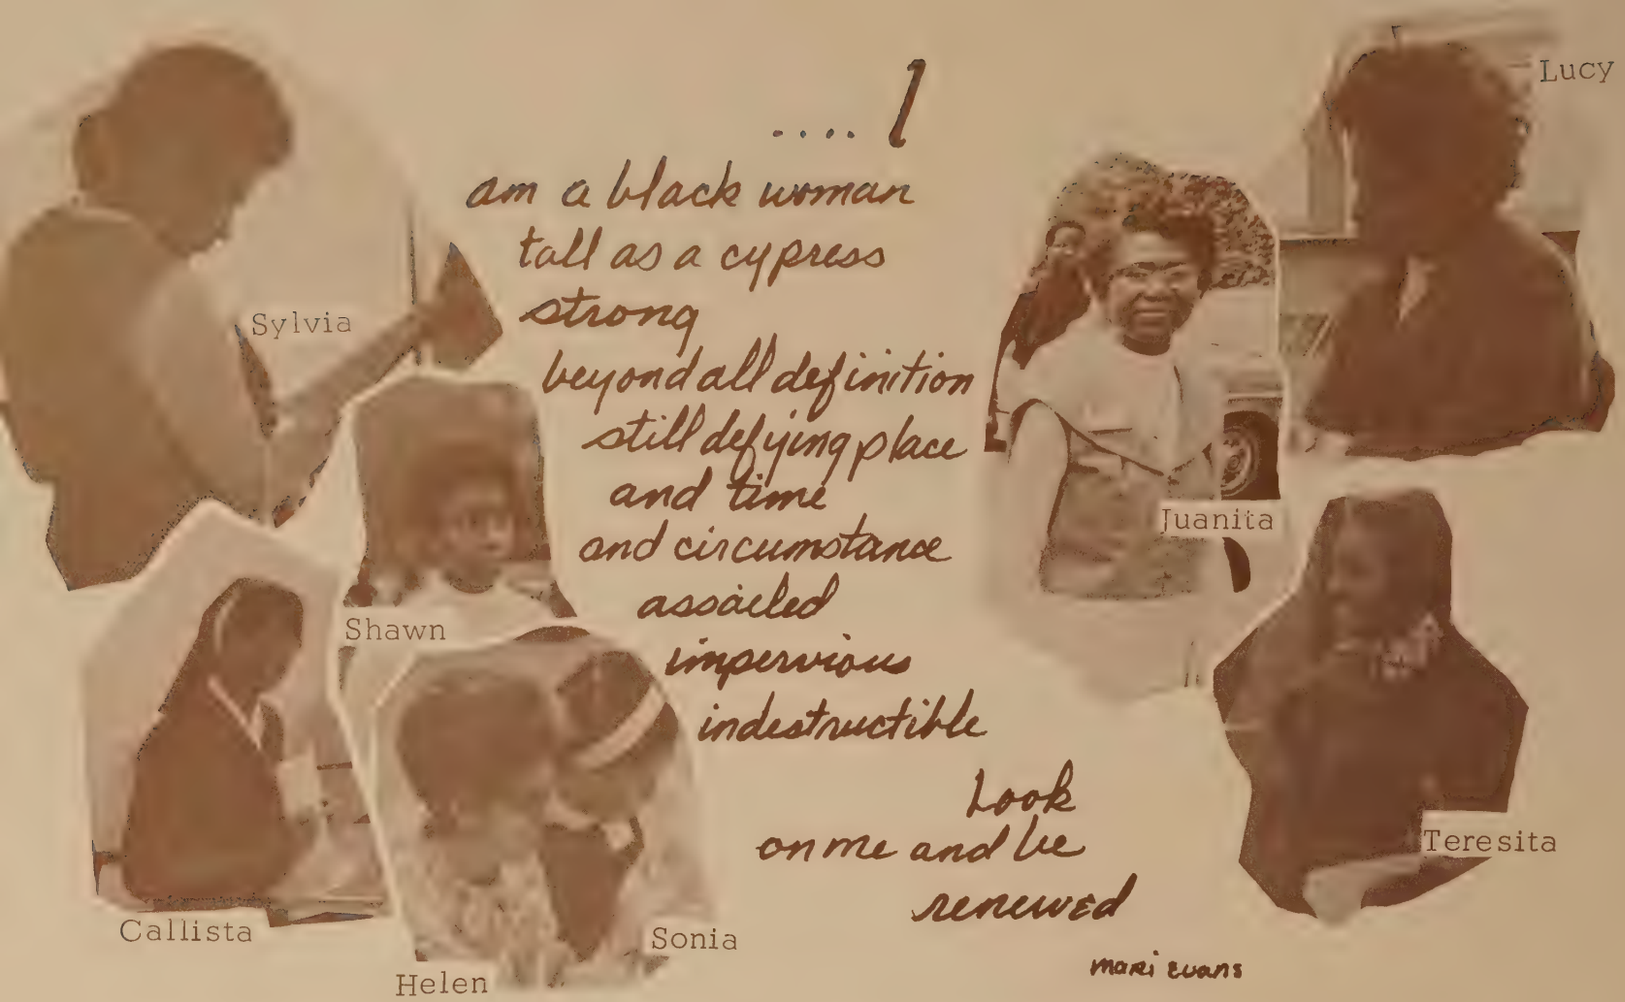
NBSC AWARDS DINNER

The first Awards Dinner of the NBSC was held on 21 August 1971. The awards were presented to eight black sisters who had boldly upheld the black value system, Kawaida -- that which is traditionally adhered to by black people. The following sisters were honored:

Sister Callista Armand, SSF - for Umoja, Unity: Striving for and maintaining unity in the family, community, nation and race.

Sister Juanita Shealey, CSJ - for Kujichagulia, Self-Determination: To define ourselves, name ourselves, and speak for ourselves, instead of being defined and spoken for by others.

Sister Lucy Williams, OSF - for Ujima, Collective Work and Responsibility: To build and maintain our community together and to make our brothers' and sisters' problems our problems and to solve them together.



Sister Helen Marie Christian, RSM - for Ujamaa, Cooperative Economics: To build and maintain our own stores, shops and other businesses and to profit together from them.

Sister Sylvia Thibodeaux, SSF - for Nia, Purpose: To make as our collective vocation the building and developing of our community in order to restore our people to their traditional greatness.

Sister Teresita Weind, SND - for Kuumba, Creativity: To do always as much as we can, in the way we can in order to leave our community more beautiful and beneficial than when we inherited it.

Sister Sonia Pinnock, CSFN - for Imani, Faith: To believe with all our hearts in our parents, our teachers, our leaders, our people and the righteousness and victory of our struggle.

Sister Shawn Copeland, OP - for Kawaida: To uphold all seven of the black values in an exemplary manner.

. . . . I am a black woman tall as a cypress strong beyond all definition still defying place and time
and circumstance assailed
impervious indestructible look on me and be renewed

mari evans

BLACKEST OF GREETINGS to the eight Black Sisters who were honored at the National Black Sisters' Conference (NBSC) First Annual Awards Dinner, Saturday, 14 August, 1971.

Sister Callista Armand, a member of the general council of the Sisters of the Holy Family, New Orleans, and Director of Education for the National Office for Black Catholics (NOBC), received the UMOJA AWARD for her efforts at bringing about unity among Black Catholics.

KUJICHAGULIA best typifies the determined efforts of Sister Juanita Shealey, CSJ, to hold together the black elementary school of which she was Principal in Cleveland, Ohio.

For generous donations of self, of time, of talents, and of labor, Sister Lucy Williams, OSF, Chairman of the Midwest Region of the NBSC, received the UJIMA AWARD.

Enthusiastic response to all the demands of the NBSC and a deep devotion to the betterment of all black people gained the UJAMAA AWARD for Sister Helen Marie Christian, RSM, presently interning in clinical psychology in the Boston area.

Sister Sylvia Thibodeaux's total dedication to the creation of a purposeful educational system for black children merited her the NIA AWARD. Sister Sylvia is Principal of St. Joseph Community School in Roxbury, Massachusetts and co-ordinated the Institute on Education for this year's conference.

Sister Teresita Weind, SND, who in the past has generously spent herself for the NBSC through co-ordinating and planning retreats, liturgies, and co-ordinated this year's Institute on Ministry, received the KUUMBA AWARD.

The IMANI AWARD was presented to Sister Sonia Pinnock, CSFN, Chairman of the North East Region of the NBSC and Elementary School teacher in Brooklyn, New York.

The KAWAIDA AWARD was given to Sister M. Shawn Copeland, OP, the new Special Projects Director for the NBSC.

NEW BLACK CONGREGATION

"The demand is increasingly made that men should act on their own judgment, enjoying and making use of a responsible freedom, not driven by coercion but motivated by a sense of duty." Declaration on Religious Freedom, Pope Paul VI

So it was that a sense of duty and a moral obligation to seek thetruth led to the forming of a new religious congregation of black women. The formation of the congregation was announced during the annual conference of the National Black Sisters' Conference. Although the new congregation is not an offshoot of the NBSC, the Conference has formally recognized it and promised to support it.

The new congregation presently consists of former black nuns who plan to offer their services to the black community. Legal proceedings are in process.

The new congregation was inevitable, and has been in the minds of many sisters for three years. The things that black religious women have discovered as common and natural for their being together urged the emergence of a new congregation, first, for the survival of their spiritual souls as black religious women, and secondly, to free them to take on the demands of the black nation.

Newly discovered values and repossessed traditions conflict with and are not understood by, or are rejected by, many white religious. Such rejection has increasingly caused black sisters to leave their congregations...but they held on to the strain of hope that there would one day be another congregation.

"It is upon the human conscience that these obligations fall and exert their binding force. The truth cannot impose itself except by virtue of its own truth, as it makes its entrance into the mind at once quietly and with power." Declaration on Religious Freedom, Pope Paul VI

TRIBUNAL FOR BLACK RELIGIOUS AFFAIRS

Because the National Black Sisters' Conference is interested in survival of black nuns to service the black kingdom in the liberation process and to bring black resources and perspectives to a white church, and because black nuns are often forced from their congregations when they choose involvement in the black community over and above involvement in the white missions of their congregations, the NBSC has established a legal organ for the protection of black nuns.

The organ, Tribunal for Black Religious Affairs, is made up of the following tribunes: Sister Shawn Copeland, OP, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Sister Dorothy Jackson, HM, Chicago, Ill.; Reverend Leonard Scott, canon lawayer, Camden, New Jersey; Brother Joseph Davis, Washington, D.C.; Attorney Claudia Morcam, Detroit, Michigan; Attorney Charles Hammock, Philadelphia, Pa.; and Dr. Reginald Williams, psychiatrist, Detroit, Michigan.

The purpose of the Tribunal is to:

Provide grievance procedures and review mechanisms following due process requirements to ensure equal protection of black sisters' rights and to arbitrate her complaints.

Support black nuns.

Further service the black community in the liberation struggle.

Act as a mediator between the black sister and the leadership of her congregation.

In addition to acting on behalf of the black sister, the Tribunal will also serve the congregation by providing consultation in their efforts to best provide for their black sister, and deepening of the congregation's understanding of and need for their black religious women's involvement in the black community.

BLACK CAUCUSES

12,600 blacks show support for NOBC CALL FOR BLACK ORDINARY

A voice was raised for all Black Catholics in Brother Joseph M. Davis' insistent call for the appointment of a Black Archbishop for the vacant see of Washington,D.C. Brother Davis, Executive Director for the National Office for Black Catholics(NOBC), stated, "A Black Ordinary in the Archdiocese would permit the Church to bring a sensitivity to the needs of the [Washington] community's total Black population that would not otherwise be possible." The move, he continued, would also aid in "renewing the relevance of the Church in the Black Community."

The appeal for a Black Ordinary, which would finally begin to give Black Catholics representation-with-power in the American hierarchy, was supported throughout the Black Catholic Movement. The Knights and Ladies of St.Peter Claver, the Black Catholic Clergy Caucus(BCCC), the National Black Catholic Lay Caucus(NBCLC), the National Black Seminarian's Association(NBSA), and the National Black Sisters' Conference(NBSC) all petitioned for the naming of a Black Ordinary.

This united action indicates that there is much more which unites Negro/Black Catholics than divides them. It reveals that despite variances in ideology we are at one. It also suggests that Negro/Black Catholics understand that we are not separatists--but are separated.

During the month of August over 12,600 Black Cathlics caucused across the country.

* From 31 July through 5 August, the Knights and Ladies of St. Peter Claver met in Los Angeles, California. The Knights of St.Peter Claver, a fraternal union, was established in 1909 by the first Negro Josephite priest, Father John Dorsey, because segregation laws prevented colored Catholics from joining or participating in the activities of the white Knights of Columbus.
* A workshop in liturgical music, Freeing The Spirit, co-ordinated by Rev.Clarence Joseph Rivers and sponsored by the NOBC and the NBCLC was held at the University of Detroit, Detroit,Michigan, 13 - 22 August. The workshop faculty featured Father Rivers,renowned Black Catholic liturgist, Edwin Hawkins of the Edwin Hawkins Singers, McKinley Genwright, and William Foster McDaniel.
* The NBCLC,BCCC, and NBSA met 20 - 22 August at the University of Detroit, Detroit,Michigan. The Convention theme was "The Role of the Black Catholic in Nation Building." The groups are undertaking a feasibility study on the development of a Black Catholic Rite.
* The NBSC's Fourth Annual Meeting , held in Pittsburgh,Pennsylvania, 13 - 20 August, was highlighted by guests Bishop Harold Perry,SVD and poet Mari Evans.

HARAMBEE, WE ARE NOT SEPARATING!

By Sister M. Martin de Porres Grey, RSM

We have what one might call a "Black Catholic Movement" going on in this country: it began last Fall when the Black Catholic Lay Caucus called their first national meeting. It is difficult for some people to accept the black Catholic movement: it is difficult for some people to deal with separatists and separatism. Why is it necessary to have such a movement in the Catholic Church where we have always been taught that we all may be one and that this is the alternative that we are working for. Or have we been taught that!?

In 1889 the first Negro Catholic Congress emerged. The Congress took place for exactly the same tangible, sensible, and yet untangible reasons that the black Catholic laity came together for in August, 1970. The first movement had some 500 to 1,000 people -- just as last year's black lay caucus. Their first conference took place in Washington, D. C. -- just as last year's black lay caucus. Ironically, last year they marched to the apostolic delegate's office: in 1889 the first Congress did the same thing and for the same reason. In the opening Mass of the Congress in 1889, Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore cautioned his listeners, "The eye of the country is upon you. It is not the eye of friendship, but of criticism." So it was with the Black Catholic Lay Caucus in 1970.

There were five consecutive Negro Congresses from 1889 to 1894. They initiated a newspaper to communicate the common cry of black people in the Catholic Church. But after the fifth Congress, something happened. There was an internal conflict that allowed the movement to die. Between the fourth and fifth Congresses, and as a direct result of the Congress, the Peter Claver Union came into being. The Peter Claver Union (not synonomous with the Knights of Peter Claver) was a union of some 200 black and white Catholic societies, and was headquartered in Washington, D. C. Its purpose was to promote churches, schools and orphanages for Negroes. It guarded against their becoming distinctly cast and permanent features since it was also their aim to attain free access to institutions on common and equal grounds. In the interval between the fourth and fifth Congresses, the Union sent a questionnaire to every American bishop containing several pointed inquiries: "Did any of the churches of the diocese have rules that required Negroes to sit in the rear or the gallery or that otherwise discriminated against them? Were Negroes admitted to parochial schools and Catholic hospitals? Were Negro women received into the convents? If there was discrimination, who was to blame?" One permanent and significant result of the 19th century Negro Catholic movement was the proliferation of Negro Catholic schools for the education of Negro children.

COLORED SISTERHOODS

In 1824, Father Charles Nerinx, founder of the Sisters of Loretto, planned the establishment of a branch of his institute to be composed of colored sisters devoted to the training of colored girls and the increase of colored vocations. He brought to Loretta from farms in the surrounding area five Negro girls to be trained for the noble career he had planned for them. Later the same year, unfortunately, Father Nerinx left Kentucky for new missionary labors and his sisterhood was turned over to Bishop Benedict Flaget who appointed Reverend Guy Chabrat as ecclesiastical superior of the community. Father Chabrat, convinced that the time was premature for colored nuns, released the five novices from their obligations and sent them home.

Bishop Flaget was a close friend of Father Joubert of Baltimore. Ironically,

(Cont'd on page 15)

COMMUNITY ORGANIZATION
By Mr. Squire Lance

To understand the term "community organization," look at it as the two words, community and organization. By community we mean a body of interest that we all share so that we develop some kind of interchange between us. We all develop, therefore, a sense of community, a sense of belonging, a sense of knowing things together, feeling things together. We are not talking about geographic location...it is not nearly that circumscribed. We are talking about a body of interest that we all share. When we talk about organization we mean principles, structures, processes of decision making and action. We get into trouble with that because that also turns out to be a definition for bureaucracy.

BUREAUCRACY IS ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY

Black people get frightened about bureaucracy because it has been used against them so often. But bureaucracy is absolutely necessary because it is simply a process of decision making and a process for acting that we can all share -- that we all agree to. If we do not agree on how decisions get made and if we cannot agree on what actions to take, then we have chaos: we practically have anarchy.

MOVEMENT VERSUS ORGANIZATION:
There is a very clear distinction that has to be made between what one calls movement and what one calls organization. This is critical because what we are going to be talking about is organization. What you are most familiar with is movement. The reason you are familiar with movement is because you have always been afraid to develop organization. Every time three or four black people got together in one room, white people got suspicious and broke them up. Some of them got lynched, and others got run out of town. We were always moving; we were never organized.

Mr. Lance is the founder and president of Trans Urban East, Inc., Housing and Management Consultants, New York and Chicago. Mr. Lance coordinated the Institute on Community Organization at the 1971 annual assembly of the National Black Sisters' Conference: this article is an excerpt from his Introduction to the Institute.

A popular movement has been the SCLC (Southern Christian Leadership Conf.); it is not an organization, it is a movement. It is a movement because of distinctive definitions...that is, the leader. He was charismatic. He excited people. He got people to act based on his ability to rhetoricize... his ability to win interest of large groups of people at the emotional level. When Dr. King died, suddenly the charisma was not there; and then what happened to SCLC? Everybody started questioning what SCLC was doing. The fact of the matter is that it was a movement. It centered around a cause and a charismatic leader. In the absence of those two things, the movement ends.

Movements travel in big hills and deep valleys. When there is an issue, such as voter registration, or Bull Connor refusing to allow black people to cross a bridge, the movement is at its crest. The survival of the movement depends on the existence of an issue. At the

(Cont'd on page 12)

Black Voices

Students, parents and teachers of St. Joseph's Community School in Roxbury, Massachusetts presented a Black Arts Festival, entitled Black Voices: Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow, to the the attendees of the National Black Sisters' Conference in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania on 19 August. The Festival, which was open to the Pittsburgh community, has been shown on television twice.

BLACK PRINCIPALSHIP
By Sister Sylvia Thibodeaux, SSF

The principal of a black school perhaps has a different role than that which has been customary. The principal should not project the image of the authority person, but should be someone to coordinate what has to be done. Be with the people. Use that office as sparingly as possible. Be more aware of where the children are and where the teachers are. The role of principal should be defined according to the community being served. (It should not be strictly legalistic and bureaucratic.) It should not be patterned on any preconceived idea of what the role of the principal is.

A black nun in a predominantly white staffed school with a predominantly black student population should strive to keep in mind and consider her role in leadership. Many of us reject leadership positions among our people because we fear rejection and failure. The worst form of rejection is from our own people.

The reasons for rejection are not always the fault of those black people who we think are "not together." Perhaps we black nuns feel so secure in our awareness of ourselves, that we want others to get that same kind of awareness immediately. It is not that way. We have to be very patient with people, especially with parents. What parents want for their children is to transmit those values they have found important in their own lives. Parents look upon educators to help transmit those values. Educators must be careful to bring the child to a point of awareness without dichotomizing between the way of the home and the way of the school. The same must be done with parents.

Perhaps educators are not the best persons to bring parents to a point of awareness: it is better to get parents to work with other parents. They tend to listen to each other more, and to relate to each other because they see each other as being on the same level. When this point is reached, there is an opening for communication, and failure and rejection need not be felt.

It is easy to not accept responsibility, but we must decide what is more important for our children right now. Is it more important for them to see a black adult in a teaching position or some other position in the school when all the other people are white and the principal is white, or is it more important for us to risk failure and rejection in order to give our children those adult role models in leadership positions.

If our brothers and sisters in the street are laying their lives on the line, think how much more we should be able to do since we have chosen the life of dedicated service. Our service today is different than it was five years ago. It is making more of a demand on us in a different kind of a function. If we find ourselves in positions where leadership roles are important, then we should assume those roles.

Sister Sylvia Thibodeaux, a member of the Sisters of the Holy Family in New Orleans, is principal of St. Joseph's Community School in Roxbury, Massachusetts, a board member of the National Black Sisters' Conference, and the coordinator of the Institute on Black Education and Community Schools at the 1971 assembly of the National Black Sisters' Conference.

LEARNING IS AN ALL- BLACK THING

POLICY STATEMENT OF THE NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE EDUCATIONAL COMPONENT

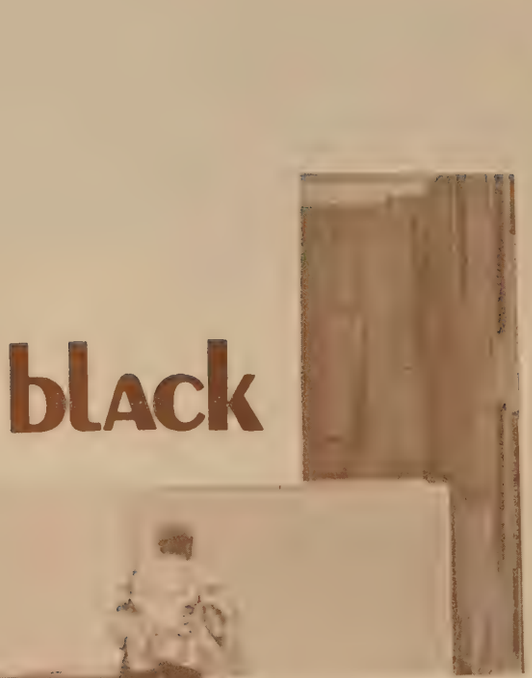
Black people must control those Catholic Schools that are in black communities and/or serve a predominately black student body.

The Catholic Church must continue and increase its moral and financial commitment and support of these schools, without attempting to dictate philosophy, policies or procedures.

The philosophy, policies and procedures in these schools must grow out of and be relevant to the desires, aspirations, felt needs and experiences of the communities they serve.

Since we firmly believe that black lay people provide an important and necessary dimension to the teaching-learning process, they must be involved from the beginning in the process of assuming control and establishing rules and procedures, as well as in the classroom. Even if there did not exist a shortage of black nuns, the input of concerned black lay citizens would be a necessity.



We pledge our support, also, to similar efforts toward self-determination and control of their schools on the part of any other Third World groups.

The National Black Sisters' Conference censured the Federal Government's school desegregation policy, calling it "divisive and detrimental to the development of a black excellence." Such action is seen as an attempt to "mis-educat ; black children, thus keeping blacks subservient."

The Conference stated that the school issue is not integration, but alternative quality education -- and quality education is an all-black situation. The black community controlled school is that alternative.

The Conference states that the black child is best prepared to be a constructive and productive citizen of the United States of America in an educational system founded on black values, black culture and black mores. The Conference opposes bussing for racial balance stating that "the school is the design and expression of the community. It is not separate. If children are isolated from their community, they tend to reject the community. The approach is not to hate white, but to live black, to love yourself."

black

NIA

Community Organization (Cont'd from pg 7)

moment that the issue dies, the movement dies.

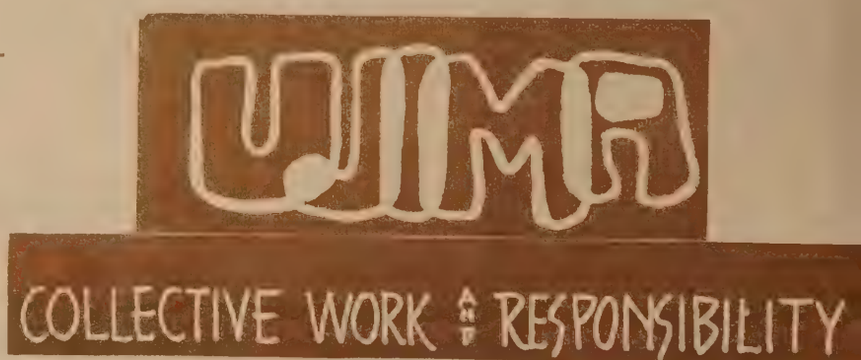
The National Urban League is an organization. When Whitney Young died, your attitude toward the Urban League probably did not change. The succession of leadership does not concern you. Whether or not it will continue to do the same kinds of things that it always did concerns you, and you do not identify the National Urban League so much in terms with its leader as you identify it in terms of what it stands for.

An organization is built to survive the next day; an organization is never concerned with one issue, but is always concerned with many issues. An organization is always busy and does not wait for an issue to rise before it goes into action. It has a multitude of concerns which it always revolves around and therefore is constantly in business. Structurally, it is bureaucratic. There is a process for decision making and for acting. Organizations have discipline, while movements do not.

It is necessary for black people to build institutions, to build organizations. The movements no longer take care of the continuing problems we have. It should not be necessary to create a new instrument every-time a problem becomes an issue. The problems are here with us and, therefore, we must develop those kinds of institutions and instruments to deal with the constancy of those problems. That is why organization is very important.

BROTHER NAMED DIRECTOR OF BCCC

Brother Joseph Hager has been appointed as the first full-time director of the Black Catholic Clergy Caucus. Presently he may be reached at: 1325 Massachusetts Avenue, N.W., Suite 518, Washington, D. C. 20005.



NEW BOARD MEMBERS

At the General Assembly of the NBSC, the following members were elected to a two-year term on the Central Committee (Board):

S. Joel Barbara Clark, FHM
S. Helen Marie Christian, RSM
S. Barbara Giles, SND
S. Yvonne Irwin, CDP
S. Dorothy Jackson, HM
S. Barbara Jean LaRochester, CSFN
S. Sonia Pinnock, CSFN
S. Sylvia Thibodeaux, SSF
S. Brenda Williams
S. Lucy Williams, OSF

The new members will join current Central Committee members whose term expires in 1972. They are:

S.M. Martin de Porres Grey, RSM
S. Louis Marie Bryan, SC
S. Elizabeth Harris, HVM
S. Joyce Williams, OSB
S. Gloria Rubio, OSP
S. Patricia Haley, SCN

SOUL FOOD DINNER

The Philadelphia Region of the NBSC is sponsoring a Soul Food Dinner on 26 November 1971, 1:00 pm at St. Ignatius Church, 644 N. 43rd Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. The event will feature entertainment by an African Dance Group. Total cost is $2.00 per person. For information and reservations contact Sherry Reid, 216 878-1697.

DECOLONIZATION INSTITUTES' STAFF

INSTITUTE ON EDUCATION

Co-ordinated by Sister Sylvia Thibodeaux, SSF, Roxbury, Massachusetts
Dr. Kenneth Haskins, Vice President, Afram Associates, Inc., Washington, D.C.
Dr. Rita Holt, Director of Harvard Inner-City TTT, Boston, Massachusetts
Patricia Hill, Educator, Choreographer, Roxbury, Massachusetts
S. Marie Bernadette LeDuff, SSF, Head, Religious Dept., New Orleans, Louisiana
Ronald Batchelor, Educator, Choreographer, Roxbury, Massachusetts
S. Mamie Jenkins, RSCJ, Educator, Liturgist, Musician, New York, New York
Dr. Dorothy Jones, Prof. Harvard University Graduate School of Education
Henrietta Ball, Ass't. to Director, Inst. of Learning and Teaching, University of Mass.

INSTITUTE ON BLACK MINISTRY

Co-ordinated by S. Teresita Weind, SND, Chicago, Illinois
Val Gray Ward, Director, Kuumba Workshop, Chicago, Illinois

INSTITUTE ON COMMUNITY ORGANIZATION

Co-ordinated by Squire Lance, New York, New York
Muriel Hamilton, Administrator and Research Consultant, Trans-Urban East, New York, N.Y.
Vernon L. Robinson, Adjunct Ass't. Professor, School of Architecture, Columbia University, Consultant on Community Planning, New York, New York
James McNeil, Ass't. Director, Organization for A Better Austin, Chicago, Illinois
Rev. Lucius Walker, Director, Interreligious Foundation for Community Organization, New York, New York
Walter Bremond, Director, Brotherhood Crusade, Los Angeles, California
Leon Finney, Executive Director, The Woodlawn Organization, Chicago, Illinois

each of our annual meetings has been unique.
this year's especially so.
and especially because of the KUUMBA--the beautiful blkpwrful creativity--
of
sister barbara giles.
the banners of the BLK VALUE SYSTEM,
the photographs in the lobbies of grace hall,
the picture-taking,
the movie-making:
were all beautiful souled expressions.... our largest token of gratitude is much too small... in a word of a mother tongue,
ASANTE, barbara! ! !

UMOJA

UNITY

to strive for and maintain unity in the family, community, nation and race.

for flying from Roxbury, Mass to gift 77 black nuns with afro haircuts shape-ups and blow-outs

we thank you, Sharif Abdal-Khallaq

(Continued from page 6)

five years later, Father Joubert helped found the Oblate Sisters of Providence in Baltimore; it is probable that the founding of the Oblates is a direct result of the similar attempt in Nerinx, Kentucky. The Oblates were the first black congregation to emerge. Why did they come together? It certainly seems to rise out of certain nuances of separatism...not because they wanted to be separate, but because they had to be separate. The next black congregation to be founded was the Sisters of the Holy Family in New Orleans, followed by the Franciscan Handmaids of Mary in Harlem. The only cloistered community of colored nuns in the United States were the Magdalen Sisters, founded in Baltimore in 1922. They were a separate and unequal extension of the Good Shepherd Sisters. The Good Shepherds ran a house in Baltimore exclusively for colored girls who were delinquent and for "preservates," or girls removed from "deleterious" surroundings as a preventive measure. The cloistered Magdalen Sisters were comprised of the preservates.

NEGRO PRIESTS

Negro young women were able to become nuns only through the establishment of a colored sisterhood. Young men aspiring to religious life were not so fortunate. There were no colored seminaries. As late as 1941, there had only been a total of 22 black priests in the United States. The first North American black priest, Father Augustus Tolton, could not even be ordained in the United States; he was ordained in Europe in 1886 - 57 years after the establishment of the Oblate Sisters of Providence. It was the second black priest, Father Charles Uncles, who was ordained in this country in 1891, but only after spending five years in a Canadian seminary because they were not accepting Negro men in the U.S. seminaries at that time. The first two black priests in the United States were involved in reorganizing black people for their survival so they could be able to determine their own involvement in the Catholic Church. It was not until 1909 that the Knights of Peter Claver was founded by the first Negro Josephite priest, Father John Dorsey, because the segregation laws prevented colored Catholics from joining or participating in meetings and socials with the white Knights of Columbus.

It is interesting to note that the dominant areas where Negroes became Catholic were in those colonies ruled by the Spanish or French: the colonies ruled by the British had no Negroes who were Catholics. The British had a law stating that Christians could not be held slaves. As long as the British made certain that their Negroes did not become Christians, they felt justified in retaining them as slaves. The French and Spanish, on the other hand, forced proselytism.

"GOOD" CATHOLICS

In an attempt to understand why there are so few black nuns and priests and why the majority of them came forth after 1940, it is important to understand what determines a good Catholic and what does not. Previously, "good" Catholics attended Mass every Sunday and received instructions weekly, if not daily. Slaves were deliberately separated from each other and were not organized into parishes; therefore, Mass was not regularly available to them. You could not have slaves joined together in a parish because they might rebel.. they might run away, for one thing. A priest would travel around to the plantations and give instructions to the slaves -- separate from the white churchgoers, and separate from the slaves on the nearby plantation, and

(Cont'd on page 18)

AWARDS DINNER GUESTS

Master of Ceremony: Mrs. Willa Mae Rice, Religious News Editor, New Pittsburgh Courier; also the National President of AME Zion Church Missionaries.

Bishop Harold Perry, SVD, Auxiliary Bishop of the Diocese of New Orleans, Louisiana.

Guest Speaker: Marsha Gillespie, Editor-in-chief of ESSENCE Magazine, New York, New York.

KAWAIDA — THE BLACK VALUE SYSTEM that which is customarily or traditionally adhered to by black people.

El-Hajj Malik El Shabazz

by mari evans

who went through the changes and came out black and shining and pointed the way who became a truth and a positive action and more than a voice in the wind:
who became transformation who could see and touch reality in spite of who shouted his truth whispered his challenges dared a whole generation to use his strength whose black spirituality was exploded into the air and we in-breathed him:
and he became a part of me and you carried him in you and his blackness and demands.
demands and action past rhetoric an action that delivers itself a love past silence
a love that creates today full of the knowledge of tomorrow and on what it will be unless we move to change it into what it must be. El-Hajj Malik El Shabazz who went through the changes and became a truth and a positive action and more than a voice in the wind.

(delivered at the National Black Sisters' Conference Awards Dinner)

HARAMBEE
(Continued from page 15)

only when it was financially feasible. Because they did not receive instructions regularly or attend Mass every Sunday, they were not "good" Catholics.

Father Dorsey was forbidden by a white pastor to administer the sacraments to a colored man because the colored man sent his daughter to a public high school, owing to the fact that the Catholic high school was for whites only, and no colored secondary school had been established. Both the man and his daughter were undoubtedly branded "bad" Catholics.

When a woman wants to be a nun, or a man wants to be a priest, one quality that determines if they are capable or worthy, in addition to their sincere desire to follow "the call" is what kind of Catholic had they been -- good or bad.

Many whites think and have thought that black people are inferior in terms of spirituality... that we are not capable of understanding the depths of Catholicism because we were not furnished with and were not permitted to provide for ourselves the elements that go into the "good" Catholic.

A Negro priest, Father John Plantevigne, was not permitted to work among his people because the Archbishop in New Orleans feared he would be too zealous and might stir up suspicions calculated to endanger the progress that the bishop had planned for the colored Catholics of his diocese. The archbishop used this denial to prepare Father Plantevigne to do the job on the day when it would be feasible for a colored priest to work with colored people.

For years black congregations and the black women within the congregations have been separated from each other. There is not the kind of community that could exist among black nuns. Black nuns in white congregations are separated from each other and from the black congregations; we did not know about each other, and perhaps those of us who did could not accept and relate to another noble oddity. Perhaps there has been competition among the black congregations; we know that white priests have supported this competition to keep one black congregation divided against another.

The National Black Sisters' Conference must exist today because all black people must unite: a unified organ maximizes the capacity of any group to function to produce a change to bring about bold and meaningful transformations. The NBSC exists to promote unity, not separatism. It exists to unify black nuns with each other and not to separate us from the church. Historically, we have always been separate. The thrust of the NBSC is to deliver us from being separated from each other. We cannot allow the church and white people to divide us; for a house or a nation or a people divided against each other bears no fruit.

Since there are less than 800 black nuns in the United States, out of a total of 130,000 nuns in the country, it is important that all 800 black women work together... not against each other, and not in competition with each other: it is mandatory for survival that we work together for the mutual benefit of each other and our people. The NBSC exists so that black sisters can work together on common problems by pooling our resources and imagination. We are not pushing any one black congregation: we are not pushing any one white congregation, but we are here for the co-prominence of each other.

We are ready black women who are willing to unify to intensify our sign value, for we must be a sign of contradiction to those who think there is an intrinsic value in whiteness, and a sign of affirmation and self worth to the disenfranchised. This is what unifying the ministries of black nuns is all about... to service movement for change.

"there is a pain which never leaves me-- it is the condition of my brothers...." hebrews

Incarceration has always been part of the fabric of Black American Life. Black people have been victims of "imprisonment" since 1619 coming in coffles to Thomas Jefferson's "land of inalienable rights." The intensity of that incarceration has never lifted; though today we are more acutely aware of the vicious attacks on our humanity, but still unable to prevent them.

Black community newspapers indicate that blacks account for half the prison population in this country...the number is increasing. And so are the atrocities: Patuxent Institution in Maryland, where men have reportedly lost hands, arms, legs in medieval torture; Chicago's infamous Cook County Jail; Parish Prison, New Orleans, Louisiana; the New Haven Community Correctional Center, better known as Whaley Avenue Jail; and of course--San Quentin, Soledad, Folsom, the Marin County Jail, and now Attica.

As we pause to remember our brother, George Jackson, we remember as well, our sister, Angela Davis, a sterling ebony woman. We remember our brothers and sisters imprisoned by forces so massive, so intense they threaten us all -- Blacks, Chicanos, Puerto Ricans: men and women who refuse to compromise their humanity: perhaps the only free persons in America.

As religious women bound by the corporal work of mercy, let us seek and test all the traditional means of protest available. Let us channel our creative energies in the search for new and better methods of impelling the masses of people in this country -- black, brown, red, yellow, white -- to forcefully demand change in these institutions and not reform; truth and not deception; justice and not subverted repression.

George Jackson was a man/is a man/will always be a man in his living in his dying

George Jackson was a hrd blk
poem steeling blk manhood to hot perfection.

s. mary shawn copeland, op

NIA

PURPOSE

to make as our collective vocation the building and developing of our community in order to restore our people to their traditional greatness.

National Black Sisters' Conference
3333 Fifth Avenue
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania – 15213

Nonprofit Organization
U.S. POSTAGE
PAID
Pittsburgh, Penna.
Permit No. 1146

NOV 28 1972

SIGNS OF SOUL

VOLUME IV NUMBER 1 • NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE NEWSLETTER • JAN 1972

BLACKS LOBBY FOR PAPAL INTERVIEW

In a bold and historic trip in October, 1971, the heads of the Black Catholic Caucuses traveled to Rome in an endeavor to secure an audience with the Vicar of Christ, His Holiness Pope Paul VI.

Members of the official delegation pictured above, left to right, are: Mr. Charles Hammock, President, Board of Directors, National Office for Black Catholics; Mrs. Estelle Collins, Member of the Baltimore Region of the National Black Lay Catholic Caucus; Mr. Joseph Dulin, President, National Black Lay Catholic Caucus; Brother Joseph Davis, Director, National Office for Black Catholics; Sister M. Martin de Porres Grey, RSM, President, National Black Sisters' Conference; and Reverend Lawrence Lucas, President, Black Catholic Clergy Caucus.

In this exclusive interview, Sister Martin

(Cont'd on page 13)

BLACK SISTERS WANTED:

· California State College, Dominguez Hills. Contact: Rev. Paul A. Gopaul, SSE, California College Dominguez Hills, 1000 East Victoria Street, Dominguez Hills, California 90247. Directer of Afro-American Studies Program. Besides teaching would provide leadership for co-ordination of Inter-departmental Program through review, course selection, evaluations, etc.

· St. Agnes School/Parish Community. Contact: S. Adrian Walsh, St. Agnes School 4065 N. 25th Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 52309, 414-871-4180/442-5439. Neighborhood Co-Ordinator/Teacher -- all levels.

· Pre-school. Contact: Father John Maxwell, St. Andrew-St. Joseph Church, 925 Brockhurst Street, Oakland, California 94608. Direct and develop totally new program.

· St. Therese School, 5809 Michigan Avenue, Kansas City, Missouri 64130. Contact: S. Jean Besti, BVM. 380 students - 70% black. At present only one black teacher. Teachers needed for all levels.

· St. Agnes Elementary School, Superior and St. Agnes Avenues, Dayton, Ohio 45407. Contact: S. Margaret Fenella, 513-275-4492. Innovative, integrated school. Approx. 220 students. Teachers for all levels.

· Principal. Contact: St. Francis de Sales School, Roslindale, Massachusetts 02131.

NOTE: CORRECTION in ad appearing in Signs Of Soul, Vol. III, No. 3: instead of St. Adalbert Elementary School the ad should have read: St. Aloysius Elementary School... We apologize to the pastor of St. Adalbert's, Rev. Eugene Wilson.

REGIONALLY SPEAKING...

The Mid-West Region has initiated involvements with black prisoners of the Indiana Federal Prison. Several members of the region recently visited inmates and spent over three hours rapping with the brothers: sharing all kinds of GOOD NEWS. The visits are determined to be many and deep.

The members of the Eastern Region participated with the laity and clergy of that area in the planning and presentation of a Unity Mass on 21 November 1971. The Sisters are exploring ways to strengthen the effectiveness of the region so that each Sister draws support and encouragement and develops to her fullest in the group.

The North Central Region is active in helping to establish the Milwaukee Office for Black Catholics. The report from the Sisters here reveal a concentration on a round of activities: A Black Unity Mass was celebrated on 7 November 1971 at St. Boniface in Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

The Sisters in Washington, D.C. fed the soul while the Sisters in Philadelphia fed the body. The Eastern Region sponsored a "Day of Recollection" for black and white religious women at the motherhouse of the School Sisters of Notre Dame in Baltimore, Maryland. The day included two conferences given by Sister Mary Shawn Copeland, OP, NBSC, Special Projects Director, and Rev. Thaddeus Posey, OFM, CAP. Brother John Ford conducted an encounter session which dealt with developing group work techniques. The Thanksgiving Day Soul-Dinner was a delicious success serving about 100 people.

SUBSCRIPTIONS: Signs Of Soul is published three times a year by the National Black Sisters' Conference, a non-profit, socio-religious organization. Subscriptions are available to non-members of the NBSC at a rate of $3.00 per year. All subscriptions and business should be sent to: 3333 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15213.

I am a black woman tall as a cypress
strong beyond all definitions still defying place and time
and circumstance assailed
impervious indestructible
Look on me and be renewed.

Mari Evans

Ebony Princess. African Queen. Sepia Rose. Sable Daughter. These are the names of the woman who cleans Miss Anne's house. The woman who Mr. Charlie used as a plaything. These are names for the black woman.

Today many eyes are being turned toward the woman of mystery -- the black woman. The woman whose image has been distorted by omissions, caricature, taboos and old wives' tales that were given to her by a white society. She was reported to be a torrid sex pot of animalistic abandon. She was viewed only as a three letter word, SEX...all physical without the ability to express tenderness, give and receive love in a human relationship. Now she is no longer a shadow in the background. No longer does she have to strive to be something she is not -- the idealized white woman. She is once again becoming the Sable Queen her ancestors Cleopatra and Sheba were. She too has influenced history and is still influencing it. But what has happened to her? How did she lose her crown?

With the advent of the American form of slavery the black woman became a thing. Joyce A. Ladner says: "The degradation which she suffered in slavery had total effects on all aspects of her life -- her identity as a woman and as an African, her relationship and roles with regard to her husband and family, etc." The many rights she had in her native African land were taken away. She who had power and control was reduced to a slave. Among her control was the right to give the gift of her body to the man she loved. From the moment she set foot on the slave ship this right was violated. She was regarded as fair prey for the sailors. On the plantation she was thought of as a jesebel, a passionate, hypersensuous siren -- easy to make and responsive to any white man's overtures in a completely uninhibited, receptive manner. These violations were a far cry from the strict mores and laws of her African culture regarding the time and circumstance in which she would have sexual contact with a man -- her husband.

During the phase of slavery where the chains were visible (instead of invisible as they are today), the black woman played several slave roles: mammy, mistress and servant (field or house worker).

Jessie W. Parkhurst gives an excellent description of the black woman in the role of a mammy:

(Cont'd on page 16)

DEVELOPMENT OF EDUCATIONAL SERVICES IN THE GROWING NATION

In projecting NBSC's role in the growing nation, particularly in the area of education, a frame for implementation has been prepared. Code name DESIGN, Development of Educational Services In the Growing Nation, the components of the plan can be broken down as follows:

D Component - Development
ES Component - Educational Services
IGN Component - In Group Needs

DEVELOPMENT represents the technical needs of the NBSC staff to effectively program and finance educational services and in group needs.

- budget analysis
- fund raising (emphasis on foundations and government)
- proposal writing and brokerage
- research
- financial technical assistance: tax exemption incorporation government forms accounting

EDUCATIONAL SERVICES is the means proposed by the NBSC to assist in producing community controlled schools in the black community.

- pre-service/in-service training for principals, teachers & students
- curriculum designing, testing and modeling
- preparatory training for Christian values in education
- programming for the utilization of vacant diocesan facilities in the black community for day care centers and community education
- assisting in retaining Catholic school facilities in the black community as a black educational alternative
- special service to black principals: cultivate and market proposals for educational innovations and experiments
- data dissemination for innovative educational models
- clearing house for positions open in black Catholic schools
- design and implement programs to initiate and maximize parental involvement in the total educational process of the school

IN GROUP NEEDS represents the increase of black vocations and the continual development of black religious.

- institute for black women's leadership development (black sister formation)
- tribunal for black religious affairs
- development of new pastoral ministries
- NBSC practicability study
- public relations
- black sisters vocation development (visual aids)
- community organization preparation
- in-service spiritual education (retreats, etc.)

ACHIEVING BLACK WOMANHOOD
A Black Psychological Experience
By Sister Myrna Rose Joseph

The black woman has been a subject of much discussion because of the role she has played in society. She has been looked upon as a breeder in slavery and the matrifocal figure during the industrialization period and up to the present time. As a result of her position, her sexuality, physical characteristics as well as her personality have been stereotyped. I need not go into these sterotypes for we are familiar with them. These images of the black woman have caused psychological havoc, for they have been internalized by the black woman. She has lost her true identity. She is not real, but a mirror image of what the larger white society and her black counterpart, the male, has made her. She is now told that she is the Black Pearl and there is a new standard of beauty that places her in top running position. (This top running position does not mean that the black woman will not have to compete with the white woman, it just places the two women side by side.) Yet, Eldridge Cleaver's words sound in her ears, "...put on your crown, my Queen, and we will build a New City on these ruins." The new movement 'black woman for the black male' still does not make the process of achieving womanhood any easier, for it is still painful.

Sister Myrna Rose Joseph

What are the ingredients that provide for this sugar and spice to make a little black girl nice?

In every culture there is a ceremony or a ritual that marks the beginning of womanhood. In New Guinea it is the state of puberty. "The hour of puberty itself is marked by ceremony and public observance. When the girl has her first menses, her father or guardian throws great numbers of coconuts into the sea. All the neighbors' children leap in after them... So word circulated quickly through the village that the girl has attained puberty." (Mead: 1930:107)

The Titan Dakota American Indian, like the Manus in New Guinea, also have a ritual that marks the beginning of womanhood. "The girl is placed in a menstratual hut because it is felt that she is dangerous to men and animals. The only contact she has is with the older women. After a period of about five days, the father gives a public ceremony directed by a Shamon to give supernatural aide to the girl as well as prestige to her family. She is then recognized as achieving womanhood." (Spencer and Jennings et al:374)

In the Jewish community the young girl is given a Bas Mitzvah where she reads a portion from the Torah and presents an original paper, marking her entrance into the adult world in her society.

(Cont'd on page 14)

A REVOLUTION OF INCLUSION OR SEPARATION

By Sister M. Martin de Porres Grey, RSM

To appear in the March 1972 issue of Catholic World in response to a request for an article on the position of Black American Catholics.

There is no real progress among an oppressed people without the more real danger of retrogression. The second Black Catholic Movement with its four years of encroachments has reached a critical point: it will either see and simultaneously call its own demise, or it will seize the brute reality of radicalizing and organizationalizing itself with an agenda--with or without, inside or outside of the American Roman Catholic Church.

The first Black Catholic Movement was born in 1889 at the emergence of the first Negro Catholic Congress and coincided with the victory of political conservatives in the American Catholic hierarchy. The similarities in the development and elements of the first and second Black Catholic Movements are overpowering and frightening if one were to believe in the absolute repetition of history. The second Black Catholic Movement occurred for the same tangible, sensible and yet intangible reasons that spearheaded the first movement. However, there was one significant difference: the Negro Catholic Congresses were attended by the black Catholic laity and white clergy, including members of the hierarchy; the Black Catholic Movement today is devoid of white physical presence. Obviously, the Negro Congresses were controlled by the participating white liberals who ultimately produced the death of the Movement precisely because the white controlling faction could not tolerate the emergence of black unity independent from white people. The question before the Black Catholic Movement today is: In the midst of black Catholic unity without whites, is the Movement still controlled by white Catholics--not liberals, but white Catholic conservatives?

The resurgence of black Catholics actually began in 1968 during the peak of white guilt and the expressive height of black self-determination. Within four years white guilt had dried up and black people have moved into the 70's facing the trivialization of their "black" expressions and "soul" symbols by white commercialization.

The element of black Catholic history that must be clearly exposed and correctly understood before a critical analysis of the Black Catholic Movement today is engaged upon is the myth of separating (separatism) and the reality of being left separated. The Catholic Church has always prepared black people separately and devised their missionary efforts to keep black people separate and powerless. To this end, the tendency to keep her dominant white constituency separated from her black constituency the American Catholic Church has been barbaric. She has never permitted her black constituency to govern itself or to govern with her.

THE REALITY THAT WHITE PEOPLE HAVE DONE ALL THE SEPARATING from black people and have consequently left black people separated was all right and unnoticed by white people until black people brought conscious public recognition to their separated state. The absence of public opinion to the real apartheid existence in the American Catholic Church actually permitted her corporate soul to be artificially cleansed and her actions of Christian contradictions to be repressed. The 1968 through 1971 encroachments of black Catholics have created national and international public opinion and have consciously severed the American Catholic society into two discordant assemblages: one black and one white. (This act of severance was in reality black people consciously and publicly accepting and dealing with and out of their separated state. This acceptance is always perceived by white people as the act of black people choosing and moving to separate from white people; some psychologists term this process as "victim-projection.") These two opposing forces of persuasion have cancelled one another out and left a vacancy which often gets filled with the force of brutal resistance.

(Cont'd on page 17)

a new world picture. click.

suitable for:
retreats conferences discussions class home church

a 35 min. visual experience of nearly 200 slides with accompanying narration dealing with the "new blk nun," her image, and the growing
"nation consciousness" of blk people.

new pictures for new people!

rental: $ 50.=

write:
a new world picture. click.
% National Black Sisters' Conference
3333 Fifth Avenue
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15213

A FAST FOR ANGELA

AS SIGNS OF SOUL APPROACHES THE PRESS, NEWS MEDIA REPORTS THE OPENING DATE OF THE TRIAL OF ANGELA DAVIS, THE STAFF OF THE NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE URGES ALL MEMBERS OF THE CONFERENCE, ALL OUR SUBSCRIBERS AND READERS, ALL WHO BELIEVE IN JUSTICE AND FREEDOM AND TRUTH TO JOIN US ON MARCH 15, 1972 IN A DAY OF FAST...A DAY OF PENANCE TO HELP SECURE THAT JUSTICE WE ALL HOPE FOR.

NBSC FORMATION INSTITUTE: TOTAL BLACK EXPERIENCE

Forty white religious superiors and members of formation and vocation recruitment teams from across the country attended the Institute on Black Sister Formation sponsored by the National Black Sisters' Conference, 17 - 22 October 1971 at Weber Center, Adrian, Michigan.

The purpose of the Institute was to provide white nuns who are superiors or formation and vocation directors and/or team members with an exposure to and study of emerging distinctly black features of religious living resulting from the identity of the "new black religious woman."

The Institute may be described as an experiential opportunity putting the white sister existentially in touch with realities which the black religious woman must deal with daily. The Institute created a "black space" in which the participants were "sealed." The space was filled with black literature, visuals, music, liturgical expressions. The participants experienced what could be called a cultural shock. By inducing this kind of realistic trauma, the Institute aimed to be a growth opportunity ... an opportunity for the sisters to accept new conceptualizations about the black sister, about themselves, and about their religious congregation's relationship to black sisters.

Lectures, panels, communication analysis sessions, black liturgies and spiritual experiences, visual deliveries (slides, films, role-playing), and a book display, compliments of Vaughn's Book Store, Detroit, marked the format of the scheduled program.

Structurally, the program of the Institute was drawn up to demonstrate a logical, chronological and systematic presentation.

Beginning with a lecture entitled Black History: The Crisis of the Old Order, Mr. William Strickland illustrated the history of black folk in America, while Father Paul Gopaul concerned his remarks with the historical relationship between black people and the Roman Catholic Church. A panel consisting of lay men and women, including the mother of a black nun, Mrs. Dorothy Howze; a young black nationalist, Joyce Smith; a minister and theology instructor, Rev. Archie Rich; and a community organizer, Walter Hardy, discussed the impact and effect they believed the black nun should have on and with the black community in this decade. Two interview panels carried the second day. Sister Sylvia Thibodeaux, SSF and Miss Teresa Perry interviewed black sisters (Sisters Nathan Marie Adams, SSND, Myrna Rose Joseph, Yvonne Irvin, CDP, Karen Howze and Claretta Green) on their experiences and beliefs about white religious communities and white religious formation programs.

Dr. Reginald Wilson presented an analysis of the development of the culture and psychology of persons oppressed. Teresa Perry and Craig Lewis, in a team effort, shared a profound intellectual experience with the group. Through preaching and poetry, Teresa and Craig presented some black reflections on religious life.

The warmth and depth of the spiritual beauty of Miss Betty Mansfield aided greatly in reassuring those sisters who found the Institute painful and disarming. Miss Mansfield shared much. "Sleeping beauties," she charged, "aren't changed - they have to be aroused."

Sister Mary Shawn Copeland, OP,
Special Projects Director of NBSC and

(Continued on page 12)

PARTICIPANTS COMMENT

"This workshop confirms my conviction that our biggest job is among ourselves -- racism among whites -- religious and lay."

"The total experience was soul shaking. I honestly believe you have the truth about where it's at. I certainly will look at life and my part in it differently from now on."

"The total experience was agonizing - searching - longing. Coming to a deeper awareness of what it is to be black-to be a black religious-and an understanding of how much we need your leadership andyour uniqueness. My soul has been wrenched. I know I have died and have emerged a new woman."

"The extent of the change to the within me compares to the difference between blindness and sight, deafness and hearing, death and life. Is there a change more radical?"

"Incomprehensible -- will take time to realize the full effect. It has given my life an adult dimension."

"A beautiful experience with black women — Sisters in community."

"This was an awareness experience of the greatest magnitude. Now, however, I am more aware of my great ignorance of the problem. This Institute has suddenly brought the issue into a human or people experience. It is no longer a mental exercise to be dealt with by talk."

"IT WAS A CONFRONTATION ON THE DEEPEST LEVEL OF THE EXPERIENCE OF SEPARATION — A CONFRONTATION OF THE REALITY OF RACISM AND MATERIAL VALUES IN OUR SOCIETY. IT WAS ALSO A CONFRONTATION WITH MYSELF OF WHAT I REALLY STAND FOR OR WISH TO STAND FOR AND WHAT I DO NOT STAND FOR."

"an awakening."

"The Institute pressured me to look at my life death commitment. I believe in my life there is NO way to say NO to truth, justice, equality and involvement. I feel I was emptied of much of myself, I died to a fear within me and I was filled with the Spirit of Liberation."

"painfully soul searching."

I've come to an awareness of the mission of the black man, re: black liberation; I realize the awful slavery of white racism.

NBSC Formation Institute
(Continued from page 9)

coordinator of the Institute, dealt with the socio-historical-theological description of formation for black women in our present world context and consciousness.

Reverend James Lyke, OFM, was chaplain for the Institute and was assisted by Reverend Donald Clark. Sister Teresita Weind, SMP conducted all daily prayer sessions and preached vividly and creatively at one of the Eucharistic Celebrations. Sister assisted the priests in coordinating liturgies of depth and joy.

Thursday was spent in small group sessions conducted by facilitators from Special Planners and Consultants, a Cincinnati consultant firm. Dr. Eugene Cash and Messrs. Nathan Allen, Jerome Jenkins, Winther McCroom and Halloway Sells led the group through a meaningful day of self encounter which culminated in "life-death" commitment to truth.

Sister Beverly Stanton, RSM, served as hostess for the entire five day period and assisted in the liturgy, particularly with her gift of dance.

There is nothing outside of you as strong as what is inside of you. That power inside you is the stronger. If you don't understand this, then you are only a bit of flesh and other men will trample on you.

ASANTE YVONNE!

To members of the National Black Sisters' Conference, Sister Yvonne Tucker is no stranger: she joined the NBSC staff in November 1970. Regional coordinators of the past year will remember her visits and participation in regional activities. In August of 1971, Sister resigned her staff position and began full time studies at Carlow College, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Sister Yvonne, a native Chicagoan, spent several years in Wisconsin as a Franciscan. In November of 1970 she became an affiliate member of the Pittsburgh Sisters of Mercy and made profession of vows in the Congregation in January 1972.

Sister is majoring in psychology because she believes that the number of "black and excellent psychologists for our people are few and far between." Sister Yvonne began field placement in January.

We would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank Sister Yvonne for the many long days and nights she spent for the NBSC.

Asante, Yvonne!

Blacks Lobby for Papal Interview
(Continued from page 1)

de Porres described the encounter between black Catholic leaders and Vatican officials as "difficult but enlightening." In an unprecedented hour and a half audience with the Vatican Secretary of State on October 8, 1971 the black delegates revealed to Archbishop Benelli facts on the "problem of white America, i.e., racism, which represses and oppresses non-white people." The group discussed a need for dealing with the dearth of black vocations to the priesthood and religious life, and the need for keeping Catholic schools serving blacks open and viable as they represent alternatives to the public school system. The delegates presented the Archbishop with publications of Black Priest/White Church by Father Larry Lucas, as well as NBSC's Signs of Soul, Celibate Black Commitment, Black Survival, and The Black Religious Woman as Part of the Answer.

In drawing the relationship between blacks and the Catholic Church, the black leaders stated that the church in the black community is dying because the Catholic Church is not relevant. The church is an obstacle to the already diminishing number of black clergy and religious as they, in new black awareness, seek to recreate the black Catholic population.

"Archbishop Benelli's response to the delegation was one of skepticism. Such facts were in conflict with the reports from white American bishops about what they were doing for black Catholics in the United States. Archbishop Benelli was," Sister Martin de Porres said, "obviously and admittedly frustrated at his inability to alleviate our anxiety. He was a deeply sensitive man who could not understand the disparity between the black Catholic situation as presented by the bishops and ourselves."

"The Vatican is not really conscious of the plight of black America, much less black American Catholics: they see this as the responsibility of the bishops. If black Catholics are seeking equal and/or representative power and roles in the decision making mechanism of the American Catholic Church, then black Catholics must in fact deal with the American Catholic hierarchy," Sister emphasized.

The trip to Rome made clear to the delegates that "the Vatican does not represent races of people, except their own mission in Africa," Sister Martin explained. "It was also good to see how the Vatican operation functioned. It was very clear that the relationship of the American hierarchy to the ethnically dominated Vatican bears a similarity to the relationship between the American Catholic hierarchy and the black Catholics." The bishops are taking a slow and measured approach toward the Vatican. Black Catholics, however, can no longer afford slow and measured progress.

"The reality of the black Catholic situation in America is and has been one of separatism created by the dominate culture of the American Catholic Church."

"What we are seeking now," Sister stated, "is not to re-group ourselves, but to work out of the position in which we find ourselves; and become a people separate under black leadership ... not separate under white leadership. At a time when black people find themselves dispersed under the leadership of white people, it is absolutely necessary that black leadership apparatus and images exist in the black Catholic Church in order to keep people magnetized

(Continued on page 15)

Achieving Black Womanhood
(Continued from page 5)

The Debutant Party given for the white girl in the upper strata of American Society is a formal ceremony that marks the introduction and entrance into society at the age of 16 or 18. This is her symbol of achieving womanhood.

The black girl in the United States does not have a coming out party for society to recognize her state of womanhood, nor is it based upon the biological factors of reaching puberty. Womanhood is achieved through the life style of her cultural group which is basically psychological. At an early age this psychological syndrome begins to take hold. She is expected to be well groomed, have good manners and become 'mother's little helper.' This is what society and her family demands and expects from her. Yes, you may say this is expected of all little girls, for "little girls are made of sugar and spice and everything nice." What are the ingredients that provides for this sugar and spice to make a little black girl nice? Her blackness, nappy hair, undernourishment and tattered clothes? All of these components are not typical to every black girl, but one is: belonging to the black race no matter what her complexion is.

MIRROR, MIRROR ON THE WALL
WHO'S THE FAIREST OF THEM ALL?
Surely not you with your blackness and nappy hair

Black has always been co-opted to designate something bad. Because of this negative connotation of blackness, the black woman has never (up until the present time) been able to look into the mirror and say, "mirror, mirror on the wall who's the fairest of the all," without hearing, surely not you with your blackness and nappy hair. She cannot meet the standards of beauty invested in the blond, blue eyes, thin lips and straight nose white queen.

Accompaning this ugliness, the black woman also perceives herself as a martyr because of her responsibilities of caring for her younger brothers and sisters. Karen, who is in the second grade, cared for her eight month old brother and four other siblings because her mother was an alcoholic and head of the household. Another case showing the responsibility of the young black female is twelve year old Sandy living in a house with her father and his common law wife. (Permanent Records from the Pittsburgh School, 1970.) This imagery of the black woman being a martyr persists throughout her adult life: "While a woman's life in the ghetto is certainly far from easy, at least she has the satisfaction of living up to her mother role rather fully. Under the circumstances she has to face, it sometimes comes easy for her to define the ghetto woman as a heroine or as a martyr... One mother, now living alone with her children states, "A mother just got to fight for her children. It's hard if you ain't got no money and your man steps out on you -- it's real hard. You got to earn some money and raise a family too..." (Hannerz: 1969:95)

Even the black female who has two parents and from the lower upper class learns to cook and keep house at a very early age. This is due to the desire of the parents to move up the social and economic scale: mothers working or seeking higher education. The concept of a martyr is perpetuated by the system as well as black women themselves.

(Cont'd on page 15)

Achieving Black Womanhood
(Continued from page 14)

The black male helps the young black female to achieve womanhood at an early age through comments he makes as she passes along the street: "Bet she has something good, look at those stockings." This is necessary for the black male for he must prove his manliness to his peers and the adults in his subculture. "His manhood is proven by the number of bitches he has on the line." (Talcott Parsons and Kenneth Clark: 1966:172) The emphasis placed on sexuality builds up a negative attribute that her sex and sex alone is her best quality. The black woman wants to be accepted for entirety, her sexuality is only a part of her. Yet, she has internalized the myth about her sexuality and used it (to her advantage so she thought). "She found herself competing for a mate for the sex ration was in favor of the male and she was at a disadvantage." (Jessie Bernard: 1966:82)

The black woman tried to overcome these attributes by pressing her hair, using bleaching creams and purchasing stylish clothes, becoming educated and in the process she became hostile, aggressive and dominating. She lost her true identity and felt co-opted the larger white society and betrayed by black males.

We, as the counterpart of white America, have been so intent upon assimilating into the "American Way of Life" to obtain the "American Dream" we have internalized their standards as well as their myths. These myths and standards are not easy to overcome.

The black woman and the black male must first realize that the battle of the sexes has been a reality throughout the existence of man and beast. With this battle there is competition in the dating game with whites and blacks. The black male must stop striving to make the black woman a mirror image of the white woman, who he thinks is soft, understanding and loving. He only believes this myth because he himself has internalized the myth about the white woman. If asked, the black male cannot give the black woman a formula stating what he wants her to be. He becomes incensed when a suggestion is made to him by the black woman and accuses her of being dominating. This shows that he is unsure of his status as a MAN. The black woman can only regain her true identity by making her own standards of beauty, personality and sexuality: she must look inward and radiate her beauty.

Until the black male and the black woman are able to examine and redefine their blackness and motives, they will continue to be in a dilemma and white society will once again reign supreme.

As long as the whole society of black and white remains "fucked up" on the imagery of sex and racism, the black female will continue to achieve womanhood with negative psychological hang-ups about herself.

Blacks Lobby for Papal Interview
Continued from page 13)

in and under a black religious expression of Catholicism."

Benelli's charge to the group to tell your people to be patient and continue to dialogue with the American hierarchy was viewed with much consternation. The delegates disclosed some of the impediments in negotiating; the prime difficulty being that such meetings are consistently called by blacks.

"The bishops are reactionary and cannot deal with black people in leadership roles. Their attendance around the bargaining table is marked by tolerance; and we find among many bishops a lack of sincere and honest support. Hopefully, future meetings will be significantly different," Sister Martin de Porres concluded.

The Rape of the Black Woman
(Continued from page 3)

> The 'black mammy' was a household servant who generally had specific duties to perform. These were mainly connected with the care of the children of the family, thus relieving the mistress of all the drudgery work connected with child care. When these duties were not pressing, which meant that when the children were large enough to be able to help take care of themselves, she assisted the mistress with the household tasks. Her sphere of influence widened with the years of her service. She was next to the mistress in authority and 'bossed' everyone and everything in the household.

The following are examples of the traits which were generally denied to slave women as a group but which were attributed to her. She was considered self-respecting, independent, loyal, gentle, forward, affectionate, true, strong, just, warm-hearted, compassionate, fearless, popular, brave, good, pius, quick-witted, capable, thrifty, proud, regal, courageous, superior, skillful, tender, queenly, dignified, neat, quick, competent, trustworthy, faithful, patient, tyrannical, sensible, discreet, efficient, careful, harsh, devoted, truthful, neither apish or servile.

The black woman was a mistress and rarely a wife. White men of every social rank slept with her. Intermixture was not thought to be a good thing. The white man was caught up in the push and pull of an irreconcilable conflict between desire and aversion for such a union. This is because the black person was viewed as being both alike and different from themselves. Without this perception of similarity, no desire and no widespread gratification was possible. Without perception of difference, no aversion to miscegenation nor tension concerning it could have arisen.

It is to be noted that some white men were punished for defiling their bodies in lying with black women, but never for defiling her body.

The master had the right and practiced it freely to have sexual freedom even with the black woman he allowed the black male. At anytime he could countermand the black slave's orders to the black female. At best the house servant or field foreman was sharing "his woman" with the white master.

THE MANY RIGHTS SHE HAD IN HER NATIVE AFRICAN LAND WERE TAKEN AWAY...AMONG THEM WAS THE RIGHT TO GIVE HER BODY TO THE MAN SHE LOVED.

Prostitution of slave women was a private affair and when it developed into a more or less permanent association it merged into the socially approved system of concubinage found in New Orleans, Mobile, Charleston and other cities. Some unions were casual rapes while others led to common law relationships or marriage. Numerous divorce petitions filed by white wives who were ousted from bed and board by comely slave girls indicate that many masters found it impossible to confine love to the narrow channels of the slave system. Thus the black woman was like a vending machine with two slots. One for sexual pleasure, the other for oral (milk) pleasures. This machine was a simple device, running on instinctual energy. It lacked a governing mechanism and this called for little maintenance. When it fouled up or became old it was readily discarded. The fact that this machine was a person with

(Cont'd on page 18)

A Revolution of Inclusion or Separation
(Cont'd from page 6)

The resurgence of the Black Catholic Movement has occured for several reasons. First, the challenge to be black and full of promise has finally caught up to black Catholics and distracted them from their traditional Catholic attention. And, as A. B. Spellman writes, "Times like this are times when black people are with each other and their strength flows back and forth between them like borrowed breath."

RELIGION BELONGS TO COMMUNITY

Secondly, black Catholics are seeking the religious and "soul" expression of a black Catholic. Religion belongs to community and must be the creative social expression of theology and spiritually conditioned by cultural history. "Soul" is the life created by the symbolic languages and expressions, the meaningful and innate communications among a people who have attempted to accomodate themselves to, integrate into, coexist with, and separate from a white and dominating American non-culture. The Roman Catholic Church has one all embracing system of theology and spirituality which may have diverse ethnic flavors but which does not permit the historical and cultural expressions unique to the black persons who have been inducted into Catholicism.

Thirdly, life for black people in the American Catholic Church has generally been submission and dependence, limitation and control, obligation and subtle coercion, paralysis from fear and dehumanization from oppression. Black Catholics are evolving into a God-convicted people whose first purpose is to be unconditionally involved in the black liberation process and to employ the fullest use of Catholic resources in this process within God's Kingdom, and whose second objective may be to bring black richness and resources to a white religious non-culture and church. For black Catholics, this process involves self-determination, indigenous leadership, black ideation, and black control.

Black "revolution" within a white institution contemporarily means black inclusion into almost every ramification of white life, especially as it affects black people. An authentic and full-course black revolution means the overthrow of all strains of control and the creation and supplanting of a new system for the common welfare of black people. If black Catholics continue to seek reform, freedom and equality within the American Catholic Church, they must do so with a clear vision of whether they are about a revolution of inclusion or a revolution of separation.

Fourthly, although money may be the only bond of any semblance of unity or cooperation between blacks and the American Catholic Church, and although the American Catholic Church has actually forced revolution upon black Catholics by severing her financial ropes of unity, the radical moves of black Catholics are not about money. Black Catholics are about black spiritual and political radicalization within the system of the American Catholic Church. They are trying to control the causal elements of the relationship between themselves and the highly stratified hierarchy of white domination or leadership in a desperate and determined attempt to gain command of its pervasive effects and forces that keep black Catholics in spiritual and material deprivation.

THE RADICAL MOVES OF BLACK CATHOLICS ARE NOT ABOUT MONEY

To date, black Catholics have no real product from their radical actions to program. Black Catholics have confronted every stratum of the Catholic hierarchy, having endeavored to deliver their presence, their concerns and their aspirations to Pope Paul VI. All this has forced them to deal with the reality that their life is their relations with the social powers of the Church around them. In this reality, black Catholics can opt to continue trying to negotiate and reason their liberation with the hierarchy of hierarchies resulting only in superficial toleration by white leadership until the involved black Catholics get tired, or black Catholics will elect to discontinue recognizing limits to themselves and referring to a hierarchy of feelings and emotions - a personal uniqueness as well as a soul - was overlooked most often.

(Cont'd on page 18)

The Rape of the Black Woman
(Continued from page 16)

The field woman was a laborer beside her man, begetter of children who was lent out to the other plantations for breeding. She was responsible for cooking, feeding, and care of the slaves, midwifery, and finally, in old age, mammy for other children. If she rose in social status then she became a mammy to the white children. The black women who worked in the big house and the fields acted not as a dominant factor over the black male but as his protector and savior. Her primary strategy was to allow herself to be sexually used, often to save the life of the black male. She could speak out to the master and to the white boss if she pleased him with good food, good sex, good care of his children, a role which the master's own woman was seldom allowed to pursue. White women were the vicarious display of the master's economic and social position, his property as well. A vocal link between the white man and the black man, the black woman often forced opinions and bargained successfully for whatever pitiful reforms were possible under slavery.

Thus the black woman of today has been forged in suffering and sorrow. She is the Black Pearl of her people. The Ebony Song they sing. She has given her all for the survival of her children. She is today's Black Moses -- Harriet Tubman. Don L. Lee describes her well in the following poem:

soft: the way her eyes view her children hard: her hands; a comment on her will.
warm: just the way she is, jim!
sure: as yesterday, she's tomorrow's tomorrow.

A Revolution of Inclusion or Separation
(Continued from page 17)

Catholic authorities outside themselves, and depend of the Supreme Authority to work out a new system of black leadership and relationships within or outside of the American Catholic Church. This new program and spiritual redirection would then enable the "church" reality to become the revolutionary agent that her pristine nature has meant her to be in re-ordering society for the oppressed.

IF THE PROCESS OF BEING BLACK AND CATHOLIC FAILS, IT WILL AT LEAST BE THE FAILURE OF BLACK PEOPLE

This black Catholic progress through radicalization has been wrought through the process of black people utilizing their creative energy to make an unexampled difference for black Catholics. The change: in lieu of being separate black and Catholic under white domination, black Catholics will be black and separate and Catholic under black leadership. Then, if the process of being black and Catholic fails, it will at least be the failure of black people.

Predictively, if the Black Catholic Movement is murdered, the American Catholic Church will witness the death of Catholicism among black people, and not the death of blackness. If the Black Catholic Movement commits suicide under the overwhelming pressures of political demands, it will be a great catastrophe of black destiny in the eschatological church.

NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE FINANCIAL STATEMENT
31 December 1971

Income Account - Earnings for period covering 1 January 1971 - 31 December 1971

Personal Contributions	27,479.64
Grants ($25,000 ISM, $10,000 BWCDF) *	35,000.00
Interest (four short-term certificates of deposits)	1,204.82
Other (subscriptions, dues, sales of proceedings, raffle, conference registration, reimbursements, etc.)	32,866.68
SUB-TOTAL:	$96,551.14
Net cash assets at beginning of 1971	31,941.22
	$128,492.36

Operating Expenditures for period covering 1 January 1971 - 31 December 1971

Staff Salaries	16,707.38
Office Equipment	1,260.93
Taxes and Health Benefits	3,145.16
Practicability Study	9,556.77
General Administration	8,130.86
Annual Conference	14,940.50
Travel	8,724.75
Printing and Publishing Costs	16,536.00
Retreat and Formation Workshop	6,125.00
Contingencies	5,943.49
	$91,070.84

Liabilities - none
Current investments - none

Net Worth 31 December 1971

Cash Balance	37,421.52
Proprietorship	4,052.43
	$41,473.95

* ISM - Irwin-Sweeney-Miller
BWCDF - Black Women's Community Development Foundation

From left to right: Rev. John Bowman, SVD; Brother Joseph Hager, FMS; Rev. James Lyke, OFM; Rev. Gene Wilson; Rev. Charles Burns, SVD; and Rev. Donald Clark

LET A NEW RACE OF MEN NOW ARISE AND TAKE CONTROL

National Black Sisters' Conference
3333 Fifth Avenue
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania – 15213

Nonprofit Organization
U.S. POSTAGE
PAID
Pittsburgh, Penna.
Permit No. 1146

NOV 14 1972
THEOLOGICAL U 1962

SIGNS OF SOUL

VOLUME IV NUMBER 2 · NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE NEWSLETTER · MAY 1972

This issue of Signs of Soul, devoted to the theme of imprisonment, has been sparked by the relationships of black prisoners and members of the National Black Sisters' Conference. Visits, discussions and communiques have provided the pillars of this unique relationship which transcends the traditional meeting of "the prisoner and the nun." They are both a new breed: the prisoner -- questioning, challenging, thinking, testing. The nun -- alert, seeking, searching, probing. Neither content with the passivity and spectatorship assigned to their kind. Both determined to create alternatives in the black community.

The black community "at large" desperately needs to take more vocal and active involvement in the eradication of the oppressive and criminogenic atmosphere afoot in the country's jails and prisons. Let us test and test and test! Let us gather our forces in search and in demand for change. The same forces which hold our brothers and sisters threaten us all.

BLACK SISTERS WANTED:

. Holy Angels Model School, 740 W. 28th Street, Indianapolis, Ind. 46208 - Tel: 317 926-3324. Open school concept: teachers needed for primary & intermediate. Contact blk priest, Father Clarence Waldon.

. Indiana Harbor Catholic Elementary Schools (6 schools); inner-city, 55% Chicano, 12% black. Contact James Repko through the Gary Diocesan Bldg.

. Ozanam School, 1833 Wylie Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15219. Teachers and principal needed in K - 3, all black school. Contact blk priest, Father Augustus Taylor.

. St. Agatha's Elementary School, 10932 St. Clair, Cleveland, Ohio 44108. Teachers needed, all levels; Contact blk priest, Father Charles Burns.

. DePorres Catholic School, 2627 N. 11th Street, Milwaukee Wisconsin 53206. Teachers needed for primary and intermediate. Contact Sister Mary Judene Herber.

. Visitation-Holy Ghost School, 4515 Evans Avenue, St. Louis, Mo. 63113. Three primary teachers needed; one social studies, one English and one math. Contact Mr. Benjamin E. Williams.

. St. Andrew-St. Joseph School, 925 Brockhurst St., Oakland, Cal 94608. Need director for pre-school program. Contact Rev. John Maxwell.

. St. Paul of the Cross School, 551 Harwell Rd., N.W., Atlanta, Ga. 30318. Need principal, and teachers for primary, intermediate and secondary. Contact Father Austin McKenna.

. St. Therese School, 5809 Michigan Avenue, Kansas City, Mo. 64130. Need teachers on all levels. Contact Sister Jean Besti, BVM.

. St. Agnes School, Superior and St. Agnes Avenues, Dayton, Ohio 45407. Teachers needed for all levels: elementary school. Contact Sister Margaret Fanella.

. California College Dominguez Hills, 1000 East Victoria St., Dominguez Hills, Calif 90247. Seeks director of Afro-American Study Program. Contact blk priest, Father Paul Gopaul.

. Queen of Angels Elementary School, 44 Belmont Ave., Newark, N.J. 07103. Need teachers on all levels.

. St. Francis de Sales Elementary School, 5 Aimsworth Street, Roslindale, Massachusetts 02131. Principal needed. Contact Sister Sylvia Thibodeaus at 617 442-2675

. Several black and Puerto Rican schools in Youngstown, Ohio. Teachers needed all levels. Contact Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Rev. Bernard Bonnot, 144 W. Wood Street, Youngstown, Ohio 44503

. Archdiocesan Urban Commission, 320 Cathedral Street, Baltimore, Md 21201. Need consultants to new approaches for inner-city school children. Contact Sister Marie Julie, SND de N.

(Note: All position openings are immediate. All the schools listed are located in inner-city communities.)

SUBSCRIPTIONS: Signs of Soul is published three times a year by the National Black Sisters' Conference, a non-profit, socio-religious organization. Subscriptions are available to non-members of the NBSC at a rate of $3.00 per year. All subscriptions and business should be sent to: 3333 5th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa 15213

PRISONS
THE SOUL SCRAPING HORROR OF IT; THE AWFUL BLACK WASTE OF IT; AND THE REVOLUTIONARY POTENTIAL OF IT

By Billy "Hands" Robinson, #68313 Stateville

(Special to Signs of Soul)

Prison is a painful place to be. Moon-raking white walls and tobacco chewing white jaws trying to contain and further confuse black hopes. Trying to keep the black hopes from coalescing into the black hope and bursting through the real shackles -- which ain't got nothin to do with walls and jaws ... and they knows it. And we knows it. And it's time it's time it's time it's time it's time it's time for the macabre dance to stop. Time for the game to stop.

Do you understand what is a prisoner today? A real "statistical" prisoner, what the honkies call "the average" prisoner? Well, he's a young, so got damn young, black dude who ain't even out of his teens, -- young, black aggressive, and wasted with time. In amerika, the land of the notorious syndicate and murder incorporated, the average prisoner is a young, black dude! What's going on?

In short, the average prison is filled with young, blackmen, because the oppressive/racist forces of the state are cold-hearted and calculatingly unleashed and sicked upon the black community. Because the beasts can feel the fury boiling in the breasts of black youth, where the resurrections of nat/king/malcolm/'s are taking place and threatening to refuse to be silenced again. Because black youth is what they fear most and what they feel they must contain.

Yes, these prisons are painful, racist concentration camps, really, where young black bodies and minds are sent to be either conditioned or broken, or as in the case of george jackson, snuffed out of existence. Here, at stateville/joliet, the reality of what prisons are about today is obvious. The worst thing a black prisoner can be in the eyes of the administration is to be black -- to talk, think, act black -- especially to act black.

But we could rap forever about the oppressive forces of prison that operate on the blackman, for the main purpose of the amerikan prison now is just that: black oppression. However, nether we prisoners of the "free" black community can afford the luxury of "drowning in our own tears" merely because more and more of us are finding ourselves in these racist concentration camps. El Hajj Malik Shabazz nor Eldridge Cleaver nor George Jackson let the awful oppression matter that much. We must change these concentration camps into revolutionary camps! We must make oppression, especially this oppression, build its own scaffold and fashion its own noose! We must take advantage of this "precious" time to create straight-thinking, revolutionary-minded blackmen/women. For every blackman/woman these beasts fling into these racist concentration camps, we must see to it that a bad motha-for-yer revolutionary is returned! Can you dig it, brothers and sisters? Can you dig it? We must squeeze the butter from the oppressor's ass and use it to slide us on our way. We must subvert the

(Continued on page

Wholistic

The National Black Sisters' Conference sponsored an Easter retreat, followed by an educational workshop for black sisters, 3 April through 7 April at Immaculata College, Washington, D.C.

The retreat, A Life/Death Recommitment to the Struggle, ministered by Father Donald Clark, and attended by forty black sisters, included a two-day fast to symbolize dependence on God, and not on food, to wholly nourish soul, mind, spirit and body. The nourishment of common prayer and discussion challenged the sisters' call to recommitment to the struggle of black people.

An Interactive Educational Workshop featured Dr. Kenneth Haskins, Instructor at the Harvard University Graduate School of Education, talking on the Philosophy and Structure of the Community School, and the Pragmatics of Accountability in Community Education. Other speakers included Miss Sarita Tucker and Mrs. Frances Pierce, both teachers at St. Joseph's Parochial Community School in Roxbury, Massachusetts. They spoke from their own experiences in a very successful parochial community school.

ISOLATION/ALONENESS/SOLITUDE

By Father Donald Clark
[Delivered at NBSC's Wholistic Retreat]

One of the true characteristics of modern life is separateness. Those of us who come out of a Roman Catholic religious background are not novices to this separateness because when we went to the convent or the seminary, they drove us out in the country, opened the door, pushed us out, and said, "This is home." So we know about being alone. But it seems to me that people who are next door neighbors, people who live in the same house, people who eat at the same table, feel themselves separate from each other.

We have a definite fear of being alone. A few years ago people suddenly discovered "personalism" and "encounter"; you couldn't get with a group of nuns who didn't want to "encounter" you.

To a large extent it was a reaction because of a fear of being isolated; a fear of being alone. When we are alone we experience our own impotence.

People who are least involved in any kind of movement, who are least involved with other people, are the people who are most afraid of their own inability. They are afraid to be alone on one hand, and at the same time there

(Continued on page

AN ATTORNEY VIEWS THE PRISON SYSTEM

By Claudia Morcom

[Mrs. Morcom is a member of NBSC's Tribunal for Black Religious Affairs, and Co-Chairman of the Angela Davis Defense Committee]

As an attorney involved in criminal legal representation, I am convinced that the only way to solve the devastating problems of Amerika's penal system as it exists now, is to ABOLISH it! There is no justification in a modern, civilized and humane society for keeping human beings caged and isolated from their families and positive societal influences, while subjecting them to the degrading and dehumanizing facilities and treatment as in this nation's prisons.

Confinement and isolation without any attempt at understanding, rehabilitation, treatment or communication with disturbed or troubled human beings will not result in any diminution of our prison population, lessen criminal activity or serve as a deterrent to antisocial behavior. Recent in-depth studies indicate that most detention facilities and penal institutions suffer from inadequate professional staff, lack of rehabilitation programs, training programs, diagnostic or treatment centers for medical-dental or psychiatric problems, or the necessary social adjustment services necessary to return an individual to the social interaction of community life.

Most prisons are physically archaic and unsuitable for human habitation. No human being should be incarcerated in a prison or a jail. Many of those presently incarcerated do not deserve to be there, but are, through our country's dual system of justice: a system that penalizes many for being unable to post bond or bail, or to hire a lawyer of their choice. A racist law enforcement chain of events prevents our brothers and sisters from being tried by juries with similar life experiences, while having decisions made concerning their lives by a disinterested judge whose life experiences (socially, economically and culturally) are far removed from the accused, and who in fact brings his own set of prejudices, racist attitudes and feelings of superiority into his decision making process.

Since abolishing the prison system is an unlikely event in our life time, I offer as an alternative some drastic suggestions for prison reform. No intended prison reform can succeed, no matter how well meaning, unless it is clearly understood that we are dealing with the lives of human beings, who must be treated as such and for whom the same intensity in problem solving (for them) must be applied as we do in searching for the discovery of cures for disease, and the scientific efforts expended on a highly technical space program.

A complete elimination of our selective arrest and law enforcement practices is required. Absolute right to bail must be insured, and personal bond or release on one's own recognizance guaranteed. Any deviation from these rights must contain constitutionally protected safe guards. Pre-trial detention and punishment must be eliminated and in extreme cases where pre-trial detention may be necessary, safe guards must be provided.

The abuse and illegal misuse of the grand jury proceeding by prosecutors and other law enforcement agents to stifle political dissent and suppress first amendment rights must be prohibited by the courts. The access to legal counsel must be provided from the time of arrest for all accused regardless of ability to pay. Liberal pre-trial discovery must be afforded every accused at government expense. During the trial there must be vigorous surveillance by the court to insure accused rights are not violated and due process requirements are met insuring a fair trial. Expanded pre-sentencing work-ups should be required on every accused found guilty, and every alternative should be employed prior to incarceration, i.e., probation; release into custody of family, minister, employer, doctor, lawyer, union; psychiatric treatment; hospitalization; drug treatment; court ordered responsibility for support, maintenance and medical care of victim and his family where there has been a crime of violence.

(Continued on page

An Attorney Views the Prison System
(Continued from page

Victimless crimes must be eliminated from the law and a realistic twentieth century, humane and intelligent approch to drug addiction, drunkness, gambling, homo-sexuality, and prostitution must be made. Having thus cut down the prospective prison population to a workable size, I suggest the following means for rehabilitation and preparation for return to society:

1. Raze and destroy the existing multiple cell like behemoth structures and provide more individualized cell-less, bar-less communal living dormitories, patterned after neighborhood housing developments.
2. Address each inmate by his own name or a name of his choice. Have a choice of wearing apparel (no uniforms), and a choice of meals selected by inmate committees.
3. Evaluate accused medically, psychiatrically and vocationally to determine the best individualized means of training, treatment and care.
4. Inmate participation in prison policy, operation, and planning of recreational and educational programs.
5. Institute grievance procedure and inmate bargaining committee in each facility.
6. Employ incentive plans for job upgrading and educational advancement.
7. Pay for work should be in proportion to value of services and finished product, with minimum wage figures set. Where an inmate has been ordered responsible for support of victim and/or his family, this money could be used for that purpose; and otherwise for the support of inmate's family while incarcerated.
8. Establish a furlough program and liberal trustee-honor system for uneventful behavior.
9. Conjugal rights and familial visits should be uniformly a matter of right.
10. Provide opportunity for heterosexual relationships under controlled conditions with (health card carrying) volunteers.
11. Set procedures for inmates to elect their own governing board to deal with matters of self-discipline and internal disorder.
12. Appointment to Parole Boards should not be a gubernatorial function, but should be done by a board composed of members of the total community, with ex-inmate representation.

In summary, the black community, lay and professional, must become involved in prison reform, since a disproportionate number of our brothers and sisters are victims of the atrocities of the penal system.

We have let down a life-time of our people whose human resources and talents have been destroyed by the cruelty and oppressiveness of Amerika's prisons. If we do not work towards the abolition of the prisons through voluntary and humane efforts and concerns, they will be ultimately destroyed in a more violent and blood confrontation!

---

i was kept a prisoner for four months. then i think i had a trial, although i was not present. in fact, i do not know that i had another trial, but i was told that i had.

geronimo

BOOK REVIEW

Soledad Brother: The Prison Letters of George Jackson (Bantam Books, Inc)

By Sister Mary Shawn Copeland, OP

George Jackson stands as a very powerful codifier and articulator of the forces inherent in the most intensive microcosm of Amerikan neocolonialism--the Amerikan Penal System. What are those forces? Racism to be sure, but here reaching the cruelest pitch--raw, grim, arrogant, blatant. Hungers which prey on mind, body, soul, heart. Laws which warp, distort, destroy.

Soledad Brother: The Prison Letters of George Jackson is the stirring and passionate chronicle of a man's confrontation with those forces and his own shaping and hardening.

George Jackson's letters are written to family and friends, but they are unmistakably aimed, as well, at you and I. With its clear and well pitched style, Soledad Brother is an act intended to educate/move/lead us to awareness/reaction/change. Soledad Brother is a call to revolution/a Blk Manifesto:

"If today's young revolutionary vanguard are not merely entertaining themselves with a new kind of "chicken" a political form of bumper tag, if they seriously intend to step out front and take the monster to task, they should understand from the outset that the monster is merciless....The moment this monster detects the danger contained in our ideas and ideals he will react violently against us. Just the whisper of revolt excites in him a swift and terrible reflex, so swift we won't even know how we died." (p 167/169)

One in confinement may be trapped in boxes of personal pain and history. This is a luxury George Jackson rejects. Kapitalism, China, Vietnam, Facism, Tanzania, Sudan, Cuba, economics, neoslavery, and more: all his daily fare. Prisoned steeled his mind/trained it/exercised it/stretched it until it was quick and supple; his hunger for knowledge was insatiable. Key to his thinking was the ultimate unity of all colonized people the world over.

"We must establish a true internationalism with other anti-colonial peoples. Then we will be on the road of the true revolutionary. Only then can we expect to be able to control the circumstances of our day-to-day lives." (p 203)

Any book written in prison carries an unprintable message/undertone--unwritten words/sounds/events/thoughts/feelings which sometimes slip the barrier spilling into print. It is this message which is the pain/gut tragedy of incarceration.

"This camp brings out the very best in brothers or destroys them entirely. But none are unaffected. None who leave here are normal. If I leave here alive, I'll leave nothing behind. They will never count me among the broken men, but I can't say that I am normal either. I've been hungry too long. I've gotten angry too often. I've been lied to and insulted too many times. They've pushed me over the line from where there can be no retreat. I know that they will not be satisfied until they've pushed me out of this existence altogether. I've been the victim of so many racist attacks that I could never relax again. My reflexes will never be normal again. I'm like a dog who has gone through the K-9 process." (p32)

Today much of the luster and glamour attached to "inty-gration" has faded and as we black people reassemble values/culture/history, we find more and more

(Continued on Page

IF YOU MUST KNOW WHAT (GOD) LOOKS LIKE

("THE DAWN OF SISTER SHAWN")

WAS DRESSIN BLACK / GOD'S CHILE / DENYIN FACT / SOUL FLIRTED / CHANGES

HIS EMANCIPATED / MINI SKIRTED / LIBERATED / SISTER

STARTED TELLIN / LIVIN BLACK / BEAUTIFUL / MARRIED SOUL / FACT /

WUTT'EN NO SIN / CHANGES BEEN / CAUSE

SISTERS A SISTER

SISTER DONE SAID IT / HAILMARY / FULLA GRACE / GODDAMMIT! / SOUL'S BLACK / RYTHM IS FACT / JESUS U DIGGIT!?! / LIBER CARE / CEPT YALL / A DAMN JOKE / TOLD BY WHITE FOKE / JESUS CARRY / BULLSHIT! / UUH HUUH / SISTER SHO SAID IT!

READ / ABOUT / BLACK SISTER / TERRY'S POEM / GETTIN DOWN / SOUL SISTER / HADDA MESSIGE / STORY TELLIN / WIT WORDS / RYTHM / SOUL / GRABBIN HOLD / AHMIND / CHAININ ME / A WORD / A MESSIGE / BEEN BLIND / READ / A / POEM / SISTER'S MIND / TILLI

OOOOOOOH! / REACHIN / OUT / SEE ... / A STARSIL

THIS PRISON IS A PAINFUL PLACE / TOO / COME CHRISTMAS TIME / I'M TELLIN YOU / THEY DONE HOOKED UP A LITTLE CHRISTMAS / WITH TWINKLIN LIGHTS AND SILVER / BUT THE FLAG THEY GOT DEAD / IN THIS SILENT AND INCOMPRABLE WAR / TO KEEP IT'S JUST ANOTHER / THIS DAY RE BELLION DOWN — / THIS TREE THIS PAIN

(AT LEAST) HERE / THE BARS /// THE PAIN IS / THE BLEAK TOWERS / THE SHOTGUN / OF ANGRY YIN MULTIPLY & WE / YOUNG

(AT LEAST) THE BLACK / UNLESS OF GREAT / TRADICTION / IN THIS CO / OF GREAT / AN AMM.

TREE
D TRIM
APER'
ER
S ALL / THAT'S ALL : BELIEVE
L PLACE TO BE . . .
I
(GOD) IN THE BEGINNING
POETRY/MUSIC/LOVE
TRUE BROTHER/HOOD
ACTION CONTRA RHETORIC
THE NEEESSITY OF VIOLENCE
IN OBTAINING OUR END FAITH / FAITH / FAITH
(BULLET PRODDED FAITH)
THE (HOLY) MYSTERY OF MAN'S RELEASING
(GOD'S) FLUID
IN THE HOT MOISTNESS
OF WOMAN'S WOMB
& THE CHILD THAT SLIDES OUT
THAT WOMB . . .
ESPECIALLY IN THE BEGINNINGS
IN THE SOLID, BLACK BEGINNINGS
TIVIZED:
NERVOUSLY PACIN
. . .
ACES
STERS PLOT NO MO' —
THERE ARE SUCH CAN-NIGGAH GANGSTERS
ENTRATED CAMP
YOUNG BLACK/FACES DEAR (GOD):
SINCE (GOD):
I THOT YOU AINT ANSWERIN YR LINE
ANYHOW I'D DROP YOU A LINE
TO TRY TO FIND OUT WHY FOR YOU GOT ME
IN THIS COLD, FUCKED UP PLACE
WHERE HAPPINESS IS RELEGATED TO EMERGACIN TO SOME WARM BLACK BODY
BETWEEN A PAIR OF SHEETS
TRYING TO FORM A LIFE
IN THE BLACK CAVE
WHERE (YR SON) HIDES?
R.S.V.P.
IN STRUGGLE
Billy
P.S. PLEASE REPLY . . .
P.P.S. PLEASE REPLY . . .
P.P.P.S. PLEASE REPLY . . .
P.P.P.P.S. PLEASE REPLY . . .

ALL POEMS BY BILLY "WANUSI" RAY ROBINSON FROM JOLIET, ILLINOIS PRISON

PRISONS
By Billy "Hands" Robinson
(Continued from Page

purpose of these racist concentration camps, and make the oppressors rue the days they viciously filled them with us.. and other days.

This, of course, will call for a dedicated and concentrated effort on the part of the black community, as well as the black prison population --- but more so on the part of the black community. Most of us here aren't Malcolm X's or Eldridge Cleaver's or George Jackson's. Most of us need a lot of help before we can crash through the awful white barrier years of brutal, white oppression which forced us to erect and reach our beautiful black selves.

THE BLACK COMMUNITY MUST BECOME THE CATALYST THAT ACTIVATES A MASSIVE MOVE INTO BLACK SELF OF BLACK PRISONERS.

The black community must become the catalyst that activates a massive move into black self of black prisoners. The black community must flood these concentration camps with concerned black brothers and sisters, and love the black prison population into the very heart of the struggle.

When this is done, when the black community brings its boundless love into these institutions and showers its confined sons and daughters with it -- when they love us until we love back -- the very walls and bars will crack up with laughter, because the real shackles, the "barriers" above, will crumble in the midst of it.

Yes... the real shackles will crumble.

BOOK REVIEW
(Continued from Page

blacks interested in/concerned about/ acting for our incarcerated brothers and sisters. Undoubtedly, Soledad Brother has been an impetus in this movement. In Soledad Brother, Attica is predicted page after page. Soledad Brother surfaces the patterns of neo-slavery rampant in Amerikan society.

George Jackson's senseless murder is more brutally understandable when one realizes that not many weeks ago Soledad Brothers Fleeta Drumgo and John Clutchette were acquitted.

No writer in our time has so well assessed the Amerikan politik and destiny as George Jackson. No writer in our time has tempered rage so well in ink and act as George Jackson.

Soledad Brother paints a picture of a Dante-hell: men grow cold, colder, coldest. Freezing men; un-thawing them non-men/non-person/non-human. But there is a way for a man to be: court death they must, but live they will -- forever. George Jackson is/was the finest blkspiration of such/for such manhood.

The quality of a civilization is determined by the nature of its prisons.
Dostoyevsky

ISOLATION/ALONENESS/SOLITUDE
(Continued from page

time alone it is conceivable that he never would have been prepared to do the work he did.

You and I are so much concerned about working for truth, working for the Kingdom, working for improved education, working for the liberation of black people, working for our own freedom from all that still enslaves us, that we must be willing to see that aloneness is a pre-condition for doing that kind of work.

AS WE HAVE THE POWER TO MAKE DECISIONS ABOUT WHAT WE ARE GOING TO DO WITH OUR LIVES, CAN WE CHOOSE TO BE ALONE?

If we are afraid to be alone, if we need people so badly that we cannot be by ourselves, then it is conceivable that we shall never be ready to do what needs to be done. It would be a mistake to consider that it was only at the beginning of his life that Jesus experienced that kind of solitude. It was a characteristic of his whole life. People have for some time been going through Scripture trying to point out how human Jesus was. Sometimes we make a big product out of things like that. The one thing I keep getting out of reading about him is that he was the man who was always on the border line between being a complete solitary and being really involved with other people. I never get the impression that he truly was involved in the lives of people. Inspite of the story of Lazarus and Martha and Mary, whom Jesus loved, and John who was his friend, I always got the feeling that he is a man not quite involved in their lives. A man alone. It certainly was true that at the end of his life he was a man who felt himself completely abandoned.

When people have arrived at that great moment of their life when their life's work is about to be consummated, then they really begin to understand that aloneness is part of the whole bargain.

The event of Jesus on the cross ties into this whole thing of his being totally alone at the moment in his life when his great work was about to be done. That was part of the human condition. I don't believe there was anything unique to him. As you look at the lives of any man or woman who has been great, they experience those periods of their lives when they feel themselves completely abandoned by others. Sometimes even completely abandoned by God.

As we have the power to make decisions about what we are going to do with our lives, can we choose to be alone? This is not an argument for being married or for being in religious life. It is a suggestion that whatever state you find yourself in, you will experience this kind of solitude. This aloneness.

No one comes into glory unless he is willing to be alone, or at least unless he decides that he can live with that reality.

If we are looking for the glory of our race, or any other type of advance, we have to be willing to make that decision of whether we can stand to be lonely people.

I have a plan. I will give and give and give of myself until it proves our making or my end. The men of our group have developed as a result of living under a ruthless system a set of mannerisms that numb the soul. We have been made the floor mat of the world, but the world has yet to see what can be done by men of our nature, by men who have walked the path of disparity, of regression, or abortion, and yet come out whole. There will be a special page in the book of life for men who have crawled back from the grave. This page will tell of utter defeat, ruin, passivity and subjection in one breath, and in the next, overwhelming victory and fulfillment.

(George Jackson)

εὐχαριστῶ

[Greek: eucharistia -to be thankful]

If you were in a prison camp they would give you bread and water and tell you that was a meal. For those of you who are getting hungry now, this is a meal. If you were terribly sick you probably would not have an appetite. If they could get you to drink some water, they would figure they were doing good. The reason for saying that is so that we try to get ourselves in a certain frame of reference. We are much more vulnerable than we think we are. We are not as immuned to sickness and to death as we sometimes begin to believe. We are not as free as we like to think we are.

As bread and water is the food that prisoners eat, then we eat it in union with them. As our ancestors stayed alive by eating bread and drinking muddy water, then we eat it in union with them. As people who are about to die have no appetite, then we eat it in union with them.

LET US PRAY: Lord, God, we praise you because you are alive. Your living condition demands that you be in isolation; separate from. We are men and women created in your image and likeness. For all our creative power and our ability to leap gaps, to build bridges, to knock down barriers, we are self-contained, individual, isolated in solitude. Yet we are united with each other and as far as we can see, struggle to be in union. To be in union with those who are gathered here; to be in union with our brothers and sisters who could not come here. To be in union with generations past and generations yet to come. We stand before bread and water.

As far back as our eyes can see we observe long lines of black faced men, women and children. Their hands are bound. Their feet march forward...backward. They are together but each is alone. From their thick lips hang crumbs of stale bread: bread of death -- bread of life; flour and water stuck together by kneeding, baked by fire, forced down their aching throats by drafts of water. We are no better than our ancestors, so we eat together the bread of life -- bread of death; flour and water stuck together. Flour and water baked into bread. Flour and water washed down by water.

May we find in this rite strength to be alone, strength to be together. May we find You in this rite.

[Delivered by Father Donald Clark at the NBSC's 1972 Easter Week Retreat]

BLACK LAY CATHOLIC CAUCUS TO MEET

Mr. Sterling Hill, convention chairman of the Black Lay Catholic Caucus has announced plans for the Caucus' third annual convention to be held at St. John's College, Cleveland, Ohio, 9 - 12 August 1972. Under the theme, Nation Building! Organization for Equal Representation and Self Determination, the main endeavor of the convention will be to organize black Catholic caucuses on local, state and regional levels, in order to make the national body a strong vehicle for liberation of black Catholics, as well as the black community at large.

For further information and registration forms, contact Mr. Hill, Black Lay Catholic Caucus, P.O. Box 1606, Cleveland, Ohio 44104

SEMINARIANS MET

Members of the National Black Seminarians Association convened at Silver Springs, Maryland, 4 - 8 April for a NIA (Purpose) Workshop. Fifty seminarians gathered to hear renowned speakers on such topics as: Pastoral Care and Mental Health; The Black Church as a Community Organization; The Black Church as an Economic Power; and Black Theology - Black Spirit. Several black priests and sisters joined the seminarians for their concluding liturgy.

Brother David Benz was elected president pro-tem to replace the expired term of Brother Paul Wise. Inquires regarding the National Black Seminarians Association can be sent to: Brother Benz, St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, Pennsylvania.

BLACK RELIGIOUS BROTHERS TO CAUCUS

Brother Joseph Hager, FMS, executive director of the Black Catholic Clergy Caucus, has coordinated a workshop for black religious men, The Role of the Brother in the Black Community Today, June 26 - 28, in Milwaukee, Wis. Father Kenneth Stewart will serve as chaplain. The workshop will deal with such areas as pastoral care and mental health, and the black church as a community organization. For more information, contact Brother Hager, National Office for Black Catholics, 1312 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

NATIONAL BLACK POLITICAL CONVENTION

The National Black Political Convention held in Gary, Indiana, 10 - 12 March 1972, authorized a steering committee composed of one official head of each State delegation; one representative of each national black organization certified at the time of the convention; each head of the standing committees on credential, rules, platforms and resolution; the chairman of the national support committee, and the three convention co-chairmen.

As a national organization certified at the time of the convention, the National Black Sisters' Conference is a member of the steering committee, and was selected as one of the two national organizations to serve on the policy making committee.

RACISM MEETING IN ROME

Sister Martin de Porres Grey, President of NBSC, and Brother Joseph Davis, Director of NOBC, are two of the twenty international participants attending a meeting on racial discrimination. The colloquy, sponsored by the Pontifical Commission on Justice and Peace is being held in Rome, Italy from 24 to 27 May 1972.

The aim of the colloquy is to gather pastoral experiences relating to racial discrimination, examine them in the light of biblical and theological reflection, and give deeper motivation to the action to be undertaken at both the international and local church level.

NBSC ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The fifth annual meeting of the National Black Sisters' Conference will be held 13 - 21 August 1972 in Louisville, Kentucky on the campus of Spalding College. The theme of this year's conference, The Politics of Black Life in America, reflects a constructive concern in three oppressive areas of black life in this country - prisons, urban legislature, and education.

In order to reinforce the decolonization institutes of last years' conference, this year's conference offers three politicization institutes in the aforementioned areas. Renowned speakers and community organizers will conduct the institutes so as to prepare participants to work more effectively to bring about change.

A comprehensive fee which includes room, board, registration and materials is $75.00. A fee for "non-residents" at the college is $50.00. Special NBSC business sessions will include the election of officers and new central committee members. The conference will highlight gospel choirs, and the Second Annual Awards Dinner, with special guest Imamu Amiri Baraka.

The conference is open to all black sisters, priests, brothers, seminarians and laity. If you have not received a registration form, contact NBSC, 3333 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15213.

PRAYERS ASKED: Mr. Joseph Dulin, President of the National Black Catholic Lay Caucus, and Principal of Martin de Porres High School in Detroit, is in serious condition as a result of a coronary thrombosis suffered on 2 May. Cards and letters may be sent to him in care of:

Old Grace Hospital
4160 John R. Street
Detroit, Michigan 48216

DESIGN TRAINING LABORATORY

As a component to its DESIGN (Development of Educational Services in the Growing Nation) program, the NBSC is sponsoring a training laboratory for black administrators and teachers (professional and community teachers) of inner-city elementary schools.

The intent of the DESIGN Training Laboratory is to introduce teaching personnel and administrators to an effectual and innovative process for black inner-city community schools, with emphasis on parochial schools. A "team" of three to five persons from each school are invited to attend, so that they will be a support to each other when they return to their schools in the Fall to implement what they have learned, and to train the rest of their teaching staff. Each participant will be asked to accept a two-year administrative or teaching commitment (1973-75) to their school.

MASTER'S DEGREE: The NBSC has negotiated with an accredited graduate school of education to issue Master's Degrees in Education and/or Administration to the participants (limited to 35) of the DESIGN Training Laboratory. The full Training Laboratory program will consist of a four-week session to be held in July, 1972 in Roxbury, Massachusetts, followed by a school-year of observation by the DESIGN Training Staff, and a concluding four-week session to be held in July, 1973.

The all-black professional Training Staff includes national specialists in the political, sociological and psychological areas of education.

Schools interested in enrolling their staff members may contact the office of the NBSC.

is the means proposed by the NBSC to assist in producing community controlled schools in the black community.

- pre-service/in-service training for principals, teachers and students
- curriculum designing, testing and modeling
- preparatory training for Christian values in education
- programming for the utilization of vacant diocesan facilities in the black community for day care centers and community education
- assisting in retaining Catholic school facilities in the black community as a black educational alternative
- special service to black principals: cultivate and market proposals for educational innovations and experiments
- data dissemination for innovative educational models
- clearing house for positions open in black Catholic schools
- design and implement programs to initiate and maximize parental involvement in the total educational process of the school

DEVELOPMENT OF EDUCATIONAL SERVICES IN THE GROWING NATION

National Black Sisters' Conference
3333 Fifth Avenue
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania – 15213

Nonprofit Organization
U.S. POSTAGE
PAID
Pittsburgh, Penna.
Permit No. 1146

Faculty Library
Jesuit School of Theology at Berkeley, 1735 LeRoy Ave.
Berkeley, Calif. 94709

NOV 28 1972

SIGNS OF SOUL

VOLUME IV NUMBER 2 · NATIONAL BLACK SISTERS' CONFERENCE NEWSLETTER · MAY 1972

IF WE MUST DIE, LET IT NOT BE LIKE HOGS
HUNTED AND PENNED IN AN INGLORIOUS SPOT
WHILE ROUND US BARK THE MAD AND HUNGRY DOGS
MAKING THEIR MOCK AT OUR ACCURSED LOT.

WHAT THOUGH BEFORE US LIES THE OPEN GRAVE?
LIKE MEN WE'LL FACE THE MURDEROUS, COWARDLY PACK, PRESSED TO THE WALL, DYING,
BUT FIGHTING BACK.

CLAUDE MCKAY

This issue of Signs of Soul, devoted to the theme of imprisonment, has been sparked by the relationships of black prisoners and members of the National Black Sisters' Conference. Visits, discussions and communiques have provided the pillars of this unique relationship which transcends the traditional meeting of "the prisoner and the nun." They are both a new breed: the prisoner -- questioning, challenging, thinking, testing. The nun -- alert, seeking, searching, probing. Neither content with the passivity and spectatorship assigned to their kind. Both determined to create alternatives in the black community.

The black community "at large" desperately needs to take more vocal and active involvement in the eradication of the oppressive and criminogenic atmosphere afoot in the country's jails and prisons. Let us test and test and test! Let us gather our forces in search and in demand for change. The same forces which hold our brothers and sisters threaten us all.

BLACK SISTERS WANTED:

. Holy Angels Model School, 740 W. 28th Street, Indianapolis, Ind. 46208 - Tel: 317 926-3324. Open school concept: teachers needed for primary & intermediate. Contact blk priest, Father Clarence Waldon.

. Indiana Harbor Catholic Elementary Schools (6 schools); inner-city, 55% Chicano, 12% black. Contact James Repko through the Gary Diocesan Bldg.

. Ozanam School, 1833 Wylie Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. 15219. Teachers and principal needed in K - 3, all black school. Contact blk priest, Father Augustus Taylor.

. St. Agatha's Elementary School, 10932 St. Clair, Cleveland, Ohio 44108. Teachers needed, all levels; Contact blk priest, Father Charles Burns.

. DePorres Catholic School, 2627 N. 11th Street, Milwaukee Wisconsin 53206. Teachers needed for primary and intermediate. Contact Sister Mary Judene Herber.

. Visitation-Holy Ghost School, 4515 Evans Avenue, St. Louis, Mo. 63113. Three primary teachers needed; one social studies, one English and one math. Contact Mr. Benjamin E. Williams.

. St. Andrew-St. Joseph School, 925 Brockhurst St., Oakland, Cal 94608. Need director for pre-school program. Contact Rev. John Maxwell.

. St. Paul of the Cross School, 551 Harwell Rd., N.W., Atlanta, Ga. 30318. Need principal, and teachers for primary, intermediate and secondary. Contact Father Austin McKenna.

. St. Therese School, 5809 Michigan Avenue, Kansas City, Mo. 64130. Need teachers on all levels. Contact Sister Jean Besti, BVM.

. St. Agnes School, Superior and St. Agnes Avenues, Dayton, Ohio 45407. Teachers needed for all levels: elementary school. Contact Sister Margaret Fanella.

. California College Dominguez Hills, 1000 East Victoria St., Dominguez Hills, Calif 90247. Seeks director of Afro-American Study Program. Contact blk priest, Father Paul Gopaul.

. Queen of Angels Elementary School, 44 Belmont Ave., Newark, N.J. 07103. Need teachers on all levels.

. St. Francis de Sales Elementary School, 5 Aimsworth Street, Roslindale, Massachusetts 02131. Principal needed. Contact Sister Sylvia Thibodeaus at 617 442-2675

. Several black and Puerto Rican schools in Youngstown, Ohio. Teachers needed all levels. Contact Assistant Superintendent of Schools, Rev. Bernard Bonnot, 144 W. Wood Street, Youngstown, Ohio 44503

. Archdiocesan Urban Commission, 320 Cathedral Street, Baltimore, Md 21201. Need consultants to new approaches for inner-city school children. Contact Sister Marie Julie, SND de N.

(Note: All position openings are immediate. All the schools listed are located in inner-city communities.)

SUBSCRIPTIONS: Signs of Soul is published three times a year by the National Black Sisters' Conference, a non-profit, socio-religious organization. Subscriptions are available to non-members of the NBSC at a rate of $3.00 per year. All subscriptions and business should be sent to: 3333 5th Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa 15213

PRISONS
THE SOUL SCRAPING HORROR OF IT; THE AWFUL BLACK WASTE OF IT; AND THE REVOLUTIONARY POTENTIAL OF IT

By Billy "Hands" Robinson, #68313 Stateville

(Special to Signs of Soul)

Prison is a painful place to be. Moon-raking white walls and tobacco chewing white jaws trying to contain and further confuse black hopes. Trying to keep the black hopes from coalescing into the black hope and bursting through the real shackles -- which ain't got nothin to do with walls and jaws ... and they knows it. And we knows it. And it's time it's time it's time it's time it's time it's time for the macabre dance to stop. Time for the game to stop.

Do you understand what is a prisoner today? A real "statistical" prisoner, what the honkies call "the average" prisoner? Well, he's a young, so got damn young, black dude who ain't even out of his teens, -- young, black aggressive, and wasted with time. In amerika, the land of the notorious syndicate and murder incorporated, the average prisoner is a young, black dude! What's going on?

In short, the average prison is filled with young, blackmen, because the oppressive/racist forces of the state are cold-hearted and calculatingly unleashed and sicked upon the black community. Because the beasts can feel the fury boiling in the breasts of black youth, where the resurrections of nat/king/malcolm/'s are taking place and threatening to refuse to be silenced again. Because black youth is what they fear most and what they feel they must contain.

Yes, these prisons are painful, racist concentration camps, really, where young black bodies and minds are sent to be either conditioned or broken, or as in the case of george jackson, snuffed out of existence. Here, at stateville/joliet, the reality of what prisons are about today is obvious. The worst thing a black prisoner can be in the eyes of the administration is to be black -- to talk, think, act black -- especially to act black.

But we could rap forever about the oppressive forces of prison that operate on the blackman, for the main purpose of the amerikan prison now is just that: black oppression. However, nether we prisoners of the "free" black community can afford the luxury of "drowning in our own tears" merely because more and more of us are finding ourselves in these racist concentration camps. El Hajj Malik Shabazz nor Eldridge Cleaver nor George Jackson let the awful oppression matter that much. We must change these concentration camps into revolutionary camps! We must make oppression, especially this oppression, build its own scaffold and fashion its own noose! We must take advantage of this "precious" time to create straight-thinking, revolutionary-minded blackmen/women. For every blackman/woman these beasts fling into these racist concentration camps, we must see to it that a bad motha-for-yer revolutionary is returned! Can you dig it, brothers and sisters? Can you dig it? We must squeeze the butter from the oppressor's ass and use it to slide us on our way. We must subvert the

(Continued on page

Wholistic

The National Black Sisters' Conference sponsored an Easter retreat, followed by an educational workshop for black sisters, 3 April through 7 April at Immaculata College, Washington, D.C.

The retreat, A Life/Death Recommitment to the Struggle, ministered by Father Donald Clark, and attended by forty black sisters, included a two-day fast to symbolize dependence on God, and not on food, to wholly nourish soul, mind, spirit and body. The nourishment of common prayer and discussion challenged the sisters' call to recommitment to the struggle of black people.

An Interactive Educational Workshop featured Dr. Kenneth Haskins, Instructor at the Harvard University Graduate School of Education, talking on the Philosophy and Structure of the Community School, and the Pragmatics of Accountability in Community Education. Other speakers included Miss Sarita Tucker and Mrs. Frances Pierce, both teachers at St. Joseph's Parochial Community School in Roxbury, Massachusetts. They spoke from their own experiences in a very successful parochial community school.

ISOLATION/ALONENESS/SOLITUDE

By Father Donald Clark
[Delivered at NBSC's Wholistic Retreat]

One of the true characteristics of modern life is separateness. Those of us who come out of a Roman Catholic religious background are not novices to this separateness because when we went to the convent or the seminary, they drove us out in the country, opened the door, pushed us out, and said, "This is home." So we know about being alone. But it seems to me that people who are next door neighbors, people who live in the same house, people who eat at the same table, feel themselves separate from each other.

We have a definite fear of being alone. A few years ago people suddenly discovered "personalism" and "encounter"; you couldn't get with a group of nuns who didn't want to "encounter" you.

To a large extent it was a reaction because of a fear of being isolated; a fear of being alone. When we are alone we experience our own impotence.

People who are least involved in any kind of movement, who are least involved with other people, are the people who are most afraid of their own inability. They are afraid to be alone on one hand, and at the same time there

(Continued on page

AN ATTORNEY VIEWS THE PRISON SYSTEM

By Claudia Morcom

[Mrs. Morcom is a member of NBSC's Tribunal for Black Religious Affairs, and Co-Chairman of the Angela Davis Defense Committee]

As an attorney involved in criminal legal representation, I am convinced that the only way to solve the devastating problems of Amerika's penal system as it exists now, is to ABOLISH it! There is no justification in a modern, civilized and humane society for keeping human beings caged and isolated from their families and positive societal influences, while subjecting them to the degrading and dehumanizing facilities and treatment as in this nation's prisons.

Confinement and isolation without any attempt at understanding, rehabilitation, treatment or communication with disturbed or troubled human beings will not result in any diminution of our prison population, lessen criminal activity or serve as a deterrent to antisocial behavior. Recent in-depth studies indicate that most detention facilities and penal institutions suffer from inadequate professional staff, lack of rehabilitation programs, training programs, diagnostic or treatment centers for medical-dental or psychiatric problems, or the necessary social adjustment services necessary to return an individual to the social interaction of community life.

Most prisons are physically archaic and unsuitable for human habitation. No human being should be incarcerated in a prison or a jail. Many of those presently incarcerated do not deserve to be there, but are, through our country's dual system of justice: a system that penalizes many for being unable to post bond or bail, or to hire a lawyer of their choice. A racist law enforcement chain of events prevents our brothers and sisters from being tried by juries with similar life experiences, while having decisions made concerning their lives by a disinterested judge whose life experiences (socially, economically and culturally) are far removed from the accused, and who in fact brings his own set of prejudices, racist attitudes and feelings of superiority into his decision making process.

Since abolishing the prison system is an unlikely event in our life time, I offer as an alternative some drastic suggestions for prison reform. No intended prison reform can succeed, no matter how well meaning, unless it is clearly understood that we are dealing with the lives of human beings, who must be treated as such and for whom the same intensity in problem solving (for them) must be applied as we do in searching for the discovery of cures for disease, and the scientific efforts expended on a highly technical space program.

A complete elimination of our selective arrest and law enforcement practices is required. Absolute right to bail must be insured, and personal bond or release on one's own recognizance guaranteed. Any deviation from these rights must contain constitutionally protected safe guards. Pre-trial detention and punishment must be eliminated and in extreme cases where pre-trial detention may be necessary, safe guards must be provided.

The abuse and illegal misuse of the grand jury proceeding by prosecutors and other law enforcement agents to stifle political dissent and suppress first amendment rights must be prohibited by the courts. The access to legal counsel must be provided from the time of arrest for all accused regardless of ability to pay. Liberal pre-trial discovery

(Continued on page

An Attorney Views the Prison System
(Continued from page

must be afforded every accused at government expense. During the trial there must be vigorous surveillance by the court to insure accused rights are not violated and due process requirements are met insuring a fair trial. Expanded pre-sentencing work-ups should be required on every accused found guilty, and every alternative should be employed prior to incarceration, i.e., probation; release into custody of family, minister, employer, doctor, lawyer, union; psychiatric treatment; hospitalization; drug treatment; court ordered responsibility for support, maintenance and medical care of victim and his family where there has been a crime of violence.

Victimless crimes must be eliminated from the law and a realistic twentieth century, humane and intelligent approch to drug addiction, drunkness, gambling, homo-sexuality, and prostitution must be made. Having thus cut down the prospective prison population to a workable size, I suggest the following means for rehabilitation and preparation for return to society:

1. Raze and destroy the existing multiple cell like behemoth structures and provide more individualized cell-less, bar-less communal living dormitories, patterned after neighborhood housing developments.
2. Address each inmate by his own name or a name of his choice. Have a choice of wearing apparel (no uniforms), and a choice of meals selected by inmate committees.
3. Evaluate accused medically, psychiatrically and vocationally to determine the best individualized means of training, treatment and care.
4. Inmate participation in prison policy, operation, and planning of recreational and educational programs.
5. Institute grievance procedure and inmate bargaining committee in each facility.
6. Employ incentive plans for job upgrading and educational advancement.
7. Pay for work should be in proportion to value of services and finished product, with minimum wage figures set. Where an inmate has been ordered responsible for support of victim and/or his family, this money could be used for that purpose; and otherwise for the support of inmate's family while incarcerated.
8. Establish a furlough program and liberal trustee-honor system for uneventful behavior.
9. Conjugal rights and familial visits should be uniformly a matter of right.
10. Provide opportunity for heterosexual relationships under controlled conditions with (health card carrying) volunteers.
11. Set procedures for inmates to elect their own governing board to deal with matters of self-discipline and internal disorder.
12. Appointment to Parole Boards should not be a gubernatorial function, but should be done by a board composed of members of the total community, with ex-inmate representation.

In summary, the black community, lay and professional, must become involved in prison reform, since a disproportionate number of our brothers and sisters are victims of the atrocities of the penal system.

We have let down a life-time of our people whose human resources and talents have been destroyed by the cruelty and oppressiveness of Amerika's prisons. If we do not work towards the abolition of the prisons through voluntary and humane efforts and concerns, they will be ultimately destroyed in a more violent and blood confrontation!

---

i was kept a prisoner for four months. then i think i had a trial, although i was not present. in fact, i do not know that i had another trial, but i was told that i had.

geronimo

BOOK REVIEW

Soledad Brother: The Prison Letters of George Jackson (Bantam Books, Inc)

By Sister Mary Shawn Copeland, OP

George Jackson stands as a very powerful codifier and articulator of the forces inherent in the most intensive microcosm of Amerikan neocolonialism--the Amerikan Penal System. What are those forces? Racism to be sure, but here reaching the cruelest pitch--raw, grim, arrogant, blatant. Hungers which prey on mind, body, soul, heart. Laws which warp, distort, destroy.

Soledad Brother: The Prison Letters of George Jackson is the stirring and passionate chronicle of a man's confrontation with those forces and his own shaping and hardening.

George Jackson's letters are written to family and friends, but they are unmistakably aimed, as well, at you and I. With its clear and well pitched style, Soledad Brother is an act intended to educate/move/lead us to awareness/reaction/change. Soledad Brother is a call to revolution/a Blk Manifesto:

> 'If today's young revolutionary vanguard are not merely entertaining themselves with a new kind of "chicken" a political form of bumper tag, if they seriously intend to step out front and take the monster to task, they should understand from the outset that the monster is merciless....The moment this monster detects the danger contained in our ideas and ideals he will react violently against us. Just the whisper of revolt excites in him a swift and terrible reflex, so swift we won't even know how we died." (p 167/169)

One in confinement may be trapped in boxes of personal pain and history. This is a luxury George Jackson rejects. Kapitalism, China, Vietnam, Facism, Tanzania, Sudan, Cuba, economics, neoslavery, and more: all his daily fare. Prisoned steeled his mind/trained it/exercised it/stretched it until it was quick and supple; his hunger for knowledge was insatiable. Key to his thinking was the ultimate unity of all colonized people the world over.

> "We must establish a true internationalism with other anti-colonial peoples. Then we will be on the road of the true revolutionary. Only then can we expect to be able to control the circumstances of our day-to-day lives." (p 203)

Any book written in prison carries an unprintable message/undertone--unwritten words/sounds/events/thoughts/feelings which sometimes slip the barrier spilling into print. It is this message which is the pain/gut tragedy of incarceration.

> "This camp brings out the very best in brothers or destroys them entirely. But none are unaffected. None who leave here are normal. If I leave here alive, I'll leave nothing behind. They will never count me among the broken men, but I can't say that I am normal either. I've been hungry too long. I've gotten angry too often. I've been lied to and insulted too many times. They've pushed me over the line from where there can be no retreat. I know that they will not be satisfied until they've pushed me out of this existence altogether. I've been the victim of so many racist attacks that I could never relax again. My reflexes will never be normal again. I'm like a dog who has gone through the K-9 process." (p32)

Today much of the luster and glamour attached to "inty-gration" has faded and as we black people reassemble values/culture/history, we find more and more

(Continued on Page

("TERRY'S POEM")

IF YOU MUST KNOW WHAT (GOD) LOOKS LIKE

("THE DAWN OF SISTER SHAWN")

READ/ ABOUT BLACK SISTER TERRY

SISTER DONE SAID IT/ YES SHE DID TOO/ GODDAMMIT! SOUL'S BLACK RYTHM IS FACT/ JESUS U DIGGIT!?!

POEM/ GETTIN DOWN/ SOUL SISTER/ HADDA MESSIGE/ STORY TELLIN/ REACHIN OUT/ WIT WORDS/ RYTHM/ SOUL/ GRABBIN HOLD/ CHAININ ME/

OOOOOOOH! HAILMARY/ FULLA GRACE/ LIBERATE/ CARE/ ALL CEPT YALL/ JOKE/ WHITE FOKE/ CAREY/ HUUH/ SHO SAID IT!

A DAMN LIE TOLD BY JESUS

BULLSHIT!

UUH HUUH/ SISTER

A WORD/ A MESSIGE/ BEEN BLIND/ TILL I READ/ A POEM/ SISTER'S MIND

DOUSE HIS SOUL FLICKERT/ PENNYIN

BLACK WIRE/ GOD'S CHILE

WRESSIN

KEEP

4 STARS!

SEE!

...

SLIPPED IN/ EMANCIPATED/ MINI SKIRTED/ LIBERATED/ SISTER/ MARRIED/ STARTED TELLIN FACT/ LIVIN BLACK/ BEAUTIFUL/ CHANGES

WUTT'EN NO SIN/CAUSE SISTERS A SISTER

SISTERS A PAINFUL PLACE TO BE/ THEY DONE CHRISTMAS TIME/ I'M TELLIN YOU/ HOOKED UP A LITTLE GOT CHRISTMAS TREE WITH TWINKLIN LIGHTS AND SILVER DEAR/ IN THIS SILENT AND INCOMPARABLE WAY/ BUT THE GOES IT'S JUST ANOTHER PAIN/ TO KEEP RE BELLIGN DOWN—IN THIS DAY THIS TREE

(AT LEAST) THE PAIN IS HERE

THE BARS/// THE PAIN IS

THE BLEAK TOWERS

OF ANGRY YOUNG

(AT LEAST) HERE

UNLESS/// THE SHOT OR

TRADICTION

IN THIS

OF

I BELIEVE IN (GOD) THE BEGINNING POETRY/MUSIC/LOVE TRUE BROTHER/HOOD ACTION CONTRA RHETORIC THE NECESSITY OF VIOLENCE IN OBTAINING OUR END FAITH/FAITH/FAITH (BULLET PRODDED FAITH) THE (HOLY) MYSTERY (GOD'S) FLUID IN THE HOT MOISTNESS OF WOMAN'S WOMB & THE CHILD THAT SLIDES OUT THAT WOMB... ESPECIALLY IN THE BEGINNING IN THE SOLID, BLACK BEGINNING...

DEAR (GOD): SINCE YOU AINT ANSWERIN YR LINE I THOT I'D DROP YOU A LINE ANYHOW TO TRY TO FIND OUT WHY TO FIND IN THIS COLD, FUCKED UP PLACE WHERE HAPPINESS IS RELEGATED TO EMBRACIN TO SOME WARM BLACK BODY BETWEEN A PAIR OF SHEETS TRYING TO FORM A LIFE IN THE BLACK CAVE WHERE (YR SON) HIDES?

R.S.V.P. IN STRUGGLE
BILLY

P.S. PLEASE REPLY...
P.P.S. PLEASE REPLY...
P.P.P.S. PLEASE REPLY...
P.P.P.P.S. PLEASE REPLY...

YOUNG BLACK/FACES

FACES
STERS PLOT
RE'S NO MO'—
NIGGAH GANGSTERS CON-CENTRATED CAMP SUCH RE'S GANGSTERS
SE

L PLACE TO BE...

S ALL/THAT'S ALL: BELIEVE IN R
ER
D TRIM
TREE
MM.

TIVIZED:
'S NERVOUSLY PACIN
...
E

ALL POEMS BY BILLY "HANDS" ROBINSON FROM JOLIET, ILLINOIS PRISON

PRISONS
By Billy "Hands" Robinson
(Continued from Page

purpose of these racist concentration camps, and make the oppressors rue the days they viciously filled them with us.. and other days.

This, of course, will call for a dedicated and concentrated effort on the part of the black community, as well as the black prison population --- but more so on the part of the black community. Most of us here aren't Malcolm X's or Eldridge Cleaver's or George Jackson's. Most of us need a lot of help before we can crash through the awful white barrier years of brutal, white oppression which forced us to erect and reach our beautiful black selves.

THE BLACK COMMUNITY MUST BECOME THE CATALYST THAT ACTIVATES A MASSIVE MOVE INTO BLACK SELF OF BLACK PRISONERS.

The black community must become the catalyst that activates a massive move into black self of black prisoners. The black community must flood these concentration camps with concerned black brothers and sisters, and love the black prison population into the very heart of the struggle.

When this is done, when the black community brings its boundless love into these institutions and showers its confined sons and daughters with it -- when they love us until we love back -- the very walls and bars will crack up with laughter, because the real shackles, the "barriers" above, will crumble in the midst of it.

Yes... the real shackles will crumble.

BOOK REVIEW
(Continued from Page

blacks interested in/concerned about/ acting for our incarcerated brothers and sisters. Undoubtedly, Soledad Brother has been an impetus in this movement. In Soledad Brother, Attica is predicted page after page. Soledad Brother surfaces the patterns of neo-slavery rampant in Amerikan society.

George Jackson's senseless murder is more brutally understandable when one realizes that not many weeks ago Soledad Brothers Fleeta Drumgo and John Clutchette were acquitted.

No writer in our time has so well assessed the Amerikan politik and destiny as George Jackson. No writer in our time has tempered rage so well in ink and act as George Jackson.

Soledad Brother paints a picture of a Dante-hell: men grow cold, colder, coldest. Freezing men; un-thawing them non-men/non-person/non-human. But there is a way for a man to be: court death they must, but live they will -- forever. George Jackson is/was the finest blkspiration of such/for such manhood.

The quality of a civilization is determined by the nature of its prisons.
Dostoyevsky

(Continued from page

is that aloneness or separation which is a characteristic of our age. There is a certain frustration in being alone.

I have been in "hibernation" for awhile. Many of you know that for a year I was on an extended retreat. I have felt a great deal of frustration because I have been alone for two and a half years now. But it hasn't seemed to me to be the same kind of frustration that I experienced among friends. It may be true of religious women, too. But after being alone for two and a half years I finally signed up for a workshop in the Archdiocese because there were several rumors that I had run off, and I thought that I would just show up to let them know I was still around. For fifteen Mondays I am to go to these meetings. It is very interesting to look at these priests who are terribly frustrated because of their lives of lonliness. Men whom I didn't believe knew the facts of life, or if they knew them, knew them only from text books like they knew problems of moral theology, suddenly started telling me that they were interested in getting married. A manifestation of frustration! There is a certain amount of self questioning that takes place when one is alone and makes one fearful of being alone. The times when I am least sure of myself are the times when I am by myself.

SEPARATENESS IN THE CULTURE AND A FEAR OF BEING ALONE

What I am doing here is setting up what I believe are two polarities: separateness in the culture, and a fear of being alone. Being alone has a positive dimension, too. There is a certain amount of solitude involved in being creative. If you are an artist you have to find time to conceive something in your mind and to get all the personal human vibrations. You have to organize the subject that you have conceived. You have to execute what you organized. That requires solitude. It is a necessary pre-condition if you are going to create anything.

Not all aloneness is creative. I was at a party watching a lady who was alone in the middle of the crowd. I tried to think what it was that was imprisoning her. What was the curse of her human condition that made her unable to communicate with people who were having a great deal of fun? She was withdrawing into herself...very alone and very unhappy; very uncreative and having a miserable time. Part of being human is being alone, however much we might try to make it otherwise. There is a certain radical aloneness in the simple fact of being human.

A man and woman who love each other very much were trying to express their love by using the vehicle of sex to speak to each other. Not discounting the fact that sex is very enjoyable, there is something else going on there, too. Part of what goes into sexual union is an attempt to break out of that radical solitude that makes persons persons. In the old days, we talked about man being a body and soul composite and we spoke as though the soul was trying to get free; and if we could jump through the barriers of the body we could experience freedom, and these two free souls could then relate. We have all experienced the need, the desire, the urge to really communicate and the inability, both bodily and spiritually, to get through to another person. That man and woman are trying to express a certain community, but at the same time are limited by their human condition. After they have reached the so called ecstatic moment, and lay back in the afterglow period, they are still trying to reach out to each other and are somewhat still very much aware that they haven't quite made it.

Before Christ could begin his work of being God's spokesman, he had to spend his time alone. Being alone was a pre-condition for working for truth. Had he not spent his time alone it is conceivable that he never would have been prepared to do the work he did.

(Continued on page

ISOLATION/ALONENESS/SOLITUDE
(Continued from page

You and I are so much concerned about working for truth, working for the Kingdom, working for improved education, working for the liberation of black people, working for our own freedom from all that still enslaves us, that we must be willing to see that aloneness is a pre-condition for doing that kind of work.

AS WE HAVE THE POWER TO MAKE DECISIONS ABOUT WHAT WE ARE GOING TO DO WITH OUR LIVES, CAN WE CHOOSE TO BE ALONE?

If we are afraid to be alone, if we need people so badly that we cannot be by ourselves, then it is conceivable that we shall never be ready to do what needs to be done. It would be a mistake to consider that it was only at the beginning of his life that Jesus experienced that kind of solitude. It was a characteristic of his whole life. People have for some time been going through Scripture trying to point out how human Jesus was. Sometimes we make a big product out of things like that. The one thing I keep getting out of reading about him is that he was the man who was always on the border line between being a complete solitary and being really involved with other people. I never get the impression that he truly was involved in the lives of people. Inspite of the story of Lazarus and Martha and Mary, whom Jesus loved, and John who was his friend, I always got the feeling that he is a man not quite involved in their lives. A man alone. It certainly was true that at the end of his life he was a man who felt himself completely abandoned.

When people have arrived at that great moment of their life when their life's work is about to be consummated, then they really begin to understand that aloneness is part of the whole bargain.

The event of Jesus on the cross ties into this whole thing of his being totally alone at the moment in his life when his great work was about to be done. That was part of the human condition. I don't believe there was anything unique to him. As you look at the lives of any man or woman who has been great, they experience those periods of their lives when they feel themselves completely abandoned by others. Sometimes even completely abandoned by God.

As we have the power to make decisions about what we are going to do with our lives, can we choose to be alone? This is not an argument for being married or for being in religious life. It is a suggestion that whatever state you find yourself in, you will experience this kind of solitude. This aloneness.

No one comes into glory unless he is willing to be alone, or at least unless he decides that he can live with that reality.

If we are looking for the glory of our race, or any other type of advance, we have to be willing to make that decision of whether we can stand to be lonely people.

I have a plan. I will give and give and give of myself until it proves our making or my end. The men of our group have developed as a result of living under a ruthless system a set of mannerisms that numb the soul. We have been made the floor mat of the world, but the world has yet to see what can be done by men of our nature, by men who have walked the path of disparity, of regression, or abortion, and yet come out whole. There will be a special page in the book of life for men who have crawled back from the grave. This page will tell of utter defeat, ruin, passivity and subjection in one breath, and in the next, overwhelming victory and fulfillment.

(George Jackson)

Εὐχαριστῶ

[Greek: eucharistia -to be thankful]

If you were in a prison camp they would give you bread and water and tell you that was a meal. For those of you who are getting hungry now, this is a meal. If you were terribly sick you probably would not have an appetite. If they could get you to drink some water, they would figure they were doing good. The reason for saying that is so that we try to get ourselves in a certain frame of reference. We are much more vulnerable than we think we are. We are not as immuned to sickness and to death as we sometimes begin to believe. We are not as free as we like to think we are.

As bread and water is the food that prisoners eat, then we eat it in union with them. As our ancestors stayed alive by eating bread and drinking muddy water, then we eat it in union with them. As people who are about to die have no appetite, then we eat it in union with them.

LET US PRAY: Lord, God, we praise you because you are alive. Your living condition demands that you be in isolation; separate from. We are men and women created in your image and likeness. For all our creative power and our ability to leap gaps, to build bridges, to knock down barriers, we are self-contained, individual, isolated in solitude. Yet we are united with each other and as far as we can see, struggle to be in union. To be in union with those who are gathered here; to be in union with our brothers and sisters who could not come here. To be in union with generations past and generations yet to come. We stand before bread and water.

As far back as our eyes can see we observe long lines of black faced men, women and children. Their hands are bound. Their feet march forward...backward. They are together but each is alone. From their thick lips hang crumbs of stale bread: bread of death -- bread of life; flour and water stuck together by kneeding, baked by fire, forced down their aching throats by drafts of water. We are no better than our ancestors, so we eat together the bread of life -- bread of death; flour and water stuck together. Flour and water baked into bread. Flour and water washed down by water.

May we find in this rite strength to be alone, strength to be together. May we find You in this rite.

[Delivered by Father Donald Clark at the NBSC's 1972 Easter Week Retreat]

BLACK LAY CATHOLIC CAUCUS TO MEET

Mr. Sterling Hill, convention chairman of the Black Lay Catholic Caucus has announced plans for the Caucus' third annual convention to be held at St. John's College, Cleveland, Ohio, 9 - 12 August 1972. Under the theme, Nation Building! Organization for Equal Representation and Self Determination, the main endeavor of the convention will be to organize black Catholic caucuses on local, state and regional levels, in order to make the national body a strong vehicle for liberation of black Catholics, as well as the black community at large.

For further information and registration forms, contact Mr. Hill, Black Lay Catholic Caucus, P.O. Box 1606, Cleveland, Ohio 44104

SEMINARIANS MET

Members of the National Black Seminarians Association convened at Silver Springs, Maryland, 4 - 8 April for a NIA (Purpose) Workshop. Fifty seminarians gathered to hear renowned speakers on such topics as: Pastoral Care and Mental Health; The Black Church as a Community Organization; The Black Church as an Economic Power; and Black Theology - Black Spirit. Several black priests and sisters joined the seminarians for their concluding liturgy.

Brother David Benz was elected president pro-tem to replace the expired term of Brother Paul Wise. Inquires regarding the National Black Seminarians Association can be sent to: Brother Benz, St. Charles Seminary, Overbrook, Pennsylvania.

BLACK RELIGIOUS BROTHERS TO CAUCUS

Brother Joseph Hager, FMS, executive director of the Black Catholic Clergy Caucus, has coordinated a workshop for black religious men, The Role of the Brother in the Black Community Today, June 26 - 28, in Milwaukee, Wis. Father Kenneth Stewart will serve as chaplain. The workshop will deal with such areas as pastoral care and mental health, and the black church as a community organization. For more information, contact Brother Hager, National Office for Black Catholics, 1312 Massachusetts Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

NATIONAL BLACK POLITICAL CONVENTION

The National Black Political Convention held in Gary, Indiana, 10 - 12 March 1972, authorized a steering committee composed of one official head of each State delegation; one representative of each national black organization certified at the time of the convention; each head of the standing committees on credential, rules, platforms and resolution; the chairman of the national support committee, and the three convention co-chairmen.

As a national organization certified at the time of the convention, the National Black Sisters' Conference is a member of the steering committee, and was selected as one of the two national organizations to serve on the policy making committee.

RACISM MEETING IN ROME

Sister Martin de Porres Grey, President of NBSC, and Brother Joseph Davis, Director of NOBC, are two of the twenty international participants attending a meeting on racial discrimination. The colloquy, sponsored by the Pontifical Commission on Justice and Peace is being held in Rome, Italy from 24 to 27 May 1972.

The aim of the colloquy is to gather pastoral experiences relating to racial discrimination, examine them in the light of biblical and theological reflection, and give deeper motivation to the action to be undertaken at both the international and local church level.

NBSC ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The fifth annual meeting of the National Black Sisters' Conference will be held 13 - 21 August 1972 in Louisville, Kentucky on the campus of Spalding College. The theme of this year's conference, The Politics of Black Life in America, reflects a constructive concern in three oppressive areas of black life in this country - prisons, urban legislature, and education.

In order to reinforce the decolonization institutes of last years' conference, this year's conference offers three politicization institutes in the aforementioned areas. Renowned speakers and community organizers will conduct the institutes so as to prepare participants to work more effectively to bring about change.

A comprehensive fee which includes room, board, registration and materials is $75.00. A fee for "non-residents" at the college is $50.00. Special NBSC business sessions will include the election of officers and new central committee members. The conference will highlight gospel choirs, and the Second Annual Awards Dinner, with special guest Imamu Amiri Baraka.

The conference is open to all black sisters, priests, brothers, seminarians and laity. If you have not received a registration form, contact NBSC, 3333 Fifth Avenue, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania 15213.

PRAYERS ASKED: Mr. Joseph Dulin, President of the National Black Catholic Lay Caucus, and Principal of Martin de Porres High School in Detroit, is in serious condition as a result of a coronary thrombosis suffered on 2 May. Cards and letters may be sent to him in care of:

Old Grace Hospital
4160 John R. Street
Detroit, Michigan 48216

DESIGN TRAINING LABORATORY

As a component to its DESIGN (Development of Educational Services in the Growing Nation) program, the NBSC is sponsoring a training laboratory for black administrators and teachers (professional and community teachers) of inner-city elementary schools.

The intent of the DESIGN Training Laboratory is to introduce teaching personnel and administrators to an effectual and innovative process for black inner-city community schools, with emphasis on parochial schools. A "team" of three to five persons from each school are invited to attend, so that they will be a support to each other when they return to their schools in the Fall to implement what they have learned, and to train the rest of their teaching staff. Each participant will be asked to accept a two-year administrative or teaching commitment (1973-75) to their school.

MASTER'S DEGREE: The NBSC has negotiated with an accredited graduate school of education to issue Master's Degrees in Education and/or Administration to the participants (limited to 35) of the DESIGN Training Laboratory. The full Training Laboratory program will consist of a four-week session to be held in July, 1972 in Roxbury, Massachusetts, followed by a school-year of observation by the DESIGN Training Staff, and a concluding four-week session to be held in July, 1973.

The all-black professional Training Staff includes national specialists in the political, sociological and psychological areas of education.

Schools interested in enrolling their staff members may contact the office of the NBSC.

is the means proposed by the NBSC to assist in producing community controlled schools in the black community.

- pre-service/in-service training for principals, teachers and students
- curriculum designing, testing and modeling
- preparatory training for Christian values in education
- programming for the utilization of vacant diocesan facilities in the black community for day care centers and community education
- assisting in retaining Catholic school facilities in the black community as a black educational alternative
- special service to black principals: cultivate and market proposals for educational innovations and experiments
- data dissemination for innovative educational models
- clearing house for positions open in black Catholic schools
- design and implement programs to initiate and maximize parental involvement in the total educational process of the school

DEVELOPMENT OF EDUCATIONAL SERVICES IN THE GROWING NATION

National Black Sisters' Conference
3333 Fifth Avenue
Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania – 15213

Nonprofit Organization
U.S. POSTAGE
PAID
Pittsburgh, Penna.
Permit No. 1146

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

September, 1969

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

INTRODUCTION:

This Newsletter brings to you the Talk of the Town and the Parish as the various units talk about their recent events.

SHALOM INC.

Two articles about the newest unit of the Parish, Shalom Inc. are reproduced by permission of the New Yorker. One describes the painting of the Shalom storefront, and the other records one of the summer parades. Shalom, had an active summer which included a Jazz Moon Vespers and a Jazz Street Celebration. The latter was climaxed by the breaking of large loaves of Italian bread as a sign of our unity in One Family. Everyone on the block eagerly took the bread and shared it with his neighbor. This winter, special Sunday evening services will be scheduled at Shalom. The children's programs will continue. We will be sponsoring an ecumenical Bible Study and hosting Shalom meals which will bring together people from a variety of worlds.

THE NEW YORKER
"The Talk of the Town"

Notes and Comment — February 22, 1969

Letter from a friend--a youthful-looking tax lawyer who collects wines and blows a passable moldy-fig tenor saxophone:

"As you know, midwinter Saturdays are a problem for the city resident. Plan as one will, there comes a weekend morning when the ski slopes report frozen granular and the prospect of a gallery crawl dismays; the bill are paid, friends are away, the terrier has been walked, the groceries and liquor are aboard, the new novel has bogged down, the afternoon TV promises only basketball or golf, and the Sunday papers are far over the horizon. One is up and doing, but what's to do? Seen from the rain-smudged bedroom window, the city resembles a stone swamp slowly sinking in its own gases. Two week ago, at exactly such a moment, the telephone rang and saved my Saturday. It was an old friend of mine, a school classmate who is now a minister in the East Harlem Protestant Parish; he was preparing to open a small storefront community center on East 105th Street, and would I come up and help paint the place? Would I! Half an hour later, I was teetering on a tall ladder eleven blocks and ten thousand miles north of my apartment, busily applying vinyl paint with a roller to the crumbly west wall of an abandoned delicatessen.

"What is more satisfying than the idiot joy of painting! Hunched over a pried-open gallon of gleaming, immaculate Kwik-Dri, one wields the mixing stick gravely, stirring and sniffing, considering consistency and weight of glop--a Fernand Point-embarked upon another famous mousse.

The roller tray is filled and affixed to the ladder shelf, the felt roller is baptized and the first glorious swoop leaps across the wall. In moments, one becomes expert; horizontal strokes are niftily cross-hatched with verticals edges are overlapped, ceiling moldings cunningly skirted. The mind slowly ticks down and stops. Rhythm and contentment descend. Pausing a length to straighten my back, I was astonished by my sudden accomplishment. Already, an enormous retangle of discouragement and bad wallpaper had vanished, replaced with a pleasing, soft-chocolate wallscape of Dogwood. Singlehanded, I had hung up this swatch of pure amelioration. I redipped my roller and resumed, grateful for the size of the job still to be done. As I progressed--ascending and descending my ladder and then hitching it along the wall, and becoming, by turns, Tom Sawyer and Franz Kline and (up near the ceiling) Charlton Heston in the Sistine Chapel--it grew clear to me that the pleasure I felt arose not just from the delight of spreading paint,but from the fact that I was painting a piece of Harlem. There only for the afternoon, exercising only the most numskull skill, I was nonetheless Doing Something About It at last. I was in on the action. I was lucky.

"The afternoon flew along. Our mixed company--a young opera soprano, a Puerto Rican photographer, a pretty magazine copy editor, a black jazz pianist, the minister (white, with splashes of Dogwood), and I exchanged japes and compliments from various wall levels of the empty store. Technical and aesthetic decisions were debated and resolved: Pomegranate to brighten the gloomy back walls, with a strip of Old Ivory on the partition; more Spackle on the bad plaster by the window; skip the fuse box, skip the red-hot heating pipe, more Dogwood on the sloping concrete stairwell. Coffee containers, beer cans, and half-eaten jelly doughnuts accumulated amid the plaster dust on the floor and Art Blakey's Jazz Messengers softly laid the word on us, over WLIB,from a portable in one corner. A considerable stream of neighborhood art critics wandered in and out to ask questions and proffer advice; they were invited back for the vernissage- the opening of the center a few nights later. It was all over too soon. We washed up with Ajax and cold water at the sink in the back, admired our brilliant walls and our spattered hair and sneakers, shook hands, and parted.

" "That was two weeks ago. Last Saturday , at home, I painted a small bookcase, but it was dull work and quickly done. I looked around our apartment. There was nothing else that needed fixing or doing. Our place is perfect, finished. I knew, of course, where I wanted to be--up in Harlem, painting a wall. And since then I have begun to understand, slowly and much to late, that there is something sneaky and insufficient in this wish. Close as it is, East Harlem is not my neighborhood, and if I want to belong there I must buy my wayin with better credentials than a paint roller. I think they know me up there. They understand what I've just found out--that I don't want to paint just one wall or just one old store, I want to paint all of Harlem and all the people in it. I want to cover it up, make it go away, make it all right--and only in my spare time. I know, of course, that many of the residents just to the north now want me to stay out for good.

The others--perhaps still a majority, perhaps not--simply expect much more of me than handyman jobs, and who wants to be painted all over with Dogwood and Pomegranate? Who wants an amateur decorator who can't fill his Saturday? Nobody. Maybe it wasn't just that store on 105th Street that got redeveloped that afternoon. Maybe it was me."

****

Thursday Parade August 16, 1969

We heard the other day that an organization in East Harlem with the pleasant name Shalom, Inc., was organizing a parade. We heard, indeed, that Shalom had been organizing parades quite regularly, on Thursdays, throughout the summer, that the parade marchers were young children, and that the whole thing was thought to be a great success. On the day of Shalom's most recent parade, we set out to see for ourself.

When we arrived at Shalom's headquarters, on East 105th Street between Second and Third Avenues--a storefront next door to the Puerto Rican Social Club ("Billiards" and "For Members Only")--we found on the sidewalk in front of it a young girl in purple bell-bottom pants stencilling a cardboard sign. The sign said "Shalom, Peace," and we noticed, once we had entered the storefront, that nearly everyone in it--there were a great many small children, a few teen-agers, and a very few adults was wearing a stencilled sign saying "Shalom, Peace." One of the adults came up to us and introduced himself. He was an energetic man of about thirty with curly blond hair, and he said that he was the Reverend Harold Eads, known to all as Hal Eads, and that with one or two other people he had organized Shalom. "Shalom has to do with the coming together of the many sections of an urban society," he explained.

"The point of the parades is to celebrate the differences between different people and different groups. We had an African prade, and we made drums out of ice-cream containers. We had a Roman parade, and we made chariots. We had a Puerto Rican parade, and we made ponchos." That afternoon, Mr. Eads said, Shalom was organizing an American parade. "The only things we could think of that would be exclusively American were signs and pickets, so we made signs and became pickets. We will picket for Shalom and Peace. And baseball caps," he added. "We made baseball caps, and everyone will be wearing one of those."

Mr. Eads then introduced us to Mr. George Cables, who is a jazz pianist. Mr. Eads is a Methodist minister, and he and Mr. Cables met two years ago to plan a jazz service. He introduced us to the Reverend Felix Sugirtharaji, who is a minister of the Church of South India, and then he introduced us to Mrs. Alice Ware. "Mrs. Ware knows everyone in the community," he said. We then introduced ourself to Miss Cristal Harris, who is six. "I know everyone here, too," Miss Harris said.

Shalom set out west on 105th Street some thirty-five strong. Everyone had on a "Shalom, Peace" sign and a paper baseball cap. Singing, we discovered, is an important part of a Shalom parade.

The group sang songs learned for previous parades (one song, celebrating Italian culture, had to do with Romulus and Remus) and songs learned specially for this American parade. The two songs that were sung most often were "Shalom" and "Take Me Out to the Ball Game." On its way to Third Avenue, the parade passed the Colon Spanish-American Grocery and the Molino Rojo Restaurant (where several adults on the stepts joined in "Take Me Out to the Ball Game"). Then it moved north on Third Avenue, through a busy commercial block ("Nehru Jackets $10.99--Unbelievable But True"), and East on 106th. The parade stopped close to Second Avenue to give a special performance of the Romulus-and-Remus song for an Italian family know to the group, and then continued east to First Avenue. There was not a hitch in the parade. The marchers (by this time, of course, expert in the art of parading) stayed in an orderly line, and only occasionally did Mr. Eads or Mrs. Ware have to prod them to sing louder. At one point, however, the Romulus-andRemus song was pertty badly drowned out by music broadcast through a loudspeaker from a record shop, and at another point it was pretty badly drowned out by an ambulance siren. Otherwise, everything went very well. The parade attracted admiring attention. One young mother and her child joined it for nearly a block. At the Elite Linen Service & Commercial Laundry, a man waved and then broke into a little dance as the group went by. Only when the group approached the Shalom storefront did the tempo let down. As the parade broke up, we asked Cristal Harris (by whose side we had walked) what song she liked singing best and she said that she definitely like the baseball song best.

CHURCH OF THE RESURRECTION

The Reverend Charles R. Farrell went on a much deserved four months sabbatical to Mexico with his family by way of the Rockies. He will be returning October first. The Reverend Bill Vestal, Associate Pastor, Mrs. Millie Ryan, Secertary, Mrs. Blorneva Selby and the Executive Committee of Lay people have been successful in attending faithfully to Church matters.

FRIENDLY TOWN: Dorthy Harris, Chairman, Mary Ware, Director, Graciels Reid, worked out of Church of the Resurrection. And in spite of the hectic turmoil, have been able to send 375 happy children to Friendly Towns this Summer.

RESURRECTION YOUTH: This summer we had wonderful assistance from six youths sent to us by various Youth Programs in this community. They worked diligently with the Church Staff to see that everything ran smoothly. They are all back in school. One is in Puerto Rico attending college at the San German Inter-American University. We wish these fine students success in their careers. They will be missed.

NEW CANAAN VACATION CHURCH SCHOOLS: This summer East Harlem children again spent two weeks with New Canaan Host families and had a wonderful time. They went to Vacation Church Schools in New Canaan in which they learned Art, Music, Workshop, etc.

The East Harlem mothers were invited to see the Schools and spent a lovely day with the New Canaan Host mothers. It has given us a wonderful opportunity to develope a close relationship with this church. We are hoping that other Suburban churches can participate in this kind of relationship with the East Harlem community.

HAPPENINGS: We have had two very successful Bus Outings - Bear Mountain and to Hapotcong Lake, New Jersey.

USHER BOARD DANCE: June 20th, it was a huge success. Members, family and friends had a grand old time. David Watley, our Choir Master entertained us with his swinging combo.

All in all we've had a wonderful summer, and hope to continue God's ministry to our community. It is your faith in our work that has made all this possible.

ASCENSION

This summer program was conducted by community teachers, both adults and youth, with the help of a seminary student. There were three weeks for the junior high group and five weeks for the primary and junior departments.

The Junior High group had Bible Study, enriched by films, and trips to museums and other interesting places. A music professor from the Manhattan School of Music came twice a week to teach and direct the Junior Choir. This choir sang twice during the summer at the Sunday morning worship service. There were discussions on Black History with visits to the Nigerian Embassy, the Oceanic Exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum and the Schomburg Collection of Black Literature and Art. We also saw a film, "Christ in the Arts of Africia." There were sewing and cooking classes for the girls, while the boys went to a neighborhood park for sports. In the sewing classes the girls made skirts, blouses, slakes and Dashikis of which some were sold to people in the community.

The Primaries and Juniors also had Bible Study with related films and arts and crafts. The girls took sewing and the eight and nine year olds cooking. The cooking group was responsible for the refreshments each day and once for the congregation at the fellowship hour after the Sunday service.

The nine year olds wrote and presented their version of James Weldon Johnson's The Creation at a morning worship service at the close of the Vacation Church School.

Each Tuesday, there was a trip, with the closing trip to Wards Island for a cookout.

A similar type program will be continued this winter.

TUTORIAL PROGRAM

The summer program started on July 7th, minus Faye Edwards, our director, who was on a leave of absence in Puerto Rico.

The program was directed by Shelia Walker and Pattie Small. There were thirty-four tutors on the staff. Twenty-one were hired through the Neighborhood Youth Corps. We hired three community mothers who were great!

Mrs Vera Howard, a teacher from Los Angeles, also worked in the program. Many of her methods and ideas will be carried over into our fall-winter program. She has been in the educational field for more than thirty-five years. We were amazed to see a generation gap closed through her patience, knowledge and understanding. The young people especially sought her out. She was invaluable.

Five students from the other areas lived in the neighborhood and many people traveled long distances each day to work with us. We had Canada, Riverdale, Stoney Brook and East Village represented.

Our neighborhood young people understood many of the academic problems facing the students. We adults were happy to witness their sense of responsibility, dedication and eagernes throughtout the program.

Since we had no magic formula to turn non-readers into readers, our job was not an easy one, but Mrs. Small and I wish to thank all of our friends who helped make the summer a meaningful one for so many.

Sheila Walker

FUNDRAISING AND INTERPRETATION

The staff of Fundraising and Interpretation, beside doing the Administration duties of the Parish, had an exciting summer in assisting and participating in the two new programs housed in the front part of 2050 Second Avenue. The two programs were Parent for Education Action and the Metro-North Urban Renewal program.

The Metro-North Urban Renewal Program was a summer project funded by the city. The program had a total of thirty-seven energic youth involved. It was designed to provide placement of community youth in community programs and agencies.

The main emphasis was the mass-cleaning project. This was done by most of the young men in the program. Other areas of service were assisting senior citizens, tutoring in various reading programs, and working with vacation church schools.

The youth were supervised by college students from this community with overall supervision provided by Mr. Larry Fox, a young man who live in the neighborhood and has worked in one of the local Junior High School.

The other program, Parents for Education Action seeks to work with any agency, parents' association or educational group to provide supplementary training, man power and other assistance that will involve and help parents to become significant participants in educational improvement. The Parents for Education Action staff is made up of East Harlem parents who are dedicated to such "significant participation" and to the improvement of our schools. They are valuable resource to groups whose objective is similar.

Those of you who wish to talk farther about the envents of the Parish can feel free to contact those involved in program of your interst interst.

HELP FOR INFANTS

We have an urgent need for layettes, diapers, and baby clothing of all kinds. Any contribution of this nature will be greatfully received. At present we have exhausted our supply of clothing for infants. Christmas toys and gifts will also be appreciated.

****

The Parish has come of age! We are 21 years old this year!. We invite all of our friends to join in the celebration of this event. The celebration will be held at the Church of The Ascension, Sunday October 26th, with a joint service.

San Francisco Theological Seminary

April 1969

SHALOMATIC ACTIONS IN EAST HARLEM

"IT HAS REALLY HAPPENED: The members of the East Harlem Protestant Parish are involved in the planning of their own future and community. Since 1967, when the reorganization of the Parish began, laymen have taken more responsibility on the administrative level than ever before."

SHALOMATIC ACTIONS REPORTED AND SHARED:

The Annual Meeting of the Corporation of EHPP opened on a triumphant note on April 15, 1969 as Olivia Williams introduced the wonderful group of competent and vigorous lay staff and volunteers who presented reports of the work of their units. It was impressive to hear Ramon Diaz assert that he had little to say about his work at the Family Clinic because he was too busy fighting for the rights and necessities of East Harlem families; and to join with George Cables in singing some of his original jazz arrangements of hymn music sung at Ascension; and to have Sheila Walker tell of the triumphs of the Remedial Reading Program. The long list of speakers from the seven units of the Parish and other participating community organizations only served to underline the words of Chuck Farrell who said, "A year ago a lot of people thought we wouldn't make it with our reorganization into smaller, indigenous units, with greater community leadership, but here we are and its great!"

The Annual Meeting, planned and run by our administrative staff of Olivia Williams, Leola Glover, and Raymond Rodriguez proceeded to the brief business meeting of the corporation where it elected more than the prescribed one-third membership from the East Harlem community to the Board of Directors. A unanimous ballot was cast for the officers of the Board: Bennie Whiten and Fred Beck from New York City Mission Society were elected President and Treasurer; Blorneva Selby of Resurrection and Dillon Skinner of Ascension were elected Vice-President and Secretary.

In addition to the reports and business the meeting included a display of the work of many community groups at Ascension, and a Shalom Meal at Resurrection. During the meal, as we broke bread and ate in fellowship together, we had opportunity to offer many "Shalom" toasts for the gifts and joys which have come to the Parish over the last year. We spoke of our first fund raising benefit at Lincoln Center, April 22nd. We rejoiced in the new programs such as East Harlem Skills Training Center and Shalom, Inc. We gave thanks for the years of devoted service of our friend Dr. David Barry, the retiring President of the Board, and for the hard work of all the Board members in this period of reorganization. We toasted the tremendous team work of all the Parish members in serving the East Harlem community. Harold Eads reminded us that many in the room and many who are now serving in all parts of this nation and world have come to know the meaning of "Shalomatic Actions" of reconciliation and bridge building between people and communities through their association with the Parish. One and all we gave thanks for a Parish which is people in action; a Parish in continual growth and change as its "answers Christ's call of service to all....".

ANNUAL REPORTS FROM THE PARISH UNITS:

East Harlem Protestant Parish consists of 7 units and many related community organizations and programs. The units are coordinated financially by a Board of Directors, but function with local leadership and autonomy, and with local leadership in fund raising. They are organized in different ways according to their function of service in the community. Some of their work reflected in the following abreviated reports. Complete Annual Reports are available upon request from 2050 Second Avenue.

I. 2050 COMMITTEE

Out of the reorganization there developed the 2050 Committee. It consists of representatives from the churches, units of the Parish and those programs which occupy the building. They were given the responsibility of finding new and grass root programs which could utilize the building and be of service to the community as well. From this effort two new programs now occupy 2050 - The Community Law Offices and CCC Housing Office. Now that the building is being fully utilized the committee sees itself as a Management Committee dealing with all the internal programs of maintaining a building which services this community.

II. FUNDRAISING & INTERPRETATION

The Old Central Services unit of the Parish has taken over the new role of fundraising and interpretation and is now know as Fund-raising and Interpretation (FR&I).

It has been both a frustrating and an exciting year for the staff of FR&I. Their major responsibility has centered around assisting in fundraising and interpretation not only for the general work of the Parish units, but also for the Family Clinic directed by Ramon Diaz, and Shalom Inc. directed by The Rev. Harold Eads. They have also given moral support to all the units and community agencies related to the work here in East Harlem.

In 1968 the churches and other Parish programs took on the major responsibility of raising funds for their various programs. In the past the fundraising was done by the professional staff of the Central Services unit, who appealed to foundations and denominations for financial assistance for on going and new programs. Now this job is done by laymen in the different units, with the help of the FR&I unit and the members of the Board of Directors. There have been favorable results in this area.

III. FAMILY CLINIC

Out of East Harlem's vast resources of community agencies the East Harlem Protestant Parish has excelled in its ability to help the underpriviledged people of our area and because of its established reputation, the East Harlem Protestant Parish is sought out by those in need of assistance ranging from Welfare problems to hospital references.

No matter how many agencies are in East Harlem to help people they always come to the EHPP for help. Through the years, since the Parish was established, we have gained the confidence and the trust of the people. They know that regardless of race, color or creed our doors are always open to help them with their needs. We are at their disposal 24 hours a day. The Parish has given many people in this community the strength to stand up for their rights and face up to difficulties.

IV. REMEDIAL READING

This time last year the Tutorial Program was riding high in the hopes of eventual solvency, with absolutely no ideal as to how they would get there. With cakes sales, rummage sales, inept fund-raising letters, a defunct Christmas card project and with the work of "a host to ra se not only our budget needs of $33,000., but also a $6,000.00 credit with which to begin 1969. We are justly proud of this. This year with bigger dreams of fund-raising, we are involved in a benefit that will benefit not only our program but the cultural programs sponsor by Shalom inc. as well. We hope to raise $24,000. for the two programs. The event will be the opening of the New York City Ballet at Lincoln Center on April 22nd.

The Program has expanded in both scope and certainly in population. There are close to 250 students involved in our program with more than 300 tutors. The younger ones still come in the afternoons after school. We have so many junior high students that we have had to move into the basement of Ascension on Saturday mornings. Our College Prep Program has new directors.. Michael Dawson and Mary Saudek (though Mary is not really new.. she was a tutor for three years some time back.) Our College Prep program has about 40 students, with about 15 of them now nervously waiting to hear if they have been accepted into the city's SEEK program, or other colleges such as MaCalester or into Sarah Lawrence or Brown University.

Our greatest thrill over the years has been in the real skill that community people have exhibited as teachers. We need not go into the merits of Pattie Small or Sheila Walker, who are invaluable to the program. We have Neighborhood Youth Corps students who tutor every day and have shown us all how to teach. This past summer we scraped together enough money to hire and train four mothers from the neighborhood. It was a most rewarding experience for us all. We are awaiting O.E.O. Funding for a program to expand the training program for mothers. Many have already volunteered a great deal of time, so keen is their interest. They helped open the schools during the strike, they were in the schools everyday helping the teachers. They have attended training sessions, local meeting about school situation. All of this they have done without pay.

One last note looking to the future. Six of our college aged or high school students will be selected to go with the National Student Travel Association this summer to work and live with families in England or Ireland. Two of our children are now in Spain for five weeks with the Whiteman School. The Reading Program is going to "the ends of the world."

V. SHALOM INC.

During the last four years, the Church of the Ascension of the East Harlem Protestant Parish has found ways to involve entertainers from Broadway and the world of jazz with teenagers and adults in East Harlem. This has resulted in local productions as well as trips to the theatre and clubs, both of which have helped teen-agers discover their own talent and developed mobility. It has also provided an opportunity for performers, particularly black entertainers, to be involved in a concrete community of need which in turn supports them in their new careers.

One of the ministers of the Parish (Harold Eads) and a Jazz musician (George Cables) have been involved in directing plays, arranging jazz liturgy, and developing special programs of poetry, drama, and cultural workshops. These programs have pointed out the need for a Bridge Ministry which joins together the varied worlds of an urban metropolis. New York, like other cities, is filled with many intersections of life which may simply pass each other by unless there is offered an opportunity of meeting and working together. Also, the church in our day has a responsibility of relating to people not only through a congregational life, but gathering around places and issues which attract modern man.

Shalom Inc. includes people who are in the business of Shalom who, wherever they are, are seeking to work for a more just and open society. It includes people who are in the body of Shalom, who seek to share fellowship and discussion with other people who work in other areas. The programs of Shalom Inc. are really carried on by its members wherever they are, but because part of its purpose is to relate concerned people to areas of needs and because the program came out of a life in East Harlem, Shalom meals are held where people could come together around various areas of concern.

On Tuesday nights Shalom Inc. in co-operation with Church of the Ascension runs cultural workshops: Photography taught by Armando de Rivero, Art by Sheliah O'Shea, Typing and Stenography by Roberta del Rivero and Pam Hoey, and dance taught by Leon Hawkins and Paula Kelly, star of "Sweet Charity Shalom Festivals have been held sponsoring a play with David Baldwin, and an afternoon with Novella Nelson. On Palm Sunday weekend we took a jazz trio with George Cables, Lenny White and Clint Houston to Connecticut. A group of youth and two adults from Ascension sang a concert of contemporary church music. In cooperation with the Africa American Institute, Africans will be teaching a six weeks course of African History. Shalom Inc., like all "groups" of Shalom, hopes to become not so much a group, as a movement of Shalomatic action.

VI. CHURCH OF THE ASCENSION

Church of the Ascension has gone through a major change; after many months of searching we were fortunate to find a Black minister. On October first the Rev. Thomas C. Monroe, Sr., from Sumter, South Carolina was called as pastor of the church. Mr. Monroe came to us from an Associate Pastorship of a Presbyterian-Episcopalian church in Miami, Florida. Tom, his wife Kate, and two children Tom, Jr., and Cheryl have become a vital part of the church family.

The extensive summer program for children and youth came to a climax in a Gala Carnival in the basement complete with booths, games, talent show, music, movies, and food which was enjoyed by all. An exciting trip for the children occurred when the children from Ascension joined with the Reading Program in a march to the United Nations Plaza with canned food to demonstrate their concern for the starving Biafran children. The one hundred and fifty children wore signs and carried posters imploring the United Nations to take immediate action.

One of the highlights of the year is the music of the church. A young Jazz Pianist, George Cables, on the staff of the church, has worked up some great arrangements and new tunes for our Youth Choir, using words from our Hymnal and from Fisk, a World Council of Churches songbook for youth. He has provided us with lively and meaningful new rythms that speak to our modern times.

The fall & winter have been times for the Monroe family to settle, and Tom has spent time getting familiar with the people and programs of the community. The traditional Thanksgiving service was held, and Advent started with a "Love In" at the 11:00 o'clock service. During our Lenten School we were fortunate to have the opportunity to share two nights of Pot Luck Supper and fellowship with the Church of the Good Neighbor. Dr. Robert P. Johnson, Presbyter of New York City Presbytery spoke at one of these evening. A memorial service for the late Dr. Martin L. King was held as a part of our Good Friday service. We shared in an Easter Dawn Service on Wards Island with Resurrection and Living Hope churches. Looking across the East River at the city at seven o'clock in the morning was a real experience.

Ascension is now sharing its facilities with other programs in the community. Manna House and Shalom Inc. both use the church twice a week for part of their programs. The United Black and Latin American Youth group which began in a store front is now housed in Ascension.

In searching for new ways to have the Spanish speaking people involved more in the life of the Church, we have started a new program on Sunday afternoon for Spanish speaking people. This program began on March 16th and has had a good attendance each Sunday. Under the new leadership of Rev. Monroe we are looking forward to a fruitful year in 1969.

VII. CHURCH OF THE RESURRECTION

A year after the latest Parish restructuring, it appears that our optimism for the future was warranted. More and more, the work and ministry of the church has evolved into the hands of the members, and everyone is responding to the opportunity with "enthusiasm". Attention to budget, staffing, and program matters is more direct and more spontaneous than ever before.

This summer, Chuck will be taking a Sabbatical. In his absence the administration of the Church will be in the hands of the Church Council and its Executive Committee who will meet weekly with the staff Our confidence with this approach stems from our growing experience this past year with decentralization of labor and responsibility.

David Watley and the choir have continued to lead us in the joys of music. On May 25th, they will give the community an afternoon of Gospel song. The singing is now augmented by a growing Youth Choir. Bill Vestal, who teaches at P.S. 99, has been working intensively with our youth since September. Over the year they have worked out a very active intinerary.

Again this summer the Friendly Town program will be housed at the Church. This year, however, we will have full responsibility. Our own Mary Ware will be the supervisor and Esther Rodriguez her assistant. Rose Cooper and her committee are on top of the City-Country Vacation program which is run with New Canaan Community. The "Alumni" youngsters are set for special camp experiences. To this end the committee plans a a dinner and a bazaar later this Spring to augment the scholarship funds the New Canaan community is raising.

Following up on our conviction that we are learning a great deal about the possibilities and techniques of community renewal, and that our experience may be of value to our surburban friends, we have had meetirgs with mission groups of the South Church, New Britain, the Congregational Church in New Canaan, the Manhasset Congregational Church, and the Garden City Community Church. We hope to continue this emphasis.

The Metro North development plans continue. The buildings across the street from the church (318, 314, 310, 308, East 101st Street, 327, 317, 231 East 100th Street) are now slated for demolition to make way for the New Metro Plaza. The Metro North Relocation office, staffed in part by Dorthy Harris, and Millie Ryan as Chairman of the Board, is in the midst of a very tough job of relocating tenants.

REFLECTIONS ON EHPP BY BOARD MEMBERS:

Since the departure of Jim Crawford in June of 1968, Mrs. Olivia Williams and Mrs. Leola Glover have been operating the Parish offices at 2050 Second Avenue. Since then, these two women have been centrally involved in the hurricane of reorientation which has accompained the reorganization of the Parish. Serving as a central clearing house for mail, phone messages, crises, and celebrations, the back office is a scene of constant and seemingly chaotic activity.

Leola and Olivia have managed to stand above the apparent confusion while being vitally involved in it. Mail is delivered, phone messages relayed, letters typed, stencils run-off,,and News Letters published as befits an efficient business office. Meanwhile, these two mothers act as confessioners, counselors and sounding boards to the many individuals involved in the world of East Harlem.

Olivia Williams and Leola Glover have been helpmates and pillars of strength to many of us, while doing a great job in a position of vital importance but unrecognized signifigance. They are always ready to extend a hand, to go the extra mile, no matter how busy they may be. The whole of the Parish owes a tremendous amount to these women, whose lives reflect their Christian faith.

John W. Green
Chairman of the 2050 Committee

Dear Olivia:

As a response to our Annual Meeting I am moved to want to write to someone and share my sense of invigoration and hope.

The usual deep sigh of relief that more frequently characters the act of getting to and through "one more year" was, it seems to me, marvelously replaced by sounds of joyous expectation that a fresh, new, untouched year lay ahead with untold possibilities for doing the exciting things that were getting under way. There seemed to be that sense of new life that we talk about and strive for.

I learned a new word - "Shalomatic" - and maybe it describes a fair share of what was reported of the past and sensed for the year to come.

I also must say that I know enough about this kind of affair to know that it would not have happened without the tremendous effort made by you and Leola. Thank you.

Sincerely,

F. W. Cassidy, Jr.

Dear Olivia:

It is hard for me to get excited about a meeting but I came away from the Corporation Meeting Tuesday so elated that I wanted to congratulate you and Leola Glover on the job you had done.

Somehow in the fastest moving way you were able to give me the most informative picture of what is going on in East Harlem. The people involved and the work they are doing are indeed impressive.

My concern of a year ago, that the reorganization of the East Harlem Protestant Parish might be not just decentralization but disintegration seem so foolish now. Of course I should have know that the people of the Parish had the strength to step in creatively wherever needs arise, and to be the focal points for the most dynamic actions in East Harlem, but I needed you to show me. You did Tuesday.

Thanks,

Milly Marshall

A FINAL WORD::

We should apologize for the length of this report, but the year has been such an exciting one that we felt you should know all about it. We also wanted to give you a full and accurate report of the Parish and its prospects for the up-coming "year of Shalom". Great things are happening; we hope that you will continue to be a part of them.

Thank you,
Olivia Williams
Leola Glover

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

San Francisco Theological Seminary

January, 1969

INTRODUCTION:

For the last several months, many of you have been aware of severe dislocations in the New York City public school system. The teacher's strike, which lasted intermittently from September thru November was but a sign of the severe tension among those who are part of the system: teachers, parent, students, administrators, and of course, the Board of Education. This tension arises from the efforts of people, primarily in our Black and Spanish communities, to bring control of the schools more nearly into their hands. This will include major control over curriculum, personnel, capital expenditure and long range planning. It is an effort really to broaden the base of decision making responsibility, to democratize what David Rodgers in his perceptive book 110 Livingston Street has characterized as a " paranoid bureaucracy."

As the enclosed Newsletter indicates, many members of the East Harlem Parish, who have for years been involved in the crisis of our schools, including those who have been fighting tenaciously for intergration, have been immersed in the struggle for decentralization. Three of them Bob Lowe, Belen Cintron, and Peg Eddy, have jointly prepared the newsletter. We would of course appreciate any comments or questions you may have on it, as well as upon the commitment to what some people like to call " decentralization" and others, " community control."

DE-CENTRALIZATION

An exciting force is sweeping the country today. People are demanding the right to plan for their own betterment and their community's future. They are saying, " We want to control our own destinies. We want to decide what is best for us and our community and not have City Hall or Washington decide for us. We want a voice in planning our future. We want to be part of this democracy as active citizens."

This dynamic is sweeping the country, especially giving new hope to the downtrodden and traditionally poor. It is providing the possibility of change to poor Americans, who happen to be Black, Puerto Rican, Indian, white, or Mexican. And this force is being felt today in East Harlem.

When we examine this power reshaping our community, we see how Christian it is. For Christ came into this world to bring freedom to mankind. He came so that men might realize their full humanity. When man is free and fully human, he assumes responsibility for his life and his surroundings, i.e. his community. To offer this freedom is Christ's mission on earth. His Spirit is leading the way to bring full humanity to all mankind.

This Spirit is working in East Harlem where men and women are shaping the structures for their lives and for the type of facilities needed in the community: housing, education, health, welfare, employment, and even churches. Most important is education, for education prepares a person for his survival in the world and for his relationships with other people. Education should make a person able to exercise freedom and decision for his life. Yet the schools of our area have failed our children. Teachers are often new and ill prepared to teach children of a different color and social class. Administrators are bogged down in paperwork, rather than guiding newer teachers. Parents may feel uncertain about becoming involved in the schools. As a result, our children suffer and in effect, are crippled in their preparation for life. The average reading level in the fourth grade in our local schools is 3.1, when the national norm is 4.7. By the ninth grade, the reading level is 7.1, when the national norm in 9.7. To get a high school diploma, a person must have a minimum reading level of eighth grade. Too often, our children are given too little aspiration to succeed. Curriculums are watered down, excuses are made and mediocrity becomes the goal rather than excellence.

Members of the East Harlem Protestant Parish have long been concerned with better education. Several years ago the Tutorial Program was started. Individual parishoners have become involved in Parent's Associations, the Local School Board, schools committees, and activist organizations. Still, the overall situation steadily deteriorates. Our children fail further behind.

What are the causes? Many, of course. We have already mentioned a few. But mary persons feel that the chief cause is the size and remoteness of the school system. The New York City Board of Education employs 65,000 teachers to educate over 1 million children and has a building program second worldwide only to the U.S. military. With such numbers of employees and children, the individual is overlooked. Furthermore, what is best for a child in Riverdale(Bronx) or Bayside (Queens) may not benefit the child in East Harlem. Each local area has its individual character and needs. They cannot be dealt with uniformally. Persons working in a Brooklyn office (headquarters of the Board of Education) are far removed from the child reading two years behind grade level in P.S.109, East Harlem. It is far different working with children as individual persons rather than as statistics on a sheet of paper.

What seems to be the answer? We need to break down this huge superstructure known as the Board of Education to make education more responsive to local needs. Conscientious residents of East Harlem need to have a voice in how their children are educated. The learning process must be made more personable as well as relevant to that child in P.S. 109.

What shall we call this process? Let us say "decentralization." A highly centralized Board will be broken up into a number of smaller parts so that education may be made more relevant to the needs of local communities. (For example, the Board of Ed's plan proposes thirty districts of approximately 27,000 pupils each.) Definitely, real power should be granted, such as purchasing supplies and textbooks, molding the curriculum around the community's needs, preparing budgets, and planning for school contruction. Therefore, community residents can be more responsible for their children's education. Naturally this will require more time and effort, but parents should be guided by their aspirations for their children as well as feelings about what really makes them tick. The professional staff should also benefit. There should develop a real partnership between parents and teachers. Teachers will have a better understanding of the community and what the community wants in their schools. Teachers and community people can work as a team in educating children. Thus our children will benefit from a process that is closer to their needs and better prepares them for their future. The school will cease to be an alien island in the community, but a real center of the community's soul. It will become a "Community School."

All this is within the realm of possibility. We have faith in our community to work together for the best education of our children. For many of us, this is the only way left to better conditions. A strong de-centralization plan must be presented to and passed by the New York State Legislature in 1969. Time is short. By February 1, 1969, a plan must be submitted to the Mayor and the State Board of Regents. By March 1, 1969, it must be presented to the Legislature.

Yet we cannot do it alone. Brothers and sisters, friends of East Harlem,,we need your help desperately. We need your letters and political influence to pressure the Legislature to pass a strong de-centralization bill. There are many legislators who you can approach on our behalf. Do not underestimate the power of the individual. Remember the great influences of churchmen and humanist organizations in passing significant civil-right legislation. Our enemies are well organized and have huge war-chest. But, we the little folks of the world, can make our voice known also. If you have a questions, we have set up a Speakers' Bureau to appear before your church or organization. Write or call us at the Parish office (2050 Second Avenue, New York, 10029. Telephone: (212) 876-4027. Ask us your questions. Join us in our common struggle to make all men free. Help us assume responsibility for our lives and our children's future. We ask this in the name of Christ and for the sake of our children.

SPECIAL NEED A COLLEGE EDUCATION

From the earliest days of the Parish the Schools and Colleges Committee has been a source of financial aid for students in this community. Mainly through the generosity of a few donors who each year have given substantially, the committee has been able to raise between $ 5,000 and $ 6,000 , annually. Small scholarships have been granted to countless numbers of young people who otherwise might not have been able to pursue the educational opportunities which came to them. Often this kind of concrete initial encouragement has made a difference in futures realized. One early recipient is already a well know Washington, T.V. corresponsdent, one a physicist in a large industrial company, one a professor in a college in Africa and one the head of a large social organization here in New York City.

For the last three years the demand for financial aid has steadily increased. Much of this can be attributed to the work of our own College Preparatory Program which meets with high school students two nights a week for tutoring and guidance. Almost all of last years seniors who participated are now in college. We anticipate request for financial aid from 20-25 seniors this spring, all of who are planning to enter college in the fall. Our limited funds make it impossible to meet the needs this year. Next year it is an impossibility.

We are asking for your help. This can be done by the sponsorship of an individual student or through an outright grant to the College Preparatory Program marked " for Scholarships." Mr. David Plimpton who is in charge of this program at 2050 Second Avenue has any further information you may wish to have. We sincerely hope that many of you will be able to contribute to our young people's futures. They need you now.

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

April, 1968

A MAN DIES
(Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.)

A man has died, the world is sad this place is in an uproar.
Stores are burned and houses too, and crying eyes are so sore.
He lived for peace and civil rights, because of his death there is violence and fights.

Now he's in a wooden box, a silent, solemn face, killed by one
Who hated him, he marched, spoke for his race.
There's not an end to the marching.
His speech echoes on.
For every march we think of him,
For every speech a SONG.

Miss Maretha Starr
EHPP Writers Workshop

* *

The East Harlem Protestant Parish mourns the passing of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., a great man and leader who gave his life in the cause of justice, truth, unity and equality.

He had a great dream, a dream in which everyone regardless of race, color, economic or social level would live in the world in brotherhood and peace.

His death emphasized the cruelty that still exists in the world, that there is little unity, freedom and love among men. Yet the man himself symbolized unity, freedom, justice and love, the truth of which he affirmed. It is a glorious thing when a man's life truly reflects what he talked about.

These past weeks have helped us to know who we are, and have caused us to search, and honestly evaluate ourselves, our community and our mission. And as we look at ourselves as a Parish we have recommitted ourselves to work for the goals that Dr. King stood for. We firmly believe in Dr. King's philosophy, and in his memory will work to see that his dream becomes a reality in this community. His life was radiant with the claim of Christ's mission.

We want to share with you some of the new directions that the Parish is moving into as we seek to live also by Christ.

Olivia Williams
EHPP Fund Raising & Interpretation

WHAT IS HAPPENING IN THE PARISH

A Report from the President of the Board of Directors

David W. Barry

April 16, 1968

In the past, the annual report has consisted of vignettes and a brief report from each of the units, describing its goals and activity for the past year. While this would certainly be helpful again this year, I feel that there is something else happening in the Parish which spells something far more significant for the future than a rehearsal of a busy and active missionary program.

I

Since last September the East Harlem Protestant Parish has been passing through basic and dynamic change. The old Executive Committee of the Board of Directors has been reconstituted as a Reorganization Committee and has been meeting at least twice a month during the last six months in an attempt to bring new flexibility and vigor to the mission of the Parish. At its meeting in March, the Board of Directors took action on a Reorganization Committee proposal which, in effect, grants independence and allows the Parish program units to become a free association of mutually supportive and interdependent ministries. They will cooperate not because of a formal administrative structure but because they have in common many of the same people, sentiments and the same high vision. Each unit and program will be finding and allying itself with other community action and service organizations developing on an ad hoc basis what used to be formal and organized in the East Harlem Protestant Parish. In short, the kind of flexibility and freedom to join in mission is no longer dependent upon a structure similar to that of the traditional East Harlem Protestant Parish, but is rather found in these times in ad hoc groupings and coalitions taking their shape around the issues which are emerging in metropolitan society.

This has, of course, begun to happen already. Church members who are vitally active in various community organizations are joining with many others to struggle with issues which riddle our cities. The most striking example is the Church of the Resurrection's banding together with Union Settlement and St. Lucy's Roman Catholic Church to form the nucleus of the Metro North Housing Association. In addition to Metro North, some people convened by Chuck Farrell, and including people from Resurrection, Ascension, Church of the Good Neighbor, and Elmendorf Reformed Church (all East Harlem Churches), plus others of competence and skill from East Harlem organizations have met to form an East Harlem Skills Training Center. Members of Ascension and Emmaus House have been working, planning and worshipping together as signs of a new ecumenicity. The Reading Program is working with people all across the metropolis to provide new reading skills. And The Cooperating Christian Churches are opening a new housing office. Therefore, because of the increasing responsibility of each unit to decide its own course through their own boards and funding apparatus, matched with increasing opportunities to grapple with the issues troubling this community, I believe we are witnessing new forms of missionary obedience whose sign as never before is unity through diversity and creativity through interdependence.

II

What is happening within and to the Parish is, I believe, a parable for our times. It is a sign of the kinds of action and structures which may be appropriate for congregations in the future. But, perhaps even more important, the Parish serves as a sign of what is happening in our vast urban centers.

Most of us are aware of the human rights revolution sweeping the world. It has been variously labeled liberation, decolonialization, a "revolution of rising expectations" and the like. No people in the world have escaped the implications of this revolution, least of all those who live in our center cities. Among the latter there is a flowering of self confidence, a deepening political sophistication, and a clearer self-identification. One can only witness and share in this change with joy and anticipation.

Because of this kind of change, institutions such as the Parish which have been developed for and with people from the heart of our cities must also be in rapid transition and change. The structures of authority and decision making in particular are in flux as people who have over the years had decisions made in their behalf are increasingly participating in the decision-making process, if not in fact, really controlling it. It is becoming clear across this country and in our cities that the era of making decisions on a "top-down" organization basis is rapidly diminishing, and that conversely broad participation is rapidly increasing. Thus, the spirit of democracy, "grass roots style", is abroad. This holds true not only for poverty organizations, and public schools, but for any local institutions serving the people of inner city neighborhoods. And it is a good thing!

III

In light of the mood of the world mirrored in the changes of the Parish, it seems to me that the prophetic role of the changing Parish lies in at least three areas:

1. Social change within an institution is often a difficult and traumatic experience. It is frequently accomplished, if not through violence, then at least through bludgeoned and often broken relationships. If there are any people and institutions in the world which ought to bring the kinds of changes necessary to meet the changing needs and aspirations of the world, they are Christian people and institutions. I am profoundly convinced through the real and lively struggles of the Reorganization Committee that the necessary changes in authority and missionary thrust will be accomplished without breaking hearts and relationships.

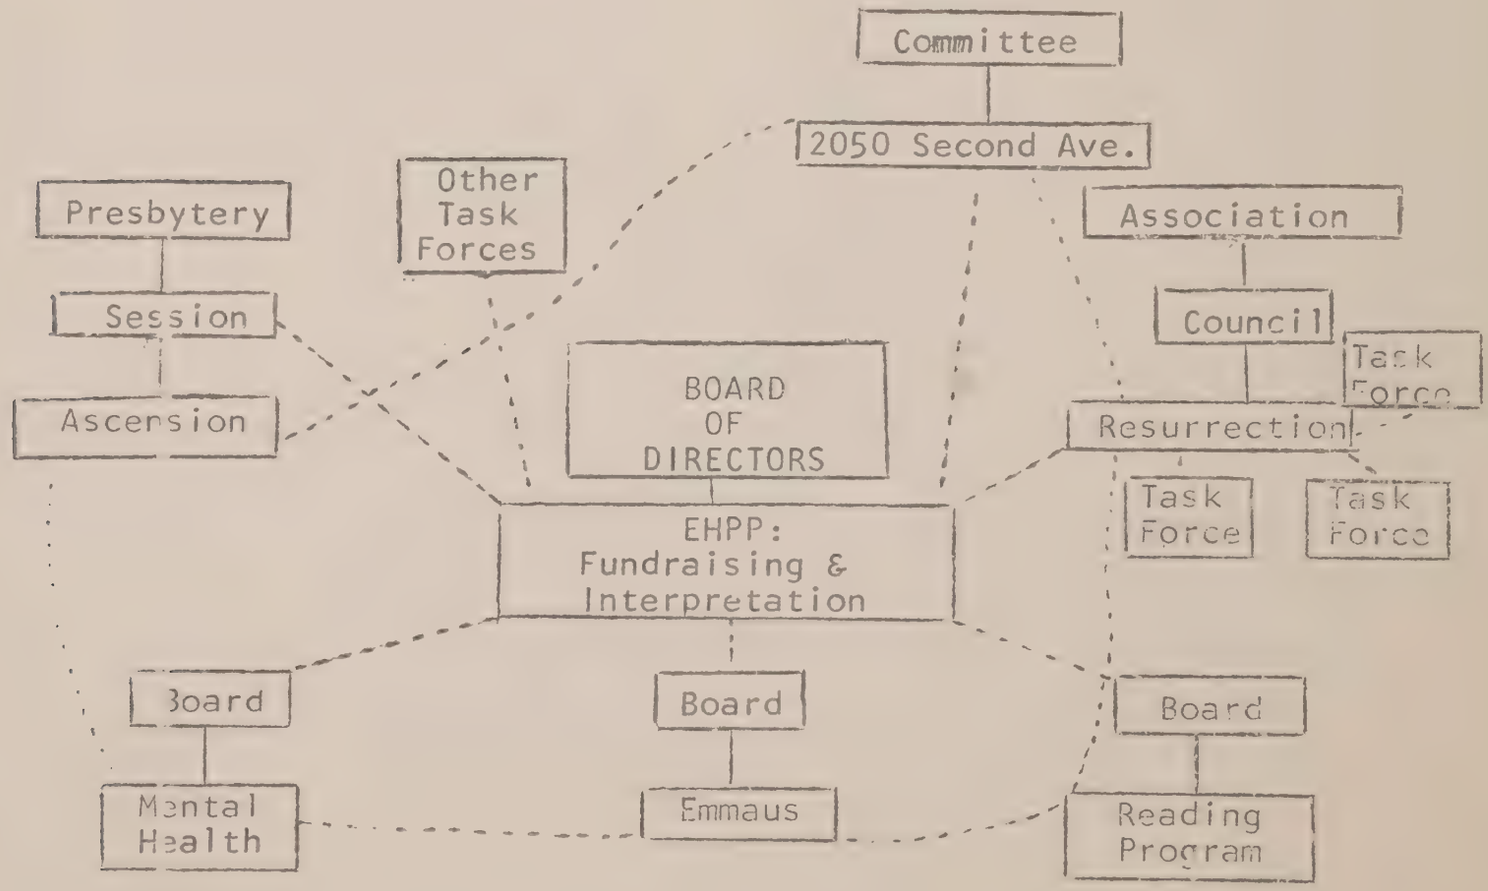
2. As a corrolary to the above, it is clear to me that one of the primary issues of our day, the transfer of power, will find a clear demonstration within the processes of Parish change. As far as I can see, neither the current Board nor the staff, in whose hands up until recently the bulk of decision-making rested, have been obstacles to the peaceful transfer of power now going on within the Parish and its units. I feel the Parish can be a model for the kinds of good will and respect needed as other institutions in our society and across the world go through the process of power transfer.



3. And lastly, I have a feeling that when people want to know what is happening to mission in the city, they will look not to what is happening in the East Harlem Protestant Parish, but rather to East Harlem itself. For the new coalitions of local organizations, both ecclesiastical and non-ecclesiastical, joining in ad hoc associations, shaping themselves around community issues, and putting people more than ever before at those points in urban life where humanization and liberation are emerging, there, I maintain, are signals for a style of mission which will be increasingly with us in the years ahead.

It is, to be sure, an exciting and challenging time to be alive. The Parish Purpose is being worked out in East Harlem: the blind, black, white and Spanish, are gaining sight and insight; captives of the status quo are being liberated; the deaf are hearing and understanding; the oppressed are searching for and gaining freedom; and relationships based on parity are signs of an era, of a new time, and perhaps of the year of the Lord.

This is the way the lines of authority appeared in the former structure of the East Harlem Protestant Parish:

This diagram suggests how the EHPP Corporation and Board will be related to local programs and churches. The Resurrection configuration holds for each of the other units.

MAY 14 1968

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

October, 1967

SUMMER, 1967

While many churches were going on "summer vacation" with their ministers off to the mountains and their church school teachers and pupils to the beaches, the program in this Parish multiplied, accelerated, and pressed ahead at a frequently explosive pace.

Our summer officially began in late June at a retreat for all the "summer staff" up at Parish Acres. On that occasion the college and seminary students who came from across the country assembled for a basic orientation and made the most of the opportunity to meet with some of the old hands around here. They became acquainted with people like Olivia Williams, a long time member of Ascension's Session and now the office manager at 2050 Second Avenue; Edna Taylor, secretary at Church of the Ascension who has spent a great deal of time with Christian education; and Helen Holly whose leadership has been invaluable in the church school. Patty Small and Shielah Walker, members of the Church of the Resurrection, were there introducing the tutors to the rigors of the reading program. Millie Ryan, the secretary and bulwark of the operation at Resurrection, acquainted the newcomers with the dynamics of the Metro-North neighborhood and the signs of hope to which her keen eye and boundless optimism give expression. Vicky Williams, an East Harlem teenager, was there to acquaint people with perhaps the most frustrating, detailed, grueling administrative task of all: the ticketing, tagging, and transporting of over 400 youngsters to "friendly town" homes all over the Northeast. That job frequently demands people up and on the line for the 5:00 A.M. train to Boston.

The theme of our summer staff retreat this year was "The Church for Others" and the basic source which we used was a paperback of the same name distributed by the World Council of Churches. It is a fine little volume which deals with the manner in which the churches can minister to a changing world. The retreat included, of course, appropriate Bible study. The closing study focused on the mission of Christ as described in Matthew 25, that startling and disturbing parable of the Last Judgment: Where were you when I was hungry, thirsty, naked, and sick?

Our Newsletter this month gives a brief description of what went on here between the retreat just described and a closing retreat on August 20. Ascension, Resurrection, and the Reading Program were the loci of action.

There was, of course, news made in East Harlem over the summer. Much of it is outside the purview of this letter to you. Suffice it to say, however, that our cities are in a race with time, tens of thousands of people are beginning to hear a new and different beat, political action and activism signify the dawning of a new and not always clear direction in American political life. Regardless of the myths of progress, the economic, educational, and housing gap between the affluent and the impoverished has not diminished, but increased in the last decade. The Church is one institution, spread across the metropolis, which includes men and women whose goal is for a city of justice, respect, and full human dignity for all people. There is money and manpower to get with the task. One major element that is needed, of course, is the commitment.

ASCENSION

The summer at Ascension was spent mainly with the children and teenagers as we concentrated on their being a part of our church family. For five weeks, the Children's Vacaction Church School was based on Matthew's concept of God's Great Society. About 250 children participated and teenagers and parents served as teachers.

The children learned the Lord's Prayer, the Words of Institution for Communion, and other verses which describe the Christian's life in God's Kingdom. Our study of God s Great Society was climaxed with a play given by the adults on Sunday morning which acted out the words of the Parish Purpose. It showed that with the coming of Christ, the blind do see and the lame do walk, the captives are released, and the acceptable year of the Lord has come.

For three weeks the teenagers had a Freedom School which studied African history, with particular emphasis on the Ancient Empires such as Mali and Ghana.

An excellent series of films put out by National Educational Television on African history was used. One afternoon we were graciously entertained by Mrs. Marion Mills Perminger, who has an unique collection of African art. If our total summer had a theme song, it was "New York, New York, You're a Wonderful Town". The playwright, Peter Shaffer, who had seen our Easter play, sent our teenagers 40 tickets for his plays "Black Comedy" and "White Lies". We had a great trip to Connecticut to see Chita Rivera's sensational performance in "Sweet Charity". It was fun both for her and us when our kids stood up and waved to her during the applause.

Many people are searching for new means of having cultural life in the city available to all communities. The events in Central Park provided a real gathering place. We attended the Evening of Negro Poetry and Music, and one Sunday morning Josephine Premice, who had been in the show, came and read poetry at the sermon time.

Perhaps the most exciting new structure which seeks to allow all communities to celebrate the city is the Jazzmobile. Billy Taylor, the jazz pianist, has been working to take jazz to people who do not yet fully have the mobility which is so much a part of city life. The Jazzmobile appeared in three places in East Harlem this summer.

Three young jazz musicians helped us to present a Freedom Suite for one of our Sunday services, and in August a retreat was held with East Harlem people and a jazz trio. There were the usual retreat activities of Bible study, recreation, etc., as well as a jazz seminar.

As one of the teenagers said in summing up the summer, "It became Fun City for Ascension." We did again discover the joy which can be found by all people who live in New York City and tried to find ways to make that joy available, particularly to our church family.

RESURRECTION

In addition to being long and hot, the summer for Church of the Resurrection was, by turns, dusty and wet. The demolition for the housing project on our block has proceeded to the point where our building is in the center of a rubbled lot. The frequent rains this summer helped to keep the dust down to some degree and the children did their part by opening the hydrants. Sometimes 101st Street was a tributary to the East River.

However, despite the changes in the "lay of the land", this summer was productive. Four hundred and fifty youngsters found their way to "Friendly Town" families somewhere in the Northeast. The logistics of this operation - record-keeping, physical exams, departures and arrivals - required 24 hour attention and a reservoir of good humor. This summer the operation was directed by Miss Vicki Williams of our congregation.

Eighteen youngsters participated in our annual two-week program with children and families of New Canaan, Connecticut, and a joint committee of New Canaan and Resurrection families worked out arrangements that made it possible for fourteen teenage graduates of this New Canaan program to spend half or all of the summer at camps of their choice. In addition, we ran a four week Vacation Church School program and a summer film festival featuring such flicks as "Nothing But a Man" and "The Hustler".

Beyond these normal summer programs emanating from our building, Resurrection people were engaged in the full variety of community programs dealing with education, employment, addiction, welfare and housing. Our non-profit Housing Corporation continues to be a major factor in the rehabilitation of buildings. Six tenements on 102nd Street and two on 100th Street have been rehabilitated and reoccupied. Three more on 100th Street and six on 103rd Street are in the process. Further rehabilitation, completion of promised park facilities, and a development which will include a new school, new housing and new community facilities (library, post office, stores) are in the planning or negotiation stage.

Early in September leaders of the printing industry met with leaders of the community here at the church. We are hoping that out of this preliminary exchange and the continued intercession of our friend Dick Davison, President of Colorcraft Inc., we will work out ways for the second largest industry in New York City to become seriously involved with the Metro North community in the vital areas of job training and opportunity.

READING PROGRAM

We can no longer speak of the Reading Program. This summer it was pluralized, for we had three distinct programs going on at once. There was the summer program set up as it has been for many summers, with teachers living in the neighborhood and participating in the life of the community and of the Parish. These teachers, both professionals and college students, worked with second graders through fifth graders. Working with them were eight teenagers from the community who were paid through the Neighborhood Youth Corps.

The second program was for the Junior High School group. Earlier in the year the Reading Program was contracted by the National Teacher Corps and New York University to serve as a training ground for 37 Teacher Corps trainees who were, for the most part, Peace Corps returnees with some teaching experience. These trainees worked on a one-to-one basis in the morning and conducted classes in different subjects in the afternoons. These same trainees are now teaching in local public schools.

The third, and perhaps the most exciting program, was a creative writing course taught by Piri Thomas, whose book Down These Mean Streets was published late in May. For a long time we have felt that reading and certainly writing did not make sense to the kids. It is, as taught in the public schools, about three levels removed from reality as the children know it. Piri was reality. He was born and reared in East Harlem. He tells his story directly, "like it is". The teenagers (at first only a handful, later fifty and sixty) listened and responded by writing how they felt about things. He brought Claude Brown, author of Manchild in the Promised Land, and Gordon Parks, a Life photographer and author of The Learning Tree. When the summer program came to an end, Piri and the teenagers were still going strong and will continue on into the winter. The folder of their manuscripts grows thicker and there is even talk among them of publishing their own anthology, Sing Out, East Harlem.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

We have an urgent need for layettes, diapers, and baby clothes of all kinds. Any contributions of this nature will be gratefully received, especially at this time of year when we anticipate cold winter weather. At present we have exhausted our supply of clothing for infants.

NOV 3 1987

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
2050 Second Avenue
New York, New York 10029

10/67

"Something is always happening in East Harlem. People move, and even buildings; business and politics move; history moves and God is moving. In short, the world of East Harlem, like the whole world, is in constant change. Being aware of the danger of being an experiment grown old and institutionalized, the East Harlem Protestant Parish is in fact changing and moving just like everything else in East Harlem."

--From 1966 Parish Newsletter

Dear Friend of the East Harlem Protestant Parish:

This is the first letter you have ever received from the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the East Harlem Protestant Parish. I write because these are times similar to those of the Parish's birth when new ways of responding to the challenge of the city are being sought, and I want very much to inform you of the manner in which the Parish is shaping itself around the changes in East Harlem and gaining new perspective on its missionary task.

First of all, while the Parish has gone through many transitions in its history of service to East Harlem, the Board of Directors has remained largely unchanged, consisting of representatives of denominations and churches which have supported the Parish budget. But the changing times require change in our patterns of organization. Residents of East Harlem who are members of the Parish pointed out to us, quite properly, that since it is their destiny with which the Parish is concerned, they should be much better represented on policy making bodies of the Parish. The corporation has therefore elected eight more local laymen to the Board, in addition to the two who are already members, and all future planning and policy making groups in the Parish will reflect this change.

Another major change is in process at the Church of the Resurrection. As you know, over the years the East Harlem Protestant Parish has provided a vehicle for cooperative action among its component units. At the present time, however, the members of Resurrection are pursuing and have found new associations for mission in East Harlem, and are presently engaged in highly significant ecumenical and cooperative action outside of the formal Parish structure. Resurrection's deep involvement with a coalition consisting of private industry, a foundation, a Roman Catholic Church, a settlement house, a local community organization, and the city administration in the rebuilding of the neighborhood is illustration of this. Therefore they are proceeding toward autonomy which, they are convinced, allows them broader freedom and blexibility for action. The congregation is fully aware that this means local responsibility for payroll, property and other fiscal and management functions that until now have been handled by the Parish business office. They are eager for the responsibility to determine both their own missionary priorities and to manage their own affairs.

In addition, the emergence of strong lay leadership in the community has raised some real questions among the staff about the need for more professional workers who reflect the predominantly Puerto Rican and Negro character of the community. With Bill Webber having left to direct a center for the training of laymen and pastors in the tasks of urban social change (Metropolitan Urban Service Training Facility - MUST) but still active on the Board of Directors; with Letty Russell planning to leave her job as pastor of Ascension and coordinator of the Parish for advanced studies at Union Seminary; and with Bob Nichol leaving to develop another community action program in East Harlem, some key staff positions will be open for such new staff.

It is clear that these changes are part of the growing maturity and involvement of the laymen in the work of the Parish and community. They reflect the new pressures for community participation that have their secular counterparts in the civil rights movement and the community action section of the anti-poverty program. Old patterns of organization and control are becoming obsolete as those of us who represent the mission concerns of relatively affluent churches come to recognize the skills and competence that have too long remained untapped among the lay Christians of communities such as East Harlem. Members of the Parish are now giving leadership to a great variety of community programs in housing, education, recreation, community organization and action.

Here are some of the other developments that reflect the capacity of the Parish to generate creative new programs and spin them off:

Exodus House, now completing work on its 103rd Street quarters, is a fully independent agency with its own Board of Directors, serving as a half-way house and treatment center for narcotics addicts.

Emmaus House whose locus of operation is a brownstone on 116th Street, is now separately incorporated as an ecumenical center, including Catholic priests and laymen as well as members of the Parish, continuing the work of the Parish in Metropolitan Mission and making use of Parish Acres as a retreat center. Emmaus is moving rapidly towards self support.

The Community Reading Program is developing an independent board made up of laymen and staff from East Harlem, tutors, educational specialists and concerned laymen from outside East Harlem. It is also moving toward self support.

In Metro-North, a number of independent groups are now organized and at work on community problems: a housing corporation, an adult employment service, a tenants' association, a youth corps, a home-work study center, a tenant relocation program. In all of these Parish members and particularly the Church of the Resurrection are deeply involved.

In light of the dynamics of the community and the Parish's wrestling with an appropriate missionary enterprise, a great deal of planning is now going on for the future. A special committee has been appointed to work out the new directions the Parish must take to be faithful in a new period of history.

In this time of transition, as the Parish moves into uncharted and exciting territory, we are going to need your continued prayers and support. We are deeply grateful for your friendship over the years and pray that it may be sustained in the future.

Sincerely,

David W. Barry

David W. Barry
Chairman, Board of Directors

November, 1967

DEC 12 1967

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCI

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

MAY 1967

STRUGGLE FOR A GREAT SOCIETY

(Sermon preached at the Annual Meeting of the East Harlem Protestant Parish, April, 1967, by Letty M. Russell, and based on Bible-study and discussions of Matthew, "The Great Society" in Daily Bible Readings, Lent-Pentecost, 1967)

SCRIPTURE: Isaiah 35:1-10, Matthew 11:2-6

> Now when John heard in prison about the deeds of the Christ, he sent word by his disciples and said to him, "Are you he who is to come, or shall we look for another?" And Jesus answered them, "Go and tell John what you hear and see: the blind receive their sight and the lame walk, lepers are cleansed and the deaf hear, and the dead are raised up, and the poor have good news preached to them. And blessed is he who takes no offense at me." (Mt.11:2-6)

INTRODUCTION:

Today we are engaged in a great struggle; a struggle for a human world; a struggle to determine whether one quarter of the world will go on being rich and free and the rest of the world poor and slave; a struggle to determine whether the future will be shaped by men of responsibility; a struggle for a Great Society.

We are part of this struggle because the whole world is involved. Those who do not take their responsibility for the world and for their brothers seriously are fighting on the side of the status quo. Their refusal to join in the struggle for a Great Society is a decision for a society of inequality, slavery, and despair.

Long ago, Abraham Lincoln said that the United States was involved in a struggle to determine whether a nation could survive. Today our struggle is to determine whether men can survive as human beings. It is not just a Civil War, or even an American Revolution. It is a world revolution--a struggle for a Great Society.

I. WHAT DOES THIS GREAT SOCIETY LOOK LIKE IN OUR WORLD TODAY?

In one word--a mess. It looks like such a mess that people in East Harlem don't even want to use the phrase at all because it seems so meaningless.

President Johnson has used the words "Great Society" to popularize his program attacking the social problems of our nation; to win support for his programs in the area of civil rights, poverty, jobs, etc. But what has happened? The "great" society has become much less than "great" in the face of a war in Vietnam, administrative red tape and growing reactionary sentiment.

Even the poverty program is a mess in many places. Certainly it is in East Harlem as anyone would be quick to say who had any connection with our poverty program called MEND. The administration of the poverty program in New York City appears to be bent on subverting the purpose of the poverty program--the development of community leadership and responsibility in ghetto areas.

The East Harlem residents have tried to obtain funds for various community projects such as reading programs, legal aid, community resource development, for three years. Instead of encouragement, they have met constantly changing policies and red tape which keep them rewriting proposals and fighting among themselves. Even now East Harlem is still engaged in a struggle to unify the local groups in a way that will satisfy the city Community Development Agency and release funds for community projects. By in large the only funds made available piecemeal are those which reinforce service and caretaker programs which simply place "band aids" on the problems of poverty rather than helping programs which could develop human resources. And the leadership of the community itself is constantly being "seduced" by the offer of government jobs which effectively silence their prophetic stance.

Yet this is not the whole story. The Great Society has signs of hope as well.

There is hope in the name itself, for the words "great society" were coined by two sociologists at the beginning of this century as a description of the possibilities of human society in a technological age. They saw that for the first time in history men have the tools to build a great society where all men can be fed, and all men be free. Many men are convinced of this in every nation and are at work daily to find ways to shape the future. Such people are at work in our East Harlem community as well.

There is also hope in the fact that oppressed people of the world, including people who live in areas like East Harlem, have begun to believe that the Great Society belongs to them. This is why the slogan "Black Power" is a sign of hope. It says for all the world to hear, "We who are black are part of the Great Society and we are going to develop the power to take our part whether the rest of America likes it or not." In other nations the revolutions and chaos, the turning to communism, are all signs that men and nations intend to share the wealth and freedom of technology. They are part of the Great Society and they are not waiting for some rich Western nation to loan it to them on conditions of "good behavior".

Whether the Great Society is a mess, or is a sign of hope depends on the way we look at it. If we look with eyes of faith and with confidence in the future, we can see hope. And I suspect that those who have the most hope are those who are taking part in the struggle. Out of their involvement in the struggle for a Great Society they see the mess, but they also see the possibility of change and have the determination to shape the future.

II. PERHAPS YOU WONDER WHAT THIS DESCRIPTION OF THE GREAT SOCIETY HAS TO DO WITH OUR SCRIPTURE TEXT. IT HAS A WHOLE LOT TO DO WITH IT BECAUSE THE TEXT IS A DESCRIPTION OF WHAT HAPPENS IN GOD'S GREAT SOCIETY--THE KINGDOM OF GOD. IN THIS GREAT SOCIETY, ESTABLISHED BY THE COMING OF JESUS CHRIST, GOD IS CONCERNED THAT MEN MAY BE HUMAN, THAT THEY MAY LIVE IN RECONCILIATION WITH EACH OTHER AND THEMSELVES. THE STORY OF JESUS' TEACHING, PREACHING AND HEALING IS THE STORY OF THE GREAT SOCIETY, THE STORY OF A NEW AGE BROUGHT BY JESUS CHRIST IN WHICH THE LAME WALK, THE BLIND SEE, AND THE POOR HEAR GOOD NEWS PREACHED TO THEM.
HOW DOES THIS GREAT SOCIETY OF GOD LOOK TODAY?

God's Great Society looks largely invisible. It isn't even a mess--it is invisible. It is pretty hard to see any lame who walk or blind who see, or any good news being preached.

Many men and women are quick to say that they don't believe in God because they cannot see his work. Their child or loved one has died; they are out of work; the schools miseducate their children, and so on. Here in East Harlem the other day a woman in a creative writing class wrote a beautiful poem about why she doesn't like Christians who have a phony God and are phony themselves. She had plenty of material to develop. In so far as they can see, many men find God to be absent from their world and so pronounce God and his Great Society to be both invisible and dead.

Certainly God's Great Society is largely invisible if we search for it in the church. The church is supposed to be a sign of the Great Society. It is supposed to point to what God is doing by its own life. Yet statistics show that church membership does not make any significant difference in the attitudes or lives of members when compared to non-members. In our own Parish we can see the inadequacies and failures which have prevented us from being signs of the Great Society here in East Harlem and we are constantly asking ourselves how we can be a living sign of Jesus' ministry of healing and reconciliation.

Yet there is hope. There is hope because we have confidence that God wants his world to become a Great Society. There is hope because we believe that in Jesus Christ the New Age, the Great Society has already begun and that God is at work creating a new society and calling us to join in his work.

There is hope in the East Harlem community as well as other communities across the nation and world. Signs that Christian men and women are beginning to take responsibility in a new and powerful way; signs such as the work of Metro North in housing and community development; the work of MEND in providing a base for the community participation; the work of groups like the Reformed Democrats in taking responsible political leadership; the work of those struggling to improve the schools. All these are signs of hope because they represent Christians joining with others in a struggle to build a more truly human community in spite of all the difficulties.

There is hope in our Parish because in the midst of our failures, our worries, our inadequacies, we can see good things happening and can give thanks and praise to God as we seek out new ways to be faithful to God in the future. Just last week Ascension had a church officers' retreat to try to see where the church had come from and where God is calling it to go. They did not see the way clearly but they did affirm that they were "on the Way" as a part of God's Great Society. As one newly elected officer put it after returning home, "I'm not sure where we have been, or where we are going, but I'm going with you!"

Is God's Great Society come? This was a question John the Baptist asked of Jesus long ago. In reply, Jesus simply pointed to the signs--the lame walk, the dead are raised, the good news is preached. Jesus' actions were the signs, and his own resurrection was the greatest sign of all that men have received power to live in the New Age with joy. Many rejected these signs and the authority of the one who claimed that they established God's rule. This is still true today. Many cannot or will not see signs of God's Great Society, for it takes "eyes of faith" to see God at work. Yet in faith we, like the disciples of old, can live in the Great Society and have confidence to plan for that society in God's future.

CONCLUSION:

Which Great Society do we live in? God's or the world's? We live in both. We live in both because both belong to God's plan to set men free and to build a responsible society. We live in both, and with eyes of faith we can have hope in the future and join in God's revolution--join in the struggle for the Great Society. The eyes of faith are given us by Christ's resurrection, for it is a sign of the God's love which has power to set men free to expect what God will do in the Great Society and to join him in that Society. Amen.

HYMN AND PRAYER:

"We're on our way and we won't turn back...we've asked our brother and sister to come along with us." Amen.

"SHOW AND TELL" ABOUT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CORPORATION OF THE EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

The Corporation of the East Harlem Protestant Parish is made up of elected representatives of the churches and agencies which support the work of the Parish. They meet annually in April to hear reports about the Parish, to elect members to the Board of Directors, and to hear the annual financial report. The business session of the Corporation was brief and allowed time for "Show and Tell" about the Parish. The Annual Reports of the Parish Units were distributed in writing and are available, free of charge. If you wish to receive a copy please write to 2050 Second Avenue, New York City 10029.

"Show and Tell" is a popular Parish tradition. At the beginning of a meeting for business, study, or fun, the people of the Parish frequently pause to "show and tell" what has been happening in their lives in the past week or so. This tradition is copied after the use of "show and tell" in kindergarten that teaches the child how to speak in public. But in the Parish meetings it has an even more important function. It helps the members of a group to express their concern and support of one another as they share the experiences of each other's lives. A similar event takes place on Sunday morning in the worship service. During the Concerns of the Church members of the congregation share the events of the week with the whole church family so that all may share together in the needs of the community and in its events of joy and sorrow. As groups gathered during the week after the Annual Meeting there was much to "show and tell". There were the little mistakes of calling people by the wrong name and having people show up at the wrong place. There were the worries of whether there would be enough food, or whether the slides would be developed in time for the show. And then there were the triumphs of laymen who had told of their work as a part of the slide presentation. And so it seemed natural to share with all our interested readers a little bit about what happened at our meeting.

A Parish Panorama was a form of "show and tell" during the afternoon. Using a new set of slides which had been taken by Jim Crawford the various units of the Parish told their own story. It was exciting to hear the laymen from the different units tell of their work. Somehow the story seemed far more convincing than when told in the more practiced tones of the clergy staff. Three staff workers from Central Service told of how the office has moved forward in the past year in developing a Team Ministry of laymen who seek to work together to serve the community and the wider church. The office team is now headed by three members of the Parish churches who act as office manager, secretary for administration, and secretary for personnel and business machines. Laymen from the Church of the Ascension told how their participation in the life of the church strengthens them for their work in the East Harlem community. One member who is a deacon and lay preacher explained:her new job as an assistant in community relations for the New York Medical College provided opportunities for service throughout the week. Those from the Church of the Resurrection told of enjoying their new building and moving forward in the renewal of the whole community in cooperation with Metro North. Even the landscaping around the new church is being done in cooperation with the local community representatives of Metro North and the city architects who will build a small housing project next to the church. Metropolitan Action and Interpretation reported on the varied services performed in the field of social action and of interpretation of mission. Mental Health told of the continued struggle to find funds to support their program of community mental health. A proposal is being written for a joint project of Metropolitan Hospital and the counselling program for the training of community workers in mental health. Two lay staff workers from the Reading Program concluded the reports of the Parish Units by telling of their exciting year in developing an extensive tutorial program for the children of East Harlem. A new aspect of their program is a "college prep" night designed to prepare students and guide them in seeking opportunities for higher education. In addition, reports were given from groups who cooperate with the Parish in their service to East Harlem: Metro North, Exodus House, Emmaus House.

A Family Celebration was held at Ascension church following the "show and tell". Members of the Corporation, friends, and members of the Parish gathered together to celebrate a family style meal. They were following a custom of Ascension church which gathers each month as a family for a "pot luck" supper. The atmosphere was informal. The cooks were seated with the guests and occasionally jumped up to refill a platter or get a seat for a late comer. At the close of the meal communion was celebrated around the tables in much the same way as it is celebrated in the Parish on Maundy Thursday evening. Letty Russell preached the sermon on the Great Society which is printed in the Newsletter. The climax of the meal was reached when all the participants walked around and greeted one another with the right hand of fellowship to take part in the work of the Great Society. After the handshake the bread was broken and passed from hand to hand and the cup was shared as the entire group took part in Christ's banquet. It was a celebration not only of our unity and joy in Jesus Christ, but of our unity with all those everywhere who join us in his work seeking to bring about signs of God's Great Society in our world today.

ECUMENICAL MAILING LIST

The work of developing a metropolitan retreat center for ecumenical dialogue between Catholic and Protestant groups was described in the Newsletter of January 1967. The Parish, MUST, and Emmaus House have been cooperating closely in this work. At this time we are seeking to develop a mailing list of interested people who would like to be kept informed concerning developments at the Ecumenical Center. If you would like to be on this mailing list, please return the following blank:

- -

TEAR OFF AND SEND TO: 2050 Second Avenue, New York, New York 10029

Please place my name on the mailing list for the Ecumenical Center of Dialogue:

Name: _____

Address: _____

Other names and addresses of those who might be interested:

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

Please send _____ brochures and Newsletters describing the ecumenical work of Emmaus House and EHPP.

JUN 8 1967

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
SPECIAL REPORT

April 1, 1967

OUR REPRESENTATIVE IN THE HOUSE: CONGRESSMAN ADAM CLAYTON POWELL

At a specially called meeting on March 17, 1967 of the Steering Committee, policy-making body for the East Harlem Protestant Parish, the following position was adopted regarding the special election in the 18th Congressional District which encompasses East Harlem:

> "The Steering Committee of the East Harlem Protestant Parish wishes its community, its friends, and supporters to know that it endorses Adam Clayton Powell's re-election as congressional representative of the 18th District of Manhattan.
>
> The events in Congress over the last several months in regard to Mr. Powell's constitutional right to represent his district have unquestionably had serious racial overtones and smack of racist motivation both in the investigation and in the subsequent decision to deny the Congressman his seat. The Parish recognizes that there are questions of propriety in aspects of Mr. Powell's behavior, but we feel any discussion of his alleged behavior outside the context of ethics applicable to all members of Congress serves only to becloud the more basic and fundamental issue of the Harlem and East Harlem communities' constitutional right to determine its own representation.
>
> The Steering Committee urges its community, its friends and supporters to endorse Mr. Powell in the special election on April 11, 1967."

We are mailing the Steering Committee resolution and the following commentary on the Adam Clayton Powell affair as a special Parish Report because we believe that what has and is happening to Powell is evidence of a deep-seated racism within American society that our nation is unwilling to face. Congress's action against Mr. Powell needs to be considered in this context if white Americans are to comprehend the growing alienation in the Black community.

Black Americans do not understand Powell's removal from Congress as a disciplinary action directed against inappropriate conduct. However Mr. Powell may flaunt popular public morality, Black Americans know too many Southern Congressmen whose careers have been built on the rule of intimidation, murder, and flagrant disregard for constitutional rights to find the moral imprecations against Powell convincing. As for his legal difficulties, ironically one day AFTER he was denied his seat in Congress the Court of Appeals dismissed one hundred thousand dollars (the bulk) of the judgment against him and allowed him to be tried under the laws of Puerto Rico, something which his lawyers had advocated throughout the whole legal proceedings.

As far as Black Americans are concerned, the action taken by Congress was not against Powell, but against themselves. It said to every Black person that even the sacrosanct political process was expendable if a Black man refused to assume his assigned role in white society. The impact on the Black community was immeasurable. One man described his feelings as those he felt the day Kennedy was assassinated. It was as if the whole white society had screamed out to the Black community: "Nigger, keep in your place!"

If the reaction of the Black community was stunned disbelief, the feelings of white Americans were equally intense. Mail poured across the desks of every Congressman in the House demanding Powell's head. Men representing constituencies with virtually no Black residents were bombarded with demands that Powell be expelled. The question we raise here is WHY??? Why should a congressman from Harlem evoke such intense emotional revulsion from White Americans? Certainly it is not merely a matter of questionable moral conduct by a public servant. Bobby Baker, Billy Sol Estes, and Senator Thomas Dodd are equally famous examples of real or alleged misbehavior, and they do not touch so deep and sensitive a nerve in our nation's psyche. We must conclude that it is because Powell is Black, and only because he is Black, that a mass consensus of white Americans all over our nation cries out for his removal. When such a political lynching can be triggered by racist feelings, then, Black and white, we have good reason to fear for the future viability of our nation as a truly democratic and just community.

The following are excerpts from a comprehensive study entitled "The Adam Clayton Powell Case: A Test for Christian Ethics" adopted by the Presbytery of New York City representing 118 parishes. The eight-page study discusses the Powell case in the light of personal morality versus social ethics, the procedures followed in the judgment against Powell, and what the Powell case says about the present status of race relations and its portents for the future. Copies of the full statement may be obtained by sending stamped, self-addressed envelopes to the office of the Presbytery of New York City, 7 West 11th Street, New York, New York 10011.

Some excerpts from the study paper follow:

"The Adam Clayton Powell case is a testing ground for the honesty and perception of the American Christian as he tries to bring the insights of the Christian Gospel to bear on complex and important public issues. This case is complicated for many Christians because it calls for a distinction to be made between the area of private morality and social ethics. Most of the discussion of the Powell case has confused these two areas. When this has been done, Negro Christians particularly have been baffled and angered because for years they have been used to discriminating between the criteria of private morality and the standards of public responsibility in assessing Congressman Powell...

"In the first place, the discussions of the Powell case have shown that the time is past when the white community can call the signals for the Negro community. No minority community wants the majority to decide what is good for it. Every group wants to select its own leaders according to standards that make sense to its own condition. Every group wants to determine its own goals within the broad context of the American tradition. This has always been a latent and powerful thrust in the Negro community and every other group, but only recently has it become explicit and unmistakable.

"As a corollary to this, there is a unanimous rejection of the notion that minority members must measure up to the canons of majority respectability before there can be inter-racial cooperation. Negroes see that the marks of respectability are often not observed by the majority and they resent the requirement that they be more virtuous than the majority in order to get respect. Though Negroes value the virtues of moral responsibility, the day is past when they will try to be more honest, more naive, more friendly; that burden has been laid down.

"These changes, and others that could be mentioned, are all steps in the direction of more self-respect and more independance. These are the conditions that should always prevail among equals. The fact that they have only recently become a part of the self-conscious feelings of the American Negro is another evidence of the pervasiveness of racism in our society...

"A great deal has been said about Congressman Powell's flamboyance and shortcomings of his personal life. Many Christians have approved the discipline he has received 'because he has disgraced the Christian ministry' with his high living, his divorces, his lack of 'humility.' We know of no one who is prepared to defend Powell's personal life, nor, on the other hand, do we know anyone who has enough information to make a charitable judgment...

"Mr. Powell has been criticized for his divorces. As churchmen, we are concerned about the anguish and family disintegration that leads to and follows divorce. However, the state of a legislator's marital life is not a condition that bears on his ability to govern...Others have said that he is arrogant. We do not have evidence to make a guess as to whether this is true. We would rather have legislators who are not arrogant men. But whether Powell is arrogant or not does not bear on the issue of his fitness to sit in the House.

"There are, however, some characteristics of personal behavior that would have a bearing on a representative's fitness for governing. There have been charges, for instance, that Powell was careless in the use of committee funds and that he may have diverted some to his personal use. If these charges are proved true in a proceeding where the normal rights and privileges of the accused are observed, then one could say that the personal behavior of Powell has a bearing on his fitness for office. However, we must bear in mind that the information we have so far in this area has not yet been subjected to a judicial process and therefore the judgment of a fair-minded citizen should be reserved until this has been done...

"We know that our laws are not written by men who are all paragons of virtue. We can all recall presidents, judges and legislators who have been accused of personal misbehavior. We do not condone their misdeeds. But we have been able to separate their private lives from their public record - except in the Adam Powell case...

"While it is technically not a censure to ask an elected representative to stand aside while his suitability is being judged, this act in itself takes on the character of discipline when the reluctance of the House of Representatives to take similar steps in the past is noted. For instance, when the question of the legality of the election of the Mississippi delegation was brought up in 1965, the House refused to ask the representatives-elect to stand aside. That they got their seats because Negroes in their state had been systematically denied the vote, had been documented. Yet the House did not humiliate them.

"In 1956 Congress did not refuse to seat Representative Thomas Lane of Massachusetts, and left his seniority untouched even though he had been convicted and jailed for income tax evasion.

"This is not a paper on the history of congressional ethics. The point we are making in citing these examples (and others could be mentioned) is to point out that asking a man to stand aside is a form of discipline, and further that Adam Powell is being judged by a committee that has no solid precedents behind it nor any impartial rules to guide it...

(NOTE: Even so, the House chose to vote overwhelmingly against the unanimous recommendations of its committee and refused to seat Mr. Powell.)

"In short, until Congress musters the will to set up a standard of ethics by which the suitability of every Congressman may be measured, it should abandon the business of passing on an ad hoc basis, on the right of an elected representative to sit...

"Whatever our feelings about the need for reform in the House Education and Labor Committee and whatever our feelings about the politics and conduct of Representative Powell, the Christian cannot let the action of Congress stand uncriticized. To do so condones a high-handed procedure that mocks due process, permits Congress to single out one committee and one man as the sole object of its reforming zeal, says to some of the most reactionary powers in the nation that they can have their way in Congress, and says to the Negro community that the most powerful Negro in Congress can be humiliated whenever popular sentiment decrees."

The Presbytery Committee offered these conclusions:

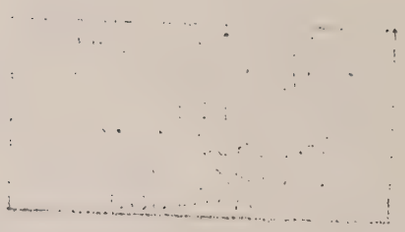
"For the reasons cited above, your Committee believes:

"That Congressman Powell should be seated. When a genuine code of ethics is adopted, he should be judged along with every other representative.

"That Congressman Powell should be restored to his committee chairmanship until Congress reforms all committees and adopts a new procedure for selecting committee chairmen.

"Something should be said to clarify the legal status of Powell's relations with the court. No one on the committee is competent to assess this situation. We have therefore asked William Booth, Commissioner of Human Relations of the City of New York to permit us to use a summary he has made, which is as follows:

"'Remember that Mr. Powell is not a criminal, having only been the defendant in a civil action, not a criminal one. In other words, he was sued as anyone might be for money. Since he lost that action he is now the object of certain criminal sanctions permitted anyone who has a judgment to collect. The number of uncollected civil judgments in this city (meaning New York) is staggering. The lawyer attempting to collect this particular one has gone at collection with all force and has been greatly aided by the fame of his quarry.



"'While Mr. Powell may now be arrested at any time in New York City he cannot be arrested while out of this jurisdiction. Thus instead of being the 'fugitive' that some have called him, he is using a legally permitted means of avoiding the payment of what he has always considered an improper sum for calling a woman a gambler's helper, which he believed and apparently still believes she was. If he was not legally permitted to thus avoid payment he would have been subjected to arrest anywhere. If he were in truth a 'criminal' and a 'fugitive' he would long ago have been brought to jail! Meantime, let us not forget that he has never given up but has tenaciously continued his fight in the courts through lawyers to prove he is right. In other words, he has engaged in a battle...within the permitted limits of the law.'"

(Note: Since the Presbytery's report was written and adopted, $100,000 of the sum assessed against Mr. Powell has been set aside and the legal case has taken on a different tone. The comments by Mr. Booth are included in this summary to point up some often-overlooked legal aspects.)

In conclusion, we trust that you will give this matter your most serious consideration. We believe that the cancer of racism abetted by the growing isolation between Black and white Americans challenges the very essence of decency, brotherhood, justice, human dignity our nation represents. It is not irrelevant as some have said that Mr. Powell is Black. He has aroused such deep feelings both in Black and white Americans percisely because he is Black, because he represents - he so effectively champions the cause of Black people. Congress has attempted to cut him down to size in the same way that every other Black man who has been an outspoken critic of a racist system - Mohommad Ali, Julian Bond, Stokely Carmichael, Malcolm X - has been emasculated by the instruments of our white society: the press, legislatures, scholars, churches.

We submit that Adam Clayton Powell is guilty primarily of being too outspoken and arrogant an advocate of Black Americans. Unless white Americans face their own hostility and fear of Black self-assertion, the Powell incident may well be a prelude to an expanding repression of Black Americans and a corresponding disintegration of our democratic system.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH
2050 Second Avenue
New York, New York 10029

Return Requested

non-profit organization
U.S. POSTAGE
PAID
New York, N.Y.
Permit No. 10,119

Librarian
San Francisqo Theological Seminary
San Anselmo, Calif. 94960

LSBI 67 B8

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

March, 1967

PREFACE

This Newsletter is primarily about two programs: The Church of the Resurrection and Metro-North. On Metro-North we enclose an accurate and thorough article on this important community organization development. The Reporter magazine did a fine job in capturing the spirit that has enabled Metro-North to break such new ground. On Resurrection we have written a report that reflects the role the new building plays in our mission in East Harlem. The actual dedication was on Sunday, June 6, 1966. (A postcard request will bring you a copy of the sermon preached that morning by Randy Hammond.) Since then we have fought to be sure the building was a missionary structure, not an inversion of responsibility in the community.

IMPORTANT PUBLICATION NEWS

Letty Russell has written a book called Christian Education in Mission. It will be published this month by Westminster Press in paperback. This book is an attempt to take a new look at the meaning of Christian education in the context of new forms of church life. As the words "in mission" indicate, the book concerns itself with the development of a variety of structures or organizations of church life which would be more adequate expressions of participation in God's mission of reconciling the world to himself through Jesus Christ in the time in which we live. Its thesis is that Christian nurture takes place in the context of a witnessing community, and that, therefore, changes in the structures of community life will bring about changes in the way people are educated. Instead of trying to make the Christian education which we have in our churches at present more adequate, it looks at the need for reshaping the churches and then tries to show how this would effect the educational aspect of church life and aid the Christian community in this ministry. Copies of this book, at $2.00 per copy, are available at the East Harlem Protestant Parish office.

THE CHURCH OF THE RESURRECTION

On the Sunday we dedicated the new building for the Church of the Resurrection we sang the anthem, "We've Come This Far by Faith". That morning Randy Hammond pointed out in his sermon (copies are available) that a host of faithful people, stretching back to 1948, had made this day possible. There is no doubt that many elements of faith were involved and that faith had to stand up to a variety of trials. The decision of the Parish to build at all, the merger of the storefront congregations, the choice of location, the style and function of the building all involved decisions about which there was considerable anguish. Then for close to six years Resurrection lived in dispersion with a design none of us (except for the architect Victor Lundy) could fully visualize in operation.

We have been in the building a little over a year now, and though we have had to deal with a variety of unfinished construction details, a good many visitors and the continuing problems associated with a $40,000 mortgage, the shakedown period seems to be about over. More and more of our attention and energy now goes into the use of the building as a headquarters for our ministry.

Though the Parish decision to build was in large part a pragmatic answer to the inroads and rumors of urban renewal in our neighborhood, there would have been legitimate reason for troubled consciences if this new church building were our only investment of brick, mortar and design, particularly in a neighborhood desperately in need of good housing.

Last winter The Architectural Forum (Jan.-Feb. 1966) included a picture story on our new building titled, "Neighborhood Church as Focus for Renewal". While the title bears traces of poetic license, the fact is that Church of the Resurrection has played and will continue to play an important role in the rehabilitation of this neighborhood called "Metro-North". From the beginning members of Resurrection have been vitally involved in the creative work of the Metro-North Citizens' Committee. (The amazing story of this community group and the work of such Resurrection people as Pura Rodriguez, Millie Ryan and Norm Eddy is contained in the attached Reporter article.)

As part of the master renewal plan developed by the people of Metro-North, Resurrection, with the blessing of the Parish and the Metropolitan Association of the United Church of Christ, joined with St. Lucy's Catholic Church, Union Settlement and the Kate Maremont Foundation to form a non-profit housing corporation to rehabilitate tenements in this neighborhood. We discovered that under the 1963 federal housing legislation the Church has a unique opportunity and responsibility to implement community plans for better housing and at the same time to provide a legitimate alternative to public housing. Until such time as responsible private investors are willing and able to provide new or rehabilitated housing at reasonable rents, we feel we must continue to play this role.

At this writing other churches in East Harlem are exploring or moving ahead with similar plans. But because these ventures have no long-tested procedures to follow, because of the complex involvement with governmental agencies and the great need for expertise in the fields of real estate, law, architecture and construction, the churches of East Harlem are seeking to establish a housing office that can either provide the expertise or put us in touch with those who can.

In addition to our immediate interest in housing, Resurrection members continue to give leadership or to play important roles in a variety of Parish-based or community-based programs dealing with welfare, mental health, education and employment. Even our old storefronts have new ministries. The Metro-North Youth Corps operates out of our old 102nd Street storefront and the Metro-North Citizens' Committee has its headquarters in the 100th Street storefront.

During this first year in the building we have had a good many visitors, individuals and groups, who have come by to see the church and the Parish. But because of the Architectural Forum article, our visitors have also included many architects and architectural students. Two architects dropped by recently to see the building during a two-hour lay-over at Kennedy Airport. Then this past summer at its annual convention the American Institute of Architecture selected this building to receive an Award of Merit. Since the A.I.A. made only six such awards, and since the new CBS skyscraper and the Dulles Airport were included, we are quite impressed.

However, after we select out the hours we are giving to maintenance and guided tours, we have happily discovered that this building is very functional and very useful for our ministry. Essentially it is two rooms. The upper room is designed for worship and is reached by climbing a gentle ramp. The first floor room doubles as a dining room, meeting room or classroom. Here during this past year we have had everything from church school classes, release time programs and youth meetings to monthly rummage sales, physical examinations for 350 youngsters going for summer vacations to Friendly Town communities, dinners with families from New Canaan, Connecticut and Upper Montclair, New Jersey, community meetings on relocation problems, press conferences involving Senator Javits and Mayor Lindsay, exhibitions of East Harlem art and a pingpong exhibition featuring the U.S. and former U.S. champions.

The upper room, which because of its design is visible from the sidewalk, is equally versatile. Here we regularly celebrate the Good News and it is here also that our praise has taken the form of concert and poetic drama — both featuring community people. The rugged cross which is suspended at the apex of the room was constructed from beams out of an adjacent tenement that was demolished recently.

The original rendering of our new building, which many of you have seen in an earlier newsletter, shows the church nestled among old tenements. Until a few months ago, this was the way it was. A few months ago the buildings to the east of the church came down and now the buildings to the west are being razed. Soon even 324 East 102nd Street which housed our Church of the Redeemer and later Church of the Resurrection will be gone. By summer all the people on the block bounded by 101st Street and 102nd Street are scheduled to be relocated, mostly in local projects. Then a new low-income public housing project will be constructed around the church. The project is particularly significant because the design and facilities incorporate community priorities established by a Metro-North committee after many months of negotiation with the Housing Authority.

The future looks very promising, not just because of the plans for new and rehabilitated buildings in our community, but because there is a spirit of resurrection that is generating the renewal. We pray that the Church of the Resurrection will continue to grow in the Spirit and that we will continue to experience your concern and support.

Reprinted from THE REPORTER 660 Madison Avenue, New York, New York 10021

Metro North Moves Mountains

GEORGE R. METCALF

In 1959, the United States Commission on Civil Rights heard testimony that "East Harlem is a rent jungle . . . where ten and eleven human beings have been crowded into one room . . . where tenants are afraid to put their lights out at night for fear of rats. . . ." Decaying walls, sagging floors, garbage-strewn yards, broken windows, filthy hallways, littered sidewalks—all of these still characterize the area.

Before the Second World War, the upper East Side of Manhattan, now called East Harlem—a crowded, heterogeneous part of the city that stretches irregularly north from Ninety-sixth Street and west from the East River—was not in such a shambles. At that time most of it was divided into two sections known as Spanish Harlem and Italian Harlem because of the nationalities that predominated. But Irish, Jewish, and a goodly mixture of other European migrants as well as Negro families all lived there in comparative order, creating a milieu capable of producing both a La Guardia and a mafioso. The deterioration of the ensuing twenty-five years, according to William Kirk, a former Episcopal minister from Pennsylvania who has served as head of the Union Settlement House on East 104th Street for the past seventeen years, has been largely the result of a series of faulty judgments on the part of the banks and city officials. He ticks off the events that led to East Harlem's present dilapidation as easily as an ornithologist describes the plumage of his favorite bird.

First, Kirk says, because banks and loan companies had had considerable difficulty during the Depression in collecting interest and principal on their loans to East Harlem landlords, they closed off credit to them and left many in no position to take care of necessary repairs and services. The second blow to the neighborhood was the result of City Hall's reaction to the deterioration: a decision right after the war to isolate the area and to replace many of the tenements, not necessarily the worst, with low-income public housing. As the city planners should have foreseen, the bulldozers soon routed thousands of long-time residents from their homes and out of East Harlem altogether. By the time the new housing was completed, most of those who were too poor or not poor enough to qualify had settled in other parts of the city. In addition, a postwar increase in the dope traffic and a wave of addiction among teenagers afflicted East Harlem. The community's reputation sank further as it became notorious for the juvenile gangs that roamed its streets and fought with knives and guns.

Arrivals and Departures

One badly affected neighborhood was a section starting at 99th Street north of Metropolitan Hospital, a tenement and light-industrial area of about seven blocks. This neighborhood was the core of an area that

In 1955, William Harlan Hale described in The Reporter the appalling conditions and the work of some young ministers in an East Harlem district now known as Metro North. We reprint three excerpts to contrast the situation then and now.

"Manhattan's East 100th Street between First and Second Avenues, running under dank cliffs of . . . tenements peopled by Puerto Ricans and Negroes beside a gutter drift of garbage, broken bedsprings, and dead cats, boasts of no fewer than six churches. . . . The last round of census takers . . . reported that an unparalleled total of some four thousand human beings were living in its twenty-seven 'multiple dwellings'—a figure that did not include numbers of dope-ridden derelicts who huddle day and night around the bonfires of its vacant lots. . . ."

•

© 1966 by the Reporter Magazine Company

became known as Metro North because of the hospital close by. Before the war, perhaps twelve thousand people—of diverse origins but largely Italian—had lived in these seven blocks. But when Negro and Puerto Rican families with different customs and attitudes flooded in to fill nearby city-built housing projects, what stability that had remained after the first exodus was shaken further. Of the estimated less than nine thousand people who now live in the seven-block core area, at a rough guess some forty per cent are Puerto Rican, thirty per cent Negro, twenty per cent Italian, and only ten per cent "other."

Young couples who, despite the increasing dilapidation, intended to remain in the area soon began to realize that neighborhood schools were deteriorating rapidly as they filled up with children of the more culturally deprived newcomers. These young couples began to move out, and they were joined by residents of longer standing, the Italians in particular. When city planners announced that the blocks from 99th Street to 103rd Street east of Second Avenue had been designated for more public housing, Metro North landlords put aside their repair plans for good. They began renting their deteriorating properties to more and more Negro and Puerto Rican families who, during the years of the postwar housing shortage, were delighted simply to have a roof over their heads.

The district's landlords, indeed, have not had an easy time of it. One of their spokesmen, Israel Brod, who owned forty buildings ten years ago and has only a dozen now, says that politicians and social-welfare agencies have set up organizations to help tenants but that nothing has been done to relieve the precarious financial situation of East Harlem landlords. In addition, the city Welfare Department, which pays the bills for an increasing percentage of the East Harlem population, threatened under the Spiegel provision of 1962 to cut off rent to landlords who seriously violated the city Housing Code. Property owners often felt they were in the position of the biblical servant who discovered that "from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath." Once the housing shortage had eased up and tenants could find other places to live, there were many vacancies in Metro North tenements. Profit margins diminished to the point where some of the more fly-by-night landlords simply abandoned their properties.

But however hopeless the economic predicament of the landlord, the physical deprivation of the tenants was far worse. Profits can be forgone and buildings written off, but rats, fires, leaky roofs, and unheated rooms must be endured by the unlucky families who live with them. The tenants' situation became so desperate that in 1961 Mrs. Pura Rodriguez, a mother of seven who had lived in East Harlem since she arrived from Puerto Rico in the 1920's as a young woman, helped organize the tenants of five adjoining tenements to fight the owner for improvements. Known as the Teper buildings on 100th Street, these were considered by some to be the worst in the area. Soon tenants in other buildings began to demand better living conditions. Little by little the group of embattled tenants grew, and in December, 1963, it was established as the Metro North Citizens' Committee.

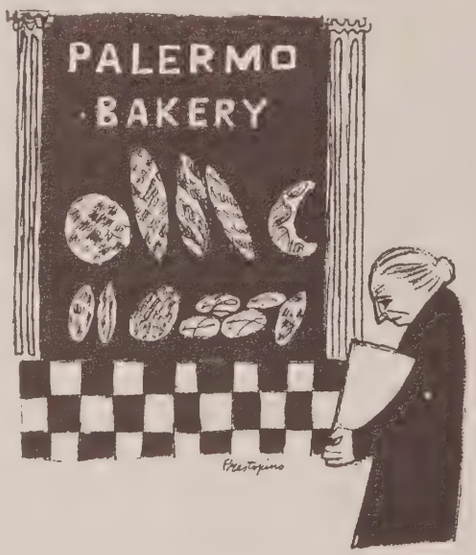
The tenants' efforts to organize were encouraged from the beginning by the East Harlem Protestant Parish and the Reverend Norman C. Eddy. Eddy, who graduated from Yale in 1942 and from Union Theological Seminary in 1951, has lived on 100th Street in Metro North since he joined the Group Ministry set up there by three other young graduates of the seminary not long after the war. The Group Ministry began as an experiment. It aimed to establish a church that would find new ways of reaching people who were not being reached by any other means. It called itself the East Harlem Protestant Parish.

'Where to Start'

The Citizens' Committee held its first meeting in the parish's store-front church on East 100th Street in December, 1963. Only twenty residents of Metro North showed up. Mrs. Mildred Ryan, who took notes and later became secretary of the Committee, is a Puerto Rican-descended housewife who had lived on 100th Street all her life and had apathetically accepted East Harlem's decay for herself and her four children. Mrs. Ryan's impression at that meeting was that "no one in the room knew where to start," and nothing in her minutes revealed the capacity for leadership for which she, among many others, has since become noted.

In the search for community leadership, weekly open meetings were held. Anyone in the neighborhood who came to voice a complaint about conditions in his building was urged and helped to take on the emotionally and physically exhausting job of organizing the dispirited tenants in the decaying buildings to help themselves. The Committee structure was purposely kept loose to involve as many residents as possible during this preparatory period. Membership in the Committee was open to anyone willing to contribute twenty-five cents a week or a dollar a month. Those who demonstrated leadership among the tenants in their own buildings automatically became members of a Workers and Organizers group that formed the backbone of the organization. But soon there was keen competition among members for elected Committee offices.



Those who attended the first meeting learned that the situation of some tenants in Metro North was worse than they had imagined. Before the meeting took place, Mrs. Addie Lewis, a strong-featured Negro housewife who had come to East Harlem from Savannah more than a decade before, had organized the tenants of her seriously neglected building to take their case to court. It developed that the owner of the structure had abandoned it rather than make the necessary repairs, so Mrs. Lewis persuaded her fellow tenants to pool their rentals in order to pay for its upkeep. Now it was learned that three other buildings in Metro North had been abandoned and the tenants were in desperate need. The Committee moved quickly to help them organize and follow Mrs. Lewis's example. It conducted a street funeral for the "dead" buildings to draw attention to their plight. Some three months later, with help from Committee members, the tenants forced the city to take their buildings into receivership and be responsible for their maintenance. That same winter of 1963-1964, the Committee's first, it succeeded in forcing out an utterly neglectful new owner of the Teper buildings who was not providing even rudimentary services.

A serious fire soon made the Committee aware that it must learn to find new apartments for families that had been burned out. By the time another fire left some thirty families homeless in February, the group was able to help relocate them. That summer the Committee succeeded in getting vacate orders on five hopelessly dilapidated buildings and relocating the families that remained in them. In the course of all this activity, the most involved members were learning, and teaching others as they went along, what laws they were up against, what rights they had, and what channels they must go through to attain their objectives.

Although Metro North's advisers share with Saul Alinsky the aim of organizing the underprivileged to help themselves, they differ from him in that, while they are prepared to fight City Hall, they prefer to work with it if possible. Moreover, unlike Alinsky, they stay on to work and live in the community.

FROM THE BEGINNING, the Committee, at Eddy's suggestion, laid down three principles for itself. The first of these was self-help. There was to be none of the self-pity that often permeates efforts to improve the lot of the dispossessed. In adherence to this, says Eddy, "We often had to ignore the real suffering of some tenants . . . who would not get together with their neighbors and work for common goals." He estimates that active involvement by five per cent of the community would be "tremendous"—but as Metro North has proved, even a smaller percentage could move mountains.

The Committee's second principle was a determination to remain financially independent. Outside contributions come in from time to time, and the New York City Mission Society, a 150-year-old Protestant group with a network of church and social work activities through the poorer neighborhoods, now pays Eddy's salary as a community coordinator, but the Committee itself raises about $120 a month to pay office rent, utility bills, and stationery. "We can fight our own battles," Eddy says, "and no one can tell us, 'No, you can't do that, or we will stop paying your bills.'" Pura Rodriguez, the Committee treasurer, knows how hard it is to raise this modest amount from poor people, but through the donations of somewhere between three hundred and three hundred and fifty contributing members, the coffers have never gone empty.

> ". . . In this environment not even the devoted labors of Catholics have been able to make a deep dent. Apart from recourse to Gospel ranters and faith healers, East Harlem is, in the language of ministers, an 'unchurched' area, a moral jungle in which (as a parish report puts it) 'the idols of the boys are the guys who own the big shiny cars—the numbers boys, the dope pushers, the professional pimps . . .'"

The Committee's final and perhaps most important principle is the development of leadership within the community. "The natural leaders of the ghettos," Eddy reports, "must be sought out, challenged to take part in planning for their neighborhood and the city, and trained and subsidized to do so." In the process of developing leadership, Eddy has seen his role change from that of the dominant leader to that of an adviser. His objective—and he has made steady progress toward it—is to be entirely replaced by the leaders who have emerged from within the community.

Getting Results

After only thirty-five months of existence, the Committee's contributions have been significant. Twenty-one uninhabitable buildings in Metro North have been vacated, and the tenants moved to new locations; nine buildings have been demolished and eleven others refurbished by landlords under the combined threat of private and public action. Four more were forced into receivership when landlords refused to make necessary repairs; they were taken over by the city and put into liveable condition, with the cost of all repairs becoming a lien on the owner's property. Now the committee is pointing toward the demolition by the city of two vacant firetraps. The remaining ninety-three of the tenement structures in Metro North are much improved over what they were a year ago, although many would be considered deplorable in other neighborhoods.

Last spring a tenant-relocation subcommittee under the leadership of Mildred Ryan formulated plans for the relocation of some seven hundred families in buildings that will be rehabilitated or torn down within the next eighteen months and submitted them to the New York City Summer Anti-Poverty Program. With the approval of its plans in July, an $8,600 program to relocate families from nine buildings was undertaken under the direction of Edwin Suarez and his volunteer staff—all leaders from the community who had been trained by the Department of Relocation to carry out their complex task without professional help. Only a few years ago the twenty-six-year-old Suarez was a member of the Dragons, one of the many bands of young toughs in East Harlem. Now he draws a small salary from the Metro North Relocation Program, which was launched with the ten-week summer anti-poverty grant, and is now subsisting on a small and nearly depleted private grant. He is working night and day in collaboration with the city's Department of Relocation. Members of the Metro North Citizens' Committee more and more are communicating directly with officials there and in the Office of Coordinator of Housing and Development without the intervention of Norman Eddy. Another group, known as the Parks and Recreation Committee, headed by the Citizens' Committee's present chairman, twenty-six-year old Bob Montesi, has persuaded Parks Commissioner Thomas Hoving to install a vest-pocket park and to plan a network of play areas in Metro North.

AT THE SAME TIME that it was working to improve the tenants' lot, the Citizens' Committee found itself allied with other, older forces in the community that had been working for the improvement of the area. Nearby, for instance, was Union Settlement and William Kirk, who had devoted years of effort to bring together older Italians and younger Puerto Rican and Negro leaders for the common purpose of saving the area from collapse. In collaboration with Peter D'Arpa, owner of a liquor store and an Italian-born community leader of forty years' standing, Kirk contributed enormously to the establishment in 1962 of an organization of church leaders, businessmen, landlords, representatives of all other Metro North organizations called the Metro North Association. Since its formation, the Citizens' Committee has also participated. The association, under the chairmanship of Peter D'Arpa and formed as it was of groups with a variety of interests and members who did not necessarily live in the area, had long-range and diverse goals for bettering the community and stimulating its economy. But the association was aiming for nothing less than an entirely rebuilt neighborhood. To accomplish that job, it realized that it needed a first-rate architect, a co-operative City Hall, and a concerned investor.

It knew what architect it wanted: William Conklin of Whittlesey, Conklin & Rossant, Nebraska-born and Harvard educated, whose vision of an ideal middle-class community is exemplified in the firm's plans for the new town now being built in Reston, Virginia. Having previously worked on public housing for the elderly just a few blocks from the Metro North core area, Conklin knew East Harlem and possessed a profound belief in community participation in all planning. He hoped to make Metro North a model of urban planning for a diversity of groups, but especially for those with small incomes. A survey conducted in five Metro North buildings showed that workers' earnings averaged $60 a week. Many families are on welfare; many other Metro North residents are old people living alone on Social Security.

After months of discussion and informal conversation with all elements of the community, the architects presented a plan that called for more than five hundred rehabilitated units, a public housing development of 275 apartments in the center of Metro North, 470 new units to be built and operated by community institutions, a small park bordered by shops, and a new public elementary school. After full discussion, the Metro North Association adopted this plan.

Opening Doors

The second necessity if the area was to be rehabilitated—achieving rapport with City Hall—was more difficult to establish, and here the association was helped by the Citizens' Committee. In April, 1964, a street rally sponsored by the city Department of Health to arouse tenant interest in getting rid of rats was taken over by members of the newly formed Committee. They staged a demonstration to call attention to the deplorable conditions in the neighborhood. They also enlisted the help of Councilman Carlos Rios in getting a hearing for representatives of the Citizens' Committee and the association with Mayor Robert F. Wagner. By the end of the conference, which took place that June, Mayor Wagner had accepted Metro North's plan in principle and, more important, had recognized the Metro North Association as the area spokesman. Thereafter, as one member put it, "the doors to City Hall swung open." That September the mayor's Housing Executive Committee visited Metro North to explore in detail the various components of the plan. All agreed that rehabilitation of the five privately owned Teper buildings should be the first step in executing the plan drawn by Conklin and the Committee, and the city offered full support for their complete renovation.

In order to help the program, however, the city's Rent and Rehabilitation Administration had to bridge the gap between officialdom and the community, to substitute understanding for suspicion. The task was not easy. A worker for RRA recalls that he felt like an intruder his first few weeks in Metro North. The people felt that the "agency, like many other groups in the past, had come to study and exploit the area. There was great hostility and resentment."

The tide of suspicion and doubt was turned by evidence that the city's much-needed help would not be imposed. The beginning of the end of the estrangement came when members of the Citizens' Committee from the Teper buildings bypassed their director, Norman Eddy, and negotiated directly with Hortense Gabel, RRA head under the Wagner régime. The step delighted Eddy, who saw it as proof of the growing self-reliance of the emerging community leadership. The Committee members came to an agreement with Mrs. Gabel that RRA would hire most staff members from the neighborhood to conduct a survey of housing conditions, run an adult employment program, and maintain a local RRA office, and that residents would participate in all policymaking decisions. They also agreed that while RRA would decide on the technical competence of its professional staff working in the neighborhood, Metro North would screen prospective staff members to see if they could work amicably with the neighborhood people.

ALTHOUGH the association had its plans drawn up and had established a working relationship with the city administrators, it still lacked financial backing. William Kirk of Union Settlement discussed the progress of Metro North and the need for funds with which to acquire the Teper property with Jane Jacobs, a renowned critic of urban renewal and an old friend of Kirk's. At her suggestion, he applied to the Kate Maremont Foundation, a Chicago organization that had bought up several properties in that city for rehabilitation. The foundation agreed to purchase the Teper buildings in the fall of 1964. To work out the agreements with the Federal and state agencies on design, financing, and rental subsidies, it sent along its executive vice president, Victor de Grazia, a man of great force and persuasiveness.

Under de Grazia's guidance, three local groups, together with Maremont, in 1965 formed the Metro North Housing Society, a nonprofit corporation that eventually will own and operate the Teper buildings and other rehabilitated and new units. The co-owners from within the community will be Union Settlement, headed by William Kirk; St. Lucy's Roman Catholic Church, led by Monsignor Louis A. Martorella, an active member of the Metro North Association; and the newly built Church of the Resurrection, an affiliate of the East Harlem Protestant Parish, whose pastor is the Reverend Charles Farrell. To get money for the renovation, de Grazia applied to the Federal Housing Administration, which can grant loans of up to one hundred per cent of the construction cost at below-market interest rates, using funds from the Federal National Mortgage Association. Acceptance of the request is thought to mark the first time that a program initiated, planned, and sponsored by a community has been accepted for below-market, long-term, nonprofit rehabilitation of tenement buildings.

De Grazia had to face the hard fact that tenants who could afford only $40 a month in rent would need subsidies to remain in the refurbished apartments. Obviously, nothing would be gained if the apartments were restored only to have tenants forced to find cheaper quarters elsewhere. The solution to this obstacle, which only a few years ago would have seemed impenetrable, was fortunately not difficult. Through the efforts of Administrator Gabel, the RRA obtained a two-year grant for experimental rent subsidies from the Federal Housing and Urban Development Department under provisions of the Federal housing act of 1965.

Without Maremont, the Metro North Housing Society, and RRA, nothing could have been accomplished. Yet the unique factor in this rehabilitation experiment has been the work of the tenants themselves. Mrs. Bernice Archie, a Negro housewife and a long-time resident of the Teper buildings who was the first elected chairman of the Citizens' Committee, has worked as the coordinator of the Teper buildings for two and a half years, usually as a volunteer, never with more than a modest stipend. The tenants initiated the struggle to upgrade the buildings before the Committee existed. The leaders among them have made this rehabilitation possible because they insisted upon being heard and because they cared for both their neighbors and their neighborhood.

WHEN the Teper construction is completed in another year or so (just when depends on the duration of a plumbers' strike that is currently delaying occupancy of one building), tenants will hardly recognize their new surroundings. The renovated buildings will contain new heating plants, electrical wiring, and roofs; new walls, ceilings, floors, and windows; all of the 135 apartments in the six-story walkups will contain new bathrooms, modern kitchens, and closets where none existed before; four-bedroom apartments will replace many of the standard two; tenants will enjoy clean tiling and fresh paint in hallways that are now unbelievably battered and grimy.

A second reconstruction program in Metro North was undertaken by the U.S. Gypsum Company as a commercial experiment in August, 1965. The company wanted to put to the test of actual use some new building materials and construction techniques it had developed and believed would be applicable to urban renewal projects. When the work is finished sometime in 1967, 116 additional apartments in six tenements will be completely rehabilitated and transferred to the Metro North Housing Society. The company selected Metro North primarily on the advice of the city's Rent and Rehabilitation Administration. In the beginning members of the company had some skepticism about working with a tenants' organization in such a "difficult" community as East Harlem, but they soon discovered that the Metro North Citizens' Committee was a superb agent for developing community leadership. A Negro tenant named Zion Paige, four generations of whose family live in Metro North, has acted voluntarily as the co-ordinator of the buildings. He works nights for the Department of Sanitation and has given his mornings for almost two years to work with tenants on the intricate human problems of relocation. Neither the RRA nor U.S. Gypsum could duplicate his unpaid work and that of his volunteer building captains with the best of professional help. A mark of the success of the experiment is the fact that U.S. Gypsum has just acquired six more buildings in Metro North for rehabilitation and eventual take-over by the Housing Society.

FROM THE OUTSIDE, Metro North is still not much to look at. The most significant thing that has happened in the last three years has come from the inside—the mobilization of the inner resources of a small but dedicated group of tenement dwellers who have learned to help themselves and their neighbors. It is an impressive accomplishment.

Through the co-operative efforts of a variety of individuals, groups, and agencies, a deprived society has shown itself capable of developing its own leaders. The reluctance of the poor to move forward in the face of sensitive pride, apathy, shyness, and language difficulty has gradually melted. One has only to visit Metro North and to meet Pura Rodriguez, Mildred Ryan, Zion Paige, Bob Montesi, Edwin Suarez, Bernice Archie, Addie Lewis, and many others who are energetically working for the improvement of their neighborhood to realize what their efforts have meant in terms of pride in themselves and in their achievements. They now feel a satisfying certainty that because of what they are doing, seven rotting blocks in East Harlem will be made a fine place to live for several thousands of their neighbors.

The preparations for rehabilitating Metro North have roughly coincided with the birth of the anti-poverty program, but little anti-poverty money has come into the community, which has been forced to develop its own patterns. Al-

> ". . . What was the point of simply preaching the goodness of God the Father Almighty in East Harlem? . . . you had to start at the beginning and produce not a denomination but an actual, functioning, all-embracing church—a church that, unlike the polite or escapist sects, would move in and fight for these broken people's physical needs, beginning with the plumbing, and then minister with all humility to their souls . . ."

though each community presents special problems, Norman Eddy believes that these patterns may be widely applicable in poverty areas throughout the country: "Specifically, Metro North has demonstrated that a judicious mixture of money for housing and money for human renewal can bring about new neighborhoods, physically and morally."

According to Mayor Lindsay, New York will need $50 billion in the next decade to rebuild its most neglected areas. Because of the scale of the problem, and the fact that New York receives annually from Washington only a small percentage of what he calls necessary, the mayor has said that renewal funds will be concentrated on "the three hard-core ghetto areas that are the shame of the city"—Harlem and East Harlem, Bedford Stuyvesant, and the South Bronx. Whether the communities themselves will have a real hand in their own rehabilitation is not yet clear, however. For those who work and live in East Harlem, the most immediate question is whether the $31-million urban renewal scheduled above Metro North along the East River will be planned by the people of the area or imposed from above. Elsewhere in East Harlem, Protestant and Catholic churches in four small neighborhoods are organizing their people to prepare and execute plans for rehabilitation guided by local residents. They hope that they will be given the chance to do so.

Taking or Partaking?

The statements by Mayor Lindsay and others, as well as the emphasis placed by the administration on the Federal Demonstration Cities program, are but a few of the indicators pointing to a vast and imminent effort at urban rehabilitation. Eddy and his friends in Metro North would welcome much-needed financial aid for their neglected neighborhood. But they are apprehensive about the way it may be offered. If it goes for more bulldozers, more master plans devised from on high, more huge housing projects that obliterate the face and soul of a community—then, they believe, nothing will have been done for the reclamation of the people who live there. If, on the other hand, the people are allowed to decide what uses the aid shall be put to in their communities, the humanizing values of neighborhoods will be preserved in big cities with the added benefit that personal involvement will give confidence and competence to thousands who have never had it before.

Government, according to Eddy, "should properly take the role of co-ordinator, of strategist, of stimulator, and of auditor of the books, but without the exclusive right to determine how the money will be spent, as long as it is spent responsibly."

More important for the nation, if East Harlem, with its complex social patterns, can demonstrate that its people can prepare and execute plans in co-operation with government and private groups, it will provide convincing evidence that the urban poor have something to contribute to democracy. Certainly they will never fully partake in it if others make the decisions for them.

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

January, 1967

A NEW COMMUNITY FOR THE WORLD

Something exciting is happening! The barriers of 450 years are dissolving between those traditional antagonists of the West - Protestant and Roman Catholic. Pope John and Vatican II were a sign of the times and unquestionably accelerated what was happening at grass roots levels across the world. We rejoice in the fact that Christians have moved beyond the sterile debates of centuries which seemed to bog down in dogmatism, self justification, and ideological rigidity. Instead there seems to be a rediscovery that the churches' mandate is for the world, and the common acceptance of an invitation from the Spirit of our Lord to join Him in those situations where order is being molded from chaos, where human dignity is being restored, where reconciliation of men to each other is being accomplished, where new communities of concern are taking shape.

In East Harlem these signs of the times are all around us. Lyle Young and David Kirk, priests of the Eastern Churches united to Rome, have joined our staff and have just opened a house of reconciliation and hospitality called Emmaus House on East 116th Street. St. Lucy's Roman Catholic Church on 104th Street has joined with our own Church of the Resurrection, Union Settlement, and the Kate Maremount Foundation in Chicago to form a non-profit housing corporation which will be responsible for rehabilitated tenements in our neighborhood. The cooperating churches of East Harlem, a Protestant group, have met with Roman Catholic churches to form a housing corporation which will cover all of East Harlem. The human rights revolution has brought together men and women from many areas of this city who, struggling in a common task, are discovering a witnessing community with its demand that we rethink doctrine and remake structures which have been the signs of separation so that they may rather be the bonds of our unity. Two retreats in the last six months have brought together Christians of both traditions to reflect upon what we are called to be and where we are called to serve. Our Advent 1966 Bible Study of the Gospel of John was led on a regular basis by Myles Bourke, former professor of New Testament at the Archdiocesan Seminary, and the new pastor at Corpus Christi Church on the West Side. We are in the process of developing our farm in Putnam County, Parish Acres, into a metropolitan center for ecumenical dialogue.

This Newsletter discusses only two of the above developments: Emmaus House and the Center for Ecumenical Dialogue. The former is an established fact; the latter, a profound hope. Both, we feel, are signs of the times and perhaps of the future.

EMMAUS HOUSE

The idea of Emmaus House really began about 1959. David Kirk had a house of hospitality, a four-room apartment where some ten people ate, slept and found friendship. He had been drawn to this way of life by the Catholic Worker, which had not only called for social revolution but also cared for the victims of the present social order. He found himself very much a part of those "on the way" and the place was full of saints and seekers, the disturbed and the suffering.

But the desire to be a priest within this kind of "community of bearing one another's burdens" became stronger and stronger. Eventually, he went to Rome to study for the priesthood according to the Melkite rite, to which he had been drawn shortly after his conversion in 1956, because of its seemingly open and biblical Christian expression.

Two events occurred which added to the vision. First, the Vatican Council opened the Church inside out and there were no "off limits" zones for discussion. What was formerly voiced only by small radical groups like the Catholic Worker was now heard on the rooftops of the whole Church. Second, Lyle Young, a former missionary from New Guinea, who had a similar background and who had worked among the poor and "second-class" citizens of that country, joined with him. In the words of Peter Maurin, "one plus one is two, and two is revolution".

During those seminary years there was much talk and planning and much encouragement too, 'till at last the moment came to put the whole idea to the Bishop. He said, "Yes, go ahead." The next two years, after leaving the Beda College in Rome, were hard, full of disappointment, misunderstandings, opposition, even suspicion, but along with all that went support and friendship given by many people. The East Harlem Protestant Parish throughout the whole of this period fully understood what was envisaged and were mainly the ones who made us persevere through the most difficult times. Now David and Lyle are on the staff of the Parish, an' Emmaus House has begun in an old brownstone on 116th Street in Harlem.

The leaflet called LOVE, enclosed with the newsletter, sketches what Emmaus House hopes to become and to do. The House has been operating for only a little over a month, but already much has happened.

Members of the staff have been taking their part in important movements and issues of our times. Bob Lowe, an associate member, was elected to the People's Board of Education which is trying to ensure the hearing of the voice of the people in the education of the children of this city. Cathy Mahon has been asked to develop plans for certain areas in her field - education in the city. She has been asked to share in Church T.V. programs on education as well as to lecture at Fordham. Rose Gardella is connected with Pax Romama, an international students' organization.

Reconciliation knows no bounds, so David and Richard Mann, another priest on the staff, have participated in the Peace Movement. David goes to trial this month for his protest and demonstration against the bombing of the civilian population in Hanoi.

Living with us just now while he prepares a book is Shelby Gipson, a former co-worker of Stokeley Carmichael in SNCC.

Dozens of people have been in to share in the several conferences which have taken place. Others have come to visit, for meals, for a bed. Contacts with those forming communities of various kinds have been made. For instance, several young people from Washington were here to compare notes and ideas which revolve around the main theme of reconciliation and hospitality.

It is good how already Emmaus House can welcome those who work among the poor and who are poor themselves and those who live on Park Avenue; those who are already committed fully to trying to shape new patterns of living and those who as yet know nothing but the established mode of things.

One of our members, originally from South America, who has done remarkable work among Latin-American students living in this city, plans to begin what she calls a School for Living, patterned on Scandanavian People's Universities. Emmaus House hopes to help in the staffing of such a venture here in Harlem. At present we are looking for a store-front or a loft in the area where such work can be done.

Several friends, married and single, have begun to look for apartments or even houses up near our house in order to be more readily able to share in what is beginning to happen here and to make available rooms in their homes which would be used in the extension of the work of hospitality. Already it is something of a problem trying to respond to the needs of all the people who come our way.

We hope it is not being too self-consciously aware of ourselves to think that this little beginning at Emmaus House has something to do with the re-formation of the Church. It is true that many of the new forms of Christian life and witness have only tenuous connections with the present congregational structure, and the same could be said of us though we are fully en rapport with our own bishop and have his approval and encouragement. As Colin Williams says, we try, along with the East Harlem Parish and many other groups taking shape around the country, "to see the New Testament as witnessing to a Church which takes form in the world in response to the structures of the world's needs". These needs are very much apparent all around us here in this city, so marvelous and so frightful, in which we live. We hope we will be able to answer our fellow men when they talk to us.

A METROPOLITAN CENTER FOR ECUMENICAL DIALOGUE

The East Harlem Protestant Parish owns a retreat center in Putnam County called Parish Acres. Over the years this center has been used as a place for breaking down barriers between people of differing races and social groups. A new proposal builds on our experience in the ways in which such a retreat center can contribute to reconciliation and mutual understanding. We propose specifically that this center be used for furthering ecumenical dialogue across the metropolitan area, as men and women struggle to join in God's mission of making the city a more truly human community.

*****

We believe there is a unique opportunity for the development of a center for dialogue in the New York metropolitan area. This opportunity emerges from two signs which are apparent in New York and across the world. The first is the social crisis revolving around racial and poverty problems. Because much is being done to alleviate this crisis there is an opportunity to work with other organizations to provide a retreat center which specializes in these issues. A center for dialogue would be nearly useless apart from programs in the metropolitan area with which it could relate at points of action, continued training and in the sharing of resources. Such related programs are sponsored by MUST (Metropolitan Urban Service Training Facility) and by other social programs and agencies in the city. At a time of increasing misunderstanding and fear concerning civil rights, anti-poverty and peace efforts, a program designed to bring together people on neutral ground to try to understand one another as human beings has a possibility of contributing to a free and creative society.

The second sign of our opportunity arises from an ecumenical reapprochement signaled by Vatican II. Catholic institutions as well as individuals have a new openness to the possibilities of ecumenical cooperation. This is symbolized by many new cooperative patterns: emerging relationships between Union Seminary and Fordham University; between local churches in non-profit housing corporations; an ecumenical dialogue program initiated by the theological faculty of St. John's University. The work of Dr.J.C. Hoekendijk at Union Seminary in the development of ecumenical cooperation provides a resource for ideas and direction as well as opportunities for joint program. MUST will also contribute to this area, as it provides training programs which serve Catholics, Jews and secular groups as well as Protestants. Emmaus House also provides opportunities as well as resources and contacts within the Catholic community.

Because of the signs of opportunity reflected in the social and ecumenical climate of the metropolis, we believe that there is a need for a retreat center with the history, the availability and moderate cost provided by Parish Acres. Parish Acres is readily available to the city. It is an informal retreat center with ample facilities for groups to come together at minimum expense. It has traditions of freedom and non-denominational participation which provide a solid base for the kind of center envisioned. More importantly, Parish Acres is neutral ground for both inner city and suburban groups, as well as Protestant, Catholic and Jew. Its inexpensive, informal facilities are well suited to help low income groups feel at home. Its ecumenical neutrality is, of course, particularly important. Roman Catholic retreat centers are primarily monasteries, and while providing excellence for certain types of retreats, they are not particularly structures for new forms of exchange. Protestant centers are sponsored mainly by one denomination and reflect to a great degree the program priorities of that denomination. A center such as the one we are proposing needs to be free to develop new forms of program and meeting style which will themselves participate in breaking down the barriers among men.

Because of the tradition, resources and experience of the Parish, we feel that we are in a unique position to nurture such a center of dialogue. From the very beginning the EHPP has been committed to new forms of ecumenical ministry which involved Christians from a wide variety of backgrounds. At present, the two Eastern Rite Catholic priests working with us as part of our wider ministry enable us to be a catalytic agent in bringing together groups from an even wider ecumenical spectrum. The interracial nature of the Parish is such that it gives us resources and experience in ways of breaking down barriers between racial and class divisions. Our relationships with suburban churches of the metropolitan area over the last 18 years provide a resource for continued development of understanding across the barriers of city and suburb as we struggle to understand our common citizenship and responsibility in metropolis. Our relationships over the years with other centers of dialogue such as Parishfield, Packard Manse, and evangelical academies in Europe, as well as with Union Seminary, and MUST provide a wide basis of shared experience with other institutions concerned with education, training, and dialogue. Our experimental programs in metropolitan mission under the leadership of Jim Crawford over the last two years provide clues concerning possible uses of Parish Acres in this new form of ministry. Lastly, our concern for the development of new forms of church life which enable the church to serve the world by joining in God's action there has taught us the need for risk and for openness to the future. Our proposal involves all who participate in risk - the risk of failure and financial loss - the risk of a dream which may not be realistic about the openness of church institutions to new forms of ministry. However, we would like to enlist the concrete aid of others willing to take this risk and to join with us in turning the talk of ecumenical unity, the talk of metropolitan unity into one small sign of God's action of reconciliation which has made all men one.

* * * * * * * * * * *

Occasionally even such a prestigious publication as the Wall Street Journal engages in sloppy reporting. A serious inaccuracy in the Christmas feature called "Christmas 1966" has created a severe public relations problem for the Parish. The following is from a letter to the editor written from the Parish to correct this unfortunate misrepresentation:

"The East Harlem Protestant Parish receives with appreciation a number of donations of white gifts from churches in this metropolitan area. They are uniformly of good quality and come with the sincere desire to be of help in our ministry. The basic problem is in the matter of how we can best distribute them. A good many years ago we concluded that the best plan was to have a large toy sale run by the men of the Parish in each of our churches. The gifts are unwrapped, placed on large tables, and then offered for sale at a very modest cost to the responsible parents of neighborhood children. In this way parents are able to take responsibility for providing gifts for their own children and retain as much human dignity as poverty makes possible. The Parish has never held a raffle and does not believe in this method of fund raising. The proceeds of the toy sale are used for children's Christmas parties."

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

October, 1966

BY WAY OF INTRODUCTION.....

No problem is more severe in inner city areas than that of public education. Failure to prepare children for responsible citizenship inevitably perpetuates the cycle of poverty and discrimination many decades into the future. In the Parish, we have been drawn in many ways into the struggle to give our children the future that God intends for them. We have reported in earlier papers about our education program in the churches. Here we would like to report on one important remedial effort, bringing you up to date on the vitality of the Reading Program which continues to break new ground in repairing some of the damage suffered by children in public schools. But even as the Parish developed such a program, we knew full well that it had to be balanced with a direct struggle to provide through the schools the education that children deserve. Social welfare must be complemented by the fight for social justice. Thus we use this NEWSLETTER to bring you up to date on how this community, from the inside, views the bitter struggle over Intermediate School 201, a story that has been much in the newspapers and mass media for the past six weeks. The view from the inside little resembles the widespread analysis by the news media.

BACKGROUND: PUBLIC EDUCATION IN THE GHETTO

Recent front page news stories have headlined the statistics that 68% of Negro young men failed the Selective Service mental fitness test, along with only 18% of the white inductees. This test measures basic communicative skills, and graphically illustrates the crisis in public education for black Americans. In New York City 75% of Negro male teenagers drop out of high school, unfit in most cases to serve even as cannon fodder.

Dr. Kenneth Clark has asserted that the public education system is guilty of willful criminal negligence toward Negro children. In the Harlem-East Harlem community, 87% of our children are two or more years below grade level by the seventh grade. We wonder if even a single child is achieving at his actual potential. A whole series of programs, re-zoning schemes, reorganization plans, and fancy slogans about "quality integrated education" have not reversed the downward spiral of student performance in ghetto schools. Indeed, achievement levels have dropped during the very period when special programs have proliferated.

The reasons for the failure of public education in the ghetto are complex. A preponderance of inexperienced, inadequately trained, middle class, predominantly white teachers and staff are a major handicap. Principals rule each school like a small kingdom. Staff in the school are not accountable to the community for the performance of their students. In this atmosphere, those children who can meet traditional expectations do gain some proficiency in fundamental skills. But even they are likely to acquire the sense of inferiority and lack of personal worth that characterize staff attitudes toward Negro and Puerto Rican students. The "average" student is screened out by the educational process and leaves school before completing high school.

In short, public education in the ghetto is a socially pathological situation where Black and Puerto Rican youngsters are the victims of the indifference and prejudice of the dominant white society.

THE PARISH READING PROGRAM: ONE RESPONSE TO THE FAILURE OF PUBLIC EDUCATION

"What a dangerous activity reading is; teaching is. All this plastering on of foreign stuff. Why plaster on at all when there's so much inside already? So much locked in? If only I could get it out and use it as working material. And not draw it out either. If I had a light enough touch it would just come out under its own volcanic power." (Teacher by Sylvia Ashton-Warner)

Teachers, all of us, perhaps from the very fear of the "volcanic power", are guilty of "plastering on of foreign stuff", of imposing our reality, our view of the world onto the child. We are, all of us, guilty of planting these children in foreign soil and somehow expecting them to flourish. If they do not flourish, we say the seed is faulty. This is particularly true of the public school teacher in the ghetto school.

The Reading Program, however, has opted to perch itself on the very edge of the volcano. We have opted to start with the child himself, with his world. We feel that together tutor and student working on a one-to-one basis, must explore reality as the child knows it first, so that he can come to understand himself. Then we can go on to explore the world about him, even to showing him how he can be an instrument of change in this world. For this, we feel, is the very essence of education. This has been done at the same time basic reading skills and love of reading and basic arithmetic facts have been taught.

First of all, we have tried to keep within the world of the child before taking him on an Odyssey into the unknown world. This summer, we had seven neighborhood teenagers whose method of teaching, though not "professional", smacked of the stuff of life for their young pupils. One teenager used Claud Brown's Manchild in the Promised Land as his "primer". The reading was difficult for the boys, but the eagerness with which they worked indicated an interest which no other book had evoked before. They were overcome that a Negro had written a book about their lives--a book that was moreover a best-seller. Their interest in the book made it easy for the tutor to work on vocatulary, phonics, writing, debating, drama. They chose new vocabulary words they wanted to learn. They wrote letters to Claud Brown and their own autobiographies. One youngster said, "If Claud Brown, a boy like us, did it, so can I." They enacted being picked up by the police. They brought in a former addict to talk to them about drugs and addiction. The word was made flesh in a very real way to them. Reading had something to do with life! They wanted more books like Manchild. They read parts of The Autobiography of Malcolm X, Baldwin's Go Tell It on the Mountain and Sammy Davis Jr.'s Yes, I Can.

Even the method of teaching sprang from being sensitive to the community. One of the teenage tutors, frustrated with the usual approach of teaching via drilling, wrote Rock 'n Roll songs using new vocabulary words. Another taught addition and subtraction by shooting dice with her student. They added long columns of figures and then subtracted them to see which of them had won and by how much.

What happened in these three examples? First of all, children usually apathetic in school were wholeheartedly engaged in the learning process because, in essence, it was springing from them. They were engaged because the material was not alien to their world. Even if it were (as in the case of the new vocabulary words) the method was so appealing to them that they were seduced into learning. They saw that reading had something to do with life! It made sense to them! Toward the end of the summer, some of the children were ready to move on into the world outside their own immediate world. They were eager to read books--any books. With teenagers from the community whose knowledge of the community enabled them to create imaginative methods of teaching and with materials geared to the interest of the children, reading had become a part of their lives, not an irrelevant skill imposed from above.

What will happen this winter as 135 noisy youngsters come into the "liberry" of the Parish building? Who knows? I say this in all seriousness, for who really knows what will spring from all of these volcanoes, these untapped natural resources of our community? Already in September the children had begun knocking on the door of the library asking when the program would begin. Their eagerness is crowding in on us and exciting us more than any lecture in a teachers college. A neighborhood teenager with a guitar and energy and love to spare is planning a drama club with an experienced adult. Several mothers from the community are busy planning a really creative library period with a story hour, a record corner and a Bookworm Club (for every book read you get another link to the worm. We expect a wall crawling with worms.). One mother, who taught in the summer program, learned so much about the teaching of reading and math that she wants to share it with other mothers in a Mothers Club. This year, by demand of the teenagers, we will have two study halls instead of one. Around the library we talk ambitiously of publishing a weekly newspaper and an anthology of stories, poems and compositions written by the children themselves. We beg the office staff for more space while they ruefully shake their heads saying, "You've already taken over all three floors of the building!" One hundred tutors from the suburbs and city are impatient to begin.

However, we view our program's "success" with mixed feelings. Somehow, the openness to the children, the taking seriously of their background and experience that has enabled a group of community and volunteer non-professionals to create a learning situation in which children come alive and make remarkable progress must be translated into the Public School system itself. We are only too aware that our program exists because our society is failing to provide the basic right of a decent education for the children of this community.

I.S. 201: SYMBOL OF THE STRUGGLE FOR JUSTICE IN URBAN EDUCATION

The controversy raging around I.S. 201 has required the attention and concern of many people in the area of the Parish. What follows is an effort made by several of them to piece together the story of what is involved in the controversy as seen by the community itself. The attempt is made to be as simply factual as possible.

As far back as 1958, when the Board of Education released plans for a new Junior High School to relieve overcrowding in Harlem-East Harlem, Public School 201 was a center of controversy. Members of the Harlem communities insisted that it be built in a "fringe" area so that it would draw an integrated student body. When its site was finally selected in 1962 on Madison Avenue and 127th Street, bordering Harlem and East Harlem, the Board maintained that its proximity to major transportation arteries would assure integration. At that time, the community drew up a list of demands to assure that the school would provide quality education. Foremost among these were demands for an integrated student body and a Negro male as principal to provide a positive image for the predominantly Negro student body.

In the fall of 1965, as 201 neared completion, the NYC Board of Education announced its long-awaited comprehensive plans for wide-spread desegregation of the school system. The heart of this plan was the reorganization of the system from a 6-3-3 grouping (six years of elementary school; 3 junior high; and 3 high school) to a 4-4-4 one. Children would attend neighborhood schools (in most cases, segregated) through the 4th grade, but then attend 5th grade through 8th in "Intermediate" schools which would have broad zoning patterns to assure an integrated student body. 201 was designated as one of the first three pilot Intermediate Schools in the city.

Parents and community representatives began to press the Board about the program for 201 and the composition of its student body. After numerous meetings with Board and city officials, they were told that the student body would be integrated 50-50: 50% Negro and 50% Puerto Rican. The "special" program would include music, languages, and typing. Meanwhile, the school, a windowless, air-conditioned brick structure rising in the shadow of the New York Central railroad tracks, was scheduled to open on April 1, 1966.

As April approached, the community was determined that the school would not open until a detailed program of instruction was presented and that the Board of Education fulfilled its commitment to integrate the school. Since over-crowded white Junior High Schools were 15 minutes travel time from I.S. 201 over the Triborough Bridge in Queens, the compulsory zoning of the school for integration seemed both feasible and desirable. To reinforce their demands, parents boycotted an elementary feeder school, sat-in at the office of the District Superintendent, and convinced the Board of Education to postpone the opening of the school. More meetings and more direct action again prompted the Board to suspend plans for a summer school program at the end of June.

In June the Board again promised the community that 201 would be integrated with at least 20% white students in the school. It soon became apparent, however, that the Board of Education hoped to get these white students by voluntary transfer. Despite a major effort by the Board's

Office of Public Relations, only 9 white students applied. The Board reported that it would be impossible to integrate the school. Dr. Garrison, Chairman of the Board of Education, stated that perhaps white students would attend after the school had "proven" itself. The community replied that Negro and Puerto Rican children would not attend until the school had "proven" itself.

During July and early August members of the Harlem communities met with the Superintendent of Schools. Mayor Lindsay, and the U.S. Commissioner of Education Howe to attempt to force the Board to fulfill its commitment to integrate I.S. 201. Finally, three weeks before school was to begin, they presented an ultimatum to the Board: if the Board of Education could not integrate the student body, the community wanted a major role in the operation of this segregated school. The parents in the Harlem communities were determined that no more new schools were going to operate in the same old patterns which were destroying the lives of their children.

The opening of the school on September 12 was postponed while a negotiating team of parents and community representatives met with the Board of Education. They demanded that a Community Educational Council composed of parents, organizational representatives, and leading educators chosen by the community, have a voice in determining policy for 201. They also demanded that the present staff be re-screened. It should be noted that community feeling against Stanley Lisser, the principal, was particularly hostile. This was not because he was white (as the press has stated), but because his record as principal at two other Harlem schools, P.S. 197 and P.S. 175, had been marked by community tension and hostility. His students had achieved miserably, even for Harlem schools.

After a week of negotiations the community reached a compromise with the Board of Education: rather than re-screen the whole staff, the principal would be re-assigned, and a mutually satisfactory principal (i.e., either a Negro or Puerto Rican male) would be assigned to the school; and the Community Council would work jointly with the Board to develop staff qualifications and a screening process, to recommend goals and develop the instructional program for the school, to explore sub-contracting certain services within the school, and to draw up a comprehensive plan of evaluation.

With this agreement, and the assurance that Mr. Lisser would be physically absent from the building, the school opened on Tuesday, September 19. It was not surprising that when Lisser's reassignment from 201 was announced by the Board, his teaching staff (many of them from his former schools, handpicked by him for 201) walked out. What was disappointing was that the Board of Education reversed its publically agreed-upon removal of Lisser and reinstated him in the school. The Board, by renouncing an agreement reached in good faith with the Harlem communities, destroyed whatever remnant of trust remained.

At present, the Harlem communities are mobilizing for a major confrontation with the New York City School System. No longer is integration a rallying cry. Harlem has accepted the definition of itself as a colony. But if it cannot participate in White American Society, it is no longer going to be exploited by overseers who commute into the neighborhood by day, wreak havoc with the lives of the black people, and withdraw by night with big paychecks.

This may sound like a step backwards to some. The community believes that it is a rational reaction to a present reality. Black and Puerto Rican children cannot continue to be destroyed by the Public School system while awaiting "integration" at some future day. If education is going to be segregated-style, then the white-controlled school system has forfeited the right to have sole control over it. The ghetto community is demanding a voice in the educational process to disarm a system that is destroying its children. Parents are demanding significant community participation in the operation of their schools. This is an accepted pattern in many suburban communities where school board members are elected by residents. A way must be found to make the public school part of the very fabric of the ghetto community.

"Self-preservation" and "love" better describe what is happening around I.S. 201, than "extremism" and "racism" as reported by the white press, radio, and TV. To those who have difficulty understanding, the community asks one question: What would you do if your child had to go to school in Harlem?

LIBRARY
SAN FRANCISCO THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
SAN ANSELMO, CALIF.

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH

NEWS LETTER

"To preach deliverance to the captives, And recovering of sight to the blind." — Luke 4:18

2050 SECOND AVENUE • NEW YORK, N. Y. 10029

February, 1966

Contents

The major portion of this Newsletter is devoted to describing the increasingly important role that drama is playing in the life of the Parish churches. We have found the use of drama to be an important tool in bridging the gap between the "church" and the "world". One of the more interesting instances was on last July 4, which fell on Sunday. In place of the usual 11:00 service, the Parish gathered in picnic clothes at 9:30, had a dramatic presentation instead of the sermon, celebrated communion, and then marched en masse to a near-by park for a picnic. More highlights of drama in the Parish follow.

Recent Staff Publication

We are happy to report that the pressures of academic life have forced Letty Russell to record some of her ideas on Christian Education. Enclosed is a description of the Handbook which she has compiled as part of her preparation for a Master of Sacred Theology degree at Union Seminary. Letty will be studying full-time from February through May before returning as pastor at Church of the Ascension.

Dedication of Resurrection

Some of you may have seen the February 1966 issue of FORTUNE magazine which featured an article on the Church of the Resurrection's new building. We are happy to report that the building has been in use since mid-December. The dedication is planned for late April when furnishing will be nearly complete. We welcome those of you who will be in the New York area to join us in celebrating this long-awaited occasion.

Friends in Need

Chris Hartmire, a former staff member of the Parish and now Director of the California Migrant Ministry, has been instrumental in supporting a strike of farm workers in Delano, California. These families, who tend and harvest vineyards, have been striking for the past five months against the sub-human working conditions to which they have been subjected. They have persevered in spite of the importation of strike-breakers, police harassment, and other pressures applied by the influential growers. The largest grape producer in the area is Schenley Industries, a national distributor of alcoholic beverages. We urge you to send a letter to Mr. James E. Woolsey, Vice President, Schenley Industries, 45 Second Street, San Francisco, Calif., informing him that you and your friends are refusing to buy their products until they have negotiated a contract with their employees.

DRAMA IN THE PARISH

The wide world of drama in New York City is one of the joys available to the New Yorker. Yet, for the person who lives in the ghetto, these joys have been far away and remote - unavailable, partly because of price, but also because he does not share the mobility which symbolizes the New Yorker who moves quickly from world to world within the geographical boundaries of his own city. While Broadway, with its bright lights and stars, is in itself a world often reserved for the rich, the sophisticate, the tourist, the intelligentsia, during this past year we have seen that this world of the theater and the people of East Harlem are able to minister mutually to one another.

The use of drama has always played an important part in Parish life. The programs for children and youth make great use of plays which dramatically present the acts of the Bible - Moses crossing the Red Sea, David slaying Goliath. Portraying church history with plays such as From Beatnik to Bishop, the story of St. Augustine, effectively involves the youth and is a wonderful teaching tool. East Harlem audiences are very responsive, and if the play is good, youth and adult participate openly. When the children are talking about the play in Sunday School, we don't expect silence during the performance. The comments to one another in the audience and to their friends who are presenting the lesson are healthy signs of involvement and learning.

For many Puerto Ricans who leave the Island to come to New York City, the boundaries of East Harlem define the total context of their lives. To see one who lives beyond the ghetto, beyond the social structure usually reserved for the newcomer, is a ray of hope and pride. An obvious appearance of Negroes and Puerto Ricans on Broadway, in literature, in art, in television, in advertisements can be a help in strengthening the self-image and possibilities for the person living in East Harlem. When Chita Rivera, star of West Side Story and Bye, Bye, Birdie, sang at our Freedom School last July, the young and old of East Harlem came to welcome her. The youth prepared dances and songs from West Side Story to entertain her. After our boy "dancers" surprised all of their friends with their choreography for the Rumble, Chita Rivera said she could hardly wait to tell her dance director about it. Even while working up the dance, some of the boys had said, "Ah, man, she'll never show up." "No one that famous will ever come to East Harlem." But she did come, and the evening was particularly exciting, not only because a star came to East Harlem and performed in the midst of a hot, crowded basement, but because we also entertained for her, offering her some of our talent.

Since we couldn't always expect Broadway to come to us, we decided to go to Broadway en masse. People in East Harlem function in peer groups and do not usually go to the theater by themselves. A supporting group is important. So a large group of teen-agers and adults from the Parish went to see James Baldwin's play Blues for Mr. Charlie. The response was sensational. The play itself was so typical of life as many know it that the barrier between our section of the audience and the stage seemed to disappear. Noticeable responses of laughter and spontaneous applause came from the upper balcony where we sat. Afterwards when we met the cast, one actor indicated that for the first time he got audience reaction from what had been one of his favorite lines in the play, and that he nearly "cracked-up" with laughter himself. Diana Sands, one of Broadway's most versatile stars, was enthusiastic because of our group's responsiveness. The cast seemed as pleased by our being in the audience as we were to attend. At this theater party we began to see the type of support and encouragement a group of teenagers and adults from East Harlem can offer to the theater, particularly to young Negroes and Puerto Ricans who are beginning their careers.

The struggle for freedom is reflected in the theater and has been the theme of many Broadway productions over the last two years. Someone should do a civil rights documentary based on the image of the Negro as seen in the movies or theater. We've come a long way from Hattie McDaniels' "Yessum, Miss Scarlett" in Gone with the Wind to Diana Sands' "You fink!" in The Owl and the Pussycat. At last the Negro or Puerto Rican actor can be himself, or can create a new character and not simply play the stereotyped image the white man has created for him - both on and off the stage. This can be seen in the rising career of Robert Hooks, a young actor who starred in the Shakespeare Traveling Theater during the summer of 1964, and during this season appears in two comedies, Day of Absence and Happy Ending, which deal effectively with the issues of prejudice. As a talented actor, he is able to play Shakespearean parts or to use the theater as an arena of social protest.

Our growing interest in drama is not only related to our theater trips which help both in discovering self-identity and mobility. Because of the power of drama to evoke a sense of participation, we have increasingly attempted to realize the dramatic elements in our worship services. The call to worship is a call for all members of the congregation to participate and not just to be led by the ministers. We follow the church year in our worship life and are reminded of the events in the life of Christ. At Easter and Christmas we present plays and parades in which we physically and dramatically join in acting out the events of our faith. On Three Kings Day, January 6, 250 children wearing cardboard camels and horses march through the streets remembering how the Three Kings came to Christ. This year concluded with an exciting production of Amahl and the Night Visitors.

In addition to using plays for special days, our emphasis on total participation in the worship service has led us to the conviction that the sermon is not the central focus of corporate worship. The communal prayers, the responses, the songs, the moments at which the whole congregations participate are equally significant. Likewise, when the scripture text used for the sermon has been discussed by the congregation in Bible Study, the sermon becomes a dialogue with the congregation rather than a presentation to passive listeners.

Because scripture often lends itself to dramatization, we have begun to present occasional plays in place of the sermon. One effective dramatic sermon was a production of Jonah and the Whale. Staff and laymen joined in the cast of this play which began as God told Jonah to preach to the wicked city of Nineveh. Jonah, of course, headed in the opposite direction, bought a ticket and got into a boat filled with other passengers. As the whole company rocked back and forth during the storm, Jonah was thrown overboard and swallowed by a large cardboard whale. When he was coughed out onto dry land, the first person he met was a man who asked if he wanted to buy any fish. Jonah replied, "I've had enough of those lately." The play continued showing the women of Nineveh doing the twist, Jonah's resentment of God's forgiveness, and the point of God's love revealed in the shade tree. Everyone agreed that the story of Jonah became more vivid through the play than if the minister had delivered a sermon. And when we gathered around the table for communion after the play, we actively united in a celebration of our common life and worship as a church family.

For the Christian all of life is a drama in which we are called to participate, not as spectators, but as people who spontaneously respond to the action, who indeed become part of the action. The world is the stage of God's drama. Our calling as men of faith is to act out the meaning of human history as revealed in Christ. Our developing use of drama has made even more real to us the joy that comes from a life of participation, a life which shares in the drama of existence.

* * * * * * * * * * *

HELP FOR INFANTS

We have an urgent need for layettes, diapers, and baby clothing of all kinds. Any contribution of this nature will be gratefully received. For some reason the need for such items is particularly great during the spring and summer. At present we have exhausted our supply of clothing for infants.

CHRISTIAN EDUCATION HANDBOOK
by Letty M. Russell

to be published January, 1966, for the benefit of those who would like to be able to relate the Daily Bible Readings lectionary with Christian education for children and youth. It will contain outlines to go with Daily Bible Readings: Lent, Pentecost, Trinity, 1966, as well as lesson outlines which correspond to back issues.

INTRODUCTION TO THE HANDBOOK; The Handbook of Christian Education is a do-it-yourself kit.

A. Its purpose is to encourage its users to plan their own curriculum: It suggests that curriculum emerges in dialogue between the story of God's mighty acts in the Bible and what is happening in the world of the children and teachers. It suggests ways that the dialogue can take place in group planning and group teaching. It suggests ways that one trained planner along with other teachers might feel free to develop their own curriculum as they search for the ways to share with others the excitement and joy of letting their lives be shaped by Christ.

B. It is designed as a supplement to the DBR study guide: The dialogue of education takes place in the whole church family. Whenever possible the whole family, young and old alike, should be studying the same passages and themes so that sermons, Bible study, retreats, church school all reinforce each other. It is not necessary to use the Handbook with Daily Bible Readings, but the suggestions not only assume that planners, teachers and the whole church are studying the passages, but also that Christian education of children is not possible without being continually related to serious Bible study.

C. It is not a complete curriculum: The Handbook does not try to present a complete curriculum outline. It assumes that the planner will be aminister, director of education or trained teacher who will use other resources such as primary sources and denominational Christian education material. It makes suggestions which will show how various materials can be used and developed by the planner. The suggestions do not form a whole but rather illustrate the structure of the planning process for those who would like to try this form of group planning and education.

D. In itself it is an experiment in Christian Education: Rather than giving answers, it tries to point the way to new and flexible forms of curriculum development. Christian education in the 20th Century can be open to the dynamic changes in the life of human communities continually seeking new forms of expression and relevance, and at the same time find its continual source of life in the proclamation of God's action as Lord and Redeemer of History.

OUTLINE OF THE HANDBOOK: (Total pages, 92; Cost, $1.00)

A. Introduction: 1. The Handbook as a "Do-it-yourself Kit"
2. The Shape of Christian Education

B. Curriculum Planning Suggestions:
1. Program
2. Crafts
3. Resources

C. Curriculum Outline Suggestions:
1. God Chooses His People (Old Testament)
2. God Dwells with His People (The Gospels)
3. God Leads His People (Church and World)

EAST HARLEM PROTESTANT PARISH, 2050 Second Avenue, New York, NY 10029

FEB 2 8 1966

God's Gifts for Great Living

HOLBROOK LIBRARY
PACIFIC SCHOOL OF RELIGION

By RALPH W. SOCKMAN

National Radio Pulpit

NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY and its Independent Affiliated Stations

SUNDAY, 10:00 to 10:30 A.M. E.S.T.

Produced by

BROADCASTING AND FILM COMMISSION

National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States of America

220 Fifth Avenue, New York 1, New York

WW
N213
Pam

1952

FOREWORD

These difficult days must be matched by great living. The moral foundations of our country seem to be crumbling. It is time to get down to the simple fundamentals.

These Lenten sermons seek to explore such basic factors of living as love, joy, peace, patience, and kindness. These are God's gifts which we can use every day, however dark.

Saint Paul calls them "the fruit of the Spirit." And truly they are. They do not grow on barren and untended soil. They have to be cultivated. How does God help us to grow these coveted virtues in times like this? If these messages serve to suggest the divine secret to some members of the National Radio Pulpit's vast family, I shall be happy.

—RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Christ Church, New York
Easter, 1952

THE GIFT OF GROWTH

During these Lenten weeks I desire to think with you about "God's Gifts for Great Living." And on this our first Sunday we begin our message with the benediction by which Peter closed his Second Epistle. Here it is: "Grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." (R.S.V.)

Great living comes by growth. The child that does not grow is a loss to society and a tragedy to itself. Charles S. Stratton was a well-known American of the nineteenth century. His name was a box-office attraction. But his was the prominence of notoriety rather than fame, for he was known as Tom Thumb and was exhibited by P. T. Barnum for years. However much money a dwarf may draw as a curiosity, the sight of a stunted body evokes pity. And a stunted mind is still more pathetic.

But the Bible does not merely tell us that we ought to grow. The deeper truth is that we are either growing or decaying all the time. We cannot stand still as personalities. The human body grows until it reaches adult size. Then normally it absorbs enough to maintain itself in balance A few weeks ago I met an old college friend who proudly said that he weighed exactly the same as when he graduated. Some of us who heard him wished we could say the same thing. We have added weight but have not grown physically. Organically the adult body stays in balance for considerable time.

The human mind, however, cannot healthily remain in balance. It either grows or loses. When the mind goes through the same routines, thinking the same thoughts, it goes into a mental sleep; and sleep beyond the necessary daily allowance is a form of mental deterioration. We may fool ourselves and feel comfortable in our mental stagnation. But time will not let the human organism stand still indefinitely. Time, as we say, marches on. And something in us eventually rebels unless we march with it. Our need to grow expresses itself in our restlessness when we think we are not improving our time. When no purpose is being advanced, when time does not bring progress in something we care about, our central need rebels. Professor Richard Cabot of Harvard called growth our all-inclusive need.

Not only do we have to grow in order to live as human beings, but we have to grow toward a goal. Some time ago I observed a house which was quite a monstrosity. It was built for a small family, but as the children came, rooms were added here and there in sort of haphazard fashion. The house had been pushed out, but it had not grown toward any architectural pattern. So in life, growing is not enough. We must grow up, and that requires plan and purpose.

Peter in his Epistle recognized this need, for when he bade his readers grow, he also gave them their pattern: "Grow in the grace and knowledge of Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." For those first Christians as for ourselves Jesus Christ is the model. The more they learned about him, the more they longed to be like him. His mind with its sparkling wisdom and infinite understanding made him the Master Teacher.

Also his knowledge was blended with a grace which learning does not always possess. Some knowledge actually adds to the dangers of living. Justice Jackson of the United States Supreme Court after presiding over the Nuremberg trials of the German leaders said: "It is one of the paradoxes of our time that modern society needs to fear only the educated man. . . . The most serious crimes against civilization can be committed only by educated and technically competent people." How tragically we realize this in the present Atomic Age. In a day when wits are being sharpened to devise new ways of destroying, we see how desperately we need to grow into Christ's combination of grace and knowledge.

What do we mean by the grace of Christ? For one thing, it means his grace of manner. He not only did the right thing, but he did it in the right way. His was the grace of manner which drew little children to him. He had that grace of speech which could disarm the fears of those who were honestly suspicious of him, as was seen in his conversation with the Samaritan woman at the well. In sullen mood she had come to draw water. She suspected the motives of Jesus when he began to speak to her, especially since he was a Jew and the Jews were supposed to have no dealings with the Samaritans. But Jesus gracefully dispelled her resentment and revealed new resources for right living.

Or think of the grateful woman who brought the precious alabaster box and began to anoint his feet. The disciples rebuked the woman for her extravagance, but Jesus with his gentlemanly considerateness healed the wounds of their words by his gracious tribute to her generosity.

Of course, the grace of Christ was more than his manner but let us not deprecate the value of good manners. Politeness had a refining influence. We may say that good manners are only a social polish or veneer, but we might remember, that polish brings out the beauty of grain in the wood. In our desire to be sincere and genuine, let us not mistake rawness for realism. Let us improve the outward aspects of our behavior, knowing that by putting the better foot forward we help to pull the worse foot after it. The grace of good manners belongs to the gospel of Christ.

But the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ is deeper. It is a graciousness of spirit which is courteously considerate of others' opinions without compromising one's own convictions; a graciousness which puts the ear down to the level of those less mentally tall without showing a stoop, and slows the pace for those of feebler strength without seeming to be holding back.

You recall the beautiful passage in the Old Testament which depicts the coming deliverer in these words: "The bruised reed he will not break and the smoking flax he will not quench." Jesus fits that pattern. When he stood before the fallen woman about to be stoned, he did not crush her bruised spirit by adding words of condemnation. Rather, he cupped his sympathy around the smoking taper of her almost extinguished hope until it flared again to brightness.

But gracefulness of manner and graciousness of spirit do not explain all that the early Christians meant by the "grace of Our Lord Jesus Christ." They saw in him the grace of God—the unmerited favor which God grants to his children, over and above what law and justice require.

We glimpse this extra goodness of God in nature. By physical law we can predict the hour of the sunset, but who can foretell its colors? This evening the western horizon may be adorned in gorgeous red; tomorrow night its garment may be a purple robe flecked with gold. These glorious colors are not exactly necessary to sustain man's bodily health. The alternation of light and darkness would suffice for that. But the Creator throws in sunset colors as extras, wrapping up our days in gay colors somewhat as we tie gift packages at Christmastide. Nature reveals the grace of God.

So does history. Before Christ came, God had done all that justice would seem to demand in his dealings with his children. He had created a law-abiding universe, sent law makers to lay down the rules of living and prophets to interpret them. He had endowed man with powers able to give him dominion over the earth. What more could man ask of God? But he did more. "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish but have everlasting life." Such is the grace of God. And when men beheld Jesus, they said, "God is like that."

And when we look at Jesus Christ, we say, "God is like that, but I can't be. His grace and goodness are too high for me. I cannot attain unto him." And in our own strength we cannot copy Jesus as a model. But God does not expect us to copy. That's the point. The divine command is not, "Copy Christ," but "grow in the grace and knowledge of Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ."

Growth is not a copying; it is a power given to us. This is a fact we tend to forget in our machine age, especially we who live in cities. Millions of us have so far removed ourselves from the soil that we cease to think in terms of nature and growth. We live by making and trading. We talk of making our goals, making our schedules, making our fortunes. Some of us even get to thinking of ourselves as self-made men.

When we read the parable of the talents, we praise the man of five talents who put his money out in trade and made five talents more, and the man of two talents who made two talents more. But read the parable again and note the words: "To one he gave five talents; to another he gave two talents." The talents with which they started trading were gifts. So in life the talents of our brains, the raw materials with which we work, the fertility of the soil which multiplies the seeds, the light of the sun by which we see—all these are gifts. I can remember the first dollar I ever earned, but I cannot remember the first gift I ever received, for all the care which nurtured me through infancy, all the forces and factors which prepared me to earn my first wage were gifts to me.

The power of growth by which we transmute the elements of soil and sun and food into brawn and brain, by which we can see what is ahead of us and adapt ourselves to it, by which we can add our days and efforts together in plan and purpose—all this is God's gift.

But what difference does this make in our daily living? Just that we should be more grateful? Ah, more than that. It means that, if we are to grow into great living, we must learn better how to receive from God. George Eliot said, "Receptivity is a noble and massive virtue." Read your Bible and note how frequently the word receive occurs. Growing is so much a matter of properly receiving.

Take it in mental growth. The mind is not a mere tool for digging up facts, nor is it a mere respository for remembered data. I have a distant relative—one of those relatives whom we rather like to keep as distant as possible! He has one of the brightest minds I have ever known and he has stored it with so many facts that if you ask him a question you release an avalanche of information which buries you in confusion and smothers all other conversation. But I would not call his a great mind or a growing mind. He plays with facts but he has never been played on by any great truths.

When I think of such minds, I recall what Alfred Noyes said, that one of our troubles today is that we are misled by small clever minds, men who know their own skills and specialties but who do not cultivate the larger vision which can "see life steadily and see it whole," with the result that we lack great literature and great statesmanship. To be sure, ours is an age of specialization and we have to specialize in order to get ahead in our fields. But small, narrow minds, however clever, cannot lead us out of our present morass. We must have men of large vision, sensitive to the spirit of God and moved by his power.

And our Hebrew-Christian faith holds that we human beings are not little self-starting, self-made creatures building ourselves by our own efforts. We are bidden to exert all the strength we have and to use all the brains we have. But recall Jesus' questions, "Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit to his stature?" There are some things which with all our best efforts we cannot do for ourselves. We have to rely on "One able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think according to the power that worketh in us."

Recently I received a radio letter from Mr. James Francis Cooke, former editor of "Etude." He wrote that he had once asked Victor Herbert where he got so many of his beautiful melodies. The composer replied that many of them come to him in his dreams and he woke up singing and whistling them. Then Mr. Cooke told how he himself had recently dreamed about a famous contemporary composer who was going around Florence bragging of some new composition. This boasting suggested a poem. And awaking Mr. Cooke went to his study in the middle of the night and wrote these lines which he called, "The Moment of Triumph":

"The moment of triumph is always very dangerous.
Because you believe that you have made
Your book,
Your picture,
Your drama,
Your symphony,
Your victory.
Poor fool! Poor fool!
Do you not realize that you are merely
The glove on the hand of God?"

Those lines born in a dream bear witness by their source and content to the truth that we are receivers rather than creators. Therefore we cannot in our own strength make ourselves like Christ, but we can "grow in his grace and knowledge."

And now if we are to receive the forces which make for growth, we must put ourselves in contact with them. We must set ourselves in the midst of things which suggest the grace and knowledge of Christ.

When Anatole France set out to write a book, he changed the decorations of his home, creating an atmosphere expressive of the period which was currently engaging his thoughts. When for instance, he was writing, "Thaïs", he surrounded himself with the art of ancient Greece. For his work on Joan of Arc, he hung on his walls beautiful tapestries of fifteenth century France.

Our natures are so open to suggestion from our surroundings. When we read only the news of crimes and corruption, it is not long before we think the world is going to the devil.

When we put our minds in the presence of "whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just," pure, lovely and of good report; when we picture Our Lord going about Palestine with his grace of spirit, "healing the brokenhearted, preaching deliverance to the captives, setting at liberty the burdened spirits that were bruised—when we abide in Christ's words and let his words abide in us, our horizons begin to lift, our hardness of heart begins to soften, our gloom begins to lighten, and "into our hearts high yearnings, come welling and surging in;" they "come from that mystic ocean, whose rim no foot hath trod; some of us call it longing and others call it God."

But if we are to "grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ," we must not only expose our minds to his atmosphere, we must yield our hearts to him as the seed surrenders itself to the soil. Recall the occasion when some Greek visitors came asking to see Jesus. The Greek philosophy, you know, held that man perfects himself by rounding out into completion. But to these Greeks, Jesus said: "Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit."

In that statement Our Lord revealed a point at which Christianity goes beyond Greek philosophy. He brought self-surrender to serve self-development. If we are to grow into godliness, we must break through the shell of self, as the life in the seed breaks through the shell to link itself with the fructifying forces of the soil. We have to let ourselves out in order to let God's Holy Spirit in.

Jesus might have remained a teacher of matchless parables and lived to a ripe old age, respected by his people. But he would not thereby have become the world's savior. Because he gave himself, men give their hearts to him.

"When I survey the wondrous cross
On which the prince of glory died,
My highest gain I count but loss
And pour contempt on all my pride."

Thus we begin to "grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ."

Almighty and all merciful God, who turnest the darkness of night into day, lift the shadows from our minds and let the light of faith and hope and love enter our hearts. We thank Thee for the bounties of the good earth, for the freedoms of our land, for the fidelity of our friends, for the safety and comforts of our homes. May our gratitude fill us with compassion for those who are in pain and sorrow and want. May we decline no duty which Thou dost send and fear no trial which Thou doest appoint. Patiently wilt Thou walk with us until we learn to keep step with Thee. Draw us so close to Thee that we may feel our unity with Thy whole family throughout the earth. And speed the day of peace and brotherhood; through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen.

THE LEVELS OF LOVE

During this Lenten Season we are thinking together about "God's Gifts for Great Living." Last Sunday we considered the gift of growth itself. Today and for the next few weeks we shall treat those gifts which Saint Paul called the "Fruit of the Spirit" and listed in the fifth chapter of his letter to the Galatians.

The Apostle begins with these words: "The fruit of the spirit is love." Naturally he starts with love because it is basic to all other sentiments and feelings. Love precedes desire, for what do we desire save that which we love? Love precedes delight, for how can we take pleasure in a thing we do not love? It precedes hope, for we can hope only for that which we love. It precedes hatred, for we hate evil only out of love for what is good.

Saint Augustine reduced all affections and passions to four, and asserted that they were all derived from love. He defined them thus: love seeking to possess itself of the desired object, he called lust; love attaining and possessing its object of desire, he called joy; love flying from what is opposed to it, he called fear; and love overtaken thereby and suffering, he called grief.

Not only is love the source from which other emotions and energies spring but when it dies, they stop.

"The night has a thousand eyes
And the day but one,
But the light of the whole world dies
With the setting sun.
The mind has a thousand eyes
And the heart but one,
But the light of a whole life dies
When the love is done."

Now since so much of life stems from love, let us ask what is the source of love. It is more than the mere desire to possess. A nation may love a queen or a leader, yet the desire is not to possess but to bless. Love is more than a mere affinity for what is like ourselves. We sometimes hear it said that people like the like and dislike the unlike. But while this sometimes seems true, it also happens that love often seems kindled by contrasts. Old persons often dearly love, and are loved by, little children. Learned men often have close attachments to persons of limited knowledge. Sick persons frequently adore their physicians. We must look deeper than likeness to explain love.

The attraction lies in a certain adaptation or sympathy between the one who loves and the object of his love. The sick man loves his doctor partly because the physician's skill answers to his deep need. And the doctor is drawn to his patient not merely by sympathy or the good disposition of the sick person but in part because he can employ his healing power on the latter's behalf. Old persons are drawn to little children partly at least because the innocence and spontaneity and freshness of the youngsters furnish a counterpart to what the oldsters lack. Thus love is an attraction often too deep for conscious analysis, whereby the lover and the beloved tend to perfect each other.

Love is the outreach of the self toward completion. God created his children for love and without it we are not really human. Love itself then is the gift of God. The Bible puts it even more strongly. It says, "God is love." And we may add that love is the spirit of God in us.

The first form of love to appear in us as the fruit of the Spirit is family affection. Love to be vital must begin with the individual and the intimate.

Some time ago after a sermon a woman came up to me and enthusiastically exclaimed, "I love everybody." I may say that this did not happen in my own church. I have not yet found anyone in my parish who has reached such a state of perfect love! But I am not sure that this particular woman's love was perfect, for after a little conversation I wondered whether she was so loving after all.

It has been said that universal love is like a glove without fingers while true affection is like a glove that fits the fingers. Perhaps some of you can recall the old-fashioned woolen mittens which kept the hands quite warm, but which also kept them from picking up things. When we want to use our hands, we need gloves with fingers in them. Similarly if we would have effective love which takes hold of things, we must have more than the fingerless mittens of vague general goodwill. This is the point the Epistle of John stresses when it says: "If a man say I love God but hateth his brother, he is a liar; for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?"

Therefore, family affection in some form is the almost indispensable root of Christianity, aye of all life, worth living. If we could see the human spirit at its pure source, we look at the love of parents for their little ones. That is why Victor Hugo defined heaven as the place where all the parents are young and all the children are little.

There is a divine selflessness about the love of a normal mother for her infant. A mother's love has also the divine power to transform timidity into courage, thoughtlessness into sympathy, selfishness into self-denial. A mother's love leaves an impress which the years cannot erase. As George Eliot said: "In the man whose childhood has known caresses there is always a fibre of memory that can be touched to gentle issues."

These fibres of memory may be touched by the rough currents of life's struggle as in the case of Lord Macaulay, who confessed that often in battling with the competitive world he sighed for the deep security which he felt when as a child he nestled against his mother's arm and listened to some quaint tale read in her tender untiring voice.

Estimate, if you can, the healing, purifying, elevating influence which is ever flowing from the fountain of the family. In my opinion the family offers more unused possibilities for furnishing new potential to our distraught world than any other single factor in it. As I have said before, the family is the spiritual atom of the Atomic Age.

If we needed any reminder of the family's value to society and the nation, we had it recently in the life of the late King George of England. The strong fidelities of his family circle, preserved so naturally amid the duties and distractions of royalty, gave a warm glow in the darkness of Britain's sorrow. The funeral pageantry reminded the British people of the noble traditions which hold the commonwealth together. Yet,

> "The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
> And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,
> Await alike the inevitable hour.
> The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

But when "the captains and the kings depart," the family devotion and the Christian faith which sustained the King's home circle were a reminder of something larger and older than the British tradition, something which whispers to our souls that life is stronger than death and love can never lose its own.

And let us remember that not only is family affection the fruit of God's Spirit, but also it requires the cultivation of his spirit in order to grow and ripen. Some time ago I saw a chart showing that homes whose members have no church affiliations had almost three times as high a divorce rate as those whose members belong to some church.

Godliness serves to keep love from deteriorating into a possessiveness which leads to a jealous and overbearing spirit. In a godly home the members respect the personality of one another and seek to further their welfare.

Also God replenishes the supply of grace needed to oil the wheels of the home. The close contacts of living under the same roof can develop friction. We get on one another's nerves. But godliness begets a spirit of mutual helpfulness and forbearance, coming to the rescue when one falls behind and cheering on when another gets ahead.

Moreover, God fosters the grace of forgiveness. Into every family misunderstandings come. There are times when affections freeze up because of coldness in the family weather. But when we let God start someone in being the first to forgive, the icicled springs of the heart thaw out, and, oh, what fun it is to make up!

Also godliness safeguards a home with larger loyalties. Jesus said: "He that loveth father or mother . . . or son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me." The Master did not mean that anyone ever loved a parent or child too much. It is not the intensity of affection but its interference with truth and duty that makes it unworthy of a Christian. Loyalty to Christ lifts the members of a family out of their self-centered interests and in service to him they come closer together.

In my youth I was greatly moved by Charles Rann Kennedy's drama, "The Servant in the House." The setting was in a minister's home. When the modern embodiment of the Nazarene Carpenter visited that home, he transformed the whole household from a lifeless routine of selfish interests into a place of gracious and radiant living. Yes, "the fruit of the Spirit is love."

And around the circle of family affection lies a wider range of love, that of friendship. Friendship is a sentiment cooler than passion and warmer than respect, which recognizes a kindred spirit in another person. The human heart is never whole unless it can share its inmost experiences with one or more other hearts.

Emerson distilled the essence of friendship when he said, "A true friend is somebody who can make us do what we can." Perhaps we could add a bit to Emerson's definition and say that a true friend is one who can make us do what we think we can't. And that no doubt was implied in Emerson's remark. A friend reveals new possibilities in us and shows us stars we never saw before.

But true friendships do not spring up like mushrooms in the night. Plutarch put the preparation for friendship in blunt terms when he said: "One must have eaten a bushel of salt with anyone before you become really attached to him." Mutual confidence develops by degrees. Common tastes and interests lead to a sharing of activities. From these comes an increasing store of shared memories. Through joys and sorrows borne together, through secrets held in trust, friends develop an understanding too deep for words until they can sit in silence while spirit with spirit doth meet.

The power to make friends is a gift of God, but it has to be cultivated, and with God's help. How, we may ask, does God enrich friendship? Oh, for one thing God helps us to form our friendships on the higher rather than the lower levels of living. Some of our fellowships are formed at the sign of the tavern, others at the sign of the cross. Worldliness lets us down to meet, godliness lifts us up to meet.

Also a godly friend cares enough not to yield to our weakness. He tells us our faults in a sincere effort to cure them. He has the perseverance to go with us the second mile in our need and the patience to stand by us when we stumble. Godly friendship is like the vine which clings to the tree after it has been laid low by the lightning stroke. When friendship is sustained by the divine spirit, it "beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things."

And it survives death.

"Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love;
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to that above.

When we asunder part
It gives us inward pain;
But we shall still be joined in heart
And hope to meet again."

Family affection and friendship do not exhaust all the love with which God has endowed us. Beyond these is love toward our neighbors. The first and great commandment, said Jesus, is, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God." And then he added, "The second is like unto it; Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Love of God and love of neighbor stand or fall together. It is our love for our neighbors which tests and proves our love for God. Recall how Jesus said to Simon Peter: "Simon, Son of Jonas, lovest thou me?" Simon Peter replied, "Yea, Lord, thou knowest I love thee." Then said Jesus, "Feed my sheep." Three times the Master repeated his question to his disciple in the effort to drive home the divine principle that love to God is demonstrated by love to neighbor.

And conversely it is our love of God and God's love for us which nourish and sustain our love of neighbor. The people around us are not always lovable enough to evoke our love. Some of them are even hostile. I know a fellow who naturally gets on my nerves. He was a "smart alec" as a boy and now he is pretty dumb. But when I am tempted to regard him as a pest, I think of his parents. I knew them. They were my fine friends. I remember how much they loved their son. And for their sakes I get along with him.

When Jesus gave the commandment to love our enemies, he knew that we could not do that in our own strength. He pointed us to the only incentive which could make us able to love those who hate us. Listen: "That ye may be children of your Father which is in heaven; for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust." Only God's goodness can beget love for enemies.

Moreover God gives the gauge by which to measure our love for our neighbor. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." How much are we to love ourselves? A thoughtless godless person is likely to have a false standard of self-love. He may be the kind of fellow who likes to be babied and coddled, and so he would cater to all the soft desires of his neighbors. But the godly person has a worthy self-respect which causes him to respect the rights, the convictions, the personalities of others.

The thoughtless, unspiritual person may tarnish the Golden Rule of doing unto another as ye would that he should do unto you because he does not give thought and imagination to comprehend what he would want done to him if he were in the other person's place. But the godly man keeps the Golden Rule golden by sensitizing his imagination up toward the perfect sympathy of the Christ who said, "Whosoever hath done it unto the least of these my brethren hath done it unto me."

Furthermore God sends out to seek and save the lost and thereby he gives creative power and zest in our relations with our neighbors. Do you recall the occasion when Jesus was speaking to the smug Pharisees who were concerned to keep the law rather than to save the lost? Jesus broke forth with the statement: "Joy shall be in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons which need no repentence." Did Our Lord mean that one saved sinner is worth more than ninety-nine good people? I think not. I think Jesus meant there was more creative work and hence more joyous satisfaction in saving one sinner than in trying to keep ninety-nine "nice" people "nice." You fishermen know it is more fun to land a game trout than to preserve a dozen fish in your deep freeze. And do we not know a lot of respectable people even in the church who are pretty cold fish?

Let's get beyond our little smug complacent neighborliness where we do good to those who are good to us, where we invite those who invite us. As Jesus said, if that is all we do, what reward have we? Even the publicans do the same. Christ calls us to look up some needy neighbors who aren't looking for us, to seek out some lonely souls who are too shy to come around, to do good to some persons who have spitefully used us. Then we discover the joy Jesus talked about in loving neighbors and saving sinners.

When John Bunyan preached his farewell sermon in 1688 he said: "Dost thou see a soul that has the image of God in him? Love him. Love him. Say to thyself, 'This man and I must go to heaven together some day.'"

That feeling which John Bunyan enjoined is what our godly forefathers called "the passion for souls." I wonder how many of us still have it. When we get it, we shall know more fully the love which is "God's Gift for Great Living."

Most gracious and bountiful Father, whose gifts to Thy children are limited only by the littleness of our vision and the narrowness of our desires, we give Thee hearty thanks for the hungers which turn us to Thee. Thy ways are higher than our ways as the heavens are high above the earth, but Thou hast set eternity in our hearts, and we are restless until we find rest in Thee.

Cleanse our lives that we may see Thee as do the pure in heart. Forgive our folly and weakness, our coldness to human sorrows, our envy of those more favored and our neglect of those nearest to us. Strengthen our family ties and enrich our friendship. Help us to love our neighbors as ourselves, to respect their rights, to work for their welfare, to rejoice in their success, to share in their burdens. Lengthen the bonds of our brotherhood that our goodwill may embrace Thy whole family throughout the earth: we ask through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen.

THE JOY OF LIVING

During these Lenten Sundays we are discussing "God's Gifts for Great Living," as based on St. Paul's list given in the fifth chapter of his letter to the Galatians. He begins: "The fruit of the Spirit is love." We considered love last week. Then he goes on. The second in the Apostle's list is joy, which is our theme for today.

Joy is just as essential to great living as is love. We reveal this in our common daily expressions. When we speak of "having a great time," we mean that we are enjoying ourselves. When we say, "This is a great life," we show that we are finding joy in living. If a person is to do a great job, he must enjoy his work. If he dislikes his task, he is like a sculptor carving a statue with a dull chisel. Great living gives joy.

But now let me ask, do we naturally think of joy as linked to religion? Do we worship God because we enjoy it or because we feel we ought? Do we think of goodness as a pleasure or a duty? The other Sunday I asked my congregation if there was anyone present who had come to New York for the weekend with some such thought as this: "I shall enjoy myself on Friday and Saturday taking in the city's theaters and places of entertainment and then on Sunday morning, I'll do my duty by getting up and going to church." Do we think of religious activities in the category of duties while we put our picnics and excursions and vacations in the category of pleasures?

Well, if we are not finding joy in our religion, we are missing something which the first Christians had. The New Testament portrays Jesus as coming into the world to give people joy. The Gospels open with an angel chorus singing, "Peace on earth to men of goodwill." And the Bible closes with a Hallelujah chorus. In almost the last paragraph of Revelation we read, "The Spirit and the bride say, come," and to what does a bride invite guests but to a festal occasion?

We so often think of Christ as the "man of sorrows and acquainted with grief." And Our Lord did feel the sufferings of men more sensitively than any other person on this planet. His eyes did fill with tears, no doubt on more than one occasion. But let us remember that Jesus was criticized by the pious Pharisees as being too full of life and gaiety. He seemed to enjoy himself too much for their liking. Surrounded by the eager hearts and sunny faces of his first followers, he likened his company to a bridal party. And at the end of his earthly career when the shadow of the cross was falling upon his face, he said to his disciples: "These things have I spoken unto you that my joy may be in you and your joy may be full."

The early Christians caught Jesus' joyous spirit. When they were hunted and hid in the catacombs, they drew pictures on the walls of those caves, portraying Jesus as a young shepherd with happy eager face and a lamb in his arms. Yes, when we go back to the beginnings of our Christian faith, we find as Paul said that "the fruit of the spirit is joy" as well as love.

If we are to comprehend the joy of living which God gives, we must begin with the temperament which he puts in us at birth. Each of us is endowed with a special type of mental constitution or mixture of characteristics which we call temperament. How much of a part temperament plays in life we shall not discuss. But that it does play a part, we can hardly deny. We often say in describing a person, "That is his temperament." Or we sometimes say of a person, "He is temperamental," meaning that his impulsive moods determine his attitudes.

And we know, too, that some temperaments have a larger mixture of joy than others. In the same family one child may by nature be more buoyant and bubbling with mirth than the others. But all normal children have a God-given joyfulness. We should think there was something wrong with a boy who never romped and kicked up his heels and laughed. Saint Paul reminded young Timothy of this natural element of joy, when he bade him: "Stir up the gift of God which is in you, for God hath not given us the spirit of fear, but of power and of love and of a sound mind." The normal healthy child reaches out eagerly and trustfully to life. Love and joy, rather than hate and gloom, are his natural attitudes.

The famous schoolmaster, Thomas Arnold of Rugby, once said that the teacher's experience of being continually in the presence of boys' high spirits was depressing, because they lacked sympathy. Arthur C. Benson, another schoolmaster, in commenting on Arnold's statement, agreed that youth's joyous animal spirits did sometimes depress him when he craved sympathetic understanding, when he was in the mood of the Psalmist "where deep calleth unto deep." But he added that at other times the playful joyousness of children lured him from his dark and depressing thoughts. And certainly this latter effect is one of the great services which children render to age.

Recall how Jesus took a little child and placed it in the midst of some sedate and opinionated oldsters, saying, "Except ye be converted and become as a little child, ye shall not enter into the Kingdom of Heaven." Christ calls us back to the sources of life where we see the freshness and purity of joy and love. Life, like a stream so frequently grows sluggish and muddy as it reaches middle age. We need to get back to the pure clear springs where it started. And there we see that "the fruit of the Spirit is joy."

But the joy of living must have more resources than the natural high-spiritedness of youth. It involves also the will. A good teacher or parent often puts on an air of cheerfulness in order to keep her sad thoughts from casting gloom over the children around her, and in so doing she helps to lift the load from her own heart.

Few sights are more admirable than that of a brave spirit keeping a gay exterior in order that her own breaking heart may not spill its sorrow on others. The resolute cheerfulness of Robert Louis Stevenson, whose bodily suffering made his years a life-long battle of the bed and medicine-bottle, was an inspiration to those who knew him and might well serve as a glorious example to be followed by the boys who read the adventures of his "Treasure Island."

And these very efforts of the will to "put on" a joyous front do help to "put off" the garments of gloom. Also when our wills struggle to conquer grief, they strengthen their roots in the ground of joy. Edwin Markham likened us in this regard to a tree resisting a storm. In order to withstand the wind, it sends down deeper roots on the windward side, thus strengthening itself. Likewise the soul that stands up to mighty grief enlarges its capacity for richer joy.

Ah, most of us live so much in the middle register of our emotions that we do not touch the depths of sorrow and sympathy nor reach the heights of love and joy. But when we bravely stand up to grief and pain, we sink our roots more deeply into the soil where grows the fruit of the spirit, which is joy.

Not only temperament and will but also the conscience is involved in the joy of living. At first glance we are likely to think of the conscience as the enemy of life's joy. Does not conscience keep us from doing so many things we would like to do, and also keep us from enjoying so many things we do? So it may seem.

The service of conscience, however, is that it helps us to distinguish pleasure from happiness and develop real joy. There are many experiences which give us temporary pleasure but do not add up to abiding satisfaction. Their thrills pass quickly, and sometimes leave a trail of regret and remorse. Some of our sense pleasures are like lightning flashes, while true joy is like the sunlight.

Human nature is an organism of many impulses and drives. We can get some pleasure by indulging almost any one of our instincts and appetites. An amateur can draw a thin melody by striking a few keys of the organ with his fingers, but the richest music is that in which the whole force of the instrument is employed, and although it may be full of solemn touches the final effect is exuberant and inspiring.

"There are ten men in me," cried the philosopher Amiel in despair, "according to time, place, surrounding, occasion, and in my restless diversity I am forever escaping myself." But how to integrate oneself so that we do not do in one situation what undoes us in another, so that gnawing remorse for yesterday's folly does not eat away today's enjoyment, so that present blundering and thoughtlessness do not prevent the future harvest of satisfaction—such is the achievement we must attain if we are to become mature personalities.

And in this attainment the conscience is indispensable. "Happiness," said Aristotle, "is the bloom that lies upon a life of goodness." And Wordsworth adds that there is nothing in life like the smile that plays around the stern lips of duty when she is obeyed.

We go on. If we are to have the full joy of living, our native temperament, energized by the will and regulated by the conscience, must enlarge itself with many and wholesome interests.

Consider for a moment this fourth factor of our interests. Walter Bagehot declared that Milton's "Paradise Lost" has one defect, namely, that Satan is made the one really interesting figure in the whole poem. That is a defect which is to be seen in many a modern drama of stage and screen. It may point to a moral, but the trouble is that it plays up immorality so interestingly that the power of suggestion rivals the point of the moral.

It has been reported that Willie Sutton, the notorious bank robber recently captured, may write up his life in order to show that crime doesn't pay. Let us hope that whoever puts out his writing does not play up his crime so colorfully that the youth who read about them have their imaginations fired in the wrong way.

Even we preachers sometimes make the mistake of treating evil as if it were more interesting than goodness. Some years ago a preacher set out to attack New York's bad night spots. He visited a number of them and then preached a series of Sunday night sermons about them. He gave very thrilling descriptions. Listeners flocked to hear him. I think they got more for their money, hearing his portrayal than if they had gone to see for themselves, because you can't get very far in a night club on the money most people put in the collection plate on Sunday nights! But that minister, like so many of us, made the mistake of playing up evil more colorfully than goodness.

We should learn what C. S. Lewis tells us in his "Screwtape Letters." He makes the Devil admit that when it comes to the real joys of living, God has the advantage. The solid satisfactions of life are in the godly regions of experience.

Why is this so? Well, for one thing the godly person sees more of interest in the simple common things around him.

Think how Jesus went around what we would call a very barren countryside finding so many things to thrill him—the birds of the air, the flowers in the field, a widow casting her mite into the temple treasury. He saw not only the objects but the God behind them. The worldly person is so often searching for the rare and the expensive and scorning the humble things which could give him joy. I think of a women who went to Paris a year or so ago and now she is always pining for the delicacies and delights of Paris, missing the good things she could find in her home town, bored with herself and making herself a bore to her neighbors.

Moreover, the godly person cultivates the higher mental interests rather than the lower carnal interests. And the higher the level of our interests, the wider their range. Mental pleasures have so much more variety than bodily pleasures. We are so much more limited in our physical than in our mental recreations. A boy may play a score of games, football, baseball and the like. But most men give up football and baseball in their twenties, tennis in their forties and then slow down to walking or fishing sports. Yet after the body slows down to a walk, the mind can run on, adding to its interests by memory and travel and experience.

Furthermore, the godly person enjoys without despoiling. He can draw delights from beautiful landscapes without keeping others from the same pleasure. He can revel in a great work of art without feeling that he must own it and take it home for his exclusive possession. Think how we could all multiply our joys of living if we conquered our possessive spirit and learned to appreciate more God's non-competitive values such as beauty, truth and goodness.

Also, these higher joys of the mind and spirit are more lasting. Recently in a family whose son had been taken away by death, the parents were telling me of his interest in literature and art. He found his satisfactions not as much through material as through mental channels. And I could not help but think that is partly what Jesus had in mind when he said: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures on earth where moth and rust corrupt and thieves break through and steal, but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven where moth and rust do not consume and thieves do not break through nor steal." I feel that the Master was referring to the Kingdom of Heaven within us as well as the state of heaven hereafter. In our minds and spirits we can develop a bit of heaven here and now, and the more of our treasure we put in this inner heavenly department of our natures, the more we can take with us when death destroys these bodies.

This thought gave me comfort in that home of sorrow, because I have faith that our personalities survive our bodies. And here we come to a fifth factor in the joy of living—our faith. God wants to free our joy from the shadows of insecurity. How much thought we give to security these days—economic security, health security, national security. When we feel insecure, we cannot be happy. But in all our anxiety about security, do we give enough thought to the undergirding fact that "underneath are the everlasting arms?"

It was this faith in God's love which gave the early Christians their basic ground of joy. The word "gospel" means "good news" and through the gospel came the good news that God is a Father; that all of us regardless of race or color or station are his children; that the Heavenly Father keeps track of all his creatures even the falling sparrow and we are of more value than many sparrows; that God is infinite in compassion, tender in mercy, and is faithful and just to forgive the sins of those who repent; that we can be steadfast in our labors knowing that our labor is not vain in the Lord; that in short, "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

Try to imagine what good news all that seemed to those who heard it for the first time. Yes, try to think how much our earthly pleasures would fade if we lost our faith in God's care for us here and hereafter. If we are to know the joy of living, we must have faith that our will and conscience and interests are of value to God as well as to ourselves.

And all of them are linked to love, that first fruit of the Spirit which we considered last Sunday.

At the age of 72, the late industrialist Charles M. Schwab was involved in a petty lawsuit, pressed by a young man whom he had tried to help. After he had finished his testimony, Mr. Schwab asked the indulgence of the court to make a statement to those present. He said: "I am an old man and I want to say that ninety percent of my troubles have been due to being good to other people. If you younger folk want to avoid trouble, be hard-boiled and say 'no' to everybody. You will then walk through life unmolested"—and here a smile lit up his face and he added: "but you will have to do without friends and you won't have much fun."

To be sure, love and friendship involve risk. Every friendship is a new place at which we can be hurt. Every child is a potential heartbreak. A short time ago, I sat with a grief-stricken mother whose sorrow over the loss of a brilliant young son was too deep for words. She could have avoided that anguish. But when time has dried the eyes and calmed the mind, mothers and fathers realize that love gives more than death can take away. After all is said and done, the greatest joy in life is the joy of giving joy.

Henry Van Dyke expressed the Christian attitude when, after paying toll to youth and age, to life's inevitable losses and disappointments, he joyously declared that his heart would keep the courage of the quest and hope "the road's last turn will be the best."

My faith is that it will be.

Almighty and most merciful Father, whose faithfulness abides through all our fickleness and whose forgiveness outlasts our sins, we come to Thee by a road of broken pledges, praying for another chance to make life good. Arouse us to the wrongs to be righted but grant us the vision to see beyond the vices of men to the virtues which lie hidden even in the worst of us. Stir our hesitant hopes with some glad surprises this day. Grant comfort to those who suffer and courage to those who have been defeated. Keep those who are in plenty from being selfish and those who are in poverty from being bitter. Help us to end the war in our own hearts by the surrender of our wills to Thee, and to work for peace with our fellowmen throughout the earth; we ask through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen.

THE PEACE OF GOD

In our Lenten discussions of "God's Gifts for Great Living" we have considered growth, love and joy. We come now to peace, for Saint Paul in his fifth chapter of Galatians lists them thus: "The fruit of the spirit is love, joy, peace."

There are few words more frequently used and perhaps no word more fervently prayed in these days than the word, peace. Last summer in Belgrade, an American observer said that in the Russian broadcasts to Yugoslavia, the line of propaganda was to stress Russia's desire for peace. We Americans, however, put little faith in Russia's concept of peace when we think of her delaying tactics in the United Nations and her prison labor camps at home.

And how about ourselves? Suppose that tomorrow the Kremlin became friendly and the war clouds lifted, would we be at peace? We might well remember that it was back in 1946, just after the formation of the United Nations had dispelled the fears of war, Rabbi Joshua Liebman wrote his book "Peace of Mind," which became such a phenomenal best-seller and started the avalanche of books on how to find peace and happiness and inner security. Significant is it that we Americans began to seek peace of mind and soul far more feverishly after the war was over than when it was on. International peace does not guarantee inner peace.

Out of this confused time, one fact at least is becoming clear, namely, that external conditions cannot assure peace of mind and spirit. For that we must seek a deeper source. And our Bible tells us that source is in God. "The fruit of the Spirit is peace."

For one thing, God gives the peace which comes from having a sure foundation. Let us picture a family scene. It is Thanksgiving Day. At the ends of the long table sit grandfather and grandmother. They are still young and vigorous—as modern grandparents are or think they are! Around the table are their children and a growing brood of grandchildren. Death has never yet invaded that family circle of the three generations. Good positions and good investments give economic affluence. After the bountiful dinner, the grandfather leans back and says to himself, "I am at peace with the world."

But how insecure is such peace with the world! Within a week, death or accident, financial disaster or sudden threat of war may change the whole picture. Peace which rests only on adjustment to the world around us is precarious. Our feeling of security must be founded on something firmer and more abiding. We crave what the old hymn calls for:

"Change and decay in all around I see,
O Thou who changest not, abide with me."

The peace of God is secured by adjustment to the things that abide.

When, for instance, we trust God's justice, we get a certain peace of mind even in the midst of the world's injustice. Do not misunderstand me here. We are not to be complacent when corruption creeps ever higher in our political circles and violence takes law into its own hands, as it has been doing recently right here on the New York streets. Such things should arouse us to crusading reform. But they do not crush our spirits with despair if we have faith that a just God always has the last word. We can have the peace of the Psalmist when he said: "Fret not thyself because of evil-doers, neither be thou envious against the workers of iniquity, for they shall soon be cut down like the grass and wither as the green herb. Trust in the Lord and do good, so shalt thou dwell in the land and verily thou shalt be fed."

Also when we feel sure of God's eternal goodness, we get a certain sustaining peace even when suffering hits us. Instead of losing our faith through our affliction, we can share the calmness of Whittier when he wrote:

"In the maddening maze of things,
When tossed by storm and flood,
To one fixed spot my spirit clings,
I know that God is good."

And if God is good, there is purpose running through the seeming confusion, there is a harbor beyond the storm. While we cannot explain all our ills as God's will, we can believe that life's total experience is a school of divine discipline, and "Whom the Lord loveth, he chasteneth."

Thus trust in God's justice and goodness gives a foundation for peace which the storms of circumstance cannot shake. It is a confidence similar to that of the architect Bradford Gilbert when he built the first steel structure skyscraper in New York City back in the 1880's. When he proposed to erect a building thirteen stories high on a plot only twenty-one feet wide and hang it on a steel frame, the city was aghast. People said such a building would not stand against the wind, but Gilbert said it would resist a gale of one hundred miles an hour. One Sunday morning in 1886 when the building was up ten stories, the city was hit by a wind of eighty miles velocity. Crowds gathered to see the structure collapse. But Gilbert climbed to the top and let down a plumb line to show that there was no vibration and that the skyscraper was safe. He knew its foundation, and what it could stand.

His confidence makes me think of the words with which Matthew interprets Jesus as closing the Sermon on the Mount: "Whosoever heareth these words of mine and doeth them is like the wise man who built his house on the rock, and the floods came and the winds beat upon that house, and it stood."

When we found our trust on God, we get a peace which can withstand the storms of circumstance. Yes, even death itself. On the last night of his earthly life, Jesus said to his disciples: "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth give I unto you." Ah, certainly not as the world giveth, for the world does not give peace of mind in the shadow of the grave. If we have put our interest in worldly things, then death seems a dread invader tossing us into a dark unknown. But if we have cultivated a taste for the things that are invisible and eternal and lived for the spirit rather than the body, then we catch the assurance of Saint Paul: "I am persuaded that neither death nor life, neither things present nor things to come shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus, Our Lord."

Secondly, God gives the peace that comes through forgiveness. Our grandfathers gave much concern to the matter of "making one's peace with God" before death. When Henry Thoreau was asked whether he had made his peace with God, he is reported to have replied that he did not know God and he were enemies.

Of course, God never is our enemy. But we can estrange ourselves from God. And that is exactly what sin does. It estranges us from God. Just as a boy with a guilty conscience tends to avoid his father because he does not feel easy in his company, so the sinner, not feeling at ease with God, tries to avoid his presence, drifts away from church, ceases to pray.

Sin estranges us, not only from God but also from our fellow men. Sin always affects some personal relationship, always creates some kind of a barrier.

Yes, sin alienates a person even from himself. The man with a guilty conscience does not find himself good company. He avoids being alone with himself. In fact when a person is in sin, he is not quite himself. The record is that when the Prodigal Son woke up to his sin and repented, he "came to himself." He had not been quite himself there among the swineherds of sin.

Since sin estranges us from ourselves, our fellow men and from God, we can have no peace until we remove this estrangement. And the road to reconciliation is through repentence, confession and forgiveness. When the guilty man wakes up and considers how his sin is hurting his loved ones, he goes in humble repentence to confess and ask forgiveness. And when he has made a "clean breast" in confession, the loved one gives him him a "clean slate." And oh, what peace comes when the "clean breast" of confession is followed by the "clean slate" of forgiveness.

I suppose if we husbands really knew it, our wives love us not so much because we are the big, strong, independent men we think we are, but because we are the weak, dependent boys our wives know we are! That does not mean, of course, that the weaker husbands we are, the more our wives love us, but it does mean that love is strengthened by humility, repentence and mutual forgiveness. All who have loved, know the peace that comes through forgiveness.

We need the peace of God through forgiveness as much as our grandfathers did. And we do not remove this need by calling sin a complex. We can get rid of some mental complexes and anxieties by digging up their roots and seeing how trivial is their source. But we cannot get rid of moral evils so easily. When we bring our sins up into the light, they appear ugly and troublesome. We must repent and ask from God forgiveness and a fresh start.

And "God is faithful to forgive us our sins." He leaves us with our past, but he takes away its control over us. The remembrance of our sin humbles us, but the sin itself can no longer humiliate us. We find the peace of God which comes through forgiveness.

But when we have made a clean breast and God gives us a fresh start, we have to start. And then appears a third factor in the peace of God. This is the peace of orderliness which comes through the organizing force God puts into our lives.

Peace is not static. Jesus made that clear in his parable of the house which had been cleared of evil spirits and then was left empty. The result was that it became filled with more and worse spirits. When God forgives, he frees us from our sins but he frees us for service. And the only way to keep our minds and spirits at peace is to keep them occupied and active. Sometimes we are so tired, that we need to sit down and rest. But usually what keeps us from having inner peace is not that we are run down but that we are wound up. And we do not unwind ourselves by sitting still too long.

On tombstones we sometimes see inscribed the words, "Rest in Peace." But we should remember Jesus' prescription for rest. Hear it: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest; take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly of heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls." Rest, in this world and the next, comes not through idleness but through being properly yoked with Our Lord in service.

When we team up with Christ we get a singleness of eye which makes for our peace of mind. Jesus said: "If thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light." We darken our minds by looking over the fences to see if our neighbor's pasture is greener than ours. We look to the side to see if our rival is passing us, and thus we stumble or lose heart. But when Christ gives us an eye single to the Kingdom of God, we are freed from the side-glances which confuse us with comparisons and confound us with jealousies.

And this Christ-like singleness of eye leads to a singleness of aim which delivers us from the indecisiveness that is so exhausting. When we finally get a settled purpose and determine our direction, our energy can be spent in making the journey. We become committed to higher interests which lift us above the downward drag of low desires. The scattered and divided self becomes organized around a central driving purposeful force and we receive what Whittier prayed for, when he said:

"Take from our souls the strain and stress,
And let our ordered lives confess,
The beauty of thy peace."

Yet we must remember that not every driving purpose is permanent enough to give us lasting peace. Hence, God gives a fourth factor, namely the peace that comes through fulfillment.

A person may find peace for a time and even quite a long time through his work. But after years of engrossing and seemingly satisfying work, he may wake up as Charles Darwin did to find that he had allowed some of his faculties to atrophy and part of his nature to dry up. Or in any case, if a person lives only for his work, what is he going to do when he retires?

Also we may find peace and joy by falling in love. But human love unsupported by something higher is not enough to keep us going when death takes away the loved one.

We may find a certain peace by enlisting in some cause, but unless the cause serves the Kingdom of God, it will prove too transient and leave us in the disillusioned state of Cardinal Wolsey who after giving himself to further the ambitions of his fickle king, Henry the Eighth, cried:

"Had I but served my God with half the zeal I served my king, he would not in mine age have left me naked to mine enemies."

And certainly we cannot find lasting peace through filling our lives with pleasures. When pleasure is made an end in itself, it usually proves disappointing. And when we try to fill our inner emptiness by "taking in," whether it be delicious food or alluring sights or public honors, we eventually get "fed up."

The peace of God comes not by trying to fill ourselves but by trying to fulfill ourselves.

Since we are made in the image of God, we find the peace of fulfillment through giving ourselves to godly things. We cannot be contented on the animal level. As Saint Augustine said: "Thou hast made us for thyself, O God, and we are restless till we find rest in thee."

Since God is love and we are made in his image, we find the peace of fulfillment through love. Unless our lives are flooded by outgoing affection they become filled with impurities which poison our peace. The life that is damned by selfishness is damned.

Since we are made in the Creator's image, we too must be creators and we find the peace of fulfillment through constructive service. One of the most inspiring figures of the medical profession was the late Sir William Osler, who did so much to make Johns Hopkins Medical School famous. When he left America for Oxford, he expressed his philosophy of living thus: "I have three personal ideals. One is to do the day's work well and not bother about tomorrow. The second has been to act the Golden Rule as far as in me lay, toward my professional brethren and toward the patients committed to my care. The third has been to cultivate such measure of equanimity as would enable me to bear success with humility, the affection of my friends with pride, and to be ready when the day of sorrow and grief come, to meet it with courage befitting a man."

Such a statement reveals much of his gallant spirit which so endeared him to his associates. But a friend in Baltimore said something still more revealing when he declared that Dr. Osler "had sown seed in places where nothing had ever grown before." He was not content merely to pay back what he had received. He left the world richer than he found it. Thus he fulfilled his nature.

We are made for growth. Our minds are at peace only when we feel that we are going some place and also getting somewhere. If we are worthy children of God, we do not shrink back from the future, whining, "What will become of us?" Rather, we face the tomorrows hopefully shouting, "What shall we become?". And if we catch the spirit of Christ's first followers, we shall say with them: "Beloved, now we are the sons of God and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him." In Christ is the pattern of our becoming and in growing up into him, do we find the peace of fulfillment.

"Peace does not mean the end of all our striving,
Joy does not mean the drying of our tears.
Peace is the joy that comes to souls arriving
Up to the place where God himself appears."

God of all grace, grant unto us Thy peace which passeth understanding, that in quietness and confidence we shall find our strength. Mercifully help us in our struggle to be good and true. Encourage us in every effort to be loyal and loving. Keep us from blaming others for our own faults and search our hearts for the causes of our secret sins. Make us kindly in thought, gentle in word, generous in deed. Lift our eyes to see the needs of those who sit in the shadow of want and sorrow, and lengthen our sympathy to serve Thy children everywhere. Grant us the strength to bear our own burdens manfully and the grace to help the weak without hurting their self-respect. May we be so governed by Thy will and guarded by Thy love that we may further the peace of the world and finally enter into our eternal rest; through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen.

THE POWER OF PATIENCE

In these Lenten studies of "God's Gifts for Great Living" we come now to one that does not receive much popular applause. To most Americans the quality of patience looks rather pale as if it lacked vitality. It is regarded as a valuable virtue for the weak and the sick, but the strong prefer more rugged and ruddy traits which help them to get ahead. And especially at this particular time when we are so beset by crime and corruption within our country and so bedeviled by deceit and delay beyond our borders, the public is calling not for patience, but for quick and surgical action.

Yet Saint Paul included patience among his fruits of the Spirit, and for a very good reason. Without patience the others would not be brought to fruition. Recall the list in the fifth chapter of Galatians: "The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace" and then he adds "long-suffering," as the King James version puts it, or "patience" as the Revised Standard Version translates it. This fourth fruit, patience, is necessary to the preceding three.

Consider love, the first on the list. None of us would have learned what love is, had not someone possessed the patience to teach us. In fact, we would not have grown up at all, had not patient hands guided us through the pitfalls of helpless infancy. What infinite patience it takes to be a good parent, answering the endlessly repeated questions of little lips, following the straying toddling steps, mending broken little toys and hearts.

And what patience is required to keep marital love from losing its romance. There has to be adjustment between diverse temperaments, the teaming of individuals who travel at different tempo, the harmonizing of varying tastes and interests, the sharing of sympathy in weakness and forgiveness in waywardness—and all this takes patience. Fellowship cannot be preserved in any circle without forbearance —the forbearance which patiently withholds judgment in times of doubt and hasty words in times of irritation. Think what patience is revealed in the words: "Love suffereth long and is kind . . .; is not easily provoked; love beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things."

Also, patience is necessary for the second fruit of the Spirit, joy. We may dash hurriedly from thrill to thrill, and crowd our days with passing pleasures. But the pleasures of the moment merely added together do not make deep abiding joy. Our better pleasures, like our better tastes, have to be cultivated and harmonized. And as in music, the very interruptions enrich the melody of our enjoyment. This is the truth John Ruskin recognized. He said: "Not without design does God write the music of our lives. Be it ours to learn the time and not be discouraged at the 'rests.' If we say sadly, 'There is no music in a 'rest,' let us not forget 'There is the making of music in it.' The making of music is often a slow and painful process in this life. How patiently God works to teach us! How long he waits for us to learn the lesson." The most truly joyous persons I happen to know intimately have had suffering and interruptions but by their patience they transferred these pauses into rests that enriched the composition of their lives.

And as for peace, which Paul lists as the third fruit of the Spirit, that too is impossible without patience. About a century ago Oliver Wendell Holmes was visiting the summer social colony at Newport. While there he overheard this remark: "After all, when a woman is well-dressed, she has a peace of mind which no religion can give." But the old Yankee poet realized that any peace of mind is very precarious if it has no other foundation than that of sitting on the height of fashion. In fact it is the effort to keep up with the passing show that so often destroys our inner peace. Ours is called the "Age of Tension"; and "a war of nerves" is going on between Russia and America. But not many of our nervous breakdowns are caused by the international tenseness. Most of us have to confess that what wears our nerves ragged and worries our minds most is the race to keep ahead in the competition of our own social and business circles.

If we are to have peace of mind, we must have the patience to see faster rivals pass us without losing heart and faith, the patience to endure physical affliction without becoming bitter, the patience to bear "the whips and scorns of time, the proud man's contumely, the pangs of disprized love, the law's delay" and the other "ills that flesh is heir to."

And if we are to have a just and durable peace on the world scale, the strong, advanced, dynamic nations such as ours must have patience with the weaker and slower-paced countries. If we are not patient with such admittedly imperfect instruments as the United Nations, we shall be paralyzed by perfectionism and drift back into darkness.

Having thus considered the necessity of patience, let us think now about its cultivation.

For one thing, if we are to acquire patience we must take in hand the factor of temper. Temper is a curious element in our make-up, isnt it? If we "lose our temper" that is bad. If we "show our temper" that is also bad. Temper is something we must keep but keep under control. The word in our text which we are calling patience means in the Greek, "tempered through suffering."

And when I think of tempering, I am reminded of the village blacksmith shop where as a boy I used to take the horses to be shod. I often feel sorry for the modern city youths who are not familiar with the old-fashioned blacksmith shop! I would see the smithy take a curved strip of iron, heat it in the forge to glowing softness, then hammer it on the anvil, then dip it in a tub of water, then more heating and hammering and dipping until finally it was brought to the proper shape for the horse's hoof and the proper toughness to stand uncounted poundings on the pavement.

Similarly some human souls undergo tempering in the forge and on the anvil of life. Consider the classic case of Elijah, the prophet. When we first see Elijah, he was impatient and impetuous. On Mount Carmel he staged the contest with the priests of Baal. According to the record, the Baal priests were to call upon their god to send down fire to consume the offered sacrifice. They failed. Then Elijah prayed to Jehovah and the fire came. This turned the crowd against the priests. Elijah pressed his advantage until the people were aroused to slaughter the priests of Baal.

But when Queen Jezebel took after Elijah to avenge the priests' death, he fled in fear. He lived in the cave and bemoaned his fate, crying to Jehovah to take away his life because he was the only faithful man left alive. Then the Lord led him up into the midst of a mountain storm. The lightning flashed, the thunder crashed and the wind roared, but the Lord was not in the storm. After that came the still small voice, and Elijah felt the Lord's presence, learning that "it is not by might nor by power but by my spirit" saith the Lord.

Thus Elijah was so tempered into patience by his experience that he went back to find seven thousand faithful ones with whom he could work, and a young colleague named Elisha with whom he could cooperate. Thus Elijah joined the innumerable company of those whom God has taught how "tribulation worketh patience."

Also if we are to cultivate patience, we must consider the factor of time. We Americans are so increasingly time-conscious. Our grandfathers carried watches in their pockets and took them out only occasionally, but we carry watches openly on our wrists. And I know a man who carries a watch on the back of his wrist and another on the front of his wrist so that he can see the time without turning his hand!

There are some simple ways by which we can help to free ourselves from the tyranny of time. My friend, Doctor Charles Allen down in Atlanta, recently did a very practical thing. He had been fretted by the slow traffic from downtown Atlanta to his home during rush hours. It was making him tense. So he drove the distance at a quiet hour under the most favorable conditions and he found that it took only six minutes less than during the crowded hours. Realizing that six minutes were not enough to lose one's health over, he reconciled himself to the delayed driving by turning on the radio, relaxing and enjoying the time instead of fretting.

And we might remember what the late Emmet Fox said, that the present moment in any experience is never intolerable. At the very moment we are saying, "This is unbearable" we are bearing it. What makes us feel that an experience is intolerable is what we fear may happen the next minute or the next week. Hence if we lived one moment at a time, we could free ourselves from so much fear and fretfulness.

Jesus possessed the secret of serenity in the midst of strain. He was on a world mission with only a few months "to work the works" of the Father who had sent him. Yet Jesus gave no appearance of being hurried or flustered. He had time to talk with little children and mingle with wedding guests. He often said to his disciples, "Come ye apart and rest awhile."

I think Jesus would have smiled if he had attended the church service described in a recent radio letter. It happened in a very active church. The minister spent quite a while in making announcements about the meetings and events of the ensuing week. Then he looked at his watch and announced, "We shall cut the next hymn and sing only the first and last stanzas." The hymn printed in the program happened to be, "Take time to be holy!" Yes, I think Jesus would have smiled at that, but a bit sadly, for it is so symbolic of our enslavement to time.

But if we are to develop patience we must do more than relax our pace and take time off for meditation. We must catch the deeper secret of God's attitude toward time. The godless man feels that he must rush through to his success because it is now or never. But the godly man can take more time because he feels the issues of life are continual and eternal. This is the truth the Psalmist tried so often to impart. Listen: "A thousand years in thy (God's) sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night." It is the secret of serenity expressed by Browning when he said, "Our times are in thy hand who said, 'A whole I planned.'"

And this leads to still a further factor in the cultivation of patience. If we are to control our tempering and our timing, we must have trust in God.

Think how the prophet Isaiah kept his poise when his nation's weak government, through fear of invasion, was feverishly trying to form an alliance with the fickle government of Egypt. Isaiah saw it would be far better for his nation to stand on principle than resort to expediency and he counseled: "In returning and rest shall ye be saved, in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength." And I often wonder if our government would not appear stronger before the world if, instead of following expediency and trying to line up on our side almost every kind of foreign nation, whether free or fettered, we should try to stand firmly on God's side, raising the standard of freedom and justice to which all lovers of decency and liberty could repair. O, for some powerful dramatic voice to say convincingly to all the world that America stands for divine principles and not political expediency!

Jesus was voicing a secret of patience when he told the parable of the tares to restrain his impetuous followers from rushing in and destroying the wheat by their effort to remove the weeds. There is a patience that comes from trusting the God of the harvest.

Saint Paul was expressing the trust which makes for patience when he said: "Be ye steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." God is faithful and just. He oversees everything and overlooks nothing.

From all the voices of the past can we in the hectic present learn the counsel of patience: "Fret not thyself because of evil-doers . . . trust in the Lord and do good, so shalt thou dwell in the land."

But now lest some may think that patience is a pale, negative, passive resignation to things as they are, let us look for a moment at the power of patience.

Benjamin Disraeli said that "patience is a necessary ingredient of genius." And Disraeli should have known for his public career began in failure. When he as a foppish young politician made his first speech in Parliament, he was jeered. But he vowed that the time would come when they would hear him. And by tempering and timing he so disciplined himself that he rose to be Queen Victoria's trusted prime minister.

Buffon, the French writer, put the truth still more strongly when he wrote: "Genius is nothing else than a great aptitude for patience." If we doubt this, we might think over the records of the great inventors and discoverers. Was it simply superior talents and brilliance which brought their achievements? No. We think, for instance, of Madame Curie who had the patience to persevere through the incredibly tedious and heart-breaking failures until she found the sought-for radium.

Patience sustains the power of endurance. Measured by the test of military tactics, Benedict Arnold was probably as brilliant as George Washington. Arnold was the hero of the early Revolutionary War days because of his bravery and skill at Saratoga and Ticonderoga. But he could not stand the delays and criticism which he later confronted, and he turned bitter and betrayed his country. And what makes Washington so revered? Not merely his military genius, although he did possess that; but the patience with which he endured the delays, the profiteering of the greedy farmers, the sabotage of fifth columnists. In him was demonstrated the truth: "They that wait on the Lord shall renew their strength: they shall mount up on wings as eagles, they shall run and not be weary," (which is harder), "they shall walk and not faint" (which is still harder, just to keep slogging ahead when things have slowed down to a walk). But there is something hardest of all, that is, as the Apostle said, "to stand and having done all, to stand."

It is good to cultivate the energy and foresight and courage which can help us to go out into the world and "make it." But it is also important to develop the fortitude and forbearance and patience which can help us to stand and "take it," to hold on when "there's nothing left save the will which says, 'hold on'."

Patience also gives the power of self-possession. Jesus said to his disciples, "In your patience possess ye your souls." Perhaps a contrast will throw some light on what it is to possess one's soul. Napoleon at the height of his power made Europe tremble at his tread. But when he was defeated at Waterloo and exiled to St. Helena, he went to pieces. He broke down into a peevish, fretful temper and losing all dignity and composure of soul, died before his time. Contrast the latter days of Napoleon with those of Saint Paul, who also ended his years in a prison, knowing that from its doors he would be led to his death. Yet out of that dungeon Paul wrote to his young friend Timothy: "I know whom I have believed and I am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day." Such words reveal that he had come to possess his soul.

Yes, through patience men persevere even to the power of salvation. I have come to believe that Judas Iscariot did not betray Jesus out of greed for the mere thirty pieces of silver. Judas was playing for bigger stakes. He had heard Jesus talking about a promised Kingdom of Heaven. Judas assumed that the disciples would hold high places in this new Kingdom. But he wondered why Jesus did not proceed to set it up. Judas grew impatient with his Master's program. Perhaps if Jesus were arrested, he would show his hand. Why not, therefore, bring the issue to a head? So he led the officers to Jesus in Gethsemane. But still Jesus did not resort to force, and Judas realized that his scheme had failed. Whereupon he threw the pieces of silver back at his bribers and hanged himself. By his impatience he lost his salvation.

May it be that for some person now hearing my voice, the most needed next step on the road to salvation is patience?

Great God and Father of Mankind, forgive our feverish ways. Give us inner peace that we may have outer strength and deliver us from the distractions which fret us and the temptations which torment us. Help us so to handle our own lives that we may be a lift and not a burden to others. Be especially near to our sailors on the sea and our soldiers scattered throughout the earth. Comfort all who are in pain, calm those who are in anxiety, encourage those who are in despair. Guide all leaders of good causes, give wisdom to the rulers of all lands, and grant us as a people the wisdom to see the way to peace and the will to follow it; through Jesus Christ, Our Lord. Amen.

THE ROAD TO ROYAL LIVING

May I ask you a question this morning? Do the original events of Palm Sunday evoke a feeling of pity for Jesus or arouse a sense of power in Jesus? Glance at the familiar scene again. A little cavalcade comes over the brow of the hill and the capital city of Jerusalem looms before them. The leader of the company is riding a lowly beast of burden. His companions strew his path with palm branches and shout: "Hosanna to the King." But in his eyes there are tears. While his comrades think he is riding to his coronation, he realizes that he is going to his crucifixion.

Contrast the little company of the Christ with the clanking soldiers and prancing chargers which would have accompanied a Roman official, Sholom Asch, in his book The Nazarene draws upon his imagination and injects an incident into the Palm Sunday proceedings. Asch pictures the procession of Jesus meeting the cohorts of Pilate as they accompany the Roman governor to an official function. As might be expected, the followers of Christ were forced into a side street to make way for the scornful Romans. The episode, though only imagined, serves to point the contrast between the pompous power of Rome and the humble carpenter who was hailed as king. Viewed by the world's standards, the entrance of Jesus into Jerusalem seems tragedy rather than triumph.

What then is the purpose of observing Palm Sunday?

Is it to arouse sympathy for Christ's sufferings? Certainly it does do that, for it was a prelude to a week of unspeakable anguish, marked by cruel criticism, deserting crowds, a mocking trial, a bloody scourging and the excruciating pain of the cross. All in all, our Lord's last week was a tragedy that tears at our hearts.

And yet I for one cannot think of Jesus standing in the streets of Jerusalem, pleading for sympathy as if he were a poor victim to be pitied. There were tears in his eyes as he beheld Jerusalem. Yet the cause of his crying was not his own suffering, but rather the blindness and future calamities of his beloved city. It is a royal figure we remember today. This is the memorial of a Master. While our hearts do go out to the Christ, the primary purpose of Palm Sunday was to put heart into us.

Our text, therefore, is not a plea but a promise. The man who more than any other came to understand how Christ does impart his mastery to men wrote of those who had caught his power these words: "They . . . shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ." There was a regal power in the Christ which helps others to live royally and triumphantly.

Let us look a little way into the Master's method of imparting the reigning life to others. First of all, he helps others to reign in life by revealing what royal living is. We often speak of having a royal time. We have also an expression of "living like a king." But whence do we draw our patterns of what royal living is? Do we not take them from the heads of states, those monarchs who receive the homage of their subjects and wield power over vast dominions? Or we think of those potent figures, called kings of finance, whose affluence gives them personal security and whose monetary control gives them public prestige. To live in the higher economic brackets, to afford anything our taste desires, to be looked up to for our influence and power—these are among the elements which make for royal living. So we think. To be perfectly frank, even we who call Christ our King, do we regard his way of life as living like a king? We feel called to follow him as a duty, but how many of us think of our Christian duties as giving us a royal good time?

Perhaps we are thinking of Jesus more gloomily than we ought to think. Perhaps we ought to remind ourselves what a royal time he had. His life was not all thorns. He did not undergo a perpetual Calvary. His early Galilean ministry was pretty well filled with sunshine. He referred to himself and his comrades as a bridal party, a fact which shows that his life was not all shadow. He did not refuse the simple joys and social recreations, the dinners and wedding suppers. We must not think of Jesus as being always tense and wrought up with the strain of his mission. He took time to talk and play with little children, to revel in the beauties of nature. There could scarcely have been a harassed and driven look about him who stood by the roadside and said invitingly to troubled, anxious souls: "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden and I will give you rest. . . . My yoke is easy and my burden is light."

No, if we would see Jesus as he really was, we must see not merely the crown of thorns, but also the palm branches of joy; not merely the spear thrust into his side on the cross, but also the arm of loving comradeship locked in his; not merely the Last Supper with its betrayal, but the wedding feast at Cana with its unclouded radiance. True, our Lord did suffer as no man hath ever suffered, because his sympathies were more infinitely tender and extensive. He took upon himself the sins of the whole world. He felt in his own person the pain inflicted on the sick, the oppressed, the imprisoned, even to the least of these. "He was wounded for our transgressions; he was bruised for our iniquities." He carried his cross, but he did it with a regal air. "There was a soaring quality in his spirit which rose above the heavy atmosphere that shut down upon his world." And that is royal living.

If we would follow Jesus, we need not expect that we shall have to march under incessant fire, be voted impossible by all our social intimates, and be ever wearing a crown of thorns. Difficult as it is to be a Christian, let us not think of Jesus' way of life as gloomy and depressing.

He was master of himself. He always had himself under complete control. He was tempted in all points even as we are, yet without sin. When the crowd flattered, he did not lose his head. When the crowd leered and cursed, he did not lose his nerve. He never gave way to bitterness under the bludgeoning of his critics, nor to revenge when the opposition weakened. He was always master of himself. And that is royal living.

He was master of physical circumstances. He was poor, yet he never gave the impression of being poverty-stricken. He was one of those persons whose sources of satisfaction seemed so independent of money. Instead of struggling, as most men do, to make himself independent with wealth, Jesus made himself independent of wealth. He never seemed pinched or restricted by the limitations of his environment although he lived under conditions which we in our machine age would call intolerable. He had that secret of large free living which Patrick Henry recognized when he put a closing paragraph in his will, reading thus: "I have now disposed of all my property to my family; there is one thing more I wish I could give them and that is the Christian religion. If they had this and I had not given them one shilling, they would be rich; and if they had not that and I had given them all the world, they would be poor." Yes, we do not know how much the Carpenter of Nazareth made, but we know what he made—namely, a life which was master of physical circumstances. And that is royal living.

Moreover, Jesus was master of pain. As a physician he sought to banish from men all needless pain. But when it came he stood up to it. He never allowed pain to make his words petulant nor frustration to fray his temper. Jesus prayed that the cup of suffering might pass from him, but when he saw that it was necessary, he drank it—drank it with the smile of a winning sportsman, saying to his comrades, "Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world." Jesus endured the indescribable pain of the cross without becoming bitter toward those who inflicted it, saying, "Father forgive them for they know not what they do." And in all his suffering, he retained faith in the goodness of God, crying with confidence at the end, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." Truly, he manifested victory over pain. And that is royal living.

And the supreme test of his triumphant attitude was his mastery of death. I refer not, at the moment, to the victorious way he emerged from the grave, but to the serene way he walked toward it. Jesus knew he was about to die. He had an incurable disease—that of love, which he knew would lead him to lay down his life. I have sometimes wondered what I would do if I knew I had but six months to live. Would I try to forget the fatal fact in excessive and extravagant indulgence? Or would I grow morbid about my approaching death, either talking too much about it, or assuming a mock heroism toward it? Well, Jesus did none of these things, he walked toward his death with such serenity and seeming unconcern that his closest friends could not believe that he was going to die. That is royal living, isn't it? And when at last his enemies had nailed him to a cross and he was hanging in agony, there was still something so majestic about him that a dying thief crucified beside him, turned to him and cried: "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy Kingdom." The Christ was still kingly, even on the cross. When a man can go to the grave as he did, that is royal living—and royal dying.

In this era of the strong man, when we have made a fetish of physical force and multitudes bow submissively before blustering dictators, we do well to reappraise the majesty and power which were in Christ Jesus. In this age of commercialism when we measure men by their purses, we do well to look again at Christ's kind of royal living, his masterful way of reigning over himself and his environment, over his suffering and his death.

The promise of our text is, remember, "They . . . shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ." And the first way he helps men to reign in life is to reveal what royal living is.

A second way in which Christ helps us to reign in life is to reveal the royal in ourselves. More than that, he helps us to "be loyal to the royal" in ourselves.

Jesus did not merely demonstrate a regal mastery of life. He was more than a brilliant example. He came that we might have life and have it abundantly, royally. What if Jesus had been only a brilliant example which we cherished as a noble memory. We would then look back to his glorious life and say, "Yes, he was like that. It seems incredible that any one could have been so perfect, yet he was. But he was a spiritual genius and we are ordinary men. We have seen the great man, but we must go on being little men. He reigned in life, but that is beyond us."

Well, that is not the way Jesus has affected men. He was no mere star performer, dazzling spectators with his feats of power and mastery. He was a team player, linking himself with others, imparting his strength to them and helping them to reign with him in life. He teamed up with Simon, the fisherman of turbulent temper who could not control his own cowardice, and transformed him into Peter, the master of his passions and the brave leader of his fellow disciples. He singled out of the crowd the hiding Zacchaeus, ashamed of his job and his record, and made him feel again that he was a son of Abraham, able to look the world in the eye, unashamed and unafraid. One day at the well of Samaria he met a woman whose tawdry domestic existence had closed the doors of decent society against her and he imparted to her sullen and hopeless spirit a new lease on life. They brought to him a poor broken woman taken in the sin which called for death by stoning, and he gave her back her self-respect. Thus he took those who were down and made them to reign in life.

And what he did Jesus still can do. He restores our inner sense of royal worth and imparts to us his power to reign over life's enslavements. Certain modern writers would have us believe that man is only an animal crawling over the epidermis of the earth toward meaningless extinction, or as Mr. Mencken once put it, "Man is just a sick fly taking a dizzy ride on a gigantic fly-wheel." But Jesus says not so. He gives to life such meaning and dignity that his followers are filled with hope which cries: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him." Certain governments today operate on the principle that the individual is merely the tool of the state. But Jesus lifts man out of the indignity where the dictators place him, and asserts that the institution of state, like that of the Sabbath, is made for man and not man for the state. In the eyes of Christ every one of us is an end in himself and not a mere means to an end. We are not meant to be cannon fodder for imperial ambitions, but sons of God headed for immortal destiny.

Some of us work under conditions where we seem to be but cogs in a machine. Men may call us "hands" and foremen may know us by number. I read some years ago of a woman who died in a neighboring state. She was the last, but one, of a group of women who contracted a fatal disease while painting watches. For years they knew they were doomed to die. They were each awarded, as I recall, $10,000 and $600 a year during their disability before death. Some of us are $10,000-a-year men and some of us are $10,000-a-death employees. But Christ puts no such monetary distinctions on us.

"All I could never be,
All men ignored in me,
That I was worth to God,
Whose wheel the pitcher shaped."

Yes, Christ reveals the royal values in ourselves and then helps to hold us loyal to them. The thought of him keeps men true to those high fidelities which would falter if left to our own strength. When the temptations of the flesh beset us, men are able to say with the apostle of old, "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord, Jesus Christ." When the odds seem too greatly against the good, men remember Christ and cry with John: "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." Thus men do "reign in life by one, Jesus Christ."

And what is more, Christ imparts a reigning principle which sustains royal living even to the end of our days. Some men may be on top of the world for a time, and yet end their days in fretful and petulant gloom. About ten years ago I said in a radio sermon that I sometimes indulged the thought of what Hitler and Mussolini, the proud dictators of that day, would do when they retired. As Fate decreed, they were never allowed to retire. But we did get a brief glimpse of the sorry spectacle made by the craven fleeing Mussolini before he was strung up by the heels. And we heard reports of Hitler's fitful melancholy before he ended his life under Berlin's ruins.

We remember the latter years of Bismarck—Bismarck, whose figure was so vital and whose eye was so lustrous while he held the reins of power. But when the Iron Chancellor was replaced by the young Kaiser Wilhelm, the verve and zest seemed to go out of his frame. Lonely, morose, bewildered, he ended his days in shadow.

It is one thing to live regally for a time; it is another to ride royally to the end. This latter victory is given only to those who serve causes larger than themselves and with motives greater than ambition. It was in such causes that Christ came to enlist men. And those who do give themselves to his enterprises, say at the end with the veteran Paul, as he looked back on the persecution and perils he had endured, "In all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us." That is royal living. That is reigning "in life by one, Jesus Christ."

Almighty and ever gracious God, who through Thy Son didst reveal a love that will not let us go, draw us very close to Thee during this Holy Week of Our Lord's passion that we may enter with understanding into His triumph. Help us to hear Thy knock on the doors of our hearts and to welcome Thy control of our wills. Give us strength to set our faces steadfastly against all that would crucify afresh the Christ-spirit, in our midst. Awaken us to real dangers and calm our needless fears. As we behold the courage and devotion of Thy Son who died for us, may we be mellowed in heart, deepened in sympathy and strengthened in faith. During these sacred days draw Thy whole family nearer together by bringing us closer to the Cross; through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen.

THE VICTORY OVER DEATH

It is a point worthy of note that Easter services are full of joy, while funeral services are filled with sorrow. Yet both confront the same fact—death. Why this difference? Must it not be confessed that most of us do not get a strong enough grip on the Easter faith to sustain us when death comes into our closest circles?

Just as the incoming tide covers the sand bars of a shore line, so the Easter anniversary with its crowds, its choruses, its triumphant gladness flows in to hide the rocks and treacherous shoals of death. It is the day when "death is swallowed up in victory."

But the test of the Easter faith comes in the days after, when the festival tide has ebbed and the stark fact of death is laid bare by the loss of a loved one. Hence today we take our text not from the shouts of the glad Easter morning but from a passage written years afterward and frequently read at funeral services. It is in the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians. Here it is: "Death is swallowed up in victory. . . . Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through Our Lord, Jesus Christ."

Let us consider how Christ helps us to be victors over death.

First of all, he strengthens our faith that life survives death. The foundation of my belief in immortality reaches farther back than the resurrection of Christ. It rests on the very integrity of the universe. The belief in a life beyond the grave has persisted through all races. This conviction is strongest in our healthiest moments and rises out of our noblest emotion, that of love. The Creator has endowed us with the power to love, to evaluate, to hope. These powers are as integral to human nature as the craving of the body for food and drink and air. Surely the Creator who keeps faith with the appetites of our bodies will not play false to the hungers of our souls.

If life ended at the grave, this would seem an irrational world. It would mean that the universe, having groaned in travail to bring forth its highest creation, human personality, then tosses it into the dust heap, a piece of rotting flesh less valuable than rusting iron which can be salvaged for future use. In this universe we are told there is conservation of energy and the light of a candle does not stop when the flame is extinguished but goes on traveling through space. Can we then believe that the light of love which shone in the eyes of our dead dear ones has vanished into nothingness? No. This is a universe whose physical laws we can so trust that we build skyscrapers seventy stories high like this one, from which I am now speaking. Surely, then we can trust the highest longings of our spirits.

And Christ by his life teaching has enhanced our belief in the fidelity of the Creator. He taught that the ruler of this world is a Heavenly Father, who clothes the grass of the fields and feeds the fowls of the air, who is more eager than earthly fathers to give good things to his children. And Christ so lived what he taught that men beheld in his face the glory of God. Since water does not rise higher than its source, the Christ who became flesh must have come from a Heavenly Father as good as he was. And if God be as good as Christ, I for one feel that I can trust him both for this world and whatever may come after.

Moreover, the work of Christ did not end on Calvary. The stories of the resurrection present some difficulties which my reason cannot resolve. But when I let my mind lie open to the record and allow each gospel to bring its wave of testimony in on my thought, I feel a rising tide of conviction that Christ did triumph over the grave.

The sorrowful women going out in the misty morning to anoint the body of their departed Leader; the experience at the tomb which sent them rushing back to bring the disciples: the evening walk to Emmaus when a mysterious presence seemed to accompany them and to make their hearts burn within them on the way; the upper room a week later with the disciples gathered around the still doubting Thomas, and then his cry of conviction, "My Lord and my God"—these were the Easter reports and they were told with such restraint and artlessness that I cannot believe they were inventions. Nor can I think of them as ghost stories told by deluded though perhaps honest persons. What ghost ever had the effect of producing moral grandeur in the people who thought they saw him? Yet that is what the Resurrection did for the disciples. It transformed them from defeated refugees into triumphant radiant apostles proclaiming their risen Lord.

If you can believe that a religious movement, founded on a falsehood, can produce men of integrity and go on growing until it numbers over 600,000,000 followers, then you are welcome to your opinion. But for myself, I find it harder to explain away than to explain. And I say, "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through Our Lord Jesus Christ" by strengthening our faith that life survives death.

Moreover, Christ helps us to overcome not only our doubts about death but also our dread of death.

Why do we have such fear of death that we are ever fleeing from it and casting frightened glances over our shoulder at this stern spectre which dogs our steps? Perhaps this failure to look death in the face is partly the cause of our fear. It does seem that those who have come closest to death in battle or in serious illness develop a kind of calm courage. Among the treasured bits of literature are some letters left by Dr. Edward Wilson, the brave and brilliant explorer who lost his life in the Antarctic. Listen to his words written to his wife as he knew the end was near: "Don't be unhappy. We are playing a good part in a great scheme arranged by God himself, and all is well. . . . We will all meet after death and death hath no terrors . . . all is for the best to those who have loved God, and we have both loved him with all our lives."

Such courage has the Christlike quality, for it was in that spirit that Christ walked toward the cross. He knew he was about to die. For one half hour in Gethsemane he prayed that the cross might be avoided; but he arose saying, "Not my will but thine be done." Having surrendered his will, he took death in his stride, saying to his comrades: "Let not your heart be troubled neither let it be afraid."

When we look death in the face with the consciousness of our Heavenly Father's love, the grave loses part of its dread. Is it the pain of dying that we fear? Physicians assure us that quite usually the actual pain at the time of passing is less than many of the pains we endure in living. And when we catch the spirit of the Great Physician, the physical aspects of dying lose their terrors. One of the most saintly souls in my circle of acquaintance is Bishop Bergraf, the primate of Norway. You will remember him as the heroic figure who resisted the Nazi invasion of Norway and was placed under house arrest, where he lived for months in the shadow of possible death. When he was asked about his view of death, he answered with a simple story. One day a peasant took his little son on a visit to a village some distance away. On the road they had to cross a swift stream which was spanned by a rickety narrow bridge. It was dark when they started home. The boy remembered the shaky bridge and was frightened. His father, noticing his fear, lifted the lad up and carried him in his arms. In a few minutes the little fellow was fast asleep on his father's shoulder. When he awoke, he was at home with the morning sun streaming through the window of his bedroom. Such was Bishop Bergraf's description of the act of dying.

What is it we dread about death? Perhaps it is the loss of what we have loved here on earth—our homes, our possessions, our loved ones. Yes, I think that is what we fear most. And here too, Christ helps us, if we let him. During our days here Christ would set us to living with lasting things. He would turn our gaze and thoughts from "the things that are seen and temporal" to "the things that are invisible and eternal." He told us to transfer our hearts' affections to the treasures which "moth and rust do not consume and which thieves do not break through and steal."

If we learn to value character and love more than lands and cars, then we are getting our treasures into the form we can take with us. If we learn to like what Jesus liked, beauty, truth and goodness, then we shall enjoy the place which he said he was going to prepare for us. Then death will be a going home.

And love will not lose its own. Oh, of course, death brings a separation for a time and no words can dispel the loneliness.

"It singeth low in every heart,
We hear it, each and all,
A song of those who answer not,
However we may call."

Yes, we know the ache of lonely hearts. But go on to the last stanza of that hymn:

"They cannot be where God is not
On any sea or shore,
Whate'er betides, thy love abides,
Our God forevermore."

Just a week before last Easter, I was called to a hospital where a boyhood friend of mine was being treated. He was in a double room. The other patient in the room was almost well and told me with glowing face that he was going home the following Monday. My friend, Harry, was in great pain but he kept a brave face and said, "I am to be taken home on Monday, too, for the doctor thinks he can treat me as well there as here." They both did leave on Monday. One walked out with his wife. My friend was carried out in what we call death. But I believe they both went "home."

"Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through Our Lord, Jesus Christ."

Eternal Father, we thank Thee for all the dear and faithful dead who make Heaven a home for us. May the memory of the good who have gone before us give us grace to follow in their footsteps. As Thy Son, our Saviour didst triumph over death, may we rise above the earthly and the temporal until we enter at length into His Kingdom where there is fulness of joy and peace for evermore; we ask through Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen.

PRINTED IN U.S.A.

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
N E W S L E T T E R

Vol. I, No. 1 9 January A.D. 1978

WHO - WHAT - WHERE - WHEN - WHY

IT WOULD seem that perhaps the last thing we Anglican Loyalists (and a tip of the hat to the Canadian House of Bishops for giving us that name) need is yet another publication, but that is exactly what this is (the WHO): the FCC Newsletter. Unlike other publication members of the Fellowship, however, the FCC Newsletter is strictly that (the WHAT), a newsletter --and does not pretend to be anything else. It is being published in and mailed from Eureka Springs, Arkansas (the WHERE), and it is important that when you wish to correspond with the Newsletter that you address: FCC Newsletter, P. O. Box 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632; correspondence to the Fellowship should continue to be sent to: The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen, P. O. Box 505, Amherst, VA 24521. The Newsletter, DV, will be published about twice a month (the WHEN). It is too young yet (how much younger can you be than Vol. I, No. 1?) to set a definite publication (besides which all but the actual printing of the newsletter is being done with volunteer labor [bless their hearts]), but we'll do our best to set a pattern and stick to it.

Now comes the $64 question -- WHY? Because we know, from mail, phone calls, personal observation, and the like, that there are thousands of Anglican Loyalists not associated with any Anglican congregation at the moment who simply do not know what is going on; because we know, and again on the same basis, that there are far too many rumors, both written and oral, flying about that serve only to confuse the faithful and obfuscate the facts; because we know there is a need for those in, say, South Carolina, to find out what is being done in South Dakota; because there is a need for those who are not yet affiliated with a diocese or parish to know where they can turn. The Newsletter, to be effective, must serve all those needs, and to do that it must have reader support and cooperation. Write or call in your information, rumors, questions, or what-not (between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. on weekdays and most of the time on weekends, call 501-253-9701; other times call 501-253-9800). If nothing else, the newsletter can serve as a medium of exchange of information amongst us Anglican Loyalists.

WHAT'S GOING ON THERE?

PLENTY of action out here in the Ozarks --the same blessed group of volunteers that is typing the Newsletter's mailing list, and folding them, and helping out in general is working very hard on acknowledging the Pledges of Loyalty that are coming in in a steady stream. Each Pledge will be acknowledged individually. Where the boxes checked indicate a desire to get in touch with other signers, letters are being prepared that will give the names of known signers in the requester's general area and of congregations that have broken away from PECUSA or have formed on their own. Also, our Ozark volunteers are filling orders for the booklet containing the opening addresses of the St. Louis Congress and for the Affirmation of St. Louis. If you have not yet ordered a booklet, they are $1 apiece, including postage; Affirmations may be had for the asking, but please include a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request. Requests for either or both should be sent to: FCC Newsletter, P. O. Box 252, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632, and remittance should be made payable to FCC.

A WHO'S WHO OF ANGLICAN LOYALISTS

ONE OF the real problems facing all of us today is knowing just where the Anglican parishes are, who are the responsible people, how they may be contacted, and the like. This first issue of the newsletter herewith presents, without any guarantee of completeness or authenticity, all we have been able to glean about parishes that have broken away from PECUSA (and have aligned themselves with the Anglican Church in North America) or have formed from scratch.

Now here they are but, remember, this is the best information we have been able to gather: if it is wrong, don't mutter in your beard about it --write us or call us so we can correct the information. We expect to have a lot of corrections, but we also expect, with your help, eventually to print a list of Anglican parishes that will be complete (as of the moment of printing) and correct.

ALABAMA: Fairhope, St Peter's, P. O. Box 45, 36532; 205-928-5969; Bert Richardson
Montgomery, St Joseph of Arimathea, P. O. Box 17236, 36117; Philip C. Davis
Roanoke, St Barnabas', 3824 Asbury Pl, Birmingham 35243; 205-964-6610; William J. Marvin, priest
Atmore, Auburn, and Tuscaloosa - no information

ALBERTA: Edmonton, Resurrection; no further information

ARIZONA: Payson, St Paul's, P. O. Box 1261, 85541; 602-474-3114

ARKANSAS: Mountain Home, St Mary in the Ozarks, P. O. Box 654, 72653; 501-425-4072; Maurice H. Freemyer, priest

BRITISH COLUMBIA: Vancouver, St Athanasius', 5483 Alderley Rd, V8Y 1X9; Peter Wilkinson, priest; R. C. Henstock, priest

CALIFORNIA: Berkeley, St Joseph of Arimathea - no further information
Glendale, Holy Apostles, 1011 S Verdugo Rd, 91205; 213-243-3424; George H. Clendenin, priest
Hayward, Trinity, 1798 D St, 94541; 415-581-0848; Graham N. Lesser, priest
Hollywood, St Mary of the Angels, 4510 Finley Av, 90027; 213-660-2700, 660-9313; John D. Barker, priest
Los Angeles, Our Saviour, 6301 W Olympic Blvd, 90048; F. Ogden Miller, priest
Marina, St Barbara - no further information
Martinez, 4444 Canyon Way, 94553; 415-228-7792, 228-5161; Stanley J. Macgirvin, priest
Monterey, St John's, 1490 Mark Thomas Dr, Del Monte; (mail) P. O. Box 1029, Monterey 93940; 408-375-4463; Jerome F. Politzer, priest
Oakland, St Peter's, 6013 Lawton Av, 94618; 415-655-4283; Robert S. Morse, priest
Oceanside - no information
San Jose, St Michael & All Angels, 1039 Lincoln Av; (mail) P. O. Box 8186, 95125; C. Lee, priest; Graham N. Lesser, priest
San Mateo, Christ, P. O. Box 648, 94401; 415-347-4473; John T. Cahoon, priest
Santa Ana, St Therese of Lisieux, 105 W Stevens, 92707; 714-556-3111; G. Russell Touchstone, priest; William Musgrove, warden
Sun Valley, St Matthias, 7921 DeGarmo, 91352; 213-767-7932, 843-3535; William T. St John Brown, priest

COLORADO: Blackhawk, St Paul's, P. O. Box 176, 80422; 303-582-5858; William C. Buck, priest
Boulder, St Theresa of Avila - no further information
Colorado Springs, St Athanasius, P. O. Box 6193, 80934; Richard Willars, priest; Alfred J. Martin, M.D., warden
Denver, St Mary's, 2290 S Clayton, 80210; 303-757-6814; James O. Mote, priest
St Mark's, 1760 Lincoln St, 80803; Edward S. Gray, priest
Idaho Springs, Calvary - no other information
Westcliffe, St Luke's, 2695 Evans St, Denver 80219; Richard Willars, priest

FLORIDA: St Petersburg, St John's, 650 Pinellas Point, South (225), 33705; 813-867-8091; George W. Thomas; Raymond Plumer
Tallahassee, St Andrew's, 710 Middlebrook Cir, 32303; 904-385-5877, 386-8304; Mrs Lucyle Werkmeister; Col Charles L. Perkins
West Palm Beach, Holy Spirit, 1003 Allendale Rd, 33405; 305-833-9937; Peter F. Watterson, priest
Winter Haven, St Mary's, P. O. Box 9351, 33880; 813-324-3805; Sterling Rayburn, priest
GEORGIA: Atlanta, St Hilda of Whitby, 2586 Briarcliffe Rd, NE (2), 30529; 404-634-3754; George Murdoch, priest; John Crown, warden
INDIANA: Evansville, St Mary the Virgin, P. O. Box 3271, 47701; 812-867-5255; William Hickman
Indianapolis, St Edward the Confessor, 3921 Guilford, 46205; 317-925-6934; Richard Mote
KENTUCKY: Dayton, St John's, 619 O'Fallon Av, 41074; 606-781-5006; James Bjorkman, priest
MASSACHUSETTS: Brookline, 21 Milton Rd, 02146; 617-734-7267; C. David Burt, priest; Paul H. Walker
Harvard, St Alban's, P. O. Box 428, 01451; 617-456-9645; C. David Burt, priest
Ipswich, St Michael & All Angels, P. O. Box 8, 01938; 617-356-2213
MEXICO: Acapulco, Holy Cross, Apartado Postal 608; John P. Black, priest
MICHIGAN: Battle Creek - no other information
West Branch, Holy Faith, 429 State St (1), 48861; 517-345-5700; Louis E. Traycik, warden
MINNESOTA: St Dunstan's, 4800 DuPont Av, 55409; 612-472-9032; John Holman, priest; John Fitzsimmons (Minneapolis)
MISSOURI: Columbia - no other information
St Louis, Holy Apostles, P. O. Box 3854, 63122; 314-726-3481; Leland Hilligoss, warden
NEVADA: Boulder City, St Christopher's, 400 Utah St, 89005; 702-293-4277; Clark A. Tea, priest
Las Vegas, St Mary the Virgin, 1229 Carson, 89101
NEW JERSEY: Dunellen, Resurrection - no other information
Keansburg, St Mark's, 277 Carr Av, 07734; 201-787-1075; William Fredericks, priest
Long Branch, St Alban the Martyr, 2d & Bath Av, 07740; 201-222-2884, 222-1411; Robert Pearson, priest
McAfee, St Athanasius', P. O. Box 684, 07428; John Pusztay
Plainfield, 1600 Charlotte Rd, 07060; 201-756-0241, 756-0410; Stanwood Graves, priest
Stockton, St Peter's, RD 2, Box 129, 08559; 609-397-0349; Col James Horn
West Orange, St Mark's, 45 Main St, 07052; 201-736-0214; William Burns, priest
NEW MEXICO: Albuquerque, St Thomas the Apostle, 4717 Goodrich, NE, 87110; Charles Olsen, priest
St Peter's; George B. Schold, Jr, 9824 Robin Av, NE, 87112
NEW YORK: Brooklyn, Trinity, 131 Arlington Av, 11207; Gary Glogg, priest
Islip, St Stephen's, 44 Ocean Av, 11751; Oliver Zipp
Ozone Park, Epiphany, 103-10 - 104th St, 11417; 212-843-5851; Gary Glogg, priest
Port Chester, Advent - no other information
Rochester, Holy Cross, 500 Simpson Rd, 14617; 716-889-3357; David J. Ambuske, priest, 631 Chili-Scottsville Rd, Scottsville 14546
NORTH CAROLINA: Chapel Hill, St Thomas of Canterbury, P.O. Box 2312, 27514; 919-383-6969; George D. Stenhouse, priest

(continued page 4)

WHO'S WHO (continued)

NORTH CAROLINA (continued): Charlotte, St Paul the Apostle, 4538 Sharon Rd, 28211; 704-366-1552; Thomas Samonds
Fayetteville, Incarnation, P.O. Box 35687, 28303; 919-488-6232; George D. Stenhouse, priest; Col Donald A. Seibert, clerk
OHIO: Akron, St Mary's; Dr Don Gerlach
Chillicothe, St Paul's, 33 E Main St, 45601; 614-772-4105; Fred C. Wolf, Jr, priest
Columbus, Christ, Southern Hotel, Main & High, 43219; 614-475-0738; G. Wayne Craig, 2535 Sunbury Dr, 43219
Coshocton, St Paul's; Larry Snyder, priest
Dayton - no other information
OKLAHOMA: Oklahoma City, St David's, 3333 N Meridian, 73112; 405-942-1740; Ralph R. Pressley, priest
PENNSYLVANIA: State College, St Alban's, Cedar Court Townhouses, Toftrees; 234-4483; Henry C. Johnson, priest; Mrs Stuart Faith
SOUTH CAROLINA: Aiken, All Saints', 410 Colleton Av, 29801; William Nightingale, Jr
Charleston, St Timothy's, 68½ Queen St, 29401; Clyde H. Turner, warden
Columbia, Christ, 1512 Blanding, 29201; 803-779-2960, 771-7877; William Gatling, priest; William D. Ladkau, priest
TENNESSEE: Shelbyville, St Dunstan's; Ray Anderson
TEXAS: Bedford, St Bede's, P.O. Box 136, 76021; 817-283-3086; Jean Pierre Meshew, priest
Corpus Christi - no other information
Corsicana, Transfiguration, P.O. Box 881, 75110; 214-872-2581; Robert Q. Kennaugh, priest
Dallas, St Thomas à Becket, (mail) P.O. Box 136, Bedford 76021; 817-283;3086; Jean Pierre Meshew, priest
Houston, St Andrew's - no other information
LaPorte, St Andrew's, 201 S 3d St, 77571; 713-471-0123; Jean Pierre Meshew, priest
Pharr - no other information
San Antonio, All Saints'; Jean Pierre Meshew, priest; Don Collins, 118 LaSalle Place, Universal City 78148
VERMONT: Northfield, Incarnation; Frederick E. Preuss, II, priest
VIRGINIA: Alexandria; Jerome Loomis, 112 N Alfred St, 22314
Bridgewater, Holy Cross, Box 99 BC, 22812; 803-228-6834; Dale E. Mekeel, priest
Centreville, Ascension; R. Robertson-Kendall, priest; Nathaniel F. Young, warden, 10510 Cedar Av, Fairfax, 22030
Christiansburg, Rt 4, Box 1750, 24073; 703-382-7892; A. Fraser MacCammond, priest
Clifton Forge, St Andrew's, 514 McCormick Blvd, 24422
Norfolk, St Edward the Confessor, P.O. Box 385, 23501; Joseph Mahler; Roger Hunt Carroll
Richmond, Christ the King, 1413 Graystone Av, 23224 (temporary location: 2330 Buford Rd); 804-232-1848; E. E. Kyle Boeger, priest, P.O. Box 236, Bremo Bluff 23022; Ralph R. Hudson, warden
WASHINGTON: Sequim; R. C. Henstock, priest; John H. Merscher
WISCONSIN: Oconomowoc, St Mary's
WYOMING: Blessed Sacrament, P.O. Box 66, 80201; 307-325-6741; John K. Valensis, priest

[NOTE: Addresses given are in most cases not the location of the church, but simply a point of contact. Like the Christians of old you may have to rummage around a bit in the catacombs before you find the congregation. Be persistent; don't give up --and when you do find correct addresses, proper phone numbers, and the like, let us know.]

NO EDITORIALS

GIVE ANY editor access to a typewriter and blank paper (or even a yellow ruled pad and a blunt pencil) and it's awfully hard to keep him from editorializing all over the place. However, the FCC Newsletter is not an opinion journal, and we shall try, insofar as we can control our baser nature, not to editorialize. There are good opinion journals within the community of the faithful and it is not the role of this newsletter to supplant them, but rather to complement them. In alphabetical order, those which are members of the FCC and which will provide you with views as well as news, are: The Anglican Digest, Hillspeak, Eureka Springs, AR 72632; The Certain Trumpet, P.O. Box 216, Amherst, VA 2451; The Christian Challenge, P.O. Box 9871, Austin, TX 78766, and New Oxford Review, 6013 Lawton Av, Oakland, CA 94618. Anglican Loyalists should be subscribing to and reading all four publications (now THAT is an editorial statement --but true!). If you are not, a post card to those which you are not reading will bring you information about frequency of publication and subscription rates.

ABOUT THE CONSECRATIONS

THE MOST recent information we have is that the consecrations of the bishops-elect from the Dioceses of the Holy Trinity, Christ the King, the Southeast, and possibly the Midwest if an election is held in time, will take place in Denver on the Feast of St Thomas Aquinas (28 January). A news release from St Mary's Church, Denver, reports that they will take place at 10:30 a.m. in Augustana Lutheran Church.

Who are the bishops-elect?

For the Diocese of the Holy Trinity: James Orin Mote, OSF, OHC, Rector of St Mary's, Denver since 1957. Father Mote, who will be 56 the day before his consecration, was born in Indianapolis; received a BA from Canterbury College, Indiana, in 1948, and a DD from Nashotah House in 1975; he was ordered deacon in June 1951 and priested in February 1952; he is a Trustee of Nashotah House, and an Honorary Canon of the Diocese of Damaraland.

For the Diocese of Christ the King: Robert Sherwood Morse, Rector of St Peter's, Oakland, California since 1966. Father Morse is 53 and was born in San Francisco; received his BA from Pacific College in 1948, was graduated from Seabury-Western Theological Seminary in 1950; he was ordered deacon in July 1950 and priested in February 1951; he is married, has 2 children; he is the Executive Director of the American Church Union, and Editor of the New Oxford Review

For the Diocese of the Southeastern United States: Peter Francis Watterson, Rector of Holy Spirit, West Palm Beach, Florida, since 1960 (and Headmaster of the Day School). Father Watterson is 50 and was born in Swarthmore, Pennsylvania; received a BS from Bard College in 1952, and was graduated from Philadelphia Divinity School in 1955; he was ordered deacon in May 1955 and priested in November of that year; he is married, has 5 children.

Of your Christian charity, pray for James, Robert, and Peter.

FCC ANNUAL MEETING

THE FELLOWSHIP of Concerned Churchmen will meet at the Cherry Creek Inn in Denver on Friday, 27 January (the Feast of St John Chrysostom). This will be the FCC's annual meeting (required by its By-Laws) wherein the election of officers and members of the Board of Directors will take place. Present officers are: Perry Laukhuff, Editor of The Certain Trumpet, Amherst, VA, President; The Rev'd Dr. Carroll E. Simcox, retired Editor of The Living Church and presently on the faculty of the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Kentucky, Lexington, Vice President; Mrs A. H. Von Klemperer, President of the Long Island (NY) Chapter of SPBCP, Secretary; and Ralph Edgar Murphy, New Britain, PA, Treasurer.

FCC MEETING (continued)

The present members of the Board of Directors are: The Rev'd Peter D. Hannen, Rector of St Columba's Church, Montreal, and President of The Council for the Faith (Canada); The Rev'd Robert C. Harvey, Rector of All Saints' Church, Bergenfield, NJ, and President of The Foundation for Christian Theology; The Rev'd Robert S. Morse, Bishop-Elect of the Diocese of Christ the King and Rector of St Peter's Church, Oakland, CA; The Very Rev'd James Parker, SSC, Rector of St Mark's Church, Albany, Georgia, and Vicar General for North America of The Society of the Holy Cross (SSC); and Capt W. R. Swindells, USMC, Retired, Managing Editor of The Anglican Digest.

All officers and members of the Board hold terms expiring at the annual meeting.

GOOD-BYE NO. 1

IN OUR next issue we hope to report to you on the results of some upcoming events: a meeting in Charlottesville aimed at creating a Diocese of Virginia; a similar meeting in New England for the same purpose; an election meeting of the Diocese of the Midwest (with the fervent hope that it will elect a bishop to be consecrated in Denver on the Feast of St Thomas Aquinas); and new parishes and congregations hither and yon.

What can you as a reader of the first issue of the FCC Newsletter do to help it along? Obviously, we are going to need production money; if you feel so moved, make your check to FCC and send it to the newsletter (P.O. Box 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632); it is tax deductible. Obviously, too, we need readers; send us names and addresses --but equally obvious is it that we are interested primarily in reaching those who are genuinely interested in what is happening amongst Anglican Loyalists, within the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen, and within the Anglican Church in North America. We could care less that the FCC Newsletter has a circulation of only 6 7/8, whereas Publication X has 7¼!

FCC Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

BULK PERMIT
49
EUREKA SPRINGS
ARKANSAS

FCCB
The Rev'd David E. Green
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

FEB 8 1978

FCC The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen NEWSLETTER

Vol. I, No. 2 mid-January A.D. 1978

THE Diocese of the Mid-West has elected Charles Dale David Doren, 62, to be Bishop of that Diocese. Father Doren, born in Marvin, South Dakota, received a BD from Seabury-Western Theological Seminary, and doctorates (divinity) from Lane (Tennessee) and Grove City (Pennsylvania) Colleges in 1955; he was ordered deacon in March 1944 and was priested in November of that same year. He is married and has 2 children. He lectured in England, Scotland and Ireland in 1963, has served in Polynesia and Korea (Archdeacon of the Diocese of Taejon); from 1952 until 1975, when he retired, was Rector of St Paul's, Mount Lebanon, Pennsylvania. Since 1973 he has been a Trustee of the Foundation for Christian Theology.

Of your Christian charity, pray for James, Robert, Peter and Dale.

ADVERTISING, MORE OR LESS

IF YOU did not receive, but would like to have, Vol. I, No. 1 of the FCC Newsletter, send us a postcard (if you are in a hurry to get it, send a stamped, self-addressed #10 envelope) to: FCC Newsletter, P.O. Box 252, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632.

IF YOU have not yet ordered your booklet of the St Louis Congress opening addresses send, to the same address, one dollar per copy desired (quantity rates available upon request).

IF YOU need, or want, an additional copy of the Affirmation of St Louis, send a stamped, self-addressed #10 envelope (or a larger one if you want more than one copy) to that address.

NOTE: If you want both a copy of the Newsletter and a copy of the Affirmation, put 24 cents in postage on the envelope.

WANTED: Retired or working priest by developing Anglican congregation in Alexandria (Virginia, that is). Write to the Church of St Margaret of Scotland, 112 North Alfred Street, Alexandria, Virginia 22314, or call 703-836-6504.

TO GET on the mailing list of The Goodnewsletter, published, edited (and probably hand-addressed) by the Rev'd Jean Pierre Meshew, Rector-at-Large in Texas (check your listings in Vol I, Nos 1 and 2 for an idea of how large a loop Father Meshew is throwing), send a postcard to the good Father with your name and address. The Goodnewsletter is filled with do-it-yourself ideas for Anglican Loyalists who want to get going; the most recent issue features a reproduction of the ad Father Meshew used to get his Dallas-Fort Worth congregation started. The address: P.O. Box 136, Bedford, Texas 76021.

ALTAR LINENS and the like? Any Anglican congregation that needs altar linens or small chalice linens, or has a large Fair Linen that needs to be cut down, or has an old linen surplice or linen alb (worn in some places but firm in others), or has linen remnants or linen yardage to be used for these --and if you don't want to tackle the job yourself, write to:

(continued overpage)

The Barn Owl
c/o FCC Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632,

enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for speedy reply. The Barn Owl (or BarmWol, as she is known around here) says, "I will be happy to make anything you need either of used linen or of new (whatever is provided, either by you or me) at a very reasonable rate."

WHO'S WHO, UPDATE NO. 1

IN OUR first issue we told you that the listing contained therein bore no warranty, stated or implied; that it was a beginning, and that we needed corrections so that we might, eventually, publish an accurate and reasonably complete roster of parish churches in the Anglican Church in North America. There follows, corrections to our first listing:

ALABAMA: delete St Barnabas', Roanoke; Father Marvin advises us that he renounces "the disaster that was Minneapolis '76", but that "St Barnabas is still an Episcopal Church".
CALIFORNIA: Wrightwood, P.O. Box 1032, 92397; Gordon Koenig, lay reader
OHIO: Lancaster - no further information
PENNSYLVANIA: Pittsburgh - no further information
TEXAS: Bedford, St Bede's - change phone number to 817-267-6820
Corpus Christi, 3120 Ocean Dr, 78404; Mrs John Cornelius Rip
Dallas, St Thomas à Becket - change phone number to 817-267-6820
Houston - see LaPorte
Pharr, Blessed Sacrament - no other information
VIRGINIA: Alexandria, St Margaret of Scotland -address and contact remain same

GOOD-BYE NO. 2

WE HAVE been snowed in atop our "mountain" in the Ozarks. The Newsletter may not reach you in a very timely fashion (at least the postal service can blame it on the weather this time), but we do hope to see many of you at the ConsecrationS (four, count 'em, four) in Denver, God willing and weather permitting. GB#1 reported on a "Diocese of Virginia" meeting- that came to be the Diocese of the Mid-Atlantic and they did meet and did set up a Standing Committee.

FCC Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

BULK PERMIT
49
EUREKA SPRINGS
ARKANSAS

FCCB
The Rev'd David E. Green
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
NEWSLETTER

Vol. I, No. 3 mid-February A.D. 1978

FOLLOWING the presentation of the customary testimonials and credentials concerning fitness and election, the reading of an extraordinary letter of "consent and intent" from the Right Rev'd Mark Pae, Bishop of Taejon, and having, with other bishops elect, promised "conformity and obedience to the Doctrine, Discipline, & Worship of the Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church", Charles Dale David Doren (see Vol. I, No. 2 for biography) was consecrated a Bishop in the Church of God by the Right Rev'd Albert Arthur Chambers, Bishop of Springfield, retired, and the Right Rev'd Francisco J. Pagtakhan, Bishop Secretary for Missions & Ecumenical Affairs of the Philippine Independent Church. Bishop Doren then joined the other two in the laying on of hands for James Orin Mote, Robert Sherwood Morse, and Peter Francis Watterson (see Vol. I, No. 1 for biographies). The Rev'd George William Rutler, Rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Rosemont, Pennsylvania, preached the sermon in which he said that the time for recrimination had passed and that the occasion was a "great day of rejoicing" noting that many who hesitated to come would, "Years from now, hesitate to say they did not come".

At the end of the Service of Consecration and before the beginning of the Eucharist, Bishop Pagtakhan presented Bishop Chambers the Philippine Independent Church's Bishop Aglipay Cross in recognition of his devotion to and defense of the Faith. In making the presentation, the Bishop noted that it had been presented to only one other person --the Most Rev'd Arthur Michael Ramsey, 100th Archbishop of Canterbury.

Estimates of attendance at the event on the Feast of St. Thomas Aquinas varied from 1300 to 1800.

FCC ANNUAL MEETING

ON THE day previous (the Feast of St John Chrysostom), the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen held its annual meeting at which: the President, Perry Laukhuff, gave a "State of the Fellowship" report; the annual financial report was presented by the Treasurer, Ralph E. Murphy, and new officers and a new Board of Directors were elected for 1978.

New officers are: The Rev'd Dr Carroll E. Simcox, retired Editor of The Living Church and presently on the faculty of the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Kentucky, at Lexington, President, and Capt W. R. Swindells, USMC, Ret'd, Managing Editor of The Anglican Digest, Vice President. Mrs A. H. (Nancy) Von Klemperer and Ralph Edgar Murphy were reelected, respectively, Secretary and Treasurer.

The new Board of Directors is comprised of: The Rev'd George H. Clendenin, Rector of the Church of the Holy Apostles, Glendale, California; The Rev'd Robert O. Harvey (former member); Mr Perry Laukhuff (formerly President of the Fellowship and an ex officio member); The Very Rev'd James Parker (former member); Mr Andrew Stahl of the Council for the Faith of Canada; and Captain Swindells (former member).

WHO'S WHO, UPDATE NO. 2

WE HAD not thought to republish the Anglican Parishes List quite so soon, but the number of additions, corrections and refinements makes it worthwhile. The ground rules remain the same: when you find an error or omission, don't complain to your spouse; complain to us. Drop us a card (P.O. Box 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632) or call us (501-253-9701 or, at night, 253-9800). Also please remember that physical locations may change: the addresses and phone numbers listed are primarily a means of your getting in touch with fellow Anglican Loyalists; from there you should be able to find a proper place of worship.

ALABAMA: Atmore - no further information
Auburn - no further information
Fairhope, St Peter's, P.O. Box 45, 36532; 205-928-5969; Bert Richardson
Montgomery, St Joseph of Arimathea, P.O. Box 17236, 36117; Philip C. Davis, 3024 Pelzer Av, 36109
Tuscaloosa - no further information

ALBERTA: Edmonton, Resurrection; Philip T. Sargeant, priest, c/o St John's School of Alberta, RR 1, Stony Plain, T0E 2G0

ARIZONA: Payson, St Paul's, P.O. Box 1261, 85541; 602-474-3114; Robert P. Donovan, deacon

BRITISH COLUMBIA: Victoria, St Athanasius, 5483 Alderley Rd, V8Y 1X9; Peter Wilkinson, SSC, & R. C. Henstock, priests

CALIFORNIA: Berkeley, St Joseph of Arimathea; Francis W. Read, priest
Burlingame, Christ; John T. Cahoon, priest
Glendale, Holy Apostles, 1011 S Verdugo Rd, 91205; 213-243-3424; George H. Clendenin, priest
Los Angeles, Our Saviour, 6301 W Olympic Blvd, 90048; Forrest Ogden Miller, priest
Marina, St Barbara's
Martinez, 4444 Canyon Way, 94553; 415-228-7792, 228-5161; Stanley C. Macgirvin, priest
Oakland, St Peter's, 6013 Lawton Av, 94618; 415-655-4283; Robert S. Morse, Rector, and Bishop of the Diocese of Christ the King
Oceanside - no further information
San Marcos, St Michael & All Angels, 1851-A Knob Hill Rd, 92069
San Mateo (Hillsborough), Christ, P.O. Box 648, 94401; 415-347-4473; John T. Cahoon, priest
Santa Ana, St Therese of Lisieux, 105 W Stevens, 92707; 714-556-3111; G. Russell Touchstone, priest; William Musgrove, warden
Wrightwood, P.O. Box 1032, 92397; Gordon Koenig, lay reader

COLORADO: Blackhawk, St Paul's, P.O. Box 176, 80422; 303-582-5858; William C. Buck, priest
Boulder, St Theresa of Avila
Colorado Springs, St Athanasius, P.O. Box 6193, 80934; Richard Willars, priest; Alfred J. Martin, M.D., warden, 1108 Shrider Rd
Denver, St Mary's, 2290 S Clayton, 80210; 303-757-6814; James O. Mote, Rector, and Bishop of the Diocese of the Holy Trinity
St Mark's, 1160 Lincoln St, 80203; 303-839-5845, 377-6614; Edward S. Gray, priest
Idaho Springs, Calvary
Westcliffe, St Luke's, (Mail: 2695 Evans St, Denver 80219); Richard Willars, priest

CONNECTICUT: Fairfield, Our Lady, 203-384-2655; Jean Cummings, 49 Ridgeway Av, 06430
Mystic; Mrs Wanda McFarland, 203-536-4366

FLORIDA: St Petersburg, St John's, 650 Pinellas Point, S (225), 33705; 813-867-8091; George W. Thomas, P. Raymond Plumer
Tallahassee, St Andrew's, 710 Middlebrook Cir, 32303; 904-385-3116, 385-5877; 386-8304; Mrs Lucyle Werkmeister, Col Charles L. Perkins
West Palm Beach, Holy Spirit, 1003 Allendale Rd, 33405; 305-833-9937; Peter F. Watterson, Rector, and Bishop of the Diocese of the Southeastern United States
Winter Haven, St Mary's, P.O. Box 9351, 33880; 813-324-3805; Sterling Rayburn, priest

GEORGIA: Atlanta, St Hilda of Whitby, 2586 Briarcliffe Rd, NE (2), 30529; 404-634-3754; George Murdoch, priest; John Crown, warden

ILLINOIS: Chicago, St George the Martyr, c/o Allenson's Books, 29 W Jackson, 60604; Robert C. Bornfield, priest, 109 N Kenilworth, Oak Park 60301, 312-848-5402; R. B. Dibbert, deacon, 7402 N Sheridan Rd, 60626, 312-764-9820; James G. Schneider, warden, 888 Cobb Blvd, Kankakee, 60901, 815-937-2888
Springfield, St Luke's, 1218 S Grand Av, E, 62708 (Mail: P.O. Box 3103); William E. Krueger, priest

INDIANA: Evansville, St Mary the Virgin, P.O. Box 3271, 47701; 812-867-5255; William Hickman
Indianapolis, St Edward the Confessor, 3921 Guilford, 46205; 317-925-6934; Richard Mote
KANSAS: Ft Scott, St Francis', 1323 E Wall St, 66701
KENTUCKY: Dayton, St John's, 619 O'Fallon Av, 41074; 606-781-5006; James Bjorkman, priest
LOUISIANA: Metairie, Mission of the Anglican Church, 3001 - 22d St, 70002 (Mail: P.O. Box 15140, New Orleans 70175); Charles Parnell, warden; Miss Jane Barry, clerk
MASSACHUSETTS: Harvard, St Alban's, P.O. Box 428, 01451; C. David Burt, priest, 617-456-8645; Jess Keegan, 617-456-8705
Boston, Mrs Stevenson, 617-742-1508
Brookline, 21 Milton Rd, 02146; 617-734-7267; Mrs Paul H. Walker, 617-734-7267
Ipswich, St Michael & All Angels, P.O. Box 8, 01938; 617-356-2213
Marlboro, Mrs Hodgson, 617-485-8841
MEXICO: Acapulco, Holy Cross, Apartado Postel 608; John P. Black, priest
MICHIGAN: Battle Creek - no further information
West Branch, Holy Faith, 429 State St (1), 48661; 517-345-5700; Louis E. Traycik, warden
MINNESOTA: Minneapolis, St Dunstan's, 4800 DuPont Av, 55409; 612-824-3933; John Fitzimmons, warden, 612-474-9032
MISSISSIPPI: Jackson, St Columb's, 301 Claiborne Av, 39209; 601-948-7245; C. Osborne Moyer, priest
MISSOURI: Ava, St Francis in the Ozarks, RFD 4, 65608; L. M. Heigham, warden
Columbia - no further information
St Louis, Holy Apostles, P.O. Box 3854, 63122; 314-726-3481; Leland Hilligoss, 8225 Parkside Dr, Clayton 63105 (warden)
NEW HAMPSHIRE: Jefferson, St Dunstan's, RFD 1, Box 147, 03583; George Brackett
Winchester, David Hewlett, 603-239-4325, 239-6677
NEW JERSEY: Bergenfield, All Saints', 12 W Central, 07621
Keansburg, St Mark's, 277 Carr Av, 07734; 201-787-1075; William Fredericks, priest
Long Branch, St Alban the Martyr, 2d & Bath Av, 07740; 201-222-2884, 222-1411; Robert Pearson, priest
McAfee, St Athanasius, P.O. Box 684, 07428; John Pusztay
Stockton, St Peter's, RD 2, Box 129, 08559; 609-397-0349; Col James Horn
West Orange, St Mark's, 45 Main St, 07052; 201-736-0214; William Burns, priest
NEW MEXICO: Albuquerque, St Thomas the Apostle, 4717 Goodrich, NE, 87110; Charles Olsen, priest
St Peter's; George B. Schold, Jr, 9824 Robin Av, NE, 87112
NEW YORK: Brooklyn, Trinity, 131 Arlington Av, 11207; Gary Glogg, priest
Islip, St Stephen's, 44 Ocean Av, 11751; Oliver Zipp
Ozone Park, Epiphany, 103-10 - 104 St, 11417; 212-843-5851; Gary Glogg, priest
Port Chester, Advent; 914-232-5291; G. A. Machado, priest
Rochester, Holy Cross, 500 Simpson Rd, 14617; 716-889-3357; David J. Ambuske, priest, 631 Chili-Scottsville Rd, Scottsville 14546
NORTH CAROLINA: Chapel Hill, St Thomas of Canterbury, P.O. Box 2312, 27514; 919-967-2442; George D. Stenhouse, priest, 919-383-6969
Charlotte, St Paul the Apostle, 4538 Sharon Rd, 28211; 704-366-1552; Thomas Samonds
Fayetteville, Incarnation, P.O. Box 35687, 28303; 919-488-6232; George D. Stenhouse, priest; Donald A. Seibert, clerk
OHIO: Akron, St Mary's; Dr Don Gerlach
Chillicothe, St Paul's 33 E Main St, 45601; 614-772-4105; Fred C. Wolf, Jr, priest
Cincinnati, St Alban's; 513-531-2738; Herbert Verity
Columbus, Christ, Southern Hotel, 43219; 614-475-0738; G. Wayne Craig, priest, 2535 Sunbury Dr, 43219
Coshocton, St Paul's; Larry Snyder, priest
Dayton, All Saints'' Daniel Sauer, warden, 1813 Harvard Blvd, 45406; 513-274-8328
Lancaster, St Luke's, 310 Hillside Av, 43130; William F. Cantieri, warden
OKLAHOMA: Oklahoma City, St David's, 3333 N Meridian, 73112; 405-942-1740; R. R. Pressley, priest
PENNSYLVANIA: Pittsburgh, Holy Trinity; C. Dale David Doren, Rector, and Bishop of the Diocese of the Midwest
State College, St Alban's; 814-234-4483; Henry C. Johnson, priest; Mrs Stuart Faith, 963 E McCormick Av, 16801

SOUTH CAROLINA: Aiken, All Saints', 410 Colleton Av, 29801; William Nightingale, Jr
Charleston, St Timothy's, 68½ Queen St, 29401; Robert O. Harvey, priest; Clyde H. Turner, warden
Columbia, Christ, 1512 Blanding, 29201; 803-779-2960, 771-7877; William Gatling, priest
TENNESSEE: Shelbyville, St Dunstan's; Roy Anderson
TEXAS: Bedford, St Bede's, P.O. Box 136, 76021; 817-267-6820; Jean Pierre Meshew, priest
Corpus Christi, 3120 Ocean Dr, 78404; Mrs John Cornelius Rip
Corsicana, Transfiguration, P.O. Box 881, 75110; 214-872-2581; Robert Q. Kennaugh, priest
Dallas, St Thomas a Becket (Mail: P.O. Box 136, Bedford); 817-267-6820; Fr Meshew
Houston, St Andrew's, P.O. Box 36277, 77036; Fr Meshew; Lewis E. Berry, Jr, warden, 10603 Meadowlake Ln, 77042, 713-783-3529, 772-2322
Pharr, Blessed Sacrament
San Antonio, All Saints'; Don Collins, 118 LaSalle, Universal City, 78148; Fr Meshew
VERMONT: Northfield, Incarnation; RD 2, 05663; Frederick E. Preuss, priest
VIRGINIA: Alexandria, St Margaret of Scotland, 112 N Alfred St, 22314; Jerome Loomis, 703-836-6504
Bridgewater, Holy Cross, P.O. Box 99 BC, 22812; 803-228-6834; Dale E. Mekeel, priest
Centreville, Ascension, 13941 Braddock Rd, 22020; Ramsay Robertson-Kendall, priest; Nathaniel F. Young, warden, 10510 Cedar Av, Fairfax 22030
Christiansburg, R 4, Box 1750, 24073; 703-382-7892; A. Fraser MacCammond, priest
Norfolk, Oratory of St Paul, P.O. Box 385, 23501; Roger Hunt Carroll
St Edward the Confessor, P.O. Box 12311, 23502; 804-461-3922; Joseph Mahler
Richmond, Christ the King, 1413 Graystone Av, 23224; E. E. Kyle Boeger, priest, P.O. Box 236, Bremo Bluff 23022; Ralph R. Hudson, warden
WASHINGTON: Sequim; R. C. Henstock, priest; John H. Mersher
WISCONSIN: Oconomowoc, St Mary's
WYOMING: Cheyenne, Blessed Sacrament, P.O. Box 66, 80201; 307-325-6741; John K. Valensis, priest

GOOD-BYE NO. 3

HAVE A size 38 long cassock in excellent condition; will donate to anybody needing same. The Rev'd C. Osborne Moyer, P.O. Box 10446, Jackson, MS 39209.

HEARTFELT thanks to all who have sent contributions and/or information; we hope you will accept this publicy expressed thanks in lieu of individual thanks.

TO THE Churchman in Syracuse, New York, who, on 27 January 1978, sent us a dollar bill and an apparent request for the booklet of addresses --if you will send us your name and address we will be glad to get the booklet into the mail to you.

Booklets ($1 apiece), Affirmations & back issues of the newsletter (large SASE envelope) are still in good supply. Let us know your needs.

FCC Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

BULK PERMIT
49
EUREKA SPRINGS
ARKANSAS

MAR 16 1978
GRADUATE THEOLOGICAL UNION
LIBRARY
1962

FCC The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
NEWSLETTER

Vol. I, No. 4 late-February A.D. 1978

ABOUT THE most important thing that the Newsletter can do, next to providing updated listings of new congregations and points-of-contact, is to provide specific answers to questions that arise concerning the Fellowship and the Anglican Church in North America, and to address itself to scotching rumors or correcting misinformation. We have received many letters in the brief time since the first issue went into the mails (and apparently got stuck in a snowbank) and several have asked, in one way or another, "Were the consecrations at Denver valid?" TIME and other publications, including some diocesan, have cast doubt upon the matter. Herewith, the Newsletter presents the answer in the form of a press release from the Fellowship's Press Officer, Dottie Faber, Editor of The Christian Challenge.

BISHOPS RESPOND TO CONSECRATION ATTACKS

ATTEMPTS to cast doubt on the validity of the January 28 consecrations of our bishops for the emerging Anglican Church in North America - as well as on the authority of one of the co-consecrators - have brought sharp responses from the two bishops who officiated at the Denver service. They are the Right Rev'd Albert A. Chambers, Bishop of Springfield (Illinois), retired, and the Right Rev'd Francisco J. Pagtakhan, Bishop Secretary for Missions and Ecumenical Affairs of the Philippine Independent Catholic Church.

Consecrated during a service held at the Augustana Lutheran Church in Denver were: The Rev'd James O. Mote of Denver as Bishop of (the non-geographical) Diocese of the Holy Trinity; the Rev'd Peter F. Watterson of West Palm Beach, Florida, as Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of the Southeast; the Rev'd Robert S. Morse of Oakland, California, as Bishop of (the non-geographical) Diocese of Christ the King; and the Ven. C. Dale David Doren of Pittsburgh as Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of the Midwest.

It was the consecration of Dr. Doren, the former rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Mt. Lebanon, Pennsylvania, and more recently the Archdeacon of the Korean Diocese of Taejob, that evoked interest from TIME Magazine. At the request of the Right Rev'd Mark D. Pae, Bishop of Taejon, who had agreed last November to act as co-consecrator, Dr. Doren had gone to Korea two weeks before the consecration to help Bishop Pae unsnarl governmental red tape so he could obtain a passport to make the trip to Denver.

Dr. Doren reported on his return, only three days before the consecration, that during the week spent in Korea, Bishop Pae was contacted by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. F. Donald Coggan, and was told that he would be "cut off" from the Anglican Communion if he went to Denver. Bishop Pae, therefore, cancelled his plans for the trip and, instead, sent a letter to Bishop Chambers giving his consent to the consecration of Dr. Doren.

Bishop Chambers accepted the letter as the valid intention of Bishop Pae, and he and Bishop Pagtakhan consecrated Dr. Doren first at the Denver service. In turn, he assisted in the consecration of the other three bishops-elect.

The January 13 issue of TIME, however, reported that Bishop Pae has since denied writing such a letter.

Replying to the article, Bishop Chambers said that "it leaves the impression that Dr. Doren was not telling the truth" and that the letter might have been forgery.

"This is ridiculous on the face of it," continued Bishop Chambers from his home in Dennis, Massachusetts, "because Dr. Doren was fully aware before he left Korea that the consecration would proceed, with or without the presence of Bishop Pae, since a consecration with only two bishops is most assuredly valid. There are many instances throughout the history of the Holy Catholic Church of consecrations being carried out by fewer than three bishops, including the succession of Roman Catholic orders in the United States which come from the consecration of three bishops by only a single bishop."

Bishop Chambers said he considers it "an insult to Dr. Doren" for TIME to "imply that he would manufacture such a letter."

The bishop said he has the original letter in his possession, and that "it is written

---

[text of the letter from Bishop Pae]

I hereby give my consent to the consecration of the Venerable Dr C. Dale Doren. By this I intend that Dr. Doren will be a Bishop of the Anglican Communion.

I am sorry that I cannot come to U. S. of America at this time. But I want Dr. Doren to be a member of the Anglican Communion.

With all good wishes

Yours Sincerely,

s/ + Mark Pae

---

on the letterhead of the Diocese of Taejon, the Anglican Church in Korea, from the office of Bishop Mark D. Pae, and it is impressed with the official seal of the Diocese."

He added" "I know it to be in Bishop Pae's handwriting because I have compared it with three previous letters written to me by Bishop Pae in recent months, and the handwriting is the same."

Why does Bishop Pae now deny writing the letter? Bishop Chambers said he believes "it is clear he has been under great pressure from the Archbishop of Canterbury."

A letter from the Most Rev'd John M. Allin, Presiding Bishop of the Episcopal Church, sent on February 6 to all bishops of the Church, said that Bishop Chambers "acted without the consent or authorization of this Church to ordain to the episcopacy four persons who had been selected to be the leaders of a new ecclesiastical body," adding that he had "counseled Bishop Chambers against taking the action he did."

The letter from Bishop Allin also said that the Most Rev'd Macario Ga, Supreme Bishop of the Philippine Independent Church, had cabled him after the Denver consecrations to say he was "shocked and distressed" by Bishop Pagtakhan's participation, stressing that he had not known in advance that this was his intention. The Presiding Bishop told his fellow bishops that Bishop Ga's cable declared that Bishop Pagtakhan's action was not authorized by his Church.

In response to Bishop Allin's letter, Bishop Chambers said that he would not comment because he had already written directly to the Presiding Bishop.

Bishop Pagtakhan, however, who is presently visiting a daughter who lives with her family in Los Angeles, was quick to relate the story of his invitation to act as a co-consecrator which, he said, came through Bishop Ga from a layman in Los Angeles.

Bishop Pagtakhan said he had been authorized by the Supreme Bishop to meet for lunch one day last October with Edward Heatherman of Palos Verdes Estates, "a member of the group of the continuing Church."

When he reported back to Bishop Ga, he said he "told him that my sympathy lay with Bishop Chambers and his group since they are the ones loyal to the Faith similar to ours."

Bishop Pagtakhan said he asked Bishop Ga if he would be willing for him to go to Denver as his representative, and the Supreme Bishop replied that he thought this would be a "good idea so that, at the same time while I was there, I could work out the registration of our Church with the U.S. Government."

When the official invitation from Bishop Chambers reached Bishop Pagtakhan a month later, he said he asked Bishop Ga to give him a letter indicating he was the Supreme Bishop's representative.

According to Bishop Pagtakhan, the Supreme Bishop replied, "I have a better idea, and it will serve the purpose just the same. I shall appoint you as Secretary for Local and Foreign Missions and Internal and External Ecumenical Affairs. This way you can participate at the consecration and, at the same time, see what can be done to have our Church registred with the U. S. Government, and visit some Filipino communities while there."

Bishop Pagtakhan also said that, when he asked Bishop Ga about the possibility of an intercommunion agreement between the Philippine Independent Church and the emerging Anglican Church in North America, the Supreme Bishop replied that this would be "no problem" because "in reality and in truth, theirs is the original Church which was the PECUSA then with whom were in intercommunion."

Bishop Pagtakhan also revealed that he had in his possession copies of two letters from the Rev'd Oliver B. Garver, assistant to the Right Rev'd Robert C. Rusack, Bishop of Los Angeles, addressed to the Rev'd Gregorio Bayaca, Rector of the Church of the Holy Child, a Filipino congregation in the area which is being permitted to use the church property of an Episcopal parish for its services.

One of the letters admitted that "the situation is clearly very confused" by the fact that Bishop Allin was quoting the cable from Bishop Ga, who claimed no knowledge of Bishop Pagtakhan's intention to act as a co-consecrator, while at the same it had been revealed in news reports on the Denver service that Bishop Pagtakhan had presented Bishop Chambers the "Bishop Aglipay Cross" on behalf of the Supreme Council of Bishops of the Philippine Independent Church, which Father Garver's letter described as "a most distinguished honor".

Bishop Pagtakhan explained that the award, given only once before by the Supreme Council and then to Dr. Michael Ramsey, at that time Archbishop of Canterbury, had been authorized by the Right Rev'd Manuel L. LaGasca, President of the Supreme Council of Bishops and Metropolitan of Greater Manila.

++

[text of the citation accompanying the Bishop Aglipay Cross

Christian Greetings to all throughout the world!

For the very laudable principles and Christian courage to maintain the essence and precepts of the Catholic Faith assumed by the Right Reverend ALBERT A. CHAMBERS and his group, by virtue of this Apostolic Letter, for and in behalf of the Supreme Council of Bishops of the Philippine Independent Catholic Church, by the Grace of God, the undersigned hereby awards the to Bishop Chambers and his sympathizers in putting up a continuing Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church.

BISHOP AGLIPAY CROSS

Given at this Metropolitan See, Diocese of Greater Manila, this 20th day of January, 1978, in Pasay City, Metro Manila, Philippines.

s/ + M. L. LaGasca
MANUEL L. LAGASCA
President, SCB, & Metropolitan of Greater Mla.

[SEAL]

++

FULL TEXT OF STATEMENT BY THE RIGHT REVEREND ALBERT A. CHAMBERS

The TIME Magazine article leaves the impression that Dr. Doren was not telling the truth when he said he had brought from Korea a letter from Bishop Mark Pae, giving his consent to the consecration of his own Archdeacon, who has been his good friend for many years. Is one to conclude from the TIME report that the letter read to the congregation at the consecration service was a forged document, written to fool somebody?

This is ridiculous on the face of it because Dr. Doren was fully aware before he left Korea that the consecration would proceed, with or without the presence of Bishop Pae, since a consecration with only two bishops is most assuredly valid. There are many instances throughout the history of the Holy Catholic Church of consecrations being carried out by fewer than three bishops, including the succession of Roman Catholic orders in the United States which come from the consecration of three bishops by only a single bishop.

It is an insult to Bishop Doren to imply that he would manufacture such a letter. I have the original in my possession. It is handwritten on the letterhead of the Diocese of Taejon, the Anglican Church in Korea, from the office of Bishop Mark D. Pae, and it is impressed with the official seal of the Diocese. I know it to be in Bishop Pae's handwriting because I have compared it with three previous letters written to me by Bishop Pae in recent months, and the handwriting is the same.

The Canons found in the APOSTOLIC CONSTITUTIONS clearly state that, should a bishop be unable to be present to consecrate, he may send his written consent, and I am convinced that Bishop Pae did just that.

It is quite understandable to me that he now chooses to deny he wrote the letter because it is clear he has been under great pressure from the Archbishop of Canterbury. But his denial has no effect on the validity of the consecration.

NOTES

The Newsletter has a copy of the full statement by Bishop Pagtakhan also, but it is somewhat long to be included in this special issue. If you want a copy, send us a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, asking for Bishop Pagtakhan's statement, and we will send it to you.

Because we are concerned to get this information out to you as quickly as possible, we are not including an update of "Who's Who" or other of the usual items with it. In due time we will put together all the corrections we have received (and many thanks to one and all for responding) and include them in the next Newsletter.

In these confused times of rumors and charges and confusion, please pray for Dale, James, Robert and Peter. Theirs is a heavy load. Your special prayers are asked for Albert --his has been and continues a heavy load.

FCC Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

BULK PERMIT
49
EUREKA SPRINGS
ARKANSAS

FCCB
The Rev'd David E. Green
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen NEWSLETTER

GRADUATE THEOLOGICAL UNION 1962 APR 5 1978

Vol. I, No. 5 mid-March A.D. 1978

WHERE do we begin to try to put together another issue of the Fellowship Newsletter? The pace is so fast and the Postal Service is so slow that we find we are always on the run trying to catch up with where we should have been yesterday. Be that as it may, we shall continue to try to give you as complete, as timely, and as accurate information as we can. We shall continue to urge you to help us by writing or calling when you have corrections or additions to what appears in the Newsletter. We thank all of those who have done so so far, and particularly are we appreciative of the good grace that our correspondents have shown in helping us to get the correct information --even when we have grossly misspelled a name the correspondent was most charitable and understanding. We are long enough in to the business of getting the Newsletter out now that we can begin to set some sort of standard format so that you may know what to expect. The chief value of the Newsletter continues to be that of letting you know when and where new parishes or congregations are formed; to that end we will print updates in the odd-numbered issues, such as this one, and a complete listing (at least for the foreseeable future) in even-numbered issues. We shall also try to issue the Newsletter every four weeks. Many readers have written us concerning the slowness of delivery: we can only counsel patience. For one thing, we know that the weather has been against us and, in at least one instance: 1) prevented us from picking up the printed Newsletter from the printer on time; 2) prevented us from getting it into the mail on time; and 3) held it captive for several days in a postal distribution center. As the weather eases perhaps the flow of mail will improve.

UPDATE NO. 3 — If there has been no material change in a listing, no entry is made here. Additions, corrections, and deletion are noted here and should be compared with the list in issue No. 3 (mid-February).

ALABAMA: Atmore, St Andrew's, P.O. Box 560 , 36502; Charles W. Laue, 205-368-3897
Montgomery, St Joseph of Arimathea: ADD Harvey R. Fletcher, Clerk

ALBERTA: Edmonton, Resurrection: ADD for Fr Sargeant, 403-429-4140; ADD G. Mealey, 10511 - 140 St, T5N 2M1, 403-452-2853

CALIFORNIA: Berkeley, St Joseph of Arimathea: ADD for Fr Read, 6073 Claremont Av, Oakland 94618, 415-658-4033
ADD Placentia, St Mary Magdalene, Anthony F. Rasch, priest, 714-774-8100
ADD San Francisco, Anglican Catholic Mission, Edwin H. Walker IV, priest, 415-731-3353
ADD Santee, Mr and Mrs K. V. Saunders, 8701 Mesa Rd (44), 92071, 714-449-9301

COLORADO: Boulder, St Teresa of Avila, Richard P. Woolley, 1850 Folsom (309), 80302, 303-449-6186
DELETE St Mark's, Denver

FLORIDA: ADD Palatka, All Saints', Mary A. Gale, 1912 Carr St, 32077

ILLINOIS: DELETE St Luke's, Springfield

KANSAS: CHANGE address of St Francis', Ft Scott to P.O. Box 425, 66701

ADD MANITOBA: Winnipeg, St Thomas More, 55 Wilton St, R3M 3B3

ADD MARYLAND: Millersville, Col Geoffrey T. Cowell, P.O. Box 224, 21108, 301-987-5873

MEXICO: DELETE Holy Cross, Acapulco

MICHIGAN: Battle Creek, All Saints', Geo. M. Spriggs, Jr, warden, 263 Berkley, 49017
West Branch: CHANGE address of Holy Faith to P.O. Box 531, 48661

MINNESOTA: Minneapolis, St Dunstan's: ADD Jane Nones, 612-824-3933
MISSOURI: Columbia, Andrew J. McRoberts, 1407 Bouchelle, 65201, 314-449-3117, 314-442-5566
NEW JERSEY: DELETE All Saints', Bergenfield; St Mark's, Keansburg; St Athanasius, McAfee; St Peter's, Stockton
ADD Flemington, St Peter's, 3 Williams Pl, 08822; Col James A. Horn, warden, 609-397-0349
NEW YORK: DELETE Trinity, Brooklyn; Epiphany, Ozone Park
Islip, St Stephen's: ADD (Mail: P.O. Box 603, Great River, 11739); Mrs Oliver Zipp, 516-581-5484; Mrs John B. Fellows, 516-581-2269
Port Chester, Advent: ADD Adolph Rutler, warden, 914-323-5291
Rochester, Holy Cross: ADD Mrs Robert J. Cone, 11 Tryingham Rd, 14617
OHIO: Columbus, Christ: ADD Robert Amerine, warden, 614-888-6402
Lancaster, St Luke's: ADD 614-653-8607
ADD Portsmouth, Charles Brown, Lay Reader-in-Charge, 721 Washington St, 45662, 614-353-7520
OKLAHOMA: Oklahoma City: CHANGE to Holy Cross, P.O. Box 12530, 73157, R. R. Pressley, priest, 405-946-3589
ADD ONTARIO, Ottawa, Annunciation, C. J. deCatanzaro, priest, 318 Clemow Av, K1S 2B8, 613-232-5406
PENNSYLVANIA: Pittsburgh, Holy Trinity: ADD 2293 Country Club Dr, Upper St Clair 15241, 412-833-6221, 221-3598
State College, St Alban's: CHANGE to Mrs Stuart Forth
SOUTH CAROLINA: Charleston, St Timothy's: CHANGE to Robert C. Harvey, priest, 22 Trapman, 29401
Columbia: CHANGE to Good Shepherd, 809 Calhoun, 29201, 803-765-1334; William Gatling, priest, 803-772-5736; William Ladkau, priest, 803-791-4596
TENNESSEE: ADD Sewanee, St Stephen's, Reginald H. Helvenston, The Cloister, St Mary's Road, 37375, 615-598-5832
ADD Memphis. Nativity, Earl Bennetts, 1913 Grovehaven Dr, 38116
TEXAS: DELETE Bedford (but continue to use P.O. Box 136, Bedford 76021 as mail address for Fr Jean Pierre Meshew, CHANGE phone to 817-498-1147)
Euless, St Bede's, Mark G. Holliday, priest
San Antonio, All Saints': CHANGE to F. Ogden Miller, priest
ADD UTAH: Salt Lake City, Robert Sperling, 305 South 12th East, 84102, 801-582-6914; Mrs H. L. Cook, 801-277-0305
VIRGINIA: ADD Blacksburg, A. Fraser MacCammond, priest
Bridgewater, Holy Cross: CHANGE to 703-828-2501, 828-6834
WASHINGTON: Sequim, St Anselm of Canterbury, R. C. Henstock, priest; John H. Merscher, lay reader; George E. Brown, lay reader, Rt 3, Box 781, 98382, 206-683-3637
DELETE St Mary's, Ocomonowoc, Wisconsin.

WANTED & OFFERED

Tapes of the Church Congress are still available: Tape 1 - Swindells, Laukhuff (opening), and Simcox; Tape 2 - Rutler and Williamson; Tape 3 - Barnes, deCatanzaro, Workshop on Establishing Missions; Tape 4 - Faber, Morse, Reading of Affirmation of St Louis, Laukhuff (closing). Church Congress tapes cost $5 each or $20 for the set. Send your order, with a check made out to FCC, to the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen, P.O. Box 505, Amherst, VA 24521.
Tapes of the Consecrations are also available: Two cassettes include the complete service, approximately three hours in length, preludes, processional, Epistle, Gospel, sermon, consecrations, celebration of the Eucharist, and recessional, with organ, choir and brass ensemble. Send $10 per set requested to: St Mary's Church, c/o Bill Lamb, 1632 South Glencoe St, Denver, CO 80222. Tapes will be mailed with labels and in storage boxes within one week of receipt of payment.
Father Pedro N. Santos, a priest-affiliate of the Diocese of the Midwest, whose address is 1931 Norwood Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods, MI 48236, has offered to celebrate the Holy Eucharist with any group in the Detroit area which so desires.
THE BARN OWL (c/o the Fellowship Newsletter, P.O. Box 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632) invites parishes having no linens at all, or larger old linens or old linen surplices or alb portions which could be cut down for smaller pieces, or linen remnants to send a self-addressed, stamped envelope in which you will receive advice on how to make over what you have, or information on new pieces made to your requirements. Any pieces that you do not need will be passed along to other parishes that need them. The Barn Owl has some pieces already made and available. There is no charge. Any donated linen, old or new, will be made according to requests received and sent to new homes.

N. R. Miller, P.O. Box 5993, Columbia, SC 29250, a woodcarver, furniture maker and metal worker, offers to tell those interested ". . . how to make an altar out of doors, processional crosses out of hoe handles, etc. Will furnish dimensions, sketches, etc. to anyone needing such info and consultation at no charge . . . let me know what you want to make, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Almost everything that is needed can be "home made" at very little cost if people are willing to use their talents for God."

Back issues of the Fellowship Newsletter are available upon request: I-1 - purpose of Newsletter and brief biographies of Bishops Morse, Mote and Watterson; I-2 - brief biography of Bishop Doren and information about The Barn Owl; I-3 - brief reports on the Denver consecrations and the Fellowship annual meeting, including list of new officers and directors, update of Anglican Loyalist congregations; I-4 - "Bishops Respond to Consecration Attacks", including text of Bishop Chambers' statement, letter from Bishop Pae, and citation for presentation of the Aglipay Cross. To get any or all, send a No. 10 (or larger) self-addressed envelope with 24¢ postage to the Fellowship Newsletter, P.O. Box 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632.

Copies of the Affirmation of St Louis may be obtained in the same way from the same source. The opening addresses of the Church Congress are also available from the above address for $1 per copy (quantity rates upon request); when remittance accompanies order, postage is paid.

COMINGS & GOINGS

The Bishop of the Diocese of Christ the King, accompanied by the Rector of Holy Apostles, Glendale, California, has been in Texas, Mississippi, Georgia and the San Joaquin Valley of California recently --a modern day Paul and Barnabas perhaps. The Bishop of the Diocese of the Holy Trinity was recently at "St Michael's Church in Downey [California]" (perhaps somebody from that church would send us information so that it can be listed in the Newsletter). The Bishop of the Diocese of the Midwest was in Ohio recently, but has had to cancel a visit to St Louis at Easter because of recent surgery. Your prayers are asked for +Dale. The Past President of the Fellowship, probably by the time you get this issue of the Newsletter will be on his way or attending a "Catholic Renewal" conference in Loughborough, England, representing the Fellowship and ACNA.

COMING UP SOON

A "Mini-St Louis" Congress is scheduled in Oklahoma City on 1 April at the Holiday Inn at 3535 N.W. 39th Expressway. The Eucharist is to be celebrated at 10:30 a.m., followed by lunch, and the meeting is scheduled from 1 to 5 p.m. For further information write the Church of the Holy Cross, P.O. Box 12530, Oklahoma City 73157, or call Fr Pressley at 405-946-3589. The Second Salem Congress is scheduled for 13 May in Salem, Massachusetts. It is a meeting of the 1200 members of the Concerned Churchmen of New England and is to present a plan "for organization of a New England diocese, as well as a proposed call to convention for a Diocesan Synod and a model Constitution and Canons . . ." For further information, call or write the chairman of CCNE, Mr H. Otis Noyes, Jr, 246 Eastern Promenade, Portland, ME 04101, 207-775-0792. Expected soon are Anglican Loyalist listings for congregations in Ann, Arbor, Detroit and Flint, Michigan; Erie, Pennsylvania; and Poplar Bluff, Missouri.

QUICK QUOTES

Father Carmino J. deCatanzaro, reacting to the Canadian Church's refusal to recognize officially any split, "Of course not -- they're never going to admit it if they don't recognize it."

FCCB
The Rev'd David E. Green
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

BULK PERMIT
49
EUREKA SPRINGS
ARKANSAS

The Fellowship Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

Charles E. Parnell, President of the Mission of the Anglican Church, in New Orleans, commenting on the actions of the Bishop of Louisiana in thwarting the Mission's attempt to rent space at Loyola University for an Easter Eucharist, "The Episcopal Bishop has no jurisdiction over the Mission of the Anglican Church . . . The Episcopal Bishop has no connection with the Anglican Church in North America. If the Episcopal Bishop wants to straddle two [Churches] and control both of them, he will accomplish what no other Church leader has dared."

The Bishop of the Diocese of Christ the King, telling the congregation of the Church of the Holy Cross, Oklahoma City, not to be disturbed because it was losing its church building, "Life takes everything away from us anyhow -- our looks, our friends, our loved ones, but if you have God at the end, you have everything."

Father Kyle Boeger, in a letter to the Bishops of Southern Virginia, "Perhaps when the leadership of PECUSA realizes that punitive action is useless, the voices of moderation and reason may be heard. This Spirit-led movement cannot be inhibited by Old Testament hair-splitting legalism any more than the wind can be stopped by a fish net or contained in a bird cage."

Father Jean Pierre Meshew in his The Goodnewsletter, "You are not alone, even though you may think you are. It is almost certain that there are others in your area who are like-minded. You can find them."

GOOD-BYE NO. 5

In the week preceding the consecrations in Denver, "the first religious order in the Continuing Church" was formed there at St Mary's Church. Twenty people met with, then, Father Mote and after a discussion of the Rules of the Third Order of St Francis , the group voted to form a Third Order and pray for the formation of a First and Second Order. Before the week was out one of the group asked Bishop Mote to receive his vows in the First Order, and four tentative sites for a monastery had been ofeered. For more information about the Order write: The Franciscans, c/o St Mary's Church, 2290 South Clayton, Denver 80210.

The Right Reverend, the Bishop of the Diocese of Christ the King, uses as his crosier a simple shepherd's crook made for him in the Holy Land.

Did you know that one of the best ways to be sure that information about the Anglican Church in North America is sent to those who want and need it is for you to send us their names and addresses?

Of your Christian charity pray for our bishops --James, Robert, Peter, and Dale-- and for those bishops who made it possible --Albert, Francisco, and Mark.

APR 26 1978

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen NEWSLETTER

THEOLOGICAL

Vol. I, No. 6 late-April A.D. 1978

LETTERS come in to the Fellowship Newsletter in a considerable number, and many of them have raised the question of the validity of the consecrations in Denver on 28 January; others ask about the apparent split within the Diocese of the Holy Trinity. We have, in each case, tried to answer as truthfully and as completely as we could within the means of time and knowledge available to us. Now, we are happy to be able to recommend to you a source of much good information about both questions.

In the March, 1978, issue of The Christian Challenge appear an article and an editorial that speak directly to the matter. The editorial, "A Matter of Validity", deals not only with the circumstances of the consecrations in question, but cites the Apostolic Constitutions and the Apostolic Canons, wherein the Fathers of the Church dealt with those matters, and, further, gives details pertinent to the question as they pertained to the Church of England, the Polish National Catholic Church, and the Roman Catholic Church in the United States.

"The Story Behind the Consecration", written also by Dorothy A. Faber, Editor of the Challenge, sets forth the events that led up to the consecrations in Denver. The Dragon Lady, as she is universally known, writes ". . . it will require a book in order to relate all the crises, all the unexpected events, all the outside pressures and internal machinations that were occurring behind the scenes during the preceding year." Mrs Faber, nevertheless, does an excellent job of recording the highlights of that story ---and the sure way for you to know about them is to write The Christian Challenge, POB 2624, Victoria, Texas 77901, and request that you be put on the mailing list beginning with the March, 1978, issue. Since paper and printing and postage cost money, it would be well that you send a contribution with your request.

ANGLICAN LOYALIST CONGREGATIONS

ONCE again, let us set up this simple caveat: The information given here is the best that we have been able to gather. The situation is very fluid and changes from day to day. What we have attempted to give you here is, in most cases, simply a set of contacts --names, addresses, telephone numbers-- that you should check out before you attend services. If you do not find any listing in your area, perhaps it is time to get things organized on your own --that is the way most of these listings came about. Where previous listings have carried the notation "no further information" and none has been forthcoming, we have dropped the listing. We have added one additional bit of information: where we know or are reasonably sure of the diocesan affiliation of the parish or mission we have so indicated in parentheses following the name of the church as follows: Diocese of Christ the King (XR); of the Holy Trinity (HT); of the Southeastern United States (SE); of the Midwest (MW). As always, we ask that you write (POB 252, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632) or call (501-253-9701, 253-9800) if you have additional information or if you find we have erred.

ALABAMA: Atmore, St Andrew, POB 560, 36502; Charles W. Laue, 205-368-3897
Fairhope, St Peter, POB 45, 36532; Bert Richardson, 205-928-5969
Montgomery, St Joseph of Arimathea, POB 36117; Philip C. Davis, 3024 Pelzer Av, 36109; Harvey R. Fletcher, clerk

17236

ALBERTA: Edmonton, Resurrection; Fr Philip T. Sargeant, St John's School of Alberta, Rural Route 1, Stony Plain, T0E 2G0, 403-429-4140; G. Mealey, 10511 - 140 St, T5N 2M1, 403-452-2853
ARIZONA: Payson, Holy Nativity, POB 1261, 85541; Fr Robert P. Donovan, 602-474-3114 (XR)
Scottsdale, St Jerome, 1708 N 69 St, 85257, 602-942-5555; Fr Robert H. Bridges, 602-946-1260
ARKANSAS: Hot Springs, Richard W. Hobbs, 500 Ouachita Av, 71901, 501-623-6666
BRITISH COLUMBIA: Victoria, St Athanasius, 5483 Alderley Rd, V8Y 1X9; Frs Peter Wilkinson, SSC, and R. C. Henstock
CALIFORNIA: Berkeley, St Joseph of Arimathea (XR), 2543 Durant Av, 94704, 415-841-3083; Fr Francis W. Read, 6073 Claremont Av, Oakland 94618, 415-658-4033
Burlingame, Christ (XR), POB 648, 94010; Fr John T. Cahoon, 1208 Capuchino, 94010, 415-347-4423; Jack Lysaght, 415-349-7314
Glendale, Holy Apostles (XR), 1011 S Verdugo Rd, 91205, 213-243-3424; Fr George H. Clendenin, 213-241-4473
Los Angeles, Our Saviour, 6301 W Olympic Blvd, 90048
Martinez, Fr Stanley G. Macgirvin, 4444 Canyon Way, 94553, 415-228-7792, 228-5161
Oakland, St Peter (XR), 6013 Lawton Av, 94618, 415-655-4283; Right Rev'd Robert S. Morse, Rector, and Bishop of the Diocese of Christ the King, 415-841-8150
Placentia, St Mary Magdalene, 714-774-8100; Fr Anthony F. Rasch, 1765 Greenleaf Av, Anaheim 92801
Santa Ana, St Therese of Lisieux, 105 W Stevens, 92707, 714-556-3111; Fr G. Russell Touchstone; William Musgrove, Senior Warden
Santee, Mr and Mrs K. V. Saunders, 8701 Mesa Rd (44), 92071, 714-449-9301
Wrightwood, Mr Gordon Koenig, POB 1032, 92397
COLORADO: Black Hawk, St Paul, POB 176, 80422; Fr William C. Buck, 303-582-5858
Boulder, St Teresa of Avila, Jeanne Woolley, Senior Warden, 1850 Folsom (309), 80302, 303-449-6186
Colorado Springs, St Athanasius, POB 6193, 80934; Fr Richard Willars; Alfred J. Martin, MD, Senior Warden, 1108 Shrider Rd, 80918
Denver, St Mary, 2290 S Clayton, 80210, 303-758-7211, 757-6814; Right Rev'd James O. Mote, Rector, and Bishop of the Diocese of the Holy Trinity

Idaho Springs, Calvary
Westcliffe, St Luke; Fr Richard Willars, 2695 Evans St, Denver 80219
CONNECTICUT: Fairfield, Our Lady; Jean Cummings, 49 Ridgeway Av, 06430, 203-384-2655
Mystic, Mrs Wanda McFarland, 203-536-4366
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington, St Hilda of Whitby; Fr R. Michael Wynkoop, 301-587-2299; A. Edward Faro, Senior Warden, 3900 Cathedral Av, NW (612-A), 20016, 202-965-9896
FLORIDA: Fort Lauderdale, St Michael the Archangel; Fr James G. Monroe, Jr
Jacksonville, Holy Trinity, 2911 Broward Rd, 32218; Fr Robert W. Bowman, 4604 Lanier Dr, Savannah, GA 31405
Palatka, All Saints; Mary A. Gale, 1912 Carr St, 32077
St Petersburg, St John, 650 Pinellas Point, S (225), 33705, 813-867-8091; George W. Thomas; P. Raymond Plumer
Tallahassee, St Andrew, 710 Middlebrook Circle, 32303, 904-385-3116, 385-5877, 386-8304; Mrs Lucyle Werkmeister; Col Charles L. Perkins
West Palm Beach, Holy Spirit (SE), 1003 Allendale Rd, 33405, 305-833-7605; Right Rev'd Peter Francis Watterson, Rector, and Bishop of the Diocese of the Southeastern United States, 305-833-9937
Winter Haven, St Mary, POB 9351, 33880, 813-324-3805; Fr Sterling Rayburn, 813-324-1579
GEORGIA: Atlanta, St Hilda of Whitby, 2586 Briarcliffe Rd, NE (2), 30529, 404-634-3754; Fr George Murdoch; John Crown, Warden
Savannah, St Andrew, Montgomery & State Sts, 912-355-0807; Fr Robert W. Bowman, 4604 Lanier Dr, 31405
ILLINOIS: Chicago, St George the Martyr (MW), c/o Allenson's Books, 29 W Jackson, 60604; Fr Robert C. Bornfield, 109 N Kenilworth, Oak Park 60301, 312-848-5402; Rev'd R. B. Dibbert, deacon, 7402 N Sheridan Rd, 60626, 312-764-9820; James G. Schneider, Warden, 888 Cobb Blvd, Kankakee 60901, 815-937-2888
INDIANA: Evansville, St Mary the Virgin, POB 3271, 47701, 812-867-5255; William Hickman
Indianapolis, St Edward the Confessor, 3921 Guilford, 46205, 317-925-6934; Fr Joseph P. Deyman, 3662 Nobscot Court (1A), 46222
IOWA: Sioux Center, Fr E. L. Hebden Taylor, 333 - 4th Av, NE, 51250; 712-722-1671
KANSAS: Ft Scott, St Francis (HT), POB 425, 66701; James McNeley, Warden, 316-223-2838
KENTUCKY: Dayton, St John (MW), 619 O'Fallon Av, 41074, 606-781-5006; Fr James Bjorkman, 219 Glazier Av, Bellevue 41073
LOUISIANA: Metairie, Christ, 3001 - 22d St, 70002 (Mail: POB 15140, New Orleans 70175), 504-891-3182; Charles Parnell, Warden
MANITOBA: Winnipeg, St Thomas More, 55 Wilton St, R3M 3B3
MARYLAND: Millersville, St Charles the Martyr, POB 224, 21108; Col Geoffrey T. Cowell, 301-987-5873; E. J. M. LaRoque, 301-467-8096
Mount Airy, Mrs May B. Shaw, Rt 4, Box 239, 21771, 301-829-0205
Silver Spring, Mrs J. Albert Sanford, 1200 Pinecrest Circle, 20910
MASSACHUSETTS: Boston, Mrs Stevenson, 617-742-1508
Brookline, Mrs Paul H. Walker, 617-734-7267
Harvard, St Alban, POB 428, 01451; Fr C. David Burt, 617-456-8645; Jess Keegan, 617-456-8705
Ipswich, St Michael and All Angels, POB 8, 01938, 617-356-2213
Marlborough, Mrs Hodgson, 617-485-8841
MICHIGAN: Battle Creek, All Saints (MW); George M. Spriggs, Jr, Warden, 263 Berkley Av, 49017
West Branch, Holy Faith (MW), POB 531, 48661, 517-345-5700; Louis E. Traycik, Warden
MINNESOTA: Minneapolis, St Dunstan (MW), 4800 Dupont Av, 55409, 612-824-3933; John Fitzimmons, Warden, 612-474-9032; Jane Nones, 612-824-3933
Spring Park, St Chad; Fr John E. Holman, 608-782-6350; E. G. Lindemann, Warden, 4177 Shoreline Dr, 55384, 612-471-8653; J. M. Lehr, 6338 Xerxes Av, S, Minneapolis 55423, 612-927-6091
MISSISSIPPI: Gautier, Mrs M. L. Wootten, 1709 Pat Dr, 39533
MISSOURI: Ava, St Francis in the Ozarks, RFD 4, 65608; L. M. Heigham, Warden
Columbia, Andrew J. McRoberts, 1407 Bouchelle, 65201, 314-449-3117, 442-5566
Poplar Bluff, William W. Pettet, 211 N Broadway (104), 63901, 314-785-5684, 686-2356
St Louis, Holy Apostles (MW), POB 3854, 63122, 314-726-3481; Leland Hilligoss, Senior Warden, 8225 Parkside Dr, Clayton 63105
NEBRASKA: Ainsworth, Holy Trinity; Fr Herman E. Buck
Valentine, Agape; Fr Herman E. Buck, POB 261, 69201
NEW HAMPSHIRE: Jefferson, St Dunstan, RFD 1, Box 147, 03583; George Brackett
Winchester, David Hewlett, 603-239-4325, 239-6677
NEW JERSEY: Atlantic City, Ascension, POB 1808, 08404; Frs Robert M. Collins, 609-266-8807, 344-0615, and Stuart W. Frazier, 609-266-3817
Flemington, St Peter (HT), 3 Williams Pl, 08822; Col James A. Horn, Senior Warden, 609-397-0349
Long Branch, St Alban the Martyr, 2d St & Bath Av, 07740, 201-222-2884, 222-1411; Fr Robert Pearson
West Orange, St Mark, 45 Main St, 07052, 201-736-0214; Fr William Burns
NEW MEXICO: Albuquerque, St Peter; Fr George B. Schold, Jr, 9824 Robin Av, NE, 87112; Richard Musgrove, Warden, 811 Pennsylvania Av, NE, 87110
St Thomas the Apostle, Fr Charles H. Olsen, Jr, 4717 Goodrich, NE, 87110
NEW YORK: Islip, St Stephen, 44 Ocean Av, 11751 (Mail: POB 603, Great River, 11739); Oliver Zipp, 516-581-5484; Mrs John B. Fellows, 516-581-2269
Port Chester, Advent; Adolph Rutler, Senior Warden, 914-323-5291; Mrs Flagler Matthews, 914-967-0210
Rochester, Holy Cross, 500 Simpson Rd, 14617, 716-889-3357; Fr David J. Ambuske, 631 Chili-Scottsville Rd, Scottsville 14546; Mrs Robert J. Cone, 11 Tryingham Rd, 14617
NORTH CAROLINA: Chapel Hill, St Thomas of Canterbury, POB 2312, 27514, 919-967-2442; Fr George D. Stenhouse, 919-383-6969
Charlotte, St Paul the Apostle, 4538 Sharon Rd, 28211, 704-366-1552; Thomas Samonds
Fayetteville, Incarnation, POB 35687, 28303, 919-488-6232; Fr George D. Stenhouse, 919-383-6969; Donald A. Seibert, Clerk

OHIO: Akron, St Mary (MW); Dr Don Gerlach
Chillicothe, St Paul (MW), 33 E Main St, 45601, 614-772-4105; Fr Fred C. Wolf, Jr
Cincinnati, St Alban (MW), 513-531-2738; Herbert Verity
Columbus, Christ (MW), Southern Hotel, 43219, 614-475-0738; Fr G. Wayne Craig, 2535 Sunbury Dr, 43219; Robert Amerine, Warden, 614-888-6402
Coshocton, St Paul (MW); Fr Larry Snyder
Dayton, All Saints (MW); Daniel Sauer, Warden, 1813 Harvard Blvd, 45406; 513-274-8328
Lancaster, St Luke (MW); William F. Cantieri, Senior Warden, 310 Hillside Av, 43130, 614-653-8607
Portsmouth, Christ (MW); Charles Brown, 721 Washington St, 45662; 614-353-7520
OKLAHOMA: Oklahoma City (XR), POB 12530, 73157, 405-843-6758; Fr R. R. Pressley, 4504 NW 28 St, 73127, 405-946-3589 Holy Cross
ONTARIO: Ottawa, Annunciation (MW); Fr C. J. deCatanzaro, 318 Clemow Av, K1S 2B8, 613-232-5406
PENNSYLVANIA: Pittsburgh, Holy Trinity (MW); Right Rev'd C. Dale David Doren, Rector, and Bishop of the Diocese of the Midwest, 2293 Country Club Dr, Upper St Clair 15241, 412-833-6221, 221-3598
State College, St Alban, 814-234-4483; Fr Henry C. Johnson (temporary); Mrs Stuart Forth, 963 E McCormick Av, 16801
SOUTH CAROLINA: Aiken, All Saints, 410 Colleton Av, 29801; William Nightingale Jr
Charleston, St Timothy, 68½ Queen St, 29401; Fr Robert C. Harvey, 22 Trapman, 29401; Clyde H. Turner, Senior Warden
Columbia, Good Shepherd, 809 Calhoun, 29201, 803-765-1334; Frs William Gatlin, 803-772-5736 and William Ladkau, 803-791-4596
Florence, Our Saviour (SE); Fr William Ladkau; Laurence K. Wells, Senior Warden, POB 694, Kingstree 29556; Mrs Walter Gregg Wallace, Clerk, Rt 4, 29501
TENNESSEE: Shelbyville, St Dunstan; Ray Anderson, 799 Whitthorne St, 37160, 615-684-0447
TEXAS: Bedford, Fr Jean Pierre Meshew, POB 136, 76021, 817-498-1147
Big Spring, St Paul; W. T. Wynn, Warden, 1603 W Dengar, Midland 79701; Mrs John Affleck, Corresponding Secretary, 2308 Allendale Rd, 79720
Corpus Christi, Mrs John Cornelius Rip, 3120 Ocean Dr, 78404
Corsicana, Transfiguration, POB 881, 75110, 214-872-2581; Fr Robert Q. Kennaugh
Dallas, St Thomas a Becket (see listing for Bedford)
Euless, St Bede; Fr Mark G. Holliday
Houston, St Andrew, POB 36277, 77036, 713-783-3529, 772-2322; Lewis E. Berry, Jr, Senior Warden, 10603 Meadowlake Ln, 77042 (HT)
San Antonio, All Saints; Don Collins, Senior Warden, 118 LaSalle Pl, Universal City 78148
Austin, Mrs Dorothy A. Faber, 8706 Silverhill Ln, 78759, 512-345-1329 (St. Augustine of Hippo)
UTAH: Salt Lake City, St Andrew (HT); Robert Sperling, 305 South 12th East, 84102, 801-582-6914; Mrs H. L. Cook, 801-277-0305
VERMONT: Northfield, Incarnation, RD 2, 05663; Fr Frederick E. Preuss, II
VIRGINIA: Alexandria, St Margaret of Scotland, 112 N Alfred St, 22314, 703-836-6504; Jerome Loomis, Senior Warden; Daniel J. Jones, 3049 Shadeland Dr, Falls Church 22044, 703-JE3-9505
Bridgewater, Holy Cross, Box 99 BC, 22812, 703-828-2501; Fr Dale E. Mekeel, Rector, and Chairman of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of the Mid-Atlantic, 703-828-6734
Centreville, Ascension, 13941 Braddock Rd, 22020; Fr Ramsay Robertson-Kendall; Nathaniel F. Young, Warden, 10510 Cedar Av, Fairfax 22030
Norfolk, St Edward the Confessor, POB 12311, 23502, 804-461-3922; Joseph Mahler, Warden
Richmond, Christ the King, 1413 Graystone Av, 23224 (mail); Fr E. E. Kyle Boeger, POB 236, Bremo Bluff 23022; Ralph R. Hudson, Warden
WASHINGTON: Sequim, St Anselm of Canterbury; Fr R. C. Henstock; John H. Merscher; George E. Brown, Rt 3, Box 781, 98382, 206-683-3637
WYOMING: Cheyenne, Blessed Sacrament, POB 66, 82001; Fr John K. Valensis, POB 2826, Airport Station, 82001; 307-634-8290

BISHOP CHAMBERS' LETTER

On 15 March 1978, Bishop Chambers wrote to those who had worked with him in the four dioceses of ACNA, the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen, and elsewhere toward the Church Congress in St Louis and the consecrations in Denver. We believe that the letter deserves the widest sort of circulation and are proud and pleased to be able to reproduce it here:

To my Beloved Friends:

A year ago I came out of a very comfortable retirement to fulfill what I believed to be a most essential pastoral function. I confirmed in many churches which had separated from PECUSA, some of whose Bishops were suing them in secular courts, thus destroying any pastoral relationship which might have previously existed.

Then, also because of my pastoral concern, I decided to do what I could to provide the new congregations with a legitimate Episcopate. This was most essential.

After great turmoil, great pressures, great searching, the goal was achieved. We, in Denver, on January 29, 1978, had a legitimate, lawful and valid consecration of four outstanding bishops. Their elections were properly conducted. All the documents are in my safe deposit box. Since all the documents were complete, I took order for the consecration.

These four Bishops are devoted. They are strong in the faith, alert, informed, dedicated, eager. They will carry on the witness that needs to be made, and will build up the Continuing Church, founded on Apostolic Faith and Order. And they are now able to consecrate any new Bishops for the Continuing Church.

I feel that I have fulfilled my consecration vows and my commitment to the Continuing Church. I want now to return to my "retired status". Why? Not because I've lost my deep concern for the "cause", but just because I have only so much energy (after all, I will be 72 in June) and I can't, literally, keep up with a demanding schedule. If I could have, I would not have retired almost six years ago.

I love the accolades, the applause, the warmth and love of so many I've been with this past year. Who wouldn't? All this warms my heart. But the real accolades belong to the new Bishops who will make their witness, build up the Church and will succeed.

Bless you all for your thoughts of me. I am just a humble servant who took seriously his Consecration Vows. With love and undying gratitude for your support, I am

Affectionately yours, in Our Blessed Lord

s/ + Albert A. Chambers,
VII Bishop of Springfield

THE BARN OWL

The Barn Owl is out of linen. Completed altar linens have been sent to several states and out of the country. So far only one requester has provided linen; the rest of the requests were filled from linen on hand. If you have any linen of an unfigured weave, regardless of age or condition, please send it to the Barn Owl (POB 252, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632). The firm portions can be used for making altar linens.

Please include the following measurements with your request:

Purificators: the diamter of the Chalice (draw around it);
Pall: the height of the Chalice, or dimensions of burse;
Corporal: the diameter of the Chalice base or dimensions of burse;
Fair Linen: the length, width and height of table being used for an altar;
Credence Cloth: the length, width and height of table or shelf being used.

The Barn Owl does not make cassocks, surplices, albs or other garments of that nature --only altar linens. The Barn Owl is one person. Remember to enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your inquiry. Please give the name of your ACNA parish or mission, however small, and the name of your priest if you have one.

HEART WARMERS

The Concerned Churchmen of New England (POB 215, Rochester, New Hampshire 03867) have voted to establish a separate fund for the pecuniary relief of clergymen who have lost their income as a result of their loyalty to the Continuing Church. By unanimous consent, it was agreed that this fund shall be named the Bishop Chambers Fund. Contributions will be gratefully received by Mr Jesse Wright, POB 158, Deerfield, New Hampshire 03037. Mr Wright is the CCNE treasurer.

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen has named Mr Perry Laukhuff, President of the Fellowship for the past four years, President Emeritus. In his letter advising Mr Laukhuff of this action, the Rev'd Carroll E. Simcox, present President of the Fellowship said, in part, "It may well be true as the old saying has it that there are no indispensable men, but when I, and others, review the history and achievements of the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen from its beginning we can only say that the FCC without Perry Laukhuff is rather like Hamlet without the Prince of Denmark."

SHORT NOTES

Robert Paul Donovan, 54, a native of Ohio and ordered deacon in 1969, is the first man to be priested in the Anglican Church in North America. The ordination, at the Church of the Holy Nativity, Payson, Arizona, was the first episcopal act of Robert Sherwood Morse, consecrated Bishop of the Diocese of Christ the King the day before in Denver.

In a meeting on 18 January 1978 at Hyannis, Massachusetts, the Rule for The American Greyfriars, a religious order for men, and its counterpart, The American Greyladies, a religious order for women, of the Anglican Church in North America, was approved. The Rev'd Robert C. Kelley [of New York City] is the founder. The Right Rev'd Albert A. Chambers, VII Bishop of Springfield, is Visitor. ---From the Spring 1978 issue of The Scroll.

COMING UP SOON

The Second Salem Congress of the Concerned Churchmen of New England, 13 May; for more information, write or call the Chairman of CCNE, Mr H. Otis Noyes, Jr, 246 Eastern Promenade, Portland, Maine 04101, 207-775-0792.

At Des Plaines, Illinois, on 1 June, a meeting of the Planning Committee for the Constitutional Synod to be held at the Sheraton, Dallas, 18-21 October. Further details on the synod will be forthcoming, but the important information at the moment is that the Drafting Committee is hard at work, and that draft copies of the Constitution and Canons will be sent to deputies well before the synod so that they may study them and be prepared to act.

On 20 May, at the Church of St John the Evangelist, Dayton, Kentucky, a synod of the Diocese of the Mid-west, at which two seminarians from the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Kentucky, at Lexington, will be ordered deacons.

WANTED & OFFERED

Still available are the tapes of the addresses at the Church Congress in St Louis and of the consecrations in Denver. For the first, send your request to the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen, POB 505, Amherst, Virginia 24521: the tapes are $5 each (see Fellowship Letter I-5 for a description of each tape). Tapes of the consecrations are available from St Mary's Church, c/o Bill Lamb, 1632 South Glencoe Street, Denver 80222. Two cassettes, which include the entire service, are $10 per set; tapes will be mailed with labels and in storage boxes.

Father Pedro N. Santos, 1931 Norwood Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan 48236, is a priest-affiliate of the Diocese of the Midwest; he has offered to celebrate the Holy Eucharist with any group in the Detroit area which so desires.

N. R. Miller, POB 5993, Columbia, South Carolina 29250, a woodcarver, furniture maker and metal worker, offers information and consultation at no charge for those interested in making altars, processional crosses and the like (for details, I-5).

Back issues of I-1, 2, 3, 4 and (limited) 5, of the Fellowship Newsletter are available upon request; send a large, stamped envelope, with first-class postage for each issue wanted.

Mrs Ronald (Ethelmae) Yoxheimer, 339 King Street, Northumberland, Pennsylvania 17857, a church organist for some years "would be glad to offer [her] services free of charge in this capacity, or in any other aspect you would need [her]".

Copies of the Affirmation of St Louis are available upon request, and in quantity if desired. For one or two copies, a No. 10 stamped, self-addressed envelope will suffice. Larger quantities will be sent in envelopes provided by the Fellowship. Reimbursement of postage will be appreciated.

The booklet of the Opening Addresses of the Church Congress in St Louis is still available for $1 per copy (quantity rates available), including postage.

Fr Robert W. Bowman, 4604 Lanier Drive, Savannah, Georgia 31405, has "some linen chasuables available for anyone who needs them. One is plain white, one is white and red, the third (in very poor condition, and with an alb) is white and green. . . . also a burgundy red one available."

COMINGS & GOINGS

As reported in the Fellowship Newsletter of mid-March, Mr Perry Laukhuff, the President Emeritus of the Fellowship, attended the Catholic Renewal Conference in Loughborough, Leicestershire, England, 29 March - 1 April. He was accompanied by the Rev'd Dr C. J. deCatanzaro, Rector of the Anglican Church of the Annunciation in Ottawa. Father deCat and Mr Laukhuff represented both the Fellowship and ACNA; in addition, Mr Laukhuff represented the American Church Union. They were there "to give Anglicans from all parts of the Church a clearer and more accurate picture of developments in the American and Canadian Churches, of the formation of the Anglican Church in North America and of our aims and prospects."

A Congress of Witness, sponsored by the Anglican Missionary Society of Oklahoma and the Church of the Holy Cross, was held in Oklahoma City on 1 April. Keynote speaker was Fr George Rutler, Rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Rosemont, Pennsylvania. Celebrant of the Eucharist on Saturday morning was Fr R. R. Pressley, Rector of Holy Cross, and the preacher was Fr Jean Pierre Meshew, the "Vicar General of Texas". Afternoon speakers, in addition to Fr Rutler, were Mrs Dorothy A. Faber, Editor of The Christian Challenge and Captain W. R. Swindells, Vice President of the Fellowship and Managing Editor of The Anglican Digest.

ABC, XYZ, & ETC.

We all fall into the habit of using acronyms (is it ACNA or ACINA?) and initial letters and short-cut jargon from time to time. It appears to be one of the modern-day linguistic maladies to which we all are susceptible and at times it assumes epidemic proportions. We have had a number of inquiries about TCT as opposed to FNL. Translated, that means we are being asked if TCT (The Certain Trumpet, edited by Perry Laukhuff) and FNL (the Fellowship Newsletter, edited by Walt Swindells) were not doing the same thing. The answer is no. The newsletter that you are now reading came about at the suggestion of Dottie Faber, the Dragon Lady editor of The Christian Challenge (TCC, just in case you missed that one), and with the encouragement of Mr Laukhuff, with the thought --concurred in by its editor-- that the Fellowship Newsletter would be just that, a newsletter, and would not serve as an opinion journal (happily, both TCT and TCC do). For a brief period, The Certain Trumpet used as an underline, "The Newsletter of the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen"; however, with the advent of the Fellowship Newsletter, Mr Laukhuff instructed his printer to remove that line. As occasionally happens, there was a slip 'twixt printer and editor, and the line remained for one more issue. Be assured, however, that Mr Laukhuff and Captain Swindells are on the best of terms and that TCT is not competing with FNL or vice versa.

The second line of inquiry we get is why we did not list TAL (The Anglican Laymen) in the earlier issues of the newsletter. The answer is simply that we listed those publications (The Anglican Digest, The Certain Trumpet, The Christian Challenge, and New Oxford Review) which were, and are, full-fledged participating members of the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen. No mystery, really. There are undoubtedly a number of good conservative publications about the country that we do not list, but, like The Anglican Laymen, they are not publication members of the Fellowship.

As for the element of competition, again we do not feel that we are "competing" with any publication --nor do we, quite frankly, feel that any publication is "competing" with us. The Fellowship Newsletter, which is still at this point supported solely by your voluntary contributions and its staff's voluntary efforts, exists only to report to those who wish to receive and read it, as much accurate and timely information as we can muster about the Fellowship and the Anglican Church in North America.

QUICK QUOTES

Fr Jean Pierre Meshew in The Goodnewsletter: We are being told that only those who are in communion with the Archbishop of Canterbury are Anglicans. From a rigidly legalistic point of view that statement may have some merit. But if it is true, so be it. I am much more interested in being in communion with God, and in being true to the Faith of the Creeds and the Church as she always has taught it.

Paul and Vee Schwieker in a letter to The Christian Challenge: The keynote addresses at the Congress of Concerned Churchmen by the Rev'd George Rutler and the Rev'd Dr Carroll E. Simcox, as published in your November issue, are masterpieces and should be retained for posterity. (Editor's Note: If you don't have your posterity copy yet, see "Wanted & Offered".)

Fr R. R. Pressley in his parish bulletin: . . . what is this Anglican Church in North America? Know first that that name is provisional; it may be changed at the General Synod to be called this fall . . . . Notice, also, that it is not of North America, but in North America. The difference is small, but perhaps important. "Of" used in a description indicates that the described object or organization is derived from, or comes from the named entity. Obviously, any body claiming to be a part of the Catholic Church cannot be derived from America. The provisional name uses in. "In" indicates inclusion with relation to space, time, state, circumstances, manner, etc. Since our movement to reform the Church, and continue it as we have known and loved it is limited, so far, to the United States, Canada and Mexico, it just seems kind of natural to call it what we have . . . . Once before, I said in this [bulletin], "We have changed nothing but our name; the Episcopal Church has changed everything but its name."

Bulletin of St Timothy's Anglican Church, Charleston, South Carolina: Let us keep ever firm in our minds who we are, what we are doing, and why. We are loyal Anglicans continuing the Episcopal Church as it was before it departed from the Catholic Faith and from Apostolic Order. We are loyal in communion with God and true to the Faith of the Creeds and the Church as she has always taught it.

The Fellowship Newsletter is beginning to get Anglican Loyalist parish bulletins from hither and yon about the country; among them is The Courier of the Church of the Holy Apostles, in St Louis, Missouri. In its April issue appears the new device of that parish -- a shield with a star of twelve wavy rays, representing the twelve apostles of our Lord. The shield is black and the star white, signifying that the apostles were lights of the world in their generation, lights shining in the darkness. Although each of the apostles has a shield traditionally attributed to him, none has heretofore been attributed to the twelve as a group.

The newsletter would be pleased to reproduce, within its capabilities, the shields, banners, coats-of-arms, or what-have-you of other parishes. To cut down on production costs, send us something that we can use in its original size.

GOOD-BYE NO. 6

Now, as perhaps never before, Churchmen need to learn more about the Church. Good reading is one way and one good way to insure good reading about the Church is a membership in the Episcopal Book Club. Four Books-of-the-Season are offered every year, arriving around the Ember Days. The books are offered on a satisfaction-guaranteed, money-back arrangement, and considerable savings can be effected by taking advantage of the Club's payment-in-advance offer. For $20, four books will be sent, as published --and the same guarantee applies. If you prefer, you may request to have the next (or current) Book-of-the-Season sent you and be billed at the EBC price. As an example of the savings that can be effected, EBC's current book, The Risk of Love, bears a publisher's price of $6.95, is available to Club members for $5.10, postage paid. You may also request a list of past selections still available.

To further aid you in your pursuit of knowledge about the Church, we suggest you subscribe to The Anglican Digest. "Subscribe" is not quite the right word since no subscription fee is attached to the Digest. Rather, TAD, as it is generally known, asks that you send in a dollar (a TADollar) on your birthday. You may request a sample copy.

Yet a third way --especially for newly formed congregations, newly ordained priests, and the like-- to enhance your knowledge of the Church is by reference to the classics --Frank E. Wilson's The Divine Commission, C. B. Moss' The Christian Faith, Evelyn Underhill's and Dorothy L. Sayers' books, and perhaps a thousand more. Many of the best and most readable and soundest are out of print. Where to ask? Try SPEAK's Operation Pass Along. At no charge, used books, which have been donated by clergymen and laymen alike, are "passed along" to those who want and need them. If Pass Along has it, you may have it --for the asking.

To follow through on any of these suggestions, simply write: Episcopal Book Club or The Anglican Digest or Operation Pass Along, Hillspeak, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632. Tell 'em Walt sent you!

Of your Christian charity, pray for our Bishops --Dale, Robert, James and Peter --and those Bishops who made their consecrations possible, Albert, Francisco and Mark.

A FINAL PITCH: We do get letters inquiring about the newsletter's subscription price. There is none, but postage, printing and paper are all expensive. Your generosity will keep the newsletter in circulation.

FCC Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

BULK PERMIT
49
EUREKA SPRINGS
ARKANSAS

FCCB
The Rev'd David E. Green
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

MAY 30 1978
GRADUATE THEOLOGICAL UNION
LIBRARY
1962

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
NEWSLETTER

Vol. I, No. 7 mid-May A.D. 1978

GREETINGS in our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ:

We, the Council of Bishops, meeting in West Palm Beach, Florida, this 14th day of April 1978, do affirm the following:

We uphold the Faith of our Lord's One, Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church. This Faith is rooted in the Holy Bible. The Holy Scripture contains all Faith for all men. The Book of Common Prayer is the standard expression of this Faith as we witness to our Anglican heritage. We cannot compromise the historic Catholic and Apostolic Faith, and we must contend against all false teaching and error in religion.

We commit ourselves to the principle of the Sacramental life.

We shall do all in our power to foster and nurture the Godly and Scriptural concept of Christian family life.

We dedicate ourselves in work and purpose to the creation of a Christian Society.

The Sacrament of Christian Marriage is sacred as a gift from Christ Himself and we do here bear witness to its indissoluble character. We rejoice that God gives His love to those who are one in Him, and believe further that peace and harmony will be found in society again only when the sacredness of Christian Marriage is reaffirmed by all Christian people.

We believe in the sanctity of life. We oppose with every fiber of our being the aborting of God's holy, innocent, unborn babies, and we pledge ourselves to the protection of all human life at any stage. We abhor the casualness with which life is now destroyed. We believe that God is the "Lord and giver of Life". It is God who gives it and only God who can take it away.

We are opposed to all atheistic governmental systems; and, further, declare that Almighty God must always have His place in the affairs of men. Man can best find himself and his dignity as he is free. Man living in respect for others and God will find his purpose. It cannot be otherwise.

We commit ourselves to the young people of this land in upholding before them the highest Christian moral standards. We base Christian Morality on the Holy Scriptures and the Faith of Christ's Church. We are not concerned with fads or vogues nor with the opinions of men or "modern" theologians about what Christian Morality really is, or is supposed to be, in any generation. We know what it is, and we see it given clear and concise description in Holy Scripture. It is Holy Scripture that dedicates Christian Morality and nothing else. We hold that human sexuality is holy and sacred, and only finds its purpose and fulfillment in holy marriage. All sex outside marriage is illicit.

We do assure the faithful that a high standard of training and education will be kept for the clergy. The clergy will be trained in the doctrine and dogma and teaching and practice and tradition of our Lord's Church. Theological education will have a place of priority, and the moral and spiritual integrity of the clergy insisted upon. We will strive to produce a clergy that is in some way worthy of the Office to which its members are called by God. We do earnestly pray for His grace and direction in this Holy endeavor.

We do, further, state here that it is what a Christian believes that is of the essence and matters. In our own tradition, we may have expressions of worship --in ritual and ceremony. We do value them all. In continual love for one another in the holy Faith we live in deep respect and mutual tolerance. Diversity in worship expression does not diminish our tradition, but greatly enriches it. Right belief then --let it be clear-- is the substance of our witness.

We do announce here --and with prayers of thanksgiving-- that our first seminary will open this fall in Berkeley, California. We do, especially, beg the prayers of the faithful for it. We ask your prayers for the faculty and students, and that God will prosper it according to His will and purpose.

As bishops in the Church of our Lord Jesus Christ and believing all the Faith of His Catholic and Apostolic Church, we do thank God that we have come to know this Faith through the Anglican tradition and expression. We assert our claim to be true Anglicans, and this blessed tradition of which we are a part not only do we love, but we intend to keep.

It is our intention to be in England during the Lambeth Conference to be held in July and August in this year of our Lord 1978. We are saddened to learn that not all of the bishops of the world-wide Anglican Communion have been invited to participate. We believe that for "political ecclesiastical" reasons this is so. Also, so far as can be surmised at this point, there seems to be some note of prejudice about who should attend the Lambeth Conference and who should not. We do pray for the guidance of the Holy Spirit upon this Conference. It is our fervent prayer that this particular Lambeth Conference does not destroy the Anglican tradition of our Lord's Church. We do sincerely pray that the Catholic and Apostolic Faith will be preserved in its integrity and truth.

The Council of Bishops has appointed the Reverend George Clendenin [Holy Apostles, Glendale, California] as liaison officer to make arrangements for the Bishops to attend events surrounding this meeting. As well, the Bishops will be in England conversing with many loyal and faithful Anglicans --bishops, priests, deacons and laymen-- who are determined to keep the Faith; and who are, as well, planning for the future witness of the Faith of our Lord's Church in the Anglican tradition.

In joy and unity with one another we do send our warm felicitations to all the faithful. May God keep you in His love and grace always. Please be assured that the Faith of Christ's Church that we hold in trust --and in succession from the Apostles themselves-- will be kept --and to His honor and glory.

The Holy Spirit is your strength. The Victory is ours. Jesus is Lord.

Given this day, 14 April, under our hand and seal:

+ Peter Francis Watterson, Bishop of the Diocese of the Southeastern United States

+ C. Dale David Doren, Bishop of the Diocese of the Midwest

+ James O. Mote, Bishop of the Diocese of the Holy Trinity

+ Robert S. Morse, Bishop of the Diocese of Christ the King

ANGLICAN LOYALIST CONGREGATIONS

AS NOTED in Newsletter 6, odd-numbered newsletters will carry additions, corrections and deletions to the list of Anglican Loyalist congregations; even-numbered newsletters will carry the complete list unless there has not been sufficient change to justify a reprinting. The changes noted hereunder apply to the list published in Newsletter 6; * identifies NEW listings since that newsletter. Diocesan association is indicated as follows: Christ the King (XR); Holy Trinity (HT); Midwest (MW); Southeastern United States (SE). As always, we ask that you write (POB 252, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632) or call (501-253-9701, 253-9800) if you have additional information or find that we have erred.

ALABAMA

Atmore - add (SE) and change POB # to 843

Fairhope - add (SE) and Donald Gooden, Senior Warden, POB 855, 36532

Montgomery - add (SE) see also "Too Late To Classify", page 6

CALIFORNIA see also "Too Late to Classify", page 6

*Anaheim, St Mary Magdalene (HT), POB 4729, 92803, 714-774-8100; Fr Anthony F. Rasch, 1765 Greenleaf Av, 92801; William T. Heaton, Senior Warden, 4171 Homestead, Irvine 92714, 714-551-4825

*Downey, St Michael (HT), 11425 Paramount Blvd, 90241, 213-869-8044; Fr Elwood B. Trigg, The Penthouse, 402 S. Alexandria Av, Los Angeles 90020

Placentia - delete; see Anaheim

FLORIDA

Fort Lauderdale add (SE) and Fr Monroe's address: 3421 NW 43d St, 33309, 305-735-0266

Jacksonville - delete; not ACINA

Palatka - add (SE)

St Petersburg, St John (SE), P. Raymond Plumer, Lay Reader, Velvet Cloake Apt #225, 650 Pinellas Point Dr, S, 33705, 813-867-8091

*Sebring, St Simon of Cyrene (SE); Col Paul Trammel, Senior Warden, 7693 Rolling Hills Rd, 33870

Tallahassee, St Andrew (SE); James Larkin, Senior Warden, 311 S Calhoun St (200), 32301; Col C. L. Perkins, Clerk, 710 Middlebrook Cir, 32312, 904-385-3116; Col Robert M. Shoemaker, Lay Reader, 912 Lasswade Dr, 32312, 904-385-8547

West Palm Beach - add Fr Whitney Church, POB 1001, Deerfield Beach 33341, 305-

426-1908
Winter Haven - add Fr Pomeroy H. Hartman, 999 Av "G", NE, 33880

GEORGIA
Atlanta, St Hilda of Whitby (SE); Fr George W. Murdoch, 2586 Briarcliff Rd, NE (2), 30329, 404-445-3697
Savannah - delete; not ACINA

INDIANA see "Too Late to Classify", page 6
*Bedford-Bloomington; Mrs Norman Nichols, Rt 13, Bedford 47421; Joel Marsh, Rt 10, Bloomington 47401

KANSAS
*Wichita; Billy Nalle, Apt 2205, 400 W Central Av, 67203

LOUISIANA
Metairie - delete; see New Orleans
New Orleans, Christ, POB 15140, 70175, 504-891-3182; Charles Parnell, Senior Warden

MINNESOTA
Minneapolis - add Senior Warden's address: 6201 Murray Hill Rd, Excelsior 55331

MISSISSIPPI
*Greenville; Mrs Lou McIlwain, 745 S Washington, 38701; Claude Aylor, POB 311, Lake Village, Arkansas 71653
*Pascagoula; Mrs A. J. Willis, 2803 Montclair Av, 39567

NEW YORK
Islip, St Stephen, POB 603, Great River 11739; Oliver Zipp, 44 Ocean Av, 11751, 516-581-5484; Mrs John B. Fellows, 516-581-2269

NORTH CAROLINA
Chapel Hill - add (SE)
Charlotte, St Paul the Apostle (SE), POB 1781, 28232; Fr George D. Stenhouse, POB 2312, Chapel Hill 27514, 919-383-6969; Thomas Samonds, Senior Warden, 4538 Sharon Rd, 28211, 704-366-1552
Fayetteville, Incarnation (SE), POB 35687, 28303; Fr Joseph Strange Husk, 111 Hale St, 28301, 919-485-2525; Col Donald A. Seibert, Clerk

OHIO
Akron, St Mary (MW), POB 3693, 44310; Fr J. M. Ryerson, 246 Buffalo St, Conneaut 44030, 216-593-3131; Dr Don R. Gerlach, 216-836-7160, 375-7324, 928-3990
*Conneaut, St Gregory (MW); Fr Ryerson (as above)
Coshocton, St Paul (MW); Fr Larry Snyder, SSC, 539 Cambridge Rd, 43812, 614-623-0744; John E. Metz, 1208 Cambridge Rd, 43812

ONTARIO
Ottawa - add J. M. Pechell, Queen Elizabeth Towers, 500 Laurier Av, W (1108), K1R 5E1

PENNSYLVANIA see "Too Late to Classify", page 6
Pittsburgh - add T. Dixon Holladay, Jr, 1823 Tyburn Ln, 15241

SOUTH CAROLINA
Aiken, All Saints (SE); Fr Henry Summerall, Jr, 100 Park Av, SW, 29801, 803-648-9529; William Nightingale, Jr, Senior Warden, 410 Colleton Av, SE, 29801; Robert Goodeville, 710 Laurel Dr, 29801
Charleston - add Senior Warden's address: 18 Arcadian Way, 29407
Columbia, Good Shepherd (SE), POB 1298, 29202, 803-765-1334; Fr William L. Gatling, Jr, 809 Calhoun, 29201, 803-772-5736; Fr William Ladkau, POB 1298, 29202, 803-791-4596

TENNESSEE see "Too Late to Classify", page 6
*Sewanee, St Stephen (SE); Reginald H. Helvenston, The Cloister, St Mary's Road, 37375, 615-598-5832
Shelbyville - add (SE)

TEXAS
Austin, St Augustine; James C. Fish, Senior Warden, 7306 W Rim, 78731, 512-345-0617; Miss Auburn Faber, 8706 Silverhill Ln, 78759, 512-345-1329
Dallas, St Thomas Becket, POB 136, Bedford 76021, 817-498-1147; Fr Jean Pierre Meshew (same address and phone); Bill Brewer, Senior Warden, 2425 Brennan Dr, Plano 75075, 214-596-4636
Euless, St Bede; Fr Mark G. Holliday, 65 Townhouse Lane, Grand Prairie 75051, 214-262-5539; Ernest Workman, Senior Warden, 817-268-2127
*Grand Prairie, St Charles the Martyr; Fr Holliday (see above); Dick Bond, Senior Warden, 730 Egyptian Way, 75050
San Antonio, All Saints (HT), POB 18404, 78218; Fr F. Ogden Miller, 512-349-7847; Donald K. Collins, 7705 Village Oak, 78233

VIRGINIA
*Blacksburg, St Peter; Fr A. Fraser MacCammond, Rt 4, Box 1750, Christiansburg 24073, 703-382-7892; Dr Robert C. Heterick, Jr, 234 Craig Dr, 24060, 703-552-1587

OF YOUR Christian charity pray for our bishops -Dale, Robert, James and Peter, and for those who consecrated them - Albert, Francisco and Mark.

AN OPEN LETTER

Dear Fellow Anglican:

These are trying times in the Continuing Anglican Church. We are all in need of Spiritual and moral support to continue the work that our Lord set down for us to do.

I am sending out an appeal to those members of the Continuing Anglican Church who would like to share ideas, joys, tribulations and Christian fellowship with other members. Letter-writing would be an excellent opportunity to exchange ideas and information about our church on a person to person level. More important than this would be to promote Christian fellowship. A greater love of our Lord and each other would be generated. In order to get our people to people correspondence started, please send the names and addresses of those who would like to become part of our Anglo-Catholic Friendship Mission to me:

Martha C. Laubenheim
2820 South Ivanhoe Street
Denver, Colorado 80222

You may correspond with as many different people as you wish or have time for. We only ask that it be a continuing relationship.
God's blessing be with all,

[The above letter was sent to the Fellowship Newsletter from the Diocese of the Holy Trinity with a request from Bishop Mote that it be published --which we are pleased to do.]

WANTED & OFFERED

St. Andrew's Church (Anglican), Salt Lake City, is looking for a priest who would like to help build a congregation. The present numbers are small but they are very dedicated and carry strong convictions. It would be necessary for the priest to supplement his income with outside employment for, probably, at least a year. Anybody interested should write to: Robert W. Sperling, Warden, 305 South 12th East, Salt Lake City, Utah 84102 or call 801-582-6914.

Fr Ralph R. Pressley, Rector of Holy Cross Anglican Church, Oklahoma City, will celebrate the Holy Eucharist with any group in the Oklahoma City area which so desires; he can be reached by writing (POB 12530, Oklahoma City 73157) or calling (before noon: 405-843-6758; other times: 405-946-3589).

The Church of the Holy Apostles, 1011 South Verdugo Road, Glendale, California 91205 is still very much in need of legal defense funds. In many respects, Holy Apostles is the "bellwether" church in the property settlement fight and the outcome of its dispute with the Bishop of Los Angeles may, probably will, have great significance insofar as other property suits are concerned. Holy Apostles has been in the forefront of the legal battle and, as a parish, has quite literally bled itself white. It needs and deserves your help. Send what you can marked "for legal defense". This is a particularly good use of your tithe if you do not as yet have an Anglican Loyalist congregation to which you can turn.

N. R. Miller, a South Carolina Anglican Loyalist, has a standing offer to advise and consult with those who are interested in "how to make an altar out of doors, processional crosses out of hoe handles" and the like. He says that "almost everything that is needed can be 'home-made' at very little cost if people are willing to use their talents for God." Mr Miller's address is POB 5993, Columbia 29250; be sure to include a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope when you write him.

St Margaret of Scotland Anglican Church, Alexandria, Virginia, is looking for a retired or working priest. For further information write or call: Jerome Loomis, Senior Warden, 112 North Alfred Street, 22314, or call him at 703-836-6504.

Fr Pedro N. Santos, a priest-affiliate of the Diocese of the Midwest, whose address is 1931 Norwood Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan 48236, has offered to celebrate the Holy Eucharist with any group in the Detroit area which so desires.

To raise funds for a new church in Charleston, South Carolina, the Senior Warden of St Timothy's Church advises the Newsletter that the parish is selling illuminated manuscripts done by artist Nancy Wilds , both in portfolio and as single pieces. Miss Wilds "created this Portfolio of prayer book manuscripts in the classical, medieval style as the culmination of a career of study and research at Salisbury Cathedral . . . and twenty-five years devoted to the illumination of the prayer book." For complete information on the series: St Timothy's Anglican Church, 68½ Queen Street, Charleston, South Carolina 29401.

Available: Tapes of the Church Congress in St Louis (The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen, POB 505, Amherst, Virginia 24521, $5 per tape, $20 for the set of four); Tapes of the Denver Consecrations (St Mary's Church, c/o Bill Lamb, 1632 South Glencoe Street, Denver, Colorado 80222, $10 for the cassette set of the entire service); the Opening Addresses of the Church Congress in print (Fellowship Newsletter, POB 252, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632, $1 per booklet; quantity rates upon request); back issues of the Fellowship Newsletter (same address, enclose a #10 self-addressed, stamped envelope for one, a larger envelope [with double postage] for more than one).

THE BARN OWL

The Barn Owl wishes to thank the two ladies at opposite ends of Massachusetts for sending linen and money, the gentleman in Michigan who sent an organist's cotta and cassock, and those who have sent requests for linens. Please remember to send complete altar and chalice measurements (see Newsletter 6 for how to measure) in your letter of inquiry along with your self-addressed, stamped envelope or post card for reply. Remember, too, that the Barn Owl has only feathers --she needs used linens with which to work.

HEART WARMERS

A Resolution passed at the Second Synod of the Anglican Diocese of the Midwest:

WHEREAS, this Synod rejoices in obtaining the historic episcopate in order to bear witness to the Apostolic Faith in Jesus Christ, and

WHEREAS, the Rt. Rev. Albert A. Chambers and the Rt. Rev. Francisco J. Pagtakhan have steadfastly and heroically borne witness to the Catholic Faith in the laying on of hands for our Bishop and the Bishops of the Dioceses of the Holy Trinity, of Christ the King, and of the Southeastern United States, and

WHEREAS, the Rt. Rev. Mark D. Pae in spite of external presure sent a letter to Bishop Chambers giving his consent to the consecration of our Bishop,

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the Synod of the Anglican Diocese of the Midwest that we offer our ardent praise unto God for His faithful servants, Albert, Francisco and Mark, and that we convey these expressions of gratitude to them, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that this Synod respectfully urges the Rt. Rev. Albert A. Chambers to give serious consideration to the invitation to become our first PRIMATE.

An English priest in a letter to his Bishop soon after the St Louis Church Congress:

I hope that the Lambeth Conference and our own General Synod will refuse recognition to "priestesses", if only on the ground that their "ordination" has taken place without the necessary consent of the rest of the Church. At the very least, I trust that no move will be made to disown or excommunicate the minority in America who have remained faithful to Scripture and to Catholic and Anglican Tradition: I would have no choice but to regard myself as disowned or excommunicated with them.

A letter from an Orthodox priest to then Fr Watterson:

I have just finished reading, with great joy, the article in the Palm Beach Post-Times concerning you and the magnificent witness you are bearing for Our Lord and God and Saviour Jesus Christ in the face of His enemies, the heretical hierarchs who bring shame on the precious Body of Christ!

The attitude of your bishops is puzzling, especially to an Eastern Orthodox priest. How, in the name of all that is marvelous, can a person who has publicly abandoned any trace of claim to membership in the Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church presume to expel another from that Body? Perhaps this is an exercise in applied ignorance? When the gates of the fold are destroyed through the machinations of the devil, who can censure the faithful shepherd for leading his flock to safety? This is, I am sure, a Pascha for you; a breaking of the bonds of spiritual death, and a resurrection to the eternal --and timeless-- verities of the Christ, the Truth!

A Canadian priest's letter to an American bishop:

I have no wish whatever to influence those who are happy with the Minneapolis General Convention Church. I myself believe this is a newly created denomination. I do wish to continue to minister, God helping me, to those who wish, as I do, to remain orthodox Anglicans.

The sad fact of the matter is that the Church has been split by those who do not know what the "Faith once delivered to the saints" is. What attempts are now made at reconciliation are too little and too late and do not come to grips with the basic issue, the constant wearing away of the Faith by the liberals and secularists.

Again, it is my joy to be "in communion" with the "Continuing Anglicans" and to minister to their pastoral needs in whatever way I am able to do so. I wish them God's blessings and help.

In Newsletter 6, we featured the design of the Anglican Church of the Holy Apostles, St Louis, which was designed by its senior warden. Newsletter 7 features the glyph of the Anglican Church of the Holy Cross, Oklahoma City. The design was created by the Rector's elder son and has been used not only on bulletins and stationery, but in advertising in the public press for the congregation. Most recently, it was used by the Anglican Missionary Society of Oklahoma in promoting its Congress of Witness on 1 April. The congregation selected the name (it was formerly St David's) partly because of the significance of Holy Cross Day, 1976 (Minneapolis) and Holy Cross Day, 1977 (St Louis) to the Continuing Church.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

Anglican Loyalist Congregations changes (see also pages 2 and 3)

ALABAMA

Montgomery, St Joseph of Arimathea (SE), POB 17236, 36117; Philip C. Davis, Senior Warden, 3024 Pelzer Av, 36109, 205-272-2814; Harry R. Fletcher, Clerk, 205-264-5272

CALIFORNIA

Martinez - delete; see Walnut Creek

Walnut Creek, St Martin of Tours, 3111 North Main (Mail: 325 Lenox (405), Oakland 94610); Fr G. D. Wiebe, SSC, 415-763-4580; Lee Poteet, Senior Warden, 239-4041

COLORADO

Colorado Springs, St Athanasius (HT), POB 6193, 80934; Fr Stanley Macgirvin; Alfred J. Martin, MD, Senior Warden, 1108 Shrider Rd, 80918

*Grand Junction, Anglican Mission of Colorado West (HT); Mrs Grace Hardcastle, 1441 Patterson Rd (502), 81501

CONNECTICUT

*Southport, Advent (HT); Hugo G. R. Kenyon, 15 Osborne Pl, 06490

KENTUCKY

*Ashland; Mr and Mrs T. C. Bullington, 3429 Blackburn Av, 41101, 606-324-8086

NEVADA

*Las Vegas, St Mary the Virgin (HT); Richard Brandz, 3304 Webb Av, North Las Vegas 89030

NEW JERSEY

Flemington, St Peter (HT), POB 681, 08822, 201-782-2521, 782-1812; Col James A. Horn, Senior Warden, 3 Williams Pl, 08822

NEW YORK

*Poughkeepsie, Holy Comforter (HT); Fr Charles H. Willcox, 18 Davies Pl, 12601

TENNESSEE

*Memphis, St Thomas the Apostle (SE); Mrs Walter Meely, Jr, Sec'y, 910 Hawthorne St, 38107

* indicates new listing since last newsletter

ADD (HT) to the following (listed alphabetically by states to help you line them up with the list in Newsletter 6): Resurrection, Edmonton; St Athanasius, Victoria; St Therese, Santa Ana; St Paul, Black Hawk; St Teresa, Boulder; Calvary, Idaho Springs; St Luke, Westcliffe; St Edward the Confessor, Indianapolis; St Alban, Harvard; Agape, Valentine; St Dunstan, Jefferson; St Peter, and St Thomas the Apostle, Albuquerque; St Mark, West Orange; St Stephen, Islip; St Alban, State College; Incarnation, Northfield.

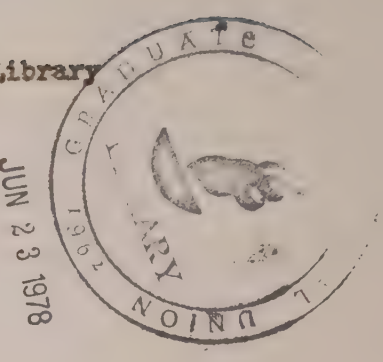
COMING UP

The Northeast Deanery of ACINA will sponsor a Day of Witness, 3 June 1978, in Clinton, New Jersey. The keynote speaker will be Fr George Rutler, Rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Rosemont, Pennsylvania. See Flemington listing above for more information.

St Joseph of Arimathea is hosting organizational meetings in central Alabama. For more information see listing above for Montgomery.

Because we have run out of space, steam and time GOOD-BYE NO. 7 is just that!

Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
Newsletter
POB 252
Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632



BULK PERMIT
49
EUREKA SPRINGS
ARKANSAS

FCCY
Graduate Theological Union Library
Serials Dept.
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

The Fellowship Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

BULK PERMIT
49
EUREKA SPRINGS
ARKANSAS

FCCY
Graduate Theological Union Library
Serials Dept.
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

FCC The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen NEWSLETTER

Volume 1, Number 8 June A.D. 1978

There has been no new faith propagated . . . . no religion set up but that which was commanded by our Saviour, preached by the primitive Church, and unanimously approved by the Fathers of best antiquity.
---Elizabeth I

THE Theological School of St Joseph of Arimathea is being established by the Diocese of Christ the King. While, officially, the Seminary will not open until September 1979, a pilot program is being commenced in September, 1978, and those who satisfactorily complete the work in the academic year 1978-79 will be credited with a full year toward a degree and graduation. Those interested in attending the Seminary are requested to communicate with The Right Rev'd Robert S. Morse, 6013 Lawton Avenue, Oakland, California 94618.

THE BARN OWL has been pleased to send out 46 pieces of newly-made altar and chalice linens since 10 February, using both new and used linen. Some have sent linen, some money, and all have sent prayers and encouragement. The Barn Owl has been able to keep up with requests for linens and with postage costs so far. Those who prefer to have all new linens for their needs, and who can pay for it, will be glad to know that the Barn Owl uses only the best Irish linen, ordered by the yard from Mary Moore of Davenport, Iowa. Only small pieces of linen are left; yet, whenever faced with a need the material always turns up! Have both polycarbonate and plexiglass on hand for making palls. Remember: measure height of chalice, and draw around cup. Upon those two measurements hang all that's necessary for the five chalice pieces: corporal, purificator, pall, burse, and veil. Please send requests, measurements, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, or a double-fold postcard to The Barn Owl, c/o the Fellowship Newsletter, POB 252, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632.

ANLICAN LOYALISTS One of the advantages of an essentially one-man editorial staff is that the editor is free to stick his foot in his mouth without worrying about nibbling on somebody else's toes. Case in point is our brash announcement that we would publish a full list of Anglican Loyalist congregations in our even-numbered newsletters and up-dates in the odd-numbered ones. Therefore, new --or old-- math to the contrary notwithstanding, 8 is an odd number! The additions, corrections, and deletions noted herein apply to Newsletters 6 and 7. Diocesan affiliations, some of which are subject to change as a result of the Council of Bishops' meeting in West Palm Beach in April, are indicated as follows: Christ the King (XR); Holy Trinity (HT); Mid-Atlantic (MA); Midwest (MW); and Southeastern United States (SE).
CAVEAT LECTOR: As always, we ask that you call (501-253-9701, 253-9800) or write (POB 252, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632) if you find errors or omissions in the list.

ARKANSAS: Hot Springs, St Chrysostom (XR), POB 1241, 71901; Fr Alan Rosenau, 105 Electra, 71901 ; Richard W. Hobbs, Warden, 500 Ouachita Av, 71901, 501-623-6666
Mountain Home, St Mary in the Ozarks (HT); Fr Rosenau (see above)
BRITISH COLUMBIA: Victoria, St Athanasius (XR); Fr Peter D. Wilkinson, 5238 Beckton Road, V8Y 2C1, 658-5575; Fr R. C. Henstock, 410 - 1020 Burdett Avenue, V8V 3H1
CALIFORNIA: San Jose, Resurrection (XR); Fr Clarence Lee, 786 Melannie Court, 95116, 408-295-6310, 286-1610
Santa Ana, St Therese of Lisieux (HT); Fr G. Russell Touchstone; William Musgrove, Warden, 105 W Stevens Street, 92707, 714-540-7103
CONNECTICUT: Fairfield - DELETE - not in ACINA
Mystic; Fr Charles Dinkler; Mrs Wanda McFarland, 203-536-4366
FLORIDA: Fort Lauderdale, St Michael the Archangel (SE), POB 5203, 33310, 305-735-0266; Fr James G. Monroe, Jr, 3421 N.W. 43rd Street, 33309; Kenneth W. Scott, Warden, 305-565-1758
Tallahassee, St Andrew (SE), POB 3101, 32303
IOWA: Colfax, St Aidan; Fr E. L. Hebden Taylor, 333 - 4th Avenue, N.E., Sioux Center 51250, 712-722-1671; Louis Falk, Layreader, 515-223-1591 (Des Moines); Mrs June Kosmach, 620 East 4½ Street, South, Newton 50208, 515-792-6734
KANSAS: Fort Scott, St Francis (HT); Fr Freed, 739 National Avenue, 66701, 316-223-2081
MAINE: Too late to classify, but we hope to report next issue
MARYLAND: Silver Spring, St Thomas; Fr Lester Kinsolving; Mrs J. Albert Sanford, 1200 Pinecrest Cir, 20910
MASSACHUSETTS: Brookline; Mrs Paul H. Walker, 21 Milton Road, 02146, 617-734-7267
Natick; Mr Mainwaring, 617-653-7550
MICHIGAN: Grand Rapids, St Peter the Apostle, POB 1344, 49501; Fr Steiman E. Stephens MISSISSIPPI: Greenville, St Luke (XR); Fr Alan Rosenau (see Arkansas); Mrs Willard McIlwain, 745 South Washington, 38701; Claude Aylor, POB 311, Lake Village, Arkansas 71653

Pascagoula, Ascension (SE); Mrs A. J. Willis, 2803 Montclair Avenue, 39567, 601-769-2899
NEW HAMPSHIRE: Laconia, St Michael; Fr Herman Nelson
Nashua, St Chrysostom, POB 3511, 03060; Fr Herman Nelson
NEW JERSEY: Long Branch, St Alban the Martyr - DELETE - not in ACINA
NEW MEXICO: Albuquerque, St Peter (HT), 811 Pennsylvania, N.E., 87110, 505-883-1624; Fr George B. Schold, Jr, 9824 Robin Avenue, N.E., 87112; Richard Musgrove, Warden
NEW YORK: Manhattan, Monastery Church of the Holy Grail, POB 396, Old Chelsea Station, 10011, 216-675-3146; Fr Robert C. Kelley
OHIO: Columbus, Christ (MW), 2535 Sunbury Dr, 43219, 614-476-4191; Fr G. Wayne Craig; Robert Amerine, Warden, 2137 Castlecrest Drive, Worthington 43085, 614-888-6402
SOUTH CAROLINA: Spartanburg; Mr and Mrs John Gerson, Jr, 128 Holly Dr, 29301
VIRGINIA: Abbingdon, Fr A. Fraser MacCammond, Route 4, Box 1750, Christiansburg 24073
Amherst, Ascension (MA), Main Street; Fr John A. Pedlar, POB 552, 24521

[NEWSLETTER footnote to Wardens (because we know many congregations do not yet have, or share, a priest): We believe that the ideal listing for the Newsletter consists of the name of the church, a good mailing address and at least two telephone contacts. If we do not presently show such information for your church, please send us a postcard (POB 252, Eureka Springs, Arkansas 72632) with that information. We do not think it practicable to try to indicate meetings places, times or dates because they can change too quickly and too often. We are willing --space permitting-- to list more than one mailing address and two telephone numbers. Give us more than one and two if you wish --we'll do the best we can with them.]

WE are grateful for all the contributions we get:- they come in all forms: cash, checks, postage stamps, information, kind words about the Newsletter --even in the form of inspired verse!

ADAM'S RIB & WOMAN'S LIB

The Druid priests wore lots of woad
At solstices and equinox
And offered maidens a la mode
In manner quite unorthodox.

In modern days, the ladies wear
Cosmetics and accoutrements,
And take the priestly role in prayer,
In services and sacraments.

And given time, with Woman's Lib,
Those ladies may with wit devise
A just demand for Adam's rib,
And offer priests in sacrifice.

---Fr Vernon N. Cox, Canada

WANTED & OFFERED

If sufficient firm orders are received, The Catholic Religion, by Fr Vernon Staley, will be reprinted at a cost of $5.50 per single copy, or $5.25 each for orders of ten or more. Write to Miss Margaret Lindsay, 3365 Denver Street, S.E., Washington, D. C. 20020.

The Reverend Fathers Pedro N. Santos, 1931 Norwood Drive, Grosse Pointe Woods, Michigan 48236, and Ralph R. Pressley, POB 12530, Oklahoma City 73157, offer to celebrate the Eucharist anywhere in their respective areas upon request.

For consultation and information on making altars, processional crosses, and the like (details in I-5), drop a note (enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope) to N. R. Miller, POB 5993, Columbia, South Carolina 29250. Mr Miller reports ". . . I have had numerous requests. Seems as though the need is great! Also seems that people are willing to help themselves! Very encouraging."
[Just as a footnote, we think it "very encouraging" that Mr Miller et al offer their services.]

Rose Hill Gallery, POB 16201, Washington, D. C. 20023, is offering a "special 50% discount" to ACINA congregations which wish to sell Nancy Wilds' Portfolio of Illuminated Manuscripts "based on the Book of Common Prayer". If you are interested in the manuscripts, but not in selling them, write St Timothy's Anglican Church, 68½ Queen Street, Charleston, South Carolina 29401, for prices and descriptions.

HEART WARMERS

Fr Jean Pierre Meshew, the "Vicar General of Texas" and the Editor of the GOODNEWSLETTER, has insisted right along that the only way to get a congregation started is to do it. The Fellowship Newsletter has just received a letter from Iowa which perfectly, and modestly, proves the point:

"To the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen-

"Greetings from the Catholic faithful in Iowa-

"Things seem to move very slowly and on a small scale in Iowa - but here is a run-down of how we are getting started.

"In February I placed a small ad in the Des Moines Tribune seeking Anglican faithful - 3 replies. Mr Louis Falk from West Des Moines was one who answered, and informed me he and his family planned to be in Denver over Easter and would try to talk to Bishop Mote. He did and on April 8 we had our 1st meeting at the Falk home - 5 families represented attended. Mr Falk then placed a bigger ad in the Des Moines Tribune - 6 replies. I had written a letter to the Editor of The Christian Challenge that was published in the April issue. Fr E. L. Hebden Taylor (of Sioux Center) saw it and called me and offered his services.

"Results: Our 1st Mass - May 21, at Colfax Interfaith Center, Colfax, Iowa. Colfax is a small town between Newton and Des Moines on Highway 6. Name of Mission - St Aidan's Anglican - 28 people at first Mass. Mr Falk has been in touch with Bishop Mote and applied for membership in the Diocese of the Holy Trinity. We had people at our first Mass from as far away as Emmetsburg, Iowa (about 150 miles N.W. of Des Moines).

Faithfully,
s/June Kosmach"

Fr Meshew and Mrs Kosmach have the answer: to get a congregation going - do it!

QUICK QUOTES

By way of the bulletin of Holy Cross Anglican Church, Oklahoma City, we are pleased to quote from a letter from The Right Rev'd Charles Francis Boynton, Retired Suffragan of New York, and, save for a most inopportune heart attack, a consecrator of our four ACINA bishops: First is his reply to a request [from St Mary's, Denver] to reprint earlier remarks -- "Of course you can duplicate my letter of Feb. 21st. Use it as you wish. I wouldn't have been at St Louis or tried to get to Denver to share my Orders if I had not been sympathetic to the Loyalist cause." His very kind letter goes as follows: "Thank you for your gracious letter and your prayers. I am improving steadily and my latest checkup was a good one. I'm afraid it was a close call, however, and I must learn to behave and take life easier. I am still brokenhearted that I didn't get to Denver, especially since my absence caused your consecration and that of the others to be, in the eyes of PECUSA, irregular though valid. I don't buy that irregular stuff one little bit. My prayers are with you and the continuing Church that God will prosper it. God bless you." [Newsletter footnote: As this issue is being typed we have learned that Bishop Boynton has resigned from the House of Bishops, and that Bishop Chambers has responded to the Presiding Bishop of PECUSA. We hope to have texts in time for the next issue.]

Of your Christian charity, pray for our bishops -- Dale, Robert, James, and Peter; for those who consecrated them -- Albert, Francisco, and Mark; and for him who wished to consecrate -- Charles.

Postage rates have clobbered us: new price for Opening Addresses booklets, $1.25 each; 12 or more, $1 each.

PCCY
Graduate Theological Union Library
Serials Dept.
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

BULK PERMIT
49
EUREKA SPRINGS
ARKANSAS

JUL - 0 1978
GRADUATE THEOLOGICAL UNION LIBRARY

The Fellowship Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

FCC The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
NEWSLETTER

VOLUME I, No. 9 July A.D. 1978

There has been no new faith propagated . . . . no religion set up but that which was commanded by our Saviour, preached by the primitive Church, and unanimously approved by the Fathers of best antiquity.
---Elizabeth I

JUST about the time we think we can settle on a fixed format for the Newsletter, another congregation comes along or changes its name or acquires a new home or a good letter is received or any of a seemingly endless series of good things is drawn to our attention, and we have to back off and try a new tack. Obviously the only pragmatic way to approach this matter under such circumstances is to relax and enjoy it - and not worry about the format of the next issue until the time comes. So we will do, and so it is that we are going to a double column and that we are starting out issue 9 with a revised list of Anglican Loyalist congregations that is up to date, insofar as we know, as of the very moment we set stubby fingers (both of them) to typewriter.

CAVEAT LECTOR: The information is the best we have been able to assemble; it bears, even invites, close scrutiny and checking before one acts on it. Diocesan affiliations, where known, are as follows: Christ the King (XR); Holy Trinity (HT); Mid-Atlantic (MA); Midwest (MW); Resurrection (Res); Southeastern United States (SE).

ALABAMA
Atmore, St Andrew (SE), POB 843, 36502; Charles W. Laue, 368-3897
Birmingham, St Bede the Venerable
Fairhope, St Peter (SE), POB 45, 36532; Donald Gooden, SW, POB 855, 36532; Robert Richardson, 928-5969
Montgomery, St Joseph of Arimathea (SE), POB 17236, 36117; Fr William J. Marvin; Philip C. Davis, SW, 272-2814; Harry R. Fletcher, C, 264-5272

ARIZONA
Payson, Holy Nativity (XR), POB 1261, 85541; Fr Robert Donovan, 474-3114
Tucson, St Jude; Fr Robert G. Wilkes, 7400 Calle Cuernavaca, 85710, 296-5570

ARKANSAS
Hot Springs, St Chrysostom (XR), POB 1241, 71901; Fr Alan Rosenau, 767-9861 Richard W. Hobbs, SW, 623-6666
Mountain Home, St Mary in the Ozarks (HT), POB 654, 72653; Fr Rosenau; Nils Florentz, SW, 492-6132; Ellen Kilgore, C, 492-5291

CALIFORNIA
Anaheim, St Mary Magdalene (HT), POB 4729, 92803, 774-8100; Fr Anthony F. Rasch, 1765 Greenleaf Av, 92801; William T. Heaton, SW, 551-4825
Arcata, Holy Family; Donald Clancy, W, 822-2105, 822-4382; Gloria Bohlmann, S-T, 1754 Roberts Way, 95521
Berkeley, St Joseph of Arimathea (XR), 2543 Durant Av, 94704, 841-3083; Fr Francis W. Read, 658-4033
Burlingame, Christ (XR), POB 648, 94010; Fr John T. Cahoon, 347-4423; Jack Lysaght, 349-7314
Covina, St Luke (HT); Fr Richard E. Lockwood, 828-3958 (before 9 a.m., after 3 p.m.); Robert Kambeitz, SW, 334-7362; Mrs Walter Buerger, C, 20769 Mesarica Rd, 91724, 331-3623
Downey, St Michael (HT), 11425 Paramount Blvd, 90241, 869-8044; Fr Elwood B. Trigg, The Penthouse, 402 S Alexandria Av, Los Angeles 90020
Glendale, Holy Apostles (XR), 1011 S Verdugo Rd, 91205, 243-3424; Fr George H. Clendenin, 241-4473
Oakland, St Peter (XR), 6013 Lawton Av, 94618, 655-4283; Bishop Robert S. Morse (XR), 841-8150
San Jose, Resurrection (XR), 1717 The Alameda, 95126; Fr Clarence Lee, 786 Melannie Ct, 95116 (mail), 295-6310; George Garbarino, SW, 286-1610
San Marcos, St Michael & All Angels (HT); Fr Burket Kniveton
Santa Ana, St Therese of Lisieux (HT); Fr G. Russell Touchstone; William Musgrove, SW, 105 W Stevens, 92707, 540-7103
Santee, Mr & Mrs K. V. Saunders, 8701 Mesa Rd (44), 92071, 449-9301
Walnut Creek, St Martin of Tours; Fr G. D. Wiebe, SSC, 325 Lenox (405), Oakland 94610, 763-4580; Lee Poteet, SW, 239-3041
Wrightwood, Gordon Koenig, LR, POB 1032, 92397

COLORADO
Black Hawk, St Paul (HT), POB 176, 80422, 582-5858; Fr William C. Buck
Boulder, St Teresa of Avila (HT); Mrs Richard P. (Jeanne) Woolley, SW, 1850 Folsom (309), 80302, 449-6186
Colorado Springs, St Athanasius (HT), POB 6193, 80934; Fr Stanley Macgirvin; Alfred J. Martin, MD, SW, 1108 Shrider Rd, 80918
Denver, St Mary (HT), 2290 S Clayton, 80210, 758-7211, 757-6814; Bishop James O. Mote (HT), 758-7211
Grand Junction, Anglican Mission of Colorado West; Mrs Grace Hardcastle, 1441 Patterson Rd (502), 81501
Idaho Springs, Calvary (HT); Fr Buck (see Black Hawk)
Westcliffe, St Matthew the Apostle (HT), 783-2213, 783-2338; Fr Richard C. Willars, 2695 W Evans St, Denver 80219; Mrs William G. Falkenberg, POB 206, 81252

CONNECTICUT
Mystic, St Alban; Fr Charles Austin Dinkler, 32 Pearl St, 06355, 572-0137; Mrs Wanda McFarland, 536-4366; Stephen B. Lee, 44 Hillside, Noank 06340

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA
Washington, St Hilda of Whitby (MA); Fr R. Michael Wynkoop, 587-2299; A. Edward Faro, SW, The Westchester 612-A, 4000 Cathedral Av, NW, 20012, 965-9896; Ralph D. Johnson, 942-3380

FLORIDA
Fort Lauderdale, St Michael the Archangel (SE), POB 5203, 33310, 735-0266; Fr James G. Monroe, Jr; Kenneth W. Scott, SW, 565-1758; Derek R. Hamptom, C, 563-5820
Largo, St John (SE), POB 1676, 33540; Fr Jack R. Habberfield; P. Raymond Plumer, LR, 867-8091
Palatka, All Saints (SE); Mary A. Gale, 1912 Carr St, 32077
St Petersburg - see Largo
Sebring, St Simon of Cyrene (SE); Col Paul Trammel, SW, 7693 Rolling Hills Rd, 33870
Tallahassee, St Andrew (SE), POB 3101, 32303; James Larkin, SW, 311 S Calhoun St (200), 32301; Col C. L. Perkins, C, 385-3116; Col Robert M. Shoemaker, LR, 385-8547
West Palm Beach, Holy Spirit (SE), 1003 Allendale Rd, 33405, 833-7605; Bishop Peter F. Watterson (SE), 833-9937; Fr Whitney Church, 426-1908
Winter Haven, St Mary (SE), POB 9351, 33880; Fr Sterling Rayburn, 324-1579; Fr Pomeroy H. Hartman, 999 Av "G", NE, 33880

GEORGIA
Atlanta, St Hilda of Whitby (SE); Fr George W. Murdoch, 2586 Briarcliff Rd, NE (2), 30329, 445-3697; John Crown, SW
West Point, St Andrew; Mrs Howard Syler, 608 Av C. 31833

ILLINOIS
Chicago, St George the Martyr (MW), c/o Allenson's Books, 29 W Jackson, 60606 Fr Robert C. Bornfield, 848-5402; Fr R. B. Dibbert, 764-9820; James G. Schneider, SW, 936-2888
St Jude; Fr Lafond Lapointe

INDIANA
Bedford-Bloomington, Mrs Norman Nichols, Rt 13, Bedford 47421; Joel Marsh, Rt 10, Bloomington 47401
Evansville, St Mary the Virgin, POB 3271, 47701, 867-5255; William Hickman
Indianapolis, St Edward the Confessor (HT), 3921 Guilford, 46205, 925-6934; Fr Joseph P. Deyman, 3662 Nobscot Ct (1A), 46222; Mrs Florence S. Niceley, C, 5028 N College Av, 46205

IOWA
Colfax, St Aidan; Fr Taylor; Louis Falk, 223-1591 (Des Moines); June Kosmach 620 E 4½ St, S, Newton 50208, 792-6734
Sioux Center, Fr E. L. Hebden Taylor, 333 - 4th Av, NE, 51250, 722-1671

KANSAS
Fort Scott, St Francis (HT), POB 425, 66701; Fr Robert R. Freed, 223-2081; James McNeley, SW, 223-2838
Wichita, Bill Nalle, Apt 2205, 400 W Central Av, 67203

KENTUCKY
Ashland, St Mary; Mr and Mrs T. C. Bullington, 3429 Blackburn Av, 41101, 324-8086
Dayton, St John (MW), 619 O'Fallon Av, 41074, 781-5006; Fr James Bjorkman, 219 Glazier Av, Bellevue 41073; Jack Murray, 73 Harrison Av, Bellevue 41073

LOUISIANA
New Orleans, Christ (SE), 4007 St Charles Av (103), 70115; Charles Parnell, SW, 643-0361; Ann Plaisance, 891-1797 (NOTE: All numbers after work hours)

MARYLAND
Millersville, St Charles the Martyr (MA), POB 224, 21108; Col Geoffrey T. Colwell, 987-5873; E. J. M. LaRoque, 467-8096
Mount Airy, Mrs May B. Shaw, Rt 4, Box 239, 21771, 829-0205
Silver Spring, St Thomas; Fr Lester Kinsolving; Mrs J. Albert Sanford, 1200 Pinecrest Cir, 20910

MASSACHUSETTS
Boston, Mrs Stevenson, 742-1508
Brookline, Mrs Paul H. Walker, 21 Milton Rd, 02146, 734-7267
Harvard, St Alban (HT), POB 428, 01451; Fr C. David Burt, 456-8645; Jess Keegan, 456-8705
Marlborough, Mrs Hodgson, 485-8841; Mrs Dutcher, 481-0930
Natick, Mr Mainwaring, 653-7550

MICHIGAN
Battle Creek, All Saints (MW); George M. Spriggs, Jr, SW, 263 Berkley, 49017
Grand Rapids, St Peter the Apostle, POB 1344, 49501; Fr Steiman E. Stephens West Branch, Holy Faith (MW), POB 531, 48661, 345-5700; Louis E. Traycik, SW

MINNESOTA
Minneapolis, St Chad (HT); Fr John E. Holman, 782-6350; E. H. Lindemann, SW 4177 Shoreline, 55384, 471-8653; Nelle S. Austin, JW, 698-2250
St Dunstan (MW), 4800 DuPont Av, 55409, 824-3933; John R. Fitzimons, SW, 474-9032; Jane Nones, 824-3933

MISSISSIPPI
Gautier, Mrs M. L. Wootten, 1709 Pat Dr, 39533
Greenville, St Luke (XR), Fr Rosenau (see Arkansas); Mrs Willard McIlwain, 745 S Washington, 38701; Claude Aylor, POB 311, Lake Village, AR 71653
Pascagoula, Ascension (SE); Mrs A. J. Willis, 2803 Montclair Av, 39567, 769-2899

MISSOURI
Ava, St Francis in the Ozarks; L. M. Heigham, SW, RFD 4, 65608
Columbia, Andrew J. McRoberts, 1407 Bouchelle, 65201, 449-3117, 442-5566
Poplar Bluff, William W. Pettet, 211 N Broadway (104), 63901, 785-5864, 686-2356
St Louis, Ascension (MW); Jay Teutenberg, SW, 1628 Jonquil, 63119, 961-2469; Mrs Michael Wiejaczka, C, 843-8059
Holy Apostles (MW), POB 3854, 63122, 726-3481; Leland Hilligoss, SW

NEBRASKA
Ainsworth, Holy Trinity (HT); Fr Buck (see Valentine)
Valentine, Agape (HT); Fr Herman E. Buck, POB 147, 69201

NEW HAMPSHIRE
Jefferson, St Dunstan (HT); Fr Herman Nelson; George Brackett, RFD 1, Box 147, 03583
Laconia, St Michael the Archangel (HT); Fr Nelson; Dean Steward, 24 Ledgewood Estates, Ashland 03217
Nashua, St John Chrysostom (MW); Fr Nelson; Henry Edgell, SW, 411 Lucas Rd, Manchester 03103, 627-2958
Winchester, St Luke; Fr Nelson; David Hewlett, 239-4325, 239-6677

NEW JERSEY
Atlantic City, Ascension, POB 1808, 08404; Fr Robert M. Collins, 266-8807, 344-0615; Fr Stuart W. Frazier, 266-3817
Flemington, St Peter (Res), POB 681, 08822, 782-2521, 782-1812; Fr Gerardo Machado; Col James A. Horn, SW, 397-0349

North Plainfield, St Stephen (Res); Dr Donald Moore, SW, POB 591, Bound Brook 08805, 356-6873
Pennsauken, St Richard (Res); Fr C. K. Hewett; Robert C. Reynolds, 6556 Githens Av, 08109
West Orange, St Mark (Res), 45 Main St, 07052, 736-0212, 736-0264; Frs William F. Burns (Bishop-elect, Res) & Kennedy K. Roberts

NEW MEXICO
Albuquerque, St Peter (HT), 811 Pennsylvania, NE, 87110, 883-1624; Fr Geo B. Schold, Jr, 9824 Robin Av, NE, 87112; Richard Musgrove, SW
St Thomas the Apostle (HT); Fr Charles H. Olsen, Jr, 4717 Goodrich, NE, 87[illegible]

NEW YORK
Erie County, Earl K. Chriswell, 1244 Mayfield Dr, Alden 14004, 937-7757
Islip, St Stephen (Res), POB 603, Great River 11739; Oliver Zipp, SW, 581-5584; Mrs John B. Fellows, 581-2269
New York (Manhattan), Monastery Church of the Holy Grail, POB 396, Old Chelsea Station, 10011, 675-3146; Fr Robert C. Kelley
Niagara County, Stephen J. Huckins, 1146 Escarpment Dr, Lewiston 14092, 297-0842; Terry L. Dixon, Galewood Dr, Wilson 14172, 751-6675
Port Chester, Advent [illegible], Fr Paul C. Hewett; Adolph Rutler, SW, RD 4, Primrose St, Katonah 10536, 323-5291; Mrs Flagler Matthews, 967-0210
Poughkeepsie, Holy Comforter (Res); Fr Charles H. Willcox, 18 Davies Pl, 12601, 454-1740
Rochester, Holy Cross (Res), 500 Simpson Rd, 14617; Fr David J. Ambuske, 889-3357; Mrs Robert J. Cone, 342-5621

NORTH CAROLINA
Chapel Hill, St Thomas of Canterbury (SE), POB 2312, 27514, 967-2442; Fr George D. Stenhouse, 383-6969
Charlotte, St Paul the Apostle (SE), POB 1781, 28232; Fr Stenhouse; Thomas Samonds, SW, 366-1552
Fayetteville, Incarnation (SE), POB 35687, 28303; Fr Joseph Strange Husk, 485-2525

OHIO
Akron, St Mary (MW), POB 3693, 44310; Fr James M. Ryerson, 332 Liberty St, Conneaut 44030; Dr Don R. Gerlach, C, 836-7160, 375-7324, 928-3990
Cincinnati, St Alban (MW); Herbert Verity, 531-2738
Cleveland, St James (MW); Fr Frank C. Irvin, East 55th @ Payne, 44114, 431-3252
Sacred Heart (MW); Fr T. Hirth, 3448 Memphis Av, 44109, 661-0169
Columbus, Christ (MW), 2535 Sunbury Dr, 43219, 476-4191; Fr G. Wayne Craig; Robert Amerine, SW, 888-6402
Conneaut, St Gregory the Great (MW); Fr James M. Ryerson, 332 Liberty St, 44030, 593-1437
Coshocton, St Paul (MW); Fr Larry Snyder, SSC, 539 Cambridge Rd, 43812, 623-0744; John E. Metz, 1208 Cambridge Rd, 43812
Dayton, All Saints (MW); Daniel Sauer, SW, 1813 Harvard Blvd, 45406, 274-8328
Euclid, Resurrection (MW); Fr Shelbert C. Harris, 29036 Ridge Rd, Wickcliffe 44092
Lancaster, St Luke (MW); William F. Cantieri, SW, 310 Hillside Av, 43130, 653-8607
Portsmouth, Christ (MW); Charles Brown, LRiC, 721 Washington St, 45662, 353-7520

OKLAHOMA
Oklahoma City, Holy Cross (XR), POB 12530, 73157, 722-3440; Fr Ralph R. Pressley, 4504 NW 28 St, 73127, 946-3589

PENNSYLVANIA
Erie, St David (MW); Fr Ryerson (see Ohio); Dr Jack Zimmerly, SW, POB 84, Waterford 16441
Philadelphia, St James the Less (Res); Fr Clayton K. Hewett, 3227 W Clearfield St, 19132, 229-5767
Philipsburg, St Alban; Mrs Frances Ross, 12 N 4th St, 16866
Pittsburgh, Holy Trinity (MW); Bishop C. Dale David Doren (MW), 2393 Country Club Dr, Upper St Clair, 15241, 833-6221, 221-3598; T. Dixon Holladay, Jr, 1823 Tyburn Ln, 15241
State College, St Alban (Res); Mrs Stuart Forth, 963 E McCormick Av, 16801, 234-4483

SOUTH CAROLINA
Aiken, All Saints (SE); Fr Henry Summerall, Jr, 100 Park Av, SW, 29801, 648-9529; William Nightingale, Jr, SW, 410 Colleton Av, SE, 29801; Robert Goodeville, 710 Laurel Dr, 29801
Charleston, St Timothy, 68½ Queen St, 29401, 722-6351; Fr Robert C. Harvey, 22 Trapman, 29401; Clyde H. Turner, SW, 18 Arcadian Way, 29407
Columbia, Good Shepherd (SE), POB 1298, 29202, 765-1334; Fr William L. Gatling, Jr, 772-5736; Fr William Ladkau, 791-4596
Florence, Our Saviour (SE); Fr Ladkau; Laurence K. Wells, SW, POB 694, Kingstree 29556, 354-9918; Mrs Walter Gregg Wallace, C, Rt 4, 29501
Spartanburg, Mr & Mrs John Gerson, Jr, 128 Holly Dr, 29301, 576-3754,578-7911

TENNESSEE
Memphis, St Thomas the Apostle (SE); Fr Chauncey Linus Shaw, III; Thomas W. Bagley, SW, 63 S 2d St, 38103; Mrs Walter Meely, Jr, S, 910 Hawthorne,38107
Sewanee, St Stephen (SE); Reginald H. Helvenston, The Cloister, St Mary's Road, 37375, 598-5832
Shelbyville, St Dunstan (SE); Ray Anderson, 799 Whitthorne St, 37160, 684-0447

TEXAS
Austin, St Augustine; James C. Fish, SW, 345-0617; Miss Auburn Faber, S, 8706 Silverhill Ln, 78759, 345-1329; Fr Jean Pierre Meshew
Bedford, Fr Jean Pierre Meshew, POB 136, 76021, 498-1147
Big Spring, St Paul; Fr Meshew; W. T. Wynn, SW, 1603 W Dengar, Midland 79701; Mrs John Affleck, S, 2308 Allendale Rd, 79720
Corpus Christi, Mrs John Cornelius Rip, 3120 Ocean Dr, 78404
Corsicana, Transfiguration (HT), POB 881, 75110, 872-2581; Fr Robert Q. Kennaugh
Dallas, St Thomas Becket; Fr Meshew; Bill Brewer, SW, 2425 Brennan Dr, Plano 75075, 596-4636
Euless, St Bede; Fr Meshew; Ernest Workman, SW, 217 Bedford Ct, Bedford 76021, 268-2127
Fort Worth, St Mary Magdalene; Fr Meshew
Grand Prairie, St Charles the Martyr, POB 575, 75051; Fr Mark G. Holliday, 262-5539; Dick Bond, SW, 730 Egyptian Way, 75050
Houston, St Andrew (HT), POB 36277, 77036; Lewis E. Berry, Jr, SW, 783-3529 772-2322
Plano, St Mary, 1602 - 15th Pl, 75075; Fr Meshew; Bill Brewer (see Dallas)
San Antonio, All Saints (HT), POB 18404, 78218; Fr F. Ogden Miller, 349-7847; M. Donald Holmberg, SW, POB 2275, Universal City 78148; Donald K. Collins, JW, 7706 Village Park, 78233

UTAH
Salt Lake City, St Andrew (HT); Robert Sperling, 305 South 12th East, 84102 582-6914; Mrs H. L. Cook, 277-0305

VERMONT
Northfield, Incarnation (HT); Fr Frederick E. Preuss, II, RD 2, 05663

VIRGINIA
Abingdon, Good Shepherd; Fr A. Fraser MacCammond, Rt 4, Box 1750, Christiansburg 24073, 382-7892; Milton Webber, SW, Court St, 24210, 628-7171; Mrs J. Thomas Hulvey, C, 112 Crestview Dr, 24210
Alexandria, St Margaret of Scotland (MA); Jerome Loomis, SW, 112 N Alfred St, 22314, 836-6504; Daniel J. Jones, 3049 Shadeland Dr, Falls Church 22044, 533-9505
Amherst, Ascension (MA), Main St; Fr John A. Pedlar, POB 552, 24521
Blacksburg, St Peter (MA); Fr MacCammond; Dr Robert C. Heterick, Jr, 234 Craig Dr, 24060, 552-1587
Bridgewater, Holy Cross (MA), Box 99 EC, 22812, 828-2501; Fr Dale E. Mekeel 828-6834
Centreville, Ascension (MA), 13941 Braddock Rd, 22020; Fr Ramsay Robertson-Kendall; Nathaniel F. Young, SW, 10510 Cedar Av, Fairfax 22030
Norfolk, St Edward the Confessor (MA), POB 12311, 23502, 461-3922; Joseph Mahler, SW
Richmond, Christ the King (MA); Fr Kyle Boeger, POB 236, Bremo Bluff 23022; Ralph R. Hudson, SW, 1413 Greystone Av, 23224, 232-1848; David E. Martin, JW, 288-0730

WASHINGTON
Sequim, St Anselm of Canterbury (XR); Fr Peter Wilkinson; George Edgar Brown SW, Rt 3, Box 781, 98382, 683-3637

WYOMING
Cheyenne, Blessed Sacrament (HT), POB 66, 82001, 325-6741; Fr John K. Valensis, POB 2826, Airport Station, 82001, 634-8290

C A N A D A

ALBERTA
Edmonton, Resurrection (HT); Fr Philip T. Sargeant, St John's School of Alberta, RR 1, Stony Plain T0E 2G0, 429-4140; G. Mealey, 452-2853; Colin Grant, 465-1073; Barbara Makarowski, 487-1496; Babs Hanna, 433-1819

BRITISH COLUMBIA
Victoria, St Athanasius (XR); Fr Peter Wilkinson, 5238 Beckton Rd, V8Y 2C1 [illegible], Fr E. C. Dentsch, 410 - 1330 Burdet Av, V8V 3H1

MANITOBA
[illegible]

[illegible], Annunciation (MW); Fr [illegible], [illegible] Av, K1S 3B4, [illegible]; Fr W. Bruce Porter, [illegible]; T. M. Pechell, Queen Elizabeth Towers 1100, [illegible], W, K1P 5E1

If you find any errors in the above listing -- additions, corrections or deletions-- write (POB 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632) or call (501-253-9761 or 253-9800). It's your list, and we are sure you want it right.

DEAR JOHNS

Although these two letters have received considerable circulation already, we think they are of such major importance that we have decided to devote the rest of this issue to them. Both of these are addressed to the Presiding Bishop of PECUSA.

Dear John: I have not received a reply to my letter of April 11, 1978, in which I asked for the names of the Bishops who signed the "draft letter" which you said was a "large minority of the House." However, since the text of your letter and "draft letter" have been released and have had wide coverage in both the secular and religious press, I feel that I must reply even though I lack the information I am entitled to and requested. I wonder -- is this trial by mail? If so, it is highly irregular and indeed unprecedented.

I have been advised to reply to your letter of March 29, 1978 as follows:

The sterness of the responses you say you have received to the letter sent to the Bishops by the Bishops Committee on Church Relations and Reconciliation are or no more weight with me than the irresponsible actions the so-called "majority" of the House of Bishops have taken the last few years.

What did they all do when Bishop Pike preached heresy? Nothing. Was the House of Bishops afraid of a trial because they don't know what they believed? What did they do when those retired Bishops violated the provisions of the Constitution and Canons a few years ago by purporting to ordain women to the priesthood? Nothing. Why? For several reasons. Some didn't have the theological education to know it was wrong. Some lacked the courage of their convictions, if they had any. And, finally the purported "ordinations" did not attack their hierarchical and financial structure.

What do they do when an avowed lesbian was ordained again purportedly to the Sacred Priesthood? Nothing of significance to prevent her being licensed in another Diocese by another Bishop.

What has been or is being done about the 200-page "Study/Action Guide", published by the Witness, edited by Bishops and others in good standing in the Church, which is titled "Struggling with the System, Probing Alternatives" -- a radical, one-sided indictment of our American way of life and a frank and enthusiastic support for and an "apologetic" for Marxism? Nothing, so far as I know.

There is so much more to disturb and confuse which deletes the faith and spirit of the Christian Gospel. But all of this has been spoken of before. However, now I come along and by my actions validly (even if, as you say, irregularly) consecrate Bishops which action does sap the House of Bishops' very foundations and weaken its financial security. Of course now they band bravely together to take a strong stand to keep this new enemy (me) out.

And yet how much worse have they done than I ever have done. I, you say, violated the canon -- I lacked your consent. You and the Bishops, in the strength of your majority, ruthlessly denying the minority sufficient opportunity to be heard, have emasculated and destroyed the Constitution and Canons under the subterfuge of forcing through by a majority vote a modification or interpretation of the Canons. Your majority can well say "he" means "he" and/or "she." You can declare by a majority (perhaps the House of Bishops might even be unanimous) that 2+2=5. But it doesn't and never will. You can, indeed you are well on the way, fill the ranks of the clergy with declared, practicing lesbians and homosexuals, and with a little more finesse you can eliminate sin.

The fact that only one member of the House of Bishops came forward to support the Faith once delivered to the Saints, to preserve the form as well as the substance of our worship and liturgy, is ample proof that the House as a body is composed of confused men, adapting the Gospel to the spirit (mores) of the times. They appear to be wolves, dressed in sheep's clothing who waste the widow's mite in lawsuits to prevent faithful priests from ministering to their flocks.

You are not thinking of men when you say you are praying that there may be some way I could be reconciled to you. Are you thinking of yourselves? Rest assured that there is no way to reconciliation with such a body. The House of Bishops represents and apparently purports to speak for an overwhelming majority of the Bishops. They are brave in their majority alone. They, and you (as their representative) have no control over me. Of course you can, with your brave majority, fuss and fume and pass resolutions and amend Canons and Constitutions and fulminate anathemas, but I will continue to do what I was called to do when I was ordained and consecrated.

However, now that I have consecrated four strong and dedicated Bishops who will maintain through their growing Dioceses the Faith and Order which we have inherited, I intend to return to my "fully retired" status. Certainly I will, if need requires it, administer any of the sacraments to those entitled to receive them. I will preach the Word --God's Word-- not that of recent general conventions, as God gives me grace to do so.

These are strong words, John, but you and the House of Bishops have played me false. You may distribute an unexpurgated copy of this letter to the members of the House of Bishops and you have my permission to do so -- in whole or not at all. However, I must send it to the press.

One further comment. The "draft letter" urges me to inform you that I am not to be counted "as a Bishop or as a communicant of this Church." I neither have nor will renounce my orders; I have no intention of withdrawing from the Episcopal Church.

P. S. I have had a great many letters of support which give me courage and strength to persevere in what I believe is right. I hope that I will always be faithful to my consecration vows, so solemnly made.

That letter was signed by Albert A. Chambers, VII Bishop of Springfield.

My dear John: I herewith tender my resignation from the House of Bishops.

I can no longer live with the "conscience clause" which supposedly allows me to remain a Bishop of the Episcopal Church in good standing even though I cannot accept the fundamental changes in the faith wrought by the 1976 General Convention.

At the present I am not a member of the "Anglican Church [in] North America," but as you know I am thoroughly in accord with the principles for which it stands. I whole-heartedly accepted the opportunity to be a co-consecrator of the first Bishops of the body, and only a serious health problem prevented me from attending. I regret my inability to have shared my Orders at that time very much indeed. This may have taken me off the hook technically from your point of view, but from my own point of view my intention to participate constitutes as clear-cut a commitment as my actual presence would have constituted.

What will happen to me ecclesiastically in the future I do not know. All I know is that I cannot accept the actions of General Convention and I cannot go along with the position taken by the "conscience clause" members of the House who have chosen to fight from within, for it seems to me the Episcopal Church has already irrevocably departed from the fullness of the Faith and there is no constructive battle to be waged. Therefore, there is only one thing for me to do and that is to resign.

Whether this action means that I cease to be a communicant member of the Episcopal Church (as you have suggested would - or should - be the case with Bishop Chambers) I have no idea. If so, I am sure nevertheless that I am a communicant member, to say nothing of still being a Bishop, of the One, Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church to which I have dedicated my life. As such I am completely content.

To you and my many friends in the House of Bishops I express my personal love along with my deep regret for any sorrow this action may cause. But to paraphrase the famous saying, "Here I stand, I can do no other."

That letter was signed by Charles Francis Boynton, III Bishop of Puerto Rico and retired Suffragan of New York.

LOST

Mrs Sallie B. Ruskin lost her personal red-leather bound copy of the Book of Common Prayer while attending the Synod held in the Airport Hotel in Atlanta in April. If any good Anglican found it, the name inside is "Sallie Williams Butler McNair Ruskin", will he or she please return it to Mrs Ruskin at POB 312, Decatur, GA 30031. She will gladly reimburse you for the postage.

OF your Christian charity, pray for our bishops-- Albert, Charles, Dale, Francisco, James, Mark, Peter, Robert --and William, bishop-elect.

Our apologies to all who furnished us material for this issue of the Newsletter and which didn't get in to print. We'll try again.

PCCB
The Rev'd David E. Green
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

Bulk Rate
U.S. Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

The Fellowship Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen NEWSLETTER

AUG 29 1978
THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
LIBRARY

VOLUME I, No. 10 August A.D. 1978

There has been no new faith propagated . . . . no religion set up but that which was commanded by our Saviour, preached by the primitive Church, and unanimously approved by the Fathers of best antiquity.
---Elizabeth I

WE HAVE our counterpart now in England - the Fellowship of Concerned Anglicans. We have reports from various sources, including Church Times from which comes the following: Dr Lynn Millar, founder of the new Fellowship of Concerned Anglicans -which aims to mobilise churchpeople who want to oppose the ordination of women- has been "just about swamped with letters and, to a lesser extent, by subscriptions towards the expense of the Fellowship."

Dr Millar . . . says the letters come from all kinds of people - young and old, men and women, clergy and laity.

"They all express satisfaction that something is being done and some of the letters are almost heartbreaking," says Dr Millar. "These come from the elderly and sometimes obviously lonely folk who feel their religion is being taken from them by the things which are happening at the present time in the Church."

The Fellowship will soon publish its first leaflet and some "short, pithy yet simple tracts", and it plans to arrange a programme of local meetings in various places.

PROBLEM OF CONSCIENCE

YET another report from Church Times: The Bishop of Matabeleland, Rhodesia, the Right Rev Robert Mercer, CR, has made it known that he no longer feels able to receive Communion in those national Anglican Churches which have ordained women to the priesthood.

Bishop Mercer has written to the "Canadian Churchman", the newspaper of the Anglican Church of Canada, saying he no longer regards himself as free to receive Holy Communion in the Anglican Churches of America [PECUSA], Canada and New Zealand.

"Were I on a visit to your country I should feel obliged to 'assemble together' with the schismatics," he writes. "What should happen at Lambeth is a problem of conscience I have not yet resolved."

COURT RULES AGAINST

FROM the Diocesan Press Service of PECUSA: The long awaited resolution of the property dispute between the Episcopal Diocese of Los Angeles and four parishes which had separated from it came on June 21 when Superior Court Judge J. Wesley Reed ruled that the property of the four parishes does indeed belong to the diocese.

Judge Reed's memorandum of intent to rule stated that the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States (PECUSA), being a hierarchical church both in ecclesiastical and temporal matters, member parishes therefore are part of a "much larger and more important religious organization, under its government and control, and bound by its orders and judgments."

The four parishes involved are St Mary of the Angels, Hollywood; Holy Apostles, Glendale; Our Saviour, Los Angeles; and St Matthias, Sun Valley. Each had withdrawn from the Episcopal Church early last year, and had changed its Articles of Incorporation with the California Secretary of State to remove all reference to the diocese and PECUSA.

The parishes and their rectors did not advise diocesan bishop Robert C. Rusack or the Standing Committee of these actions at the time. Rather, the chancellor of the diocese learned about the amendments from the Secretary of State after they had been filed.

The memorandum went on to point out that all the property of each parish is impressed with an implied charitable trust, requiring its use for the benefit of members or congregations of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

The Court said its intent was to impose a permanent mandatory injunction requiring the rectors, wardens and vestrymen of the four parishes to surrender title, possession and control of all property to the diocese as trustee, to carry out the trust purposes established by the Court and of the charitable trust for which the property was originally acquired and which had been set forth in the original Articles of Incorporation of each parish.

Informed of the decision, Bishop Rusack said: "I am of course gratified to have our position upheld by the Court. It has been extremely difficult for us to have to go into Court to settle this matter of property ownership. However, we had no other choice, given the responsibility for stewardship of the resources of the Episcopal Church in this Diocese.

"When there is schism, all suffer," Bishop Rusack went on, "and neither side can rejoice. It is the constant hope of the Bishop and the diocese that those who have left our fellowship will return, and that the unhappy divisions may be healed. We assure those who have left us that they are continually in our thoughts and prayers. We miss their participation in our life of work and worship. May God guide them in the way they have chosen."

After the decision was announced, the Rev George Clendenin, rector of Holy Apostles, and the Rev John D. Barker, rector of St Mary of the Angels, said that they intended to appeal.

BISHOP CHAMBERS CHARGED

ALSO from the Diocesan Press Service: Fifteen bishops of the Episcopal Church have filed charges against a retired bishop for participating in a service of consecration contrary to the Constitution and Canons of the Church.

The Rt Rev John M. Allin, Presiding Bishop of the three million [sic]-member Episcopal Church announced today that he has received the charges against Bishop Albert A. Chambers of Dennis, Mass., retired Bishop of the Diocese of Springfield, Ill.

Bishop Chambers and Bishop Francisco J. Pagtakhan of the Philippine Independent Church consecrated four bishops for a new breakaway church group in Denver, Col., last January 28. The new church -called the Anglican Church in North America- was formed by Episcopalians who oppose certain decisions of the General Convention in 1976, such as the approval of the ordination of women to the priesthood and revision of the Book of Common Prayer.

The charges which the 15 bishops -from 14 of the 18 dioceses of Province IV, located in the southeastern U. S.- presented to the Presiding Bishop are that Bishop Chambers violated the Constituion and Canons of the Episcopal Church as follows:

-he participated in the consecration service without the Presiding Bishop or the President of Province VI -where the service took place- taking orders for the consecrations, and without the consents of the diocesan standing committees and other bishops of the Church (Canons: Title III, Canon 14, Section 1 (b) and (c);

-his episcopal act was done without the consent of Bishop William C. Frey of Colorado and without authorization of the House of Bishops or the Presiding Bishop (Canons: Title III, Canon 18, Section 9 (a) and (b); and Constitution Article II, Section 3);

-he "flagrantly breached" his own consecration vows to "conform to the Doctrine, Discipline, and Worship" of the Episcopal Church by participating in these "illegal, episcopal acts" (Canons: Title IV, Canon 1, Section 1 (4) and (6)).

According to the Canons of the Episcopal Church, after the Presiding Bishop reviews the charges, they are turned over by him to a committee of three to seven bishops who decided whether a Board of Inquiry should be appointed to investigate the charges and determine whether "there is sufficient ground to put the accused Bishop on his trial." If it is decided such a board should be appointed, it would consist of five priests and five lay persons.

If a majority of the Board of Inquiry decides the charges are sufficient to recommend the accused bishop be put to trial, a presentment is prepared. The trial would take place before a nine-member Court for the Trial of a Bishop, composed of one bishop from each of the Church's provinces. If a Bishop is found guilty of an offense, he may then appeal the decision to a Court of Review of the Trial of a Bishop, which is also composed of one bishop from each of the provinces.

The bishops who filed the charges with the Presiding Bishop are: George M. Alexander of Upper South Carolina; Frank S. Cerveny of Florida; Charles Judson Child, Jr, suffragan of Atlanta; James L. Duncan of Southeast Florida; Hunley A. Elebash of East Carolina; William H. Folwell of Central Florida; Thomas A. Fraser of North Carolina; Duncan M. Gray of Mississippi; Emerson Paul Haynes of Southwest Florida; George M. Murray of Central Gulf Coast; David B. Reed of Kentucky; William E. Sanders of Tennessee; Bennett J. Sims of Atlanta; Furman C. Stough of Alabama; and Gray Temple of South Carolina.

WANTED The congregation of All Saints', Palatka, Florida, organized since February, 1978, is asking for the "help and guidance" of a priest who could go there at least one Sunday a month or "whatever time he could spare" to celebrate Holy Communion. Interested priests should contact the church secretary, Mary A. Gale, 1912 Carr St, Palatka 32077, or call her at 904-325-2640 or Mrs G. R. Ernsberger at 325-3890.

ONLY one Anglican Loyalist congregation has sent in its parish symbol. Reproduced here are the very handsome arms of the Anglican Church of St Charles the Martyr, Millersville, Maryland, in the Diocese of the Mid-Atlantic. The spokesman who sent us the device did not say so, but it might very well be that part of the inspiration to so name their church came from Dr Thomas G. Barnes' moving address at the St Louis Congress. The black and white reproduction here is amplified by the description sent with it (we have used the modern English version sent rather than the traditional heraldic description): A blue shield with a red horizontal stripe edged in gold; two golden coronets dripping red blood, and a golden-handled silver-bladed axe also dripping blood; on the red stripe a golden Lion of England.

HOOTS FROM THE BARN OWL 1) There is no such thing as an "average size" chalice [average size Barn Owls, yes; chalices, no]. Most chalices are hand crafted by silversmiths so each chalice is a work of art, and a different size and proportion.
2) There is plenty of linen on hand now for Fair Linen.
3) Thanks to the gentleman in Michigan for the box of linens, and to the ladies in Maryland and New Mexico for their boxes of linens.
4) Please do not send colored linens or ecru linen, only white. Ecru will not bleach out easily. Also, please do not send embroidered luncheon napkins. They are best suited for what they were made for; no use parting with treasures of that kind when the Barn Owl really can't use them.
5) Thank you all for your generosity.
6) Walt: remember to include info about CASSOCK under WANTED & OFFERED [dated 31 May 1978].
7) Walt: mention the CASSOCK in the next issue. Somebody might need it & it's taking up room in my B.O. closet [30 June 1978].
[As seems obvious from Hoots 6 and 7, TBO has a 54" long, 42" waist black cassock which she offers to pass along on a first come, first served basis. For that cassock and for other matters concerning The Barn Owl, she may be addressed: c/o Fellowship Newsletter, POB 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632. As always, a self-addressed, stamped envelope for her reply will be appreciated.]

ABORTION PRAYER PROPOSED FROM the Los Angeles Times of 1 July 1978: LONDON- A prayer for an aborted fetus may be included in the new prayer book of the Church of England.
At the forthcoming General Synod . . . the bishop of Winchester, John Taylor, will raise the issue of the humanity of the aborted fetus and its right to be regarded as human.
Taylor suggests that a short prayer might be used, such as: "Into your hands we commit this developing life which we have cut short. Look in kindly judgment on the decision that we have made and assure us in all of our uncertainty that your love for us can never change."
In Taylor's view, such a prayer would be an acknowledgement of the element of humanity in the fetus following abortion. . . . His proposal was immediately attacked by another synod member, Robert Edmunds, chairman of the Antiabortion Society for the Protection of the Unborn Child. He called the proposal preposterous and said it should not be entertained.

I INTERfaith-Cultural-Biblical Mission, founded by Fr Alan Rosenau, circuit-riding Anglican priest now serving two Arkansas parishes and one in Mississippi, offers spiritual resource material, pastoral aids, material for campus ministries, sermons, and much other printed help at reasonable prices. Christian plaques, crosses, banners and ikons also may be ordered. ICBM came about in an effort on the part of Fr Rosenau to extend the knowledge and practice of the Faith within the context of the historic Church.
C B M For further information write directly to: The Rev'd Alan Rosenau, 105 Electra Dr, Hot Springs, AR 71901 (a self-addressed stamped envelope would help) or call 501-767-9186.
[Editor's Note: ICBM might very well be the answer for some of the newsletter's readers who are presently isolated from physical contact with any Anglican Loyalist congregation.]

ADD, CORRECT, DELETE THE changes noted here are reprinted as complete and should be used instead of (and in addition to, of course) the listing in Newsletter 9:
ALABAMA: Atmore, St Andrew (SE), POB 843, 36502; Charles W. Laue, SW, 368-3897; Fairhope, St Peter (SE), POB 45, 36532; Fr William C. Newmarch; Donald Gooden, SW, POB 855, 36532; Robert Richardson, 928-5969.
ARKANSAS: Hot Springs, St Chrysostom, POB 1241, 71901; Fr Alan Rosenau, 767-9186; Richard W. Hobbs, SW, 623-6666
CALIFORNIA: Burlingame, Christ (XR); Fr John T. Cahoon, 1208 Capuchino Dr, 94010, 347-4423; Jack Lysaght, 349-7314; Menlo Park, Fr Cahoon (see Burlingame); Walnut Creek, St Martin of Tours; Lee Poteet, SW, 4407 Sugarland Ct, Concord 94521, 676-2632; John Sauter, JW, 837-0438.
FLORIDA: Largo, St John (SE), POB 1676, 33540; Fr Jack R. Habberfield, 585-4110; P. Raymond Plumer, 867-9091; Palatka, All Saints (SE); Edward W. Garris, Jr, SW, 200 Linda Ln, 32077; Mary A. Gale, 1912 Carr St, 32077, 325-2640; Mrs G. R. Ernesberger, 325-3890; Winter Haven, St Mary (SE), POB 9351, 33880, 324-3805; Fr Sterling Rayburn, 324-1579; Fr Pomeroy H. Hartman.
KENTUCKY: Ashland, St Mary; Kent Williams, DiC; T. C. Bullington, 3429 Blackburn Av, 41101, 324-8086.
MARYLAND, Annapolis, Mrs duVal Allen, 815 Cedar Park Rd, 21401
MICHIGAN: Battle Creek, All Saints (MW); Fr William O. Lewis; George M. Spriggs, Jr, SW, 263 Berkly Av, 49017; Hastings, St Matthias (MW); Fr Lewis; Vesta B. Birch, 602 E Green St, 49058; Kalamazoo, St Patrick (MW); Fr Lewis.
MINNESOTA: Minneapolis, St Chad (HT); Fr John E. Holman, 782-6350; E. H. Lindemann, SW, 4177 Shoreline, 55384, 471-8653; Nelle S. Austin, JW, 698-2250 / St Dunstan (MW), 4800 DuPont Av, S. 55409, 824-3933: Fr Grover Tipton, 1431 E 80th St, Bloomington 55420, 854-0347; John R. Fitzimons, SW, 474-9032; Jane Nones, 824-3933.
MISSISSIPPI: Biloxi, Resurrection; N. H. Hatten, SW, 200 Bryn Mawr, 39531, 388-6777; Mrs B. C. Lynch, 388-3776; Pascagoula, Ascension (SE); A. J. Willis, SW, 2803 Montclair Av, 39567, 769-2899.
MISSOURI: Monett, William F. Gabler, POB 442, 65708; St Louis, Ascension (MW), 1628 Jonquil Dr, 63119, 961-2469; Jay H. Teutenberg, SW; Mrs John K. Griffith, 725-0380 / Holy Apostles (SW), POB 3854, 63122, 726-3481; Leland Hilligoss, SW.
NEW HAMPSHIRE: Concord, St Luke; Fr Herman Nelson, POB 8, Ipswich, MA 01938; Miss Eleanor Harte, 228-8629; Trevor Rea, 228-1854; Nashua, St John Chrysostom (MW), 882-7831; Henry W. Edgell, SW, 44 Lucas Rd, RD 3, Manchester 03101, 627-2958; 497-4457 (Goffstown).
NEW JERSEY: McAfee, St Athanasius; John Pusztay, POB 684, 07428, 827-5608: West Orange, St Mark (Res), 45 Main St, 07052, 736-0212, 736-0214; Frs William F. Burns (Bishop-elect, Res) and Kennedy K. Roberts.
NEW YORK: Port Chester, Advent; Adolph Rutler, SW, RD 4, Primrose St, Katonah 10536, 232-5291; Mrs Flagler Matthews, 967-0210
OHIO: Cleveland, Sacred Heart (MW); Fr T. Hirth, 3448 Memphis Av, 44109, 661-0169 / St James (MW); Fr Frank C. Irvin, 5607 Whittier Av, 44103, 431-3252; Richard Fetzer, C, 562-5781.
OKLAHOMA: Muskogee, Advent ; Mrs Chal Wheeler, 412 N. 34th St, 74401; Andy Maupin, LR.
OREGON: Medford, St Andrew, POB 85, 97501.
TENNESSEE: Brentwood, St Joseph of Arimathea, POB 821, 37027; Fr Husk (see Fayetteville, NC); Robert F. Cherry, LR; Vivian H. Head, S-T; Memphis, St Thomas the Apostle (SE); W. F. Pearson, LR; Thomas W. Bagley, SW, 63 S. 2d St, 38103; Mrs Walter Meely, Jr, S, 910 Hawthorne St, 38107; Sewanee, St Stephen (SE), 37375; Frank Thomas, Jr, SW, 598-5891; Reginald T. Helvenston, T, 598-5832.
TEXAS: see article following
VIRGINIA: Abingdon, Good Shepherd (MA); Fr A. Fraser MacCammond Milton Webber, SW, Court St, 24210, 628-7171, 628-5262; Mrs J. Thomas Hulvey, C, 112 Crestview Dr, 24210, 628-5391; William S. Phillips, 628-9275.
C A N A D A: ONTARIO: Ottawa, Annunciation (MW); Fr C. J. de-Catanzaro, 318 Clemow Av, K1S 2B8, 232-5406; Fr W. Newton Porter, 924-2505; J. M. Pechell, 236-2096.

NEW DIOCESE FORMED SEVEN parishes formed the Diocese of the Southwest at St Mary's Anglican Church, Plano, Texas, on 21 and 22 July, and elected Mark Gladwin Holliday, 57, Rector of St Charles the Martyr Anglican Church, Grand Prairie, their first bishop. In addition to St Charles' and St Mary's, the member parishes of the new diocese are: St Thomas Becket, Dallas; St Augustine, Austin; St Paul, Big Spring; St Bede, Bedford-Euless (all in Texas); and Holy Apostles, St Louis, Missouri. The diocese also elected a Standing Committee and delegates to the constitutional synod.

BOOKLET SERIES PLANNED Mission Press, POB 18404, Serna Station, San Antonio, Texas 78233, will publish a series of booklets on aspects of Anglican Church life. First in the series of "how to" pamphlets is "How to Start a New Parish", to be available about 1 September. Others planned are: How to Say Morning Prayer, How to Say Evening Prayer, How to Furnish an Altar, Simplified Accounting for Parish Treasurers, and the like. To receive a current list of titles and prices send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Mission Press.

OF YOUR Christian charity, pray for our bishops -Albert, Charles, Dale, Francisco, James, Mark, Peter, Robert -and William and Mark, bishops-elect.

PRINTING DISCOUNT OFFERED THE printery of St Anthony Friary, Rt 1, Box 1125, Bandon, Oregon 97411, will soon be offering "traditionalist tracts and other publications". These will be subsidized by revenues from the printery and donations. The Chapter is offering stationery and other printing necessities to ACINA churches at a 10% discount from its regular church rate which is cost plus 10%. If you are in a hurry for further information the Friary's phone number is 503-347-3200. Ask for Brother John-Mark.

QUICK QUOTES From an open letter by the Rev'd George H. Clendenin, Rector of the Church of the Holy Apostles, Glendale, California, printed in his parish bulletin and directed to the Bishop of Eau Claire: . . . It is something of a an insult to the laity to assert that they "do not understand what is involved". I submit that most of them are vastly superior analysts of the crisis within PECUSA than are the majority of self-serving and timid clergy. . . . It is true that great numbers of the laity do not know all the facts because their rectors practice a rigid censorship of information. However, there are multitudes of the laity who know exactly what is going on and who have resolved that they can no longer be affiliated with the political and theological vagaries of PECUSA. It is they who made the St Louis Congress possible. It is they who will insure the growth in the ranks of ACINA.
From Donald K. Collins' article [must reading], "The Priorities of Priesthood", in the June, 1978 issue of The Christian Challenge: To be a priest is, in a sense, willingly to accept a life sentence. A plumber has a "job"; a bookkeeper has a "job" but a priest has a "vocation". No bishop ever pronounced: "Thou art a plumber forever", and no one has ever successfully written a "job description" for a priest . . .
From a Tennessee senior warden's letter: On May 15 there were only three of us available and ready to sign the documents to incorporate . . . By June 15, [we] had a priest and some 25 communicants pledging support that amounted to approximately 75% of the projected rock bottom yearly budget . . . I am confident that within a year we will have 100 families pledged . . Within 12 months, I am confident that we will be able to have land and/or a church under negotiations. If you think we can be of any help to any forming Anglican parish, please let us know.

LATE, LATER, LATEST COLORADO: Boulder, St Teresa of Avila (HT); Fr Gregory J. Harring; Mrs Richard P. Woolley, SW, 1850 Folsom (309), 80302, 303-449-6186. ALABAMA: Birmingham, Venerable Bede (SE); Fr William J. Marvin, 3824 Asbury Pl, 35243, 205-967-6610. ILLINOIS: Chicago, St George the Martyr (MW); Fr Roderic B. Dibbert, 312-764-9820; James G. Schneider, SW, 815-932-6843 / St Jude (MW), Fr Lafond Lapointe 312-978-1285

FCCY
Graduate Theological Union Library
Serials Dept.
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

SEP 15 '78

The Fellowship Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

Bulk Rate
U.S. Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

FCC The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen NEWSLETTER

VOLUME 1, No. 11 September A.D. 1978

There has been no new faith propagated . . . . no religion set up but that which was commanded by our Saviour, preached by the primitive Church, and unanimously approved by the Fathers of best antiquity.
---Elizabeth I

DEAR JOHN: The action taken against me by the presentment you have received relating to my alleged breach of the Constitution and Canons of the Episcopal Church must be viewed in the light of the previous non-action by the House of Bishops in the case of the violation of the Constitution of the Church by four bishops in Philadelphia in 1974 when they, without complying with the Canons and in the face of injunction to desist, purported to ordain priestesses in the Episcopal Church. This they did, not only in the face of requests not to do so, but in total disregard of the fact that the ordination of women was not contemplated or authorized in the Constitution, Canons or the Book of Common Prayer. Nevertheless in the Diocese they went through words and ceremonies purporting to ordain women as priestesses in the Episcopal Church. They intended to act for and in the Episcopal Church and the Diocese. Yet, though the purported ordinations themselves were legally, theologically, and ecclesiastically a nullity, those four bishops have not yet been put to trial for their actions.

Why am I now treated differently? Is there not equal justice under the law? Or is the Episcopal Church and its House of Bishops above the law?

So far as the presentment filed against me is concerned, I deny the allegations as stated in it, because they patently overlook the facts and disregard what actually took place. It is true that I consecrated and joined in the consecration of four bishops into the Church of God (as I myself was consecrated), but I made no claim, nor do the bishops so consecrated claim, that they are now bishops of the Episcopal Church in the United States of America. The actions took place in Denver, it is true, but in no sense whatever in the Diocese of Colorado. The Diocese of Colorado is an ecclesiastical institution composed of parishes and congregations of the Episcopal Church within the State of Colorado, that are members of the convention of that diocese and accept their allegiance to the Constitution and Canons of the Episcopal Church and of the Diocese of Colorado. They recognize the Bishop of Colorado as their spiritual authority in that diocese.

The parishes and congregations comprising the Dioceses of the Holy Trinity, of the Southeastern United States, of Christ the King, and of the Midwest, on the other hand, for which I joined in the consecration of their four duly elected bishops, had separated themselves from the Episcopal Church and the various dioceses with which they had been connected, and claimed no further connection with them. Some of their clergymen were, or were in the process of being, deposed by their former bishops. They were in no sense subject to the jurisdiction of the Constitution and Canons or the Bishop of Colorado or any other bishop of the Episcopal Church.

The service of consecration that took place in Augustana Lutheran Church in Denver can by no stretch of the imagination be deemed to have been within the Episcopal Diocese of Colorado. It was not, nor was it intended to be, within that diocese or any other diocese of the Episcopal Church. The Episcopal Church had and has no jurisdiction or authority over these dioceses, no matter where it occurs geographically. No such actions can be said to be within a diocese of the Episcopal Church.

What I did was wholly outside the Diocese of Colorado and the jurisdiction of the General Convention of the Episcopal Church. I did not, as alleged in the presentment, violate the Constitution and Canons "while subject in all matters to the Constitution and Canons of the Episcopal Church and subject to the authority of the General Convention". I am retired and am not subject to the Constitution and Canons or the authority of the General Convention unless I purport to perform acts within the jurisdiction of the General Convention or one of its dioceses, and that I did not do.

When consecrated I did take an oath to "conform to the doctrine, discipline and worship of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America", and that I have always done. But the House of Bishops, including those who now charge me with a breach of the Constitution and Canons, have themselves so emasculated the doctrine of the Church and vulgarized and degraded its worship that it is not recognizable as the doctrine and worship that I pledged and still pledge myself to uphold. The action taken in the General Convention that purported to authorize the ordination of women was wholly illegal by any standards of common law under which the Church has existed for centuries. If there were a Court of Appeals to which the matter could be brought, such action would summarily be ruled illegal and a nullity. The steps I took in consecrating four bishops were designed to preserve the doctrine and worship of the Church as they have been for centuries upheld in the Episcopal Church; that is, to save it from the desecration devised by the House of Bishops, the illegal ordination of women, of declared lesbians and homosexuals, the denigrating of sin, easy remarriage after divorce, etc., and the insipid, vulgar bowdlerizing of the Book of Common Prayer. I do not regret my actions nor in any way apologize for them. They were in my judgment and good conscience necessary and entirely in accord with the oaths I took at my own consecration.

Since I have learned that you authorized the publication of the presentment in the public press, I now feel obliged to give this recognition of it the same publicity.

I think now that my request that you send me the names of the bishops whose letters addressed to me requested me to resign from the House of Bishops, should be honored.

Sincerely,
s/Albert A. Chambers

DIFFERENT APPROACH

THE FCC Newsletter has a way of editing itself! In earlier issues the stubby-fingered editor had tried to discipline the wayward publication and to contain it in some sort of standardized format, both physically and textually. That neither has been accomplished is apparent from even the most casual perusal of past issues. This issue has determined itself to be an issue of letters and extracts from Anglican Loyalist bulletins and newsletters. So be it!

FROM FCC's PREXY

BISHOPS, priests and deacons, and lay people of the Anglican Church in North America will meet in Dallas to adopt a Constitution and Canons for the Church on 18 - 21 October at the Sheraton-Dallas Hotel. Vistors are welcome, but only elected representatives of the several dioceses participating in this important constitutive event will have voice or vote.

In preparation for Synod, a planning committee has been working for several months on two tasks: drafting the text of the Constitution and Canons to be proposed and acted upon at Dallas, and arranging for the meeting itself. The committee is chaired by the President of The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen, the Rev'd Dr Carroll E. Simcox.

Concerning the Dallas meeting, Dr Simcox explains, "Everybody must understand that Dallas is not to be a kind of 'mini-St Louis'. The purpose of the St Louis Congress was to rally the scattered faithful and make them conscious that they are, in truth, God's Remnant within Anglicanism. The purpose of the Dallas Synod is to get this Remnant 'organized for business' as the Anglican Church in North America. We ask the prayers of all for this crucially important synod, and I think the perfect prayer for it, A Prayer to be Used at the Meetings of Convention, is on page 36 of the Book of Common Prayer."

FROM BIRMINGHAM ALABAMA

A "mini-St Louis" . . . will be held at the Airport Ramada Inn in Birmingham from 6 p.m. Friday, 15 September to noon Sunday, 17 September. We expect Bishop Watterson and leading priests of the Diocese [of the Southeastern U. S.], and hope as well for Fr Rutler and/or Perry Laukhuff. We have to feel that the weekend should become for us an anniversary -sort of to us what Bastille Day is to the French- and we plan to have Witness + Workshop + Worship -- 5 meals, 5 workshops, 5 services -- in our time together. A block of rooms has been reserved and we can take reservations for the sessions up to 10 September . . . the room reservations should be in earlier if they are to be guaranteed, but there are many other motels nearby and since this is not a football weekend in Birmingham there should be no problem. [For further information: The Rev'd William J. Marvin, 3824 Asbury Place, Birmingham 35243; phone 205-967-6610.]

FROM ANAHEIM CALIFORNIA

THE Magdalene, the parish newsletter of the Church of St Mary Magdalene, Anaheim, is quoted in Volume 1, Number 1 of the as-yet-unnamed newsletter of the Church of St Edward the Confessor, Indianapolis, about a "happening" in Houston [Editor's Note: Which pretty well shows how well ACINA is covering the country]:

The Diocese of the Holy Trinity had great difficulty procuring a church building for a Pontifical High Mass in Houston . . . [and is] indebted to the Methodist bishop of Houston for lending . . . St Andrew's Methodist Church, with the gracious cooperation of its pastor . . .

The Protestant Episcopal bishop of Texas contacted the Methodist bishop . . . and asked him to rescind his offer, for the sake of ecumenical relations. The Methodist bishop replied that, in the name of ecumenical relations, he was surprised that the PE bishop would make such a request! Whereupon, [the Episcopal bishop] informed the Methodist bishop that he knew many influential Methodists in Houston who would not be pleased. Whereupon, the Methodist bishop countered that, as Methodist bishop of Houston, he knew even more influential Methodists than did the Protestant Episcopal bishop!

TWO FROM COLORADO

CALVARY Church, Idaho Springs, has been without a church bell some 75 years [the old church burned]. The tower, the beams, etc. all exist in the present structure except a bell to call the faithful to worship. Would you please include in your next newsletter a plea for any bell presently stored away and not in use. We can pay for the transportation to Idaho Springs, but we do not have funds to buy a bell at this time.

AND

First off, this is a plea for prayers and money. [On] 7 June the Bishop of Colorado filed suit on this little congregation of twelve persons. The intent is to take the church property despite the fact that the congregation has the title.

This small flock of faithful Churchmen has already drawn from personal savings accounts $5,000. There is no other source to draw from. We have some chance of winning this court case and setting a precedent if we have some financial help to defend ourselves. Otherwise, we shall lose by default.

If you can help us with any donation, large or small, it will be most gratefully appreciated. Checks should be made to the Diocese of the Holy Trinity and marked in the lower left corner "St Paul's Church, Central City". This congregation has now reached the desperation point of having to ask for help. Any donation is tax-deductible since St Paul's Church is a non-profit corporation.

Please pray for us here in Central City. It is now our turn to suffer for conscience sake.

[For further information about either the need for a bell in Idaho Springs or for defense funds in Central City: The Rev'd William Buck, POB 176, Black Hawk, CO 80422.]

FROM HOT SPRINGS ARKANSAS

FIRST, we are tremendously encouraged, enthusiastic, and excited over the support which is developing throughout the country for the Anglican Church in North America . . .

Second, we are happy to announce that the Bishop of the Diocese of Christ the King will be in Arkansas immediately following the [Constitutional] Synod [in Dallas]. He will celebrate the Holy Eucharist and confirm candidates at St Chrysostom's Sunday, 22 October, and that afternoon will address all concerned Churchmen and interested persons at the Reddi-Kilowatt Building in Little Rock.

[For further information: The Rev'd Alan Rosenau, POB 1241, Hot Springs National Park, AR 71901; phone 501-767-9186.]

FROM CHARLESTON SOUTH CAROLINA

AN unfortunate rumor is going the rounds, and I would like you to help me spike it.

Two of our parishioners recently made an innocent visit to the home parish in another state of one of the episcopal sects. Its bishop then reported in his newsletter a friendly call from Mr and Mrs Soandso "of St Timothy's Anglican Church, Charleston, S. C., whose rector is the Rev'd Robert Harvey".

As a result I have found myself on the mailing list of four such churches, and have received letters or phone calls from every one of their bishops. It is assumed that we are shopping around for a Church other than the Anglican Church in North America. And, more importantly, I have received anxious calls from every part of the country inquiring whether the rumor is true.

Flatly and unequivocally, it is not. We are Anglicans and only that. We are protecting our faith and our traditions against the unbelievers who have kidnapped PECUSA and carried her into a Babylonian captivity. It is unthinkable that we should leave our own Church and join another whose antecedents are -to say the least- questionable.

There are two things you should know about these "Anglican" sects. We can be in sympathy with them for their stand on doctrine and morals and for their continued use of the Book of Common Prayer. But they are not Anglican in the critical sense that they have received the episcopate through the Anglican succession. And none has left PECUSA with the intent of maintaining a link with a world-wide remnant of the Anglican faithful. We do have Anglican orders and with God's help will establish a remnant that within a few years will include the faithful from around the world.

The second thing is to point out that these sects live by proselyting Episcopalians: they are exploiting weakness. As Bishop Mote has said, "the vagantes (rootless clergy) are priests who are looking for people. ACINA are a people who are seeking priests." As a part of their promotion, several of these Churches had their bishops and priests at St Louis making contacts. One of the FCC's unpleasant tasks there was dealing with these gate-crashers. All we could say was that we had no immediate business with them. We had nothing against them, but our only controversy was with PECUSA, and it was something they could not help us with. As to combining forces, that was unthinkable short of a thorough study of their doctrine and order. And such a study would have to be made by the Anglican Church -- not by The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen.

At the moment I believe we have only one special calling from God --to separate ourselves from the Anglican unfaithful, and at the same time to provide a household for the faithful. This is true for St Timothy's as a parish. It is true for ACINA as a Church. We have no time right now for lesser or extraneous things.

FROM THE BISHOP OF THE MIDWEST

HOW much do we actually listen to the words of the Book of Common Prayer? and how much are we really aware of their meaning? In our determination to be loyal Anglicans we have chosen to adhere to the old book rather than accept the erroneous changes of the new one. That must mean that we not only like the language and forms -the beauty of the old expressions of our ancient faith- but also that we believe them and wish to follow them scrupulously. Are we not also bound to observe the rubrics? Unless we do so, we are not only behaving as lawlessly as those who laid violent hands upon the substance of the catholic faith and order contained in the book when they proceeded to replace it with a new; we are missing the rich values contained in the book for the ordering of our daily lives and worship. If we are careless about adhering both to the letter and the spirit of the Prayer Book, we miss the rewards of an abundant heritage.

In the [proposed] Prayer Book the Decalogue was removed from the communion rite and placed in a little penetential addendum outside it, with no requirement that the Ten Commandments be used at all. Of course, it has also been common practice in recent years not to use the Decalogue. But is it not ironical that in an age which has witnessed such a softening of references to human sinfulness (which is what the commandments remind us of), we have seen more frequent evidences of sin in our midst? We who revere the Prayer Book must remember that the Decalogue remains to be used in our liturgy as in our lives, even though it is qualified by Jesus' great Summary of the Law and the new commandment of love. Use of the Decalogue "may be omitted, provided it be said at least one Sunday in each month" (p 67). So long as we profess to value and follow the Book of Common Prayer, are we not bound to obey such directions as are clearly specified?

Another important direction given us by the Prayer Book is on p li -a Table of Fasts. Too many Churchmen seem to be ignorant of what is most specifically required, or they ignore it --that there are days of fasting "on which the Church requires such a measure of abstinence as is more especially suited to extraordinary acts and exercises of devotion." To abstain is to avoid the consumption of some particular food of which we are fond, and traditionally Christians have abstained from flesh meat. To fast is of course to reduce the quantity and quality of all food and drink. The Church thus directs us to use fasting and abstinence as exercises of devotion on Ash Wednesday, Good Friday, the weekdays of Lent, the Ember Days and all Fridays except Christmas Day and the Epiphany or any Friday which may intervene between those two feasts.

No bishop, priest, deacon or layman has any authority to alter unilaterally what the Church requires in her formularies. By faithful adherence to such directions we not only will enjoy the wealth of variety in the Book of Common Prayer, and share a common discipline, and thankfully worship and live according to a common standard, but also show ourselves obedient sons and daughters of our mother, the Church, and of Christ who is her Head.

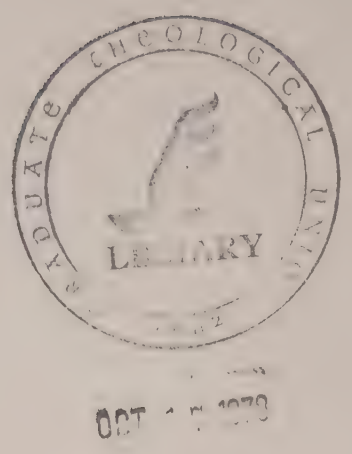
FROM GLENDALE CALIFORNIA

THERE seems to be confusion in the minds of many outside [the Church of the] Holy Apostles about the present status of our parish family. This has been compounded by the fact that publication of the regular weekly Encyclical was discontinued, as is our custom, during the summer months. Members of the congregation are fully aware of our status, of course, but absentee friends have apparently pictured us as immediately "out in the cold" when headlines of the court decision on our lawsuit seemed to give that impression.

The actual decision has not yet been handed down. It is expected by the end of August. We then have a month to file our appeal. Following the filing of the appeal, we will be obliged to wait an extended time for another decision. We plan to exhaust completely the appellate process (including resort to the Federal courts).

Our most sincere thanks go out to all who have written or telephoned during this difficult time, with special appreciation to all who have sent their donations to our Legal Defense Fund. The prayers, moral support and material assistance of friends all across the country have helped to sustain us, thanks be to God.

[For further information" The Rev'd George H. Clendenin, 1011 S. Verdugo Rd, Glendale 91205; phone 213-243-3424.]



OF YOUR Christian charity, pray for our bishops --Albert, Charles, Dale, Francisco, James, Mark, Peter and Robert-- and for Mark and William, bishops-elect.

YET another parish in the Diocese of the Mid-Atlantic has sent us its parish device with the request (which we happily honor) that it be displayed in the newsletter. Shown here is the logo of the Anglican Church of St Edward the Confessor, the mailing address of which is in Norfolk, Virginia, but which meets at 9:30 a.m. on Sunday in Virginia Beach and at 11:30 in Portsmouth. The logo was designed by Mark Mahler, the son (we believe) of the parish's senior warden, and is made up of the bust of St Edward inside an eliptical shield with the cross of St George behind.

GOD willing, issue 12 will carry a complete list of parishes.

FCCY
Graduate Theological Union Library
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

OCT

Bulk Rate
U. S. Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

The Fellowship Newsletter
P.O. Box 252
Eureka Springs, AR 72632

FCC The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen NEWSLETTER

VOLUME I, No. 12 October A.D. 1978

There has been no new faith propagated . . . . no religion set up but that which was commanded by our Saviour, preached by the primitive Church, and unanimously approved by the Fathers of best antiquity.
---Elizabeth I

LET US hear from you! From the beginning we have held that the newsletter was,and is, a medium of exchange for Anglicans, and others interested in the continuing Church. We know that many presently receiving the newsletter do not fall in either category. Now is the time for us to check our mailing list to see that the newsletter is going only to those who genuinely want it. Therefore, if the code letters after your name are anything but FCCP or FCCI, you need to drop us a postcard, "I want to continue to receive the FCC Newsletter." All codes except FCCP and FCCI will be removed from the files after we mail the December issue. It would help us if you would cut out and paste the address from your newsletter on the card; it is not necessary, but do send us your name and address as it appears on the newsletter (with corrections, if necessary).

SYNOD FUND SET

A MOST important event in the life of the Anglican Church in North America will take place on October 18-21 in Dallas: the Constitutional Synod of this body of the continuing Episcopal Church, to adopt an official Constitution. By this action, the Anglican Church in North America will become a fully organized and operative province of the Holy Catholic Church.

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen is undertaking to help bring to pass this vital step forward, and so we are turning to you to invite you to share in this task. We trust you agree that if the Anglican Church in North America is to do its work for God in the world it must establish a suitable Constitution as soon as possible.

Between now and the Dallas Synod, an immense amount of work must be done in drafting the text of a Constitution in such a way that it can be received, amended as desired and finally adopted and promulgated. There will inevitably be heavy expense in preparing for the Synod and seeing it through.

We are setting up a special fund for this purpose. Contributions to it will be used for Synod expenses, with the understanding that if there is any unexpended balance, it will be used for the continuing work of the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen.

If you wish to contribute, your check should be made out to: "FCC", with a notation, "For the Constitutional Synod". Send it to: FCC, POB 505, Amherst, Virginia 24521. Your contribution is, of course, tax-deductible.

We thank you for the thoughtful consideration which we know you are giving to our need, and we earnestly ask for your prayers for us and for those who will be engaged in this most urgent and weighty undertaking for the Church and the Kingdom of Jesus Christ.

Faithfully yours, [Signed by the four Bishops of ACINA and the President of The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen]

ACINA

HEREWITH is the most accurate, up-to-date list of continuing Church congregations available to the newsletter as of the date of its preparation. As always, we ask that you advise us of inaccuracies or omissions. Call (502-253-9701, 253-9800) or write (POB 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632) with your corrections. Where known, diocesan affiliations are shown as follows: Christ the King (XR); Holy Trinity (HT); Mid-Atlantic (MA); Midwest (MW); Resurrection (R); Southeast (SE); and Southwest (SW). Listings have been abbreviated to show principal means of contact via mail or phone.

ALABAMA: ATMORE, St Andrew (SE), POB 843 36502;Chas W. Laue, SW, 205-368-3897 / BIRMINGHAM, St Bede (SE), POB 624 35201; Revd Wm J. Marvin, 205-967-6610; Elmer T. Welch, SW, 205-629-5521 / DECATUR, Dr Tom Bingham, POB 1929 35602 / FAIRHOPE, St Peter (SE), POB 855 36532; Revd Wm C. NewMarch, 205-928-8252; Donald Gooden, SW, 205-928-2215 / MONTGOMERY, St Joseph of Arimathea (SE), POB 17236 36117; Fr Marvin (B'ham); Philip C. Davis, SW,205-272-2814
ARIZONA: PAYSON, Holy Nativity (XR), POB 1261 85541; Revd Robt P. Donovan, 602-474-3114
ARKANSAS: HOT SPRINGS, St Chrysostom (XR), POB 1241 71901; Revd Alan Rosenau, 502-767-9186; Richd W. Hobbs, SW, 502-623-6666 / MOUNTAIN HOME, St Mary in the Ozarks (HT), POB 654 72653; Revd Wm C. Morgan; Nils Florentz, SW, 502-492-6132
CALIFORNIA: ANAHEIM, St Mary Magdalene (HT), POB 4729 92803,714-774-8100; Revd Anthony F. Rasch; Wm T Heaton, SW, 714-551-4825 / ARCATA, Holy Family (XR),1754 Roberts Way 95521;Donald Clancy,W, 707-822-2105 / BERKELEY,St Jos of Arimathea (XR),2543 Durant Av 94704,415-841-3083;Revd Francis W. Read, 415-658-4033 / BURLINGAME, St James (XR); Revd Jno T. Cahoon, 1208 Capuchino 94010, 415-347-4423; Jack Lysaght, 415-349-7314 / COVINA, St Luke (HT); Revd Richd E. Lockwood; Robt Kambeitz, SW, 213-334-7362; Mrs Walter Buerger, C, 20769 Mesarica Rd 91724, 213-331-3623 / DOWNEY, St Michael (HT), 11425 Paramount Bl 90241, 213-869-8044;Revd Elwood B. Trigg / GLENDALE, Holy Apostles (XR), 1011 S Verdugo Rd 91205, 213-243-3424; Revd Geo H. Clendenin, 213-241-4473 / GLENDORA, St Luke (HT), 213-967-3333 / LOS ANGELES, Our Saviour, 6301 W Olympic Bl 90048, 213-935-0228; Wm Jackson, SW / MENLO PARK, St James (XR), 415-655-4951; Fr Cahoon (Burlingame) / OAKLAND, St Peter (XR), 6013 Lawton Av 94618, 415-655-4283; RtRevd Robt S. Morse (Bp of XR), 415-841-8150 / PLEASANT HILL,St Martin of Tours, 622 Contra Costa Bl 94523, 415-432-4293, 837-0438,763-4580; Revd G. D. Wiebe, SSC / SAN JOSE, Resurrection (XR), 1717 The Alameda 95126; Revd Clarence Lee, 408-295-6310; Geo Gabarino SW, 408-286-1610 / SAN MARCOS, St Michael & All Angels, Revd Burket Kniveton / SANTA ANA, St Therese of Lisieux (HT); Revd G. Russell Touchstone; Wm Musgrove, SW, 105 W Stevens 92707, 714-540-7103 / SANTEE, M/M K. V. Saunders, 8701 Mesa Rd (44) 92071, 714-449-9301 / WRIGHTWOOD, Gordon Koenig, LR, POB 1032 92397
COLORADO: BLACK HAWK, St Paul (HT), POB 176 80422, 303-582-5858; Revd Wm C. Buck / BOULDER, St Teresa of Avila (HT); Revd Gregory J. Harring; Mrs Richd P. Woolley, SW, 1850 Folsom (309) 80302, 303-449-6186 / COLORADO SPRINGS, St Athanasius (HT), 3105 Downhill Dr 80918,303-598-5207; Revd Stanley G. Macgirvin; Dr Alfred J. Martin, SW, 303-598-8081 / DENVER, St Mary (HT), 2290 S Clayton 80210, 303-758-7211, 757-6814; RtRevd Jas O. Mote (Bp of HT) / GRAND JUNCTION, Anglican Mission of Colorado West (HT); Mrs Grace Hardcastle, 1441 Patterson Rd (502) 81501 / IDAHO SPRINGS, Calvary (HT); Fr Buck (Black Hawk) / WESTCLIFFE, St Matthew the Apostle (HT), 303-783-2213, 783-2338; Revd Richd C. Willars; Mrs Wm G. Falkenberg, POB 206 81252
CONNECTICUT: MYSTIC, St Alban; Revd Chas Austin Dinkler,32 Pearl 06355, 203-572-0137; Mrs Wanda McFarland, 203-536-4366 / NEW CANAAN, Mrs Alfred M. Hudson, 1C2 Valley Rd 06840
DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: WASHINGTON, St Hilda of Whitby (MA); Revd Michael Wynkoop, 301-587-2299; A. Edw Faro, SW, The Westchester (612A), 4000 Cathedral Av, NW 20012, 202-965-9896
FLORIDA: FORT LAUDERDALE, St Michael the Archangel (SE),POB 5203 33310, 305-735-0266; Revd Jas G. Monroe, Jr; Kenneth W. Scott,SW 305-565-1758 / LARGO, St John (SE), POB 1676 33540; Revd Jack R Habberfield, 813-585-4110; P. Raymond Plumer, LR, 813-887-8091 / MIAMI, St Charles the Martyr / PALATKA, All Saints (SE); Edw W Garris, Jr, SW, 200 Linda Ln 32077; Mary A. Gale, 904-325-2640; Mrs G. R. Ernsberger, 904-325-3890 / PENSACOLA, All Saints, POB 4538 32507; Michael G. Carr, SW, 904-455-5630; Dr A. W. White, 904-456-2611 / PORT CHARLOTTE, Howard C. Warner, 315 NE Laramore 33952, 813-625-4781 / SEBRING, St Simon of Cyrene (SE); Col Paul Trammel, SW, 7693 Rolling Hills 33870 / TALLAHASSEE, St Andrew (SE), POB 3101 32303; Jas Larkin, SW; Col C. L. Perkins, C, 904-385-3116; Col Robt M. Shoemaker, LR, 904-385-8547 / WEST PALM BEACH, Holy Spirit (SE), 1003 Allendale Rd 33405, 305-833-7605; RtRevd Peter F. Watterson (Bp of SE), 305-833-9937 / WINTER HAVEN, St Mary (SE), POB 9351 33880, 813-324-3805; Revd Sterling Rayburn, 813-293-2907
GEORGIA: ATLANTA: St Hilda of Whitby (SE), 1393 W Peachtree, NE 30309; Revd Geo W. Murdoch, 404-634-3754 / WEST POINT, St Andrew Mrs Howard Syler, 608 Av C 31833
ILLINOIS: BEDFORD-BLOOMINGTON, Good Shepherd (HT); Revd Ronald L Greeson, 3130 N Grand E, Springfield 62702, 217-523-7113; Mrs Norman Nichols, RR 13, Box 653, Bedford 47421; Joel Marsh, RR 10 Box 637, Bloomington 47401 / CHICAGO, St George the Martyr (MW), 7400 Sheridan Rd 60626; Revd Roderic B. Dibbert, 312-764-9820; Jas G. Schneider, SW, 815-932-6843 AND St Jude (MW); Revd Lafond Lapointe, POB 5716 60680, 312-978-1285

INDIANA: EVANSVILLE, St Mary the Virgin (HT); Revd Wm E. Stark, 809 SE Riverside 47713, 812-425-4972; Wm Hickman, POB 3271 47701 / INDIANAPOLIS, St Edward the Confessor (HT); Fr Jos P. Deyman, 3662 Nobscot Ct (1A) 46222, 317-926-6940 / NEW CASTLE, Our Saviour (HT); Fr Deyman (Indnpls); Jack Bradberry, 711 S 11th 47632; Dale Fight, 121 N Dill, Muncie 42303 / SOUTH BEND St Mary Philip Lund, SW, 1021 Strong, Elkhart 46514, 219-522-3480;Philip Muller, LR, 1224 Lincolnway E 46618
IOWA: DES MOINES: St Aidan; Fr Taylor (Sioux Ctr); Louis Falk, 515-223-1591; June Kosmach, 620 E 4½ St, S, Newton 50208, 515-

792-6734 / SIOUX CENTER, Revd E. L. Hebden Taylor, 333 4th Av,NE 51250, 712-722-1671
KANSAS: FORT SCOTT, St Francis (HT), POB 425 66701; Revd Dwain A. Jenista; Jas McNeley, SW, 316-223-2838 / WICHITA, Billy Nalle Apt 2205, 400 W Central 67203
KENTUCKY, ASHLAND, St Mary (MW); Revd Kent Williams; M/M T. C. Bullington, 3429 Blackburn 41101, 606-324-8086 / DAYTON St John (MW), 619 O'Fallon 41074, 606-781-5006; Revd Jas Bjorkman
LOUISIANA: NEW ORLEANS, Christ (SE), 4007 St Charles Av (103) 70115; Chas Parnell, SW, 504-643-0361; Ann Plaisance, 504-891-1797 (both numbers after working hours)
MARYLAND: ANNAPOLIS, Mrs duVal Allen, 815 Cedar Park Rd 21401 / MILLERSVILLE, St Charles the Martyr (MA), POB 224 21108; Col Geoffrey T. Cowell, 301-987-5873; E. J. M. LaRoque, 301-467-8096 / MOUNT AIRY, Mrs May B. Shaw, Rt 4, Box 239 21771, 301-829-0205
MASSACHUSETTS: BOSTON, Mrs Stevenson, 617-742-1508 / BROOKLINE, Mrs Paul H. Walker, 21 Milton Rd 02146, 617-734-7267 / HARVARD, St Alban (HT), POB 428 01451; Revd C. David Burt, 617-456-8645; Jess Keegan,617-456-8705 / MARLBOROUGH, Mrs Hodgson,617-485-8841 Mrs Dutcher, 617-481-0930 / NATICK, Mr Mainwaring, 617-653-7550
MICHIGAN: BATTLE CREEK, All Saints (MW); Fr Lewis (Kalamazoo); Geo M. Spriggs, Jr, SW&LR, 263 Berkley Av 49017, 616-964-7886; Walter Bilanow,616-963-0420 / GRAND RAPIDS, St Peter the Apostle (MW); POB 1344 49501; Revd Steinman E. Stephens, 616-452-4660; Jas Doherty, SW, 616-455-2232 / HASTINGS, St Matthias (MW); Fr Lewis (Kalamazoo); Harold Freeman, SW, 318 S Broadway 49058,616-948-8588 / KALAMAZOO, St Patrick (MW)l Revd Wm O. Lewis, SSC 1616 Merrill 49008, 616-349-7161; Dale Peeke, W, 616-327-9536 / MUSKEGON, Holy Spirit (MW), POB 413 49443, 616-755-2593, 728-4391; Fr Stephens (Gr Rpds); Wm Roach, SW / WEST BRANCH, Holy Faith (MW), POB 531 48661, 517-345-5700, 345-5555; Fr Stephens (Gr Rpds); Louis E. Traycik, SW&LR
MINNESOTA: MINNEAPOLIS, St Chad (HT); Revd Jno E. Holman, 612-782-6350; E. H. Lindemann, SW,4177 Shoreline 55384, 612-471-8653 AND St Dunstan (MW), 4800 Dupont Av, S 55409, 612-824-3933; Revd Grover B. Tipton, 612-854-0347 (Bloomington); Jno R. Fitzimons, SW, 612-474-9032
MISSISSIPPI: BILOXI, Resurrection, POB AK 39531;N. H. Hatten,SW, 601-388-6777; Mrs B. C. Lynch, 601-388-3776 / GAUTIER, Mrs M.L. Wootten, 1709 Pat 39533 / GREENVILLE, St Luke (XR); Fr Rosenau (Hot Springs AR); Mrs Willard McIlwain, 745 S Washington 38701; Claude Aylor, POB 311,Lake Village AR 71653 / PASCAGOULA, Ascension (SE); A. J. Willis, SW, 2803 Montclair 39567, 601-769-2899
MISSOURI: AVA, St Francis in the Ozarks, RD 4 65608; L. M. Heigham, SW / COLUMBIA, Andrew J. McRoberts,1407 Bouchelle 65201 314-449-3117, 442-5566 / KANSAS CITY, St James; Wayne Bartlett, SW, 5601 W 61st St, Mission KS 66202, 913-262-1832; Harry Rook, JW, 913-262-1832 (Overland Park); Jas S. L. King, Jr, S&LR, 816-363-7732 / MONETT, Transfiguration (SW), POB 12 65708; Revd Robt R. Freed, 316-223-2081 (Ft Scott KS); Dr Ben Davis, SW, 417-235-5677, 235-3202; Wm F. Gabler, LR, 417-235-7266 / POPLAR BLUFF, Wm W. Pettet, 211 N Broadway (104) 63901, 314-785-5684, 686-2356 / ST LOUIS, Ascension (MW);1628 Jonquil 63119, 314-961-2469; Jay H. Teutenberg, SW; Mrs John K. Griffith, 314-725-0380 AND Holy Apostles (SW), POB 3854 63122, 314-726-3481; Leland Hilligoss,SW
NEBRASKA: AINSWORTH, Holy Trinity (HT); Fr Buck; VALENTINE,Agape (HT); Revd Herman E. Buck, POB 147 69201
NEW HAMPSHIRE: CONCORD, St Luke; Revd Herman Nelson, POB 8, Ipswich MA 01938; Miss Eleanor Harte , 603-228-8629; Trevor Rea, 603-228-1854 / JEFFERSON, St Dunstan (HT); Fr Nelson (Concord); Geo Brackett,RFD 1, Box 147 03583 / LACONIA,St Michael the Archangel (HT); Fr Nelson (Concord); Dean Steward, 24 Ledgewood Estates, Ashland 03217 / NASHUA, St John Chrysostom (MW),603-882-7831; Henry W. Edgell, SW, 44 Lucas Rd, RD 3, Manchester 03103, 603-627-2958; 497-4457 (Goffstown) / WINCHESTER, St Luke; Fr Nelson (Concord); David Hewlett, 603-239-4325, 239-6677
NEW JERSEY: ATLANTIC CITY, Ascension, POB 1808 08404; Revd Robt M. Collins, 609-266-8807; Revd Stuart W. Frazier, 609-266-3817 / FLEMINGTON, St Peter (R), POB 681 08822, 201-782-2521, 782-1812; Revd Gerardo Machado, 201-752-1784 / MCAFEE, St Athanasius; M/M John Pusztay, POB 684 07248, 201-827-5608 / NORTH PLAINFIELD, St Stephen (R); Dr Donald Moore, SW, POB 591, Bound Brook 08805, 201-356-6873 / PENNSAUKEN, St Richard (R); Fr Hewett (Phila); Robt C. Reynolds, 6556 Githens Av 08109 / WEST ORANGE, St Mark (R), 45 Main 07052, 201-736-0212, 736-0214; Revd Wm F. Burns (Bp-elect of R); Revd Kennedy K. Roberts
NEW MEXICO: ALBUQUERQUE, St Peter (HT), 811 Pennsylvania, NE 87110, 505-883-1624; Revd Geo B. Schold, Jr, AND St Thomas the Apostle (HT); Revd Chas H. Olsen, Jr, 4717 Goodrich NE 87110
NEW YORK: ALDEN, St Dunstan, 1244 Mayfield Dr 14004; Earl K. Chriswell, 716-937-7757; Stephen J. Huckins, 716-297-0842; Terry L. Dixon, 716-751-6675 / BINGHAMTON, St Thomas More; Floyd Roper 9 Denton Rd 13903, 607-723-1165 / ERIE COUNTY (see Alden) /HARRISON,Advent (XR), POB 585 10528, 914-967-3205;Revd Paul C. Hewett, 40 CAvon Cir, Port Chester 10573, 914-937-1658;Adolph Rutler, SW, 914-232-5291 / ISLIP, St Stephen (R),POB 603 Great River 11739; Oliver Zipp, SW, 516-581-5584; Mrs John B. Fellows,516 581-2269 / LLOYD HARBOR, Good Shepherd; Revd Rix P. Butler; M/M Stuart D. Casper,5 Pippin Ln 11743,516-433-9000 / NIAGARA COUNTY (see Alden) / PORT CHESTER (see Harrison) / POUGHKEEPSIE, Holy Comforter (R); Revd Chas H. Wilcox, 18 Davies Pl 12601, 914-454-1740 / ROCHESTER, Holy Cross (R),500 Simpson Rd 14617;Revd David J. Ambuske, 630 Chili-Scottsville Rd, Scottsville 14546, 716-889-3357; Mrs Robt J. Cone, 716-342-5621
NORTH CAROLINA: ASHEVILLE, Our Lady of Walsingham; Revd Will H. Dunstan,95 Sunset Dr 28804, 704-254-6622 / CHAPEL HILL,St Thomas of Canterbury (SE), POB 2312 27514, 919-967-2442; Revd Geo D. Stenhouse, 919-383-6969 / CHARLOTTE, St Paul the Apostle (SE); POB 1781 28232; Fr Stenhouse (Chpl Hill); Thos Samonds, SW, 704-366-1552 /

OHIO: AKRON, St Mary (MW), POB 3693 44310; Fr Ryerson (Conneaut) Dr Don R. Gerlach,C,216-836-7160, 375-7324, 928-3990 / CLEVELAND Sacred Heart (MW); Revd T. Hirth, 3448 Memphis Av 44109, 216-661-0169 AND St James; Revd Frank C. Irwin, 5607 Whittier Av 44103, 216-431-3252; Richd Fetzer, C, 216-562-5781; Revd Donald Rice, 3393 E Scarborough Rd,Cleveland Hts 44118, 216-368-7035 / COLUMBUS, Christ (MW), 2535 Sunbury Dr 43219, 614-476-4191; Revd G. Wayne Craig; Robt Amerine, SW, 614-888-6402 (Worthington) / CONNEAUT, St Gregory the Great (MW); Revd Jas M. Ryerson, 332 Liberty 44030,216-593-1437 / COSHOCTON,St Paul (MW);Revd Larry Snyder,SSC, 539 Cambridge Rd 43812, 614-623-0744;John Metz, 1208 Cambridge Rd 43812 / DAYTON,All Saints (MW);Revd Peter L. Bennett, 6517 Grovehill Dr 45424,513-326-5187;Danl Sauer,SW,513-274-8328 / EUCLID,Resurrection (MW);Revd Shelbert Harris, 19751 Edgecliffe Dr 44119 / LANCASTER, St Luke (MW); Fr Craig (Columbus); Wm F. Cantieri, SW, 310 Hillside 43130, 614-653-8607 / PORTSMOUTH, Christ (MW); Fr Craig (Columbus); Chas Brown, LRiC, 721 Washington 45662, 614-353-7520
OKLAHOMA: MUSKOGEE, Advent (XR); Andy Maupin, SW&LR, Rt 2, Box 286-C 74401, 918-989-5255;Mrs Chal Wheeler, 918-687-4143 / OKLAHOMA CITY, Holy Cross (XR), POB 12530 73157, 405-722-3440; Revd R. R. Pressley, 405-946-3589 / TULSA, St Stephen (XR); M/M John MacIntosh, 2724 S Lewis 74114, 918-749-4143; Mrs Betty Spurgin, 918-742-6151
OREGON: JACKSONVILLE-MEDFORD, St Andrew (XR), POB 85, Medford 97501; L. Saml Sebring, Jr, SW, 503-535-2197
PENNSYLVANIA: ERIE, St David (MW); Fr Ryerson (Conneaut OH); Dr Jack Zimmerly, SW, POB 84, Waterford 16441 / PHILADELPHIA, St James the Less (R); Revd Clayton K. Hewett, 3227 W Clearfield 19132, 205-229-5767 / PHILIPSBURG, St Alban; Mrs Frances Ross,12 N 4th 16866 / PITTSBURGH, Holy Trinity (MW); RtRevd C. Dale David Doren (Bp of MW), 2393 Country Club Dr, Upper St Clair 15241, 412-833-6221, 221-3598; T. Dixon Holladay, Jr, 1823 Tyburn Ln 15241 / STATE COLLEGE, St Alban (R);Mrs Stuart Forth, 963 E. McCormick 16801, 814-234-4483
SOUTH CAROLINA: AIKEN, All Saints (SE); Revd Henry Summerall, Jr 100 Park Av SW 29801, 803-648-9529; Wm Nightingale, Jr, SW, 410 Colleton Av SE 29801 / CHARLESTON, St Timothy, 68½ Queen 29401, 803-722-6351; Revd Robt C. Harvey, 803-722-3595 / COLUMBIA, Good Shepherd (SE), POB 1298 29202, 803-765-1334; Revd Wm L. Gatling, Jr, 803-772-5736 / FLORENCE, Our Saviour; Fr Harvey (Charleston) Laurence K. Wells, SW, POB 694, Kingstree 29556, 803-354-9918 / SPARTANBURG, M/M Jno Gerson, Jr,128 Holly Dr 29301, 803-576-3754
TENNESSEE: BRENTWOOD, St Jos of Arimathea, POB 821, 37027; Fr Huske (Fayetteville NC) / MEMPHIS, St Thomas the Apostle (SE); Fr Rosenau (Hot Springs AR); Thos W. Bagley, SW, 65 S 2d 38103, 901-522-1190 / SEWANEE, St Stephen (SE) 37375; Frank Thomas, Jr, SW, 615-598-5891; Reginald H. Helvenston, T, 615-598-5832 / SHELBYVILLE, St Dunstan (SE); Ray Anderson, 799 Whitthorne 37160 615-684-0447
TEXAS: AUSTIN, St Augustine (SW); Fr Meshew (Dallas);Jas C. Fish SW, 7306 W Rim 78731, 512-345-0617; Miss Auburn Faber, C, 8706 Silverhill Ln 78759, 512-345-1329 / BIG SPRING, St Paul (SW); Fr Meshew (Dallas); W. T. Wynn, SW, 1603 W Dengar, Midland 79701; Mrs John Affleck, S, 2308 Allendale Rd 79720 / CORPUS CHRISTI, Mrs John C. Rip, 3120 Ocean Dr 78404 / CORSICANA, Transfiguration (HT), POB 881 75110, 214-872-2581; Revd Robt Q. Kennaugh / DALLAS, St Thomas Becket (SW); Revd Jean Pierre Meshew, POB 136, Bedford 76021, 817-498-1147; Chas L. Bucy, SW, 5230 Pebblebrook 75229, 214-369-7416 / EULESS, St Bede (SW); Fr Meshew (Dallas); Ernest Workman, SW, 217 Bedford Ct, Bedford 76021 / GRAND PRAIRIE St Charles the Martyr (SW), POB 575 75051; Revd Mark G.Holliday (Bp-elect of SW), 214-262-5539; Dick Bond, SW, 730 Egyptian Way 75050 / HOUSTON. St Andrew (HT), POB 36277 77036; Lewis E. Berry, Jr, SW, 713-783-3529, 772-2322 AND St Margaret of Scotland / NEW BRAUNFELS, St Joseph (HT), POB 18404 San Antonio 78218; Fr Miller (SA); Donald K. Collins, W, 7706 Village Park San Antonio 78233 / PLANO, St Mary (SW), 1602-15th Pl 75075; Bill Brewer, SW 214-596-4636 / SAN ANTONIO, All Saints (HT), POB 18404 78218; Revd F. Ogden Miller, 512-657-4972 / VICTORIA, St Paul (HT); Fr Miller (SA); 1616 Plantation 77901; Kenneth Greenhill, SW, 512-573-2708; Mrs J. W. Opella, T, 512-575-7589, 575-4136
UTAH: SALT LAKE CITY, St Andrew (HT); Robt Sperling, 305 South 12th East 84102, 801-582-6914; Mrs H. L. Cook, 801-277-0305
VERMONT: NORTHFIELD, Incarnation (HT); Revd Frederick E. Preuss, II, RD 2 05663
VIRGINIA: ABINGDON, Good Shepherd (MA);Revd A. Fraser MacCammond Rt 4, Box 1750, Christiansburg 24073, 703-382-7892;Milton Webber SW, 703-628-7171, 628-5262 / ALEXANDRIA, St Margaret of Scotland (MA);Jerome Loomis, SW, 112 N Alfred 22314, 703-836-6504; Daniel J. Jones, 703-533-9505 / AMHERST, Ascension (MA); Revd John A. Pedlar, POB 552 24521 / BLACKSBURG, St Peter (MA); Revd Harry B. Scott, III, POB 238, Christiansburg 24073, 703-382-7970; Dr Robt C. Heterick, Jr, SW, 234 Craig Dr 24060, 703-552-1587 / BRIDGEWATER, Holy Cross (MA), Box 99 BC 22812, 703-828-2501; Revd Dale E. Mekeel (Pres Standing Comm of MA), 703-828-6834 / CENTREVILLE Ascension (MA), 13941 Braddock Rd 22020; Revd Ramsay Robertson-Kendall; Nathaniel Young, SW, 10510 Cedar Av, Fairfax 22030 / NORFOLK, St Edward the Confessor (MA), POB 12311, 804-461-3922; Jos Mahler, SW / RICHMOND, Christ the King (MA); Revd Kyle Boeger, POB 236, Bremo Bluff 23022; Ralph R. Hudson, SW, 804-232-1848; David E. Martin, JW, 804-288-0730
WASHINGTON: REDMOND, St Bartholomew, POB 447, Kirkland 98033; A. R. A. Yeoman, JW, 9675 Evergreen Dr, Bellevue 98004 / SEQUIM, St Anselm of Canterbury (XR); Fr Wilkinson (Victoria BC); Geo E. Brown, SW&LR, Rt 3, Box 781 98382, 206-683-3637
WYOMING: CHEYENNE, Blessed Sacrament (HT), POB 66 82001; Revd John K. Vallensis, POB 2826 Airport Sta 82001, 307-634-8290

C A N A D A

ALBERTA: EDMONTON, Resurrection (HT); Revd Philip T. Sargeant, St John's School, RR 1, Stoney Plain T0E 2G0, 403-429-4140; G. Mealey, 403-452-2853
BRITISH COLUMBIA: VICTORIA, St Athanasius (XR); Revd Peter Wilkinson, 5238 Beckton Rd V8Y 2C1, 604-658-5575
MANITOBA: WINNIPEG, St Thomas More; Geo W. Pearce, 55 Wilton St R3M 3B3
ONTARIO: ALEXANDRIA, Glengarry Mission; Robt B. Kerr, POB 1101 K0C 1A0, 613-525-3696 / COBOURG, St Mary (MW); Revd Bruce Parry, 295 King St, W K9A 2N4, 416-372-8637 / OTTAWA, Annunciation (MW) Revd C. J. deCatanzaro, 318 Clemow Av K1S 2B8, 613-232-5406; Douglas Norman, SW, 613-729-7227; Mrs Sheila Robertson, JW, 613-728-8607

OF YOUR Christian charity,pray for our bishops -Albert, Charles, Dale, Francisco, James, Mark, Peter and Robert -and for Mark and William, bishops-elect.

JUST thought newsletter readers would like to know that The Barn Owl has received linen from 20 people in 14 states, nine gifts of cash from seven states, and 15 requests or inquiries. She has ample linen now in various weights. People are asking for patterns of chasubles. She has two patterns (traced on wrapping paper) and suggests that maybe those who have chasubles could cut patterns from them and offer to pass them along through the newsletter. A fried whose intials are WOL writes that Robert Gaspard Co., 3025 N 30th St, Milwaukee, WI 53210 "can outfit one in nice-looking, simple, non-crushable 5-piece sets for about $45 a set." From the start of The Barn Owl operation [not serious, just a strained tendon in the left wing from sewing too much], ninety pieces have been sent out. TBO does not charge for her work [wing tendon strain is covered under MEDIBIRD].

Many thanks to all who have contributed linens and cash. Remember, The Barn Owl gives a hoot.

THE Church of the Holy Family, 1754 Roberts Way, Arcata, California 95521, solicits (and would appreciate) any donations of hymnals, Prayer Books, and vestments.

FCCB
The Rev'd David E. Green
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

Bulk Rate
U. S. Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

NOV 2 2 1978
GRADUATE THEOLOGICAL UNION LIBRARY 1962

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
Box 252, Eureka Springs, Ark. 72632

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen NEWSLETTER

VOLUME I, Number 13 November A.D. 1978

There has been no new faith propagated . . . . no religion set up but that which was commanded by our Saviour, preached by the primitive Church, and unanimously approved by the Fathers of best antiquity.
---Elizabeth I

Newsletter 13 confines itself almost entirely to the Dallas Synod, with the addition of a few announcements of current importance and some items that we have simply not been able to squeeze in before.

REPORTS FROM DALLAS

FROM the FCC Press Office: The fledgling Anglican Church in North America almost self-destructed before it could legally come into being through the adoption of a constitution at Dallas 18-21 October.

It was a meeting filled with tension, political harangues, and even some personal vilification, and it included a 24-hour walk out by two of the dioceses -Southeastern United States and Christ the King- whose bishops declared they would meet elsewhere to adopt their own constitution before they would continue to work with a group that, in their opinion, intended to establish a Church that was congregationalist rather than Catholic in nature and structure.

The real issue of the disagreement appeared to be that of authority and where it would reside in the Church, although most of the debate during the first two days swirled around whether or not to seat the recently-formed Diocese of the Southwest, which provided something of a "test case" in the matter of authority. In the end, Southwest was seated and given voice but no vote.

It was not until the third day that the delegates got down to the business of dealing with a draft constitution, prepared by a special committee over several months. By midnight on Friday, it appeared there would be insufficient time to complete the debate and voting, item by item, by the Saturday noon deadline.

However,when the Assembly went into its final session the next day, a resolution was offered to adopt the portion of the document which had been debated and approved,and to adopt provisionally the remainder until the '79 General Synod could deliberate.

After much debate, the Assembly requested the four bishops to offer their guidance before the vote was taken.

Bishop Watterson (Southeast) said that, although he believed "we were not ready to do what we are doing," he also felt that "we need to go away from here with something in our hands and as united as God will allow."

Bishop Mote (Holy Trinity) said he favored the resolution. "We are never really ready to adopt a constitution and canons, and politics don't bother me if it ends up good," he explained. "Besides,there isn't anything in this document that isn't Catholic."

Bishop Morse (Christ the King) commented only that "God writes straight with crooked lines."

Bishop Doren (Midwest) offered no comment, but when the vote came, he joined with Bishops Watterson and Mote to approve the document. Bishop Morse abstained.

Overwhelming approval was given by the lay delegates and also by those in the clerical order. The document will now be sent to the seven dioceses for discussion and ratification or rejection in their synods. When four dioceses have ratified, it will become effective as the law of the Church.

The only major alteration in the proposed document made by the Assembly was the name of the Church, which has been unofficially called the Anglican Church in North America. The final selection was the Anglican Catholic Church.

[For a more complete report, read the December issue of The Christian Challenge. What follows are "impressions", requested before the fact by the FCC Newsletter.]

FROM a priest in Alabama: My "impression" at this point is that Dallas was far, far more important to the life of the Anglican Catholic Church than the Constitution provisionally adopted. For what was really at issue during the two days when it seemed there would be a split into two factions was the determination of just where responsibility and authority in this emerging Church really lies. . . . The idea was conceived in St Louis. It gained impetus in Denver. It became fact in Dallas.

FROM a priest in Arkansas: It has been a time of some agony and some turbulence. Birth is not painless. The Anglican Catholic Church has begun with great promise: (1) an unmistakable proclamation has been sounded of the authority and responsibility of the historic episcopate; (2) a deliberate, concertedly catholic constitution with canons has been provisionally taken up for the guidance and missionary aid of the Church. In all, it was a necessary, imperfect, truthful event.

FROM a priest in Florida: As I interpret the two major currents [in Dallas], people of all shades of opinion were interpreting signs without also imbibing the Word. It looked like to some that a group of Anglo-Catholics-in-favor-of-autocratic-rigid-high-church-bishops were trying to take over everything. It looked to others that certain people who described themselves as "low churchmen" were trying to divest the Bishops of all authority . . . the first thing I saw was that these "low churchmen" are about as "low church" theologically as the Patriarch of Constantinople. . . what I detected in the assembly in Dallas was a bevy of lay people and priests who know the Tradition well; they think theologically, and base their theology on the Bible, the Fathers and the Prayer Book. So what gave the appearance to the casual observer of a protestant-catholic fight was actually a struggle between Catholic-minded Churchmen who disagreed about the limits of episcopal authority and who were not of one mind on questions of ceremonial . . . it was obvious to me . . . that in fact we at Dallas all had the same religion!

FROM a deacon in North Carolina: The Constitutional Synod at Dallas adopted a provisional Constitution that makes it clear there will be no equivocation of the Catholic Faith in the continuing Church . . . It also makes it clear that the Church stands for traditional Christian morality, the sanctity of the family, and the indissolubility of Christian marriage. The Constitution, in short, is one in which all Anglican Catholics may take pride for its roots are biblical and patristic, its demands are moral and theological, and its spirit is Catholic.

FROM a layman in Ohio: The Devil was at work in Dallas, but we who were there fought him with the power of God by repeated calls for the Holy Ghost. He heard us, and enabled us to overcome the confusion, apprehension, and uncertainty which periodically threatened us. It was not surprising that faithful Catholics in the Anglican tradition are strong-willed or that they could ultimately reveal that they are united. But it is wonderful to experience anew what reliance upon God can do as men battle over the best means and ways of expressing their faithfulness. Whenever we behaved with too much fondness for our own ideas or tended to break into diocesan caucuses there was also a tendency to block communications among the dioceses -to fragment our body- and so to fall into difficulty. Whenever we inclined to be too zealous in relying upon parliamentary maneuvers, we seemed to forget our need to trust in God and in one another on the common ground of Faith and Order. At times the Spirit reminded us to submit ourselves to one another in the fear of God -to be willing to sacrifice ourselves even when others seemed not to offer a similar self-sacrifice. And when that happened we resumed our walk together in faith which, may it please God, we may never fail to do.

FROM another laymen in Ohio in a series of postal cards: #1 - Wednesday [18th], Weather beautiful - temp 63 @ 11 a.m. First impression - dissension. #2 - Thur, 11:30 a.m. Christ the King & South-East walked out on us about 1:30 a.m. We haven't seated the delegates yet! Are in recess until 1 p.m. hoping that they will heed our invitation to return. #3 - Fri, 12:30 p.m. It's all over but the shouting - we did vote to work with the majority report of Constitutional Committee. #4 - Mon, Oct 23. When I told [my wife] my mood when I wrote you last,she suggested that I write you that my mood changed from black to light blue Friday nite & Saturday. It looks better - from here it looks like we have a majority who can live together.

FROM a priest in Oklahoma: The Synod in Dallas is now history. It is to be hoped that we are not big-headed in thinking that it may in fact be one of the more historic moments in the life of the Church. Much was accomplished and much remains to be accomplished.

FELLOWSHIP PRESIDENT'S STATEMENT

I've been asked to comment on the future of the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen now that the Constitutional Synod of the Anglican Catholic Church has taken place and that body is formally launched and constitutionally structured. The FCC has engineered this and the question now rises: Has the Fellowship completed its mission. The answer is no. Its mission remains what it has been: to give support and leadership to faithful Anglicans wherever they may be who want to remain true to the historic faith, order, worship and morality of Anglican Christianity against the efforts of those "reformers" who are radically altering it.

Some of these faithful have moved into the Anglican Catholic Church; others remain in the Episcopal Church and the Anglican Church of Canada. The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen will continue to serve them all in every way that it can. I should love to see it go out of business for the reason that it is no longer needed, but, looking down the road, I see no gleam of that happy consummation within the near future.

I have been asked also about my own position in the midst of all this. I am an Episcopalian in good standing. Where I shall be ecclesiastically a week or a month or a year from now I do not know, but then what mortal has such knowledge? I understand that in old China when you engaged a jin-rik-sha and you asked your pilot if he would take you to such-and-such place he would answer not "Yes" or "No" but "Perhaps". That is my philosophy of the future. I will say that I am grateful for having been able in some small way to help bring the Anglican Catholic Church into being, so that orthodox and faithful Anglicans who find the new order in their old Church intolerable can have "a choice not an echo." I believe that it is needed and I pray that it may be true to its calling so that God will prosper it. "If this be treason . . ."

But my primary concern is not for either the Anglican Catholic Church or the Episcopal Church. It is for the Household of Faith which alone is the true Church. It is, alas, scattered and dispersed abroad, united in soul but not in body. This being the sad reality I can only say with William Temple: "I believe in the Church, One, Holy, Catholic and Apostolic, and I regret that it nowhere exists."

ARMED FORCES APPROVE

The Bishop of the Midwest is in receipt of a letter from the U. S. Department of Defense: At the meeting of the Armed Forces Chaplains Board, held on September 18, 1978, the application of the Anglican Church of North America [sic] was reviwed and approved . . . The letter then sets forth the administrative procedures to be followed to implement the approval.

MESSAGES TO THE SYNOD

FROM the Bishop of Matabeleland to the Bishop of the Midwest: FRATERNAL GREETINGS X BEST WISHES FOR A WISE AND EIRENIC SYNOD X ROBERT MERCER CR

FROM the Bishops of Dallas to the Assembly:The Churchmen and the Bishops of the Diocese of Dallas extend greetings to the ACNA Convention . . . We are pleased that ACNA has chosen Dallas as the site for this important event. The presence and witness of the Convention in our Diocese can serve to strengthen our common witness. The Diocese . . . shares with you the deep concern for the nature of the Apostolic Church and the need to witness to the Catholic Tradition, Faith and Practice in these troublesome times. Those who have given loyalty to ACNA have chosen a course of action which this Diocese and Bishops could not take. Your stand and commitments are recognized and appreciated . . . We have a common task and mission in Christ. Let us pray for one another and for the day when in full commun ion our forces, convictions and witness may be one.

NOTABILIA

THE Very Rev'd James Parker, SSC, a member of the Board of Directors of FCC and editor of the Ashby Ordo Calendar advises that the 1979 ORDO Calendar gives preference to the Book of Common Prayer over the Proposed Book; ECP Holy Days and reckoning (e.g., Trinity XXI, not Pentecost XXII) are listed first. To order: Ashby Company, Erie, PA 16501.

MISSION Press of San Antonio, 7706 Village Oak, San Antonio, TX 78233, offers sermons for lay readers written by Fr Sterling Rayburn of Florida in an easy-to-read, loose-leaf format for 50¢ each or a series of twelve for $4.00. In addition, Mission Press offers several "How to" booklets, as well as reprints of Paul Seabury's "Trendier Than Thou" article from Harper's and Don Collins' "The Priorities of Priesthood" from The Christian Challenge. For a list of available titles send a self-addressed envelope (stamped) to Mission Press.

THE Rev'd Alan Rosenau, Rector of St Chrysostom's,Hot Springs, and Director of ICBM (see Newsletter 10) also offers lay reader sermons "personally selected according to interest" from a total of 200. For information about the sermons and other activities of ICBM, send a #10, or larger, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Fr Rosenau at 105 Electra, Hot Springs, AR 71901.

THE new address for The Canterbury Guild (publisher of Fr Robert Harvey's A House Divided and The Holy Slice; of the former, Bishop Chambers has written, ". . . perhaps the most important book to have been written for Anglicans in this decade") is: POB 1052, Charleston, SC 29402. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for listings and prices.

THE Church of St Dunstan, c/o 4800 Dupont Av, S, Minneapolis 55409, also has reprint copies of the Seabury/Harper's article Write for prices and availability.

MIDWEST ELECTS SUFFRAGAN

THE Rev'd Carmino J. deCatanzaro, Rector of the Parish of the Annunciation, Ottawa, was elected Bishop Suffragan of the Diocese of the Midwest, with primary responsibility for Canada at the diocese's fourth Synod, in September, at St Mary's Church, Akron, Ohio.

Father "deCat" was rector of St Barnabas' Parish,Ottawa, until early this year when he left the Anglican Church of Canada to form Annunciation.

Widely known throughout Canada and the United States, Father deCatanzaro was an assistant professor at Trinity College,Toronto, and later became Professor of Semitic Languages at Seabury-Western Seminary, Evanston, Illinois. He was one of the featured speakers at the St Louis Congress.

WANTED & OFFERED

LOYALIST priest, theologically oriented, Prayer Book Catholic, age 56, wishes to serve separating, separated, or forming congregation. Will do secular work. Reply: The Rev'd R. E. Thrumston, 1435 Wilbur, San Diego 92109.

USED books,including classics now out of print, that serve the Church: Send your request to Operation Pass Along, Hillspeak, Eureka Springs, AR 72632. First come, first served.

DO-IT-YOURSELF drawings for making altars,processional crosses and the like. Send self-addressed, stamped #10 envelope, with your specific request to: N. Miller, Sr, POB 5993, Columbia, SC 29250. [Editor's Note: Mr Miller has very kindly sent the newsletter copies of his drawings which we had hoped to reproduce herein, but lack of space has prevented. However, the drawings are clear and even to this not-so-handyman appear to be relatively easy to follow.]

OFFERED: By the Editor of the FCC Newsletter - heartfelt thanks to all who have written encouragingly and all who have sent in contributions to offset the costs of mailing and printing the newsletter.

BISHOP CHAMBERS CENSURED

A STRONGLY worded censure of the Rt Rev Albert A. Chambers for contributing to schism has apparently ended -for the present- a threatened ecclesial trial against the retired bishop.

The censure was passed as part of a fiercely debated package presented by the bishops who had first brought charges against Bishop Chambers (see Newsletter 10) and was designed to demonstrate to the Church that the House of Bishops was, and had consistently been, concerned with Church order.

OF YOUR Christian charity, pray for our bishops- Dale, James, Peter and Robert; for our bishops-elect- William and Carmino; for those who assisted- Albert, Francisco and Mark.

The four-hour debate at the House of Bishops' interim meeting [in Kansas City] produced a compromise package of bills that, while it did less than the original set, was apparently sufficient for the presenting bishops. The next day one of their number announced that 14 of the 16 had withdrawn their names from the charges. Three bishops are needed under Episcopal canon law to file initial charges.

The agenda item originated with 14 of the 16 who had signed the canonical charges against Bishop Chambers. . . Their printed statement said, "we are basically concerned that order be established. Therefore we are willing to consider the withdrawal of our signatures" for the charges if assured that "the House . . . is prepared to admonish and censure Bishop Chambers in such a manner that there may be no doubt in his or anyone else's mind that we totally disassociate ourselves from his actions."

The original form of the proposal about "breaking fellowship" had concluded with the admonition that the censured bishops [it would have included Bishops Barrett and Ramos] "should not hereafter participate in the deliberations" of the House. Strong opposition was voiced at once, and repeatedly.

In the final form the resolutions first "reminded the Church" that in 1974 the House had censured Bishops Robert DeWitt, Daniel Corrigan and Edward Welles, and in 1975 had "decried the actions" of Bishop Barrett, all of whom had ordained women as priests before the 1976 General Convention had authorized such ordination.

There was clear agreement to the censure of Bishop Chambers. By an all but unanimous vote, the House had censured [him] for performing confirmations for the Anglican Church in North America, and censured him "in the strongest terms" for presiding at the consecration of bishops for that schismatic group. The next to the last resolution in the set caused the longest and most fervent debate and finally passed, 61 to 41, in an amended form after numerous attempts to modify it further had failed. The action directs the House secretary to notify the four censured bishops -Welles, DeWitt, Corrigan and Chambers- that "they have betrayed the trust that the Church placed in them in their consecration and have broken fellowship with the House of Bishops." It concludes by asking the Presiding Bishop and/or other bishops of his choosing to "raise questions" with the four "concerning their continued participation in the deliberations of the House, and report the results of such discussion to the next meeting of this House." Twenty-seven men asked that their negative votes on this proposal be recorded by the secretary. ---Diocesan Press Service

MID-ATLANTIC FILES TO INTERVENE

THE law firm of Smith, Robinson & Vinyard, Abingdon, Virginia, has filed a Motion to Intervene in the suit of the Diocese of Southwestern Virginia against Ascension Parish, Amherst. Excerpts from the letter to the Clerk of the Circuit Court follow: . . . herewith a Motion to Intervene which my clients, the Standing Committee and Clergy and laity of the Diocese of the Mid-Atlantic States of the Anglican Church of North America [sic] have requested me to prepare and file.

I realize that this Motion . . . involves significant charges of a religious nature and is extensively based upon religious doctrine. However, my clients claim that because of these doctrine matters which go to the validity of any claim being made by the Complainants herein as successors to the Protestant Episcopal Church to which the subject property was granted in 1847 and 1860, and since my clients claim to be the true spiritual, and therefore, legal successors to that Church . . . it is respectfully submitted that justice cannot possibly exist in this case nor will my clients be afforded equal protection or due process guaranteed to them by the V and XIV Amendments to the U. S. Constitution and by Article I, ₱11 of the Constitution of this Commonwealth unless they are allowed to be heard in this matter. I realize that with both my clients and the complainants claiming to be the successors to the original grantees herein, and with those claims being based . . . on basic religious beliefs that it would appear that I am asking this Court to rule on questions of doctrine or matters of faith. For that reason, I intend to file a Motion to Dismiss herein as soon as the Court has determined my clients' right to be heard on the grounds that the only way that this Court can decide this case is for it to rule on questions of religious doctrine . . . and ultimately for it to decide whether the allegedly heretical complainants or the allegedly true defenders of the faith are in fact the successors to the Protestant Episcopal Church of 1847 and 1860 . . .

This Court, of course, does not and cannot have the authority or power to render such a decision since for it to do so would, in effect, be establishing religion in violation of the I Amendment to the U. S. Constitution and Article I, ₱16 of the Constitution of Virginia and since the only Court that can make such a decision, in fact, is the Bar of the Lord Himself.

THE CATHOLIC RELIGION

PLANS are moving ahead for the reprinting of Fr Vernon Staley's classic, The Christian Religion. If you are interested in the book, which should be in every Churchman's library, drop a line to Miss Margaret Lindsay, 3365 Denver St, S.E., Washington, DC 20020. Based upon the number of firm orders received, Miss Lindsay can decide whether or not to go into a reprinting. If sufficient orders are received she will proceed with the printing, and the price will be $5.50 for a single copy, $5.25 per copy for orders of ten or more.

BACK issues of the Fellowship Newsletter are still available in limited quantities. Send a No. 10, or larger, self-addressed, stamped envelope to POB 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632. Also available at the same address at a cost of $1.25 each is the booklet of the Opening Addresses at the St Louis Congress.

F C C

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
N E W S L E T T E R

VOLUME I, Number 14 December A.D. 1978

There has been no new faith propagated . . . . no religion set up but that which was commanded by our Saviour, preached by the primitive Church, and unanimously approved by the Fathers of best antiquity.
---Elizabeth I

BEFORE you set aside this issue of the Fellowship Newsletter for later reading, check the code letters that appear above your name. If they are other than FCCP or FCCI, or if an "I" has not been added to the old code you need to drop us a postcard to tell us that you want to continue on the mailing list. This is not an appeal for funds (although your check certainly won't be returned if you are moved to send one), but is simply to remove those from the mailing list who do not care to receive the newsletter. We have been most gratified with the response to an earlier plea to let us know, but we are sure there are others of our readers who want remain so -but have not so indicated.

OF your Christian charity, my brothers, pray earnestly and without ceasing for our Fathers in God: Dale, James, Peter, Robert, William, and especially for Albert. Pray, too, for Carmino, bishop-elect.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

MAY I take your invitation "Let us hear from you" in the October issue a little further than intended. I know you are not in the habit of printing Letters to the Editor, perhaps due to limitations of space, perhaps in order to screen opinion. A pity! The Newsletter could be such an appropriate organ for constructive discussion. Let me challenge you once more!

Let me challenge you, as one who was with you all the way, until it became clear that you were unbending in your intentions to form an independent church, imagining that it could be a "fully organized and operative province of the Holy Catholic Church".

That quote incorporates the same self-contradicting demagogy which has, paradoxically but logically, produced Minneapolis. A church is either Catholic or independent. It may be Catholic and autonomous but not independent. Being part of the Catholic Church is a divine gift and a mystery of obedience and submission, symbolized-and-realized in the drowning of "the Old Man" in Baptism and then in the sharing of the One Loaf, becoming One Loaf! We do not become part of the Catholic Church, either as individuals or as groups, by writing a constitution for ourselves, but by the recognition the Catholic Church herself accords us. No part of the Catholic Church has in fact recognized the "Anglican Catholic Church" as a Catholic Church indeed - a recognition properly entailing sacramental communion. Nor am I aware that the Anglican Catholic Church has requested such recognition, which would be a minimal declaration of genuine intent. (I know the St Louis Declaration [sic] formally states a desire to be in communion with all, but by mentioning Canterbury specifically the seriousness of that wish instantly vanishes!)

The idea of an "Anglican Catholic Church" implies sacramental recognition by the Catholic Church (now either Rome or Orthodoxy -the basic scandal of that schism is not our direct responsibility), and if the ACC indeed professes the whole Catholic Faith and possesses an orthodox Liturgy and Sacramental Order (which I personally do not doubt) then it need not fear any loss of legitimate identity in approaching the ancient Apostolic Sees for recognition. While Rome may feel bound to raise some problematic issues of relatively recent origin, Orthodoxy would only have to assure herself that the ACC truly believes what she says, has the liturgical forms to substantiate it and valid Anglican Orders to make it real!

If you have anything to fear, you cannot be sure you are a Catholic Church. It may be irreverent but it is quite to the point to say: "The proof of the pudding is in the eating!"
Fr Ernest Skublics, Winnipeg

[Editor's Note:To the best of my recollection Fr Skublics is the first person to have written, specifically, a Letter to the Editor. His first supposition is right, however; I have avoided publishing Letters to the Editor because I always have material left over from each issue. Further, I said in Volume I, Number 1 that the newsletter was not to be an opinion journal - and referred my readers to The Certain Trumpet, The Christian Challenge, New Oxford Review, and The Anglican Digest. I need to hear from Fellowship Newsletter readers now. Do you want Letters to the Editor? Drop me a postcard. If the reader consensus is in favor of such, I can probably print ONE an issue.]

SIR OR MADAM

IF, on 13 November (the Commemoration of Charles Simeon, Priest), you sent a postal card addressed to "The Fellowship of Concerned Christians" and either the first three or the last three numbers of your zip code are 012, I received your card; but the message side is blank and although I am pretty sure you want to continue to receive the newsletter, I do not know your name or address. Perhaps you'd like to try again - we'd like to continue to send you the newsletter.

PNCC CUTS TIES

THE 15th General Synod of the Polish National Catholic Church (PNCC), meeting in Chicago in October voted to "terminate the Sacramental Intercommunion relationship with the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America and the Anglican Church of Canada" by a vote of 312 to 106. The Episcopal Church and the PNCC established full communion in 1946. Thirty years later, after the Minneapolis General Convention removed canonical obstacles to the ordination of women to the priesthood, the Prime Bishop announced that sacramental intercommunion between the two Churches was terminated until a determination could be made by the Synod.

NEWS NEWS NEWS

FATHER Skublics' reference to "Let us hear from you" brings to mind another matter of equal, if not more, importance to the successful functioning of the newsletter. To pass along news, it is necessary that I receive news. At the moment, whatever its shortcomings, the Fellowship Newsletter is still the most effective means for those "in South Carolina to find out what is being done in South Dakota", but I can't tell the Carolinians what the Dakotans are doing unless the latter tell me. Incredible as it may seem, at the deadline for this issue -some two weeks after the event- the only information I have on the consecration of the Bishop of the Diocese of the Resurrection comes from one postcard, a personal note from a friend and a few hints I picked up here and there as to what was going to be done! I cannot, in good conscience, report the details of an event based on what was proposed to be done. Therefore, I can only report that, with a bow to a reader in South Orange, New Jersey, "Bishop William Burns' consecration went very well indeed", and with a curtsey to a friend in Wynnewood, Pennsylvania, "It was a beautiful affair."

ANGLICAN CATHOLIC PARISHES

ALL OF the following changes apply to the list in NL12 of October, 1978. ADDITIONS to that list:

ALABAMA: HUNTSVILLE, St Charles, POB 604 35804; Fr Marvin (Birmingham); Col Marvin D. Parker, LR, 205-881-8625
CALIFORNIA: GRANADA HILLS, St Mary the Virgin (HT); Revd Noel Stipkovich, 11321 Bertrand Av 91344
COLORADO: DRAKE; M/M Berry Long, POB 808, Estes Park 80517
FLORIDA: BRANDON: St Matthias; Fr Habberfield (Largo); M/M John Walton, 1010 Bryon Rd 33511 / MOUNT DORA, St Charles the Martyr (SE), POB 882 32757, 904-383-8557; Rev'd Walter B. Peterson, 904-383-3558
MAINE: AUGUSTA, St Francis; Richard Davis, 8 Fairview Av 04330, 207-623-4049
NEW HAMPSHIRE: CHOCORUA, St Margaret of Scotland; Fr Nelson (Concord); Miss Rebecca Howe 03817
NEW MEXICO: CARLSBAD, St Andrew (HT), POB 899 88220; Rev'd Ralph H. Channon, 505-885-2795
VERMONT: SHELBURNE, St John (HT); Fr Preuss (Northfield); Preston Lawrence, SW, 802-985-2649
VIRGINIA: CLIFTON FORGE, St Stephen (MA) / NEWPORT NEWS, St Matthew, POB 1261 23601; Fr Boeger (Richmond); Ben Joyner, LR, 804-595-6748 / PORTSMOUTH, St Mary the Virgin (MA)
WASHINGTON: MARYSVILLE, Robert Honerkamp, POB 677 98270
C A N A D A: ONTARIO: TORONTO, The Rev'd R. F. Palmer, SSJE, 661 Dufferin (1105) M6K 2B3, 416-537-9827 / WINDSOR, St Thomas More; The Rev'd Robert R. J. Blomquist, 8516 Foxhill Pl N8S 4H8, 519-944-1380, 969-7822

"But I'm not a pedestrian, I'm a Catholic."

CHANGES to NL12 (substitute in its entirety);

CALIFORNIA: COVINA-GLENDORA-POMONA, St Luke (HT), 20769 Mesarica Rd, Glendora 91724, 213-967-3333, 334-7362, 331-3623 / SAN JOSE, Resurrection (CR), 1717 The Alameda 95126; Rev'd Clarence Lee, 408-295-6310; George Garbarino, SW, 408-286-5719 / SANTA ANA, St Therese of Lisieux (HT), 105 W Stevens 92707, 714-540-7103; Rev'd Richard E. Lockwood, 714-828-3958
COLORADO: GRAND JUNCTION, St Anthony of the Desert (HT), Rev'd Richard Willars, 4751 Broadway, Denver 80216; Mrs Grace Hardcastle, 1441 Patterson Rd (502) 81501 / IDAHO SPRINGS, Calvary (HT); Fr Buck (Black Hawk); David Wilson, POB 1081 80452
FLORIDA: LARGO, St John (SE), POB 1676 33540; Rev'd Jack R. Habberfield, 813-585-4110; P. Raymond Plumer, LR, 813-867-8091 / PALATKA, All Saints (SE); Fr Peterson (Mt Dora); Edward W. Garris Jr, SW, 200 Linda Ln 32077; Mary A. Gale, 904-325-2640; Mrs G. R. Ernsberger, 904-325-3890 / PENSACOLA, All Saints, POB 4538 32507; Michael G. Carr, SW&LR, 904-455-5630; Ellis W. Bullock, Sr, 904-453-4439 / PORT CHARLOTTE, St Paul, POB 2387 33952; Howard C. Warner, 813-625-4781 / WINTER HAVEN, St Mary (SE), POB 9351 33880; Rev'd Sterling Rayburn, 813-293-2907
INDIANA: BEDFORD-BLOOMINGTON, Good Shepherd (HT); Fr Deyman (Indianapolis); Mrs Norman Nichols, RR 13, Box 653, Bedford 47421; Joel Marsh, RR 10, Box 637, Bloomington 47401 / EVANSVILLE, St Mary the Virgin (HT); William Hickman, POB 3271 44701 / MUNCIE-ANDERSON-NEW CASTLE, All Saints; Fr Deyman (Indpls); Dale Fight, 121 N Dill, Muncie 42303, 317-289-4922; Mrs Max E. Stults, 317-282-4311 / SOUTH BEND, St Mary; Philip Mullen, LR, 1224 Lincolnway East 46618; Phillip Lund, SW, 1021 Strong Av, Elkhart 46514, 219-522-3480
IOWA: DES MOINES, St Aidan (HT); Rev'd Louis W. Falk, 4807 Aspen Dr, West Desmoines 50265, 515-223-1591; June Kosmach, 515-792-6734 (Newton)
MARYLAND: ANNAPOLIS, St Charles the Martyr (MA), POB 224, Millersville 21108; Dr David Knight, SW, 301-268-9447; Mrs duVal Allen, 263-4820 (Annapolis); E. J. M. LaRoque, 467-8096 (Baltimore); Col Geoffrey T. Cowell, 987-5873 (Severna Park & Millersville); Rodney B. Sorkin, 721-7574 (Crofton & Bowie)
MISSOURI: KANSAS CITY, St James; James S. L. King, Jr, LR&S, 3702 E 72d St 64132, 816-363-7732; Jane Culmsee, T, 913-631-0646 268-6676 (Shawnee KS); Mollie Webb, V, 913-262-1832 (Mission KS) / MONETT, Transfiguration, POB 12 65708; Dr Ben Davis, SW, 417-235-5677, 235-3202; William F. Gabler, LR, 235-7266; W. R. Swindells, LR, 501-253-9800 / ST LOUIS, Holy Apostles (SW), POB 385 63122, 314-726-3481; Rev'd James Amos Lafond Lapointe, 312-978-1285 (Chicago); Leland Hilligoss, SW
NEBRASKA: AINSWORTH, Holy Trinity (HT), Fr Buck (Valentine); Theresa Denny, POB 57, Long Pine 69217 / VALENTINE, Agape (HT); Rev'd Herman Buck. POB 147 69201; Steven Hapner, 211 Edna 69201
NEW HAMPSHIRE: CONCORD, St Luke; Rev'd Herman Nelson, 64M Wilson's Crossing Rd, Auburn 03032, 603-669-9706

FCCY
Graduate Theological Union Library
Serials Dept.
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

DEC 18 1978

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
Box 252, Eureka Springs, Ark. 72632

Bulk Rate
U.S. Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

NEW JERSEY: MC AFEE, St Athanasius; M/M John Pusztay, Tranquility Dr, Highland Lakes 07422
NEW YORK: ROCHESTER, Holy Cross (R), 615 Bay Rd, Webster 14580; Rev'd David J. Ambuske, 716-889-3357 (Scottsville); Mrs Robert J. Cone, 716-342-5621
NORTH CAROLINA: CHARLOTTE, St Paul the Apostle (SE), POB 33214 28232; Rev'd Joseph Strange Huske, SSC, 919-485-2525; Thomas Samonds, SW, 704-366-1552
OHIO: LANCASTER, St Luke (MW); Fr Snyder (Coshocton); William F. Cantieri, SW, 310 Hillside Av 43130, 614-653-8607
SOUTH CAROLINA: AIKEN, All Saints (SE), POB 2497 29801; Rev'd Henry Summerall, Jr, 803-648-9529; William Nightingale, Jr, SW / FLORENCE, Our Saviour; Fr Harvey (Charleston); Mrs Walter Gregg Wallace, C, Rt 4 29501 / GREENVILLE, Resurrection; Fr Summerall (Aiken)
TEXAS: NEW BRAUNFELS, St Joseph (SW); Donald K. Collins, SW,7706 Village Park, San Antonio 78233 / PLANO, St Mary (SW), 1602 15th Pl 75075 / VICTORIA, St Paul (HT), POB 4922 77901;Kenneth Greenhill, SW, 512-573-2708; Mrs J. W. Opella, T, 575-7589, 575-4136
UTAH: SALT LAKE CITY, St Andrew (HT); Rev'd Pedro Santos; Robert Sperling, 4691 West 4365 South 84120, 801-966-4381; Mrs H. L. Cook, 277-0305
VERMONT: NORTHFIELD, Incarnation (HT); Rev'd Frederick E. Preuss II, RD 2 05663; Stephen Springs RD 2, Randolph Center 05061
[READERS of the Newsletter are reminded that these are not official lists of the parishes in the various dioceses, and that the information is taken from the best information available at the time of publication. As always, readers are cautioned to check on current addresses and phone numbers as well as for times and places of services.]

COOD-BYE TO PECUSA

IN THE year that the Fellowship Newsletter has been published, a number of fine letters from priests to their people have come across my desk. It is simply not possible to reprint them all so I have chosen an unusually fine one to represent them all:

Dear Friends in Christ, I am sending this letter to all of you who once were members of St Edward's Parish, but many of whom are now members of the newly formed St Charles' Anglican Parish. Most of you know by now that this past Wednesday I resigned from the rectorship of St Edward's Parish, having the previous Friday been formally inhibited by Bishop Folwell from exercising any priestly ministry in the Episcopal Church. I fully realize why he felt it necessary to do this and I hold no ill will against him for so doing.

Most of you know that for several years I have been deeply troubled by the course of the Episcopal Church nationally. If I had to list the things that precipitated my decision, they would be: a general turning away from Holy Scripture and Catholic Tradition as the source of authority and guide for daily life of the Church, and the toleration of bishops and priests who openly deny the scriptural accounts of the Virgin Birth, the Resurrection, the very divinity of Christ and other events of the Faith-once-delivered; and the ordination of women, which I regard as a rejection of the Biblical theology of creation, sexuality, and the Incarnation as well as overthrowing any claim of the Episcopal Church to continue the Apostolic ministry as it has been universally received from the ancient Church. These are the major issues, but really they are symptoms of a lack of agreement on the whole meaning and purpose of the Church. I feel that the ministry implies, for better or worse, that I endorse the Episcopal Church personally, and now I feel unable honestly to do this, and I feel unable to encourage new members to join the Episcopal Church. Many of you agree.

I want to make it as clear as I can that I have no complaints whatever about St Edward's Parish or with the Diocese of Central Florida other than with Bishop Folwell's inability or unwillingness to take a firm stand against these novelties and innovations which he also rejects. I have told the bishop this face-to-face on several occasions.

I want to tell you all how much I appreciate your love and kindness to me during the fourteen years of my ministry among you . . . I don't think it possible to have served a more loving, kind, generous, supportive and responsive family of Christians. God bless you all!

In closing, I do want to appeal to all of you to put aside animosity and hard feelings (for these are not of the Spirit)and to go forward from this date to make your witness and to worship as your individual conscience and conviction compel you to - and to respect the convictions of your friends who must choose the other side. And above all, to pray for the true and abiding peace and unity of the Church and for its adherence to "the Faith once delivered".

Sincerely in Jesus' Name,
Walter B. Peterson+, SSC

COMFORT FROM ENGLAND

IN A letter to "Dear F C C", which expressed concern for and sympathy with the continuing Church in the United States, came the following resolution passed by the Colchester [Essex] Branch of the Church Union, at its annual general meeting on 12 September 1978:

That it is lacking in charity and contrary to the truth of Catholic Tradition and Holy Scripture to exclude from Anglican Fellowship those Bishops and faithful of the Anglican Church in North America and others who have refused to recognize the "ordination" of women.

WANTED AND OFFERED

IN ADDITION to lay reader' sermons (prepared by the Rev'd Fr Alan Rosenau) and related materials, the Interfaith Cultural Biblical Mission (ICBM) offers a nine-lesson course in religious faith and historic Christianity, "Know God's Truth", which could be of inestimable value to those loyal Churchman who are presently isolated from an Anglican Church. According to Father Rosenau, "each quiz is personally evaluated, not just corrected." For further information: The Rev'd Alan Rosenau, POB 1241, Hot Springs, Ar 71901; phone 501-767-2681.

ST Willibrord Center (an Old Catholic-Anglican Bookstore and Chapel), 1744 West Devon Av, Chicago 60660, "A Directory of Anglican Catholic Congregations in the U. S. and Canada" with ample space for additions and corrections for $1.00. Mail order requests honored if remittance accompanies order.

THE REV'D David Belden, 137 Rue President Kennedy, Montreal, PQ Canada H2X 2L9, is interested in associating with an Anglican Catholic parish. Father Belden, who went from eight years of Benedictine life to the seminary, says, "I became an Anglican in order to become a better, more primitive, more authentic Catholic than I had been before."

A NEATLY bound, well-prepared, attractively printed 16-page booklet, The Holy Eucharist: According to the Anglican Use, is available from St Aidan's Parish, c/o The Rev'd Louis W. Falk, 4807 Aspen Dr, West Des Moines, IA 50265, for 50¢ per copy.

BACK issues of Volume I (except Number 8) of the Fellowship Newsletter are available for the asking and for the inclusion with your request of a #10, or larger, self-addressed stamped envelope: POB 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632.

ECHOES FROM DALLAS

WHILE the "Reports from Dallas" included in NL13 were, for the most part, solicited beforehand, what follows is from parish bulletins, letters, diocesan publications and the like. No particular effort has been made to "screen" the material, but if I do not get your bulletin or other publication, I, quite obviously, cannot quote it.

ONE Anglican Catholic parish in Texas, after printing the press release from Dallas in its bulletin, neatly summed up the entire matter by quoting from St Paul: We glory in tribulations also; knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience, experience; and experience, hope. -Romans 5:3-4

AN Arkansas layman wrote: Our hindsight is 20/20; our foresight somewhat less. If nothing else, Dallas confirmed that we should have first adopted a Constitution and Canons, and then elected bishops.

ACROSS the State line, a Missouri layman wrote: Captain Blood and Bishop Gore would have felt right at home. . . .

FROM St Timothy's The Clarion: I had thought that the eruption on the floor might take place over the matter of churchmanship. Not at all; the chief issue was the question of whether bishops in the Church will have the monarchical -and almost absolute- power they had in much of the earlier history of the Church, or whether they must, like everyone else, be subject to constitutional definition of authority and limitation of power.

BROTHER Juniper from Monument Valley: To me one of the high points of the Synod occurred while the one group was out of the meeting. A ten minute period of silent prayer to the Holy Spirit was called for, During this period several hundred people were on their knees, there was absolute silence in the room. No whispering, no shuffling of papers, no moving of the body, just prayer that all differences might be settled and the work of the Synod continued. I have never seen anything like it before at any convention or synod.

LETTER from a Texas layman: In retrospect, it seems to me that, upsetting as it has all been, the past two weeks have been a sorely needed cleansing. At the very least, we must, by now, all know who stands where. We have identified, much as it pains us, those who are true Catholics and those who are masquerading under the guise of Catholicity. Those of us who, at St Louis, saw our path clear before us now know in what quarter we will find help, and in what quarter hindrance. And that is a very good thing to know.

THE CIRCUIT RIDER (a publication for four parishes in Ohio and one in Kentucky): The meeting had its joys and its sorrows. The joys came from the text of the proposed Constitution that was adopted to be sent to the dioceses for ratification. The sorrows came from the attitude of certain persons there that they would have their way, or else. The decision to exclude the Diocese of the Southwest from voting in the assembly because there was a claim it didn't meet certain requirements of organization seemed high-handed and evil to me. The choice of a name left much to be desired. "The Anglican Catholic Church" requires half an hour of explanation to some people. It is perjorative to others, and has a party ring. Finally, it makes the same error as "Roman Catholic Church" in my opinion - the Catholic Church is larger than the Romans, the Anglicans, the Orthodox, and the Old Catholics separately. It includes all of them. "Roman Catholic" and "Anglican Catholic" seem to reduce the size of the whole.

FCC

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
NEWSLETTER

VOLUME II, Number 1 — January A.D. 1979

There has been no new faith propagated . . . . no religion set up but that which was commanded by our Saviour, preached by the primitive Church, and unanimously approved by the Fathers of best antiquity.
---Elizabeth I

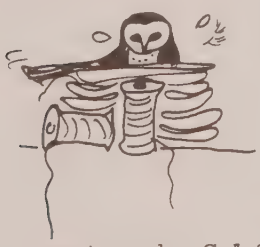
WILLIAM Francis Burns, 60, a priest since 1963 and rector of St Mark's Parish, West Orange, New Jersey, since 1966, was consecrated I Bishop of the Diocese of the Resurrection on the Feast of St Martin of Tours in the First Presbyterian Church in Orange, New Jersey, by the Right Rev'd C. Dale David Doreh (I Midwest) and the Right Rev'd James O. Mote (I Holy Trinity). The Right Rev'd Albert A. Chambers, retired Bishop of Springfield, who was unable to attend gave his written consent which was read by the Presenter of Testimonials.

The Rev'd Dr Carroll E. Simcox, President of the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen and a member of the faculty of the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Kentucky, at Lexington, preached; the Rev'd Charles H. Willcox, rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter, Poughkeepsie, New York, was Litanist; and F. Andrew Stahl of the Council of Faith in Canada was the Master of Ceremonies.

The Diocese of the Resurrection is composed of fourteen congregations in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania.

Bishop Burns is a 1962 graduate of VTS and was rector of St James' Episcopal Church in Newark before going to St Mark's. His first visitations were to the Church of the Holy Comforter where he helped celebrate Father Willcox's 25th anniversary as rector and confirmed a class; at the Church of the Holy Cross, Rochester, New York, he dedicated the church and confirmed; and at St Dunstan's Church, which meets in the Free Methodist Church in Pendleton, New York, he consecrated the Sacred Vessels and Altar Cross.

PROVISIONAL PROVISIONS EXPLAINED



I NOTE IN the [November] issue of the Newsletter that you reported to your readers that the Constitution which came out of Dallas was made provisional only as to those parts which the Synod did not have time to deliberate and act upon.

My recollection is that the final form of the motion on this was that the whole of the Constitution as amended by the Synod was accepted provisionally with the understanding that it was to be submitted to the Bishops and the Dioceses for study and response prepatory to final adoption at a Synod to be called sometime next year by the Bishops and ratification subsequent thereto by the Dioceses.

I have discussed this with one or two other delegates to Dallas whose recollections are similar to mine. I hope you will do something to correct any misimpression your readers may have gained about this in your next issue.
The Rev'd George D. Stenhouse, Chapel Hill, North Carolina

TCC

IF YOU ARE not regularly receiving & just as regularly reading The Christian Challenge, you should be. True, you will find some duplication in news between TCC and the Fellowship Newsletter, but only in TCC will you find the wry, down-to-earth, tell-it-like-it-is comments of The Dragon Lady. Case in point: read her "Notes" in the December issue. If, for some strange reason, you are not now on her mailing list, fire off a request right away to: The Christian Challenge, POB 9871, Austin TX 78766. You'll be glad you did.

THE BARN OWL has a parish in each of eight states for which to make linens; in order, they are Texas, New Mexico, Louisiana, Virginia, Utah (Hat Rock, for which she has promised linens for a long time), Missouri, California and North Carolina. Although TBO works quickly, she also helps with the family business and keeps house (somewhat). Please do not set deadlines. Please do send measurements and a S.A.S.E. Thanks to those who do. TBO has four linen sheets suitable for altars 50" to 54" long, 40" high. Measurements required: Altar - L W H; Chalice - height & diameter. Please don't send the size Fair Linen you want - TBO still needs the altar measurements so as to place correctly the five Greek crosses.

WARMS THE COCKLES

THE ENTIRE congregation (minus three) of the Church of the Transfiguration in Monett, observed the beginning of Advent by going on a retreat at a Trappist Monastery in the Missouri Ozarks.

The widow (in Tucson, Arizona) of a priest, on the margin of the bulletin for Trinity XXIV of the Church of the Holy Nativity in Payson, wrote: A beautiful, reverent service -with a congregation that emanates spiritual joy and human love and warmth. One man gently "corrected" my reference to their being a "parish" at last by saying "Really, we're more than a parish because we're a family!"

To read, over and over again, in parish bulletins, the expressed delight of Anglicans at the blessings God has bestowed upon small, scattered congregations across the land. Typical is this from St Dunstan's Anglican Church's bulletin advising the people of the pending arrangements for them to be able to take the Sacrament twice a month: God has truly blessed the people of St Dunstan's with these dedicated and tireless servants of God, please remember them in your prayers.

Remember in YOUR prayers, brethren, our bishops-- William, Dale, Robert, James, Peter, and, especially, Albert.

BRICKBATS & ROSEBUDS

FROM a parish newsletter in ALABAMA: Concerning the November 1978 FCC Newsletter:- Despite Dallas, FCC still claims to be our ecclesiastical guide, completely ignoring the fact that at Dallas we bid them thank you and good-bye. As you can now see, the FCC is as much concerned with PECUSA as it is with anything outside of PECUSA. Its president belongs to PECUSA as do many in its publishing house. On its board of directors are many persons, still in PECUSA, who have no real intention of leaving. Its version of the Dallas Synod carries all of the distortions which might not have appeared evident to those who were not allowed to sit in closed caucuses, and thus did not know most of the inner workings of the meeting. The Diocese of the Midwest and the FCC have worked hand-in-glove together, its bishop ever being a protege of the FCC. The impression given is that the Southeast and the Diocese of Christ the King were naughty children who didn't want to play with the others. The truth is that the delegations were partially rigged by the FCC and the Midwest, and we were not willing, after all we had been through, to accept a constitution that would make us just another PECUSA. As we have said in the past, we have our bishops and our Church; we do not need sidewalk superintendents with PECUSA connections to advise us. How does one say in polite language, "We appreciate all you've done in the past, but we don't need advice from y'all anymore ? [Editor's Note: Offhand, I'd say that you've said it loud, clear and with no charity.]

FROM a priest in MICHIGAN: . . . I am concerned with the latest FCC Newsletter, that anyone would even THINK that the FCC's job is finished. Not while there is one poor desperate Catholic still stuck in PECUSA because he doesn't know that he can get out! I see many years (probably thankless ones) of work ahead for FCC, and hope they'll stick with it. And you can pass that along, and I hope you will!
[From the comment that precedes yours, good Father, it appears likely that they will indeed be thankless ones, but so be it.]

FROM a priest in CANADA: I want to compliment you on the Newsletter for November. It gave those of us who could not be at Dallas a picture of the Synod in all its lights & shades. I was disturbed at what seemed like unnecessary disagreements, but your Newsletter puts the events in proportion & perspective. [Thank you, Father. I had hoped that the beauty spots as well as the warts would show.]

FROM THE designer of the coat-of-arms of the Diocese of the Midwest (the Senior Warden of the Church of the Holy Apostles in St Louis) comes this description:
A silver, or white, shield with a red, ragged cross; thereon an ear of corn of gold, or yellow, partly shucked, the ear and husks making the outline of a fleur-de-lis. The red cross raguly on white combines the red cross on white of St George and England with the red saltire raguly on white of the late 18th century Spanish flag when Spain ruled the parts of the Midwest west of the Mississippi and England the parts east of it. The ear of corn in fleur-de-lis form combines the American Indians' sacred maize with the fleur-de-lis of France: the Indians and France ruled all of the Midwest at one time. That's how I arrived at the coat of arms, but the obvious and primary meaning is: the Midwest dependent on the old rugged cross.

WHY

WHY THERE is no great switch to the Anglican Catholic Church by Protestant Episcopalians (according to The Illinois Traditionalist): 1) "As long as I am rector, we will never use the new rites . . ." 2) "You will never see a priestess here at St Swithun's!" 3) "I just can't bear to give up the family pew" (cushioned, with comfortable kneelers) 4) "Not hearing our paid choir sing those beautiful 14th Century Motets every Sunday would just spoil my week!" 5) "I would miss the Gothic architecture every Sunday -- it keeps me amused during the sermon." 6) "Wait a few years, maybe the P.E. Church will straighten out." 7) "My bishop, right or wrong, is still my bishop." (The Diocese of the Titanic) 8) "What! Worship in a YMCA? Great Scott!!" 9) "It's too far to go to the nearest Anglican Church. Why isn't there one nearer?"
Answer to No. 9: See Nos. 1 through 8.

ICBM

THE ICBM (Interfaith Cultural Biblical Mission) exists: to extend knowledge and the practice of Christian Faith within the context of an appreciative knowledge of the great traditions of religious faith-- to promote and develop both basic and advanced skills of culture and cultural influence-- to bring together thoughtful people and good resources in order better to communicate those purposes-- to publish resources and sponsor appropriate projects-- to reach those otherwise left out of the missionary strategies of the Churches-- and to unite men and women of good will through an honest and convicted exploration of the Truth manifest in the biblical tradition of Jewish-Christian history.
[For further details: Write or call the Rev'd Fr Alan Rosenau, POB 1241, Hot Springs, AR 71901; 501-767-2681.]

FCC TO MEET

THE ANNUAL meeting of the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen will be held on Friday, 12 January 1979, at the Heart of Charleston Motel, in Charleston, South Carolina, for the purpose of transacting necessary business, electing officers, and planning policy and program for the future. The meeting will begin with the Eucharist at 8 a.m., followed by breakfast, with the business session to begin at 9:30. Lunch will be served in the meeting room to save time and it is hoped that the meeting will be concluded by 4 p.m.

AN OPEN LETTER

TO THE BISHOPS and clergy of the Anglican Church from the Father General of the American Greyfriars

Reverend and dear Sirs: This is to express two of my deep concerns over certain activity within the emerging Church. First, the very spiritual illness which prompted many of us to withdraw from the Episcopal Church . . . has now infected the Anglican Church. . . We criticized the Episcopal bishops for not taking action against "bad" bishops in PECUSA. Let us not be guilty of what we accused. The answer to the quarrels in the emerging Church is disciplinary action, without delay, against arrogant bishops and priests. Do we want the national attention given to our "rightness" in separation to be turned into an international scandal?

Secondly, it was made clear from the outset that the St Louis Congress was a lay movement, and that lay people would not tolerate in the Anglican Church the kind of bishopric and clerical domination which demanded surrender . . . Now, it appears that in the naming of the Church an elite few have decided for the people. Although we were advised "The Anglican Church in North America" was provisional and subject to change, somehow most of us thought it would stick. However, I realize the geographic problem such a title posits. But, the "Anglican Catholic Church" is much too limited, since we know "Anglican" is a broad term and all-inclusive. The Church could have been called

FCC
Graduate Theological Union Library
Serials Dept.
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

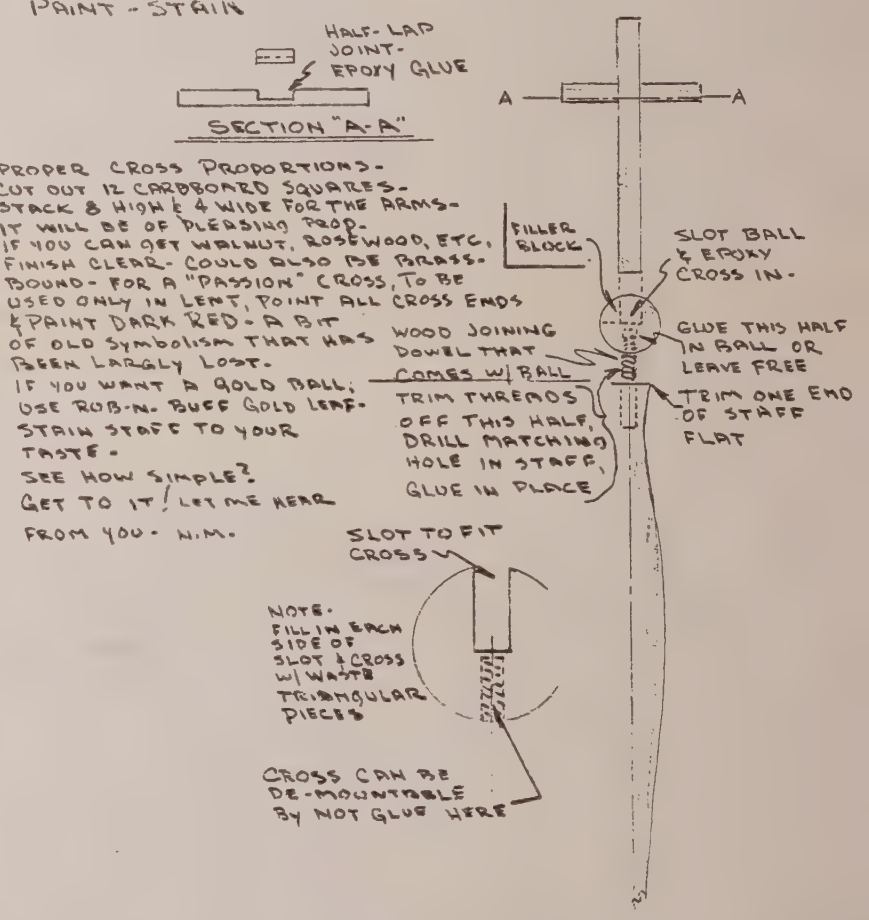
Bulk Rate
U. S. Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
Box 252, Eureka Springs, Ark. 72632

Anglican Orthodox, Anglican Evangelical, or even Anglican Apostolic. Why must we limit the title to only one confession of our faith? The full title of the Roman Church is the Holy Roman Catholic and Apostolic Church. It would be much more fitting if our Church were to be named "The One Holy Catholic and Apostolic Anglican Church", otherwise known as the "Anglican Church". Regardless of "Anglican Catholic Church", most of us will continue to refer to ourselves as Anglicans. The chosen title "Anglican Catholic" is likely to cause the evangelical congregations to rethink their role in the "new" Church and may possibly turn away those evangelical congregations pondering withdrawal from PECUSA. The One Holy Catholic and Apostolic Anglican Church would not have this effect since we are used to professing all these theological propositions except "Anglican" in our creeds.

FURTHER ECHOES FROM THE DALLAS SYNOD

THE Fellowship Newsletter continues to receive letters and other writings about the Synod last October. So that you may know what, in the viewpoints of many, did occur and what the implications of those occurrences are, I will publish as much as I can of this growing body of written matter.



FROM a priest in FLORIDA: The very apparent deep interest and commitment of all lay delegates and the large number of lay observers was a vivid testimony to their love and concern for their Church. The seminal Congress of St Louis was of their tearful, hopeful, faithful planting. They ARE the Church - a Royal Priesthood. The bishops and clergy are not their masters, but . . . shepherd - and servants of the servants of God. If the Church, now or later falters or stumbles toward disaster, the laity will be the rescuers. Almost without exception, the laymen and laywomen who addressed the assembly were astonishingly [well] prepared, articulate and well-grounded in Scripture, history, theology, ecclesiology - plus the Ecumenical Councils and the writings of the Fathers. If these are representative of the Churchmen leaving the Church of our former obedience, that tattered bit of Anglicanism is in a very bad way.

FROM a layman in WASHINGTON: Undoubtedly tempers flared a time or two, a good reminder that church folk, albeit saved by grace, are sinners like the rest of humanity. But there was more than sin involved in the heat. There was also a good deal of standing firm for principles held dear. After all, we were all there exiles from PECUSA, determined not to let our dear Anglican movement become mired in the same mud we had gotten out of. So don't throw up your hands just because we had a few battles. And all the decisions and battles are not over yet! Much was said against "Anglican comprehensiveness". And yet the evidence suggests it is still with us. We are going to have to learn to contain differences within one body regardless of what the zealots of any party say to the contrary.

FROM a Churchwoman in VIRGINIA: The name of the Church was changed to the Anglican Catholic Church, and that is the way it will appear in the Constitution. The vote on this was rather peculiar, and I hope it won't give us difficulty in the future. Two straw votes were taken while the meeting was in recess and a lot of people were out of the main meeting room. After the meeting had been called to order again we were asked to accept the straw vote instead of taking another. By this time I (and I suspect a lot of others) was so upset by all of the carrying on over other things that I didn't have it in me to object to this procedure. I do, however, object to the name. To bein with it is redundant! If one is Anglican then it goes without saying that one is Catholic. To many unhappy Episcopalians the use of the word Catholic in the name will auotmatically imply Romanism, and they will turn away. This would be most unfortunate. [There follows a description of the proceedings quite similar to the press release carried in the November newsletter.] What is to be made of all this? Two problems emerged which must be dealt with if future meetings of the Provincial Synod are not to follow the same disastrous pattern. The first is fairly simple. There were those delegates in all three houses . . . who had learned from General Convention or elsewhere the art of politicking. They seemed to feel that since they had been outmaneuvered by the Episcopalians they were determined to do the maneuvering this time. We therefore were treated to a display of political machination which would have been better suited to the halls of Congress than the council of the Church. I know that any meeting needs order, and that man is somewhat of a political animal . . but Roberts' Rules were written to create order, not to be used to circumvent the will of the majority. I am sure that Christian people can come together to discuss God's business, give each person an opportunity to speak if he desires,and then accept the vote of the Synod. We cannot allow the meetings of the Synod to degenerate into a political brawl again. The second problem we face is a deeper one. I can state it only in simple terms since I am not a theologian,but it is crystal clear to me that we have two quite different views of the Church now operating, and somehow they must be reconciled. One is what I would call a Roman Catholic view. That is, an authoritarian view, with the power resting in the Bishops;sort of a "Father Knows Best" and "Bishop Knows Even Better" way of looking at things. The other I would call an Anglican or perhaps American view, which sees the Bishops as defenders of the faith, holding authority in spiritual matters, but sharing the authority with the Synod in other matters, except where the Constitution and Canons give them authority. I do not know whether these views can be completely reconciled. I pray that they can. I think that Plain and Fancy Churchmen (High and Low seem to have fallen into disrepute) can understand one another and learn from each other if we can overcome this problem of authority.

PROCESSIONAL CROSS

NO SCALE

NOTABILIA

REPRODUCED above is the scheme for making a processional cross prepared by Mr Miller of Columbia, South Carolina. If you want more details on this and other such plans send a self-addressed, stamped #10 (or larger) envelope to: N. Miller, POB 5993, Columbia, SC 29250.

THE Anglican Missal, Altar Edition, formerly out of print, is available once more. Contact the Sisters at Poor Clare Convent, Maryhill, Mount Sinai, NY 11766,or call 516-473-0659, for prices and availability.

LAY readers' sermons are available from ICBM (POB 1241, Hot Springs, AR 71901) and Mission Press (7706 Village Oak, San Antonio, TX 78233). Write either or both for details.

A FEW copies of back issues of the Fellowship Newsletter (POB 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632) are on hand; send a 15¢ stamp for each copy. Do not send #10 envelopes as previously requested; the new size newsletter will not fit without being all wadded up (and who wants a wadded up newsletter). Also from the same address, the Opening Addresses at St. Louis for $1.25 each (quantity rates available).

FROM St Willibrord's Press (1744 Devon Av, Chicago 60660), a "Directory of the Anglican Catholic Church in U. S. & Canada", $1 per copy. Check for other publications.

LAST MINUTE FLASH

THE MIND of Christ Publications (Good Shepherd Book Marks), POB 15140, New Orleans, LA 70175, is printing one bookmark for every verse of Psalm 23 and a like number from St John 10 -both in the Authorized Version. The bookmarks measure 6x2¼" and are attractively done on a sturdy, colored stock that should hold up well; the text is set in a contrasting color. They retail for 30¢ each for the Psalms and 50¢ each for the St John cards which are gold stamped. A discount of 10% is allowed if ordered as gifts for Confirmation and if the order includes a stamped, self-addressed envelope and is on church letterhead.

LOOK FOR updating information on parishes in the February issue of the Fellowship Newsletter. Send in your corrections, additions and, if necessary, deletions.

F C C

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
N E W S L E T T E R

VOLUME II, Number 2 February A.D. 1979

There has been no new faith propagated . . . . no religion set up but that which was commanded by our Saviour, preached by the primitive Church, and unanimously approved by the Fathers of best antiquity.
---Elizabeth I

PERHAPS the most important single action to come out of the annual meeting of the Fellowship in Charleston, South Carolina, on 12 January, was that of formally embarking on an education program. The Fellowship proposes in the coming year to publish a series of tracts dealing with major tenets of the Faith, in furtherance of the purposes set forth in Article III (quoted below) of its Articles of Incorporation.

Four new member organizations were admitted to the Fellowship: the Central Florida Concerned Churchmen and the Dioceses of the Resurrection, Mid-Atlantic States, and the Southwest. Founding fathers (pun deliberate) of the CFCC are the Reverend Fathers John Bruce Medaris, Alfred Durrance, Carl Cannon and L. D. Lossing. The latter presented the request for admittance and represented the group at Charleston.

During 1978 the Fellowship provided financial support to the continuing Church in the amount of $31,273, while spending some $24,812 on its own, but closely related, activities. A breakdown of the Treasurer's Annual Report shows that the Fellowship disbursed $15,170 on the consecrations in Denver last January, $10,103 on the Constitutional Assembly in Dallas in October, and provided $6,000 for legal defense (all within the Diocese of Christ the King). Earmarked receipts during the year amounted to $267 for legal defense, $5,297 for the consecrations, and $6,848 for the Dallas assembly.

By unanimous vote of the membership, all of the officers and five of the six directors from 1978 were returned to office. The Rev'd George H. Clendenin, Rector of Holy Apostles', Glendale, California, resigned from the Board following the Dallas synod. Mrs Dorothy A. Faber, editor of The Christian Challenge was elected unanimously to fill out the roster of directors.

Officers and directors for 1979 are: The Rev'd Dr Carroll E. Simcox, Lexington, Kentucky, President; Capt W. R. Swindells, Hillspeak, Vice President; Mrs Nancy von Klemperer, Mill Neck, Long Island, New York, Secretary; Ralph Edgar Murphy, New Britain, Pennsylvania, Treasurer; and as Directors: Mrs Faber, Austin, Texas; the Rev'd Robert C. Harvey, Charleston; Perry Laukhuff, Amherst, Virginia; the Rev'd James Parker, SSC, Albany, Georgia; Andrew Stahl, Toronto, Canada; and Capt Swindells.

According to Mrs Faber, who also serves as Press Officer for the Fellowship, the FCC which now consists of some 20 Church related organizations and publications, has, in the words of Dr Simcox, who is presently a visiting professor at the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Kentucky, at Lexington, completed its task of midwifing the new Church structure. "Its final obligation in that area was fulfilled last October when the FCC served as sponsor of a Constitutional Assembly for the Anglican Catholic Church," he said. "ACC's future is now in the hands of its bishops and the seven dioceses."

Dr Simcox explained that the Fellowship presently includes individuals and groups that have become a part of the continuing Church,as well as others that have remained within the Episcopal Church since the schism occurred.

"It is our belief that we have an obligation to people in both bodies, and to those who have no church home whatever."

With the February issue devoted largely to the annual meeting of the Fellowship, the newsletter herewith quotes the purposes of the FCC as set forth in its Articles of Incporporation:

The Corporation is organized exclusively for religious purposes, including, for such purposes:

A. To provide for the continuation of Anglicanism in North America on the basis of the Apostolic Faith contained in Holy Scripture, the Catholic Creeds and the decisions of the Ecumenical Councils, with the Apostolic Ministry in the three orders of Bishops, Priests and Deacons (being men), and with the sacramental life centered on Baptism and the Holy Eucharist, as this Apostolic Faith is witnessed by the historical Book of Common Prayer,by providing for the holding of a Church Congress or Congresses for the furthering of the foregoing object.

B. To provide for the encouragement and education of Episcopalians and Anglicans in steadfastness in the Apostolic Faith and the preservation of the same in the Anglican communion by sponsoring and organizing meetings, by publishing periodic and/or other kinds of materials, and by use of any other means of communication.

C. To provide for the continuation of a common standard of doctrine, discipline and worship fundamentally as currently established in the Book of Common Prayer.

D. To provide by every means possible for cooperation to these ends with individuals and groups in the Episcopal Church in the United States of America, in the Anglican Church of Canada, in the (Anglican) Church in the Province of the West Indies, in other parts of the Anglican communion, and in other parts of the Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THERE won't be any! At least, not as such. The strong consensus of newsletter readers is that the newsletter should confine itself to being what it set out to be -- a disseminator of news,a lister of parishes, a scotcher (or confirmer) of rumors, a source of information. What the newsletter will try to do is report -as a matter of news- the opinions,perhaps in some tabulated form,in the letters that come in to the editor. And it will call your attention regularly to expressions of opinion that are printed in other publications.

PREXY'S ANNUAL ADDRESS

BELOVED in Christ: It is both my constitutional duty and my personal pleasure, as your president, to report to you at this annual meeting on our past year's activities. Also, it is universally customary in such presidential reports to offer proposals and recommendations for the new year of operation, and this I shall do.

As for the activities of this organization in 1978, since most of you were directly involved in the action, in one way or another, there is little need to give you information. Historians of the Anglican loyalist movement will record that in January, 1978, the Anglican Church in North America received the episcopate, and that in October, 1978, that body held a constitutional synod for the purpose of coming into being as a fully organized ecclesiastical body. And if those historians do their job adequately they will record that the Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen, and it virtually alone, brought these momentous events to pass.

These were our major achievements in a year that has been very full and busy but also a time of troubles, of conflict not only without but, alas, within our ranks, of frustrations and disappointments which have sorely tried our souls. But if we have steeped ourselves in the history of God's people from the Call of Abraham to the present moment we are not surprised and we ought not to be dismayed.

Most of the work of preparing for the Denver event was done before the year 1978 opened, and those of us who took part in it will never forget the unremitting labors of Perry Laukhuff, then president of the Fellowship.

Shortly following Denver we began preparing for Dallas. By this time the Anglican Church in North America had four bishops, and they requested us to do all the necessary planning for the constitutional synod. I served as chairman of the planning committee and [several] of its members are sitting here . . . In the course of our several meetings over the summer months there emerged that deep division within the Anglican Church in North America which exploded at Dallas. As we went about the task assigned to us by the bishops we were troubled by our growing awareness of the division among the bishops themselves as to what kind of authority-structure the continuing Church should have. We all know what happened at Dallas and what has been happening since. The problem posed by this division is one which cannot be solved by the Fellowship as such;it can only be solved by the bishops and people of the continuing Church. However strongly we may feel individually about that issue,it is clearly not the duty or the calling of the Fellowship as such to take sides in that conflict.

From my conversations with some, indeed most, of you in recent weeks it is clear to me that there has been a decided shift in our consensus as to the mission of the Fellowship. Earlier in 1978 our common mind seemed to be that we should concentrate on building up the separating or "continuing" Church, limiting our service to people remaining in the PECUSA to providing a kind of "underground railroad" if they wish to escape. I don't think there is any doubt in our common mind that it was clearly our calling to do what we did in 1978 in helping the separating Church to come into being as a new province of the Catholic Church. But if I read our mind aright it now holds that we must leave it to that body to make its own way in the world without the kind of midwifery which the Fellowship has hitherto provided.

As we enter this new year of our service we are minded to provide whatever leadership and support we can give to all Anglican loyalists, wherever they may be, whether remaining within the established American and Canadian Churches or removing from them. It may be pertinent to mention, in this connection, that most of the letters we receive from people sending us contributions to our treasury come from troubled souls who have not yet separated and may never separate. It is my understanding that we as a Fellowship want to help them in whatever ways we can, and I believe that within the months ahead we shall be given clear signs and indications as to how we can best proceed to do this.

Looking into the months ahead, one project we have already decided upon is an exhibit at the General Convention of the Episcopal Church at Denver in September. This will give us an opportunity for personal contact with many Episcopalians who will be there and who may look to us for guidance if they cannot surrender to the destructive forces at work within their Church.

One more project which I strongly urge and recommend is to undertake to provide an educational service for all Anglican traditionalists and loyalists. This service would provide tracts and literature of the hand-out variety setting forth sound doctrine and giving practical guidance to people needing such help. I ask that we devote some time and thought to this matter in the course of our meeting.

I marvel and rejoice at how, as a group, we are able to reach a common mind and to fulfill a common will and purpose despite the sometimes deep differences of opinion amongst us concerning particular issues. As I read St Paul's expositions on the nature of the body of Christ, in which there are diverse gifts but one Spirit, I receive heartening assurance that the Lord is with us -- or, as I prefer to say, that we are with the Lord, in our common enterprise. And there is no doubt in my mind that He still has considerable work for us to do for Him & that He will show it to us and give us our directives, and the grace and strength we need to carry them out, in His own times and ways.

Let us therefore enter now into our deliberations as servants mindful that our Master demands much of us but also provides a superabundance of all that we need to fight our good fight. We can never truly finish anything that we try to do for Him, but that need not trouble us since He who begins a good work in us will perform it unto the Day of Jesus Christ. To Him be the glory!

MID-ATLANTIC ELECTS

C. DALE David Doren, I Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of the Midwest, and the first bishop to be consecrated at Denver last January,has accepted election as Bishop of the Mid-Atlantic States. He will resign his present jurisdiction sometime prior to his enthronement in the Mid-Atlantic, which has been set for the Feast of St Patrick.

Acting on medical advice to curtail his activities (he has been, also, serving as Episcopal Visitor to the Dioceses of the Southwest, Resurrection [until the consecration of Bishop Burns in November], and Mid-Atlantic). Bishop Doren accepted the election to the Mid-Atlantic as being within the scope of responsibility and activity his physicians would allow him.

THAT CRAZY CODE

THERE may very well be readers of the Fellowship Newsletter who will feel that its editor is far from being sound of mind -- first, he attempted to reduce the size of the mailing list (and succeeded); now he asks you to help him increase its size (but only with the names & addresses of those who are interested in the aims and purposes of the FCC,

FCCB
The Rev'd David E. Green
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

Bulk Rate
U S Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
Box 252, Eureka Springs, Ark. 72632

please). 1979 is the year that PECUSA's General Convention convenes and the year for the continuing Church to consolidate its position. It has become increasingly clear that the newsletter should continue to be published & that it should form a strong, broad base. You can help it do that by sending in names and addresses.

PARISH LISTING UPDATES

WHETHER or not the newsletter publishes a complete listing of continuing Church parishes again is not yet resolved, but following are changes to the list from Newsletter I-12 (October) and updated in I-14 (December). The listing is simplied to provide primarily a point of inquiry. It will nudge you in the right direction, but you must take it from there. [As always, corrections and additions are welcomed.]

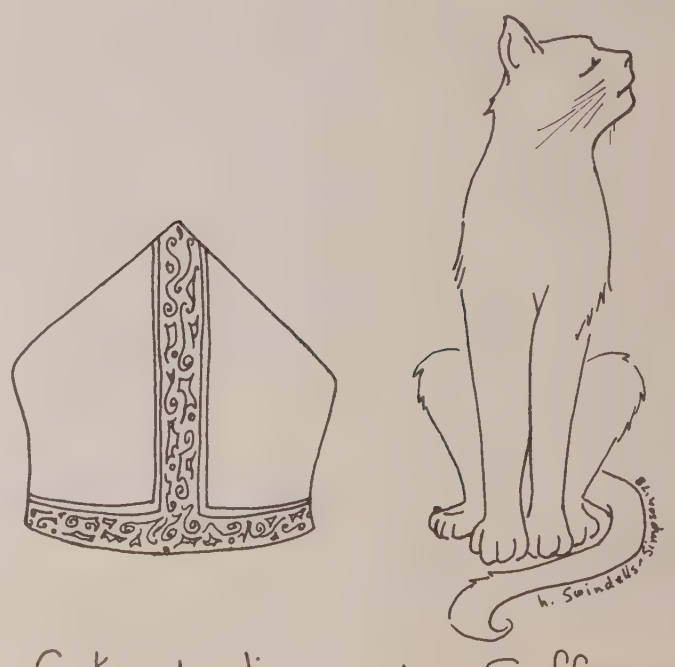
ALABAMA: Atmore, St Andrew, POB 843, 36502; Rev'd G. Campbell Irving; call 205-368-3897
FLORIDA: Tallahassee, St Andrew, POB 3101, 32303; Rev'd Frank C. Cleveland; call 904-385-3116 or 385-8547
INDIANA: Evansville, St Mary the Virgin c/o William Hickman, POB 3271, 47701
IOWA: Iowa City, Anglo-Catholic Fellowship c/o Timothy M. Falk, 246 Rienow, UA, 52242; call 319-353-0135
KANSAS: Fort Scott, St Francis, POB 425, 66701; James McNeley, SW; call 316-223-2838
MASSACHUSETTS: Boston, St Botolph; call Mrs Stevenson, 617-742-1508 or Mrs Walker, 734-7267 / Harvard, St Alban, POB 428, 01451; Rev'd C. David Burt; call 617-456-8645 or 456-8705
MISSOURI: Kansas City, St James c/o James S. L. King, Jr, LR, 3702 E 72d, 64132; call 816-363-7732, or, in Kansas, 913-631-0646, 268-6676, or 262-1832 / St Louis, Holy Apostles, POB 3854, 63122; Rev'd Lafond Lapointe, POB 5716, Chicago 60680, 312-978-1285; in St Louis, William Vesser, SW, 314-965-4433
NORTH CAROLINA: Charlotte, St Paul the Apostle, POB 1781, 28232; Fr Stenhouse (Chapel Hill); J. Sterling Hutcheson, MD, SW, 704-366-4727
OHIO: Coshocton, St Paul, 1242 E Main, 43812; Ven Larry A. Snyder, SSC; call 614-622-0986 or 623-0744 / Euclid (Cleveland area), Resurrection (Mail: 29036 Ridge Rd, Wickcliffe 44092); Rev'd Shelbert C. Harris
PENNSYLVANIA: Pittsburgh, Holy Trinity, POB 12814, 15241; Very Rev'd Charles A. Hedelund; call 412-343-9283
TEXAS: Plano, St Mary, 1602 - 15th Pl, 75075; James Guidry, SW, 214-596-4735; Tom Simmons, LR, 242-7522
WASHINGTON: Snohomish County, Christ, POB 677, Marysville 98270; or call 206-659-2190
WISCONSIN: Janesville, All Saints c/o Jerry & Gay Bowles, 57 S Blackhawk, 53545, 608-756-1550
CANADA: BRITISH COLUMBIA: Vancouver, St Mary & St Martha, 2243 W 47th Av, V6M 2M8; Rev'd E. S. Gale

[Your response as readers is valuable in editing the newsletter. In the long run, it's your newsletter & the editor tries to put in it what you want and, within the limits of space and format, in the way you want. The parish listing is a space-consuming "feature" of the newsletter but apparently valuable to most of you. How often would you like to see it published? What sort of information do you want in it, e. g. do we need diocesan affiliation in these changing times, do we need names or do mailing addresses and telephone numbers suffice?]

NOTABILIA

THE BROTHERHOOD of St James, a non-monastic community which obeys monastic rules with emphasis on caring, sharing and the supernatural, is a-forming in Washington State. The newsletter will publish additional details later, but in the meantime you can get further information by writing or calling Br Robert Honerkamp, Brotherhood of St James, POB 785, Marysville, WA 98270, 206-659-2190.

NEWSLETTER II-1 carried an incorrect phone number for ICBM (Interfaith Cultural Biblical Mission). The correct number, in Hot Springs, Arkansas, is 501-767-9186.



INFORMATION about the Third Order of the Order of St Francis, under the auspices of the Diocese of the Holy Trinity, may be obtained by writing to the Order at 2290 S Clayton St, Denver 80210 or calling 303-758-7211

SCOTCH & WRY

THE primary purpose of this new section of the newsletter is that of scotching (or confirming) rumors. Send us your old, tattered rumors and we'll try to run them down and either confirm or deny them. Rumors have more lives than tomcats and even when you think you have 'em safely planted they spring to life again -- and again and again and again.

Rumor I: Perry Laukhuff, President Emeritus of the Fellowship, tried to become Bishop of the Mid-Atlantic States. False. Mr Laukhuff was asked to accept nomination but declined before the election took place.

Rumor II: The Rev'd Dr Carmino J. deCatanzaro declined election as Bishop Suffragan of the Diocese of the Midwest. True, as the cartoon below graphically attests.

"de Cat declines de Suffragan"...

Rumors, anyone?

WANTED & OFFERED

THE Guild of St George is owned and operated by members of the Anglican Catholic Church for the sole purpose of building accessories for young parishes. We are experienced cabinet craftsmen and can produce at very reasonable prices anything in wood from acolyte & lay reader crosses to full-scale altars. We can work from a dimensioned sketch or a general description of the piece to be produced, and will submit drawings with our quotation. Naturally, there is no obligation for this. Since we are a very low overhead operation, our deliveries take considerable time, but the price is right if a parish has the time.

[For further information write G. J. Brenner, Director, The Guild of St George, 3221 Windrow Lane, Matthews, NC 28105.]

CHRIST Church, POB 677, Marysville, WA 98270, is in need of two or three sets of acolyte vestments and an unspecified number of Prayer Books. Also, the parish offers a Manual of Acolyte Service.

MRS Richard A. Wood, 9800 Golden Dr, Orangevale, CA 95662, is seeking an "organ copy of Charles Douglas' arrangement of the Missa de Angelis, adapted to the 1928 liturgy".

AND the Rev'd Will H. Dunstan, 95 Sunset Dr, Asheville, NC 28804, needs "a simple plainsong setting for the Proper of the Mass".

THE newsletter wants parish bulletins and newsletters and the names and addresses of persons interested in receiving the Fellowship Newsletter and offers back issues of the same. Do not send an envelope (as we have heretofore requested) but do enclose 20¢ (stamps are fine) for each chopy wanted.

'ROUND & 'BOUT

FROM Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania:

It is Resolved as Follows: It is the hope and prayer of the Vestry of the Church of Holy Trinity of Pittsburgh that a Constitution and Canons will soon be proposed and adopted which will be consistent with the pledge of the Affirmation of St Louis that "We continue to be what we are."

Thus, this Vestry urges other parishes and concerned Churchmen to work & to pray for adoption of a Constitution for the Anglican Church of North America which is the same as the Constitution of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States as in effect at the conclusion of the 1967 convention (other than the name and without having power concentrated in Bishops without equal voice from each the laity and the clergy [sic]) and using the 1967 PECUSA Canons & the 1928 Prayer Book. It is our hope and prayer that these Canons & the Constitution will be adopted as promptly as possible, without the distraction of redrafting or amendment. In this way, these items of some contention might be resolved, in accordance with the Affirmation of St Louis to allow us to continue to work on God's work.

Adopted this 9th day of January, 1979, unanimously by the assembled Vestry of the Church of the Holy Trinity of Pittsburgh.

ACCORDING to The Theresien of the Church of St Therese of the Child Jesus, Santa Ana, California: In December the Anglican Catholic Interparish Council of Southern California met at St Michael's, Downey, and agreed to petition Bishop Mote for the formation of a Deanery of Southern California.

FCC

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
NEWSLETTER

VOLUME II, Number 3 March A.D. 1979

We and our people -thanks be to God- follow no novel and strange religions, but that very religion which is ordained by Christ, sanctioned by the primitive and Catholic Church and approved by the consentient mind and voice of the most early Fathers.--Elizabeth I in 1563

ONE OF the major difficulties of any sort of publishing, certainly one of the greatest frustrations,is that there comes a time when the editor has to say, "Okay, that is all we can handle this time" and there even comes a time when he or she has committed a particular issue to the printer and nothing may be added or subtracted. Inevitably, just twenty seconds or so after that time comes in a piece of news or a comment that cries to be published -- right now! Such is the case with the article that follows. Written by the Rev'd Sterling Rayburn, Rector of St Mary's Parish, Winter Haven, Florida, it speaks the mind of many who are "sick unto death" of the divisions that continue to rend the continuing Church.

Dear Brothers and Sisters in Christ,

It is hardly my office to be sending out "encyclical" letters, but I dare to do so for three reasons: (1) I am terribly frustrated by the way things are going in the Anglican Catholic Church, (2) I have the impression that my various articles in various publications have been appreciated, and (3) I think I have some positive things to say about what we can do to remedy our ills.

Perhaps the most tragic ecclesiastical scandal of all times was the "raskol" or schism of the Old Believers from the Russian Orthodox Church in the late 17th Century. Patriarch Nikon had tried to bring the Russian Church into conformity with Greek customs, and thousands of Russian Churchmen went into schism rather than follow suit. Both Nikon and his old-believing opponents were guilty of exalting secondary considerations to the level of the dogmas of the Faith. At stake were such profound questions as to whether one made the sign of the cross with three fingers or two. A large section of the Old Believers (which still survives today) rejected the priesthood for the sake of ceremonial customs.

Without doubt we are afflicted with certain tendencies towards old-believerism". Let's get this straight: this old-believerism is just as rampant among "plain Churchmen" as it is among "fancy Churchmen". It is just as superficial to assume that simply because a priest or bishop wears a cope or uses incense he is therefore a Romanist as it is for the priest or bishop to assume that those who don't make the sign of the cross are therefore protestant in faith. It is just as superficial to act as if the 1928 Prayer Book is God's Word itself, as it is to proceed on the basis that all who don't like chasubles are a very threat to the Catholic Faith itself. It would be helpful in the extreme if "high" ceremonialists could learn to be moderately comfortable when all the stops are not pulled out, and when their "opposites" could learn to enjoy a bit of highfalutation. It would be even more helpful if we could agree in a non-legalistic fashion to work towards less extreme variations in ceremonial practice - or at least, to reiterate, to work towards mutual understanding of why we like to do what we do in church.

But the fact remains that ceremonial per se is secondary to doctrinal questions, and variety in ceremonial hardly indicates necessarily doctrinal divergence. I have heard "low Churchmen" "knocked" because of their adherence to the 1928 Book above all else. I say "super", because if one has proclaimed oneself loyal to that book, then one must perforce be loyal to the essentials of the Catholic Faith. "Lex Orandi, Lex Credendi" (Rayburn translation: what you pray is what you believe), and if you buy 1928 you perforce buy confession, fasting, unction of the sick,the authority of Bishops and that whole nine yards known as "Catholicism".

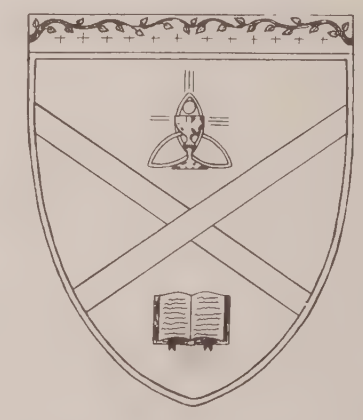
Furthermore, the "confessional" basis of our movement is the Affirmation of St Louis. Now lets get this straight too; there ain't nothing protestant about that document. An orthodox Presbyterian, Methodist, or Lutheran (not to mention the Baptists & Disciples, &c) would recoil with horror at its bold-faced uncompromised Catholic position. It affirms the Episcopal Structure of the Church, the authority of the Seven Ecumenical Councils,Seven Sacraments,the Centrality of the Eucharist,the Sacrifice of the Eucharistic Liturgy and so on. A truly Calvinist document! No official Anglican document has ever been so uncompromisingly Catholic. There is nothing in it an Orthodox Catholic (i.e., "Eastern Orthodox") Christian could not agree with. Apart from the question of Papal supremacy, no orthodox Roman catholic would find fault with its content.

And, third, both draft constitutions presented at Dallas were definitely protestant:I detected overtones of not only Calvinism and Lutheranism, but I seriously suspect one passage of Crypto-Mormonism, and quite possibly one sentence is patently of a Jehovah's Witness interpretation. Oh, let's be careful! Come on! Those documents are utterly Catholic in the best Anglican tradition. "Low Churchmen", you'd better quit playing games that you want to put on a "protestant face" to attract your Methodist and Presbyterian buddies. If they've got any brains at all it won't take them longer than two seconds to realize that your parish is not "First Pres". "High Churchmen", you'd better come down from your supercilious supercatholic attitude. I would have given half my salary in PECUSA to have everyone in my parish to profess in faith all the Givens in the 1928 Prayer Book, and I would have practically gone on welfare to have something like the Affirmation of St Louis as the Official Document of our Belief. Come to think of it, that s just what I did when I left cozy PECUSA for the stark realities of the "Anglican Movement".

We left what we ascertained was a sinking ecclesial tugboat which had cut itself loose from its Traditional Foundation and scuttled itself with the axes of Withitprophets. We have proclaimed that we have returned to the Universal Tradition, that basic Faith and Practice rooted in the Incarnate Christ and sustained by the Indwelling Spirit. Unfortunately, too many in our Church mistake their pet traditions for Tradition once delivered to the Saints. Neither BCP 1928, nor chasubles, nor What-Anglicans-Have-Done for 400 years, nor incense, nor the Anglican Missal are the Foundation of the Tradition. The Foundation of the Tradition is Christ our God and that Tradition is defined by the Bible, the Creeds, the decrees of the Seven Ecumenical Synods, the writings of the Fathers and the ancient liturgies of the Church.

Which means we must accept varieties in ceremonial as a fact in Catholic Life. Which means we have no grounds whatsoever to think the Eucharist may be replaced by the Daily Office on the Lord's Day, just cause not preventing. It also means we have no grounds whatsoever either to deny the Apostolic Authority of the Episcopate, & it means likewise that there are no grounds whatsoever to assume the Bishop is above the law, above correction, infallible, or autocratic. True, the "buck" in matters doctrinal and liturgical should stop with the Bishop-- unless he is a theological nitwit. True, the Bishop is the supreme pastor & teacher in the Church. True, matters of doctrine should not be voted on by the laity -- but neither are they negotiable matters for the clergy! The Basics of the Faith were defined centuries ago.

Last, everywhere I go, and in some places more than others, I hear that it was the Bishops in PECUSA who destroyed the Church --some extremists would therefore keep bishops in cages. But I submit that in most Pecusan cases, yea even unto this day, the Bishops are chosen because of their popularity with the laity.



But, having said this, we are confronted by the horrid scandal of an Episcopate at each other's throats. Bishops, you are not the Queen of Sheba, so get off your high horse. Use your God-given brains to separate essentials from non-essentials. I'd like to lock all five of you in a cage till you either worked out a modus vivendi or scratched each other's eyes out. Augustine of Hippo said, "One of the joys of the saved is to contemplate the tortures of the damned." Surely one of the joys of the Pecusan Hierarchs is to contemplate our current disunity.

Theologically, spiritually, intellectually, what I see in the Anglican Catholic Church is the finest bunch of Anglicans I ever did see. I also see too many -- Bishops, Priests, Deacons and Laymen -- who have grown so accustomed to war that they find peace hard to live with. Holy Saints of God, remember us in your prayers. God, Father, Son and Holy Spirit, re-create us, redeem us and re-vivify us. Amen.

In Christ and the Holy Spirit,
Sterling Rayburn+

NO NEW FAITH

YOU will note that the familiar lines under our banner have been changed somewhat. That we are able to quote Queen Elizabeth accurately is due to the research of a reader, Carl Laws, Jr, who took the trouble to dig out the exact quote (which we did not have) and the circumstances surrounding it. The source to which Mr Laws turned bears the awesome title, Annals of the Reformation and Establishment of Religions and Other Various Occurrences in the Church of England During Queen Elizabeth's Happy Reign, and the occasion, according to that source, was Elizabeth's reply to the Emperor Ferdinand's letter of 24 September 1563.

PICTURED to the left is the Coat of Arms of St Andrew's Parish, Tallahassee, Florida. According to the note accompanying the picture, the significance of the design is as follows:
1) the white or blue shield represents the strength and purity of our Lord:
2) the elliptical circles, the Holy Trinity, Father, Son and Holy Ghost;
3) chalice and wafer to remind us the Holy Eucharist is the Body and Blood of Christ;
4) the open book represents the Bible as the Word of God and the Book of Common Prayer as the liturgy of the Anglican Church;
5) the small crosses symbolize the Twelve and the Apostolic Succession within the Church:
6) the vine portrays the Body of Christ and the growing fellowship of the Continuing Church; and
7) the red diagonal cross represents the Martyr, St Andrew, and his crucifixion on an x-shaped cross.

WHY I LEFT

Dear Harry:
It was good to hear from you after so many years and I do appreciate your concern and interest to the point of "taking pen in hand" to write me about my recent submission to the Anglican Catholic Church. But I must tell you truly, I can't begin to describe the spiritual peace I m now coming to enjoy since making the decision to separate myself from the PECUSA leadership and all that it has come to symbolize to the world. I firmly believe that I do continue in "the Faith of our Fathers" and I pointedly did not resign my priesthood. I love the English Church and all that it has stood for at its best!

I had hoped that the Evangelical Catholic Mission -if not the leadership of Faith-professing bishops in PECUSA- would present us a viable and realistic plan of action for turning 'round all that has happened with ever increasing acceleration these past ten years. But my hope was in vain. And I don't believe there's the slightest chance of its happening. The plea to "stay and fight"really means nothing more than quietly deploring the whole sad business and perhaps secretly holding mental reservations until such happy time as we could be "grandfathered out" to pasture and get the pension check.

I think we have to face up to the reality that, really, Catholics in Anglicanism have long been regarded as a kind of tolerable aberration providing the moderate-to-liberal establishment the necessary window dressing to demonstrate the comprehensive nature of the Episcopal Church. And this hasn't been helped by the fact, put rather candidly recently, that much of the "high-church" element in PECUSA has been comprised of good people who really "regard themselves as Anglicans who HAPPEN to be Catholics, rather than as Catholics who happen to be Anglicans." There's the real problem.

In my opinion, the Achilles heel of Anglicanism has been the tendency to enshrine the Elizabeth Compromise as the precedent for accomodating strange doctrines and practices to the Church. What was a viable course of action in a small sixteenth century

FCCY
Graduate Theological Union Library
Serials Dept.
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

MAR 1 : 82

Bulk Rate
U S Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
Box 252, Eureka Springs, Ark. 72632

island kingdom has been almost deified to the point that latitude and compromise concerning essentials of Faith & Order have become virtues. Lambeth [1978] only made the point anew by proclaiming that "staying together" is more important than faithfulness to Holy Scripture and Holy Tradition. "Unity above all else" seems finally to be Anglicanism s unique contribution to the Christian scene. I personally find this both unacceptable and unscriptural. And I hope that given time, you and other good priests who really believe and teach the "Faith once delivered" will likewise so regard it.

You mentioned the negative vote recently in the English synod concerning opening the priestly office to women in their province. But I trust you noted the very narrow margin -some fifty votes in the clerical order- that prevented passage of the act FOR THE TIME BEING. I assume you also noted the fact that the vast majority in both the episcopal and lay orders favored passage. I'm afraid the day of reckoning for the English Church has only been postponed!

Well, I've gone on at far greater length than I intended when I began what was to have been a simple "note". But let me say again that I do honestly value your prayers and expressions of concern. And I do pray that one day -hopefully sooner rather than later- we will again be united in an ecclesial body holding faithfully and uncompromisingly to Catholic Faith and Apostolic Order while at the same time retaining all that is good and beautiful and helpful from our Anglican heritage. Such it would seem, would truly approach that "glorious church" alluded to by St Paul in his Epistle to the Ephesians "that would present itself to God, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing . . . but, holy and without blemish." Perhaps this is too much to expect of the Church Militant here on earth, but it does seem rather a shame that with all the Revelation and Grace God has provided for our pilgrimage, we couldn't do better than we have so far!

God bless you in your ministry and keep you in His love.

Walter+

ORDAINED TO the Sacred Priesthood on the Feast of St Thomas in California by the Bishop of the Diocese of the Holy Trinity -- L. Noel Stipkovich.

TO the diaconate on the Feast of St Matthias in Texas by the Bishop of the Midwest -- David Marion-Davis.

OFFERED BY the Rev'd Richard A. Isaac, 74 Oakdene Av, Cliffside Park, NJ 07010: used copies of J. H. Blunt s Annotated Book of Common Prayer, 6th edition, velum binding, good condition; Anglican Missal, 1947 edition, very good condition; American Missal, 1951 condition, new, excellent mint condition; and American Missal, 1st edition, 1931, good but needs rebinding. Fr Isaac writes that he would "like to have 'reasonable offers' for these, and will pay the postage charges to get them to their destinations."

MISS Margaret Lindsay, 3365 Denver St, S.E., Washington, DC 20020, is prepared to go into yet another printing of Vernon Staley's The Catholic Religion if she can get a few more firm orders. The book will sell for $5.50 a copy or $5.25 apiece in orders of ten or more.

IN response to continuing requests for the Altar Edition of the Anglican Missal, a limited printing has been made available at $125 per copy. Order from The Frank Gavin Liturgical Foundation, POB 25, Mount Sinai, NY 11766.

TOM E. Moore, 6105 Brandon Av, Springfield, VA 22150, offers to "assist with design or advice, or I'll make the items for a reasonable cost" -- altar and processional crosses, missal stands, altars, et al.

AN audio-visual slide presentation of the Denver and West Orange consecrations is available. Stuart and Dee Casper will bring it to your parish or diocesan affair at no charge. A colorful, moving experience which will be helpful to all A.C.C. members. Trips are planned six months ahead. Write: 5 Pippin Lane, Huntington, NY 11743. The presentation is updated with slides of new developments in the Church as they occur.

LITURGICAL music books and choir music books, edited by Francis Burgess, are available from Scotland. To get a list of publications, write: Plainchant Publications Committee, Bass View, West Forth [sic] St, Cellardyke, Anstruther, Fife, Scotland.

ABOUT THE LIST OF parishes, that is. After much thinking and checking and reviewing of previous lists (& realizing that a list has not been published since October), we have decided that the best way to handle this is to insert quarterly extra editions of the newsletter, devoted solely to the listing of parishes, between the March and April, June and July, September and October, and December and January regular issues. The first list, then, will be published as soon as we clear this issue through the mails (and draw a deep breath) and will reflect all the information that we then have about the parishes (and that we have room to print).

NORTH OF THE BORDER UP Canada way, a cross-Canada meeting has been held in Ottawa with the Rev'd Dr Carmino J. deCatanzaro as pro tem chairman. Father deCat emphasized that the Canadian Jurisdiction is not a synodical body, that each Canadian parish would apply to its Ordinary for release from its diocese at a proper time. He also reported that messages of encouragement and approbation had been received from Bishops Mote and Morse.

Fuller details on the Canadian connection will be forthcoming.

GESIMAS, PENITENCE & PURPLE SO begins an excellent little article in the weekly newsletter of the Church of the Holy Cross, Oklahoma City:

If you have locked at your liturgical kalendar, you have noticed that most of [February] is purple. We are approaching Pre-Lent [keep in mind, the newsletter is a mite late in purloining this]. This is the season of the Sundays with the "gesima" names: Septuagesima, Sexagesima, Quinquagesima; meaning, respectively, 70, 60, and 50 days until Easter. They do not mark the time accurately, though, only in round numbers. Quadragesima is the First Sunday in Lent,but that name is hardly ever used nowadays. It, of course, means fortieth.

Many churches never used the Christian Year and are thus not concerned with the dropping of Pre-Lent being urged by some. A lot of other Christians have never been too thrilled about any of the Church's disciplines, & they could not care less either. We should not be among those,for if we intend to restore historical Christianity to its fullness,with a serious devotion to its practice, we have to bend every effort to understand and enter into those things found beneficial by our fathers over the many centuries of our corporate life. If you do not follow some of the disciplines and customs of the Church, let me suggest that Lent or Pre-Lent is a good time to examine your reason for not doing so, and devote yourself to make more of the Church's life your way.

Prayers, alms-giving and fasting are expected duties of Christians. Recall that in teaching His followers, Jesus said "WHEN ye pray, WHEN ye give alms, WHEN ye fast", showing that we have no choice! Unless, of course, we choose to be less than a full disciple, offering only partial loyalty.

The seasons of the Christian Year are all important, and have each a blessing to impart to those who observe them. The secularization of Advent is well known and widely deplored - even by some who don't know it is Advent. Lent is also important, not only to prepare us for the celebration of the Queen of Feasts, Easter, but to teach us how to discipline ourselves and rid ourselves of bad habits and attitudes. Surely anyone who will consider this will conclude that such self-discipline is as important as parading to church to display a new hat or wardrobe -- once a year. How our Lord must weep when He contemplates the folly of His Churchmen, and other inhabitants of His world, who militantly resist observing the tried and truly beneficial Way established by Him and carried on by His Holy Church.

Do you know that Christians have observed Pre-Lent from as early as 465? Do you know that the Eastern Church began abstaining from meat on Sexagesima? From Quinquagesima abstaining from butter, cheese, milk and eggs? (They still do.) You know that Shrove Tuesday is the day for pancake suppers;are you aware that the name comes from the practice of making sacramental confessions in preparation for the forty days of penitence - to be shriven, or shrove.

In the ancient Church the seasons were not by any means uniform. Lent varied from what we call today "Holy Week" only, to the full 40 days' imitation of Christ's fast. Sundays have always been excepted, being feast days in any season. Pre-Lent probably came from the Byzantine Church, which did not include Saturdays in their Lenten observance, and thus lengthened the period. From the 6th century the western Church has included it - possibly because of the frequent calamities befalling them at that period. It was a time of constant war or fear of war as is our own. May not Pre-Lent be more important than we think?

IN this Lenten season, pray, brethren, for our bishops- William, Robert, Peter, James, and Dale -- and for Albert.

HELP THAT is PLEH spelled backwards. For its files, the Fellowship Newsletter would like to accumulate a number of model Articles of Incorporation of non-profit religious organizations that served as predecessors to parishes, and especially any which spelled out adherence to the Affirtmation of Saint Louis as an integral part of the document. If you have such, please make a copy and send it to the newsletter (by-laws would be helpful also) at POB 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632.

MAR 9 1 1979

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
N E W S L E T T E R

VOLUME II, Number 4 March A.D. 1979

We and our people -thanks be to God- follow no novel and strange religions, but that very religion which is ordained by Christ, sanctioned by the primitive and Catholic Church and approved by the consentient mind and voice of the most early Fathers.--Elizabeth I in 1563

THIS is the first of what I hope will be a quarterly listing of parishes in the continuing Church. It is not an official list (you will have to go to your dioceses for that), but is a fairly accurate list that will serve travelers and stay-at-homes alike. I had hoped to list a great deal more information, but to remain within our adopted format, I had to cut back (I also had hoped to set it out in slightly larger type). It will give you points of reference and contact; from there you are on your own. An updated, corrected list will be published in June. Send your changes to: POB 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632 / 501-253-9701.

ALABAMA: Atmore, St Andrew, POB 843, 36502; Rev G. Campbell Irving; Charles W. Laue, SW, 368-3897 / Birmingham, St Bede, POB 624, 35201; Rev William J. Marvin, 967-6610; Elmer T. Welch, SW, 629-5521; Michael Hosick, JW, 979-9738 / Decatur, Dr Tom Bingham POB 1929, 35602 / Fairhope, St Peter, POB 855, 36532;Rev William C. NewMarch, 928-8252; Donald Gooden, SW, 928-2215 / Huntsville, St Charles, POB 604, 35805; Fr Marvin (Birmingham); Col Marvin D Parker, LR, 881-8625 / Montgomery, St Joseph of Arimathea, POB 17236, 36117; Fr Marvin (Birmingham); Philip C. Davis, SW, 272-2814; Harry R. Fletcher, C, 264-5272

ARIZONA: Payson, Holy Nativity, POB 1261, 85541; Rev Robert P. Donovan, 474-3114

ARKANSAS: Hot Springs, St Chrysostom, POB 1241, 71901; Rev Alan Rosenau, 767-9186;Richard W. Hobbs, SW, 623-6666 / Mountain Home St Mary-in-the-Ozarks, POB 654, 72653; Rev William C. Morgan; Nils Florentz, SW, 492-6132; Ellen Kilgore, C, 492-5291

CALIFORNIA:Anaheim, St Mary Magdalene, POB 4729, 92803, 774-8100 Rev Anthony F. Rasch; William T. Heaton, SW, 551-4825 / Arcata, Holy Family; Donald Clancy, W, 822-2105, 822-4382; Gloria Bohlmann, S&T, 1754 Roberts Way, 95521 / Berkeley, St Joseph of Arimathea, 2543 Durant Av, 94704, 841-3083; Rev Francis W. Read, 658-4033 / Burlingame, St James; Rev John T. Cahoon, 1208 Capuchino, 94010, 347-4423; Jack Lysaght, 349-7314 / Clayton, St Martin of Tours, POB 127, 94517; Rev G. D. Wiebe, SSC, 538-4312; John Sauter, SW, 837-0438; Roderick Gourley, JW, 757-5389 / Covina-Glendora-Pomona, St Luke, 20769 Mesarica Rd, Glendora 91724, 967-3333;Robert Kambietz, SW, 334-7362;Mrs Walter R. Buerger, C, 331-3623/Downey, St Michael, 11425 Paramount Bl, 90241, 869-8044;Rev Elwood B. Trigg/Glendale, Holy Apostles,1011 S Verdugo Rd,91205, 243-3424;Rev George H. Clendenin,241-4473 / Granada Hills, St Mary the Virgin; Rev Noel Stipkovich, 11321 Bertrand Av, 91344 / Los Angeles, Our Saviour, 6301 W Olympic Bl 90048, 935-0228; William Jackson, SW / Menlo Park, St James, 655 4951; Fr Cahoon (Burlingame) / Oakland, St Peter, 6013 Lawton Av 94618, 655-4283; Rt Rev Robert S. Morse, 841-8150 / San Jose (2) Resurrection, 1717 The Alameda, 95126;Rev Clarence Lee, 295-6310 George Garbarino, SW, 286-5719 AND St Michael & All Angels, POB 8186, 95125; Russell Kerl, SW, 997-1968; Fred Crenshaw, LR, 379-5104 / San Francisco, Rev Val R. Dodd; Mrs Isidra Spangler, 1157 Stanyan, 94117, 261-4088 / Santa Ana, St Therese of Lisieux, 105 W Stevens, 92707, 540-7103; Rev Richard E. Lockwood, 828-3958; William Musgrove, SW / Santee, K. V. Saunders, 8701 Mesa Rd (44) 92071, 449-9301 / Wrightwood, Gordon Koenig, LR, POB 1032, 92397

COLORADO: Black Hawk, St Paul, POB 176, 80422, 582-5858 / Boulder, St Teresa of Avila; Rev Gregory J. Harring, 155 S 42d, 80303 Mrs Richard P. Woolley, SW, 449-6186 / Colorado Springs, St Athanasius, 3105 Downhill Dr, 80918, 598-5207; Rev Stanley G. Macgirvin; Dr Alfred J. Martin, SW, 598-8081; Norman Van Dyke, 18405 Academy Cir, Monument 80132 /Denver, St Mary, 2290 S Clayton, 80210, 758-7211, 757-6814; Rt Rev James O. Mote / Drake-Estes Park-Loveland, Fr Harring (Boulder); Berry Long, POB 808, Estes Park 80517 / Grand Junction, St Anthony of the Desert; Rev Richard Willars, 4751 Broadway, Denver 80216; Mrs Grace Hardcastle, 1441 Patterson Rd (502), 81501 / Idaho Springs, Calvary; David Wilson, POB 1081, 80452 / Westcliffe, St Matthew the Apostle, 783-2213, 783-2338; Fr Willars (Gr Jct); Mrs William G. Falkenberg, POB 206, 81252

CONNECTICUT: Mystic, St Alban; Rev Charles A. Dinkler, 32 Pearl, 06355, 572-0137; Mrs Wanda McFarland, 536-4366; Stephen B. Lee, 44 Hillside Av, Noank 06340 / New Canaan, Mrs Alfred M. Hudson, 102 Valley Rd, 06840

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA: Washington, St Hilda of Whitby; Rev Frederick G. Bohme; A. Edward Faro, SW, 4000 Cathedral Av, NW (612A) 20012, 965-9896; Ralph Johnson, 942-3380

FLORIDA: Brandon, St Matthias; Fr Habberfield (Largo); John Walton, 1010 Bryon Rd, 33511 / Fort Lauderdale, St Michael the Archangel, POB 5203, 33310, 735-0266; Rev James G. Monroe, Jr; Kenneth W. Scott, SW, 565-1758; Derek R. Hampton, C, 563-5820 / Largo, St John, POB 1676, 33540; Rev Jack R. Habberfield, 585-4110; P. Raymond Plumer, LR, 867-8091 / Maitland, Incarnation, POB 1426, 32751; Rev Bruce Medaris, SSC; Benjamin P. Sibley, SW, 1850 Lee Rd, Winter Park 32789, 647-1616 / Miami, St Charles the Martyr - see Ft Lauderdale / Mount Dora, St Charles the Martyr, POB 882, 32757, 383-8557; Rev Walter B. Peterson, SSC / Palatka, All Saints; Fr Peterson (Mt Dora); Edward W. Garris, Jr, SW, 200 Linda Ln, 32077; Mary A. Gale, 325-2640; Mrs G. R. Ernsberger, 325-3890 / Pensacola, All Saints, POB 4538, 32507; Michael G. Carr, SW&LR, 455-5630; Ellis W. Bullock, Sr, 453-4439 / Port Charlotte, St Paul, POB 2387, 33952;Howard C. Warner, 625-4781 / Sebring, St Simon of Cyrene; Col Paul Trammel, SW, 7693 Rolling Hills Rd, 33870 / Tallahassee, St Andrew, POB 3101, 32303; Rev Frank C. Cleveland; Col Robert M. Shoemaker, SW, 385-8547; Col C. L. Perkins, JW, 385-3116 / West Palm Beach, Holy Spirit, 1003 Allendale Rd, 33405, 833-7605; Rt Rev Peter F. Watterson, 833-9937; Rev Whitney Church, POB 1001, Deerfield Beach 33341, 426-1908 / Winter Haven, St Mary, POB 9351, 33880; Rev Sterling Rayburn, 293-2907; Rev Pomeroy H. Hartman, 293-6009

GEORGIA:Atlanta, St Hilda of Whitby, 1393 W Peachtree, NE, 30309 Rev George W. Murdoch, 634-3754 / West Point, St Andrew, Mrs Howard Syler, 608 Av C, 31833

ILLINOIS: Chicago (2), St George the Martyr, 7400 Sheridan Rd, 60626, 764-9820; Rev Roderic B. Dibbert; James G. Schneider, SW, 815-932-6843 AND St Jude; Fr Lapointe (see St Louis MO)

INDIANA: Bedford-Bloomington, Good Shepherd; Fr Deyman (Indpls); Mrs Norman Nichols, RR 13, Box 653, Bedford 47421;Joel Marsh, RR 10, Box 637, Bloomington 47401 / Evansville, St Mary the Virgin; Rev Ronald L. Greeson, 3130 N Grand East, Springfield IL 62702, 523-7113; William Hickman, POB 3271, 47701 / Indianapolis, St Edward the Confessor; Rev James P. Deyman, 3662 Nobscot Ct (1-A) 46222, 926-6940; Philip N. Smith, 36 Hampton Dr, 46208; Rex G. Hume, 11365 Allisonville Rd, Noblesville 46060 / Muncie, All Saints; Fr Deyman (Indpls); Dale Fight, 121 N Dill, 42303, 289-4922; Mrs Max E. Stults, 282-4311 / South Bend, St Mary; Philip Mullen, LR, 1224 Lincolnway E, 46618; Phillip Lund, SW, 1021 Strong Av, Elkhart 46514, 522-3480

IOWA: Des Moines, St Aidan; Rev Louis W. Falk, 4807 Aspen Dr West Des Moines 50265, 223-1591; June Kosmach, 620 E 4½ St, S, Newton 50208, 792-6734 / Iowa City, Anglo-Catholic Fellowship; Timothy M. Falk, 246 Rienow, UI, 52242, 353-0135; Prof Archie Bush, 2232 Arizona Av, 52240/Sioux Center, St Anselm, Rev E. L. Hebden Taylor, 333-4th Av, NE, 51250, 722-1671

KANSAS: Fort Scott, St Francis, POB 425, 66701; James McNeley, SW, 223-2838 / Salina - see Kansas City MO /Wichita, Billy Nalle Apt 2205, 400 W Central Av, 67203

KENTUCKY: Ashland, St Mary; T. C. Bullington, 3429 Blackburn Av, 41101, 324-8086 / Dayton, St John, 619 O'Fallon Av, 41074, 781-5006; Rev James W. Bjorkman, 219 Glazier Av, Bellevue 41073

LOUISIANA: New Orleans, Christ, 4007 St Charles Av (103), 70115; Charles Parnell, SW, 643-0361; Ann Plaisance, 891-1797 (call both numbers after working hours)

MAINE: Augusta, St Francis; Richard Davis, 8 Fairview Av, 04330 623-4049

MARYLAND:Annapolis, St Charles the Martyr, POB 224, Millersville 21108; Dr David Knight, SW, 268-9447; Mrs duVal Allen, 263-4820; E. J. M. La Roque, 467-8096; Col Geoffrey T. Cowell, 987-5873; Rodney B. Sorkin, 721-7574 / Mount Airy, Mrs May B. Shaw, Rt 4, Box 239, 21771, 829-0205

MASSACHUSETTS: Boston, St Botolph; Fr Burt (Harvard);Mrs Stevenson, 742-1508; Mrs Walker, 734-7267 / Harvard, St Alban. POB 428 01451; Rev C. David Burt, 456-8645; Jess Keegan, 456-8705

MICHIGAN: Battle Creek, All Saints; Fr Lewis (K'zoo); George M. Spriggs, Jr, SW&LR, 263 Berkley Av, 49017, 964-7886; Walter Bilanow, 963-0420 / Grand Rapids, St Peter the Apostle, POB 1344, 49501; Rev Steinman E. Stephens, 452-4660; James Doherty, SW, 455-2232; Cleo Jones, JW, 454-2917 / Hastings, St Matthias; Fr Lewis (K'zoo);Harry Freeman, SW, 318 S Broadway, 49058, 948-8588 / Kalamazoo, St Patrick; Rev William O. Lewis, SSC, 1616 Merrill 49008, 349-7161; Rev J. Lavere Davidson, 3009 Bronson Bl, 49008, 342-4141; Dale Peeke, W, 327-9536 / Muskegon, Holy Spirit, POB 413, 49443; Fr Stephens (Gr Rpds); William Roach, SW; Russell Perkins, JW / West Branch, Holy Faith, POB 531, 48661, 345-5700, 345-5555;Fr Stephens (Gr Rpds); Louis E. Traycik, SW&LR; William Butler, LR

MINNESOTA:Minneapolis (2), St Chad; Rev John E. Holman, 782-6350 E. H. Lindemann, SW, 4177 Shoreline, 55384, 471-8653; Nelle S. Austin, JW, 698-2250 AND St Dunstan, 4800 DuPont Av, S, 55409, 824-3933; Rev Grover B. Tipton, 1431 E 80th, Bloomington 55420, 854-0347; John R. Fitzimons, SW, 474-9032; Jane Nones, 824-3933

MISSISSIPPI: Biloxi, Resurrection, PO Drawer AK, 39531; N. H. Hatten, SW, 388-6777; Mrs B. C. Lynch, 388-3776 / Gautier, Mrs M. L. Wootten, 1709 Pat Dr, 39533 / Greenville, St Luke; Fr Rosenau (Hot Springs AR); Mrs Willard McIlwain, 745 S Washington 38701; Claude Aylor, POB 311, Lake Village AR 71653 / Pascagoula Ascension; A. J. Willis, SW, 2803 Montclair Av, 39567, 769-2899

MISSOURI: Ava, St Francis-in-the-Ozarks; L. M. Heigham, SW, Back Acres Farm, RFD 4, 65608 / Columbia, Andrew J. McRoberts, 1407 Bouchelle, 65201, 449-3117, 442-5566 / Kansas City, St James;Rev James Krehemker, 12421 W 69th, Shawnee KS 66203, 268-8833; James S. L. King, Jr, LR&S, 3702 E 72d, 64132, 363-7732; Jane Culmsee, T, 913-631-0646, 268-6676; Mollie Webb, V, 913-262-1832 / Monett Transfiguration, POB 12, 65708; Dr Ben Davis, SW, 235-3202; William F. Gabler, LR, 235-7266; Capt W. R. Swindells, LR, 501-253 9701 (days), 253-9800 (after 7 p.m.) / Poplar Bluff, William W. Pettet,211 N Broadway (104),63901,785-5684,686-2356 / St Louis (2), Ascension,1628 Jonquil Dr,63119;Bruce Long,SW,966-8297; Alan Davis,JW,821-2806 AND Holy Apotles,POB 3854,63122;Rev J. A. Lafond Lapointe, POB 5716, Chicago 60680, 978-1285; William Vesser, SW, 965-4433; Leland Hilligoss, T, 726-3481

NEBRASKA: Ainsworth, Holy Trinity; Fr Buck (V'tine); Theresa Denry, POB 57, Long Pine 69217 /Valentine, Agape, POB 147, 69201 Rev Herman Buck; Richard Theterow, SW

NEW HAMPSHIRE: Chocorua, St Margaret of Scotland;Fr Nelson (Concord);Miss Rebecca Howe, 03817 / Concord, St Luke; Rev Herman F. Nelson, 64M Wilson's Crossing Rd, Auburn 03032, 669-9706; Miss Eleanor Harte, 228-8629; Trevor Rea, 228-1854 / Jefferson, St Dunstan; Fr Nelson (Concord); George Brackett, RFD 1, Box 147, 03583 / Laconia, St Michael the Archangel; Fr Nelson (Concord); Dean Steward, 24 Ledgewood Estates, Ashland 03217 / Nashua, St John Chrysostom, 882-7831; Henry W. Edgell, SW, 44 Lucas Rd, RD 3, Manchester 03103, 627-2958; 497-4457 / Winchester, St Luke; Fr Nelson (Concord); David Hewlett, 239-4325. 239-6677

NEW JERSEY: Atlantic City, Ascension, POB 1808, 08404;Rev Robert M. Collins, 266-8807, 344-0615;Rev Stuart W. Frazier, 266-3817 / Flemington, St Peter, POB 681, 08822, 782-2521, 782-1812; Rev Gerardo Machado, 752-1784; Col James A. Horn, SW / McAfee, St Athanasius, Tranquility Dr, Highland Lakes 07422; John Pusztay, 764-3497 / Pennsauken, St Richard's Guild; Robert C. Reynold, 6556 Githens Av, 08109, 662-8933 / Plainfield, St Stephen; Rev William A. Burke;Dr Donald Moore, SW, POB 591, Bound Brook 08805 356-6873; Mrs Winkie Lorinz, 413 Brook Av, 07062, 756-6759, 233-0990 / West Orange, St Mark, 45 Main, 07052, 736-0212, 736-0264; Rt Rev William F. Burns; Rev Kennedy K. Roberts

NEW MEXICO: Albuquerque (2), St Peter, 811 Pennsylvania, NE 87110, 883-1624; Rev George B. Schold, Jr, 9824 Robins Av, NE, 87112; Richard Musgrove, SW AND St Thomas the Apostle; Rev Chas H. Olsen, Jr, 4717 Goodrich, NE, 87110 / Carlsbad, St Andrew, POB 899, 88220; Rev Ralph H. Channon, 885-2795 / Hobbs, Holy Trinity; Fr Channon (Carlsbad)

NEW YORK: Binghamton, St Thomas More; Floyd W. Roper, 9 Denton Rd, 13903, 723-1165 / Erie County - see Pendleton / Harrison, Advent, POB 585, 10528, 967-3205; Rev Paul C. Hewett, 937-1658; Adolph Rutler, SW, 232-5291 / Islip, St Stephen, POB 603, Great River.11739; Oliver Zipp, SW, 581-5584; Mrs John B. Fellows, 581 2269 / New York, Holy Grail, 108 W 15th St (J-6)10011, 675-3146; Rev Robert C. Kelley, American Greyfriars / Niagara County - see

FCCB
The Rev'd David E. Green
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

Bulk Rate
U. S. Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
Box 252, Eureka Springs, Ark. 72632

Pendleton / Pendleton, St Dunstan; Fr Ambuske (Rochester); Earl K. Chriswell, 937-7757; Stephen J. Huckins, 297-0843; Terry L. Dixon, 55 Galewood Dr, Wilson 14172, 751-6675 / Port Chester - see Harrison / Poughkeepsie, Holy Comforter;Rev Charles H. Willcox, 18 Davies Pl, 12601, 454-1740 / Rochester, Holy Cross, 615 Bay Rd, Webster 14580; Rev David J. Ambuske, 631 Chili-Scottsville Rd, Scottsville 14546, 889-3357, 244-5983; Mrs Robert J. Cone, 342-5621 / Woodbury, Good Shepherd, POB 205, 11797;Rev Rix P. Butler; Stuart D. Casper, SW, 433-9000

NORTH CAROLINA: Asheville, Our Lady of Walsingham, Rev Will H. Dunstan, 95 Sunset Dr, 28804, 254-6622 / Chapel Hill, St Thomas of Canterbury, POB 2312, 27514, 967-2442;Rev George D. Stenhouse / Charlotte, St Paul the Apostle, POB 1781, 28232; Fr Stenhouse; J. Sterling Hutcheson, MD, SW, 366-4727 / Fayetteville, Incarnation, POB 53511, 28305

OHIO: Akron, St Mary, POB 3693, 44310; Fr Ryerson (Conneaut); Dr Don R. Gerlach, C, 836-7160, 375-7324, 928-3990 / Cleveland (2), Sacred Heart; Rev Tibor Hirth, 3448 Memphis Av, 44109, 661-0169 AND St James; Rev Frank C. Irwin, 5607 Whittier Av, 44103, 431-3252; Rev Donald Rice, 368-7035; Richard Fetzer, C, 562-5781 / Columbus, Christ, 2535 Sunbury Dr, 43219, 476-4191; Rev G. Wayne Craig; Robert Amerine, SW, 888-6402 / Conneaut, St Gregory the Great; Rev James M. Ryerson, 332 Liberty, 44030, 593-1437 / Coshocton, St Paul, 1242 E Main, 622-0986; Ven Larry A. Snyder, SSC, 623-0744 / Dayton, All Saints; Rev Peter L. Bennett, 6517 Grovehill Dr, 45424, 326-5187;Daniel Sauer, SW, 274-8328/Euclid Resurrection (Mail: 29036 Ridge Rd, Wickcliffe 44092); Rev Shelbert C. Harris / Lancaster, St Luke; Fr Snyder (Coshocton); William F. Cantieri, SW, 310 Hillside Av, 43130, 653-8607 / Portsmouth, St John; Charles A. Brown, Jr, LR, 721 Washington, 45562, 353-7520

OKLAHOMA: Muskogee, Advent; Andy Maupin, LR&W, Rt 2, Box 286-C, 74401, 989-5255; Mrs Chal Wheeler, 412 N 34th, 74401, 687-4143 / Oklahoma City, Holy Cross, POB 12530, 73157, 722-3440; Rev Ralph R. Pressley, 946-3589 / Tulsa, St Stephen; John MacIntosh, 2724 S Lewis, 74114, 749-4143; Mrs Betty Spurgin, 3002 S Boston Cir, 74114, 742-6151

OREGON: Medford, St Andrew, POB 85, 97801; Rev L. Samuel Sebring Jr, 535-2197

PENNSYLVANIA: Erie, St David; Fr Ryerson (Conneaut OH); Dr Jack Zimmerly, SW, POB 84, Waterford 16441 / Hilltown, St Peter; Rev Donald Edelman;Mrs Ed Aichele, 1029 Green, RR 1, Box 300, Perkasie 18944, 882-9178/Oreland, St Richard's Guild; Fr Edelman; Mr Van Hemingway, 5802 N American, Philadelphia 19120, 229-5781 Philadelphia, St James the Less; Rev Clayton K. Hewett, 3227 W Clearfield, 19132, 229-5767, 229-5781 / Philipsburg, St Alban; Fr Johnson (State Coll); Mrs Frances Ross, 12 N 4th, 16866, 342-2627 / Pittsburgh, Holy Trinity, POB 12814, 15241; Very Rev Chas A. Hedelund, 343-9283; T. Dixon Holladay, Jr, 1823 Tyburn Ln, 15241 / State College, St Alban; Rev Henry C. Johnson (temp); Mrs Stuart Forth, 963 E McCormick Av, 16801, 234-4483

SOUTH CAROLINA: Aiken, All Saints, POB 2497, 29801; Rev Henry Summerall, Jr, 648-9529;William Nightingale, Jr, SW / Charleston St Timothy, 68½ Queen, 29401, 722-6351; Rev Robert C. Harvey, 722-3595;Clyde H. Turner, SW / Columbia, Good Shepherd, POB 1298 29202, 765-1334; Rev William L. Gatling, Jr, 772-5736; Rev William Ladkau, 791-4596 / Florence, Our Saviour; Fr Harvey (Chastn) Mrs Walter Gregg Wallace, C, Rt 4, 29501 / Greenville, Resurrection; Fr Summerall (Aiken) / Spartanburg, John Gerson, Jr, 128 Holly Dr, 29301, 576-3754, 578-7911

TENNESSEE: Brentwood, St Joseph of Arimathea, POB 821, 37027;Rev Joseph Strange Huske; Robert F. Cherry, LR; Vivian H. Head, S&T Memphis, St Thomas the Apostle; Thomas W. Bagley, SW, 65 S 2d St 38103, 522-1190 / Sewanee, St Stephen, 37375; Frank Thomas, Jr, SW, 598-5891; Reginald H. Helvenston, T, 598-5832 / Shelbyville, St Dunstan; Rev Frederick E. Preuss, II, Rt 1, Arno Rd, Franklin 37064; Ray Anderson, 799 Whitthorne, 37160, 684-0447

TEXAS: Austin, St Augustine; Fr Meshew (Euless); James C. Fish, SW, 7306 W Rim, 78731, 345-0617 / Big Spring, St Paul; Fr Meshew (Euless); W. T. Wynn, SW, 1603 W Dengar, Midland 79701; Mrs John Affleck, S, 2308 Allendale Rd, 79720 / Corpus Christi, Mrs John C. Rip, 3120 Ocean Dr, 78404 / Corsicana, Transfiguration, POB 881, 75110, 872-2581; Rev Robert Q. Kennaugh / Dallas, St Thomas Becket; Fr Meshew (Euless):Charles L. Bucy, SW, 5230 Pebblebrook 75229, 369-7416 / El Paso, William F. Dukes, 10446 Springwood Dr 79925, 591-0085, 543-7332; Mrs Catherine Washburn, 859-6613; William J. Woods, 565-1515 / Euless, St Bede; Rev Jean Pierre Meshew, POB 136, Bedford 76021, 817-498-1147; Ernest Workman, SW 217 Bedford Ct, Bedford 76021, 268-2127 / Fort Worth, St Mary Magdalene; Fr Meshew (Euless) / Grand Prairie, St Charles the Martyr, POB 575, 75051;Rev Mark G. Holliday, 262-5539 / Houston, St Edward the Confessor, POB 36277, 77036; Rev Richard E. Thrumston, 495-4035; Rev David Marion-Davis, 721-0355;Lewis E. Berry, SW,772-2322,783-3599/New Braunfels,St Joseph;Donald K. Collins, SW, 941 Fredericksburg Rd,78130,629-2915/Plano,St Mary, 1602 - 15th Pl, 75075; Rev William L. Buck; James Guidry, SW, 596-4735; Tom Simmons, LR&T, 242-7522 / San Antonio, All Saints, POB 18404 78218; Rev F. Ogden Miller, 657-4972; Donald Holmberg, SW / Victoria, St Paul, POB 4922, 77901; Fr Miller (San Antonio); Kenneth Greenhill, SW, 573-2708; Mrs J. W. Opella, T, 575-7589

UTAH: Salt Lake City, St Andrew; Rev Pedro N. Santos, 1931 Norwood Dr, Grosse Pointe Woods, MI 48236; Robert Sperking, 4691 West 4365 South, 84120, 966-4381; Mrs H. L. Cook, 277-0305

VERMONT: Northfield, Incarnation; Stephen Springer, RD 2, Randolph Center 05061 / Shelburne, St John; Preston Lawrence, SW 985-2649

VIRGINIA: Abingdon, Good Shepherd; Rev A. Fraser MacCammond, Rt 4, Box 1750, Christiansburg 24073, 382-7892; Milton Webber, SW, 628-7171, 628-5262; Mrs J. Thomas Hulvey, C, 112 Crestview Dr, 24210, 628-5391; William S. Phillips, 628-9275 / Alexandria, St Margaret of Scotland; Jerome Loomis, SW, 112 N Alfred, 22314, 836-6504; Daniel J. Jones, 3049 Shadeland Dr, Falls Church 22044 533-9505 / Amherst, Ascension; Rev John A. Pedlar. POB 552. 24521 Blacksburg, St Peter; Rev Harry B. Scott, III, POB 238, Christiansburg 24073, 382-7970; Dr Robert C. Heterick, Jr, SW, 234 Craig Dr, 24060, 552-1587 / Bridgewater, Holy Cross, Box 99 BC, 22812, 828-2501; Rev Dale E. Mekeel, 828-6834 / Centreville, Ascension, 13941 Braddock Rd, 22020;Rev Ramsay Robertson-Kendall Nathaniel F. Young, SW, 10510 Cedar Av, Fairfax 22030 / Clifton Forge, St Stephen / Hollins College, St Thomas of Canterbury; Fr Scott (Blacksburg); John Cunningham, Hollins College, 24020, 362 6350 (days), 362-6583 (evenings) / Newport News, St Matthew, POB 1261, 23601; Fr Boeger (Richmond); Ben Joyner, LR, 491 Nelson Dr (10),23601, 595-6748 / Norfolk, St Edward the Confessor, POB 12311, 23502, 461-3922; Joseph Mahler, SW / Portsmouth, St Mary the Virgin; Fr Mekeel (Bridgewater); William Agner, SW, 485-2851 Richmond, Christ the King;Rev Kyle Boeger,POB 236,Bremo Bluff 23022; Ralph R. Hudson, SW, 9461 Tuxford Rd, 23235, 320-5696; Harold Bell, JW, 320-3734

WASHINGTON: Redmond, St Bartholomew, POB 447, Kirkland 98033; Alan R. A. Yeoman, JW, 9675 Evergreen Dr, Bellevue 98004/ Sequim St Anselm of Canterbury; George Edgar Brown, SW, Rt 3, Box 781, 98382, 683-3637 / Snohomish County, Christ, POB 677, Marysville 92870; Robert Honerkamp, 659-2190

WISCONSIN: Janesville, All Saints; Fr Tipton (St Dunstan, Minneapolis); Jerry Bowles, 57 S Blackhawk, 53545, 756-1550

WYOMING: Cheyenne, Blessed Sacrament, POB 66, 82001; Jack Dabney 3566 Essex Rd, 82001

C A N A D A

ALBERTA: Calgary, Rev A. E. Potter, 8 Windsor Crescent, SW, T2V 1V3; Ed Buskel, 316-32d Av, NE, T2E 2G9, 255-1580 / Edmonton, Resurrection; G. Mealey, 10511-140th St, T5N 2M1, 452-2853; Colin Grant, 465-1073; Barbara Makarowski, 487-1496; Babs Hanna, 433-1819

BRITISH COLUMBIA: Vancouver, St Mary & St Martha, 2243 W 47th Av V6M 2M8; Rev E. S. Gale / Victoria, St Athanasius; Rev Peter Wilkinson, 5238 Beckton Rd, V8Y 2C1, 658-5575;Rev R. C. Henstock 410-1020 Burdett Av, V8V 3H1

MANITOBA: Winnipeg, St Thomas More; Fr Blomquist (Windsor ON); George W. Pearce, 55 Wilton, R3M 3B3

ONTARIO: Alexandria, Glengarry Mission; Robert B. Kerr, POB 1101 K0C 1A0, 525-3696 / Cobourg, St Mary; Rev Bruce Parry, 295 King, W, K9A 2N4, 372-8637 / Ottawa, Annunciation; Rev C. J. deCatanzaro, 318 Clemow Av, K1S 2B8, 232-5406; Douglas Norman, SW, 729-7227;Rev W. Newton Porter, RR 4, North Augusta K0G 1R0, 924-2505 Rev M. W. Helston, 1275 Richmond Rd (1208), K2B 8E3, 829-8483; Rev George Theckedath, 1148 Rockingham, K1H 8A7, 521-4717 / Toronto, Rev Roland F. Palmer, 661 Dufferin, M6K 2B3 / Windsor, St Thomas More; Rev Robert R. J. Blomquist, 8516 Foxhill Pl, N8S 4H8, 944-1380, 969-7822

D I O C E S E S

Christ the King: 6013 Lawton Av, Oakland, CA 94618;Rt Rev Robert S. Morse; Rev Francis W. Read, Chancellor

Holy Trinity: 2290 S Clayton, Denver CO 80210; Rt Rev James O. Mote; John Archibold, Chancellor

Mid-Atlantic States: Box 99 BC, Bridgewater, VA 22812; Rt Rev C. Dale David Doren (to be translated from Midwest 17 March); Rev Dale E. Mekeel, President, Standing Committee

Midwest: 2535 Sunbury Dr, Columbus OH 43219; Bishop Doren (see Mid-Atlantic States); Very Rev G. Wayne Craig, Archpriest; Ven Larry A. Snyder, SSC,Archdeacon;William M. S. Dunn, Chancellor

Resurrection: 45 Main, West Orange, NJ 07052; Rt Rev William F. Burns

Southeastern United States: 1003 Allendale Rd, West Palm Beach, FL 33405; Rt Rev Peter Francis Watterson

Southwest: POB 575, Grand Prairie, TX 75051; Rev Mark G. Holliday, President, Standing Committee; Joseph J. Guminski, Jr, Secretary, Standing Committee

LAST MINUTERS: Montreal, QUEBEC, St Athanasius; Rev'd David L. Belden, 844-9498 / Chico, CA, William J. Davis, 40 Forrest Creek Circle 95926 / Hilltown, PA, add phone 201-752-8580 for Fr Edelmann

WHAT TO LIST

The primary reason for listing parishes in the newsletter is, as stated elsewhere in this issue, to provide readers some idea of where they may go to worship and where they may find a parish to support. What information do you want to see listed? From our personal experience, we know how important a telephone number is. Names are not so important; whether a parish has, or hasn't, a priest is. A good mailing address, prefereably a post office box, is. Let me know what you think is essential in the parish listing.

F C C

The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
N E W S L E T T E R

VOLUME II, Number 5 April A.D. 1979

We and our people -thanks be to God- follow no novel and strange religions, but that very religion which is ordained by Christ, sanctioned by the primitive and Catholic Church and approved by the consentient mind and voice of the most early Fathers.--Elizabeth I in 1563

APR 25 1979

WILLIAM Oliver Lewis, 56, Rector of St Patrick's Anglican Church, Kalamazoo, Michigan, and, like so many other AC priests at the moment, a circuit rider (All Saints', Battle Creek and St Matthias', Hastings), was elected, on the first ballot, II Bishop of the Anglican Diocese of the Midwest. Father Wol (note his Christopher-Robinish initials) succeeds the Right Rev'd C. Dale David Doren who has been translated to the Diocese of the Mid-Atlantic States. Chicago-born and -educated, he was ordered deacon in June, 1958, and priested in December of that year. He is married to the former Elsie Featherstone and the Lewises have six children. The dates for Father Lewis' consecration and enthronement will be announced later.

ORDINATIONS DONALD Herbert Edelman, on the Feast of St Matthias and by the I Bishop of the Diocese of the Resurrection, at Christ House, Lafayette, N. J., and Roderic B. Dibbert, on Ember Saturday and by the I Bishop of the Diocese of the Holy Trinity, at the Seminary Chapel of Calvin College, Grand Rapids, Mich., were ordained to the Sacred Priesthood.

DEFENSE FUNDS NEEDED AT the beginning of March, the attorneys in the suit by the Diocese of Newark against St Mark's Parish and the Diocese of the Resurrection were given three weeks to file final briefs and an additional week to respond to the filings. The judge's decision will come some time after that. In the meantime, you can help with your prayers and with your purse. Neither the parish nor the diocese has sufficient funds to meet the total costs of their legal defense. Send your checks, made out to St Mark's Anglican Catholic Church and marked "For legal defense", to the Treasurer, Diocese of the Resurrection, 45 Main Street, West Orange, NJ 07052.

OF your Christian charity, pray for our bishops- William, Dale, Robert, James, Peter, William (bishop-elect), and especially for Albert.

THE ANGLICAN SYNTHESIS

BY Oliver K. Zipp, Senior Warden of St Stephen's Anglican Church, Islip, Long Island, New York.

The changing of our Church's name from the Anglican Church in North America to the Anglican Catholic Church points up a dichotomy within our movement that I hope we will not try to smother with large doses of pollyanna, but, rather, work out with some hard thinking. For if not faced openly with the power that only prayer for Christian charity will provide, it will haunt us through every step of the long pilgrimage we must take together.

This dilemma was the underlying cause of most of our reprehensible behavior at Dallas. Indeed, one of our priests wandered the aisles at that convention repeatedly asking, "Who are we? What are we doing here?" Pertinent questions, they.

Perhaps we are divided along the old lines of "high" versus "low" Churchmanship, but in a new context: between those who see our movement as something of a way station on the road to pure Catholicism (whether Roman, Eastern Orthodox or Old Catholic) and those who, while asserting their catholicity, still insist that we openly acknowledge our debt to the Protestant Reformation; between those who, seeing the Reformation as heresy, long for reunion of the various branches of the Catholic Church and those who, valuing certain aspects or influences of the Reformation,wish to include the Protestant Church also in that ultimate unity. (I say "ultimate unity" because I am not able to see the possibility of an institutional union - in either direction - in the foreseeable future, that is, if we are not to sacrifice the very things that make the Anglican Church unique. It has been lately said that we are Catholics first and Anglicans second. I prefer to say that we are Christians first and Anglicans second. To add the words "Catholic" or "Protestant" is redundant in light of the history of the Anglican Church. There have been, & there are today, factions on both sides -legitimate emphases- but they are not necessarily the whole Anglican Church.) It is my untutored guess that a somewhat substantial and articulate part of our clergy lean to the former, whereas a sizeable & less articulate part of the laity tend towards the latter. All of us, clergymen and laymen alike, who have invested our tears, time, talents and treasure in the continuing Anglican movement are entitled to a clear and frank statement of the direction in which we intend to move. My purpose is to call forth the dialogue that will reveal that direction.

Who are we? The burden of this article is that the Anglican Church is a special Christian body, or synthesis if you will, chosen of Christ to do a special work of unity or reconciliation in His Kingdom - and granted by Him a special circumstance and a special insight to accomplish that work. As is so often the case, our problem is at one and the same time our opportunity to serve Him and our obligation to do so. If we are not so chosen, we only clutter up the Christian landscape with another branch, sect, denomination, or whatever we call it. I contend that the Anglican Church is neither Catholic in the sense of the Roman Church,nor Orthodox in the sense of the Eastern Church,nor Protestant in the sense of any existing Protestant denomination (all three would probably vie to be the first to agree!). We are Anglicans, with a particular history, tradition, genius -and I say calling- of our own that is loyal to the doctrines of the early Church, rooted and grounded in Holy Scripture, strongly influenced by the liturgy & practices of the western Catholic Church (and, of late, the Eastern Church), & incorporating certain important aspects or features of the Protestant Reformation. That is our birthright and if we turn aside we cease to be truly Anglican. If this be true, far from discouraging different emphases within our ranks, we should encourage them as a valid part of our Anglican unity and as a necessary prelude to doing the work that I believe Christ has especially called us to do in Christendom. It is even possible that the future unity of all Christianity is, in some measure, dependent upon our faithfully and imaginatively answering this call.

If this concept is not valid, then we have scant excuse to maintain a separate Anglican Church apart from the unity of the greater body of Christians where we belong (wherever that might be)& we become a conglomeration of Roman Catholics,Eastern Orthodox, Old Catholics and Protestants ridiculously vying for power in a tiny backwater movement, marking time until we all spin off to the gravitational pull of one or the other of those massive forces. Indeed, if the concept is false, it would seem fitting that we honor, as perspicacious, those priests and laymen who, believing our movement to be yet another bar to Catholic unity, have left us for one or the other of those great bodies.

Again - Who are we? Perhaps my point may be best illustrated by citing the experience of the little band of people who make up St Stephen's Church, Islip, New York, whose experiences might possibly call up parallels in your own newly formed parish. Our people left their old PECUSA churches primarily because of the destruction of the Book of Common Prayer - though we soon saw that that was but the tip of the iceberg,that our real complaint was the gradual adoption of modernist, humanist religion, with all its incursions of religious skepticism, relativistic morals, situational ethics and their concurrent immoralities, including divorce, abortion and homosexuality. We were of a mixed and unsophisticated theological background. Instinctively some of us thought of ourselves as Catholics, others as Protestants, and some were not quite sure. All considered themselves orthodox Christians,accepting Holy Scripture as the revealed Word of God, and upholding the Creeds, Councils and traditions of the early Church as authoritative. We put aside denominational distinctions as secondary to the all important matter of achieving Christian holiness. We wished to continue to try to be a holy people - members of a holy Church having holy bishops, priests & laymen, working to spread Christ's Holy Gospel, and keeping an increasingly rotten secular world from invading the last place of refuge in this world - Christ's Holy Church.

We were Catholic enough to be reluctant to defy our bishops, but Protestant enough to believe that bishops do not receive the power of the Holy Spirit by the laying on of hands alone - that an ongoing commitment to Christ is a prime necessity of grace. We felt that we owed no allegiance to a Minneapolis convention that denied the traditional Faith, and we reached back to a time in history when the Holy Spirit purged the western Catholic Church with the rod of His anger, the Protestant Reformation. We believed that He brought forth at that time a new statement of the Church - an Anglican Church that remains faithful to the Sacraments and to the doctrinal essentials of the early Church but which has removed some of the pagan accretions of the western Church & replaced them with the best features of the Reformation. We held these to be the prominent place occupied by Holy Scripture in the Church and the recognition of political freedom which gives laymen,as well as clergymen,voice in the entire life of the Church - including matters spiritual. It has been said that bishops should have complete say in matters spiritual, and that laymen should have a voice in things temporal. As a matter of routine daily Church life that is undoubtedly the best arrangement, & possibly it is meant in that sense. On critical spiritual matters,however,can the layman abrogate his spiritual responsibility-even to bishops who he gladly acknowledges to be his superiors in the Church? It was, after all, the defying of bishops on the gravest spiritual matters that prompted priests & laymen alike to break with PECUSA. Is it reasonable to expect them to submit in these matters tomorrow when they would not submit yesterday?

Permit me to use a somewhat facetious & simplistic analogy to illustrate the synthesis of which I write. The Catholic lion has been mated with the Protestant tiger. The offspring is the Anglican tiglon - a beast that is a real animal and all of one piece. Where the lion stops and the tiger begins is impossible clearly to distinguish or sort out. The fact that he is a different species is obvious, however, even to the zoologically untrained. If we, hoping to rid the animal of either of its antecedents, cut away any of the vital organs we destroy the whole animal. PECUSA performed radical surgery on its two major sources of strength: the heart of its unity, the Book of Common Prayer, & the arteries of its catholicity, the Priesthood. The animal has been mortally wounded.

We can be sure that the Anglican synthesis which I have tried to outline will present itself a house of horrors to the theologically precise, but great religious movements become living realities before they are theologically explained and supported. The living reality of our synthesis can be found to be honored in our Book of Common Prayer and in our liturgy. The thread of its meaning runs through the entire history of the Anglican Church, down to our own time where it is evident in the Affirmation of St Louis, and, indeed, where it is woven into the very fabric of the new Constitution we are now in the process of adopting. It is our strength, not our weakness - and we should, without embarrassment,acknowledge it to the world as the meaning of the word Anglican - a particular Christian people, chosen of Christ to a particular Christian calling, and given a particular Christian birthright.

Dear Fellow Member in Christ -

Whether or not you agree with this paper your response is sincerely solicited and will be most appreciated. Thank you.

Oliver K. Zipp

[Mr Zipp's address is 44 Ocean Av, Islip, NY 11751. Write him direct if you are so moved, or in care of the newsletter.]

FCCY
Graduate Theological Union Library
Serials Dept.
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

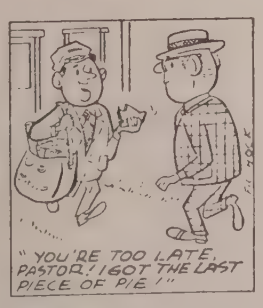
Bulk Rate
U. S. Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

F C C The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
Box 252, Eureka Springs, Ark. 72632

A GREAT DAY FOR THE IRISH

FOLLOWING his translation from the Diocese of the Midwest, C. Dale David Doren, on the Feast of St Patrick and in the Church of the Holy City, Washington, D. C. (the place of worship of St Hilda of Whitby Anglican Church), was enthroned as I Bishop of the Mid-Atlantic States. Participants in the ceremony included the I Bishop of the Diocese of the Holy Trinity, the I Bishop of the Diocese of the Resurrection, and the Bishop-elect of the Midwest. South Dakota-born and a graduate of Seabury-Western Theological Seminary, Bishop Doren was priested in 1944. He was the first bishop of the continuing Anglican Church to be consecrated at Denver last year and until his translation served as I Bishop of the Midwest as well as Rector of Holy Trinity Parish, Pittsburgh.

TBO



THE BARN OWL has received 25 requests for linens, 14 for designs and instructions. She has also received approximately 200 pounds of linen and thread, and $416.50 in unsolicited cash and stamps (we presume the stamps were uncancelled as well as unsolicited). At no time was any gift sent to TBO stipulating that it should go only to a particular parish or diocese. All gifts have been given in love with prayers, blessings and best wishes, and all were sent out by TBO in the same way. Therefore, since God created all those good and perfect gifts the donors and makers offer them to Him with thanks.

WANTED

A PRIEST for All Saints' in Janesville, Wisconsin. The Senior Warden writes: Our congregation has grown to 85 parishioners since . . . November 1978. Janesville is a beautiful Wisconsin city of 60,000 & All Saints' has the potential to grow in a short time to over 100 parishioners. We have 11 in our confirmation class and a Sunday School program has been established. Our parish is so enthusiastic that we have 22 parishioners chartering a bus for the Midwest Synod on March 9 in Grand Rapids. For further information write to Jerry Bowles, Senior Warden, All Saints' Anglican Catholic Church, 57 S Blackhawk, Janesville, WI 53545, or call 608-756-1550.

A WHITE (or gold) cope, a purple cope, and a set of Mass vestments are requested for Our Lady of Walsingham Anglican Catholic Church in Asheville, North Carolina. For further information: The Rev'd Dr Will H. Dunstan, 95 Sunset Dr, Asheville 28804.

A PRIEST (straight 1928 Prayer Book according to the note we received) for St Luke's Church, 20769 Mesarica Road, Covina, CA 91724. St Luke's is in the Diocese of the Holy Trinity and is presently meeting at the 7th Day Adventist Church in Glendora. Inquiries should be addressed to the Parish Clerk.

THERE is little question but what the Right Rev'd C. Dale David Doren, I Bishop of the Mid-Atlantic States, & whose missionary duties stret ched from South Dakota through Polynesia to Korea (Archdeacon of Taejon in 1974) and most recently I Bishop of the Midwest, is a godly man. What may not be so well known, however, is that the Bishop is not only a gentleman and a scholar, but a keen judge of hot apple pie as well. If there be a chink in his Lordship's armor it is his fondness for homemade pie. Lest any readers feel that I am putting them on, I point out to you all that the Bishop himself sent in the cartoon above.

OFFERED

SERMONS for lay readers by the Reverend Fathers (in alphabetical order) Rayburn (Florida), Rosenau (Arkansas) and Simcox (Kentucky) are available from Mission Press, 941 Fredericksburg Rd, New Braunfels, TX 78130. Ask the publisher for a list, also, of "How to" pamphlets and, pretty please, enclose a dollar for his trouble - and postage.

FROM Pilgrimage Publications (formerly ICBM, a work of the Church under the aegis of St Chrysostom's Parish, Hot Springs, Arkansas): The 1979 flyer remains mostly accurate. Request a new one only if you need to replace a mislaid one [&, again, pretty please, a dollar for his trouble - & postage]. We are changing the name but the task is the same - providing resources in and for the historical Christian Faith and Order. New from Pilgrimage Publications is Transfiguration: Passages from a Pastoral Journal. Covering a host of concerns in a pastoral setting it should prove valuable for the spiritual growth of priests, lay readers, seminarians and others. Initial price, in expectation of demand, is $3.75 plus p/h. Scheduled for summer publication (can be ordered now) is "The Shroud of Turin: Its meaning today for believers and seekers of truth" - cost, $1.00. Feel free to inquire about any and all listings. Any sample sermon is now $1.00. Until September the first (sample) chapter of the correspondence course (KGT) is only $1.00, & for group use, the full KGT manuscript can be supplied for $15.00. Write to Pilgrimage Publications, POB 1241, Hot Springs, AR 71901.

PIPE organ for sale by the Society of St John the Evangelist, Mission House, Box 660, Bracebridge, Ontario PØB 1CØ, "suitable for use in a small church . . . 4 extended ranks of pipes and the 2-manual and pedal consol is wired for 19 stop s." Write to the above address for further details.

ENGLISH Missals are available, according to a letter received by Fred Glahe, of Boulder, Colorado, and shared with newsletter readers: Copies of [the] Altar copy of the 5th edition published in 1958 are available from stock bound in buckram cloth at £24.00 printed red and black throughout, silk marker, colored edges, size 9"x11½" available in green, blue or black. A companion volume for Holy Week is also available at £1.50 printed and produce in same style as the missal. Post and packing are extra, for surface parcel post add £5.50 or for air mail £9.00, remittance preferably by sterling draft or international money order should be made payable to "C.L.A. Bookshop". The address: Church Literature Association Bookshop, Faith House, 7 Tufton Street, London SW1P 3QN.

ADD, DELETE, CORRECT

CHANGES to the Spring Directory of Parishes:
ADDITIONS: CALIFORNIA: Monterey Park, Holy Spirit, 133 E Graves Av, 91754, 213-280-8977, 280-8253 / KANSAS: Salina St Alban, c/o Richard L. Waller, POB 70, 67419 / TEXAS: McAllen, Holy Cross, POB 2102, Downtown Station, 78501, 512-787-7478, 787-6947
CHANGES: FLORIDA: West Palm Beach, Holy Spirit (mail: 317 Jefferson Rd, 33401, 305-833-9937 / NEW YORK: Huntington, Good Shepherd POB 205, Woodbury 11797, 516-433-9000 (from Woodbury) TEXAS: Bedford, St Bede, POB 136, 76021, 817-498-1147 (from Euless) / Corpus Christi, Holy Trinity, c/o Mrs John Cornelius Rip, 3120 Ocean Dr, 78404 / Midland, St Paul, c/o W. T. Wynn, SW, 1603 W Dengar, 79701 or Mrs John Affleck, S, 2308 Allendale Rd, 79720 (from Big Spring)

DELETIONS: The Rev'd Rix P. Butler, Good Shepherd, Huntington (Woodbury), New York / The Rev'd Whitney Church, Holy Spirit, West Palm Beach, Florida

SCOTCH & WRY

Rumor III - Mission Press of San Antonio is no longer in business. False. Mission Press is alive and well in New Braunfels, Texas. The temporary address (until the press can be moved into a post office box, no small feat) is 941 Fredericksburg Rd, New Braunfels 78130. The new telephone number is 512-629-2915.

Rumor IV - The Diocese of the Southwest is defunct, and is to be reorganized as the Diocese of Texas. False. The Standing Committee of DSW meets monthly, transacting the business & overseeing the work of the Church in that diocese. Two priests have come to the diocese in the past month, another is to be admitted at the next meeting of the Standing Committee, & several others have expressed a desire to go there. Holy Trinity Parish has been organized in Corpus Christi, and three or four more are expected to organize in the immediate future. DSW, according to our informant, is "alive, well, and, by the grace of God, thriving."

POSTAGE & PRINTING

COST money - & as inflation inexorably spirals upward so do the costs of postage and printing. New readers, and quite frequently old readers, of the newsletter ask about the "subscription rate". In each case I reply that there is none, that the Fellowship underwrites the cost of the newsletter & that the Fellowship is financed by voluntary, tax-deductible contributions. And that is all true, of course, but it doesn't give a conscientious newsletter reader much of a guideline to help determine how much of a donation to send. I am indebted to Miss Jane Barry of New Orleans, a reader and supporter of the newsletter since its inception, who asked the question and then went on, "I had in mind $13.00 per annum ($1.00 for Christ and $1.00 for each Holy Apostle)." The newsletter would thrive on such a diet - and there'd be money over for other Fellowship projects (see the lead article in the February issue for an idea of where FCC money goes).

ADIEU, MON AMIE

LITTLE enough humor is expressed in Church - and that's a pity for, if nothing else, we need occasionally to laugh at ourselves, & each other, as we make our difficult pilgrimage. One of the bright spots in my reading this past year has been the weekly parish bulletin from St Timothy's Church, Charleston, South Carolina. A classic was the editor's description of what happened when the time changed from standard to daylight. Now the editorship has changed and here are two short samples from her (I think) last bulletin. Winding up an announcement (exhortation, really) on the Shrove Tuesday Pancake Supper: "Don't forget you are not a good Anglican unless you eat pancakes on Shrove Tuesday. It says so right here in the Prayer Book." The editorial sign-off: "And so I bring to a close, as the sun sinks slowly in the west, my year and a half charge of being your informant. Beginning with next week's bulletin there will be another to keep you up with the latest news items and commentary. Be good and pay attention."

She'll be back - there's ink in her veins.

CHECK with your Senior Warden: does he receive the Fellowship Newsletter? If not, send us his name and address.

MAY 22 1979

FCC The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen NEWSLETTER

Volume II, Number 6 May A.D. 1979

We and our people -thanks be to God- follow no novel and strange religions, but that very religion which is ordained by Christ, sanctioned by the primitive and Catholic Church and approved by the consentient mind and voice of the most early Fathers.--Elizabeth I in 1563

THE logo is that of the Church of the Advent, Harrison-Port Chester-Rye, New York. According to the parish bulletin, the Greek cross signifies the Christian religion. The crossed keys symbolize the authority of the Church to forgive sins, given by Christ through St Peter, and the desire for Christian unity. The crossed windmill sails stand for New York State, founded by the Dutch. The Alpha and Omega represent Christ, the Beginning and the End, an Advent theme.

A PRIMER ON SEEKING SECULAR WORK

MANY faithful priests have been removed from their cures because they are involved with the continuing Anglican movement. They now face the prospect of seeking secular employment to keep body & soul (and often family) together. Hundreds of others have expressed the desire to "come out" to minister to loyalist parishes. They would be willing to support themselves and their families with secular work, if only they knew how. Fear of destitution adds its own pangs to those of an already troubled conscience.

Reverend Fathers, take heart! You are not nearly as unprepared for gainful secular employment as you may think. You have developed skills similar in many respects to those sought in "the business world". Management level jobs are not beyond you. The job of running a parish is in many ways more of a management task than many white-collar positions in commerce or industry.

For those priests anxious to remain faithful to Church and Faith, and to minister to one or more of the many Anglican Catholic congregations now without a shepherd (but equally "anxious" as to how their families will survive once they have been deprived of their comfortable "PECUSiary" security), here is a brief lesson in seeking secular employment.

The first task, of course, is to write a resumé. I believe that some of this has been going on in ecclesiastical bodies where an excess of clergy is looking for opportunities to minister to a shortage of laity. It is unlikely, however, that an ecclesiastically oriented resumé is immediately convertible for use in a secular job-search. Academic achievements in philosophy, ecclesiastical music, advanced homiletics and the like, are not quite to the point.

Start by facing the awful fact that your resumé, on the average, will have about thirty seconds to catch the interest of the harried personnel operative with a stack of fifty to a hundred "Curricula Vitarum" on his desk. For those used to a pulpit and a captive audience, that may seem an impossibly brief time but it is how the game is played. The moral is obvious: say the really important things first, say them briefly, say them clearly, and say them on one page. (Needless to say, "important" in this context means "important" to your reader.)

As to biographical background, what your reader wants to know is your name, your age, your marital status & how to reach you (address and phone). Put no more than that at the top -- all else can come later. (Yes, I know age is supposed to be irrelevant, legally. In fact, however, it is not irrelevant. Many jobs are better suited to mature people, others to the more youthful. In any case, if you are in the 40 to 70 protected age group, saying so will make it harder, not easier, for the man to turn you down in the real world of a working employment office!)

He'll want to know, in one or two BRIEF sentences,what kind of work you want to do. He wants to be sure that what you want to do fits with what he has available. Do not make the mistake of saying that you want to "work with people". That is the tiredest cliché of all. State, rather, whether you are most interested in marketing, production, finance, research, personnel, engineering &c, and at what level you think you are qualified, i.e., entry-level, supervisory, managerial, or executive. As an alternative, state your one or two top skills, and say you are seeking an opportunity to put them to use.

Next, he wants to know what you have done, successfully, that relates to the job he's being pressured to fill. This means your "work history". Again, you can list the history of cities, parishes, dioceses, titles, &c, at the end. The point here is not where you've been but what you've done.

Management is a combination of planning, organizing, controlling, communicating, and motivating. Fathers, you have done all these things: there is no mystery here. Spend some time remembering various projects or programs you have undertaken. How did you PLAN them? What were your objectives? How did you decide to measure progress toward your objectives? How did you assign to others the responsibility and authority to get the job done? What resource needs did you identify?

How did you ORGANIZE your available resources (people, time, money, equipment, &c) to get the job done? How did you CONTROL the various activities? What schedules, policies, progress reviews,budget reviews,expense and cash controls, &c, did you use? How did you COMMUNICATE to those involved what was expected of them, and how they were doing? How did you MOTIVATE them to do it better? How did you establish good working relationships and a team spirit?

Now that you have considered these factors, write down a summary of each significant project you have tackled. Try to cover all these points, but do so in a FEW well-chosen words. Then look carefully at the particular job (or types of jobs) for which you plan to apply. Pick the projects that seem closest to that kind of work. (You may need more than one version of your resumé; in fact, you may need several. This is standard procedure.)

Just for a few examples: If you're looking for work in labor relations, what badly divided parishes have you come into and healed? How did you do it? If you're looking for work in a production or project-oriented situation, have you perhaps headed an effort to build a new church building? If a sales spot is open, have you chaired a diocesan "venture" project or fund drive requiring convincing people to do something? If you are interested in marketing, have you started a parish in a new community,analyzing the local population and figuring out how to contact them? If you think you could work in training and management development, have you designed and taught courses, or have you trained teachers? With a nod to blessed Thomas, look for the analogies.

This analysis done, you construct the first, and key, page of your resumé. It should consist of the brief personal data described above, a one-sentence description of the kind of work you're looking for, and a list of key accomplishments showing your suitability for that type of work. On a second sheet (or better, on the back side of a single sheet resumé) list employment dates, degrees, honors and other personal data you feel to be appropriate.

Do not expect the resumé to do the whole job for you. It is a key attention-getter, but that is all. Here are the rest of the steps.

First, contact the Chamber of Commerce in the area you are interested in. Get the names of key employers. Find out if that state or municipality publishes a list, guide or description of employers; many do. In addition to (but not instead of) these things, check the local and area want-ads and contact employment agencies.

Be selective with employment agencies. First ask for a conference with one or two personnel managers of major employers in the area. Tell them you are about to start a search for secular employment, and want to ask their advice about which employment agencies are most effective. (The state employment service is almost never effective.) Such an interview will give you a slant on how to look locally. And, of course, if you get to talk to a personnel type, you just never know . . . .

Second, find out something about the business of those companies you'd like to contact in the area you've chosen. Talk to newspaper people, churchmembers there, and others. You'll want to be able to slant your approach to the realities of that business. If you know something about it, you'll have an advantage over some 90% of the job-seekers they usually interview.

Third, contact ALL of your "target companies". Don't be put off by the fact that they have no ads running:many positions are never advertised. Besides, businessmen are incurable window-shoppers for talent. Many a "cold" inquiry letter has led to a job offer.

When you make contact,ALWAYS send a TYPED personal letter with your resumé. Use the letter to explain why you feel your accomplishments in the past have suited you to the position they have open, or to their type of business. Address your letter (with resumé enclosed) to the President or Chief Executive (the General Manager if the firm is a division of a larger company), not to the personnel manager. The reason: the operating guys are the incurable window-shoppers; the personnel guys tend to respond mostly to the pressures of existing openings.

Do not hide the fact that you intend to continue to exercise your priesthood while working for a secular employer. Show that you have thought this through, and be ready in an interview to explain how you will handle both responsibilities. (Do not apply for jobs with regular Sunday morning hours!) Employers are sensitive to government regulations regarding ". . . making all reasonable accomodation . . ." to the religious practices of employees. Pull the teeth of this tiger in advance by showing that YOU have already considered how to make all reasonable accomoda- to his need to run a business.

The best way to accomplish this is to stress, in your job interview, the results you think you can accomplish for your prospective employers, rather than the specific hours and times you can or can't be in the office. Government wage-hour administrators worry over time cards and schedules; business people think primarily in terms of results accomplished.

Here again, it cannot be stressed too much that some homework done before contacting a potential employer will pay off. If you have learned something about what results are important to the business, you'll do much better in explaining how you can contribute. At the risk of repetition, sources of this kind of information are local clergy (of any faith), local Chamber of Commerce people, employment agency personnel, local media people, and other local businessmen. Surely the reverend clergy are not neophytes at "making contacts" even in an unfamiliar community.

It is a poor idea to wear clericals while on an interview for secular work. Most lay people are overmuch in awe of priestly street garb, thinking of such apparel as undistinguishable from chancel vestments. Your dog collar will age you 2000 years and separate you by several thousand miles from your interviewer. If you are new at the job interviewing game,you'll be scared enough of him. There's no sense in having him scared of you too.

Prior to an interview, fill out all application & other forms, take all tests & submit to all procedures as requested. Many of these are quintessential "Mickey Mouse", but in what situation (including parish work) is one ever free of that? The procedure will be sacrosanct to the personnel guy, & probably viewed as a good test of your tractability by the operating manager. Time enough later to negotiate about such items as salary, benefits & conditions of employment; why fight over procedures?

In an interview be positive, open, confident and alert. Sum up from time to time the needs of the employer and your qualifications to meet them, as these become clear from the conversation. Do NOT say such things as,"I'll take anything" or "Salary is not important to me." Such talk makes no sense to a businessman; if you seem not to value yourself (in the business world's sense of "value"), he will not value you either. Stress what you can contribute, and simply assume that this makes you "worth" something to an employer.

Tell the employer that your original decision to seek secular work is the result of your insistence on sticking to your principles in religious matters. Contrary to the uninformed bias of Hollywood and the TV networks,most businessmen are men of principle, & admire others who are. (I've even met businessmen who are in sympathy with post-1976 PECUSA, who nevertheless admire loyalist clergy for refusing to compromise their consciences.)If you can add, honestly, that now you've explored secular opportunities you see the possibility of making an interesting and valuable contribution to society in addition to that of your secu-

FCCY
Graduate Theological Union Library
Serials Dept.
2451 Ridge Road
Berkeley, CA 94709

Bulk Rate
U. S. Postage
PAID
Eureka Springs, AR
Permit No. 49

F The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
C C Box 252, Eureka Springs, Ark. 72632

lar role, then by all means say so. Successful business people often are involved in off-the-job community activities which they, at least, may see as analagous to your situation. While I personally feel that the analogy is superficial, you'll find that there is less prejudice than you may think against what you want to do.

To sum up, Fathers, the business of seeking secular employment is in no way beyond you. It is a project like any other project. Its components are the resumé, some research on employers in your chosen community, the personal cover letter, the ability to analyze how your past experience fits you to contribute to an enterprise, and the ability to handle yourself well in an interview. You have these skills and have used them already. It's merely a question of rearranging the package.

And the cause, Fathers, is a just one. This article was not written as a panegyric on the worker-priesthood. The life of such a priest is not ideal. Time is short, the body gets tired, intercessions and meditations get squeezed in at odd hours, time conflicts do occur and require resolution, few things get done the way you really want to do them. Nevertheless, for those called to serve the faithful remnant of God's people in the Anglican tradition, there is often no alternative. Priest in many places are doing the job successfully with God's help. Perhaps a generation of tentmakers not chargeable to their flocks will be a useful influence within the body of the clergy. There are many gifts. If you are willing to be among that generation, do not assume that securing secular employment is beyond you. With God's help, you can do it.

[The above was written by a worker priest who has successfully combined a business career with his priesthood. It is, therefore, based on practical knowledge - not erudite theory. If you would care to consult with him, you may write, in confidence, to: Resumé, Fellowship Newsletter, POB 252, Eureka Springs, AR 72632. Your letter will be forwarded to the author for reply.]

FROM THE HEART

MY heart is heavy because of the news of the death of an heroic priest in the Church of God, Father Ralph Pressley of Oklahoma City. In my prayers I shall give thanks for his contribution to the cause of continuing Anglicanism, especially in this area, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas. As I pray for the repose of his soul, I shall also be interceding for many another Anglican Catholic priest who, like Father Pressley, is burning himself out trying to carry the Sacraments, and his other priestly ministrations, to several congregations miles apart. These men of God are walking in the paths of martyrdom. Their mistreatment by ecclesiastical powers has caused them pain, not to say economic loss. But, their greatest peril is that the burdens they are attempting to carry will strike them down in the midst of their labors.

May I urge a great wave of intercession by all of us who cannot be in the line of fire as was Ralph Pressley for the bishops and priests of the Anglican Catholic Church, that they may be sustained physically as well as mentally and spiritually for the sake of the Church for which they are offering themselves, "A living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God."

[The author of the above, a 78-year-old retired priest, living in rural Arkansas, may not consider himself in the "line of fire" -- but he traveled by highway 186 miles, one way, with an overnight stop, to celebrate the Eucharist on Easter Day for a congregation without a priest.]

IDLE IDLE THOUGHT

IF the Anglican Catholic Church is looking for a place for its headquarters, the Island of Iona, a center of early Celtic Christianity, is for sale. The XII Duke of Argyll has announced his intention to sell the tiny island (3 miles long, 1½ wide) in an attempt to raise enough money to pay estate taxes owed since the death of his great-uncle, the X Duke. Smiths Gore, a real estate firm in Glasgow, plans to put the island up for sale in May.

OFFERED

Analytical Concordance to the Bible, by Robert Young (Young's Concordance), $18.95; The Oxford Dictionary of the Christian Church, 2nd edition, Cross & Livingstone, $45.00; Oxford American Prayer Book Commentary 1950, by Massey H. Shepherd, $17.95; Word Studies in the New Testament, by Marvin R. Vincent, 4 volumes, $27.50. Available through The Kingfisher, Route 1, Box 44, Eureka Springs, AR 72632; please add 10% for postage and handling. [Note: The Kingfisher is related, by marriage, to the Barn Owl.]

The Old Catholic Movement: Its Origin and History, by C. B. Moss, one of the most trustworthy theologians and historians of the Anglican Communion, is an account, of particular interest to continuing Anglicans, of the separation of a number of Churches from the Church of Rome & which now comprise the Old Catholics, in communion with the See of Utrecht and with the Church of England; $4.95, plus 48¢ postage (59¢ after 6 July).

Charles Simeon of Cambridge, by Hugh A. E. Hopkins, Canon of Gloucester, is the biography of a true evangelist of the English Church; $6.00, plus 48¢ postage (59¢ after 6 July). Both books are available through the Episcopal Book Club, Hillspeak, Eureka Springs, AR 72632.

ADDITIONS, CORRECTIONS, DELETIONS

ADDITIONS: ARIZONA: Phoenix, Holy Cross, Fr Donovan (see Payson); Tucson, St Jude, Rev Robert G. Wilkes, 7400 Calle Cuernavaca, 85710, 296-5570 / CALIFORNIA: Hayward, Trinity, 1805 Hill Av, 94541, Rev Graham N. Lesser, 581-0848; Monterey Park, Holy Spirit, 133 E Graves Av, 91754, Rev Raymond G. Frost, 280-8977, 280-8253 / MICHIGAN: Howell, Epiphany, Rev David P. Sprunk, 2472 Karen Dr, 48843, 546-8249 / NEW MEXICO: Hobbs, Holy Trinity, Fr Channon (Carlsbad)/ NEW YORK: Schuylerville, David Bullard, RFD, 12871, 695-3765 (home), 695-3177 (farm office) / TEXAS: Beaumont St Bartholomew; Rev David H. Marion-Davis, 11525 Burdine Way (413), Houston 77035, 721-0355; William Maultsby, SW, POB 1045, Orange, 77630, 886-4994; McAllen, Holy Cross, POB 2102, Downtown Station, 78501; Rev Thomas Gore. 787-7478; Mrs C. G. Simmons, S, 787-6947/ C A N A D A: ONTARIO: Oshawa, Rev Gordon Scovell, 576-2969; Pickering, George Child, 839-8271

CORRECTIONS: COLORADO: Grand Junction, St Anthony of the Desert, Rev Richard Willars, 2695 W Evans, Denver 80219; Mrs Grace Hardcastle, 1441 Patterson Rd (502), 81501 / FLORIDA: Brandon, St Matthias, Miss Mary F. Gower, 213 W Jean, Tampa 33604, 233-9052; West Palm Beach, Holy Spirit, 317 Jefferson Rd, 33401, Rt Rev Peter F. Watterson, 833-9937; Winter Haven, St Mary, POB 9351, 33880; Rev Pomeroy H. Hartman, 293-6009 / INDIANA: Bedford-Bloomington, Good Shepherd; Rev David L. Belden;Mrs Norman Nichols, RR 13,Box 653,Bedford 47421;Joel Marsh,RR 10,Box 637,Bloomington 47401;Evansville,St Mary the Virgin;Fr Belden;William Hickman,POB 3271,47701/KANSAS:Salina,St Alban;Richard L. Waller, LR,POB 70,Bavaria 67419;Rose Ahlers,S,827-8898 / MISSISSIPPI: Gautier,Mrs M.L. Wootten,1709 Pat Dr,39553/MISSOURI:Ava,St Francis-in-the-Ozarks;L.M. Heigham,SW,Back Acres Farm,RFD 4,65608, 417-683-2078/NEW JERSEY:Flemington,St Peter,Stone Rows Farm, RD 2,Stockton 08559;Rev Gerardo Machado,201-752-1784;Col James A. Horn, SW,609-397-0349/NEW YORK:Huntington,Good Shepherd,POB 205, Woodbury 11797;Stuart D. Casper,433-9000;Rochester,Holy Cross, POB 131,Webster 14580;Rev David J. Ambuske,889-3357;Robert J. Cone,342-5621 / OHIO: Coshocton, St Paul, 1242 E Main, 43812, 622-0986 / OKLAHOMA: Oklahoma City, Holy Cross, POB 12530,73157, 722-3440 / PENNSYLVANIA: Hilltown, St Peter; Rev Donald Edelmann 702 Maple Av, Piscataway, NJ 08854, 752-8580; Mrs Ed Aichele, 1029 Green, Perkasie 18944, 822-9178; State College-Phillipsburg St Alban; Rev Larry A. Snyder, SSC, 777 Cricklewood Dr, State College 16801; Mrs Stuart Forth, 234-4483; Mrs Frances Ross, 341-2627 / SOUTH CAROLINA: Greenville, Resurrection; Rev William D. Ladkau, POB 1298, Columbia 29202, 791-4596 / TEXAS: Austin, St Augustine, POB 9993, 78766; Joe A. Goeth, SW, 327-0073; Bedford, St Bede; Rev Jean Pierre Meshew, POB 136, 76021, 817-498-1147; Midland (from Big Spring), St Paul; W. R. Wynn, SW, 1603 W Dengar, 79701; Mrs John Affleck, S, 2308 Allendale Rd, Big Spring 79720 / VIRGINIA: Alexandria, St Margaret of Scotland 112 N Alfred, 22314, 836-6504;Rev R. Michael Wynkoop, 836-4040; Newport News, St Matthew, POB 1261, 23601; Ben Joyner, SW, 3602 Campbell Rd (154),23602 / C A N A D A: QUEBEC: Montreal, St Athanasius; Clement J. Ings, SW, 3463 St Famille, H2X 2K7, 844-6158; David G. Kenworthy, JW, 363-6209

DELETIONS: NEW YORK: New York, Holy Grail (see note below) / ONTARIO: Toronto

D I O C E S E S: HOLY TRINITY, 2290 S Clayton, Denver CO 80210, 758-7211; Rt Rev James O. Mote, SSC; John Archibold, Chancellor, 700 Lafayette, Denver 80218, 832-7498; Col Jack F. Lane, S, 1523 Bradley Dr, Boulder 80303, 494-6498; Rev F. Ogden Miller, T, POB 14804, San Antonio 78218, 657-4972 / MIDWEST; Rev William O. Lewis, Bishop-elect, 1616 Merrill, Kalamazoo 49008, 349-7161; Rev F. C. Irvin, Archpriest, 5607 Whittier Av, Cleveland 44103, 431-3252; Rev Grover B. Tipton, 1431 W 80th, Bloomington MN 55420, 854-0347; William M. S. Dunn, Chancellor, 2604 Tremont Rd Columbus OH 43221

NEW YORK NOTE

PERSONS in the New York City area who support the continuing Anglican movement & are desirous of forming an Anglican congregation are asked to write the Right Rev William F. Burns, Diocese of the Resurrection, 45 Main,West Orange NJ 07052, giving him your name, address & phone number. In this way, when the diocese publishes the names of parishes & individuals who support the Anglican Catholic Church, you will know who each other is. There is reason to believe there are enough to form a congregation, if wanted, & there is an Anglican priest to minister to you. It's up to you.

G F S

THE Good Shepherd Fund was established in 1978 by the Foundation for Christian Theology, publisher of The Christian Challenge, to help meet the financial needs of priests who break their ties with the Episcopal Church and move out on faith to establish Anglican congregations. GSF has tried to help pay moving expenses,to catch up on family bills, to pay rent, to pay medical insurance premiums, and the like. You, too, can help by sending a contribution, earmarked for the Good Shepherd Fund, to The Foundation for Christian Theology, POB 2624, Victoria, Texas 77901. Put your money where your faith is.

OF your Christian charity, pray for our bishops- William, Dale, Robert, James, Peter, and William, bishop-elect.

FCC The Fellowship of Concerned Churchmen
NEWSLETTER

Volume II, Number 7 June A.D. 1979

We and our people -thanks be to God- follow no novel and strange religions, but that very religion which is ordained by Christ, sanctioned by the primitive and Catholic Church and approved by the consentient mind and voice of the most early Fathers. ---Elizabeth I in 1563

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY
JUN 11 1979

II BISHOP OF THE MIDWEST

ON the Feast of St Augustine of Canterbury and in the Fine Arts Auditorium of Calvin College in Grand Rapids, Michigan, William Oliver Lewis, 56, was consecrated and enthroned as II Bishop of the Midwest, in apostolic succession to Charles David Dale Doren, translated to the Diocese of the Mid-Atlantic States. Ordered deacon in June, 1956, & priested in December of that year, both by the Bishop of Quincy, Bishop Lewis remains Rector of St Patrick's, Kalamazoo, which cure he has held since his reception into the Anglican Church in September, 1978. The Bishop and Mrs Lewis have six children - all grown, & all present for the consecration and enthronement.

ACC

WITH the ratification of the Constitution as acted upon by the Provincial Synod at Dallas by the Diocese of the Southwest on 4 May, following on earlier ratifications by Midwest, Mid-Atlantic, & Resurrection, the Anglican Catholic Church has officially come into being. The Diocese of the Southeastern United States rejected the Constitution, the Diocese of Christ the King did not act upon it. Just as we were committing this issue to the printer we learned that the Diocese of the Holy Trinity also ratified it - on 11 May. Four deaneries were also officially established at the Holy Trinity synod.

ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW

THE letter which accompanied the following article, by a priest of the Church in New Zealand, read in part: It [the newsletter] is very much appreciated - and I rejoice that one part of the Anglican Church has included the description 'Catholic' in its official title." The article, of course, was written for the specifics of conditions as they obtain in New Zealand, but there is much to be garnered from it by readers in the United States & Canada - or wherever.

"CATHOLIC" - WHY DEVALUATE IT?

In recent years two things (among others) have become increasingly clear to some of us. One of these is the extent of the devaluation of the term "Catholic" by Anglicans - although, fortunately, not by all. In my own case, this was first brought home to me when teaching candidates for Confirmation. In earlier times, when Confirmation candidates were asked to name another branch of the Catholic Church in this country, the answer received was usually "the Roman Catholic Church." But in more recent years, the reply has been, almost without exception, "the Presbyterian Church". The reason for this almost imperceptible change is rather obscure; but one is inclined to ascribe it to the ecumenical view favored by non-episcopal dissenting bodies, that all Christian churches together constitute the Catholic Church - although, no doubt, the Mormons, Jehovah's Witnesses, & such like, would be excluded. Such a use of the term "Catholic" is, of course, quite novel. At the Council of Nicea, and at the time it was incorporated into the Creeds as a description of the Church, the term "Catholic" meant "Universal and True", its purpose being to distinguish the Church of God from heretical and schismatic sects.

The second thing that has become increasingly clear is that the Roman Catholic Church has recognized the term "Catholic" as being the key word for securing acceptance of its claims, & consequently is unceasing in its efforts in attempting to secure this description exclusively for itself. One can, of course, understand why the RC Church desires to possess the description "Catholic" exclusively, and can to a degree sympathize with its aim. But only up to a point; for if it is true that the Roman Catholic Church alone is entitled to be described as "Catholic" -which many Anglicans unthinkingly appear to condone- what of the claim of the Anglican Church to be the ancient Catholic Church of our nation holding and teaching all truth necessary for Salvation, officially rejecting heresy and error, and possessing unbroken continuity from the Apostles of Christ through the historic Episcopal Succession? To understand this question rightly, and the issues involved, and in order to arrive at a true evaluation of the position of the Anglican Church, it is necessary to go back to the beginning - to the basics of the Christian Faith. In order, however, to avoid confusion, it seems necessary that the [English] 1928 Book of Common Prayer should be adopted as the standard by which the Faith & Order of the Anglican Church can be ascertained and defined, for the '28 Prayer Book was produced by the Church of England itself before the Faith & Order of the Anglican Church, at least in some Provinces or Regional Churches, was eroded by the ecumenical movement.

The Sacrifice of Christ on the Cross was offered for the Salvation of all mankind -"jew and gentile, male and female, bond and free." Our Lord has, ever since, been proclaimed as the Saviour and Redeemer of the whole world, and consequently, the claim of the Christian religion for universal acceptance rests upon the truth that it is the one true Religion given by God for the whole world. (It should be noted that the key words that appear above are the words "universal" and "true'.) It is, of course, an exclusive claim. Many early Christians suffered persecution and martyrdom because they refused to compromise with, or renounce, this claim. Thus the qualities of "universal" and "true" have been, right from the beginning, inherent in the Christian Religion. When the Christian Church moved out into the Gentile world, the word selected to describe the "universal and true" character of Christianity,was the word "Catholic". Besides its prima facie or obvious meaning of "universal and true", the word embodies the idea of "wholeness" or "completeness" as well as "that which is throughout the whole exerting a binding influence." This was seen as applying to the universal truths of the Christian revelation -truths revealed by God- which secured the internal unity of the Christian Church by being held & believed by Christians everywhere. (The Eastern Church is very insistent upon the maintenance of this principle today.) Anything that was not true could not be described as "Catholic". These constitute the historic meanings of the word "Catholic" which is in danger of being devalued or overthrown today.

The earliest use of the term "Catholic" as a description of the Church of God is found in the letters of St Ignatius who, in his letter to Smyrneans (written before 171), writes: "Let that Eucharist be considered valid which is under the Bishop or him to whom the Bishop commits it. Wherever the Bishop appears, there let the people be, even as wheresoever Jesus Christ is, there is the Catholick Church." (At the time St Ignatius wrote, the Bishop was regarded as the Representative of Christ in the place of the Apostles.) Hence Christ's Presence was assured in that which possessed the Bishop's authority,this authority being the continuation of the authority bestowed by Christ upon the Apostles. (This did not exclude or contradict the fact that our Lord could act by personal intervention outside His covenanted & authorized channels of Grace - St Paul is a notable instance of this. The significant thing was that those who experienced this extra mural influence did not hesitate to give their allegiance to the institutional Church which possessed Divine authority.) Later, when heretical and schismatic sects arose and separated from the Church (their separation having its source in their separation from the teaching of the Church), they forfeited the description "Catholick", the Catholic Church being the Universal and True Church of God, holding and teaching the whole and complete Faith, and rejecting heresy & error. It is on these same grounds that the Church of England & the Churches of the Anglican Communion base their claim to be a true part of the One Holy Catholic and Apostolic Church today - a claim which until it was undermined by the ecumenical movement was substantiated by sound scholarship and evidence of early Church history.

Historically, the opposite to a Catholic is a Jew, a heretic, and a schismatic. (The words "schism" & "schismatic are derived from the same source as "scissors".) If I hold and teach some false doctrine or error, I forfeit my claim to the description "Catholic"; if I am in schism from the lawful Catholic Bishop, I forfeit my claim to the description "Catholic". That was the situation existing in the days of the early Church long before the later claims of the papacy arose. The difference between the Catholic Church & a sect is that the sect lacks Catholic bishops. The difference between the Catholic Religion & an heretical religion lies in the fact that the Catholic Religion consists of the complete and whole Christian revelation while an heretical religion;even though still in some measure being entitled to the description "Christian"; either emphasizes some aspect of the Christian revelation to the neglect or rejection of some other aspect; or has added some erroneous teaching or doctrine to the Christian revelation, or has subtracted from the full Christian revelation. It should be realized that the Christian Church and the Christian Revelation cannot be separated. Both have their origen in Christ. Both possess Christ's authority.

In light of all this, should Anglicans describe themselves, or think of themselves as "protestants"?

